

PERIODICAL
ML5
.M85

Accessions	Shelf No.
327.134	805510
V. 23.
1882.

FOUNDED 1852
SICUT PATRIBUS SIT DEUS NOBIS
BOSTONIA CONDITA A.D.
1630.
BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY
LIBRIS REGIMINE DONATA A.D. 1822.

Received Apr. 23, 1883.

HOPKINSON'S PIANOFORTES.

PRIZE MEDALS—1851, 1855, 1862, 1865, 1866, 1872, 1875, 1877, 1879, AND AT THE PARIS EXHIBITION, 1878, the highest distinction was conferred upon Messrs. HOPKINSON by the Musical Jurors—viz., the only Gold Medal awarded to any British Manufacturer.

MESSRS. HOPKINSON, therefore, feel fairly entitled to repeat the opinions expressed in the year 1845, by the most celebrated Pianists and Musicians then living—viz., THALBERG, Sir JULIUS BENEDICT, Madame DULCKEN, Sir HENRY BISHOP, and others, as still being correct—that their Pianofortes are "unsurpassed in tone and touch by those of any other maker."

Since these opinions were expressed, the leading musical judges in all parts of the world have confirmed them.

Messrs. H. having also, after carefully conducted experiments, introduced improvements of great value, with confidence invite the Trade, Professors, and the Musical Public, specially to inspect and judge of their Metal-framed Grand and Cottage Pianofortes, which they believe to deserve the eulogium passed upon them by the President of the Musical Jurors at Paris, 1878, that—

"THEY ARE FAULTLESS."

WAREROOMS—235, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.

MANUFACTORY—FITZROY ROAD, PRIMROSE HILL, N.W.

NOTE.—As many persons are not aware at how moderate a price they can obtain Instruments of such proved and undoubted excellence, they are invited to apply for Illustrated Lists.

CHAPPELL AND CO.'S

IRON-FRAMED PIANOFORTES,

OBLIQUE, AND SINGLE AND DOUBLE OVERSTRUNG.

35 TO 150 GUINEAS.

CLOUGH & WARREN'S AMERICAN ORGANS,

A COMBINATION OF PIPES AND REEDS.

18 TO 225 GUINEAS.

ALEXANDRE ORGAN HARMONIUMS,

6 TO 150 GUINEAS.

Show Rooms—50, NEW BOND STREET, W.

City Branch—15, POULTRY, E.C.

Steam Pianoforte Works—CHALK FARM ROAD, N.W.

THE AMERICAN PORTABLE Music Stands.

J. F. WALTERS' PATENT.

	s.	d.
Iron Single Desks ... from	10	6
„ Double „ ... „	25	0
Brass Single „ ... „	30	0
„ Double „ ... „	45	0
Desks for Table, in Iron ...	3	6
„ „ Brass ...	10	0

A large variety of designs in Brass
Stands kept in Stock.

THESE Stands are unsurpassed in simplicity, strength, portability, cheapness, and elegance of finish.

They are suitable for Military Bands, Orchestras, Reading and News Rooms, Libraries, Studies, and Drawing Rooms. When opened to their full capacity they stand 5 feet high, and can be folded and inclosed in a case 21 inches long by 2 inches diameter. The weight is about 3 lbs. 12 oz., and they will support a weight of 50 lbs.

To be obtained of all Music Dealers, and of the Manufacturers and Proprietors of the Patent,

HARROW & CO., Music Smiths, Brass Workers, &c., 13 & 14, Portland Street, Soho, London, W.
DESCRIPTIVE CIRCULARS FREE.

STEINWAY & SONS' NEW UPRIGHT GRAND PIANOFORTE

(HEIGHT, 4 FEET 6 INCHES),

With the STEINWAY PATENT CUPOLA and PIER FRAME, constructed of SOLID STEEL finished in BRONZE (as in the STEINWAY HORIZONTAL GRAND PIANOFORTES), and cast in the STEINWAY FOUNDRIES, also the NEW PATENT CAPO D'ASTRO BAR; the STEINWAY PATENT OVERSTRUNG SCALING, and NEW PATENT EXTRA HARMONIC DUPLEX SCALE; PATENT SOUND-BOARD RESONATOR; PATENT RING BRIDGE; PATENT INDESTRUCTIBLE HAMMERS; GRADUATING SOFT PEDAL CASED in METAL; PATENT METALLIC ACTION STANDARDS; THREE STRINGS TO EACH NOTE; SEVEN OCTAVES, &c., &c.

PRICE 105 GUINEAS.

* Attention is directed to this magnificent STEINWAY UPRIGHT GRAND PIANOFORTE, which is a NEW MODEL specially designed to meet the requirements of those English households who have wished for a "STEINWAY" at a somewhat lower price than had previously existed. It possesses all the well-known STEINWAY characteristics in respect to TONE, displaying a volume, fullness, depth, and richness, with a purity, refinement, and exquisite sympathetic quality utterly unknown in any English Pianofortes, whilst in regard to STRUCTURAL SOLIDITY it obviously compares with them (as has been happily said) "as a MODERN IRONCLAD to a CANOE."

STEINWAY HALL,
LOWER SEYMOUR ST., PORTMAN SQUARE, LONDON, W.
(AND AT STEINWAY HALL, NEW YORK.)

THE

MUSICAL TIMES

AND

SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

x 80 55, 10
1.23
1882

VOL. XXIII.

LONDON : NOVELLO, EWER & CO.,
1, BERNERS STREET (W.), AND 80 & 81, QUEEN STREET (E.C.)
BOSTON, NEW YORK, AND PHILADELPHIA : DITSON & CO.
1882.

B. 76,
327.134
Apr. 23. 1883

MUSIC IN VOL. XXIII.

PIECES WITH SACRED WORDS.

No.
468	Break forth into joy (Easter)	..	..	..	J. Barnby.
471	{ Let your light so shine before men	..	..	..	J. Barnby.
	{ Whoso hath this world's good ..	..	..	..
472	The radiant morn hath passed away	..	..	..	Rev. H. H. Woodward.
473	Fear not, O land (Harvest)	..	..	..	Charles H. Lloyd.
476	Not unto us, O Lord..	..	..	..	J. Barnby.
478	My soul truly waiteth	..	..	..	William Rea.

PIECES WITH SECULAR WORDS.

467	{ When the rosy morn	..	..	..	E. A. Sydenham.
	{ To shorten winter's sadness	..	..	..	Thomas Weelkes.
469	{ O summer wind ..	..	..	..	W. A. C. Cruickshank.
	{ Evening ..	..	..	..
470	A Border Ballad	..	..	..	Oliveria Prescott.
474	Summer's Good-bye ..	..	..	..	Collingwood Banks.
475	A Psalm of Life	..	..	..	John Kinross.
477	Thou art mighty, O Eros ("Psyche")	..	..	..	Niels W. Gade.

INDEX.

LEADING ARTICLES.

	Page
Æolian Music ... ..	432, 479
"Angelus ad Virginem": the Hymn of
Chaucer's Oxford Clerk ... ..	75
Auber, The centenary of ... ..	125
Balfe ... ..	594
"Benvenuto Cellini" ... ..	61
College for Music, The proposed ... ..	17
Elijah; a comparison of the original and revised scores ... ..	525, 588, 653
English Opera ... ..	245
Fairy Music ... ..	135
Feminine in Music, The ... ..	521
Gerbert, Martin ... ..	585, 646
Gounod's "Redemption" ... ..	645
Great Composers, The
No. 11. Chopin -12, 70, 132, 191, 256, 314
372.
No. 12. Rossini 429, 476, 522, 591, 649
Haydn Biography, A ... ..	473
Heinrich Hofmann ... ..	181, 253
Leighton, Sir Frederick. On Art and
Ethics ... ..	15
London Musical Season ... ..	427
Male-Voice Choirs ... ..	18
Master Singers of Nuremberg, The ... ..	8, 66
Mendelssohn Family, The ... ..	5, 312
Musical Activity of the Year ... ..	317
"Nibelung's Ring," The ... ..	185, 246
"Parsifal" ... ..	309, 369
Pearsall: A Memoir ... ..	375
Purcell's Music to "Macbeth" ... ..	259
Royal College of Music ... ..	17, 76, 194
Schumann's Instrumentation, and his position as a Symphonist ... ..	367
Scott and Purcell ... ..	74
Scottish Musical Society ... ..	196
"Tristan and Isolde" ... ..	126
Turle, James ... ..	425
Unmusical England ... ..	595
Brünnhilde. To Frau Vogl ... ..	318

OCCASIONAL NOTES.

Aberdeen Journal and Herr Reiter ... ..	77
Advertising on Programmes, &c. ... ..	261
American Musical Journalism ... ..	529
American Musical Opinion ... ..	319

	Page
American Operatic Audiences ... ..	598
Ancient Hymns ... ..	138
Anonymous Criticisms ... ..	484
Bach's Works and German taste ... ..	77
Banjo, The ... ..	529
Concert Programmes ... ..	197, 261
Concerts and conversation ... ..	19
Copyright ... ..	376
Costa, Sir Michael ... ..	138
Country Critics ... ..	377
Criticism ... ..	20
Drawing Room Concerts ... ..	319
Drum, The, in the French Army ... ..	437
Editor's difficulties ... ..	136
Essex, Dowager Countess of ... ..	137
"Favourable Reviews" ... ..	597
Gounod's "Redemption" (Performances) ... ..	529
Hallé's (Mr. Charles) Band ... ..	138
Hiller, Dr., on the denomination of
Musical Notes ... ..	436
Ill timed applause ... ..	196
"Interviewing" ... ..	136
Loewe's (Karl) "Ballads" ... ..	656
Mackenzie's (Mr. A. C.) new Opera
"Colomba" ... ..	529
Marks of expression ... ..	137, 657
Minor Scale, Signature of the ... ..	437
Mozart's Twelfth Mass, Authorship of ... ..	319
Musical Artists' Society's Concerts ... ..	483
Musical Association, Proceedings of ... ..	19
"Musical Bee" ... ..	137
Musical Biographies ... ..	657
Musical Instruction in Italy ... ..	377
Musical Societies ... ..	261
Music and the sister arts ... ..	197
Music and Work ... ..	657
Music at inopportune times ... ..	529
Music by Electricity ... ..	437
Music in the Parks ... ..	376
National Anthem for India ... ..	376
Noverre, Chevalier ("Life and Works") ... ..	597
Operatic Singers ... ..	77
Orchestras in Theatres ... ..	657
Organists' Salaries ... ..	19
Paragraph-making in American papers ... ..	196
People's Choral Classes ... ..	481
Popular Ballad Concerts ... ..	261
Raff's Oratorio ... ..	77
Royal Italian Opera Company (Limited) ... ..	261
Sacred Harmonic Society's Library ... ..	658
Sacred Harmonic Society's Report ... ..	137
"Salvation Army" Music ... ..	76
Smoking Concerts ... ..	77
Song Literature ... ..	19

	Page
Stainer's (Dr.) appointment as Inspector of Music ... ..	656
Street noises ... ..	597
Tenor Music and the C clef ... ..	483
Theatres, Fire Panics in ... ..	20, 319
"Transcriptions" and "Arrangements" ... ..	528

LONDON CONCERTS, FESTIVALS, &c.

Bache's (Mr.) Concert ... ..	202, 663
Bach Society ... ..	141
Birmingham Musical Festival ... ..	438, 484, 530
Birmingham, Music in ... ..	211, 255, 328, 391, 666
Borough of Hackney Choral Association ... ..	79, 203, 327
Bow and Bromley Institute ... ..	204
Brighton Aquarium Concerts ... ..	23
Bristol Musical Festival ... ..	598
Bristol, Music in ... ..	328, 391, 445, 549, 603, 667
Brixton Choral Society ... ..	664
Brussels Festival ... ..	496
Cambridge University Musical Society
... ..	204, 383
Chester Musical Festival ... ..	384
Choir Benevolent Fund ... ..	540
Congresso Europeo di Canto Liturgico
at Arezzo ... ..	549
Crystal Palace ... ..	20, 139, 201, 263, 325, 381, 601, 661
Dundee Ladies' Orchestra ... ..	82
Edinburgh Orchestral Festival
"Eric the Dane" ... ..	143
... ..	80
French Festival, The ... ..	383
Ganz's (Mr.) Concerts ... ..	264, 327, 381
Gaussent's (Mr.) Choir ... ..	22, 141, 663
German Musical Union at Zürich ... ..	446
German Opera, Drury Lane ... ..	323, 377
Gounod on Mozart's "Don Giovanni" ... ..	658
Gounod's "Redemption" at St. Margaret
Pattens ... ..	659
"Great Paul," The Dedication of ... ..	383
Guildhall Orchestral Society ... ..	79, 141
Guildhall School of Music ... ..	31, 202, 263
Haberdashers' Schools ... ..	203
Hamburg Singers' Festival ... ..	495
Hans von Bülow, and the Meiningen
Hof-Capelle in Berlin ... ..	83
Hecht (Mr. E.), "Eric the Dane" ... ..	80
Hereford Musical Festival ... ..	537
Her Majesty's Theatre (Carl Rosa) ... ..	78, 138, 198
Highbury Philharmonic Society ... ..	204
Javanese Gamelan ... ..	602
Kuhe's (Mr.) Festival Concerts ... ..	665

	Page		Page		Page
Leipzig, Music in ...	24, 151, 213	Birkbeck Institution (Violin Class Concert) ...	277	Eccleston Square Church (Harvest) ...	552
Leslie's (Henry) Choir ...	443	Birmingham Musical Association (Report) ...	152	Edinburgh Choral Union ...	498
London Church Choir Association ...	664	Birmingham Musical Festival (Prospectus) ...	94, 497	Edinburgh University Musical Society ...	33, 216
London Gregorian Choral Association ...	327	— (Electric Light) ...	552	Edwards, Mr. J. (Concert) ...	153
London Musical Society ...	265, 444	Blackheath Conservatoire ...	614	Elvey, Sir G. (Marriage and Resignation) ...	395
Macfarren's (Walter) Orchestral Concerts ...	201	Bloomsbury Chapel (Concert) ...	95	— (Presentation) ...	339
Manchester, Music in, 23, 82, 143, 211, 266, 335		Bolingbroke Choral Society ...	95, 338	Emmanuel Church, Brixton (Organ) ...	615
Menter's (Madame) Recital ...	264, 382	Bonawitz, Herr (Concert) ...	217	Erith Choral Society (Concert) ...	95
Monday Popular Concerts 21, 78, 139, 200, 262, 602, 661		Boosé, Mr. J. R. (Concert) ...	395	Evans, Miss Rose (Concert) ...	154
National Training School Concerts ...	203	Borough of Hackney Choral Association (Prospectus) ...	553	Excelsior Choral Society ...	219
"Nibelung's Ring," The, at Her Majesty's Theatre ...	320	Bow and Bromley Institute 33, 96, 154, 218, 554, 615, 677		Falshaw's (Mr. J. M.) "Claremont" March (Dedication) ...	278
North East Cathedral Choir Association ...	392	— (Institute Classes) ...	613	Filippi, Signor Filippo Gounod's "Redemption" ...	676
Oxford, Music in ...	391	Bradford Art, &c., Exhibition (Organ) ...	394	Finchley Parish Church (Harvest) ...	613
"Parsifal" at Bayreuth ...	437, 493	Bradford, Dr. J. ...	154	— (Recital) ...	338, 678
Philharmonic Society 139, 200, 325, 380		Brahms's Pianoforte Concerto ...	278	Foreign Notes 35, 98, 157, 220, 280, 342, 399, 453, 500, 557, 618, 681
Richter Concerts ...	325, 379, 662	Brammer, Miss May ...	499	Foresters' Hall, Clerkenwell (Ballad Concert) ...	217
Royal Academy of Music ...	22, 444, 550	Breitkopf and Härtel's Catalogue ...	152	Franke & Schultz-Curtius ...	394
Royal Albert Hall Choral Society 20, 149, 199, 660		Brewer, Master (Organ Recitals) ...	339	Frankfort Conservatoire ...	449
Royal College of Music ...	197	Bridge, Mr. F. A. (Presentation) ...	394, 611	Friedländer, Herr Max ...	615
Royal Italian Opera ...	262, 324, 379, 443	Brighton Sacred Harmonic Society (Prospectus) ...	94	Frith, Mr. (Concert) ...	449
Royal Normal College and Academy of Music for the Blind ...	23, 444	Brinsmead and Sons' Concerts ...	448, 553	Frost, Mr. C. J. (Recital) ...	96
Rummel's (Herr) Pianoforte Recital ...	382	Bristol Festival ...	498, 678	Fulham Choral Society ...	337
Sacred Harmonic Society 21, 140, 198, 262, 324		Brixton Baptist Chapel (Concert) ...	395	Gade's "Psyche" (Dedication) ...	278
Savoy Theatre ("Iolanthe") ...	664	Brixton Choral Society ...	34, 337, 553	Ganz, Mr. W. (Orchestral Concerts) ...	219
Scottish Musical Society ...	214	Brompton Hospital ...	34	German Opera, Drury Lane 217, 275, 614
Some Educational Concerts ...	202	Brondesbury Philharmonic Society (Prospectus) ...	96, 614	Germans' Friendly Society (Festival) ...	395
South London Choral Association ...	327	Calkin, Mr. J. B. (Presentation) ...	614	Glasgow Choral Union ...	676
St. Paul's Cathedral (Dedication Festival) ...	80	Cambridge University (Degrees) ...	337	Godolphin School, Hammersmith ...	33
— (Gregorian Association) ...	327	— (Examinations for Women) ...	337	Gounod's "Redemption" 95, 553, 615, 676
— (Lay-Helpers' Association) ...	143	— (Examiners and Examinations) 34, 277, 678		— Wedding March ...	96
— (Sons of the Clergy) ...	328	— Musical Society ("Ajax") ...	676	Greenhill, Mr. J. (Concert) ...	153
Symphony Concerts ...	326, 380	Camden Town Parish Church (Harvest) ...	612	Gresham Hall, Brixton (Organ Recitals) ...	554, 678
Thorne's (Mr. E. H.) Concerts ...	142	Caution to the Public ...	676	Griffiths, Mr. J. R. (Lecture) ...	218
Tufnell Park Choral Society ...	142	Chatsworth Road Chapel (Organ) ...	154	Grosvenor Choral Society 34, 95, 217, 338, 394, 449, 611
Yorkshire, Music in, 144, 212, 266, 335, 445, 604, 667		Cheltenham Musical Society ...	554	Grünfeld, Herr ...	276
		Chester Musical Festival ...	217	Guildhall School (Lady Jenkinson's Prize) ...	152
		Chicago Musical Festival ...	276	Guilmant, A. (Recitals) ...	34
		Choir Appointments 42, 103, 225, 289, 346, 403, 456, 503, 561, 623, 684		Hall, Mr. E. (Concert) ...	219
		Choir Benevolent Fund (Canon Farrar's Sermon) ...	498	Hamilton, Miss V. (Concert) ...	34, 339
		— (Festivals) ...	339	Hampstead Choral Society ...	337, 553
		— (Report) ...	153	Hardy, Miss Madeline (Concert) ...	33
		— (Rev. E. V. Hall's Sermon) ...	551	Hawkstone Hall (Concert) ...	218
		Christ Church, Bermondsey ...	94, 275	Haydn's "Seven Words," at St. John's, Worcester ...	267
		Christ Church, Clapham (Recitals) ...	338	Hedley, Mr. John (Testimonial) ...	275
		Christ Church, Lancaster Gate (Harvest) ...	678	Henfield Church (Organ) ...	450
		Christ Church, Mayfair (Harvest) ...	613	Hereford Festival ...	215, 614
		Christ Church, North Finchley (Organ) ...	32	Highbury Athenæum (Opening) ...	94
		Christ Church, Westminster Road (Harvest) ...	613	Highbury Philharmonic Society ...	32, 554
		Christ Church, Woburn Square (Harvest) ...	677	Highgate Congregational Church (Recital) ...	153
		Church of England Temperance Society (Festival) ...	337	"History of the Year" (Music) ...	677
		Church Sunday School Choir (Festival) ...	448	Hofmann's "Cinderella" ...	96
		City Temple (Concerts) ...	218	Holder, Mr. F. W. (Concert) ...	615
		Civil Service Vocal Union ...	276, 615, 678	Hollins, Mr. (Concert) ...	338
		Clapham Choral Society ...	219	Holmes, Mr. W. H. (Concert) ...	677
		Colborne, Mr. L. (Presentation) ...	448	Holy Trinity Church, Crouch Hill (Recital) ...	393
		Corder, Mr. F. (Operetta) ...	154	Holy Trinity Church, Haverstock Hill (Festival) ...	154
		— (Resignation) ...	552	Holy Trinity Church, Marylebone (Concert) ...	93
		Cornelius Musical Society ...	614	Holy Trinity Church, Woolwich (Organ) ...	338
		Coward, Mr. H. (Magna Charta) ...	218	Hopekirk, Miss H. (Recital) ...	448
		Crouch End Choral Society ...	33, 153, 338	Hopkins, Mr. E. J. (Degree) ...	498
		Crystal Palace (Concerts) ...	499, 611	Howell, Mr. F. ...	93
		Crurwen, Mr. J. S., in Paris ...	277	Hueffer, Mr. F. ("Musical Studies") ...	615
		Denmark Hill Concerts 152, 216, 276		Huntington, Miss Agnes ...	152
		Dorey, Mr. A. (Concert) ...	95	Jackson W. (Autobiography) ...	278
		Dowdeswell, Mr. C. (Lecture) ...	153, 216	Kennington Ladies' College ...	448
		Dublin Exhibition (Music at) ...	497	Kentish Town Institute Choral Society ...	337
		Dundee Amateur Choral Union ...	498	Kilburn Musical Association ...	34
		Dunn, Mr. Sinclair (Entertainment) ...	394	Kuhe's, Mr. W. (Festival) ...	552
		— (Concert) ...	154	Kyle Society 33, 96, 153, 218, 277, 339, 394, 677
		Durham Musical Society (Conductor) ...	95
		East Finchley Choral Society ...	218
		Ebury Glee Union ...	614

MISCELLANEOUS CONCERTS, INTELLIGENCE, &c.

Aberdeen Choral Union ...	612	Hall, Mr. E. (Concert) ...	219
Adams, Mr. Julian (Eastbourne Concerts) ...	338, 554, 678	Hamilton, Miss V. (Concert) ...	34, 339
Agabeg, Miss J. (Concert) ...	218	Hampstead Choral Society ...	337, 553
Albanesi, Signor (Concert) ...	449	Hardy, Miss Madeline (Concert) ...	33
Alderson's (Mr. T. A.) Choir ...	450	Hawkstone Hall (Concert) ...	218
All Saints', Clapton ...	677	Haydn's "Seven Words," at St. John's, Worcester ...	267
All Saints', Margaret Street (Dedication) ...	677	Hedley, Mr. John (Testimonial) ...	275
All Saints', South Lambeth (Harvest) ...	614	Henfield Church (Organ) ...	450
Amateur Dramatic and Musical Union ...	613	Hereford Festival ...	215, 614
Angell Town Institution (Concert) ...	154	Highbury Athenæum (Opening) ...	94
Ardingley College ...	395	Highbury Philharmonic Society ...	32, 554
Ashdown and Parry (Dissolution) ...	395	Highgate Congregational Church (Recital) ...	153
Assembly Musical Society ...	678	"History of the Year" (Music) ...	677
Athenæum (Camden Road) Musical Society ...	217	Hofmann's "Cinderella" ...	96
Bach Choir ...	449	Holder, Mr. F. W. (Concert) ...	615
Balfe, M. W. (Memorial) ...	338, 612	Hollins, Mr. (Concert) ...	338
— (Sacred Music) ...	553	Holmes, Mr. W. H. (Concert) ...	677
Balham Choral Society ...	338	Holy Trinity Church, Crouch Hill (Recital) ...	393
Bamford, Mr. W. H. (Presentation) ...	614	Holy Trinity Church, Haverstock Hill (Festival) ...	154
Barrett, Mr. W. A. (Lecture) ...	153	Holy Trinity Church, Marylebone (Concert) ...	93
Belfast Philharmonic Society ...	552	Holy Trinity Church, Woolwich (Organ) ...	338
Belle Sauvage Glee Union 32, 154, 218, 277, 678		Hopekirk, Miss H. (Recital) ...	448
Bennett, Sir Sterndale (Paper by Mr. A. O'Leary) ...	275	Hopkins, Mr. E. J. (Degree) ...	498
Bermondsey and Rotherhithe Choral Association ...	614	Howell, Mr. F. ...	93
Bethnal Green Road Chapel (Recital) ...	219	Hueffer, Mr. F. ("Musical Studies") ...	615
Birch, Mr. J. A. (Concert) ...	31	Huntington, Miss Agnes ...	152
Bird, Mr. H. R. (Concert) ...	338	Jackson W. (Autobiography) ...	278
		Kennington Ladies' College ...	448
		Kentish Town Institute Choral Society ...	337
		Kilburn Musical Association ...	34
		Kuhe's, Mr. W. (Festival) ...	552
		Kyle Society 33, 96, 153, 218, 277, 339, 394, 677

	Page		Page		Page
Lay Helpers' Association Festival	96, 395	Raleigh Memorial School (Concert)	153	St. Stephen's Musical Society	275, 394
Leipzig Gewandhaus Concerts	276	Reeves', Mr. Sims (Concert)	95	St. Stephen's, Westminster (Harvest)	676, 678
Lemaire, Mr. R. (Appointment)	339, 615	Regent's Park Chapel (Concert)	95	St. Thomas's, Elm Road (Harvest)	614
Lemare, Mr. W. (Complimentary Concert)	395	Reichelmann, Herr (Concert)	33, 154	St. Thomas's, Portman Sq. ("Athalie")	338
Lemare's (Mr. W.) Choir (Crystal Palace)	218	Ria, Signor (Concert)	154	St. Thomas's Square Chapel, Hackney
Liverpool Philharmonic Society (Prospectus)	339	Richter Concerts	217, 278, 448, 612	(Concert)	217
Lloyd, Mr. C. Harford (Appointment)	395	Ring Theatre, Vienna (Concert)	34	Schliebner, Herr (Concert)	678
— (Paper on Royal College of Music)	551	Rochdale Choral Society	553	Scottish Musical Society	552
Lochner, Mr. R. (Concert)	219	Rogers, Mr. E. (Concert)	393	Shachner, Herr	339
Lombard Amateur Musical Society	338	Royal Academy of Music (Lady Goldsmid Scholarship)	275	Shinner, Miss Emily	395
London Church Choir Association (Prize)	277, 449	— (Prizes)	447	Shinn's, Mr. G., "The Victories of Judah"	152, 277
— (Festival)	553, 615	— (Sternale Bennett Scholarship)	276	Singleton, Miss Saidie (Concert)	393
London Gregorian Choral Association (Annual Meeting)	31	Royal Albert Hall Choral Society	95, 96, 611	Skeon, Mr. Walter (Concert)	96
— (Festival)	277	Royal College of Music (Concert)	218	Sloan, Dr. R. (New Work)	278
London Institution Lectures	34	— and the Corporation	394	Smith, Mr. Herman ("Organ and Orchestra")	339
London Musical Society	677	— Subscriptions, &c.	335, 447, 448, 498, 499	Smith, P. J., and Sons (Pianos)	615
London Society for Teaching the Blind (Concert)	32, 449	Royal Italian Opera Company	219	Social Science Association	499, 551
London University (Degrees)	95	— (Prospectus)	268	Smoking Concerts	614
Lothbury Male Voice Choir	219	Royal Society of Musicians	32, 93	Society for the Propagation of the Gospel (Festival)	394
Macfarren, Mr. Walter (Orchestral Concerts)	94	— Festival	338, 393, 677	Society of Professional Musicians (Manchester)	394, 611, 676
Macfarren, Professor (Letter to Mr. Mundella)	216	Royal Victoria Coffee Hall	34, 153, 553	Sons of the Clergy (Festival)	277
Madrigal Society (Prizes)	96	Sacred Harmonic Society	96, 336, 497, 615, 676	South Kensington Ladies' Choir	217
Mahr, Herr Emil (Trio Concerts)	32, 152	St. Alphage, Southwark	94	South London Choral Association	33, 612, 678
Mann, Mr. A. H. (Degree)	219	St. Andrew's Choral Society	276	South London Institute (Orchestral Concert)	395
Manns, Mr. A. (Presentation)	393	St. Anne's, Hoxton (Harvest)	614	South London Musical Club	32, 153
Manns' Testimonial Fund (Glasgow)	33	St. Anne's, Soho (Lenten Service)	96, 276	Southwark Choral Society	34
March Number (Publication)	96	St. Augustine & St. Faith (Dedication)	613	Stanford, Mr. Villiers (New Opera)	678
Marson, Mr. W. A. (Resignation)	219	St. Barnabas, South Lambeth (Concert)	278	Stockley, Mr. W. (Subscription Concerts)	613
Matthews, Miss Annie (Concert)	337	St. Bartholomew the Great (Carols)	95	Stratford Congregational Church	395
Meadowcroft Memorial Prize	677	— (Harvest)	613	Stratford Musical Festival	552
"Merchant of Venice" (Music)	219, 336	St. Botolph, Aldersgate (Concert)	219	Stratton, Mr. S. S. (Chamber Concerts)	498
Military Guild of Holy Standard (Festival)	394	"St. Cecilia Magazine"	95	Streatham Hill Literary Society	612
Molinueux, Mr. T., and Royal Society of Musicians	93	St. Clement's, Barnsbury (Dedication Festival)	449	"Strolling Players" Orchestral Society	677
Monday Popular Concerts	498	St. Clement's, Notting Hill	95, 449	Sullivan, Mr. A.	34
Monk, Dr. E. G.	615	St. Edmund the King	277	— (Music to "Merchant of Venice")	219
Morley, Mr. H. Killick (Concert)	32	— (Harvest)	612	— (Testimonial)	338
Mostyn Road Wesleyan Chapel	338	St. George's Glee Union	32, 95, 154, 218, 277, 337, 394, 449, 551, 677	Sunday Evening Association	94
Musical Artists' Society	395	St. James's, Clerkenwell (Harvest)	614	Sydney Musical Union	611
— (Secretary)	154	St. James's Hall (Alterations)	554	Symphony Concerts	95, 219
Musical Association	275	St. John the Evangelist, Waterloo Road (Organ)	393, 553, 615, 676, 677	Terry, Mr. E. R. (Testimonial)	93
— (Proceedings)	611	St. John the Evangelist, Westminster (Harvest)	613	Thornton Heath Musical Society	338
Musical College (Wales)	449	St. John's, Horselydown (Organ)	394, 614	Tinney, Mr. C. E. (Concert)	153
Musical Union Concerts	278	St. John's, Red Lion Square (Concert)	394	Tolkien, Miss Ada (Concert)	277
Myddleton Choral Society	33, 277	St. Jude's Choir Concert	154	Tonic Sol-fa College	550
Nagel, Mr. H. (Retirement)	498	St. Luke's, Berwick Street (Harvest)	614	Tottenham Musical Society	33, 217, 368
National Anthem (Authorship of)	278	St. Luke's, Croydon (Organ)	95	Trinity College	154, 336, 394, 678
National Anthem for India	675	St. Margaret Pattens	33, 218, 395	— (Discussions)	153
National Conservatoire of Music	94	— (Harvest)	615	— (Prizes)	94
National Temperance League (Festival)	551	St. Margaret's, Westminster	337	— (Prize Sonata)	450
National Training School	338	St. Mark's, Myddleton Square (Harvest)	613	Trinity Congregational Church (Poplar)	339
Newcastle-on-Tyne (Orchestral Concerts)	448	St. Mary-the-less, Lambeth	450	Trinity Presbyterian Church (Recital)	277
New Southgate (Concert)	276	St. Mary's, Hoxton (Elijah)	33	Tufnell Park Choral Society	553
North London Tonic Sol-fa Union	675	St. Mary's, Hornsey Rise (Recital)	449	Victoria Glee Club	336
Nottingham Drawing Room Concerts	678	St. Matthew's, New Kent Road (Advent)	34	Victoria Hall (Concert)	94
Obituary	103, 162, 225, 289, 346, 403, 456, 503, 561, 623, 684	— (Harvest)	612	Wagner's "Ring" at Her Majesty's Theatre	32, 96, 276
Organ Appointments	42, 103, 162, 225, 289, 346, 403, 456, 503, 561, 623, 684	St. Michael's, Woodgreen (Harvest)	554	Walworth Choral Society	154, 615
Orphéon Societies (Competition, &c.)	268	St. Mildred's, Bread Street (Flower Service)	395	Walworth Choral Union	34
Orpheus Society	613	Sainton-Dolby, Madame (Concert)	447	Wandsworth Town Hall	154
Oswestry Festival	499, 551	St. Pancras Almshouses (Concert)	276	Wareing, Mr. H. W. (Appointment)	678
Oxford University (Degrees)	152, 219, 393, 613	St. Paul's Cathedral	32, 95, 278, 553	Watford School of Music (Prizes)	498
Paddington Chapel Choral Union	34	— (Harvest)	613, 678	Watson's (Mr. J. S.) Subscription Concerts	553
Parratt, Mr. W. (Appointment)	450	St. Paul's Presbyterian Church	448	Watson's (Mr. M.) Choir	337
Performing Rights (Actions)	393	St. Paul's, West Brixton (Concert)	268	Weber, Herr Carl (Chamber Concerts)	215
Philharmonic Society (Prospectus)	93, 395	St. Peter's, Eaton Square (Service of Praise)	95, 152	Wellington Hall	678
Phillips, Mr. A. J.	553	— ("St. Peter")	395	Wesche, Mr. W. (Recital)	96
Physick, Mr. A. (Recital)	33, 219	St. Philip's, Regent Street (Concert in aid)	337	West End Hospital (Concert)	219
Pietermaritzburg Philharmonic Society	394	— (Harvest)	677	West Hackney Choral Society	338
Portland Choral Association	154, 449	St. Saviour's, Brockley (Harvest)	614	Westminster Abbey	218, 275
Portugal, King of (Piano)	278	St. Saviour's, Eastbourne (Organ)	278	West, Mr. J. E. (Anthem)	34
Preston Choral Society	216	St. Saviour's, Herne Hill (Harvest)	614	Whitefield's Tabernacle (Concert)	615
Preston "Guild Merchant"	216, 497, 552	St. Saviour's School, Herne Hill	449	Williams, Mr. C. L. (Te Deum, &c.)	219
		— (Organ)	677	Willing's (Mr.) Choir	449
		St. Sepulchre's (Ascension)	337	Winbolt, Mr. W. J. (Presentation)	449

Windsor and Eton Choral Society	Page 154
Winter, Mr. G. Day (Concert)	33
Wolverhampton Festival Choral Society	498
Wycliffe Chapel (Concert)	336
— (Harvest)	612
— (Recital)	153, 218
Zimmermann, Miss Agnes...	676

OBITUARY NOTICES.

Callcott, J.	153
Callcott, William Hutchins	497
Engel, Carl	668
Essex, Dowager Countess of	137
Gutmann, Adolph	675
Howell, Francis	678
Jaell, Alfred	267
Kücken, Friedrich Wilhelm	267
Kullak, Theodore	267
Newton, Madame Alexander	96
Nottebohm, Gustav	675
Raff, Joachim	392
Rudersdorff, Madame	219
Turle, James	425
Whish, Henry	395

REVIEWS.

Abt, Franz. Minster Bells	156
Austin, Frank. A Tambourine Dance	500
Avison, Childs. Scarlet and Gold	280
Baker, Brownlow. Danse Pyrrhique	556
Barrett, W. A. Balfe: his Life and Work	679
Bartholomew, Ann S. Mounsey. Six Songs	397
Bauerkeller, W. Allegretto (All' On-garese)	399
Behrend, A. H. The Singers from the Sea	220
Bell, F. H. O Maiden Fairest	341
Benedict, Sir Julius. Poo Teën Loh (The World's Delight)	557
Benson, George. The Wooer	157
Berlioz, Life and Letters of	395
Birch, Ernest. Voices	557
Blumenthal, J. Unsaid	499
Bowerman, R. Deux Polonaises	557
Brown, A. H. Twenty Original Volun-taries	618
Buck, Dudley. The Influence of the Organ in History	555
Burgmein, J. Christmas Morn	35
Calkin, J. Baptiste. Youth and Age	398
Carleton, Hugh. The Genesis of Har-mony	154
Cowen, F. H. Yellow Jasmine (The Language of the Flowers)	617
Crossley, Hastings. Reine d'amour.—The Cottage by the Sea.—The lament of the rose.—In the Night.—Strew on her roses	340
Culwick, James C. Sonata (D minor) for Organ	98
— The Rudiments of Music	220
— The Study of Music and its place in General Education	339
Cummings, W. H. The Great Musi-cians: Purcell	97
D'Alquen, Frank. Inconstancy	557
D'Anvers, N. Elementary History of Music	279

David and Lussy. L'Histoire de la Notation Musicale	Page 450
Davis, Gabriel. Albany: Grand March	279
— King Carnival	36
Delbrück, Alfred. Les Sauterelles.—Rêve à Madeleine	398
Denza, L. I will suffer silently	617
Dick, Cotsford. A Children's Opera	556
— Toccata	341
Dunstan, H. Mainwaring. Life and Letters of Berlioz	395
Ehrlich, H. Die Musik Æsthetik	554
Faning, Eaton. Liberty	555
Fan Series, The	500
Flood, W. H. O Salutaris Hostia.—Evening shades	556
Foster, Myles B. A day in a child's life	35
Fox, George. Gabriel Grub	398
Gibson, Ignace. Sächsisches Lied, für Piano	500
Gladstone, F. E. Philippi	680
— Yesterday, love, yesterday	36
Goss, Sir John. There is none like unto the God of Jeshurun	680
Gounod, Charles. A Rhapsody (Come, divine one)	555
— Die Erlösung (The Redemption)	680
— La Rédemption	680
— Wedding March	278
Gower, Allis. The Curfew Bell	220
Great Musicians, The. Purcell, by W. H. Cummings	97
Harper, W. H. Mother, O sing me to rest	556
Heap, C. Swinnerton. The Voice of Spring	499
Hecht, Edward. Prelude (B flat) and Scherzino (G minor)	219
Hervey, E. L. My heart only knows	280
Hicks, Rev. Edward. Church Music	34
Hine, Gertrude. Nursery Rhymes	36
Hirschfeld, A. Birds and Flowers for little Folks	341
History of Music (E. Naumann)	157
Hofmann, H. Melusina	280
— Six Part-Songs (Men's Voices)	339
— Song of the Norns	341
Holmes, W. H. Study for the Pianoforte	399
— The Initials	555
Hueffer, Francis. Studi Critico-Musicali	680
Husband, Edward. Supplemental Tunes to Popular Hymns	220
Jahn, Otto. Life of Mozart	615
Kahlenberg, S. Transcription of Mendelssohn-Bartholdy's Prayer from the Opera "Melusine."—Transcription of Mendelssohn-Bartholdy's "Song of Love"	617
King, Oliver. Miniatures pour le Piano.—Gavotte pour Piano	97
Lake, Geo. Ernest. Daily Studies, &c., for the Organ	98
"Little Folks" Album of Music	35
Löhr, F. N. School Exercises	36
Macrone, C. A. Hesperus.—The Avon to the Severn runs	340
Martin, George C. The Office of the Holy Communion	681
Metcalf, J. Powell. School Canons	555
M'Hardy, R. The Moorland Witch	220
Moir, Frank L. Love shall never die	398
Moseley, Carr. Ten Minutes in the Country	280
Muller, Heinrich. Gavotte brillant	399
Musical Directory, 1882	93

Naumann, E. History of Music	Page 157
Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Pianoforte Albums Nos. 7, 8, 9: Marches by various Composers	156
Novello's Music Primers: The Violon-cello	680
Ockleston, Kate. Nocturne for Piano.—A Shadow	280
Paige, Kate. Exercises on General Ele-mentary Music (Reeves' Music Primers, No. 3)	340
Pascal, Florian. Stray Leaves.—An Album of Pianoforte Pieces	556
Pinsuti, Ciro. Not even a Sparrow.—Boating.—Heatherbreezes	35
— Tell me where is fancy bred	617
— Two Wings.—The Outpost	499
Plaidy, L., The Pianoforte Teacher's Guide	341
Powell, Rev. J. Baden. Hymn Tunes.—Twelve Settings of the Magnificat, &c.	618
Professional Pocket-Book	35
Ramann, L. Franz Liszt (English Translation)	678
Reeves' Musical Directory, 1882	157
Reissmann, Dr. August. Handlexicon der Tonkunst	96
Riemann, Dr. Hugo. Musik-Lexicon	396
Ritter, Fanny Raymond. The Pianoforte Teacher's Guide, by L. Plaidy	341
Roberts, W. Jarratt. Gorliffad Cantre'r Gwaelod (The Inundation of Cantre'r Gwaelod)	398
Rogers, Edmund. Blue Beard	618
Rogers, F. F. Minuet Sentimentale	341
Schliebner, A. Welcome, Spring	157
Schröter, Max. Easy Sketches for Violin and Pianoforte	557
Schubert, Franz. Twenty Songs for a Contralto Voice	341
— Twenty Songs for a Mezzo-Soprano Voice	97
Schumann, R. Mignon's Requiem	156
Scott, A. F. Unchanged	279
Sgambati, G. Gavotta	499
Silas, E. Bourrée (No. 3)	280
Spindler, Fritz. Summer Voices.—May Morn	35
Spitta, Philipp. Ein Lebensbild Robert Schumann's	617
Stanford, C. Villiers. Three Cavalier Songs	219
Stratton, Stephen. The Woodman	399
Swert, Jules de. The Violoncello (No-vello's Music Primers)	680
Sydenham, E. A. Two Sketches for Pianoforte	280
Tayoux, Ben. Menuet de Lulli	36
Thomas, A. Goring. Lullaby.—Serenade	397
Tinney, C. E. The Night Chimes	157
Tosti, F. Paolo. Carmela	35
— That Day	617
Tours, Berthold. Deep & True.—Echoes	280
— By the Abbey Door.—The New Kingdom	499
— A Fairy Tale	556
— The Trysting Well	557
Tugginer, P. von. The Sailor's Home.—The Last Leaf	556
Verrinder, Dr. C. G. Original Composi-tions for the Organ	618
Vincent, Charles. When I call thee mine.—The sea hath its pearls	86
Violin, The, and how to master it	279
Wade, J. Clift. Action Songs for Children	340
Weber, C. M. von. Euryanthe	397
White, Maude Valérie. Heureux qui peut aimer	35

Williams, F. Danse Antique...	Page 341
Wood, W. G. The Land o' Burns	398
Zuelli, G. Gavotta per Archi	499

CORRESPONDENCE.

Alto Voices, Scarcity of	100	Basingstoke	285	Falmouth	101
Ancient Music	284	Bath	344	Farnham	40, 345
Anonymous Criticisms	560	Beckenham	39	Farnworth	345
Bencini's Anthem "Tu es Petrus"	455	Bedford	39, 285, 401	Faversham	161
Brinsmead Concert Company, The	560	Belfast	39, 101, 160, 224, 285, 621, 682	Fenny Stratford	161
Chevé Notation, The	454	Berwick-on-Tweed	285	Finchley	101
Curiosities of Criticism	100	Bideford	455	Flixton	224
Dulciana, The first	100	Birkenhead	160, 285, 621	Folkestone	286, 560, 622
Hallé's (Mr. C.) Musical Journeys	223	Birmingham	39, 101, 160, 621, 682	Fowey	503
Ill-timed Applause	159	Bishop Auckland	39	Framlingham	402
Liszt's Dante Symphony	502	Blackburn	101	Gainsborough	40, 622
Locke's Music to "Macbeth"	159	Bolsover	285	Galway	402
Macfarren's (Professor) Address and		Bo'ness	285	Georgetown	224, 345
Mr. Corder	38	Bournemouth	39, 560	Glasgow	101, 286, 560
— and the Tonic Sol-fa System	222	Bradford	160, 224, 560	Glastonbury	402
Male Voice Choirs	37, 99, 159, 283	Brading	160	Gloucester	286
Mauritius, Formation of a Musical		Brechin	39, 224	Golcar	161
Conservatoire in	621	Brecon	401, 502	Goole	224
Musical Club	159, 224	Brentford	455, 683	Gosberton	345, 622
Music by Electricity	559	Bridgewater	160, 224, 285, 560	Gourcock	286
Music in the United States of Colombia	38	Bridport	560	Govan	286
Music Publishers' Association	682	Brighton	160, 621, 683	Grange	101
New National Academy, The	223	Brimington	285	Grantham	101, 286, 345
Organists and Choirmasters	39, 100	Brisbane	285, 560	Gravesend	455
Organ Pedals attached to Pianofortes	284, 343, 344	Bristol	39, 160, 224, 285, 344, 401	Great Chesterford	455
Palestrina's "Missa Papæ Marcelli"	223	Brixham	101	Great Malvern	503
Raff and Tennyson	560	Bromsgrove	344	Great Marlow	101
Rogers's (Mr.) Cantata "Blue Beard"	682	Broughty Ferry	285	Greenock	40, 101, 161, 224, 286
Rule for finding what an Interval will		Budleigh-Salterton	502	Grimsby	345, 402
become by Inversion	159	Burnley	285, 621, 683	Gwennap	503
Scott and Purcell	159	Burslem	621	Haddington	161
Secular Tunes to Hymns	38	Burton-on-Trent	285	Hale	345
Singing in State Schools	620	Burwood, N.S.W.	683	Halifax	40, 286, 683
Society of Professional Musicians, The	455	Bury	285	Hanley	101
Stratford Musical Festival	621	Bury St. Edmunds	101, 224, 285, 344, 621	Hanwell	402
Tonic Sol-fa and Staff Notation Systems	282, 283, 343, 400	Caerleon	160	Hamilton	683
Warning to the Profession	621	Cambridge	160, 683	Harewood	161
		Canterbury	160, 285, 401	Harrogate	40, 683
		Cardiff	285	Hartlepool	286
		Castle Howard	621	Hartley Whitney	402
		Chardstock	344	Hastings	286
		Chelmsford	401	Hawick	40
		Cheltenham	39, 344, 621, 683	Heaton Moor	225
		Chesterfield	101	Hereford	40, 345
		Chichester	39, 101, 160	Herne	40, 402
		Cirencester	285	Herne Bay	287, 503, 561
		Clevedon	40, 344	Hertford	101
		Clifton	40, 101	Heyside	161
		Colnbrook	683	Higham	101
		Congleton	101	Hinckley	455
		Consett	285	Holybourne	402
		Cork	224	Horningsham	101
		Coventry	101, 344	Huddersfield	161, 225, 455
		Crewe	101, 344, 683	Hull	40, 225, 683
		Cullompton	683	Hulme	225, 287, 345, 622, 683
		Dartford	344	Hungerford	161
		Delph	101	Ilfracombe	161
		Demerara	502	Ipswich	402
		Derby	285, 683	Irvine	287, 622, 683
		Devonport	40, 286	Isle of Man	287
		Dewsbury	40	Jedburgh	40
		Dingwall	101, 286	Kelso	287
		Dorchester	344	Kendal	287
		Dover	40, 503	Kettering	287
		Dowsham	161	Kilmarnock	287
		Dublin	40, 224, 401	King's Lynn	102
		Dumfries	161	King's Norton	225
		Dundee	101	Kingston	102
		Dunedin, N.Z.	40	Kinver	503
		Dunfermline	286, 344	Knighton	402
		Dunster	101, 286, 560	Knutsford	561
		Durham	402	Ladock	345
		Ealing	621	Lambourn	102, 161, 622
		Eastbourne	40, 402	Lancaster	287
		Edinburgh	40, 101, 161, 286, 683	Launceston	402
		Edmonton	621	Leamington	102, 287, 345, 683
		Elton	101	Ledbury	161
		Enfield	455	Leeds	41, 225, 503
		Enniskillen	161, 622	Leicester	225, 287, 345, 683
		Erith	161	Leominster	622
		Exeter	344, 402

COUNTRY CONCERTS, INTEL-LIGENCE, &c.

Aberdeen	39, 100, 682
Abergavenny	502
Abingdon	100, 344, 401
Accrington	682
Addiscombe	401
Alexandria	224
Alloa	160
Alnwick	621
Alton	100
Altrincham	344
Andover	39
Armagh	100
Arundel	621
Bacton	621
Bacup	101
Bagshot	39
Banff	284
Barnesley	160
Barrow	160, 224
Barton in Westmoreland	285

	Page		Page		Page
Lewes ...	102, 287, 345, 503, 561	Ottawa ...	102	Staines ...	225
Lichfield ...	287	Oxford ...	41, 161	Stanningley ...	42
Limerick ...	102	Paisley ...	102, 225, 622, 684	Stanstead ...	162
Lincoln ...	161, 683	Peebles ...	161, 288	Stevenage ...	42, 162
Liskeard ...	102	Penzance ...	102, 288	Stockport ...	162
Littlehampton ...	622	Perth ...	345, 684	Stratford ...	42, 288
Liverpool ...	41, 225, 287, 345, 503, 683	Peterborough ...	402	Sunderland ...	42, 103
Llanberis ...	561	Peterhead ...	102	Sutton ...	103
Londonderry ...	102	Pietermaritzburg ...	503	Swaffham ...	288
Long Melford ...	561	Plymouth ...	102, 161, 288, 345, 402, 622	Swanscombe ...	623
Loughborough ...	225	Plympton ...	345	Swansea ...	561
Louth ...	287, 683	Pontefract ...	288	Sydney, N. S. W. ...	4
		Porlock ...	622
Macclesfield ...	102, 684	Port Glasgow ...	288	Teignmouth ...	455, 503
Malton ...	161	Portsmouth ...	561	Tenbury ...	456
Manchester ...	161, 683	Portmadoc ...	345	Tenby ...	42
Mansfield ...	41, 287	Preston ...	41, 102	Tewkesbury ...	503
Manx ...	561			Thornton Heath ...	684
March ...	287	Radcliffe ...	41	Timsbury ...	42
Margate ...	41, 287	Ramsgate ...	684	Toronto ...	346
Maryport ...	287	Reading ...	102, 161, 455, 623, 684	Tredegar ...	561
Melbourne, Australia ...	288, 402, 622	Redditch ...	162	Trim ...	103
Melbourne, Derbyshire ...	622	Redruth ...	162, 346, 684	Trowbridge ...	42, 288
Merthyr ...	288	Retford ...	288	Tunbridge Wells ...	288, 346
Milford Haven ...	102	Richmond ...	41	Twickenham ...	403
Modbury ...	102	Richmond, Surrey ...	346
Monmouth ...	345	Ripon ...	41, 288	Upper Tooting ...	623
Morecambe ...	561	Rochdale ...	41, 288, 623	Uxbridge ...	103
Morley ...	684	Rochester ...	41
Morningside ...	225	Rotherham ...	402, 684	Victoria ...	503
Morval ...	684	Rugby ...	402
Much Birch ...	622	Runcorn ...	684	Walsall ...	162, 403
Musselburgh ...	225, 345	Ryde ...	162	Walsham-le-Willows ...	623
				Walthamstow ...	346, 403
Newark ...	41, 102, 622, 684	Sabden ...	41	Walton-on-the-Hill ...	623
Newbury ...	161, 622	St. Andrew's ...	288, 346	Warrington ...	288, 403
Newcastle-on-Tyne ...	41, 102, 225, 288, 684	St. Austell ...	402	Watford ...	42
Newhaven ...	345	St. Helen's ...	103	Wednesbury ...	346
New Malden and Coombe ...	41	St. Leonards ...	455, 623	Wellingborough ...	103
Newport, Mon. ...	102, 503	Salisbury ...	41, 103, 162, 288, 346, 402, 561, 623, 684	Wellington, N.Z. ...	623, 684
New Seaham ...	622	Scarborough ...	162, 561	Wellington, Somerset ...	103
New Swindon ...	622	Sevenoaks ...	623	Welshpool ...	103
Newton ...	503	Shanklin ...	684	Wem ...	346
Newtown ...	102, 684	Shaw ...	41	West Hartlepool ...	225
Northampton ...	102, 225, 345	Sheffield ...	41, 103, 346, 403, 623	Whitby ...	162
North Berwick ...	455, 503	Sherborne ...	288, 684	Whitehaven ...	162
North Elmham ...	41	Shifnal ...	684	Whittlesey ...	42
North Walsham ...	102, 288	Shoreham ...	346, 684	Whitworth ...	225
Norwich ...	41, 161, 288, 345, 402	Shrewsbury ...	503	Wicker ...	623
Nottingham ...	288	Silverdale ...	42	Wimbledon ...	162, 403, 684
		Southampton ...	103, 225	Windsor ...	42, 103, 289
Ockley ...	561	Southgate ...	288, 623	Witham ...	289, 403
Oldham ...	41, 102, 161, 225, 288, 345, 455, 503, 561, 622, 684	Southport ...	346, 561, 623	Wolverhampton ...	103, 162
Orsett ...	225	Southsea ...	346	Woolwich ...	561, 623
Oswestry ...	622	Southwell ...	623	Worcester ...	42, 346, 403, 684
Otley ...	503	Spalding ...	162	Workington ...	103
		Stafford ...	346	Workshop ...	103, 346
				York ...	103, 162, 289

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 467.—Vol. 23.
Registered for transmission abroad.

JANUARY 1, 1882.

Price 3d.; Post-free, 4d.
Annual Subscription, Postage, 4s.

MR. C. E. TINNEY'S CONCERT at the Rink Concert Hall, Blackheath, MONDAY, January 30. Mendelssohn's "ANTIGONE," and Miscellaneous Selection. Chorus of 100 Voices. Reader: Mr. Charles Fry. Vocalists: Madame Worrell, Miss Constance Herring, Madame Florence Winn, Messrs. Albert James, Arthur Thompson, Henry Lindsey, A. Hubbard, R. De Lacy, S. A. Tinney, and Arthur Oswald. Accompanists: Mr. H. R. A. Robinson and Mr. Warwick Jordan. Conductor: Mr. C. E. Tinney.

MR. CHARLES FRY will recite Weber's "PRECIOSA" at Chichester, January 19, and Mendelssohn's "ANTIGONE," at Blackheath, January 30. 1, Berners Street, W.

COLLEGE of ORGANISTS.—The CHRISTMAS EXAMINATIONS will be held on TUESDAY, January 10, for Associateship, and on WEDNESDAY, January 11, for Fellowship, at 10 a.m. each day. Musical graduates of the Universities can enter the list of Candidates for Fellowship without previously obtaining Associateship, and are exempt from "Paper work away from the Organ." Names of Candidates for forthcoming Examinations must be sent in on or before SATURDAY, January 7, 1882. Full particulars on application. E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Sec. 95, Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury.

MUSICAL ASSOCIATION, 27, Harley Street, W. MONDAY, January 2, 1882, at 5 o'clock, a Paper will be read by E. J. Breakspere, Esq., "On Songs and Song Writers." JAMES HIGGS, Hon. Sec. 9, Torrington Square, W.C.

VIOLIN CLASSES, at the South London Institute of Music, Camberwell New Road, under the direction of Messrs. W. FITZHENRY and T. E. GATEHOUSE. Beginners, Tuesdays, at 8; Elementary, Tuesdays, at 9; terms, 7s. 6d. for twelve lessons. Intermediate, Mondays, at 7.30; Advanced, Mondays, at 9; terms, 10s. 6d. for twelve lessons. Orchestral Band, Saturdays, at 9. Conductor, Mr. L. C. Venables.

CHORISTERSHIPS, King's College, Cambridge. There will be an EXAMINATION on TUESDAY, January 24, 1882, for TWO CHORISTERSHIPS. The choristers receive a classical education, and are boarded and lodged free of expense in the Choir School House, under the charge of the Rev. V. C. R. Reynell, M.A. Candidates between nine and eleven years of age preferred. Applications, with certificates of birth and baptism, to be addressed to The Dean, King's College, Cambridge, before January 10.

FREE VACANCIES in a resident Country Choir for two LEADING TREBLES. Orphans (gentlemen's sons) preferred. Address, Precentor, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ST. MICHAEL'S COLLEGE, Tenbury.—There are three Probationerships vacant in the above Choir. BOYS with good voices, and not older than eleven years, are WANTED. The trial of voices will take place at Messrs. Broadwood's, 33, Great Pulteney Street, London, W., on TUESDAY, January 10, at 2 o'clock. For further particulars apply to the Rev. J. Hampton, Tenbury.

VOICES WANTED, for St. Paul's, Upper Norwood. BASS and TENOR, each £10; LEADING TREBLES (Boys), £5. Apply to the Organist, Mr. H. Harford Battley, 1, Pentney Villas, Stodart Road, Anerley, S.E.

LEADING TREBLE WANTED, for St. Mary, Brookfield, Highgate Rise, N.W. Two services Sundays, and practice Wednesdays. Salary, £10. Apply, by letter, H. D., 13, York Road, Lambeth, S.E.

WANTED, for a West-end Choir (surpliced), two SOLO BOYS (salary, £6 to £8), one ALTO, one TENOR, one BASS (salaries, £15 to £20). Apply by letter, without testimonials, to Vicar, Messrs. Baynes and Co., Clements Lane, City, E.C.

SOPRANO and CONTRALTO (Ladies) and BASS VOICE WANTED, for a West-end Choir. Sunday morning only. Stipend, £15. Perfect reading indispensable. Address, N. N., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TENOR and BASS VACANCIES in Voluntary Choir, City Church. Plain service. C. M., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 and 81, Queen Street, Cheapside, E.C.

CITY CHURCH CHOIR.—There is a VACANCY for a TENOR VOICE in the Choir of St. Alphage, London Wall. The duties comprise two services on Sunday and a rehearsal on Thursday evening. Service full choral. Salary, £10 per annum. Candidates must be well up in church music, and be able to read fairly at sight. Address, with testimonials or references, Organist, care of R. A. Knight and Co., 3, Abchurch Lane, E.C.

TENOR WANTED, at the Catholic Church, Clapham, S.W. £14 per annum for weekly rehearsal and service on Sunday morning only. For Christmas Day, Good Friday and seven other week-day morning services in the year (for some of which a deputy may be sent) there is a fee of 5s. for each service. Address to C. W. F. W., 21, Plato Road, West Brixton, S.W.

ST. MILDRED'S CHOIR, Lee.—TENOR WANTED. Salary, £12 per annum. Must have a good voice and read fairly well. Also Vacancies for two good BOYS. Remuneration according to ability. Address, Choirmaster, care of the Verger, 7, Bromley Road, Burnt Ash Lane, Lee, S.E.

HEAVY BASS WANTED, for Church Choir in the neighbourhood of Kilburn and Brondesbury. No Anthems. Address, stating salary, &c., G., 52, Bread Street, E.C.

ORGANIST WANTED. Plain service. Salary, £20. Church within reach of Wandsworth, Balham, Wimbledon, &c. Address, Vicar, Christ Church, Merton Abbey, S.W.

WANTED, at Lady Day, for St. Jude's, Dulwich Road, an ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Mixed voluntary choir. Plain services. Proposed salary, £60. Preference given to a resident in the neighbourhood. Apply, by letter only, with copies of testimonials, to Major Remnant, Ivy Lodge, Brixton Rise, S.W. Applications unanswered within fourteen days to be considered as declined.

ORGANIST WANTED, for a Private Chapel in Yorkshire. Salary, £55 a year. Good organ. For particulars apply to Dr. Bradford, South London Musical Training College, St. James's, Hatcham, S.E.

WANTED for the Hants County Asylum, an ATTENDANT who is competent to undertake the Organ in the Chapel, instruct the Choir, and act also as Bandmaster. Wages, £45 a year, with board, lodging, and partial uniform. All particulars may be obtained on application to the Superintendent, Knowle, Fareham, Hants.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER DIS-ENGAGED. Thoroughly experienced and zealous. Moderate salary, particularly if S.W. district. X. Z., Novello, Ewer and Co.

ORGANIST.—A Gentleman, thoroughly competent for the position, desires an ENGAGEMENT as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER for a Church in London or neighbourhood. First-class references. Well known as Solo Pianist, Organ Virtuoso, and Composer. Willing to offer his services for the first three months free. 36 years of age. Address, Organist, T., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

A GENTLEMAN, who is a brilliant ORGANIST, a sound Musician, and an experienced CHOIRMASTER, will be happy to give his gratuitous services to a Church easily accessible from Kensington, where there is a good choir, or material for forming one. Address, Graduate, care of Housekeeper, 7, Westminster Chambers, Victoria Street, S.W.

WANTED, by a Young Man, son of a Mus. Bac., Oxon., an APPOINTMENT as ORGANIST. Good musical talent and plays well. Small salary, with board and lodging. Address, Meta, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, by an accomplished ORGANIST, who is a successful Choirtrainer, an APPOINTMENT in a good Church, where it is wished to cultivate a high-class service. Further particulars to Musical Graduate, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

TO ORGAN STUDENTS.—Mr. J. FAUX BOARDMAN, Organist of St. Saviour's Church, Camberwell, has a VACANCY for a PUPIL, who will have opportunities for playing services and choir practices. Vacancy caused by last pupil having procured an appointment as organist. Organ Studio, 58, Herne Hill Road, near Loughborough Junction, S.E.

EXPERIENCED MUSICAL GOVERNESS, VOCALIST and PERFORMER, DISENGAGED. Undertakes Classical and Modern Music (piano), superior Italian and English Solo-singing, Part-singing, and Harmony. Speaks four languages. Address, Mdlle. G. H., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORCHESTRAL PRACTICE.—Good AMATEURS WANTED (especially Strings, Horns, and Bassoons). Full Band. 207, Westminster Bridge Road. Saturdays, 5.45. Small subscription. Write Z. Concert shortly.

TO AMATEUR VIOLINISTS.—WANTED, a FIRST VIOLIN, to complete a String Quartet Party. Address, H. Pullen, 2, Linden Grove, Peckham Rye.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MRS. BELLAMY (Soprano).

Oratorio and Ballad Concerts, 32, Hunter's Lane, Birmingham.

MISS CARINA CLELLAND.

All communications for Oratorios and Concerts can be addressed to her permanent address, 15, Athol Road, Manningham, Bradford.

MISS KATE COLDREY (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Concerts, Lessons, &amp;c., address, 9, Beaconsfield Road, Tottenham.

MISS MARIE COPE (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Concerts, Lessons, 167, New Cross Road, London, S.E.

MISS EVA FARBSTEIN (Soprano).

Pupil of Signor Ardit, Conductor of Her Majesty's Opera. For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, 20, Story Street, Hull; or, N. Vert, Esq., 50, New Bond Street, London, W.

MRS. FARRAR-HYDE (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, Grafton Terrace, 58, Stamford Street, Ashton-under-Lyne.

MISS HARDMAN (Soprano)Is open to engagements for Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
For terms and open dates, address, Bacup, Manchester.MISS BESSIE HOLT, R.A.M. (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, Rawtenstall, Manchester.

MISS JULIA JONES (Soprano).

For Oratorios, &amp;c., address, 1, Great Western Terrace, Cheltenham.

MISS NELLY McEWEN (Soprano)Is open to engagements for Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 1, Cavendish Place, Cavendish Square, W.MISS MAY MOON (Soprano).

(Medalist of the Royal Academy of Music.)

For Concerts, Soirées, and Lessons, address, 164, Regent Street, W.

MISS EVA NEATE (Soprano).

For Concerts, &amp;c., address, care of Mr. J. A. Matthews, 9, North Place, Cheltenham.

MISS CATHERINE PICKERING (Soprano).

Hawthorn Cottage, Cheadle, Manchester.

MISS LAURA SMART (Soprano).

For Oratorio, Concert, or Operatic Recital, &amp;c., address, 28, Church Street, Liverpool.

MISS ADELAIDE SPRANGE (Soprano).

For Concerts, Oratorios, Dinners, &amp;c., address, Mr. Stedman, 12, Berners Street, or 39, Sydenham Road, Stoke Newington.

MRS. ALFRED J. SUTTON (Soprano)Is open to engagements for Concerts and Oratorios.
54, Duchess Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.MISS HELEN SWIFT, R.A.M. (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Concerts, Recitals, &amp;c., Forsyth Brothers, 122 and 124, Deansgate, Manchester, or 67, Tontine Street, St. Helens, Lancashire.

MISS LOUISA BOWMONT

(Principal Contralto of St. Peter's, Manchester).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &amp;c., address, 51, Mercer Street, Embden Street, Hulme, Manchester. Criticisms on application.

MISS EDITH CLELLAND (Contralto).

71, Hulton Street, Brooks' Bar, Manchester.

MISS SARA CRAGG (Contralto).

12, North Castle Street, Halifax.

MRS. SAM'L. WORTON FIELDING (Contralto).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &amp;c., 11, Pershore Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham, and 56, Hammersmith Road, London, W.

MISS HALE (Contralto).

(Certificated and a Medalist.)

For Concerts, Oratorios, &amp;c., 35, Alfred Place, Bedford Square, W.C.

MISS LEYLAND (Contralto).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, 6, Wilton Street, Oxford Road, Manchester.

MISS ELIZA THOMAS (Contralto).

(R.A.M. Medalist.) For terms and vacant dates, address, 49, Upper George Street, Bryanston Square, London, W.

MISS MARY TOMLINSON (Contralto).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, Primrose Bank, Newton Heath, Manchester.

MISS FLORENCE WYDFORD (Contralto).

For Oratorios, Miscellaneous Concerts, Dinners, Soirées, &amp;c., 95, St. Paul's Road, Lorrimer Square, S.E.

MR. PARKER ASHFORD (Tenor).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, 6, Arundel Place, Barnsbury, N.

MR. GEORGE BANKS (Tenor).*MR. JAMES B. SMITH (Bass).(Both late of St. Mary's Cathedral, Edinburgh.)
Address, The Cathedral, Peterborough.MR. VERNEY BINNS (Tenor).

65, King Cross Street, Halifax.

MR. TOM BUCKLAND (Tenor).

New Bond Street, Halifax.

MR. J. AUSTIN HERBERT (Tenor).

(St. Michael's, Cornhill.)

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, 277, Brunswick Road, Poplar, E.

MR. EDWIN LONGMORE (Solo Tenor).*MR. HENRY SUNMAN (Solo Bass).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, The Minster, Southwell.

MR. EDWIN T. MORGAN (Tenor).

(Bristol Cathedral.)

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, The Cathedral.

MR. THOMAS OLDROYD (Principal Tenor).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, N. Vert, Esq., 52, New Bond Street, London, W.; or Cathedral, Rochester.

The Era says, "Mr. Peach has a tenor voice of very pure quality."MR. FRANK PEACH (Tenor).

For Oratorios, Concerts, Church Solos, &amp;c., address, 58, Foulden Road, Stoke Newington, N.

MR. STEDMAN (Tenor).

12, Berners Street, W.

MR. J. F. NASH (Baritone).

Address, Cathedral, Bristol. Quartet or complete Concert Parties.

MR. T. W. BOOTH (Basso).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, Bramhope, near Leeds.

MR. EDWARD GRIME (Basso Profondo).

(Pupil of W. H. Jude, Esq.)

Blackpool Times says, "With the exception of Signor Foli we have never heard a finer bass in Blackpool."Open to engagements for Oratorios, Cantatas, Ballad Concerts, &c.
Address, St. Helens, Lancashire.MR. T. C. HOLLIDAY (Principal Bass).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, N. Vert, Esq., 52, New Bond Street, London, W.; or Cathedral, Rochester.

MR. HOWARD LEES (Bass).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &amp;c., address, Delph, Manchester.

MR. J. BINGLEY SHAW (Bass).

For Oratorios, Concerts, Banquets, &amp;c., address, 12, Berners Street, London, W., or The Minster, Southwell.

MR. WM. THOMAS (Bass).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, The Cathedral, Bristol.

FRANÇOIS EMILE CHOVEAUX

(Pianist and Accompanist.)

99, Talbot Road, Westbourne Park, W.

MADAME DU PRÉ (Mezzo-Contralto), pupil of Signor Manuel Garcia, and other eminent masters, solicits CONCERT ENGAGEMENTS in London and the Provinces. Pupils for Singing and the Production of the Voice visited, or received at 2, Newton Avenue, Longsight, Manchester. Application for terms, &c., may also be addressed to Forsyth Bros., Deansgate, Manchester. Special arrangements with schools.SIGNOR ODOARDO BARRI (Tenor) begs to announce that he is prepared to accept ENGAGEMENTS for Oratorio, Classical, Ballad, and other Concerts. He also gives lessons in Voice-Production and Italian Singing. New address, 60, Margaret Street, Cavendish Square, W.MR. FREDERICK BEVAN (Bass, H.M. Chapel Royal, Whitehall) begs to announce that he is open to accept engagements for Oratorio, Classical, Operatic, or Ballad Concerts, &c. (New address) 21, Bonham Road, Brixton Rise, S.W.THE HARP.—Miss LOCKWOOD, Harpist to the Carl Rosa Company, will be happy to give LESSONS on the above Instrument. Address, Her Majesty's Theatre.VIOLIN.—Miss ALICE IVIMY, Solo Violinist, is open to ENGAGEMENTS for Concerts in town or country. Press testimonials forwarded. Address, Sutton, Surrey.MR. ARTHUR DOREY (Organist of the Alexandra Palace). For Pupils, Engagements for Concerts, &c., 14, Huntley Street, Bedford Square, W.C.THE GUITAR.—Madame SIDNEY PRATTEN, Instructor to Her Royal Highness the Princess Louise, is in town for the season. 22A, Dorset Street, Portman Square, W., where may be had her Second Book of Instructions, "Learning the Guitar Simplified," 10s. 6d.LESSONS by CORRESPONDENCE. E. W. TAYLOR, Mus. Bac., F.C.O., L. Mus. T.C.L., Stafford.

MUSIC SCHOOL.—CHURCH OF ENGLAND HIGH SCHOOL for GIRLS (Limited), 6, Upper Baker Street, Regent's Park.—Head Music-Mistress, Miss Macirone, late Professor of Royal Academy of Music. Fees, two or three guineas a term. Pupils not in the school pay an entrance fee of one guinea. Examinations for Scholarships will be held at Easter by Professor Macfaren. The Music School reopens on Wednesday, January 18. New pupils to attend for Examination on that day, between two and four. F. J. HOLLAND, Chairman.

LONDON ORGAN SCHOOL and COLLEGE of MUSIC (established 1855), 3, Princes Street, Cavendish Square, W. Piano, singing, violin, flute, organ lessons, and practice, £2 2s. per course. Lessons day and evening. Prospectus for one stamp. SCOTSON CLARK, Mus. B., Principal.

LONDON SCHOOL of MUSIC.—Two SCHOLARSHIPS for PIANISTS (Ladies) will be competed for in the year 1882, each consisting of a twelvemonth's gratuitous instruction in the school. The first will be awarded by the Principal, and will be competed for on FRIDAY, January 27. The second will be awarded by Sir Julius Benedict, and will take place in April. Candidates must be between the ages of 12 and 18. For particulars, address, Hon. Secretary, 27, Harley Street, W.

LONDON SCHOOL OF MUSIC, Beethoven Rooms, 27, Harley Street, W. Term commences January 30, 1882. Thorough MUSICAL INSTRUCTION in every branch of the Art from the first professors in London. The new prospectus, containing all particulars, is just out. French, German, and Italian languages. HENRY BAUMER, Principal.

DR. BENTLEY (St. Ann's Street, Manchester). Lessons per post in Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, Form, Acoustics, and Analysis; also Correction of Musical MSS.

DR. CORBETT gives LESSONS through Post in Harmony, Counterpoint, &c., &c. Upwards of sixty pupils have passed musical examinations. Address, Bridgenorth, Salop.

DR. ALLISON, M.R.A.M., prepares Candidates by post or personally for the Royal Academy of Music Local Examinations (which his pupils have "Passed with Honours") in Subject I., and personally in Subjects I., II., and III. Also for the Metropolitan Examinations for Licentiatehip. 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who passed RECENT UNIVERSITY EXAMINATIONS for the DEGREES of MUS. DOC. and MUS. BAC. (Oxford, Cambridge, and Dublin). Also F.C.O., and every other Musical Examination open to the public. Cambridge House, Nelson Street, Manchester.

TUITION by CORRESPONDENCE for Musical and all other Examinations. Fees, if successful, from £2 upwards, according to the position gained. No payment whatever unless successful. Address, Mr. James Jennings, Deptford, London.

LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., given by post. References to past and present pupils, if desired. Terms very moderate. Alpha, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MR. JOHN HILES, 51, Elsham Road, Kensington, W. (Author of the "Catechism of Harmony, Thorough-bass, and Modulation," "Hiles's Short Voluntaries," "Catechism for the Pianoforte Student," and several other important musical works), gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by post.

THE ORGANIST of RIPON CATHEDRAL teaches HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT by Correspondence. For terms, address Edwin J. Crow, F.C.O., Mus. Bac., Cantab.

MR. CHARLES W. PEARCE, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1881), F.C.O., L. Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS per post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FORM, &c. 50, Blomfield Road, Maida Vale, W.

PIANO, HARMONY.—A Young Lady, pupil of Sir Julius Benedict, gives LESSONS in the above. Schools attended. Harmony by correspondence if required. Address, Miss C., 25, Dover Street, Piccadilly, W.

MISS BURROUGH (certificated, Silver Medalist R.A.M.) continues to visit and receive Pupils for Pianoforte and Organ. Schools attended, 42, Ledbury Road, Bayswater, W.

MISS JAMES, certificated Pupil of Mr. Lindsay Sloper, gives LESSONS on the PIANOFORTE. Private families or schools. For prospectus, &c., address by letter, 161, Amhurst Road, Hackney Downs.

PRACTISING ROOMS.—AGATE and PRITCHARD, 68, Gracechurch Street, E.C. Professors attend to give lessons on various Instruments, also in Singing, Glee Practice, &c. German and French Classes. An Elementary Class for the Violin.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—The South London Organ Studio, 343, Coldharbour Lane, Brixton.

ORGAN LESSONS (with Practice), St. Saviour's Church, or Mr. J. Faux Boardman's Studio, 58, Herne Hill Road, Camberwell, S.E. Modern organ, two manuals, concave pedals. Terms, two guineas per quarter.

ORGAN LESSONS, or PRACTICE, 36, STRAND (four doors from Charing Cross), and at St. Michael's, Lorn Road, Brixton Road, S.W., on fine two-manual C ORGANS (HILL and SON). PEDALLING specially taught. W. VENNING SOUTHGATE, "The Strand Organ Studio," 36, Strand, W.C. Established 1867.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Three manuals, each of 56 notes, pedal organ, 30 notes, 18 effective stops, and blown by the Automatic Hydraulic Engine. Terms, strictly inclusive, ONE SHILLING PER HOUR, at Blennerhassett's Organ School and Studio, 1A, Vernon Street, Pentonville, W.C.

Sole Agent for THE HYDRAULIC ORGAN BLOWER. Cheapest, simplest, best, and most effective ever invented. Full particulars, and estimates as above, free. Inspection invited.

ORGAN PRACTICE (Private) on exceptionally moderate terms. Three manuals, 34 stops; separate pedal organ of 4 stops. Blown by engine-power. Five minutes' from the "Angel." Apply to Ewald and Co., 16, Argyll Street, Regent Circus, W.

MR. and MADAME EDWYN FRITH'S GRAND ORATORIO, OPERATIC, and BALLAD CONCERT PARTIES (under Royal Patronage, 1880) for London or Provincial engagements. Terms moderate, especially so for en route consecutive dates. Prospectus for 1882, post-free, containing a large number of additional testimonial letters, &c. Upwards of 150 known artists to select from. Great successes in Birmingham, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Manchester, Plymouth, York, Scarborough, &c., &c., this season. Mr. and Madame Edwyn Frith (Bass and Contralto) can accept engagements together or singly. Dates settled: Plymouth, December 24; Warminster, 27 (re-engagement); Winchester, January 16; Ross, 20; Birmingham, 21 (re-engagement) and 23; Shepherd's Bush, 27; Hereford, February 6; Leominster, 7; Shepherd's Bush, 24; Manchester, 25 (re-engagement, Choral Society); Bournemouth, 28; Birmingham, March 18 (re-engagement); Shepherd's Bush, 24, and April 25, &c., &c. Many other dates pending. Mr. Frith offers for open competition Two Vocal Scholarships. Free tuition for two or three years. The winners must become Resident Pupils, and will be brought out at concerts when competent. Preference given to Sopranos. This offers an excellent opportunity for first-class private London training to provincial professional aspirants. No examination fees. Address, Yealm House, Netherwood Road, Kensington, W.

MR. JOSEF CANTOR'S CONCERT COMPANY are now arranging dates for ensuing season. List embraces the principal artists in the North of England. Secretaries and Managers of Musical Societies, send for prospectus. Oratorio, Ballad Concert, or Operatic Recital. Artists may be engaged singly. Address, Church Street, Liverpool.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES and MANAGERS of CONCERTS.—Mr. T. Harper's Concert Party for Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, &c. For vacant dates, 25, Brecknock Crescent, N.W.

THE BRISTOL CATHEDRAL QUARTET.—For Concerts, Banquets, &c., address, Mr. J. F. Nash, The Cathedral, Bristol.

TO COMPOSERS.—Words for Songs and Part-Songs. Specimens sent on approval. Address, E. B. Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MUSIC neatly and accurately COPIED or TRANPOSED at from fourpence per page. Address, Breve, 10, St. Mary-at-Hill, London, E.C.

THE EXCELSIOR MUSIC-COPYING APPARATUS, greatly improved since first issued in 1873, is now the best set of articles ever offered for neat copying. With its aid music may be written on either ruled or plain paper in extremely close imitation of engraving. Easy to use; thoroughly reliable; durable. Post-free, 1s. 8d. Metzler and Co., Great Marlborough Street, W.

PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM TUNER WANTED. who understands American Organs, for a large town in Lancashire. Must be first-class Tuner and Repairer (small jobs). Permanent employment to a steady and thoroughly experienced tuner. Apply, with references, stating salary expected, J. E. Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER WANTED, of Factory experience; capable of sound, good work. Apply personally to Challen and Son, 46, Oxford Street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER, Experienced, WANTED. Permanent situation to a qualified and steady man. Apply, James Graham, Music Warehouse, 6, Shandwick Place, Edinburgh.

A FIRST-CLASS TUNER, over two years at John Broadwood and Sons', desires an APPOINTMENT in the provinces or abroad. References to the above firm. Address, Tuner, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER (Improver) seeks ENGAGEMENT. Tunes fairly well. Highest references. Tuner, 48, Elgin Road, Harrow Road.

WANTED to place an intelligent Youth (16) as INDOOR APPRENTICE to the MUSIC TRADE, with Tuning, where he will have good organ instruction. Well up in music. Address, John T. White, Headless Cross, Redditch.

TOWN TRAVELLER for the MUSIC TRADE.—WANTED, a YOUNG MAN with a good knowledge of the Music Business and the London Trade. Apply, by letter, to Duff and Stewart, 2, Hanover Street, W.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON.

CLASSES AND LECTURES.

Lent Term commences JANUARY 16.

Regulations and Forms of Application for the undermentioned Classes may be obtained of the Secretary, Trinity College, W.
HARMONY.—Gordon Saunders, Mus. D.; F. E. Gladstone, Mus. D.; Baron Bódog Orczy.

COUNTERPOINT.—F. E. Gladstone, Mus. D.
FORM AND ORCHESTRATION.—E. H. Turpin, L.Mus.T.C.L.
MUSICAL ACOUSTICS.—W. H. Stone, M.A., M.B., F.R.C.P.
PIANOFORTE.—Sir Julius Benedict, W. G. Cusins, Bradbury Turner, Mus. B., King Hall, Miss Alma Sanders, Mrs. Baskcomb, Fredk. G. Cole, L.Mus.T.C.L., G. E. Bambridge.
ENSEMBLE PIANOFORTE CLASS.—Sir Julius Benedict.
ORGAN.—W. S. Hoyte, L.Mus.T.C.L.; J. P. Pinney, Mus. B.
HARMONIUM.—King Hall.

SOLO SINGING.—F. Schira, A. Visetti, J. C. Beuthin, J. H. Nappi, Wallace Wells, Miss Kate Steel.

VIOLIN.—J. T. Carodus, L. Szczepanowski.
VIOLONCELLO.—E. Woolhouse. FLUTE.—John Radcliff. OBOE.—A. J. B. Dubrucq. CLARINET.—H. Lazarus. HARP.—John Cheshire.

ORCHESTRAL SOCIETY.—George Mount. MUSICAL HISTORY.—E. H. Turpin. SIGHT SINGING AND ELEMENTS OF MUSIC.—E. Burritt Lane, L.Mus.T.C.L. CHORAL SOCIETY.—George Mount.

VOCAL AND AURAL PHYSIOLOGY.—Llewelyn Thomas, M.D., and Lennox Browne, F.R.C.S.

CHORAL SERVICE CLASS (FOR CLERGY).—Rev. the Warden, Mus. B.
*.* Classes have also been established in General Subjects for the benefit of Students of the College.

TRINITY COLLEGE, MANDEVILLE PLACE, MANCHESTER SQUARE, W.
PRACTICE OF CONDUCTING.

Arrangements have been made with Mr. GEORGE MOUNT for forming a Class for the training of Conductors, including the practical control and management of an Orchestra and Chorus. Particulars may be obtained of the Secretary, Trinity College, London, W.

LOCAL EXAMINATIONS IN PRACTICAL MUSIC.

The Academical Board, in the year 1878, originated a System of Local Examinations in Instrumental and Vocal Music, and appointed a Visiting Examiner, on whose report Certificates (Honours or Pass) are granted to efficient Candidates.

Local Centres and Schools may be visited by the Examiner at any time, by special arrangement with the Academical Board. Application should be made through the Local Secretary for the District. The Subjects of Examination are as follows:—1. Pianoforte, Organ, or Harmonium Playing. 2. Pianoforte Duet Playing. 3. Solo Singing. 4. Performance on any Orchestral Instrument.

The Regulations, with the Official List of approved Pieces, may be had of the Secretary, Trinity College, London, W.

BY ORDER OF THE ACADEMICAL BOARD.

THE
LIFE OF MOZART

INCLUDING HIS CORRESPONDENCE

BY

EDWARD HOLMES.

A New Edition, with Notes, by EBENEZER PROUT.

Cloth, Five Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOW READY.

SCHUBERT'S SONGS

VOLUME I.

TWENTY SONGS

FOR A

MEZZO-SOPRANO VOICE

The English Version by NATALIA MACFARREN.

PRICE ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE.

CONTENTS.

Praise of Tears.	Huntsman, rest (Ellen's second song in "The Lady of the Lake.")
Knowest thou the land? (Mignon's first song in "Wilhelm Meister.")	Thro' the pine-wood.
The Message of Flowers.	The summer waves.
Nought may'st thou ask me (Mignon's second song in "Wilhelm Meister.")	Wanderer's Night-song.
Oh, let me dream till I awaken (Mignon's third song in "Wilhelm Meister.")	Trust in Spring.
The greenwood calls (Slumber Song.)	The Maiden's Lament.
The full-orbed moon (Romance from "Rosamunde.")	To Mignon.
Hallow'd night, descending.	The Passing-Bell.
	Alinda.
	Ave Maria (Ellen's third song in "The Lady of the Lake.")
	The Fisherman.
	On the water.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

(PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH)

Price Threepence.

Annual subscription, including postage, 4s.

Subscriptions will also be received by all Book and Musicsellers (not including postage), 3s.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

Two Lines ...	£ s. d.
Three Lines ...	0 3 0
For every additional Line ...	0 3 4
Half a Column ...	0 0 10
A Column ...	2 0 0
A Page ...	4 0 0
	7 10 0

Special Pages (Cover, &amp;c.) by arrangement.

A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

To insure insertion in their proper places, Advertisements should reach the Office not later than the 24th of each month. It cannot be guaranteed that those received after this date will appear among the classified announcements; they will, however, be inserted in the space allotted to Advertisements arriving late.

New Edition of Bach's Organ Works

THE ORGAN WORKS

OF

JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH

EDITED BY

J. F. BRIDGE AND JAMES HIGGS,
Mus. Doc., Oxon. Mus. Bac., Oxon.

BOOK I.—EIGHT SHORT PRELUDES AND FUGUES.

PRICE 2s. 6d.

In this edition much help is offered toward a correct and effective rendering of Bach's Organ Music. The distribution of the parts between the two hands is clearly shown. The notes most conveniently played by the right hand are printed on the upper, and those best taken by the left hand on the lower, of the two manual staves. The pedalling is indicated where necessary. Marks of expression and phrasing are added occasionally, and suggestions for the effective use of the organ are given throughout. The preface contains many useful hints.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

JUST PUBLISHED.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S
PIANOFORTE ALBUMS

EDITED BY BERTHOLD TOURS

PRICE ONE SHILLING EACH.

No. 7.—MARCHES.

1. Hero's March (Op. 22) ... Mendelssohn.
2. Marche Militaire (Op. 51) ... Schubert.
3. Festival March, from the Opera "Aennchen von Tharau" ... H. Hofmann.
4. Marche Solennelle ... Ch. Gounod.
5. Bridal March, from "Lohengrin" ... R. Wagner.
6. Gipsy March, from "Preciosa" ... Weber.
7. March (Op. 13) ... A. Zimmermann.
8. March, from "Le Nozze di Figaro" ... Mozart.
9. March, from "Fidelio" ... Beethoven.
10. Rakoczy March.
11. Funeral March ("Lied ohne Worte," No. 27) ... Mendelssohn.
12. March, from "St. Polycarp" ... Rev. Sir Fred. Ouseley.
13. Dead March, from "Saul" ... Handel.
14. The Watch on the Rhine.
15. The British Grenadiers.

No. 8.—MARCHES.

16. Coronation March, from "Le Prophète" ... Meyerbeer.
17. March, from "Idomeneo" ... Mozart.
18. "Cornelius" March ... Mendelssohn.
19. Turkish March ("Ruins of Athens") ... Beethoven.
20. Processional March ("Onward, Christian soldiers") ... A. Sullivan.
21. Marche Cosaque ... H. Hofmann.
22. March (Posthumous Work) ... Schubert.
23. March, from the "Occasional Oratorio" ... Handel.
24. Marche Funèbre, from Sonata I., Op. 35 ... Chopin.
25. Triumphal March, from "King Stephen" ... Beethoven.
26. Pilgrims' March (Fourth Symphony) ... Mendelssohn.
27. March of the Men of Harlech.
28. Festal March ... J. B. Calkin.
29. Birthday March ... R. Schumann.
30. La Marseillaise.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

JANUARY I, 1882.

THE MENDELSSOHN FAMILY.*

It may be said, "Have we not had enough and to spare of Mendelssohnian literature? Are not our libraries deluged with books of letters, reminiscences, and biographical details on this theme, out of all proportion to the claims of the subject?" The best answer is that Mendelssohnian literature continues to issue from the press and to find a ready market. We grant that the phenomenon has scarcely a parallel, but not that, in any degree, it is inexplicable. Nothing in fact can be more readily understood, especially if we confine our observation to our own country. Mendelssohn in England exerts a double charm. There is, first, the charm of music eminently lovable and fascinating, intelligible and pure—music which has not only found its way into every home, but has become a part of home life and a necessary minister to family enjoyment. Mendelssohn with us is the domestic composer par excellence. We own him great in "Elijah" and "St. Paul," in his symphonies and overtures, but he comes as near to the heart of our people when represented by his songs with words and without; by his charming pieces for concerted voices; by his religious compositions, which exhale the very spirit of combined dignity, reverence, and pathos; and by his precious store of instrumental works for the chamber. Seen through the medium of these things Mendelssohn is a friend. But he presents to us, likewise, an individuality such as English people are qualified to appreciate and admire. He was well known in this country, and there have come down to us traditions of a sweet and sunny disposition, of a pure life and a loving nature—of a man excellent in every public and private relation. Moreover, we have become familiar with him through his published correspondence. His letters are as windows to his soul, and looking through them we see naught but purity and goodness, hardly alloyed by the failings from which no human nature is exempt. We know full well that English men and women are far from perfect; but we know also that they have a strong sympathy with all forms of moral and spiritual excellence. When genius exists apart from these, they may admire, but they do not love. Mendelssohn they both admire and love. He is at once hero and friend, and this is why we can never read too much about him and his.

The work before us is one of singular value, because the author, a son of Felix Mendelssohn's beloved sister Fanny, has been able to answer not a few queries suggested by other biographical notices on the same subject, and to fill up conspicuous gaps in the family story, as we have hitherto had it. Thus he throws a flood of light upon the process which led to the bringing up of Felix and his brother and sisters as Protestant Christians. No doubt various causes led to this important step, and one of these may be traced to the influence of Moses Mendelssohn—the "Nathan the Wise" of Lessing—who, though he remained all his life a Jew, and publicly defended Judaism, took a broad and philosophical view of what constitutes real religion—seeing therein a grand truth not necessarily defined by dogma and rite. Almost the last words of Felix Mendelssohn's illustrious grandfather were these:—

"I, for my part, remain in my Jewish unbelief, attribute to no mortal an 'angel pure mouth,' would not myself depend upon the authority even of an archangel on a question which concerns that eternal truth upon which the salvation of man is founded, and where I must stand or fall upon my own feet. Or rather, since, as Jakoby says, 'we are all born in faith,' I return to the faith of my forefathers, which, according to the original meaning of the word, consisted not in belief in teaching and opinion, but in trust and confidence in the attributes of God. I place the fullest and most implicit faith in His omnipotence, which is able to give us the power of recognising without authority those truths upon which our happiness depends, and I cherish a child-like confidence that His mercy will grant me this strength. Fortified by this unwavering belief, I seek instruction and conviction wherever I can find them."

If the philosopher taught his children thus, we have no right to be surprised at the course they subsequently took. Dorothea, his eldest daughter, became a Protestant Christian just before her marriage with Schlegel, and some time after joined the Roman Catholic Church. The third daughter, Henrietta, also became a Catholic, and found, Herr Hensel tells us, "the peace of which she was in want in her new faith." That she was a sincere Christian would appear from a passage in her will:—

"As in these words I speak for the last time to my dear relations, I hereby thank them for all the aid and friendship they have shown me during my life, and especially for having in every way tolerated the exercise of my religion, and never having shown any hatred towards it. Therefore I solely attribute it to myself if God has not thought me worthy of the grace of converting my brothers and sisters to the true faith, the Roman Catholic. May the Lord Jesus Christ grant my prayers, and inspire them with all the light of His grace. Amen."

Meanwhile, and to the end of his life, Abraham Mendelssohn, the father of Felix, remained in the Jewish faith, or, at all events, did not profess himself a Christian. His orthodoxy was of a somewhat doubtful character, since he viewed religious questions from a more philosophic standpoint than even his philosopher father. The whole state of the man's mind is revealed in a letter addressed to his daughter Rebecca on the day of her confirmation:—

"Does God exist? What is God? Is He a part of ourselves, and does he continue to live after the other part has ceased to be? And where? And how? All this I do not know, and therefore I have never taught you anything about it. But I know that there exists in me and in you and in all human beings an everlasting inclination towards all that is good, true, and right, and a conscience which warns and guides us when we go astray. I know it; I believe it; I live in this faith, and this is my religion. This I could not teach you, and nobody can learn it; but everybody has it who does not knowingly and intentionally cast it away. . . . The outward form of religion your teacher has given you is historical, and changeable like all human ordinances. Some thousands of years ago the Jewish form was the reigning one, then the heathen form, and now it is the Christian. We, your mother and I, were born and brought up by our parents as Jews, and, without being obliged to change the form of our religion, have been able to follow the divine instinct in us, and our conscience. We have educated you and your brothers and sister in the Christian faith, because it is the creed of most civilised people, and contains nothing that can lead you away from what is good, and much that guides you to love, obedience, tolerance, resignation, even if it offered nothing but the example of its Founder, understood by so few, and followed by still fewer."

* "The Mendelssohn Family (1720-1847)." From Letters and Journals. By Sebastian Hensel, with eight portraits and drawings by Wilhelm Hensel. Translated from the second revised edition by Carl Klingemann and an American collaborator, with a Notice by George Grove, Esq., D.C.L. 2 vols. London: Sampson Low, Marston, Searle and Rivington.

It must be obvious that a man who limited religion to an inward leaning in the direction of "all that is good, true, and right" was logically indifferent to creeds and observances. One form of the outward manifestation of religion must have appeared to him as good as another, and the only question in deciding upon which to adopt for his children was a question of expediency. But before making up his mind he consulted a brother-in-law, who had himself renounced the Jewish faith, at the same time changing his name from Salomon to Bartholdy. This adviser put the matter in a very practical way:—

"You say, you owe it to the memory of your father; but do you think that you have done something bad in giving your children the religion which seems to you the best? It is the justest homage you, or any of us, could pay to the efforts of your father to promote true light and knowledge; and he would have acted like you for his children, and perhaps like me for himself. You may remain faithful to an oppressed, persecuted religion; you may leave it to your children as a prospect of lifelong martyrdom, as long as you believe it to be absolute truth. But when you have ceased to believe that, it is barbarism. I advise you to adopt the name of Mendelssohn-Bartholdy as a distinction from the other Mendelssohns. At the same time you would please me very much, because it would be the means of preserving my memory in the family."

This letter settled the question, and its advice was followed on all points. In judging Abraham Mendelssohn's conduct, and having regard to his religious views, it should not be forgotten that the step from Judaism to Christianity meant social and political emancipation. An anti-Jewish spirit is rampant in Germany at the present day, as we know; but in the latter half of the eighteenth century Hebrews were, even in the eye of the law, little better than outcasts, "subjected," says Herr Hensel, "to every possible restriction; nearly every career was made inaccessible to them; in many towns residence was absolutely forbidden them, in others only a certain number were permitted to dwell, and even now, in many places, a 'Jews' quarter' exists." Their condition amended, no doubt, as years went on; but to be a Jew in Abraham Mendelssohn's time was to find all avenues to distinction barred, and there are persons now living who remember seeing official communications addressed "To the Jew A. B."—a form of superscription which suggests the days of Front-de-Bœuf rather than the nineteenth century. Taking all these things into consideration, it is not difficult to understand why Abraham Mendelssohn, finding no obstacle in his conscience, resolved that his children should be Christians.

We have dwelt at some length on this part of the subject for obvious reasons, but the reader may have kept us company with impatience, in his eagerness to know more of the illustrious composer. Herr Hensel discourses pleasantly about all the members of the gifted and interesting family; but when the name of Felix occurs we seem to forget the others, and are tempted to follow the thread of his particular story through the entanglement of the mass, without much reference to anything else. One of the most interesting points in reference to the composer is the explanation given of the remarkable development of his genius in the year 1826. The family had then removed to a fine house in the Leipziger Strasse, where was a large and charming garden "quite a park"—with a garden cottage, in which lived "an old lady with beautiful and amiable nieces and grand-daughters." Something like an ideal existence was passed in this new home. Surrounded by lovely things in nature and art, making their first acquaintance with Shakespeare, and steeped in an atmosphere of music and poetry, the Mendelssohn children spent the summer months "like one uninterrupted festival day." To this Herr Hensel attributes the vast and rapid change in Felix, made obvious by his ottet and the overture to the "Midsummer Night's Dream":—

"We may consider it (the overture) as a piece of Mendelssohn's own life, for it is as much the results of the events of the year 1826 in the Mendelssohn house as of the influence of Shakespeare; and, if we are not very much mistaken, this origin is just what lends such a singular charm to the overture."

Very likely Herr Hensel does not mistake in his own case, but the charm of the overture, to all the world outside the family, is purely Shakespearian. The work, no doubt, may claim to be purely Mendelssohnian as well; and the subsidiary fact has its origin in the circumstance that the composer's surroundings were adapted to place him in perfect sympathy with the poet's beautiful fancy.

Mendelssohn, as is well known, visited England in 1829, when he was in his twentieth year, and now, for the first time, these volumes enable us to accompany him closely in his travels. He started from Hamburg on April 10, and on the 21st wrote home to say that he had "just reached London." The voyage was stormy: "Fancy, moreover, that from Sunday morning to Monday evening, I had one fainting fit after another, from disgust with myself and everything about the boat, cursing England, and particularly my own 'Meeresstille,' and scolding the waiter with all my might." The young musician was deeply impressed by "the awful mass of London," even as it was fifty-two years ago. He called the metropolis "fearful," "maddening," "the grandest and most complicated monster" on the face of the earth; but the life of London suited him greatly. He admired the "beautiful daughters" of the fat John Bulls; loved to do the fashionable in the Park with Madame Moscheles, and, when he went east to see the docks, his heart rejoiced "at the greatness of the world." Fashionable society was soon open to him. He was a guest at the Duke of Devonshire's ball, and at a similar fête given by the Marquis of Lansdowne, on each occasion standing amazed at the, to him, unwonted display of wealth and luxury. He was amazed, moreover, at something else—at "the young noblemen making love to the ladies and waltzing abominably," and at "the young ladies sitting on tables, and gentlemen lying on the sofas, their feet up and at full length, whilst keeping up a tender conversation." O tempore; O mores fifty years ago! Our master's own artistic doings are described with a glowing pen. He conducted his C minor symphony at a Philharmonic concert, and "after each movement the whole audience and the whole orchestra applauded." Afterwards he played at another concert, and "the Times bestowed much praise on me" &c., &c. But Mendelssohn was not led by all this to gush over others; his youthful mood being always severely critical. He went to see Malibran, and thought it "a pity she should so often exaggerate and then nearly touch the ridiculous and disagreeable." Spagnoletti conducted; as to whom Mendelssohn promised his friends at home an imitation that would make them die of mirth. He saw Kemble's Hamlet and laughed at it. The great tragedian behaved "altogether like a John Bull Oxford student, and not like a Danish Crown prince."

Nevertheless, some things in the representation as a whole were well done. "But what is all that? There is little poetry in England. Really!"

After assisting at a concert given for the benefit of the distressed people in Silesia, Mendelssohn, with his friend Klingemann, set out for Scotland. He went first to Edinburgh, climbed Arthur's seat, and said, "when God Himself takes to panorama painting, it turns out strangely beautiful." Holyrood impressed him no less, if in a different way. "I believe I found to-day in the old chapel the beginning of my Scotch Symphony." Then he liked to see the Highlanders (a bagpipe competition was imminent) "victoriously leading their sweethearts in their holiday attire, and casting magnificent and important looks over the world; with long red beards, tartan plaids, bonnets, and feathers, naked knees, and their bagpipes in their hands." Finally he summed all up with: "How kind are the people in Edinburgh, and how generous is the good God!" adding as a sort of postscript, "the Scotch ladies also deserve notice." At Abbotsford the young travellers played off an amusing trick upon their friends at home. Klingemann wrote a letter beginning—"Most astonished friends! O most amazed readers!" in which he represented himself and Mendelssohn as honoured guests of Sir Walter Scott: "Under us the great man is snoring; his dogs are asleep, and his armoured knights awake: it is twelve o'clock, and the sweetest ghostly hour which I have ever spent, for Miss Scott makes the most delicious marmalade," &c. This was the fiction, and in a postscript Mendelssohn supplied the fact—a very plain one: "We found Sir Walter in the act of leaving Abbotsford, stared at him like fools, drove eighty miles, and lost a day for the sake of, at best, one half-hour of superficial conversation. Melrose compensated us but little; we were out of humour with great men, with ourselves, with the world, with everything." Putting the fiction and the fact together it is easy to see that the travellers were disappointed with their reception by the "Wizard of the North." The letters that follow teem with the liveliest description of scenery and people. Our voyagers went to the Hebrides, and found the Atlantic to contain "abundance of water," just then in a mood as vivacious as themselves. The consequences were troublesome. "Ladies as a rule fell down like flies, but two beautiful cold daughters of a Hebrides aristocrat, at whom Felix may storm [Klingemann is speaking], quietly continued sitting on deck, and did not even care much for the sea-sickness of their own mother." We do not know whether Felix actually did storm at the icy daughters of insular aristocracy, but there is the best evidence that he was profoundly moved by the scenery. Thus he writes: "On one of the Hebrides, August 7, 1829.—In order to make you understand how extraordinarily the Hebrides affected me, the following came into my mind there." Then follow twenty-one bars of music, given here, by a happy thought, in fac simile—the germ of the beautiful overture which depicts the blowing seas and sounding shores of the western isles. On arriving at Glasgow, the two friends set out to explore Rob Roy's country. They met with many disagreeables—"a cursing young Englishman, who was something between a sportsman, a peasant, and a gentleman"; wretchedness; comfortless, inhospitable solitude, and a surly people. All the same, "two fellows wandered merrily about them, laughed at every opportunity, rhymed and sketched together, growled at one another and the world when they happened to be vexed or did not find anything to eat, devoured everything eatable when they did find it, and slept twelve hours every night. Those two were we, who will not forget it as long as we live."

From Scotland, Mendelssohn, separating from Klingemann, went to Wales, and visited Llangollen, where he heard rather more "national music" than suited him. Tourists of our own day have good reason to remember the harper who harps in the entrance-hall of the "Hand" Hotel in that pretty town, but Mendelssohn seems to have met with the descendants of the bards in battalions, all playing such "infamous, vulgar, out-of-tune trash," that he was driven to cry: "Ten thousand devils take all nationality." Escaping from this torture, he made his well-known visit to Mr. Taylor, the members of whose family he described to his friends at home in a series of graphic strokes. The father was "the most English Englishman you can imagine"; the sons were "mighty sportsmen: they run across the meadow in front of the house, go fishing, train their dogs, and make fun with their sisters"; the daughters "had their own merits," which he defined, that of the youngest being liberality in the distribution of pin-cushions. The mother was "placid and good"; the Irish female cousins were "long, withered, ugly, and spiteful," to say nothing of being "unmarried and old"; while of the male cousins, one was quiet and morose, played the horn, and knew all about mining; the other shot rabbits and made love to the youngest daughter. The letters from Wales, written throughout in this vivacious style, are so charming that we wish there were many more. But the visit could not be prolonged, so having composed the Andante and Allegro in E minor for one sister, and "The Rivulet" for "Susan," he returned to London, where an accident to his knee laid him up for two months.

The English reader cannot fail to peruse the letters from Britain with immense interest. They give the freshest possible view of the composer as a young man, in this respect excelling the well-known Italian correspondence. The reason we can all understand, because his English wanderings were the first he ever enjoyed among a strange people and in a strange country, apart from the restraint of those in authority over him.

The next period upon which these volumes throw an interesting light is that which Mendelssohn spent at Dusseldorf, when he engaged to conduct the Festival there in 1833. Abraham Mendelssohn was present on this occasion, and the light of which we speak emanates from the letters he wrote home. Felix was very glad to see his father. "Why should I deny or conceal," said the proud parent, "that he kissed my hand for joy?" The young man was "petted and courted" by everybody in the Lower Rhenish town, and his playing and his memory astonished everybody. Of the memory Abraham gives an example, and it is a striking one. The managers of the Festival desired to change one symphony of Beethoven's for another—the Pastoral—and "when it was mentioned, he not only instantly played it from memory, but at a small trial on the eve of the rehearsal, when there was no score at hand, conducted it by heart, and sang the part of a missing instrument." We further learn from the father's letters how the son conducted himself when conducting others. It seemed a miracle to Abraham that four hundred musicians should allow themselves to be ordered and governed by one so young. But Felix knew how to command and make himself obeyed. He forbade the charivari of tuning on the orchestra, "and when several of the players attempted to disobey he once more forbade it very seriously, and I have not heard them tune a single note since." Then he prohibited talking on the orchestra: "Felix represented to them that he could not submit to it, that he neither could nor would shout to enable them to hear him, and that he must insist and rely on the most absolute silence and quiet every time he had to speak. He said this for a second time very decidedly and earnestly, and then I assure you that I never saw an order so strictly obeyed." Finally we see "Mr. Felix," as the Dusseldorfers called him, passing along the via triumphalis in anything but ease. At the last concert the ladies of the chorus provided themselves with flowers to throw at the conductor as usual, and a Miss Waringen concealed under her scarf a laurel wreath. The end came, and with it a volley of buds and blooms, the young man "making a face half-astonished, half-angry, when the first bouquet flew about his head." He had descended from his place, but was pushed up to it again, the laurel wreath awaiting him. "They say he nearly bent down to the floor to escape this homage. But a great strong man from the chorus held him up and stopped him, so that he had to suffer the wreath to be put upon his head, after having four times defended himself against it, and to wear it during a continued flourish of the orchestra and cheers of the choir and audience."

Here we must pause in our examination of these interesting volumes, with a promise, which we are sure the reader will appreciate, of a speedy return to them.

THE MASTERSINGERS OF NUREMBERG AN ANALYSIS OF RICHARD WAGNER'S OPERA

By F. CORDER.

As this extraordinary Opera is promised for production in London next season, and is as yet only known to the English musical public by a few detached portions presented in the concert-room, which afford no idea whatever of the work as a whole, the following attempt at a detailed analysis may not be found without use or interest.

"Die Meistersinger von Nürnberg" is the eighth of Wagner's music dramas, having been completed in 1867, while "Siegfried" and the "Götterdämmerung" were still in hand. It thus shows the composer at his ripest and best, with his theories of operatic construction at their completest development. Space forbids our giving here an account of the interesting guild of musicians which forms the subject of the plot; enough will be gathered from the description of the libretto to make the matter intelligible.

The music of this Comic Opera (strange name for so grand and serious a work of Art!) consists, as in the other later compositions of its author, of a number of musical phrases and figures, each representing some particular idea, person, or event in the drama. These are "worked" symphonically throughout the whole opera with inexhaustible and truly marvellous skill and inventive resource, in such a manner as to produce an intensely dramatic and interesting orchestral commentary on the text which is declaimed—seldom sung—by the dramatis personæ. In this work Wagner is singularly merciless to his singers: they have to declaim page after page of difficult but expressive recitative, and seldom get more than a final cadence to sing. The libretto is mainly to blame for this, and any musician who reads it through cannot but be amazed at the way in which the composer has needlessly handicapped himself. Fancy a libretto of 125 pages, small octavo—a vocal score of 467 pages, large quarto, fine print! In fact this opera takes six hours to play in its entirety, and the libretto, if acted without music at all, would be accounted a long play. There are lengthy scenes of mere dialogue, with little dramatic purport, long soliloquies, cast in such elaborate sentences and heavy verse as to preclude the possibility of their being sung; in fact, the composer has to gallop along at full speed to get through the libretto at all in even his vast limits. Yet with all these faults and the consequent slowness of action the opera is never dull, because of the enchantment and kaleidoscopic beauty of the music. Such action as it has is very amusing and, needless to say, strikingly original.

From the first notes of the Overture—or rather, Prelude—to the end Wagner has striven to convey, by a polyphonic and contrapuntal style quite different to that of "Tristan" or the "Nibelung Ring," a mediæval colouring and flavour to his music. The counterpoint is, indeed, very modern, involving discords which would have startled even Bach, but the component melodies more than compensate for this by their intrinsic interest. The Prelude, as a whole, seems intended to depict the bustle and hilarity of the Festival of St. John the Baptist on Midsummer Day, the leading incident of the opera. Accordingly we start with the theme of the Mastersingers' March, a grandiose subject for full orchestra:—

No. 1.

This is twenty-six bars in length, and comes to an end after much bold clashing of parts in contrary motion, with a full close in G. Immediately follows the phrase descriptive of the hero, Sir Walter Stolzing, in his capacity of poet and singer:—

No. 2.

This, after a few repetitions, leads by means of a brilliant violin passage into the subject allotted to the Mastersingers' Guild, with their banner representing King David with his harp:—

No. 3.

The opening bars of this theme are scored for trumpets, trombones, and harp; a most singular and ineffective combination. A counter-theme to this follows—

No. 3a.

which, with its fine counterpoint in the tenor, forms a good contrast to the preceding matter. This is worked out to the extent of thirty bars before coming to a close, and when the close is reached it is interrupted by the entrance of several love-themes, of which the most important are—which forms the nucleus of Walter's Prize Song in the third act, and—a phrase on which his Trial Song in the first act is founded.

After these two have been worked separately and in combination a modulation to E flat is made, and the subject No. 1 appears in diminution on the wood wind, representing the Apprentices, merry and mischievous; this alternates with continuous repetitions of No. 5a, and is followed by No. 3, in diminution also, with a remarkable counterpoint in the bass, thus:—

This counterpoint forms the subject of a comical chorus of the people in the last act, and this portion of the Prelude may therefore be regarded as representing the groups of burghers which fill up the picture of the Festival. A crescendo on this figure leads to a sudden burst back into C major with a dominant pedal sustained by the drums and the initial theme on the trombones as a middle part, the violins descending with a new figure leading us to the climax. This is nothing less than the simultaneous presentation of the first, third, and fourth subjects—in bass, tenor, and treble—which go together for a space of twelve bars; a veritable triumph of counterpoint. This is followed by a medley of themes, culminating in the "King David" theme, No. 3, and with a last allusion to No. 1 the Prelude reaches a brilliant and noisy conclusion. It will be perceived from this sketch that there is not the least attempt at form in the movement; it is simply a pot-pourri of themes from the opera thrown together with the seeming carelessness, but real consummate art, of the Japanese painter who flings his birds and flower-sprays apparently at random on the surface to be ornamented, and obtains invariably a true artistic effect.

The curtain rises on the last chords of the Prelude, allowing no time for applause, which is a pity. We are shown a slanting section of the church of St. Katherine, in Nuremberg (sixteenth century), where divine service is just concluding with a fine old choral, sung by all the congregation:—

No. 6.

Between the lines of this hymn to St. John the Baptist the orchestra has the most exquisite little interludes founded on the Sir Walter and love-themes. These are intended to illustrate some pretty dumb-show which takes place on the stage. Eva, daughter of Pogner, a rich goldsmith, is sitting in one of the end pews with Magdalena, her nurse, and her attention is distracted from the service—the old, old story!—by the presence of the young knight Walter, who leans against a pillar and makes eyes at her. She returns his love-glances sufficiently to embolden him to address her, on the dispersing of the congregation. Conversation then ensues, from which it appears that Eva is in the singular position of being engaged without any one, even herself, knowing to whom. Her father has offered her hand as the prize in to-morrow's tournament of song. On this being explained, Sir Walter, with the rashness of youth, resolves to seek admission into the Guild of Mastersingers and, by his great talents, to become at one trial a full-blown master, able to compete for the fair prize. The lovers then separate, after a few ardent expressions of affection and a secret appointment for the evening. Meanwhile another character has entered—David, the apprentice of Hans Sachs, the famous cobbler-poet. He is inclosing the front part of the stage with curtains, arranging it for a meeting of the Mastersingers which is to take place in the choir of the church, and Magdalena—with whom he is of course in love—commands him to initiate Sir Walter into the mysteries of Mastersinging. The music, throughout this scene is of but slight interest, except that accompanying David in his words and actions. This is—as in the Prelude—a miniature version of the March, No. 1, and also the following tripping and characteristic phrase which may be called the Prentices' motive:—

These Prentices are invariably accompanied by music of this character, chattering groups of semi-quavers and passages of sixths and thirds.

Now follows a very curious scene. While the Prentices arrange the stage, playing about and occasionally "chaffing" David, the latter proceeds to instruct Sir Walter in the absurd laws and terms of the Mastersingers. The greater part of this scene is necessarily omitted in representation, especially the speeches in which David reels off a list of some of the names given to particular musical phrases by the Masters, thus:—

The Tones and Modes we render
Have many a form and name,
The strong ones and the tender—
Who would try a list to frame?
The "shortened," "long," and "extra-long" Tones;
The "writing-ink," the "note-paper" Modes;
The "crimson," "blue," and "azure" Tones;
The "hawthorn-bloom," "strawblade," "fennel" Modes;

* * * * *
The "good English tin" and "cinnamon" Modes,
"Fresh-gathered oranges," "green linden-bloom" Modes:—

and so on, for a couple of pages. All the procedure of the trial examinations and competitions is told at length, unnecessarily, for it is all afterwards presented to us in the action of the play. Having proved to Sir Walter that he has no chance of success in his attempt, David and the others execute a dance of derision, singing—

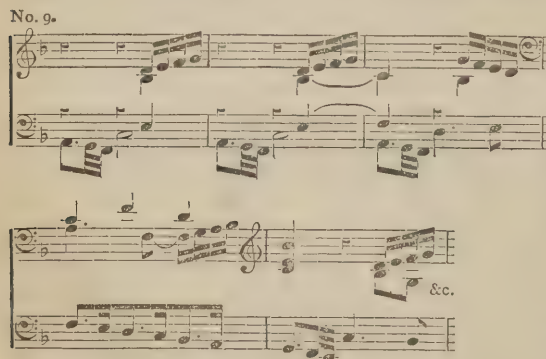

No. 8.

The wreath of flow-ers in silk so bright, I hope it may fall to your lot, Sir knight, . .
in silk . . . &c.

a capital melody, which however is cut short by the entry of the Masters, before whom the Prentices become suddenly silent and respectful. The scene which follows and lasts to the end of the act—over an hour—is perhaps the most unoperatic ever conceived. Pogner, the rich goldsmith, enters conversing with Beckmesser, the town-clerk. The latter desires to win Eva, but does not like the idea of having to compete in a trial of song, for very good reasons. Other Masters enter by twos and threes, till there are twelve, including Hans Sachs. In order to compensate for the uninteresting nature of this early portion of the scene, Wagner has presented us with one of his most fascinating ideas, a theme of a striking, not to say haunting character, to which is added counterpoint after counterpoint, developing fresh beauties at each repetition. This is the "Freiung" or "competition" motive, which is a good deal used throughout the opera. We give it here in its first complete form, as a melody in the bass—

No. 9.

The wreath of flow-ers in silk so bright, I hope it may fall to your lot, Sir knight, . .
in silk . . . &c.

and shortly afterwards the following treble part is added, founded, it will be seen, upon previous motives, Nos. 3a and 4; the latter because it is Sir Walter who is speaking:—

No. 9a.

This slender material is worked out with exceeding taste and skill while Walter introduces himself to Pogner, to ask his permission to enter the Guild, the Masters entering and greeting each other, and while one of them, Fritz Kothner, who acts as secretary or usher, calls the list of names, to which they answer. Pogner now demands the ear of the assemblage, and proceeds to make a very long speech to the effect already known to us, that he intends to bestow his daughter's hand on him who shall be declared a Master in the competition on St. John's day. The musical material of this fine solo is simply the following phrase, which we may call the "St. John's Day" motive—

No. 10.

and which is repeated scores of times, varied by endless counterpoints, and finally itself appears as a counterpoint to No. 9. One more new theme springs out of the same materials, thus—

No. 11.

Eva Dasso.....

when Pogner proceeds to explain that his daughter is not to be handed over willy-nilly to the winner, but that she will be allowed to refuse him, only in that case she will never be allowed to marry any one else. This creates much discussion, and Sachs moves, as an amendment, that the general public shall be allowed to vote for the winner, on the ground that the uninstructed female mind is more likely to agree with the selection of ordinary folks than of the learned Masters. So radical a proposition horrifies the Masters, and after much bickering and talk it is withdrawn, and the order of the day resumed. It should here be noticed that whenever the Masters speak as a body they do so, not in a chorus, but every one of the twelve in a distinct part, thus producing concerted pieces of great complexity. Wagner has indeed Bach's power of writing in any number of parts without apparent effort.

Sir Walter is now introduced by Pogner and offered for election. A new theme is here allotted to him in his capacity of knight merely:—

No. 12.

This is worked out while the Masters question him as to his birth and family. Pogner replies for him, declaring that he is the last of a noble family, and has sold off his ancestral property, and come from Franconia to settle in Nuremberg purely from love of art. On being asked who was his Master, Walter replies in a charming and well-formed song of three verses, relating how he learnt all he knew first by poring over the ancient poems of Sir Walther von der Vogelweide, and then wandering in the woods listening to the birds. The most prominent phrases of this—

No. 13a.

recur frequently later on. The Masters are not much impressed by Walter's account of himself, and the jealous Beckmesser is unsparing in his sneers. However, the young singer is commanded to give a specimen of his powers, and Beckmesser assumes the office of Marker. To a mocking and discordant version of the "Sir Walter" motive, No. 12, he says:

Sir knight, now hark!
Sixtus Beckmesser stands to mark;
Here in this cell
He silently does his duty fell.
Seven faults are given you clear,
With chalk on a slate they are scored;
But if more mistakes than seven appear,
Then, sir knight, without hope you are floored.
My ears are keen;
But as, if what I do were seen,
You might be curbed,
Don't be disturbed;
I hide myself from view,
So Heaven be kind to you—and thereupon disappears in a little curtained box which the Prentices have built, while Walter has another dose of ridiculous and formal rules read to him by Kothner, to recitative every sentence of which ends with a Handelian florid passage, and he is then made to sit on an elevated chair in the centre of the throng, and the Marker cries "Now begin!" Walter immediately improvises a wild rhapsody on these words, thus:—

Now begin!
So cries through woodlands the Spring,
And makes them loudly ring;
Then, as to distance urging,
The echoes ripple thence;
From far there comes a surging,
That swells with pow'r intense, &c.

A rushing accompaniment, founded on the figure No. 5, pervades this song, which is of extreme, though wild and rugged beauty. The principal melodious interest lies in an augmented version of the same phrase:—

No. 5a.

At the end of the strain, a most passionate climax, Beckmesser tears open the curtains and inquires, harshly, "Is it nearly finished?" "What means the call?" inquires poor Walter. "I've finished with the slate—that's all!" replies the sarcastic Marker, showing his tablet completely covered with crosses on both sides. Walter demands to be heard to the end, and a quarrel ensues between Sachs, his only admirer, and Beckmesser, his enemy. Here two new phrases demand quotation. In the distorted version of No. 12 alluded to above, the discord of a minor second forms a distinguishing feature, and now a new figure, representative of Beckmesser, presents us with the same peculiarity, which seems well in character with the disagreeable slate-scratching Marker:—

No. 13. Vivace.

The other theme belongs to Sachs, and has occurred before when the Prentices were jeering at David. It is the "cobbler" motive—a figure founded on the chord of minor thirteenth, and much used throughout the opera. Beckmesser taunts Sachs with neglecting his proper trade for poetry, and orders him to send his new pair of boots home without further delay. This home-thrust, which shows us that shoemakers were just as dilatory in the Middle Ages as they are now, silences Sachs; but the Masters agree to hear Walter. He sings on, more and more wildly and recklessly, while Beckmesser keeps up an open fire of comments and fault-finders. The Masters from murmuring rise to loud expressions of derision, and the confusion and noise is swelled to a very Babel by the Prentices, who, encouraged by the disorderly proceedings, dance round the Marker's box with their old mocking-song. The complication of these sixteen vocal parts, all with different words and movement, is prodigious. Walter's song comes to an end, all but unheard; in proud contempt he leaves his chair, and bids farewell for ever to the Guild, while the Masters vote unanimously his failure. There is a hasty dispersing of the assemblage; Sachs alone remains, shaking his head, half-amused, half in pity and sorrow, at the empty stage as the curtain falls.

No. 14.

The second act is much more lyrical than the first. The scene is laid in a street in Nuremberg. A narrow alley opens from this, running to the back of the stage, and the two corner-houses of the street and alley are those of Pogner and Sachs; the former being a large one and the latter an ordinary cobbler's den. After a few introductory bars, the curtain rises and shows us the Prentices shutting up all the shops, for it is dusk. The music here keeps up the character of the Prentices' theme—chords of 6-3, but the violins persistently rush up the scale and trill on the top note of each chord. The new phrase for the boys goes thus (observe the "St. John's Day" motive above):—

No. 15.

Midsummer Day! Midsummer Day!
Flowers and ribbons—goodly display!

As they thus sing Magdalena comes out with a basket of food for David—his master, as was then the custom, keeping his apprentice on very short commons. When she hears the result of Walter's luckless attempt she runs back into the house in despair, leaving her young man supperless. Hereupon more chaff from the Prentices, and Sachs, returning home in not the best of tempers, catches David fighting, and packs him off to bed. Pogner and Eva, returning from an evening walk, now come and sit on a bench under the lime-tree before their door to enjoy the cool summer evening. The father tries to discover his daughter's wishes as to her strange betrothal, but she is afraid to confide in him. He speaks in glowing terms of the morrow's Festival, when all the town will assemble to behold Eva's choice. Here we are introduced to a new theme of importance, the "Nuremberg" motive:—

No. 16.

Magdalena calls them in to supper, and seizes the opportunity to whisper to Eva of the calamity to Sir Walter. In despair Eva resolves to steal out after supper and try to find out all the particulars from her old friend Sachs. They go in and Sachs comes out to finish his work in the fading twilight. Here occurs a fine episode. The "Cobbler" motive (No. 14) keeps giving way to the haunting phrase of Walter's song—

No. 5b.

as the old man feels his very soul stirred by the untutored but genuine passion and poetry of the young knight. His soliloquy is very fine:—

But I'd better stick to my leather,
And let all this poetry be:

He endeavours to proceed with his work in vain:—

And yet—it haunts me still,
I feel, but comprehend ill:
Cannot forget it and yet cannot grasp it;
I measure it not, e'en when I clasp it. . . .
It seemed so old, yet new in its chime,
Like songs of birds in sweet May-time. . . .
The bird who sang to-day
Has got a throat that rightly waxes;
Masters may feel dismay,
But well content with him Hans Sachs is.

As he more cheerfully resumes his work, to the accompaniment of Walter's first song (No. 13), Eva comes out and crosses the road to have a chat with him. The following scene, which contains one of the most charming of all the themes in the opera, is so subtle in its comedy as to be absurdly unoperatic. Eva tries to wheedle the old cobbler into telling her all about Walter, and he, seeing through all her roundabout traps, evades her, and teases her to his heart's content, concluding by expressing the most heartless indifference for the young knight's disappointment, and driving Eva away from him quite angry. The material of this long scene is this theme—

No. 17.

and its secondary—

No. 17a.

the beauties of which are skilfully emphasised by graceful variations.

(To be continued.)

THE GREAT COMPOSERS

BY JOSEPH BENNETT.

No. XI.—CHOPIN.

In the rhapsodical, not to say hysterical, book known as the "Life of Chopin," by Franz Liszt, the great virtuoso of the pianoforte gives the remarkable composer with whom we are now concerned a very curious character. He tries to put Chopin before us as a psychological phenomenon, invests him with strange attributes provocative of awe and mystery, and surrounds him with the halo of a very peculiar heroism. Noting this, we should also remember that Liszt does not speak without authority. He is generally credited with keen discernment; he had abundant opportunities of studying Chopin's character—even that innermost side which a man shows but to very few; and between the two musicians a bond of sympathy existed stronger than any arising from their common art—the bond of, on many points, a mutual feeling. Yet we shall, by-and-by, find reason to doubt the accuracy of Liszt's sketch. It will appear to us probably that the biographer, if so we may call him, regarded his subject through a false medium, which distorted its outline and changed its colour. The fact is that men, in trying to reproduce another, very often unconsciously reproduce themselves, or, at any rate, create an ideal formed out of a reflection of their own individuality. This may have been the case with Liszt, who, of all persons, is about the least fitted for the higher work of a biographer. Such work demands self-abnegation, judicial calmness, the repression of all partisanship, and the faculty of weighing evidence with care before accepting its proof without reserve. Whereas the eminent man of whom we speak is picturesque and impulsive, of irrepressible personality, intensely sentimental, and, if his affections be concerned, generous to the last degree. A writer thus characterised would, when engaged upon the life of his hero, naturally exaggerate points possessed by the two in common, and incline to make of him that which he has conceived as an ideal self. Bearing this in mind, let us look at the picture of Chopin drawn by Liszt.

In the first place, we are told that Chopin's character was not easily understood. Indeed, it was nearly always mistaken by those who approached him, because, while "kind, courteous, and affable, of tranquil and almost joyous manners, he would not suffer the secret convulsions which agitated him to be even suspected." This concealment, it appears, distinguishes the race to which Chopin, through his mother, belonged, and if Liszt's sketch of the typical

Slavonian be true, one can hardly feel a comfortable assurance in dealing with them:—

"With them (the Slaves) loyalty and candour, familiarity and the most captivating ease of manner, by no means imply confidence or impulsive frankness. Like the twisted folds of a serpent rolled upon itself, their feelings are half-hidden, half-revealed. It requires a most attentive examination to follow the coiled linking of the glittering rings. It would be naïve to interpret literally their courtesy full of compliment, their assumed humility. . . . When they speak of themselves, we may almost be certain that they keep some concealment in reserve, which assures them the advantage in intellect or feeling."

The unpleasant likening of a Slave to a coiled serpent should not, however, prejudice us against Chopin, because we are told that "a frail and sickly organisation" prevented him from showing the more energetic and less amiable side of his nature. Indeed, the composer was impatient on account of the prompt estimate formed of him as a calm and gentle being:—

"As his health was too frail to permit him to give vent to his impatience through the vehemence of his execution, he sought to compensate himself by pouring this bitterness over those pages which he loved to hear performed with a vigour which he could not himself always command—pages which are, indeed, full of the impassioned feelings of a man suffering deeply from wounds which he does not choose to avow. Thus around a gaily flagged yet sinking ship float the fallen spars and tattered fragments, torn by warring winds and surging waves from its shattered sides."

Without attempting to understand the secretiveness of a musician who reveals all his feelings in the language which best expresses them, it must be confessed that we have here a singular character, and one that excites our curiosity as well as our interest. A man, outwardly gentle and amiable, is distracted within by a tempest of feeling to which a frail body denies expression:—

"Step by step the tortured mind of Chopin arrived at a state of sickly irritability; his emotions increased to a feverish tremor, producing that involution, that tortuosity of thought, which mark his latest works. Almost suffocated under the oppression of repressed feelings, using art only to repeat and rehearse for himself his own internal tragedy, after having wearied emotion, he began to subtilise it. His melodies are actually tormented; a nervous and restless sensibility leads to an obstinate persistence in the handling and rehandling, and a reiterated pursuit of the tortured motifs which impress us as painfully as the sight of those physical or mental agonies which we know can find relief only in death."

Observe what a striking figure the picturesque Liszt makes of his fellow. The canvas has about it the wildness and gloom of Salvator Rosa; the awfulness of one of Turner's thunder-skies. Chopin is Prometheus chained to his rock, and "subtilising" the passionate thoughts that rise in him against the inflexible deities. Shaking off the enthrallment under which Liszt's fancy places us, we are naturally tempted to ask, in a matter-of-fact way, what it was that so cruelly tortured the Polish master. The answer is inadequate, even though Liszt represents him as well-nigh continuously at death's door:—

"With the exception of some concerts given at his début in 1831, in Vienna and Munich, he gave no more, except in Paris, being indeed not able to travel on account of his health, which was so precarious that, during entire months, he would appear to be in an almost dying state."

How far this statement agrees with facts will appear later on. Enough that the harmony is not sufficient to afford the explanation of which we are in search. Nor do we find that explanation in Chopin's view of his position and artistic career. Here, indeed, Liszt proceeds upon surmise alone. The Polish musician never courted popular applause, and his voluntary abnegation, we are told, "veiled an internal wound":—

"He was perfectly aware of his own superiority; perhaps it did not receive sufficient reverberation and echo from without to give him the tranquil assurance that he was perfectly appreciated. No doubt, in the absence of popular acclamation, he asked himself how far a chosen audience, through the enthusiasm of its applause, was able to replace the great public which he relinquished. . . . A gnawing feeling of discontent, of which he himself scarcely comprehended the cause, secretly undermined him. We have seen him almost shocked by eulogy. The praise to which he was justly entitled not reaching him en masse, he looked upon isolated commendation as almost wounding. . . . Too fine a connoisseur in raillery, too ingenious a satirist ever to expose himself to sarcasm, he never assumed the rôle of a 'genius misunderstood.' With a good grace, and under an apparent satisfaction, he concealed so entirely the wound given to his just pride that its very existence was scarcely suspected. But not without reason might the gradually increasing rarity of his concerts be attributed rather to the wish he felt to avoid occasions which did not bring him the tribute he merited than to physical debility."

We shall find after a while that there is not sufficient evidence to establish this argument, and we can even now see that Liszt may have evolved it from his own "inner consciousness." The artist always before the public, always living, moving, and having his being in public applause, would naturally be startled at seeing another artist clinging to the privacy of his immediate circle, and turning aside from every path leading to praise. He would be unable to understand such a phenomenon, and seeking a reason for it in himself would fix upon the, to him, greatest possible calamity—lack of appreciation. Liszt further accounts for Chopin's dark fate and lurid surroundings by the contrast between an ardent imagination, allied to violent feelings, and his physical organisation:—

"The delicacy of his heart and constitution imposed upon him the woman's torture, that of enduring agonies never to be confessed, thus giving to his fate some of the darker hues of feminine destiny."

But waiving further reference to the Chopin whom Liszt shows to us, we may say, without questioning every detail, that the picture is overdrawn, overcoloured, and so far false that it has led to serious misconception. The Chopin best known in our time is, without question, that of Liszt, which the Prince Carol of George Sand resembles sufficiently to serve for a confirmation. This is why we have drawn attention to the portrait at the outset. The ideal of the sentimental and picturesque pianist, with its double in that of the impressionable lady novelist, should be kept at hand for frequent inspection in the light of fact.

The father of Frederic Chopin was a native of Nancy, in Lorraine, and a born subject therefore of the King of France. It chanced that at the date of his birth a certain connection existed between the Lorraine duchy and Poland—a survival of the political connection which lasted from 1735 to the death of King Stanislas, that monarch having in the interval reigned over both countries. Stanislas appears to have done great things for his western subjects—an uncommon occurrence then among crowned heads; and they not only cherished his memory, but took a lively interest in the fortunes of the Sarmatian kingdom to which they had been for a while allied. Under such circumstances it was natural in the young Lorrainers to seize every opportunity of visiting Poland, and Nicholas Chopin promptly accepted the offer of a distinguished Polish lady to accompany her thither as tutor to her sons. The young Frenchman settled in Warsaw with his employer, and on leaving her service took part in the struggle headed by Kosciuszko, finally attaining the rank of captain. At the close of the war he was prevented from returning to France by a severe illness, accepting which as a sign from Providence, he remained in his adopted country, married, in 1806, Fräulein Justine Krzyzanowska, and resumed the profession of a teacher. So he continued till his death in 1844. His wife was, we are told, "of an exceedingly gentle disposition and excelled in all womanly virtues," including resignation, let us hope, since, living till 1861, she saw her husband and all her children, save one, precede her to the tomb. Of those children, the eldest, Louisa, had literary tastes, and wrote books and articles, chiefly on educational subjects; the second daughter, Isabella, married a school inspector, and was still living a few years ago; while the third, Emily, a young creature as gifted as she was amiable, died in her fourteenth year. Such was the family into which Frederic François Chopin entered by birth, at the village of Zelazowa Wola, near Warsaw, March 1, 1809.

The new comer was endowed with a peculiarly sensitive organisation. He shared with some animals an intense susceptibility to musical sounds, and, just as a dog will emit responsive howls when an instrument is played, so, it is said, the youthful Chopin cried lustily under the same influence. It soon appeared that the demonstration was not one of protest. The boy took to the pianoforte as though it represented his natural destiny, and his parents thereupon intrusted him, though still a child, to the care of a Warsaw professor, Albert Zywny. Frederic soon became that usually objectional thing, an "infant phenomenon." He was made a "show" at the great Polish mansions, and we are told that he performed a pianoforte concerto in public at the age of nine. The story of this performance, as narrated by Karasowski,* is extremely pretty:—

"On the occasion of a public concert, for the benefit of the poor, February 24, 1818, Julius Ursin Miemcewicz, late adjutant to Kosciuszko, and himself a great statesman, poet, historian, and political writer, and other high personages, invited the co-operation of the virtuoso, who had not quite completed his ninth year. Such a request could not be refused, and thus Chopin's first step in his artistic career was for a charitable object. A few hours before the performance (he was to play Gyrowetz's pianoforte concerto) Fritzchen, as he was called at home, was placed on a chair to be suitably dressed for his first appearance before a large assembly. The child was delighted with his jacket, and especially with the handsome collar. After the concert his mother, who had not been present, asked, as she embraced him, 'What did the public like best?' He naïvely answered, 'Oh! mamma, everybody looked only at my collar,' thus showing that he was not vain of his playing."

At ten years of age he received from Catalani a gold watch, presented in recognition of his artistic merit, but he might have been less proud of this than of taming, pro tem., that typical Russian bear, the Grand Duke Constantine, then, as the Polish people well knew, the immediate lord and master of Warsaw. This usually violent and brutal man could be as soft as a woman with little Frederic, who had only to seat himself at the pianoforte to make the bear sheath his claws and be amiable. Meanwhile the boy composed pieces, chiefly in dance form, for his favourite instrument, and his father had him taught counterpoint by Elsner, an intimate friend of the family, and director of the Conservatoire. An original genius soon showed itself both as to ideas and form of delivery, but it does not appear that Nicholas Chopin contemplated the profession of music for his son. He shared the common reluctance of parents to trust the fortunes of their children to a career in which great honours are few. The boy, therefore, studied music more as a diversion than as a business, though to himself, no doubt, the pastime was a very serious affair indeed.

He seems to have had all the high spirits and love of fun proper to his age; and we certainly discover no trace in the youthful Frederic of the man whom Liszt has set in so lurid a light. "Extraordinary vivacity of temperament," we are told,* "prompted him to incessant activity, and sharpened his innate irrepressible and versatile humour. What innumerable tricks he was continually playing on his sisters, schoolfellows, and even on persons of riper years!" He was a good mimic, moreover, his command of facial expression being remarkable, and no mean proficient in caricature. As to his power with the pianoforte, he could hush the pupils of his father's school even in their most unruly moments. Hereupon a story is told which reads like enchantment:—

"One day, when Professor Chopin was out, there was a frightful scene. Barcinski, the master present, was at his wit's end, when Frederic happily entered the room. Without deliberation he requested the roysterers to sit down, called in those who were making a noise outside, and promised to improvise an interesting story on the piano if they would be quiet. All were instantly as still as death, and Frederic sat down to the instrument and extinguished the lights. He described how robbers approached a house, mounted by ladders to the windows, but were frightened away by a noise within. Without delay they fled, on the wings of the wind, into a deep, dark wood, where they fell asleep under the starry sky. He played more and more softly, as if trying to lull children to rest, till he found that his hearers had actually fallen asleep. The young artist noiselessly crept out of the room to his parents and sisters, and asked them to follow him with a light. When the family had amused themselves with the various postures of the sleepers, Frederic sat down again to the piano and struck a thrilling chord, at which they all sprang up in a fright. A hearty laugh was the finale of this musical joke."

Other stories, akin to this, are told of his youthful days, but without repeating them we see clearly enough what kind of boy was the son of the Warsaw schoolmaster. Bright and clever, overflowing with animal spirits, possessing a keen sense of humour, and susceptible at all points to the influence of art, he resembled his contemporary Mendelssohn (born twenty-six days before him) more than any other composer of whose early life the details are known.

Between Mendelssohn and Chopin, however, a remarkable difference existed. The fame of the German soon spread beyond the city in which his youth was spent—soon spread, indeed, beyond the confines of his native land, while that of the Franco-Pole remained a long time limited to a narrow circle. The contrast may be attributed in part to the varied genius of the two men, and in other part to the circumstances amid which they were placed. It is true that under no conditions could Chopin have been Mendelssohn, any more than Mendelssohn could have been Chopin; still, we must give due weight to the fact that the more famous composer lived in a great centre of artistic and intellectual life, while the other spent his early years in a comparatively isolated and out-of-the-way town. The chances of widespread youthful fame were all in favour of Mendelssohn, and only to a limited extent in favour of Chopin. Such opportunities as the young Pole had he doubtless utilised to the utmost. In 1825 he played before the Emperor Alexander, during that potentate's visit to Warsaw; the concerts in which he took part were invariably successful, and he published his opus 1—the Rondo dedicated to Madame von Linde. But he did more than this at the same time—he removed the doubts of his parents as to his future career, and passed from the rank of a dilettante to that of a professor with their full consent, if not, perhaps, with their entire approbation.

* "Frederic Chopin: his Life, Letters and Works." By Moritz Karasowski. Translated by Emily Hill. Vol. I., p. 18.

* Karasowski. Vol. i., p. 22.

† Ibid. Vol. i., p. 27 et seq.

In 1826 an event occurred which, according to certain authorities, had a decided influence upon the young man's future. Something of the kind might have been expected, since the time was ripe for it, and the only question was in what manner, more or less immediate, Chopin would be enabled to break the bonds that confined him to local celebrity, and pass from a chrysalis state to one of full development and freedom. Early in the year just named Emily Chopin was advised to take the waters at Bad Reinerz, and all the family, its head excepted, accompanied the invalid thither, subsequently removing to the village of Strzyzewo, not far from the summer residence of Prince Anton Radziwill. The Prince being an enthusiastic musician and an amateur composer of some mark, it was the most natural thing in the world that he and Chopin should meet, and, perhaps, that the noble should be charmed with the schoolmaster's son. At any rate, they did meet, and the Prince was so struck with the young Pole that he had not forgotten him three years later, when he represented Prussia at the coronation of Nicholas I. as King of Poland. On that occasion the "high and mighty" actually condescended to visit the lowly artist at the house of his father, and invited him to Posen, of which Duchy the Prince was governor. At this point Chopin's biographers part company and go wide asunder. On the one hand Liszt says:—

"In consequence of the generous and discriminating protection always granted by Prince Antoine Radziwill to the arts and to genius, which he had the power of recognising both as a man of intellect and as a distinguished artist, Chopin was early placed in one of the first colleges in Warsaw. . . . Assisting the limited means of the family of Chopin, the Prince made him the inestimable gift of a finished education of which no part had been neglected. Through the person of a friend, M. Antoine Koszuchowski, whose own elevated mind enabled him to understand the requirements of an artistic career, the Prince always paid his pension from his first entrance into college, until the completion of his studies."

This is a precise statement, honourable both to the Prince and to his protégé. Unfortunately there is no more truth in it than in the report, not adopted by Liszt, that Prince Radziwill paid Chopin's expenses to Vienna. Speaking with undoubted authority, Karasowski exposes the whole story. We have seen that the Prince did not meet Chopin till 1826, when the musician was seventeen years old—rather late to begin an education; and now the more accurate biographer remarks:—

"We are fully aware that in the portions of the work relating to Chopin's youth, manners, compositions, and to the Polish national music, Liszt received much help from a Polish emigrant, Franz Grzymala. He had been a deputy at the Diet, and was an able author and journalist; he died in Paris in 1871, the day after the capitulation. Not having made Chopin's acquaintance until his residence in Paris, it does not appear, from what he told Liszt, that he could have possessed any accurate information about his early life. Julius Fontana, who had known Chopin from childhood, entered a protest against Liszt's assertion; so also did the parents of the great artist, who were sadly pained to read that Prince Radziwill had entirely provided for Frederic's education. Professor at three large academies in Warsaw, and proprietor of a flourishing pension, surely Nicholas Chopin would have found means for the education of his dearly loved and only son. . . . It is only fair to Liszt to say that he is less to blame for the circulation of the error we have pointed out than Grzymala and those who blindly believed and promulgated a statement so utterly false."

After this we are naturally suspicious of the great pianist's other "facts" regarding Chopin's youth. Liszt tells us that he was "fragile and sickly" as a boy, and that "the attention of his family was concentrated upon his health." Then we have quite a fancy picture:—

"No precocity of his faculties, no precursory sign of remarkable development revealed, in his early years, his future superiority of soul, mind, or capacity. The little creature was seen suffering indeed, but always trying to smile, patient and apparently happy, and his friends were so glad that he did not become moody or morose that they were satisfied to cherish his good qualities, believing that he opened his heart to them without reserve, and gave to them all his secret thoughts."

We need not point out how this sketch of a feeble, sickly child, trying to smile through his sufferings, clashes with Karasowski's romping, fun-loving boy, always playing tricks and, we venture to surmise, eating hearty dinners. But Liszt goes further and says: "He commenced the study of music at an early age, being but nine years old when he began to learn it." At that very age, as we have seen, he played a pianoforte concerto in public.

(To be continued.)

SIR FREDERICK LEIGHTON ON ART AND ETHICS.

It is not often that the English public is regaled with a discourse on art so suggestive as the address recently delivered by Sir Frederick Leighton to the students of the Royal Academy. The main subject of the address was the "Relation in which Art stands to Morals and to Religion." The President of the Royal Academy, in his reverent style of treatment as well as by open confession, acknowledged the delicacy with which opinions on such subjects have to be conveyed to an English audience. As he observed, there is no country in the world, unless it be the sisterland beyond the Atlantic, in which the religious sense has exercised an influence so definite and so controlling as it has in our own on the development of the intellectual as well as of the ethical tone of the nation. In the moral order, he tells us, this sense has added incalculably to the strength and dignity of the national character. In the intellectual order its overmastering influence has too often tended to cramp and impede that full and equal play of the intelligence without which our nature cannot yield its fullest harvest or bear its finest fruit.

* "Life of Chopin," p. 145.

* Karasowski, p. 38.

† "Life of Chopin," p. 143, et seq

The two points that give the key to Sir Frederick Leighton's address, and which it is necessary for his readers or hearers to separate very clearly, must be explained in his own words. He says, "On the one side it is asserted that the first duty of all artistic production is the inculcation of a moral lesson, if not indeed of a Christian truth, and that the worth and dignity of a work of art are to be gauged by the degree in which it performs this duty. Unless it preach, as from a pulpit, the cardinal doctrines of a Faith or declare, whether by unambiguous symbolism or by definite embodied example, the loftiness of virtue and the deadliness of sin—unless a very gospel made more eloquent by form and colour cry aloud to us from the canvas or from the marble—then, we are told, the artist has laboured in vain, for his work fails in the highest function of art. With this contention connects itself naturally, if not necessarily, this other, that as a man is mirrored in his work, so the noblest work can be, and has in fact been, produced only by the most pious and God-fearing men, of the moral level of whose nature it is indeed the test and, as it were, the tide-mark." In opposition to this doctrine, says Sir Frederick Leighton, it is maintained that the function of art, as such, whatever may be its incidental operation and whatever it may include in the broad verge of its sphere of action and appeal, is absolutely unconnected with ethics, and that its distinct and special province is to satisfy certain cravings and excite certain emotions in our nature to which it has alone access; and that as artistic production springs from æsthetic and not from ethical impulses within the artist, so the character of that production is independent of his moral attitude and unaffected by it. In mitigation of this somewhat too rigorous presentment of a theory, the main drift of which he obviously agrees with, Sir Frederick Leighton, in the latter part of his address, says, "I drew your attention to the fact that of those who claim for art a separate and independent sphere—a claim which we have just seen to be well-founded and unassailable—there are many who will further assert that therefore artistic production receives no colour from the moral temper of the producer. This I called a dangerous error, and affirmed, on the contrary, that a man is stamped on his work, and his moral growth or lessening is faithfully reflected in the sum of his labours."

The two points, therefore, we have to separate are these: If art be independent of morals and religion, still the general work of an artist will bear the impress of his moral nature. The distinction is not a little embarrassing; and all the more so that Sir Frederick Leighton falls ultimately into homily, and lectures the students on the sins of artistic vanity and jealousy and of greed, which, in lowering their moral tone, will, as he says, control their work "from the first touch of the brush or chisel to the last."

It is an old aphorism that "the style is the man." But what could we divine of Rousseau from his admirable literary style, and apart from his "Confessions"? Is greed or parsimony made visible in a landscape by Turner? or is the moral tone of Mozart's life reflected in his Requiem? Certainly not. What we gather from the general tenor of Sir Frederick Leighton's address is that art may be independent of creed and of conventional codes of ethics, but that our pictures, our poetry, our music, and everything that is ours depends upon the native vigour and special organisation of our mental constitution, including the still unimpressed religious sense as well as the moral sense. Subsequent impressions, or even what is called cultivation, may slightly vary the direction of a natural bent, but will add nothing to its power. Out of his specialty, the artist is like every one else. He has his own superstitions. If they coincide with other people's, so much the better for him, pecuniarily. If he affects a superstition, the fellow-artist, at least, will find him out; for there is one indispensable moral element in art—truth. Puritanism or purism in art is invariably false. On this subject a remarkable passage of great interest to musicians as well as to painters occurs in Sir Frederick Leighton's address. Speaking of Von Overbeck's opinion that, when Raphael painted his famous Galatea in the Farnesina, the Lord had abandoned him, he says, "A further and the strangest development of this frame of mind, one with which I have myself in my youth come in contact in Germany, is that which sees in the excessive love of colour an almost culpable indulgence of the senses." Sir Frederick Leighton politely observes that these views are not likely to find favour in the country of Reynolds and Gainsborough. But unfortunately they have found too much favour; and it is only recently they have disappeared, in decorative art at least, and they still prevail in the common jargon of criticism on the orchestration of certain musical composers.

Sir Frederick Leighton appeals to music as the reductio ad absurdum of what he calls the "didactic theory," by which it is upheld that, because the moral sense is the highest attribute and distinctive appanage of man, its strengthening must therefore be man's noblest aim, and the dignity of all human achievements must be according to the degree in which this end is primarily and professedly subserved by it. This theory, he says, "involves the dethronement of an art closely akin in many ways to those we follow," and a "channel of purest emotion, an art divine, if a divine art there be—music." The dignity of music has, indeed, strange though it may seem, not remained unchallenged. Such heresies, however, may be safely left to their own foolishness. It is given to the supreme few who occupy the solitary mountain-tops of fame to be able to express, without incurring the charge of vanity, their high consciousness of the value to the world of the gifts they bestow upon it. One of these few was Beethoven, and his proud words are there to show us in what esteem he at least held the power of the art on which he has risen to immortality: "He to whom my music reveals its whole significance is lifted up." Yet what ethical proposition, asks Sir Frederick, does music convey? In what does it exhort or teach? The principal fallacy of the theory he refers to, he thinks, resides in the assumption that moral edification can attach only to direct moral teaching; or that any mode of expression appealing to the imagination and emotions can be properly exercised except in the application of its own resources, and in conveying those emotions of which it is the special vehicle.

Neither music nor painting, as he says, is a fitting vehicle for direct moral edification. An ordinary sermon will have more didactic efficacy than all the works of Angelo or Raphael, Bach or Handel. But Art has an awakening influence, an ethos of its own, a power of intensification, and a suggestiveness through association which aid those higher moods of contemplation that are as edifying in their way as direct moral teaching.

Sir Frederick Leighton's own address is in one sense so artistic, and therefore so fertile, we feel we go on condensing his words in vain, and have barely space to allude to its longest and most important division, which contains a suggestion of another interesting parallel in music. Tracing the history of the Italian school of painting to show that so far from its highest efforts being attributable to religious faith and Christian morality, they appeared contemporaneously with a dangerous reaction against the asceticism of the Church, and that the Renaissance was due rather to the accidental spread of ancient and pagan literature, Sir Frederick comes finally to the decline of art towards the close of the sixteenth century; and one of the chief causes of that decline he describes in words we will quote textually. They very aptly apply to present-day virtuosity in musical composition, which is probably a revival, or rather an historic parallel, of what occurred in musical annals at a little later period—long after the songs of chivalry had ended, and when the grand liturgies of the Church began to weary, and the art had fallen into the hands of contrapuntal experts. "Indeed," says Sir Frederick Leighton, "the causes of the downward tendency of art towards the close of the sixteenth century must be sought less in the failing of religious faith among artists than in the excessive and too exclusive faith in science. Artists had now drunk deeply of the springs of knowledge, and were intoxicated in the strength of this rich new vintage; they had investigated the wondrous mechanism of the human frame with a scientific thoroughness never until then brought to bear upon it; they had explored the science of composition and measured the expressional resources of abstract form, but they too often forgot that the province of art is to speak to the emotional sense, not to make vain exhibition of acquired knowledge, and that work which reveals in the workman no impulse warmer or higher than vanity or a thirst for display will for ever fail to move the hearts of men."

THE PROPOSED COLLEGE FOR MUSIC.

THE late royal demonstration in the provinces—that is, at the Manchester Athenæum—must be considered not simply a hopeful sign, but a certain indication that the much-talked-of scheme of founding a conservatorium in this country will be realised. Their Royal Highnesses the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Edinburgh, and the Duke of Albany, and his Serene Highness Prince Christian, have separately and collectively evinced such a keen personal interest in the question, we may take it for granted that the known loyalty of the British public will guarantee the necessary support, and that before long, in one shape or another, London will have its conservatoire. The particular shape which the institution is to assume is of vital importance. Unfortunately, on that question we are somewhat in the same position as H.R.H. the Duke of Albany when about to address the audience at Manchester on the subject of music, which he said must be felt, as its nature could not be explained. Not having before our eyes the latest revised edition of the proposed charter of the Royal College of Music to criticise, the next best thing we can do is to follow the speech made by the Duke of Albany at Manchester, and from his opinions and historical research discover what the exalted promoters of the new institution imagine to be the functions of a conservatorium. It seemed to be part of the Manchester arrangements that the Duke of Edinburgh should introduce the general subject, the Duke of Albany should explain it, and that the practical and business department should be left to

Prince Christian. We were accordingly told by Prince Christian that as long ago as July 13, 1878, a meeting was held at Marlborough House, under the presidency of the Prince of Wales, for the purpose of taking into consideration the advancement of the art of music, and establishing a college of music on a permanent and more extended basis than that of any existing institution. An endeavour was made to obtain the assent of the Royal Academy of Music and of the National Training School of Music to amalgamate, and to form together a more extended institute. The proposal was accepted by the National Training School, but after long negotiations the Royal Academy expressed a disinclination to accept. "Under these circumstances," said Prince Christian, "it became necessary to proceed independently with our plan." So that at the dawn of 1882 the whole matter is in quite a different position to what it was in 1878, when we ourselves, amongst others, expressed the opinion that the mere rolling of the two music schools into one would not further the more important end desired. The President of the proposed Royal College of Music is the Prince of Wales. The governing body consists of a council and executive committee. "The details of the charter," said Prince Christian, "would scarcely be interesting to the meeting he addressed, but they have been settled with the greatest consideration with a view to provide the best practical means for advancing music in England as an ennobling profession." Here we must leave the business department and return to the speech of the Duke of Albany, who, in a long and interesting address, endeavoured to defend the musical reputation of his country, and to show from the history of the subject that England in other times had been noted for her proficiency in music; and that if since the Revolution in the seventeenth century she had fallen behind other countries, it was not owing to the want of love of music, for the appetite of the Englishman for music was, he said, immense. Nor did his Royal Highness seem to think that, on reviewing the musical history of this country from Tye and Tallis to the operettas of Mr. Sullivan, there was any dearth of native genius. Alluding to the fact that not only was the music heard in England for the most part foreign, but that so many of the executants and leading resident musicians were foreigners, he admitted that there was something wrong, and pointed to the over-concentration and the want of diffusion of music in England. In addressing the people at Manchester, he said: "The orchestras of the metropolis and of your own city are as good as can be found anywhere. In Bristol also I am glad to hear that a beginning has been made. But what is the fact with regard to other towns? Is it not true that even immense hives of population like Leeds, Bradford, Glasgow, Birmingham, wealthy pleasure towns like Brighton, opulent and crowded places like Cheltenham or Leamington, have no resident orchestras, but are obliged to depend on the overworked musicians of London and Manchester? The result of this is that instead of music becoming a regular steady part of life, as it does here, it comes in fits and starts. Instead of regular periodical series of concerts, the places I allude to are dependent on musical festivals, which are a poor substitute for the constant presence of a good orchestra such as you have in Manchester."

We quite understand oratorical amenities, and know all about "Hallé's Concerts," and have our own opinions as to music being "a regular, steady part of life" in Manchester; but, withal, his Royal Highness has struck the pith of the whole question in reminding us of the general ignorance of the orchestra in this country. His allusion to "festivals" will be almost wounding to the musical prejudices of many. We are accustomed to pride ourselves on our festivals, on our rendering of oratorios, and on our overgrown choirs. Still, there is no doubt that the influence of festivals is not permanent; and in that respect the influence of the periodic concerts at Liverpool and Manchester and other places cannot be much different. In the course of his address, the Duke of Albany spoke of the influence of the resident orchestras maintained in former days by German princes; and he reminded his hearers that the German opera, "the great national school of the theatre to which Weber, Spohr, and Marschner added so much, and to which Wagner has now placed so mighty a cupola, has all been reared in a hundred years." We look upon this allusion to the more continuous and wider-reaching attractions of the lyric theatre as the happiest omen in the whole Manchester demonstration in favour of an English conservatorium on a grand scale. It, however, suggests some old difficulties. We have heard it whispered that, as hitherto the operatic stage has not always "declared by unambiguous symbolism, or by definite embodied example, the loftiness of virtue and the deadliness of sin," the idea of connecting the proposed Royal College of Music with the theatre has been discouraged. The Revolution of the seventeenth century, referred to by the Duke of Albany himself, still obtains in certain respects; and its moral and political vestiges are not to be lightly cast aside. But, looking strictly at the question from an artistic point of view, and even excluding the idea of the theatre, there is always a danger that in England exotics like conservatoires will, when transplanted, lose some of their vital properties. Whether it be that in this country the imagination is not a faculty common to the race in general, or that it is cramped by incessant toil or by the monotony of our social life, it is certain that, out of mechanical science, we are not only too timid to invent, we are too timid even to rob thoroughly. At the War Office or Post Office whatever we appropriate from our neighbours is taken piecemeal. If we are going to copy the Paris Conservatoire, had we not better also borrow the Department of Fine Arts in the French Ministry? It is assumed that the new College of Music, unless it is going to be a Training School or a Royal Academy, a Trinity College or a Tonic Sol-fa College over again, will not be an irresponsible or close corporation, but a national institution, State-endowed, and under the control of Parliament. To submit musical questions to a Home Secretary, as Home Secretaries go in this country, might appear a little ludicrous; still, any cabinet minister would be better than no direct representative at all of the Government. The additional value of honours or diplomas granted by a national and State-controlled institution is of great importance to the student. The Grand Prix of London or Paris is something to attain; a Grand Prix of Kensington amounts to nothing. Even Oxford and Cambridge degrees begin to lose their merit as social badges. The universities are behind the times. The State is, or is supposed to be, in advance, and is at least too widely representative to favour individual opinions, and ought not to favour sectarian.

MALE-VOICE CHOIRS.

A CONSIDERABLE amount of erroneous impression is rife as to the existence of male-voice choirs in this country; such choirs are really far more numerous than is generally supposed. There is also some vagueness in the term "male-voice choir": to the old-fashioned home-bred English amateur, a male-voice choir would signify a body of voices, having of necessity alto singers for the upper parts of the compositions sung. To the modern continental tourist amateur, newly returned home from his annual trip to the German Fatherland, the male-voice choir would be remembered as a lusty chorus of tenors and basses only: and perhaps if the tourist could divest himself of a little of the glamour which almost inevitably attaches itself to all foreign memories, he would be able to recall some faint reminiscences of not a few voices which were hard, thin, and unsympathetic, and of physiognomies strained apparently almost to apoplexy.

The old English school of glee-writing and glee-singing is still flourishing amongst us, not perhaps quite as vigorously, and certainly not as publicly, as in days gone by. Our monster halls and concert-rooms are not favourable for the public display of this class of composition; still, there are at least eight or nine clubs in London alone, where the English glee and the equally national catch are cultivated and performed. At the head of these clubs is the "Noblemen and Gentlemen's Catch Club," which, founded in 1761, is, as of old, supported by amateurs and professionals who share in the performance of compositions by Arne, Battishill, Callcott, Webbe, Horsley, and the many other deceased and living musicians who have contributed to the large store of English glees which Mendelssohn told Horsley the country ought to be proud of, not only for their special nationality but also for their beauty and fine musicianship. Dublin boasts of two male voice clubs of very high repute, and many kindred associations exist in the provinces. The clubs already named have the advantage of male altos, without which the male-voice glee cannot be efficiently and effectively rendered. Unfortunately of late years male altos have been somewhat rare, and the voice combined with musicianly skill still rarer. Those who care to know what a well-developed male-voice glee is, should study the works of the composers before named, and also the few specimens left us by Sir John Goss; in these will be found compositions of a far higher type than "Glorious Apollo" and "Breathe soft, ye winds." Of male-voice choirs of a more eclectic kind, there are half-a-dozen, perhaps more, in London, whose mission is carried out in a thorough and artistic spirit; these Societies, existing under various titles, perform English and exotic madrigals, part-songs, masses, choruses, motetts, &c., sometimes with and sometimes without accompaniment, as necessity and circumstances dictate. Other Societies exist devoted exclusively to the practice of modern German part-songs and the English imitations of them; these compositions do not demand the cultured taste or musicianship necessary for the understanding and performance of an English glee, but are attractive from their prettiness, being as a rule merely harmonised melodies. The simplicity of the vocal parts and the tunefulness of the melodies would doubtless make the practice of these compositions much more general, but for the fact that the upper voice parts are written for high tenors such as are to be found in Germany, but are not common here.

There is no lack of male-voice choirs in England, and it is questionable whether it would be desirable to disestablish all the existing private institutions, which are working in an unostentatious way, for the purpose of making a great public display on the model set for us by some of our continental neighbours. Choral music is making rapid strides all over the country, much to the gain of musical art generally; nevertheless, the practice of glee-singing in the family circle is deserving of the widest encouragement. These compositions, requiring only one performer for each part, are in this respect similar to string quartets, also eminently fitted for home use. Part-songs, madrigals, and choruses, needing more than one voice to a part, are better adapted for larger numbers than can ordinarily be associated in the home circle, and such compositions commend themselves to the notice of the various choral societies.

It must not be forgotten that the palmy days of choral singing in "Merrie England" were those of Queen Bess, when it was considered a mark of ill-birth and breeding not to be able to take part in the madrigals and choral songs which were current in society. A return to this happy condition of things would be far more desirable than the occasional public exhibition of male-voice choirs.

It is only by constantly directing public attention to any existing abuse that reform can be effected; and pioneers in the cause of progress must always feel gratified when they find their ranks recruited by earnest and able volunteers. It was with much pleasure, therefore, that we recently perused an article in the Newcastle Daily Chronicle upon our "Song Literature." For years we have drawn attention to this subject; and the plain-speaking of our contemporary fully proves that we have not underrated the effect of such nonsense as we too often find allied with our popular songs upon those persons who have a desire to spread a love for pure and healthy vocal music. "The ballad-monger," says the writer of the paper referred to, "cares little about sense, because he knows, as a rule, that the public never trouble themselves about the meaning of the verses to which the musician sets his air. He finds that singers who are ever choosing to be a daisy, or would-ing they were a bird, are just as much appreciated as if they sang rhymes with meaning in them." There is little doubt of the truth of this observation; but we should prefer rhymes that have not only meaning, but poetry in them. The true artist is inspired by the subject he has chosen to compose; and words which cannot inspire should be left to wither, and not be galvanised into a brief life by inferior musicians. We do not know the song of which the following words form a portion; but what say our musical readers to this specimen?—

I think, my little love, how sweet,
While us the soft winds waft,
To see you fill the cushioned seat
And steer my craft.

A few detached extracts from a well-known song, "Alice, where art thou?" and we finish—not for want of examples, but for want of space:—

The birds sleeping gently, sweet Lyra gleameth bright;
Her rays tinge the forest, and all seems glad to-night.

The silver rain falleth just as it falleth now
And all things slept gently—ah, Alice, where art thou?

I've sought thee by forest; I'm looking heavenward now:
O! there 'mid the starshine, Alice, I know art thou.

If "Lyra" does not mean the moon, we give it up. But, considering that the stars are also shining on this beautiful night, is it not strange that the "silver rain" should be falling?

In our November number we commented upon the circumstance of an organist for a Presbyterian Church being offered a salary of sixteen guineas a year for two attendances on Sunday, a third occasionally, and a practice once a week with the choir. A remonstrance against our remarks has been forwarded to us, curiously enough, not from those who propose such terms for these duties, but from a correspondent who tells us that "the great mistake is in having organs anywhere where a thoroughly competent organist cannot be likewise secured." As this is precisely our own argument, readers may reasonably wonder what the writer has to urge against the justice of our observations; and we therefore quote from his letter the following passage. In defence of the smallness of the salary, he says, "The majority of organists at Nonconformist churches would be amply repaid with that sum, and as a mass are dear at any price, seeing that they generally are amateurs, scores of whom would jump at such a position, even though no salary at all were offered, simply for the pleasure and practice." Precisely so; but, if amateurs are required for the office, why not advertise for them; or, still better, why not offer the post to one of the many amateurs who would "jump" at such a position, and who could no doubt be found without the expense of advertising at all? Our complaint is that, by making the vacancy known through the medium of a newspaper, without naming the salary, organists of position are entrapped into applying for particulars; and that the advertisers wish them to do so is sufficiently proved by the correspondent who wrote to us on the subject being asked if he would desire to become a "candidate." We can have no objection to the authorities of a church endeavouring to secure the services of an amateur organist at a small salary—or, indeed, "at no salary at all"—but if they parade their intention before the public they must expect to be publicly criticised.

THERE can be little doubt that the great obstacle to combining music with conversation arises from the fear of giving offence to the artists who, having been asked to perform, seem to imagine that they have a right to be heard. The correspondent of the Liverpool Daily Post, to whom we recently drew attention, frankly tells us that the majority of the audience at the Liverpool Philharmonic Concerts go there to converse with their friends; and as we know that, even in private parties where music forms a portion of the entertainment of the evening, talking is often so freely indulged in that snatches only of the compositions can be occasionally caught, it behoves those who give public or domestic concerts to consider how this difficulty is to be met. It is certain that there are very many persons who, either from a love of music or deference to the susceptibilities of those whom they ask to perform, cannot bear that their artistic exertions should be entirely unheeded; and yet they may desire to secure the attendance of people who merely wish to meet their friends and talk. The following advertisement shows that an ingenious and humane manufacturer has solved the problem: "The 'Bijou' Drawing-room Orchestra, for Weddings, Dinners, Afternoon Parties, Receptions, &c. The répertoire consists of select Morceaux de Concert, and as there are no brass instruments employed the music is subdued, and conversation is, therefore, not interfered with." Henceforth, then, there can be no reason why the pardonable pride of any artist should be wounded; a machine has no feelings, and can be toned down under the voices of the talkers. Social intercourse can flow on without fear of interruption, and invitations to evening parties may announce that "the conversation will be enlivened with music."

THE number of persons who take interest in the discussion of questions relating to music is so rapidly increasing in the present day that we are gradually accumulating a literature of the art—even young lady novel-readers occasionally laying aside their three-volume tales of thrilling interest in favour of some musical work, either original or translated. These books are, of course, duly advertised and sufficiently known to the general public to ensure their being asked for at a circulating library; but there is one annual which, we believe, has a limited sale, and indeed, we fear, has but few readers outside a very narrow circle: we allude to the "Proceedings of the Musical Association." Of course we are aware that it is printed chiefly for the perusal of the members of the Society; but any person can purchase it, and we can conscientiously assure those who do so that they will thus become possessed of a large amount of mature thought upon subjects connected with music, the result of patient and profound investigation by the most eminent artists of the day. In proof of our assertion we may mention that in the volume now before us papers are contributed by E. H. Turpin, W. H. Cummings, Dr. Stainer, A. Orlando Steed, C. A. Barry, Dr. W. H. Stone, H. C. Banister, and F. Meadows White. We regret exceedingly that space will not allow us to make extracts from these excellent essays, although indeed we should find it extremely difficult to select portions where all is so good; but if we can help to disseminate a knowledge of these papers amongst the music-loving public, we feel that we shall be doing good both to the Association and the art which it so ably represents.

THE sad news of the burning of the Ring Theatre in Vienna, on the 8th ult., and the loss of nearly 800 lives, has again called attention to the unsafe state of our theatres in the metropolis; and stringent regulations have, we understand, been enforced upon the lessees of these establishments. But the incidents of the Vienna calamity seem to prove that although precautions against fire may be provided, it is extremely probable that not one of these precautions can be made available in case of need. At the Ring Theatre, it appears, there was an iron curtain on the stage, a plentiful supply of water, and numerous doors for exit; but, unfortunately, when the fire broke out there was nobody to let down the curtain, the water could not be brought into action, and the doors were locked. Sincerely, then, do we hope that these facts will guide our authorities in legislating upon this matter in the future. We continually read announcements that a theatre can be emptied in a few minutes when it is not on fire, but the experiment has never been tried as to how long it will take when it is on fire.

WHENEVER we publish our work called "The Curiosities of Criticism," which we have had for some time in contemplation, the following extract from the notice of a recent concert will assuredly have a place. As specimen-pages, however, of forthcoming books are occasionally issued in advance, we present to our readers a few lines of the critique in question, especially as, by being the first to quote them, we may perhaps secure a kind of copyright in this unique example of modern fine writing:—

Madame Patey's vocal powers are certainly extraordinary. To immense strength of lungs she unites the most delicate, the softest, and sweetest cadences, with varying intonations reaching from the highest note of a genuine soprano, yet capable of the full reach of a contralto voice. She does not attempt to follow the modern craze for variations, until even the original song is lost. She was dressed after the style of Jenny Lynn. To realise the full delightfulness of listening to such a voice it was necessary to occupy a central position in the room, which is certainly the most favoured place for hearing, in contradistinction to the front seats. She was a perfect mistress of professional etiquette, and gave the noblest conges in response to the loud cries for encore, and the rapturous applause with which she was greeted.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

THE events at the Crystal Palace during the past month, although not of a very striking or sensational character, have by no means been without interest. It is not derogatory to the merits of Mr. Leslie to say that, after the highly spiced food of Berlioz' Symphonie Fantastique, his Symphony "Chivalry," performed on the 17th ult., appeared a very sober entertainment. The comparison suggests itself not only because the works followed upon one another in rapid succession, but also because their subjects have at least one point in common. In both the hero dies (for the fact that Berlioz' "artist" subsequently revives to deliver interminable orations in "Lélio" makes really little difference), and in both his last thought is of his beloved one, represented by a certain melody. But here the likeness ends. In Berlioz, as will be remembered, the fall of the axe interrupts the last dream of love; in Mr. Leslie's work that dream is brought to a harmonious close, not to speak of other fundamental differences in the conception and also in the power of dramatic expression between the two composers. From what we have said the ingenious reader will have guessed that Mr. Leslie's symphony has a "programme." That programme, however, is not, as in Berlioz, embodied in an elaborate plot or story; it is only indicated by the titles affixed to the entire work and to each movement separately. The collective name, as has already been said, is "Chivalry"; and the single movements are respectively named "Youth" (Allegro vivace), "Love" (Andante sostenuto), "Play" (Scherzo, allegro), "War, Death, Glory" (Finale, allegro con fuoco). The number and sequence of the movements, as will be seen, are those of the classical symphony, to the canons of which Mr. Leslie has in the main been faithful. He has, however, left himself sufficient liberty to do justice to the poetic requirements of his subject, and some of the devices of modern music are applied, not without success. The "leit-motive" or representative theme is one of these. Thus the first theme of the opening movement well indicates the heroic spirit of the youthful knight, and, with that view, reminiscences of it are reintroduced in the Andante and the last Allegro, an interconnection amongst the various portions of the work being thus established. Without entering into technical details, which would require the aid of musical illustrations, we may say that Mr. Leslie's symphony is a very creditable effort. It does not show creative originality of the highest kind, but its melodies are pleasing, and the workmanship betrays the experienced pen of an able musician. More than this, the composer has been genuinely inspired by his subject, and does not, as is too frequently the case, give his work an irrelevant title in order to disguise the absence of ideas of any kind. Mr. Leslie himself conducted his work, which earned the unanimous applause of the audience. At the same concert Miss Mary Davies gave an admirable rendering of "L'Absence," the most melodious of Berlioz's six songs, "Les Nuits d'Eté," produced at the Richter Concerts some time ago, and on that occasion noticed at length in these columns. M. Marsick, the well-known Belgian violinist, gave Mendelssohn's Concerto, in which he was less successful than in Vieuxtemps's Concerto in D minor, and some Gipsy dances by Sarasate, played by him at the previous Concert. He is a virtuoso of the first order, but his inclination leans towards French music rather than towards the German classics. The début of Miss Bartlet, "a pupil of Liszt," and a very able pianist, who played Saint-Saëns's Concerto in G minor (the 3rd ult.), also deserves brief notice. Otherwise no new works have been produced during the month. The directors, like most people who have made a mistake, strenuously adhere to their intention, announced in the prospectus for the season, of giving prominence to ballet-music, and a specimen of that description is conscientiously appended to each programme. We may pass over this little piece of harmless folly on the principle "De minimis non curat praetor."

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

HANDEL'S "Samson" was produced by the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society on Thursday, the 15th ult., having been postponed from the day previous on account of the anniversary of the Prince Consort's death. A fairly large audience attended, some of whom were attracted, perhaps, by the fact that the oratorio was new to the place of its performance, and others in consequence of the execution of Handel's music associated with "additional accompaniments" by Mr. Ebenezer Prout. It is of small use for some of us to believe that to lay hands upon a great composer's work for the purpose of changing it in the smallest degree is equivalent to the committal of an act of sacrilege. We may hold to our conviction as a matter of principle, but we are almost bound to ignore it as a matter of expediency. Public taste and common procedure are dead against us; and the issue is, just now at any rate, whether certain masterpieces shall be put upon the shelf, or be performed with the alterations necessary to make them palatable. Truly, we have here a choice of evils so nicely balanced that the decision turns upon special questions—such as, for example, the exact nature of the changes made. Some manipulators of Handel maul the old master outrageously, and common decency urges us to say: "Better put his works aside than give them into such hands." Others, again, treat them with reverence; study his method with care; animate themselves with his spirit, and write, not it may be what pleases them personally, but what, according to their best judgment, the master would have written. Men of this stamp minimise the evil, and such are Robert Franz in Germany and Ebenezer Prout in England. As regards Mr. Prout, we should be almost prepared to accept from him "additional accompaniments" to Handel without taking the trouble to look at them. He certainly cannot be charged with wanting reverence, or with a passion for "effect" at any cost; neither can it be said of him that his knowledge of the master, or of the master's period, is superficial. With these qualifications, and with his antecedents, Mr. Prout is eminently a safe man for such work as he has recently done upon "Samson." To the fact just stated that work bears ample testimony. Judging from the performance on the 15th, the passages are very few indeed to which the purist can take exception. The score is enriched without obtrusiveness, and where distinct figures are employed they are, as a rule, born of Handel's own thought, and such as he might consistently accept. We do not know that, under the circumstances, it is possible to award higher praise.

The general performance of "Samson" under Mr. Barnby's direction reflected credit upon all concerned. As usual, the chorus sung with spirit and effect; more especially in such striking numbers as "Fixed in His everlasting seat," "Then round about the starry throne," and "Hear, Jacob's God." But generally speaking there was room for little fault-finding, nor did the result as a whole do other than magnify the already great repute of the Albert Hall chorus. The important solos were intrusted to artists generally capable of doing them justice. Madame Sherrington's voice was, it is true, put to a severe test in "Let the bright seraphim," but the experienced and skilful vocalist appeared in all she did. Of Madame Patey in the contralto part it is quite needless to speak, nor is there necessity to enlarge upon the way in which Mr. Maas rendered "Total eclipse." For the rest, Mr. Barrington Foote sang carefully and well in "How willing my paternal love," and Mr. King was loudly applauded after a vigorous delivery of "Honour and arms." Mr. Barnby conducted with his accustomed mastery of detail.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY.

At the second Concert of the Jubilee season, on the 6th ult., this Society did itself credit, and a great English musician honour, by a performance of Professor Macfarren's first oratorio, "St. John the Baptist." If the object was, as we may suppose, to represent native talent, a better choice could hardly have been made, although we are quite prepared to go some way with those who contend that the Society should, long ere this, have recognised the existence of Sterndale Bennett's sacred masterpiece, "The Woman of Samaria." Grateful though the musical public may be for an occasional hearing of Professor Macfarren's work, it is open to question whether the Society has done its duty to English art while the oratorio of his friend and predecessor remains neglected. The performance attracted a large gathering of amateurs, and made a distinct impression on two different accounts. In the first place it was a performance of high excellence—one of the best ever given under the Society's auspices. This may be in part explained by reference to unusually careful rehearsal. Sir Michael Costa, we believe, took great interest in the task of preparation, superintending that of the chorus in person, and leaving nothing undone that the orchestra could be made to do. As a result, Professor Macfarren's music came forth sharp and clear of outline, while its colour and shading completed a vivid and striking picture. It is upon such performances that the Sacred Harmonic Society must rely for a renewed lease of life, remembering Danton's words, "L'audace, encore l'audace, et toujours l'audace," but substituting for audacity hard work. We must heartily praise the singing of the chorus, even where most was exacted. Not only was the quality of tone good, not only were the points, with one exception, taken up precisely, but a successful effort at rendering the passages with expression called forth admiring notice. This was particularly observable in the dramatic scene of Herod's banquet, where the chorus played their part with intelligence beyond common. The solo vocalists all proved efficient, as may be imagined when we state that three of them were Madame Patey, Mr. Lloyd, and Mr. Santley, and that these three "created" their respective parts at the Bristol Festival of 1873, when the oratorio was first produced. The fourth, Miss Mary Davies, sang the music of the Daughter of Herodias for, we believe, the first time, and more than justified the decision which entrusted it to her. Miss Davies, indeed, excited genuine enthusiasm by her delivery of the florid air "I rejoice in my youth," executing every passage with neatness, fluency, and appropriate spirit. The services of Madame Patey as the Narrator were invaluable, our favourite contralto being an adept in recitative, while the high excellence of Mr. Lloyd and Mr. Santley needs no assertion. Mr. Santley was a little out of voice, but nothing could exceed the propriety and skill with which he gave the music of the Forerunner. At the close of the performance there were loud cheers for Sir M. Costa and his followers, together with calls for the composer, who bowed from the height of the upper gallery, where he had listened to his work in company with a large number of visitors from one of the asylums for the blind. Upon the second reason for the gratification of the audience we need not dilate, because the high merit of "St. John the Baptist" is well known and acknowledged. Closer acquaintance only confirms an impression that in this oratorio we have an abiding thing—a lasting monument of sacred art in the land of oratorio par excellence.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

THREE evening performances only of this excellent institution have to be noticed in our present number, the first of which took place on November 28, too late to be included in our last issue.

On the occasion just referred to Miss Agnes Zimmermann was again, as on the previous Monday, the pianist, in the room of Mdle. Janotha, who was indisposed. Miss Zimmermann's high artistic attainments and exceptional qualifications for the interpretation of classical music are too well known to stand in need of special recognition on our part; but we may be permitted to express our regret that her talents are not more frequently displayed at an institution where they meet with such hearty and intelligent appreciation. The latter was again proved by the repeated recalls which followed the lady's rendering of Chopin's Ballade in A flat—her solo performance on the evening in question—and to which she finally responded by adding a Mazurka by the same composer. Miss Zimmermann also shared the honours of a well-deserved tribute of applause with Signor Piatti in the interpretation of Mendelssohn's Sonata for pianoforte and violoncello in B flat (Op. 45), the first, in point of time, written by the composer for this combination of instruments. The pièce de résistance, both as regards artistic importance and length, was Beethoven's septet for string and wind instruments, a masterpiece which, although visited with disparaging remarks on the part of its composer during his later career, has attained a just popularity at these Concerts, the present being the thirty-fifth performance. The executants were MM. Hollander, Zerbini, Clinton, Wendland, Wotton, Reynolds, and Piatti. Miss Henrietta Beebe contributed vocal solos by Handel and Taubert, accompanied by Mr. Zerbini, to the satisfaction of the audience.

The first Concert of the past month introduced a novelty in the first performance of a Pianoforte Quartet from the pen of Mr. A. C. Mackenzie, dedicated to Mr. Charles Hallé. Although in the order of composition the quartet now under notice has probably preceded those more ambitious productions, viz., an orchestral Scottish Rhapsody entitled "Burns," and a Cantata, "The Bride," by which this composer has recently become favourably known to English audiences, there can be no doubt that this work would of itself have been sufficient to attract the notice of musicians and amateurs, being constructed and elaborated in a thoroughly musicianlike manner, and introducing characteristic elements of the composer's Scotch nationality which form a novel and welcome feature in chamber music. The latter is especially noticeable in the Andante with variations (in C minor) constructed upon a simple but graceful and melodious theme; the entire work consisting of a somewhat lengthy and diffuse Allegro in E flat, a very sprightly Scherzo in G major, the Andante already referred to, and a well-sustained Allegro vivace, in the opening key, which includes some very effective fugal elaboration, and worthily concludes an undoubtedly remarkable work, which, to judge by the cordial reception it met with on the part of the audience, will be added to the permanent répertoire of the Popular Concerts. Mr. Charles Hallé was associated with MM. Straus, Hollander, and Piatti, in its execution. A Prelude and Fugue by Mozart, and an Allegro from an unfinished work by Schubert, both for string quartet, were likewise introduced for the first time on this occasion. Mr. Hallé's solo piece was Schubert's Fantasia Sonata in G major (Op. 78), which he played with his accustomed lucidity and excellent taste. Beethoven's variations on the once popular Viennese air "Ich bin der Schneider Kakadu," rendered con amore by MM. Hallé, Straus, and Piatti, concluded a highly interesting Concert. Mr. Lloyd was the vocalist, and, being in capital voice, sang to perfection Mendelssohn's lied "The Garland," and Clay's "I'll sing thee songs of Araby," to the able accompaniment of Mr. Zerbini.

Schubert's Ottet for string and wind instruments opened the second and last evening Concert of the month (12th ult.), the executants being MM. Hollander, Ries, Zerbini, Lazarus, Wendland, Wotton, Reynolds, and Piatti. This remarkable work—written in the year 1824, but not made generally known until many years after the composer's death—exhibits all the peculiar charms of Schubert's artistic individuality, and would, had he produced nothing else, have alone sufficed to secure him the position he justly holds in the estimation of all amateurs as one of the most worthy followers in the footsteps of the great Beethoven. A somewhat dreamy idealism, never-failing imaginative powers, combined with a certain want of artistic self-control which produces what Schumann aptly describes as "heavenly lengths"—the general characteristics of Schubert's chamber-music—are likewise to be found in a most marked degree in the work we speak of. Additional interest was lent to the present performance by the fact of two movements—an Andante with variations and a Minuet—appertaining to the complete work (but which, owing to a difficulty in procuring the full score, had to be omitted on fifteen previous occasions) having been now included. In this its complete form the rendering of the Ottet occupied the space of an hour and a quarter, but there was no sign whatever of flagging attention on the part of the audience, who thus testified to their entire agreement with the above dictum of Schumann. A Nocturne in C sharp minor and Polonaise in C minor, by Chopin, were played in her best style by Mdle. Janotha, who is never happier than when she interprets the pathetic Polish tone-poet; and elicited the accustomed encore, to which the gifted artist responded by substituting another piece by the same composer. The vocalist of the evening was Miss Carlotta Elliot, whose brilliant and sympathetic voice and good training rendered her delivery of Moscheles' somewhat laboured "Frühlingslied," Mendelssohn's "Zuleika," and Macfarren's "Pack, clouds, away" (the latter ably seconded by Mr. Lazarus in the clarinet obbligato) particularly successful. Mozart's genial Pianoforte Trio in E major (No. 6) capably played by Mdle. Janotha, MM. Hollander and Piatti, brought the concert to a most satisfactory conclusion. Miss Elliot's vocal solos, we should add, were skillfully accompanied on the pianoforte by Mr. Deacon.

At the last of the Saturday Afternoon Concerts the programme was rendered special by its instrumental portion consisting exclusively of works by Beethoven: viz., the Quartet in C major (Op. 59)—the third of the famous set of three dedicated to Count Rasoumowski—the Pianoforte Trio in B flat minor (Op. 97), and the Sonata in C sharp minor, known as "The Moonlight." The estimation in which these sublime masterpieces in the sphere of abstract music are held at this institution may be inferred from the fact that they were performed here on the present occasion for the twenty-fourth, the twenty-ninth, and the eighteenth time respectively. A mere record of these significant figures becomes, therefore, a sufficient comment; and all we have to add is, that the works referred to were each most worthily rendered, the executants in the Quartet being MM. Hollander, Ries, Zerbini, and Piatti, the first and last-mentioned artists co-operating with Mdle. Janotha in the performance of the Trio, and the lady playing the Sonata. Mr. Santley finely declaimed Sullivan's "Thou'rt passing hence" and Gounod's charming chanson arabe "Medjé," to which he added Hatton's "To Anthea" in response to several recalls.

These Concerts will be resumed on the first Monday evening and Saturday afternoon of the present month.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

AN Orchestral Concert was given by the students of this Institution at St. James's Hall on the 15th ult., before a large audience. A "Lento maestoso" and "Presto" from a MS. Symphony by Mr. R. B. Addison, and a Psalm by Mr. G. J. Bennett (Balfé scholar), effectively displayed the talents of the pupils in composition, the latter being in every respect a most meritorious composition for so young a writer. In memory of the late Arthur Herbert Jackson—one of the most promising students of the Academy—a Capriccio from a MS. Suite was also included in the programme. The pianists were unusually good: Miss Amy Hare in a Movement from Beethoven's Concerto in G, Mr. Alfred Izard in the "Allegro Moderato" from Sterndale Bennett's Concerto in C minor, and Miss Cantelo in Walter Macfarren's Concertstück in E, showing both artistic feeling and the result of careful training. A creditable performance of the first movement of Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto, by Mr. Bent, also deserves mention. The solo vocalists were Miss Kate Hardy, Miss Ambler, Miss Hipwell, Miss Law, and Mr. Pounds, all of whom were warmly received, the chief honours, however, being gained by Miss Hardy, who gave the scena from the first act of "Fidelio" with much dramatic power. Mendelssohn's Psalm "Not unto us" (the solo parts well sung by Miss Beere, Mr. Dunman, and Mr. Lucas Williams) commenced the Concert, which was steadily conducted by Mr. William Shakespeare.

MR. GEAUSSENT'S CHOIR.

WHEN the Leslie choir was dispersed in consequence of the retirement of its chief, it was felt that a branch of musical art peculiarly English had suffered a blow from which it would not quickly recover. Other Conductors might arise to occupy the abandoned position, but the most talented leader could not at once secure that perfection of ensemble which gave such peculiar charm to the performances under Mr. Leslie's bâton. This, like the growth of a forest or the aroma of a choice wine, is a matter in which time has a distinct part to perform. Still, the appearance of a musician willing and apparently able to take up the work so unfortunately laid aside is a circumstance on which the public may congratulate itself. The performances of the South London Choral Association last season showed the results of careful training, but something was left to desire in the quality of the programmes. In this respect the concert given by Mr. George F. Geaussen on the 1st ult., at St. James's Hall, was worthy of much praise. Being justly apprehensive that the part-music would not be sufficiently attractive in itself to fill the room, he engaged the services of some of the best vocalists and instrumentalists obtainable. The perfect technique of Mr. Carrodus was displayed in Bach's Chaconne for violin alone, and in Ernst's lengthy and not particularly interesting Fantasia on "Otello"; and Mdle. Janotha charmed her hearers with a masterly interpretation of Chopin's Polonaise in F sharp minor and other selections. The vocal efforts of Miss Clara Samuel, Madame Patey, and Mr. Maas were also loudly and deservedly applauded. But, of course, the performances of the newly formed choir supplied the raison d'être and the most interesting feature of the concert. Mr. Geaussen is not altogether a novice at his work, as the Blackheath Musical Society of 230 members was carried on under his auspices from 1879 until its recent dissolution. The present body consists of nearly 200 members, and Mr. Geaussen has been exceedingly fortunate in his selection of voices. So far as regards individual and collective ability, the new organisation is capable of accomplishing anything in reason; and it will be for the Conductor to prove his qualifications for the direction of such an able force. It may be freely admitted that the impression created on this first occasion was wholly favourable to Mr. Geaussen's claims as a leader. The programme was by no means unambitious, as it included Bach's fine motett "Blessing, glory, wisdom, and thanks," Spohr's melodious anthem "How lovely are thy dwellings fair," and a capital selection of part-songs by Smart and Leslie. The singing on the whole was admirable, both for precision and attention to the various marks of expression. Slight imperfections were noticeable at times, but only such as may be considered inevitable under the circumstances; and doubtless a further stride towards perfection will be made before February 21, the date fixed for the next Concert.

ROYAL NORMAL COLLEGE AND ACADEMY OF MUSIC FOR THE BLIND.

THE annual Christmas-Tree Festival of this excellent institution was held on the afternoon of the 10th ult. in the spacious music-room attached to the College at Upper Norwood—a site purposely chosen on account of its proximity to the Crystal Palace, the musical atmosphere of which, as was justly thought, has proved highly advantageous to the students, some of whom are regularly to be seen at the concerts there. The specialty attaching to the occasion was a stage performance of Mendelssohn's Operetta "Son and Stranger." With the exception of Mr. W. H. Cummings (Hermann) and Mr. G. M. Campbell (The Mayor), all the principal parts were filled by totally blind persons, viz., Miss M. Reece (Ursula), Miss A. Campbell (Lisbeth), Mr. J. West (Kauz), and Mr. W. Tinsley (Martin); most, if not all, of the chorus (villagers, &c.), as well as the orchestra (represented by a succession of players on the pianoforte), being also actually blind. The performance, which, both musically and dramatically, was of a highly spirited and refined character, and went without a hitch, must have appeared little short of miraculous to those previously unacquainted with the capabilities of the blind. According to his experience, however, Mr. F. J. Campbell, the energetic Principal of the College (himself blind)—who last year, it will be remembered, astonished the world by making the ascent of Mont Blanc with no more ado than any ordinary tourist—maintains that after proper training the blind are fully able to hold their own in most things against sighted persons, and would therefore probably assert that little or no risk was incurred on the present occasion. At all events, this is what the result seemed to prove. For the excellence of the singing, declamation, and stage arrangements, credit is especially due to Mr. W. H. Cummings, Professor of Singing to the College, aided doubtless by the Principal, while that of the pianoforte-playing is due to Mr.

Frits Hartvigson. At the commencement of the entertainment, which was graced by the presence of H.R.H. Princess Frederica, accompanied by her husband, Baron von Pawel Rammingen, K.C.B., the Principal addressed the audience, and gratefully acknowledged the receipt of a donation from Dr. Armitage of £1,000 towards the building debt on the College, which has still room for many more pupils, who cannot be received owing to want of means. The best proof of its success up to this time is afforded by the fact that more than eighty per cent. of the pupils who have passed through a complete course of training are now entirely self-supporting. At the conclusion of the performance the Princess, who touchingly alluded to the blindness of her father, addressed a few kindly words of congratulation and encouragement to the students.

BRIGHTON AQUARIUM CONCERTS.

THE seventh of these Concerts, given on November 26, included in its programme Wagner's "Rienzi" Overture, Raff's Festmarsch, and Beethoven's Symphony in A, of which an excellent rendering was given. Miss Agnes Zimmermann pleased the audience very much by her performance of Rubinstein's Concerto in G, and Mr. Cummings obtained the only encore hitherto given to a vocalist at these concerts by his singing of Mr. Corder's Tennyson song, "O sun, that wak'nest."

The eighth Concert, besides presenting the Ballet music of Gounod's "Faust" and Beethoven's Eighth Symphony, brought forward a novelty in the shape of a piece entitled "Idyl for Orchestra—Evening by the Seashore," the work of the Conductor, Mr. F. Corder. It was very favourably received, and—despite the fact that it is written throughout in 5-4 time—well played, a long and difficult horn solo especially meriting commendation. For the rest, Mr. Coenen's performance of Litolff's extremely arduous "Dutch" Concerto for the pianoforte must be mentioned as a veritable tour de force. The vocalist was Madame Antoinette Sterling.

The last Concert (the 10th ult.) opened, somewhat ambitiously, with Beethoven's "Leonora" Overture, which, though played with great spirit, necessarily suffered from the weakness of the strings. Some songs followed, Miss M. Burton's rendering of "There is a green hill," and Mr. Guy's delivery of two exquisite lyrics by Liszt especially calling for praise. Then came the "tug of war," in the shape of the first performance of the Choral Symphony ever given in this part of England. To the credit of the Brightonians a large audience was attracted, and the fascination of the work kept them in their places to the last note. The performance may be described on the whole as excellent, the effect of a long preparation being obvious. It is no blame to the chorus (the Brighton Sacred Harmonic Society) that they were greatly overweighted by their share of the colossal task. They sang all the notes, however, and sang them correctly. The soloists acquitted themselves very well indeed. At the conclusion of this really creditable performance the Conductor received an enthusiastic double recall.

The list of works performed during the series was printed in the analytical programme (written by Mr. Corder), and consists of thirty-six important classical and modern compositions.

We are happy to hear that the pecuniary result of the enterprise has been so far favourable as to warrant a belief that the concerts are now established on a permanent basis.

MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

AT Mr. Hallé's Concert on November 24 the orchestral selection consisted of Beethoven's Pastoral Symphony, Berlioz' fine "Waverley" Overture, Wagner's "Siegfried Idyl" in E, and the Coronation March from "Le Prophète." Mr. Hallé played with infinite grace and neatness the Menuetto and Gavotte from Raff's Suite in E flat, and Brahms's Hungarian Dances, Nos. 4, 6, and 7. Miss Carlotta Elliot, who has a good soprano voice and most promising style, was the vocalist. Her selection was somewhat too ambitious, including as it did "Al desio di chi t'adora" from "Le Nozze de Figaro," and "Ah, come rapida fuggi," from Meyerbeer's "Il Crociato in Egitto";

Miss Elliot was more successful in Lieder by Eckert and Rubinstein.—The programme on the 1st ult. comprised Raff's Symphony "Im Walde," performed for the first time here, the Overtures to "The Ruins of Athens," by Beethoven, "The Siren," by Auber, and the Ballad and Air Slave with variations from Delibes's Ballet "Coppelia," repeated by desire. Mr. Hallé played Mozart's Concerto No. 5, in C, in his best manner, and Miss Orridge and Mr. F. King contributed several songs, of which Berlioz's "The Spectre of the Rose," sung by the former, deserves special mention.—Berlioz's "Childhood of Christ," produced in England by Mr. Hallé last season, was given on the 8th ult. The vocalists were Miss and Mr. Santley, Mr. Edward Lloyd, and Mr. Hilton, all of whom did ample justice to the difficult and occasionally ungrateful music. The choruses were exceedingly well rendered, those for the unseen angels being especially effective. On the 15th ult. Mendelssohn's Italian Symphony, Beethoven's Festival Overture, Weber's Overture to "Oberon," and Wagner's March from "Tannhäuser," were all familiar items. The only novelty in the programme was the Aria per gli Attleti, Chaconne, and Gavotte from Gluck's "Paride ed Elena." The Gavotte has been familiarised through the medium of a pianoforte transcription; the other numbers, though probably unknown to the majority of musicians, are however not less interesting, being remarkable for the melodic beauty and rhythmical nature of their subjects, not less than the very happy and elaborate instrumentation. Mr. Hallé played Beethoven's Sonata in A flat, Op. 26, and Mdlle. Louise Pyk sang Mozart's "Non mi dir," "Casta Diva" from "Norma," and songs by Brahms and Moore.—Two performances of the "Messiah" were given under Mr. Hallé's direction on the 22nd and 23rd ult. The singers on the former date were Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Madame Patey, Mr. Edward Lloyd, and Mr. Santley; and on the latter the only change in the quartet was the substitution of Miss Orridge for Madame Patey.

At the Gentlemen's Concert on November 28 the instrumental numbers were Beethoven's Eighth Symphony, the introduction to the third act, Dance of Apprentices, Procession and Homage to Hans Sachs from "Die Meistersinger," and Gounod's Pageant March from "La Reine de Saba." The performance of the Symphony was somewhat lacking in the finish and precision usually characteristic of the orchestra. Mdlle. Janotha gave a performance of Schumann's Pianoforte Concerto in A minor, which for perfection of technique and intellectual grasp has probably rarely been surpassed. She also played in admirable style Mendelssohn's Andante and Rondo Capriccioso in E, and the same master's "Lied ohne Worte," Book 6, No. 4. Miss Elliot and Mr. Oswald were the vocalists, and the former was again very successful. A novelty in her selection was the fine air "Suspicious terrors vanish," from "Guistino," one of the neglected thirty-nine Italian Operas of Handel.—At the Classical Chamber Concert on the 14th ult., Madame Norman-Néruda and Herr Straus, who had been successively announced, but were unable to appear in consequence of severe domestic affliction, were replaced by Herr Hollander. This gentleman, Mr. Speelman, Herr Otto Bernhardt, and Signor Piatti gave a good, though not exceptionally fine, performance of Beethoven's string Quartet in B flat, Op. 18, No. 6; and with Mr. Hallé played Rheinberger's Quintet in C, Op. 114; the latter work was exceedingly well rendered. Mr. Hallé and Signor Piatti gave a phenomenally fine reading of Mendelssohn's sonata for piano and violoncello in D, Op. 58, and Herr Hollander played Vieuxtemps's "Rêverie" and a Spanish Dance by Sarasate. Mrs. Alfred Caldicott was the vocalist.

At the Memorial Hall Concert, on the 12th ult., Quartets by Schumann, in A minor, Op. 41, No. 1; Beethoven, in C minor, No. 4, and Mendelssohn, in E flat, No. 1, were very well rendered by Messrs. Risegari, Speelman, Bernhardt and Vieuxtemps.

At Mr. De Jong's Concert, on the 3rd ult., Miss Agnes Ross, Miss Hope Glenn, Mr. C. Abercrombie (who replaced Mr. Lloyd at short notice), and Signor Foli were the vocalists. The orchestral numbers included Reissiger's fine Overture "Die Felsenmühle," a work which deserves to be more generally known. The "Messiah" was given under Mr. De Jong's direction on the 17th ult.: vocalists, Miss Clara Samuël, Madame Patey, Mr. Maas, and Signor Foli; organist, Mr. James Lowe.

On the 12th ult. a Soirée was held in the Free Trade Hall under the auspices of the directors of the Manchester Athenæum, at which the Duke of Edinburgh, the Duke of Albany, and Prince Christian, advocated the establishment of training schools for music to be supported out of public funds. The Athenæum Musical Society gave sundry glees and part-songs in the course of the evening, and Mr. C. H. Fogg played a selection of pieces on the organ.

MUSIC IN LEIPZIG.

Leipzig, December 12.

SINCE the date of my last letter Leipzig has been occupied by a festival of more than local or even national interest. On the 25th of November, the directors of the Gewandhaus Concerts celebrated the centenary of their famous institution. To those who know anything of the conditions of musical life in Germany in the last century—as it is pictured, for instance, in the life of Bach—it will not be strange that the origin of these concerts should be found in a little amateur club meeting at a public-house. Three years after Bach's death, in these lowly surroundings, this "Grand Concert," as it was from the first distinguished, began its career. For eighteen years it continued to gain in popularity until one room and then another became too small for it. Finally, in 1781, a concert-room was built at the top of the old Armoury of the town, at an earlier period the hall of the drapers' guild, whence it bears its name.

I have not space to notice the many points of interest in the history of the Gewandhaus, the steps by which the amateur element was finally excluded, the introduction of rehearsals, the way the first violin used to conduct in all purely orchestral pieces, or the huge dimensions of the early programmes. I may be allowed to refer those who care to follow the career of the great institution to two excellent articles by Hermann Kretzschmar in the current numbers of the Gartenlaube (Nos. 47-48), where the new life infused into the Gewandhaus in the days of Mendelssohn—he was Capellmeister, with a short interval of absence, from 1835 to 1847—is fully described.

The centenary was signalled by a representative Concert. Herr Reinecke, who received that day a new decoration from the King of Saxony, opened the proceedings with a "Fest-Ouverture" written for the occasion. A recited Prologue followed; then a Symphony of Haydn, and then Mozart's Concerto for violin and viola, in which Dr. Joachim and Herr Engelbert Röntgen took part. Beethoven's "Coriolanus" Overture, Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto, and Schumann's Symphony in D minor made up the rest of this colossal programme, the length of which seemed intended as a reminiscence of the ancient custom of the hall. It will at once be seen that Herr Joachim made the special feature of the evening; nor can we fail to note the graceful spirit which suggested his performance of the Concerto of the great Leipzig master who brought him, while still a boy, before the audience of the Gewandhaus.

On the following day he presided over the second of the series of Chamber-music Concerts, which take place each winter in the Gewandhaus. The programme consisted solely of three quartets: Beethoven's in C sharp minor, the others by Cherubini and Schumann. Such an arrangement offers an exceptional opportunity for the enjoyment of the most finished of musical creations; but, in the present instance, wonderful as was Herr Joachim's own performance, it was plain that the support given him by even his own colleagues from Berlin was far inferior to that which he receives from the maturer co-operation of Piatti, Straus, and Ries, as we are accustomed to hear them in London. The Berlin musicians were, in fact, too eager to demonstrate their individual powers—were too self-assertive to allow that equal balance among themselves, united with loyal submissiveness to their leader, which is essential to the perfect rendering of a string quartet. Precisely the same fault was observable in the third Chamber-music Concert, on the 10th instant, in which Herren Reinecke, Röntgen, and Julius Klengel took the chief parts.

A FOUR-PART SONG.

Words by FRANCES BROOKE.

Music by E. A. SYDENHAM.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 &amp; 81, Queen Street (E.C.)

Andante non troppo.

SOPRANO. p When the ro - sy morn ap - pear - ing Paints with gold the ALTO. p When the ro - sy morn ap - pear - ing Paints with gold the TENOR. p When the ro - sy morn ap - pear - ing Paints with gold the

BASS. p When the ro - sy morn ap - pear - ing Paints with gold the PIANO. p Andante non troppo.

cres. ver - dant lawn, Bees on banks of thyme dis - port - ing, p Sip the

cres. ver - dant lawn, Bees on banks of thyme dis - port - ing, p Sip the

cres. ver - dant lawn, Bees on banks of thyme dis - port - ing, p Sip the

cres. ver - dant lawn, Bees on banks of thyme dis - port - ing, p Sip the

cres. p

sweets, and hail the dawn. mf War - bling birds, . .

sweets, and hail the dawn. mf War - bling birds, the day pro - claim - ing, sweets, and hail the dawn. mf War - bling birds, the day pro - claim - ing, sweets, and hail the dawn. mf War - bling birds, the day pro - claim - ing,

mf

Car - ol sweet the live - ly strain; They for - sake their leaf - y

Car - ol sweet the live - ly strain; They for - sake their leaf - y

Car - ol sweet the live - ly strain; They for - sake their leaf - y

Car - ol sweet the live - ly strain; They for - sake their leaf - y

dwell - ing, To se - cure the gold - en grain, They for - sake their dwell - ing, To se - cure the gold - en grain, They for - sake their dwell - ing, To se - cure the gold - en grain, They for - sake their dwell - ing, To se - cure the gold - en grain, They for - sake their dwell - ing, To se - cure the gold - en grain, They for - sake their dwell - ing, To se - cure the gold - en grain, They for - sake their leaf - y dwell - ing, To se - cure the gold - en grain.

leaf - y dwell - ing, To se - cure the gold - en grain.

leaf - y dwell - ing, To se - cure the gold - en grain.

leaf - y dwell - ing, To se - cure the gold - en grain.

See, con - tent, the hum - ble glean - er Take the scat - ter'd

See, con - tent, the hum - ble glean - er Take the scat - ter'd

See, con - tent, the hum - ble glean - er Take the scat - ter'd

See, con - tent, the hum - ble glean - er Take the scat - ter'd

p ears that fall! Na - ture all her chil - dren view - ing, Kind - ly

cres. p

ears that fall! Na - ture all her chil - dren view - ing, Kind - ly

cres. p

ears that fall! Na - ture all her chil - dren view - ing, Kind - ly

cres. p

ears that fall! Na - ture all her chil - dren view - ing, Kind - ly

cres. p

boun - teous, cares for all.

rall.

boun - teous, cares for all.

rall.

boun - teous, cares for all.

rall.

boun - teous, kind - ly boun - teous, cares for all.

rall.

A Folio Edition of this Part-Song is also published by Novello, Ewer and Co., price 6d.

MADRIGAL FOR FIVE VOICES.

Composed by THOMAS WEELES (1608).

1st SOPRANO. p cres.
To short - en Win - ter's sad - ness, See where the nymphs with 2nd SOPRANO. p cres.

To short - en Win - ter's sad - ness, See where the nymphs with

ALTO. p cres.
To short - en Win - ter's sad - ness, See where the nymphs with

TENOR. p cres.
To short - en Win - ter's sad - ness, See where the nymphs with

BASS. p cres.
To short - en Win - ter's sad - ness, See where the nymphs with

PIANO. p cres.

glad - ness, Fa la la la la

glad - ness, Fa la la la la glad - ness, Fa la la, fa la la la la la la, glad - ness, Fa la, fa la la la la la, fa la la la la glad - ness, Fa la la la la la, fa la la la, fa la la la

f

First system of the musical score. It consists of five staves. The top four staves are vocal parts (Soprano, Alto, Tenor, and Bass) and the bottom staff is the piano accompaniment. The music is in 4/4 time. The vocal parts begin with a p (piano) dynamic and end with a f (forte) dynamic. The lyrics are: la la la la la, fa la.

Second system of the musical score. It consists of five staves. The top four staves are vocal parts and the bottom staff is the piano accompaniment. The music is in 4/4 time. The vocal parts begin with a p (piano) dynamic and end with a p (piano) dynamic. The lyrics are: la, fa la la la la la, To la, Dis - . . . fa la la la, To la, Dis - . . . fa la la la la, fa la la la, To la, Dis - . . . fa la la la la, fa la la la, To la, Dis - . . . la, fa la la la, To la, Dis - . . .

- guis - ed all are com - ing, Right wan-ton-ly a mumming, f Fa la la la la la la
 - guis - ed all are com - ing, Right wan-ton-ly a mumming, f Fa la la la la la la
 - guis - ed all are com - ing, Right wan-ton-ly a mumming, f Fa la la la la la la
 - guis - ed all are com - ing, Right wan-ton-ly a mumming, f Fa la la la la la la
 - guis - ed all are com - ing, Right wan-ton-ly a mumming, f Fa la la la la la la la la la la la la la la la la la la la la, p fa la la, Dis - la.

 la la la la la la la la la la, p fa la la, Dis - la.
 la la la la la la la la la la, p fa la la, Dis - la.
 la la la la la la la la la la, p fa la la, Dis - la.
 la la la la la la la la la la, p fa la la, Dis - la.

A Folio Edition of this Madrigal is also published by Novello, Ewer and Co., price 9d.

Herr Röntgen, the respected first violin of the Gewandhaus, is in that capacity unrivalled; in chamber music, however, he easily allows himself to be overpowered by other instruments. On the other hand, even Herr Reinecke did not restrain his powerful command of the piano so as to allow the other instruments their due share in a work of such distributed beauty as Schumann's E flat Quintet, and his fortissimo was much more than a match for the violoncello in Mendelssohn's D major violoncello Sonata.

The symphonies produced at the Gewandhaus on the 1st and 8th inst. were worthy to begin the second century of the hall, and one can hardly imagine it possible that Beethoven's Fourth Symphony and Schubert's greatest work, that in C major, could be in any respect better performed. At the former Concert Mr. Willem Kes, of Amsterdam, was received as a welcome accession to the ranks of violinists; at the latter appeared Mr. Franz Rummel, who has now settled at Berlin. High praise as these two artists deserve, it must be decidedly said that neither shows the signal promise which some critics have been disposed to see in their treatment of the violin and the piano. As regards the works they played, Mr. Kes's Concerto was vigorous, but conventional and often commonplace. Mr. Rummel, curiously enough, did not think it worth while to add to the répertoire by which he has been already known at Berlin, and which the readers of THE MUSICAL TIMES may find in the current number.

A word, in conclusion, must be given to the first Concert of the Bach-Verein, an association whereby Herr Heinrich von Herzogenberg, an able musician, resident in Leipzig, endeavours, as a labour of love, to promote the just appreciation of Bach; for Bach, though immensely popular, as the crowds at the Saturday motett-singing show, has somehow retreated from the mental horizon of professed musicians—a singular contrast to the condition of opinion in England; and there is, therefore, all the more need of really good performances of his works. The Verein is similarly constituted to the Bach Choir in London, in so far as it admits only cultivated voices. The Concert yesterday in the Thomaskirche was, with the exception of a few blemishes, entirely satisfactory. It comprised the opening chorus of "Herr Christ, der ein'ge Gottes-Sohn," a cantata little known, but not one of the least striking; the chorus has a genial roundness which is very attractive—and the two great cantatas, "Die Himmel erzählen die Ehre Gottes" and "Ich hatte viel Bekümmerniss." The latter is well known and prized in England; the former takes a high place among Bach's maturest works; it is nobly conceived, and abounds with the most various beauty, of a kind and variety which is always astonishing one in Bach, all the more because it is universally present in him. The Gewandhaus orchestra gave the support of its expert accompaniments, and the solo singers counted one voice—a soprano—of remarkable sweetness and power in Fräulein Marie Fillunger, of Frankfort.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

WE have received a copy of the Report of the Deputation in Relation to Music, presented to the Court of Common Council on December 15, 1881. It appears that the sum authorised by the Court to be expended during the past year in the interests of the Training School for Music has been exceeded. "This, however," says the Report, "is due, not to any omission in the estimate submitted to your Honourable Court, but entirely to the rapid development of the School, necessitating expenses which could not be foreseen." The Deputation concludes its Report by recommending that if the Guildhall School of Music is to retain the position it has already gained, not to speak of the place it may in the future occupy, further energetic and more extensive efforts on the part of those delegated by the Court to direct and control it are not only necessary but imperative. By reason of the importance the present School of Music has assumed, it is recommended that the existing Deputation be dissolved, and its functions transferred to a Ward Committee. The Deputation which has done itself so much honour, and conferred on the public so great a service in successfully promoting a School of Music in the City of London, is thus constituted: P. de Keyser, Henry A. Isaacs, E. Dresser Rogers, George Wood, William Cave Fowler, William James Scott, John Bath, Robert P. Taylor, John Cox, Thomas Lintott. These names will be embalmed in the archives of the Guildhall School of Music, which bids fair to make for itself an historic reputation. The rapid and favourable development of this idea of planting in the heart of commercial London an institution dedicated to the least tangible and in some respects the least profitable of the arts, is a lesson to those who in other quarters, surrounded by the luxuries and incentives of the arts themselves, and assisted by the highest patronage, strive with not less enthusiasm in similar good works, but fail for want of common business aptitude. It is gratifying to see in the Report we are now noticing that its recommendation has been accepted by the Court of Common Council to raise the emoluments of the Principal and of the Secretary of the Guildhall School of Music. The Principal, Mr. Weist Hill, will receive in future an honorarium of £800 per annum; and the Secretary will receive £400. But the time and services of these gentlemen are henceforth to be dedicated wholly to their duties in the Guildhall School. Where money is, the value of money, in the truest sense of the term "value," is properly estimated. None know better than commercial men that liberality, when wisely exercised, is a paying virtue.

We remember some months ago publishing the yearly Report—October, 1879, to October, 1880—of the Music School at the Royal Academy of Arts, Berlin. That institution has been in existence, more or less, half a century. The nominal list of the pupils who attended during the year mentioned comprised 246 names. Turning to the Report of the Guildhall School of Music, we find that on September 27, 1880, when the School was declared to be opened, the number of pupils admitted upon examination was 216. At the commencement of the second term, January 27, 1881, the number of students on the register of the school was 545. The third term opened on April 15, 1881, with 614 students, and the fourth—the current term—opening on September 27, 1881, shows on the register 907 pupils. It is understood that the Guildhall School cannot yet be compared with the Berlin Institute, and that it must be considered as more in the nature of an elementary establishment. But the results in so short a time are surprising, and fully bear out the remark of His Royal Highness the Duke of Albany as to English voracity for music. It is not out of place to repeat here what has long since been stated in these columns, that the modern spirit of centralisation, in some sense represented by the proposed conservatorium, is in no way antagonistic to private and municipal endowments; and that the object of centralisation is not to destroy but to focus the efforts of individual enterprise.

The general and annual expenses of the Guildhall School, including the rental of the premises, No. 16, Aldermanbury, have amounted to £2,043 17s. 10d.; and will no doubt be generously extended as the School develops. The average number of lessons given weekly is 1,217, including 443 solo-singing, 384 pianoforte, 139 harmony, 99 violin, 3 side-drum, &c. The City authorities have been fortunate in the selection of their Committee, Principal and officers; and no one begrudges them the good things granted to them and vaunted in their motto, so long as they civilise as well as enrich themselves and others.

The Report presented to the Court of Common Council was, on the motion of the Chairman, Mr. W. J. Scott, unanimously approved and passed, amidst congratulations at the great success of the institution, and with compliments to the Committee. The Guildhall School of Music has formally obtained its constitution from the Corporation, who have sanctioned the giving of four concerts in the Guildhall in the months of January, February, March and April.

THE Annual Meeting of the London Gregorian Choral Association was held on the 8th ult. in the hall of Sion College, the Earl of Beauchamp presiding. The Hon. Secretary, Mr. Herbert M. Low, read the annual report for the tenth year of the Society's existence, by which it appeared that more than one hundred new members had joined the Association during the past year. The first issue of the first of the series of Plain-Song Masses, the publication of which the Association had undertaken, had been quickly exhausted, and a second edition had been printed. While, according to the tables given in Mackeson's Church Guide, there were in 1870, when this Association was formed, forty churches in which Gregorian Tones were partly or wholly used, the number had increased to 124 in the present year. A lecture on "The Right and Wrong Way of Rendering Gregorian Music" was given by the Rev. J. W. Doran, and illustrated by some members of the choir of St. Barnabas, Pimlico, under the direction of the Rev. G. H. Palmer. A vote of thanks to the President of Sion College for the use of the hall was then carried unanimously, as was also a similar vote to the lecturer, and to the Rev. G. H. Palmer and the choir for supplying the musical illustrations.

THE production of Wagner's Festival Play at Her Majesty's Theatre, under the direction of Angelo Neumann, is now announced by Mr. Mapleson. The Play will be performed in four entire cycles, of four nights each. On the first night "Das Rheingold" (introductory) will be given; on the second night "Die Walküre"; on the third "Siegfried"; and on the fourth "Götterdämmerung." The following artists have been engaged: Herr Albert Niemann, Herr Heinrich Vogl, Frau Therese Vogl, Frau Hedwig Reicher-Kindermann, Herr Emil Scaria, Herr Theodor Reichmann, and Herr Albert Eilers; Conductor, Herr Anton Seidl (of the Theatre at Leipzig); Regisseur, Herr Albert Petermann. The scenery, costumes, armour, &c., which were used at the Bayreuth Festival Plays will (by special permission of H.M. the King of Bavaria) be employed. Herr Wagner will superintend the final rehearsals, and be present at the performances. The opening night of the first cycle is fixed for Friday, May 5.

THE Belle Sauvage Glee Union, a male-voice choir formed some two years ago in the establishment of Messrs. Cassell, Petter, Galpin and Co., the well-known publishers, held the first of a series of monthly entertainments, arranged for the winter season, 1881-2, at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet Street, on Tuesday, the 6th ult., Mr. J. F. Wilson in the chair. The programme included Smart's "Legend of the Rhine"; "Soldier's love" (Kücken); the Soldiers' Chorus from "Faust"; Bishop's "Sleep, gentle lady," sung as a quartet; "The Wreath," sung as a trio; the duet, "Larboard watch"; and solos by Messrs. J. T. Taylor, R. Flegg, R. W. Crow, H. E. Vickers, S. W. Beckley, and J. C. Cooper, with humorous songs by Messrs. H. Judd and G. J. Quilter. Mr. G. F. Bruce presided at the piano-forte, and contributed two solos. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Mr. C. H. Hewitt.

THE members of the St. George's Glee Union held their 155th Monthly Concert at the Pimlico Rooms on Friday, the 2nd ult. The first part of the programme consisted of a miscellaneous selection, and the second part was devoted to Mendelssohn's music to "Athalie," the lyrics being recited by the Rev. Canon Fleming, B.D. The soloists were Miss Berta Foresta, Miss Beatrice Elmslie, and Miss Marie Belval. Miss Edith Mahon and Mr. F. R. Kinke presided at the piano, and Mr. E. R. Terry at the harmonium. Mr. Joseph Monday conducted altogether a highly satisfactory performance.

A SERVICE was held at Christ Church, North Finchley, on Thursday evening, November 24, on the occasion of the opening of the new organ erected by Messrs. Henry Jones and Son, of Fulham Road. The Service was choral. The Magnificat and Nunc dimittis were sung to Tours in F, and the anthem, by Sir George Elvey, "I was glad when they said unto me," was well rendered by an augmented choir. Mr. F. A. W. Docker, Organist of St. Andrew's, Wells Street, presided at the organ, and played an excellent and appropriate selection of music, which was listened to by the congregation with much attention.

A MUSICAL Performance was given by the pupils of the London Society for Teaching the Blind to Read, at the Institution, Upper Avenue Road, Regent's Park, on the 16th ult. The programme was, as usual, selected with much care; and the efficiency of the students under the tuition of Mr. Edwin Barnes (who conducted on the occasion) was displayed most satisfactorily both in the vocal and instrumental department.

THE fourth season of the Highbury Philharmonic Society commenced on Monday, the 12th ult., at Holloway Hall. In addition to Costa's "Dream" and Sullivan's "Kenilworth," one of the chief features of the Concert was the performance of a new Minuet and Trio by Dr. Bridge, capably rendered by the band, the audience desiring a repetition, which, however, was not granted, in accordance with the inflexible rule of the Society forbidding encores. Mention must also be made of the performance of Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto by Mr. E. Parfitt (a student in the National Training School for Music). The soloists were Miss M. Fenna, Miss E. Gibson, Mr. H. Piercy, and Mr. Egbert Roberts, who acquitted themselves admirably. Dr. Bridge conducted.

MR. H. KILLICK MORLEY's first Concert of the nineteenth season took place in the Concert Hall, Blackheath, on Friday evening, the 2nd ult. The vocalists were Mesdames Marie Roze, Antoinette Sterling, Mr. Joseph Maas, and Mr. Stedman's choirboys, with Miss Agnes Zimmermann, Herr Richard Gompertz, Mr. J. B. Zerbini, and Herr Daubert as instrumentalists. An excellent programme secured a crowded and fashionable audience. Among the principal successes of the evening were the violin solo of Herr Richard Gompertz (pupil of Dr. Joachim) and the pianoforte-playing of Miss Zimmermann, both eliciting the greatest enthusiasm. Mr. Stedman's choirboys also were a very agreeable feature in the programme, and sang with much taste and expression.

THE annual performance of "The Messiah" for the benefit of the Royal Society of Musicians was given at St. James's Hall, on the 2nd ult., before a large audience. The principal vocalists were Miss Anna Williams, Miss Jessie Jones, Miss Hope Glenn, Mr. W. Shakespeare, Mr. W. H. Cummings, Mr. Frederic King, and Mr. Lewis Thomas, the arrival of Madame Patey (who had also kindly tendered her services) being, through a misunderstanding as to the time, too late for her to take part in the performance. The band (under the leadership of Mr. Viotti Collins) and chorus were in every respect highly efficient. Mr. W. G. Cusins conducted, Mr. E. J. Hopkins presided at the organ, and the obligato to "The trumpet shall sound" was played by Mr. T. Harper.

THE first of four Trio Concerts announced for this season by Herren Laistner, Mahr, and Leu took place on Thursday, the 8th ult., at the Marlborough Rooms. The programme was opened with the Trio in F by Saint-Saëns, one of the best works of the well-known French composer, and the last number was Schumann's D minor Trio. Both were rendered in the best style by the above-named artists, who also gave various solo pieces, among which the Carnival of Schumann, excellently played by Herr Laistner, formed a special feature. Madame Fanny Vogri, a lady with a fine soprano voice, contributed several songs and an Aria from "Fidelio." Herr Carl Weber was, as usual, an able Conductor. The second of these Concerts will take place on February 16.

THE members of the South London Musical Club gave their eleventh private Musical Evening at the Angell Town Institution, Brixton, on the 13th ult. The programme included a selection from Gounod's Second Messe des Orphéonistes, Schubert's "Great is Jehovah," and several part-songs, which were rendered in a highly creditable manner. Two violin solos were contributed by Herr Carl Schneider; Mr. Cecil Clark gave Chopin's Scherzo in B flat minor on the pianoforte; and Mr. C. J. Frost, Mus. Bac., an organ solo, Rheinberger's Sonata in F sharp major. Mr. Charles Stevens acted as Conductor, and Mr. G. B. Lissant as accompanist, Mr. Clark and Mr. Frost assisting at the piano and organ respectively in Gounod's Messe and Schubert's "Great is Jehovah."

AT the Dedication Festival at St. Paul's Cathedral, which will be held on Wednesday, the 25th inst., the selection from Mendelssohn's "St. Paul," usual on this occasion, will be given with full orchestral accompaniment, and a new Evening Service from the pen of Mr. J. Baptiste Calkin will be sung for the first time. The Service, which has been written for the occasion, and has just been published, is in the key of G major, and of a distinctly modern character.

THE Crouch End Choral Society gave its first Concert of the present season on the 13th ult. at Christ Church School Room before a large audience. The programme consisted of Mendelssohn's Ninety-fifth Psalm, "Come, let us sing," and a miscellaneous selection. The vocalists were Mrs. Wheatley Bennett, Mrs. Alfred Dye, Miss Helena Cunningham, and Mr. S. Lawrence Fryer (New College, Oxford), the latter singing the solos in the Psalm with much expression. The choruses were fairly well rendered. Mr. Chas. W. Lovejoy presided at the piano, and Mr. T. H. Bunbury at the harmonium. Mr. S. Dean Grimson led the band, and Mr. Alfred J. Dye conducted, as usual.

THE first of Herr Riechelmann's series of Popular Concerts, at New Cross Hall, was given on Friday evening, the 2nd ult. The programme, which comprised two parts, gave abundant evidence of the Director's desire to satisfy the popular ear without sacrificing the principles of good taste. Each part opened with a trio for piano, violin, and violoncello, selected in the first case from Beethoven, and in the second from Mendelssohn, and executed by Herr Riechelmann, Mr. Reinganum, and Mr. Royle in a manner which called forth unmistakable manifestations of approval. The vocalists were Madame Crew-Reichelmann, Miss A. Woods, Mr. W. G. Reed, and Mr. James Budd.

THE choir of the Bow and Bromley Institute, numbering 130 performers, gave Spohr's "God, Thou art great" at the Organ Recital on November 19. Mr. W. G. Wood was the Organist, and Miss Marianne Fenna sang the soprano solo. On the 5th ult. the Society performed Dr. Macfarren's Cantata "The Lady of the Lake," with Miss Cockburn, Madame Mudie-Bolingbroke, Mr. Henry Taylor, Mr. Distin, and Mr. Hutcheson. Mr. W. G. McNaught accompanied at the pianoforte and also conducted, and Mr. Alfred Carder presided at the organ. The work was received with so much favour that it has been decided to repeat the performance at an early date.

MISS MADELINE HARDY gave her first evening Concert at the Angell Town Institution on Thursday, the 8th ult. In addition to the concert-giver, Mesdames José Sherrington, Annie Matthews, Spencer Jones, Ada Knight, and Grace Gye (violin), Messrs. Arthur Thompson, Arthur Thomas, James Budd, Gabriel Thorp, Maybrick, and Edwin Samson (solo pianoforte) appeared. Mr. Turle Lee accompanied. Miss Hardy elicited the heartiest applause, especially in her first contribution, Schira's Reverie "Sognai." Mr. Maybrick's new song, "The little Hero," was enthusiastically received, and Miss Ada Knight (pupil of Miss Hardy), a promising contralto, was very successful.

THE annual performance of Handel's "Messiah" by the advanced choir of the South London Choral Association took place on Tuesday evening, the 20th ult., at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell. The interpretation of the choral numbers was deserving of high praise, and the solos were efficiently rendered by Miss Agnes Larkcom, Miss Helen Heath, Mr. Harper Kearnson, and Mr. Thurlay Beale, each of whom elicited marks of warm approval. The orchestral band of the Institute played the accompaniments, and Mr. Leonard C. Venables conducted in his customary excellent manner. The hall was occupied by a crowded audience.

THE performances of Sacred Music which are given monthly at the Church of St. Margaret Pattens, Rood Lane, after evensong on Sundays, continue to bring large congregations. On the 18th ult., Spohr's "Last Judgment" was excellently sung, the solos being taken by Masters Frank and Harry Tebbutt and Fielder, and Messrs. A. Hooper and Egbert Roberts. The music is under the direction of Mr. Stedman, and the Organist is Mr. Walter Hughes.

THE second Concert of the Tottenham Musical Society was given on the 1st ult., the band and chorus numbering over fifty performers. The glees were sung with great precision, and vocal solos were contributed by Miss Woodruffe, Mr. Giles, and Mr. H. Branch. A flute solo by Mr. Chivers and a violin solo by Mr. Teeton were well rendered. Mr. Crusha presided at the pianoforte, Miss G. Marrable at the American organ, and Mr. Fred. J. Oram conducted.

AN interesting Concert took place on the 20th ult. at the Godolphin School, Hammersmith—Principal, the Rev. R. H. Morris. Several part-songs were most effectively sung by the pupils, including Smart's "The Sea-King" and "Ave Maria," Barnby's "A Wife's Song," Land's "Cherry ripe," and Leslie's "Awake, awake, the flow'rs unfold." At the beginning of the evening some Christmas Carols were given. Mr. O. Lindeman sang Gounod's "Nazareth," with much feeling, and Mr. W. Yarborough was successful in Sullivan's "Chorister." A violin solo by Master P. J. Webster was also much applauded. Mr. Walker conducted with great ability and ease.

AT the eleventh annual Meeting of the Edinburgh University Musical Society, on the 24th of November last, Sir Herbert Oakeley, who presided, spoke most hopefully of the future of the institution; and in the course of his speech, alluded to the tercentenary celebration of the foundation of the University, which he said would probably be held in the autumn of 1883, the musical preparations for which would, he hoped, be shortly considered. The report showed that the funds of the Society were in a prosperous condition, and that the number of members had materially increased.

THE Choirs of the Kyrle Society, under the direction of Mr. Malcolm Lawson, gave a performance of "Elijah" on November 30 in St. Mary's Church, Hoxton. Mrs. Harrison, Miss Alice Smith, Madame Isabel Fassett, Mr. Reginald Groome, and Mr. R. S. Williams were the soloists, and Mr. E. H. Turpin presided at the organ. The choirs gave another performance of the same Oratorio on the 7th ult. in Little Portland Street Chapel, Great Portland Street, Miss Agnes Allan, Miss Brough, Mr. Greenwood, and Mr. Albert M'Guckin being the principal vocalists, and Mr. James Turpin organist.

THE Myddelton Choral Society gave its first Concert this season at Barnsbury Hall on Tuesday evening, the 12th ult., when Schubert's Cantata "The Song of Miriam" was performed, as a first part, the second part comprising a miscellaneous selection of secular music. Amongst the most successful items were "The lost chord" (Sullivan), sung by Miss Annie West; a pianoforte solo by Madame Foli; and a new duet for soprano and tenor, by the Conductor, Mr. Frank Austin, L. Mus., T.C.L., admirably rendered by Miss White and Mr. A. Probert. Mr. A. Burton presided at the harmonium.

A VERY successful Concert was given on the 5th ult. by Mr. G. Day Winter, at the Great Assembly Hall, Mile End Road, E. Miss Marianne Fenna, Miss L. Vandyk, Mrs. G. Day Winter, Miss Rosina Cave, Mr. Joseph Robinson, Mr. F. G. Cole, and Mr. J. Church were the soloists, and the choruses were sung by a select choir. The programme comprised a selection from Handel's "Messiah," and a short miscellaneous second part, consisting of anthems, solos, and choruses. Mr. G. Day Winter was Conductor, and Mr. Duncan Callow presided at the organ.

MR. JAMES A. BIRCH gave his second annual Concert at Exeter Hall on Monday, the 5th ult., assisted by the following artists: Misses Bessie Webber, Lizzie Jones, and Annie Williams; Messrs. Charles Abercrombie, John Cornwall, R. W. Henry, and Sackville Evans, all of whom acquitted themselves admirably. The singing of a select choir of forty voices was extremely good, especially in Macfarren's Cantata "May-Day." Miss Emily Southwell (assisted by Miss Hetty Southwell) was a most efficient accompanist, and Mr. Birch conducted.

A COMMITTEE for the Manns Testimonial Fund has been formed in Glasgow, where Mr. Manns's musical services are much appreciated; and having requested that the subscription list of the fund may continue open till the close of the musical season in Scotland, the London Committee has resolved that the list shall not be closed until the last day of February next.

MR. ALFRED PHYSICK gave three Organ Recitals at St. Mark's Church, Camberwell, during the past month, viz., on the 2nd, 9th, and 16th. The programmes included works by Bach, Mendelssohn, Beethoven, Handel, Spohr, Batiste, Wely, &c., all being most ably rendered.

THE Kilburn Musical Association commenced its fourth season on Wednesday, the 14th ult., with an excellent performance of Handel's "Messiah." The choir, which has greatly improved both in quality of voice and expression, rendered the various choruses in a highly efficient manner. Praise is likewise due to the solo vocalists, Miss Florence Norman, Miss Allitsen, Mr. Bernard Lane, and Mr. Basset. Miss Gollmick accompanied on the pianoforte, Mr. Victor Gollmick presided at the harmonium, and Mr. Adolph Gollmick conducted with his usual skill.

THE last of Mr. Clement Hoey's Ballad Concerts for this season at the Royal Victoria Coffee Hall took place on Thursday, the 1st ult. The room was very full, although the Marquis and Marchioness of Lorne were unfortunately prevented from attending as was announced. Madame Marie Roze, Madame Nouver, Captain Barrington Foote, and Signor Rubini were most favourably received. Miss F. Waud played remarkably well a valse by Liszt, and the band of the Royal Artillery was highly efficient.

MISS VIVIANNE HAMILTON gave a very successful Concert at Lancaster Hall on Thursday evening, the 15th ult., assisted by the following artists: Miss Marie Horton, Mr. Stedman, Mr. G. W. R. Hoare, Mr. King, Mr. Franklin, Mdlle. Hélène de Lisle (violin), and Miss Rozel Ayers (pianoforte). Dr. F. E. Gladstone, Mr. A. W. Sebastian Hoare, and Mr. Charles P. Hopkins were the Conductors.

THE Paddington Chapel Choral Union gave a Concert on the 6th ult., the programme consisting of selections from "Elijah," and the "Hymn of Praise" and "Hear my Prayer" in their entirety. Madame Talbot Cherer sang the principal solos. Mr. Henry Holmes very ably presided at the organ, Mr. John Spink at the piano, and Mr. J. H. Moon conducted.

THE Grosvenor Choral Society gave an excellent performance of "The Messiah" at its monthly Concert at the Grosvenor Hall on the 16th ult. The solos were rendered by Madame Gedge-Glover, Miss Lizzie Turner, Mr. H. Parkin, and Mr. Henry Baker. The leader of the band was Mr. S. Dean Grimson, and the trumpet soloist Mr. McGrath. Mr. G. R. Egerton conducted.

WE are glad to find that the lecture-list at the London Institution for 1881-2 includes the following upon the subject of music: "Old English Country Songs," by Mr. W. A. Barrett; "The Flute," by Mr. John Radcliff; "The Organist-Composers of St. Paul's Cathedral," by the Rev. Dr. W. Sparrow Simpson; and "The Sonata under Haydn and Mozart," by Mr. Ernst Pauer.

ADVENT Services have been held at St. Matthew's, New Kent Road, during the past month. On the 4th ult., selections from "The Messiah" were given, and on the 18th Mendelssohn's "Hear my Prayer" was performed, the solo in the latter work being taken by Miss Agnes Ross. The musical arrangements were under the management of Mr. W. Taylor, the Organist and Choirmaster.

A GRAND morning Concert of choral and orchestral music will be given in the Royal Albert Hall on Saturday, the 7th inst., in aid of the fund for the relief of the sufferers by the burning of the Ring Theatre, Vienna. The practical arrangements for the Concert have been entrusted by Count Karolyi to Herr Hermann Franke, and the Directors of the Albert Hall have granted the use of it free of charge.

A CONCERT was given to the inmates of the Brompton Hospital on Tuesday evening, the 13th ult., by Miss Beatrice Elmslie, assisted by Madame Dukas-Van-Noorden, Mdlle. Berta Foresta, Mr. George Cox, and Mr. Frank Quartermayne. Mr. T. Avant accompanied. The entertainment gave much pleasure to the audience.

WE regret to hear that the state of Mr. Arthur Sullivan's health has necessitated his passing the winter in Egypt, where he will complete the music for the new comic opera which will succeed "Patience." The work will be produced simultaneously in England and America.

A CONCERT was given on the 13th ult. by the Southwark Choral Society, in aid of the Building Fund. The first part was miscellaneous, the second part being Mr. F. Howell's Cantata "The Song of the Months." The rendering of the work was much appreciated by the audience.

MR. F. H. COWEN's Cantata "The Corsair" and Dr. Macfarren's "Christmas" were performed by the Brixton Choral Society on the 19th ult. The vocalists were Madame Clara Suter, Madame Alice Barth, Mr. George Cox, and Mr. Frederick Bevan. Mr. W. Lemare conducted as usual.

THE Walworth Choral Union (advanced singing-class of the Walworth Institution) gave its first Concert on the 6th ult. Mr. Rayment Kirby, who has succeeded Mr. Theodore Distin, acted as Conductor.

ON Thursday afternoon, the 8th ult., a new anthem for male voices, by Mr. John E. West, entitled "Comfort the soul of Thy servant," was performed at the service in St. Paul's Cathedral, Dr. Stainer presiding at the organ.

DR. F. E. GLADSTONE and Dr. Chipp have been appointed Examiners for the Degree of Bachelor of Music in the University of Cambridge. Mr. R. Pendlebury is the Examiner in Acoustics.

MONS. GUILMANT, the eminent Parisian organist, is on a visit to this country for the purpose of giving a series of organ recitals in London and the provincial towns.

REVIEWS.

Church Music. A Popular Sketch. Being a Glance at its Origin, Development, and Present Use. By the Rev. Edward Hicks, B.A. [John Heywood.]

"THE Church," says the author of this work, "has never at any time existed without music. Indeed the art, if we cannot say the science, of music is as old as the world itself. It is as much a language of the soul of man as the words by which he has always addressed his fellows—nay more, for words are oftentimes feeble and vain, and the oppressed spirit must be relieved of its burden in a cry of sound or sweet singing." The spirit of Mr. Hicks's thoughtful book is thoroughly explained in these few words; for although he attempts to give a history of Church Music, his design is evidently to suggest, rather than dictate, what ought to be the form of musical worship, and to place before those who are wavering on the subject the old and new styles, so that the "oppressed spirit" may choose the purest and most natural mode of utterance. We say that he "suggests" because, although he writes some very good things about Gregorianism, it is evident that he regards it as an interesting fossil which should be preserved as a curiosity; and that in his heart he desires to take advantage of all the capabilities of our modern system of music. But upon the style of our Church Music he has much to say; and we, who may perhaps think too much from a musical point of view, have at least a right to listen to one who, although representing the interest of the Church alone, is neither biassed nor pedantic. "We can all feel," he says, "if we cannot explain, the difference that exists between classical music and the music of the lighter composers. While the one is stately, solid, and full of thoughtful depth, the other is more directly pleasing, melodious, and often more sweet. To an ordinary hearer the first is too dry, hard, and 'business-like.' The second captivates him more quickly, and he is delighted. The one, while it demands an intellectual effort to enter into it, braces up the soul and leaves it stronger than it found it. The other, while it asks only the ease-loving ear, dissipates while it delights, and enervates while it entrances. Such is the difference, in many respects, between German Opera and Italian Opera. To a certain extent, such is the difference between the grander, severer hymn-tunes of our Church, which retain the solemnity of the choral, and the lighter, sweeter, more chromatic tunes which I have called 'dramatic.'" Lest it should be imagined that our author has any wish to drive Oratorios from our religious buildings, we quote also the following: "When the sublime masterpieces of sacred art come to be performed more often in our cathedrals instead of in our concert-rooms, as services rather than as concerts, then we shall understand a little more than we do now how miraculous is the change that has come into the music-life of both Church and World." Not only for the liberality of these opinions, as coming from a churchman, but on account of the many excellent remarks upon sacred music scattered throughout its pages, we warmly commend Mr. Hicks's volume to the attention of all interested in the subject upon which he writes.

The "Little Folks" Album of Music. A collection of Songs and Rhymes, with Music. By J. W. Elliott, J. M. Bentley, Mus. D., and other composers.

[Cassell, Petter, Galpin and Co.]

Music adapted for the festive season must not be kept waiting for a notice; and we therefore call the attention of those parents and guardians on the look-out for new year's presents to the elegant little volume before us. In every respect it is a charming gift-book, for the rhymes, illustrations, and music are equally attractive. Of course, in setting the simple words here selected a few equally simple notes are all that can be desired; but many of the airs are not only catching in themselves, but happily illustrative of the subject of the verses, in proof of which we may instance "To Market, to market!" "The Bat and the Mole," "The Woodland Stream," &c. Some of the illustrations are extremely beautiful, and all are appropriate.

Christmas Morn. Musical Narrative by J. Burgmeier. Words by Henry Hersee. Illustrations by Alfredo Edel.

[Ricordi.]

As this work is said to be "for Christmas, 1881, and for New Year's Day, 1882," we may appropriately call attention to it in our present number. It comprises four pieces, with four large pictures, and illustrations on every page. Not only the frontispiece and other important pictorial representations of the events in the book, but the small sketches profusely scattered throughout are, although eccentric, extremely beautiful, many of the designs indeed being thoroughly original in conception. The verses are adapted by Mr. Hersee with much skill and poetical feeling, and the music is admirably suited for the subjects, the vocal parts being easy and well within the reach of school choirs and choral societies.

Heureux qui peut aimer. Paroles de Victor Hugo. Musique de Maude Valérie White.

[Stanley Lucas, Weber and Co.]

THE songs of this composer are fast obtaining the popularity they deserve, although we cannot say that vocal music of so high a standard invariably meets with the same encouragement. It is much to the credit of Mr. Santley, who has already sung this composition, that he takes every opportunity of spreading a knowledge of the works of young composers; and we should be extremely glad if every artist would lend his or her talents to the same laudable object. The song before us is in every respect a charming composition, both melody and accompaniments being in admirable keeping with the voices. The opening symphony, although beyond the conventional length, is extremely good, and leads most effectively to the commencement of the voice part.

A Day in a Child's Life. Illustrated by Kate Greenaway. Music by Myles B. Foster, Organist of the Foundling Hospital. [George Routledge and Sons.]

A MORE charming Christmas book for juvenile readers and vocalists has rarely been brought before us than this "Day in a Child's Life." The especial talent of Miss Greenaway for illustrating a little volume of this kind is too well known to need our doing more than assure those who wish to gladden the nursery with a group of pictorial representations of the doings of our little ones that this is one of the very best of the talented artist's works. A good word, too, must be said for the music, which is well written and tuneful throughout.

Not even a Sparrow, Boating, and Heather Breezes. Two-part songs. Words by L. A. Johnstone. Music by Ciro Pinsuti. [Lamborn Cock.]

THESE three compositions for two female voices are amongst the very best of the many good vocal pieces Signor Pinsuti has contributed to the repertory of amateurs. But, unpretentious as they are, so artistic is their treatment, both for voice and instrument, that intelligence as well as executive ability is demanded for their due rendering. The first on our list is, perhaps, the most simple of the set, the figure in the accompaniment, which runs throughout the song, and the change into the subdominant for the short solo, being points of much interest. In "Boating" much more is attempted, the accompaniment throughout being happily sympathetic with the poetry. The theme is extremely melodious, the harmonies appropriate, and in no place unduly forced. "Heather Breezes" is charmingly descriptive, and will give a little more work to the pianist as well as the vocalists, than any of its companion pieces. We may mention, however, that there are no difficulties to be surmounted by tolerably trained executants, for the treatment of the song is more remarkable for delicacy of touch than for display of learning. We are especially pleased with the change of key (with the rapid arpeggio accompaniment) on the words "List! the calling and the brawling," the return to the original subject being also most effective. The song is, in its way, a perfect little gem.

Summer Voices. For the Pianoforte.

May Morn. For the Pianoforte.

Composed by Fritz Spindler. [R. Cocks and Co.]

SPINDLER'S pieces are always melodious enough to please unmusical listeners, and sufficiently well written to satisfy those who are more exacting in their requirements. These elegant light sketches are well written for the instrument, and will be found good practice for young pianists. Of course the titles of such compositions do not mean anything particular; and it need scarcely be said that "Summer Voices" might be called "May Morn," and "May Morn" transformed into "Summer Voices" without anybody but the composer finding out the change; but such names at least answer as distinguishing marks, and modern writers would rather be in the fashion than endeavour to set a new one. Of the two we prefer the second on our list, which has a tuneful principal subject, with which a theme in the subdominant is effectively contrasted. "Summer Voices" is somewhat more monotonous, but the passages are refined, and lie well under the hand. We prefer, however, even in pieces of this character, to meet with something more than a mere accompaniment for the left hand, for there can be no reason why what are termed "drawing-room pieces" should not shadow forth the style of classical writers. It is perfectly possible to make such trifles attractive to a mixed audience where the work for the two hands is more equally distributed. The compositions before us form Nos. 4 and 5 of "Six Melodious Pieces," by the same composer, the titles of which are all equally fanciful.

Carmela. Ballatella Popolare. Parole di Raffaele Salustri. Musica di F. Paolo Tosti. [Ricordi.]

MESSRS. RICORDI'S publications have, as a rule, such strangely fantastic designs upon their outside covers that it is sometimes difficult, without reference to the familiar type on the title-page, to discover either the name of the piece or its composer. The shadowy figure on the composition before us and the curiously distorted letters which announce the title of the song will certainly attract the eye in a shop-window; but at the pianoforte it somewhat distracts the attention, and seems indeed scarcely in character with so simple a piece. A tranquil melody (with an appropriate accompaniment), in E minor and major, effectively colours the unpretentious words chosen by Signor Tosti; and the song may be conscientiously recommended to unambitious amateur vocalists.

The Professional Pocket Book, and Daily and Hourly Engagement Diary for 1882. Published under the immediate direction of Sir Julius Benedict.

[Rudall, Carte and Co.]

THIS useful Pocket Book makes its appearance this year in four parts, so that they can be slipped into the book as they are required. This is certainly an improvement, as with many persons the size of the work in its former shape was felt to be an objection. In every respect the present issue is fully equal to its numerous predecessors.

King Carnival. Song. Written by Fred. E. Weatherly. Composed by Gabriel Davis. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THIS is a bright and effective setting of some words far above the average song-writing of the day. The character of the Bolero is well preserved throughout, and the change from triple to common time in the middle of the verse is extremely sympathetic with the feeling of the poetry. We like the song so much that it seems a kindness to call attention to the harmony of the ninth and tenth bars of the andantino, where the two parts creep up together to the leading note. Why not harmonise the phrase as in the third and fourth bars?

School Exercises. In Three Books. By Frederic N. Löhr. [Forsyth Brothers.]

THESE books, by the Professor of Singing at the Plymouth High Schools, will be found extremely useful for teaching class-singing. Book I. is devoted to "Elementary Music"; Book II. to "Sight Singing"; and Book III. to "Solfeggi in Two Parts (Concone)." All the examples are excellent for the training of young students who desire to be something more than singers by ear. The explanations in the elementary book are, as a rule, thoroughly satisfactory; but we can scarcely agree with Mr. Löhr that a bass note with a minor third and diminished fifth is a "common chord." Unquestionably it is a "diminished triad," but there are only two "common chords"—major and minor.

Nursery Rhymes. Composed by Gertrude Hine. Illustrated by F. Barnard. [Stanley Lucas, Weber and Co.]

ANOTHER appropriate present for the English gift-season, most characteristically and humorously illustrated throughout. The music, too, is rather above the average of songs expressly intended for a nursery concert and a nursery audience: indeed, one piece, "The June Song," is written as a quartet; and although not difficult, will demand some practice from very juvenile vocalists.

Yesterday, love, yesterday. Song. The verses by Miss G. E. Troutbeck. Music by Francis Edward Gladstone. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE artistic workmanship throughout this song would alone compensate us for the many weary hours we are compelled to spend in the hope of drawing a prize from the many blanks with which we are surrounded. But in this charming composition we have design as well as workmanship; and that, too, of a very high order. There is true musical poetry in the treatment of the emphatic word "yesterday," which is lovingly lingered over with unexaggerated pathos; and the change in the character of the accompaniment on the words "I know beyond this parting," is a point of much interest. We sincerely hope that this beautiful song will become known as it deserves to be.

When I call thee mine. Song. Words by J. Enderssohn. The sea hath its pearls. Song. Poetry from the German by H. W. Longfellow. Composed by Charles Vincent. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE first of these songs has a flowing melody, but the monotonous effect of the three verses is scarcely palliated by the device of varying the accompaniment. "The sea hath its pearls" is in every respect a much better composition. There is life in the theme, and the harmonies and accompaniments are judicious. The passage in A flat, on the words "Thou little youthful maiden," is sympathetic with the poetry, and makes the return to the original subject doubly welcome. Mr. Vincent has evidently a feeling for melody; but he must be careful not to fall back upon conventional phrases.

Menuet de Lulli. Pour le Piano-forte. Par Ben Tayoux. [Duncan Davison & Co.]

WE can scarcely recommend this Minuet as a piano-forte piece, although the theme will be welcomed by the admirers of tune. It is said that the arrangement is equally adapted for performance as a duet for violin and violoncello; and in this form perhaps it might prove more acceptable. The thin effect of the passages for both hands will certainly render it ineffective for the piano-forte; but we may presume—as even where the thirds are added they are written in small notes—the Minuet is intended for juvenile performers.

FOREIGN NOTES.

MADAME ALBANI commenced a series of representations of her principal rôles at the Royal Opera of Berlin, on the 7th ult., with Donizetti's "Lucia." The event has excited considerable curiosity in Berlin operatic circles, this being the first visit paid by the diva to the northern capital in her capacity of prima donna, and has only become possible by the directors permitting the performances to take place partly in Italian, partly in German, in consideration of Madame Albani's unfamiliarity with the language of the country. The absurdity of such proceedings is of course apparent, while it recalls the worst traditions of the "star" system as practised, more especially on the Continent, at no very distant period. Thanks in a great measure to the unflinching reformatory efforts of Richard Wagner, compromises like the one indicated have become rare exceptions; and it may, moreover, be questioned whether the advantage of hearing a great singer like Madame Albani on the stage is not more than counterbalanced by the totally incongruous impression which the maltreated music-drama must necessarily produce on the artistic mind. Nor does the Berlin press appear at all insensible to this incongruity, the Musik Welt characterising the compromise as "an inartistic and altogether reprehensible makeshift." Madame Albani's reception, as might have been anticipated, was a very favourable one, although scarcely enthusiastic. The artist was to appear, among other operas, in "Rigoletto," "Faust," and "Lohengrin." The house was crowded on the occasion referred to.

Johannes Brahms's new pianoforte concerto, of which mention has already been made in these columns, was played by the composer for the first time in public on November 27 at Meiningen with the co-operation of the excellent orchestra conducted by Hans von Bülow. The success of the performance, although assured beforehand, is said to have exceeded all expectations, and the publication of the score is looked forward to with much interest in musical circles.

The one hundredth anniversary of the famous Gewandhaus Concerts was celebrated at Leipzig on November 25 with a festive performance, the programme of which will be found in our usual appendix to these columns. Herr Alfred Dörfell, the librarian of the Leipzig Municipal Library, has published an historical pamphlet for the occasion, containing, among numerous interesting details, the names of the successive leaders of the institution, which are as follows: Adam Hiller, Joh. Gottfried Schicht, Joh. Philipp Schultz, C. A. Pohlenz, Felix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy (and his substitutes, F. Hiller, Gade, Ferd. David), Julius Rietz, and Carl Reinecke, its present conductor. The sum of 20,000 marks was distributed amongst the orchestral members of the institution by order of the directors, in commemoration of the event. Herr Joachim was amongst the artists taking part in the festive performance.

The newly established Conservatorium of Herr Xaver Scharwenka, at Berlin, has already obtained a special organ in the German musical press. We have been favoured with the first number of a monthly publication entitled Pädagogische Erfahrungen beim Klavier-Unterrichte, &c., wherein the piano-forte-teaching professors of the institution are intended to relate their experience in their daily intercourse with pupils, together with the special method applied in individual cases. The plan is certainly a novel one, and considering the multifarious ways in which musical talent first manifests itself in different individuals, the periodical publication of practical results achieved by competent professors in their efforts to develop such talent should become, in time, a most valuable vade mecum to the music-teaching community generally. The name of Herr Aloys Hennes, one of the professors at Herr Scharwenka's Institute, is a sufficient guarantee for the artistic solidity of the enterprise, to which we heartily wish every success.

Dr. Ludwig Nohl, of Heidelberg, has been awarded the prize for an essay on "The Historical Development of Chamber Music," for which an International competition was lately opened by the St. Petersburg "Society for Chamber Music." A Russian translation of the essay is shortly to be issued.

A new opera, by Victor E. Nessler, entitled "Der Wilde Jäger," was successfully brought out by the Leipzig Stadt-Theater on the 11th ult.

The second volume of C. F. Pohl's interesting and exhaustive "Life of Joseph Haydn" is about to be published. In it the author deals exclusively with the sojourn of the composer at Esterházy, as already indicated in the preceding volume, of which we gave an extensive notice at the time of its appearance. A chronological and thematic catalogue of Haydn's works, comprising the period from 1766 to 1790, will be appended to the new volume, and will, as in the case of its predecessor, greatly enhance the value of the publication.

A "cylus" of performances of Carl Maria von Weber's operas has just been brought to a close at the Hamburg Stadt-Theater, producing a highly satisfactory result both artistically and financially.

Wagner's "Tristan und Isolde" was recently performed both at Berlin and Königsberg before crowded and most enthusiastic audiences. The resumption by Herr Niemann of the part of Tristan at the Berlin performance is said to have been one of the greatest achievements of that interpreter par excellence of Wagnerian heroes.

This year's Musical Festival of the Lower Rhine will take place at Aix-la-Chapelle, under the direction of Herr Wüllner, of the Dresden Court Theatre.

Herr Jules de Swert, the eminent violoncello virtuoso, has achieved the most brilliant successes on the occasion of his recent visits to St. Petersburg and Milan, where "his marvellous technique, noble tone, and masterly exposition" have been commented on in the most eulogistic terms by the local press. At a Concert lately given at the Curhaus of Wiesbaden, Herr de Swert appeared in the double capacity of virtuoso and composer, playing a new violoncello concerto, and conducting a symphony entitled "Nordseefahrt," executed by the Cur-capelle, both of his own composition. These works were extremely well received, and are said to exhibit much originality of design and melodic beauty. We are glad to learn that the artist intends paying a visit to this country in the coming spring.

At the Paris Grand-Opéra Mozart's "Don Giovanni" was revised last month with Mlle. Krauss as Donna Anna, M. Lassalle as the Don, and M. Gailhard as Leporello. M. Ambroise Thomas's opera "Françoise da Rimini" is in active course of preparation.

The favourable and even enthusiastic reception which Richard Wagner's music has lately met with on the part of Parisian audiences, both at the Concerts Populaires and the Châtelet Concerts, has encouraged the respective leaders of these institutions to increase the number of extracts from the Bayreuth reformer's works; and there can now be scarcely a doubt that Herr Angelo Neumann's projected performances of "Lohengrin" at the French capital during the present year will find audiences fully prepared to do justice to a musico-dramatic masterpiece the mere mention of which used to arouse their angry opposition in times not very remote.

A correspondent writes to us from Lyons: "Massenet's sacred oratorio (or drame-lyrique, as it is styled), 'Marie Madeleine,' was performed here on the 4th ult. in the Grande Salle de la Bourse by the young society La Sainte Cécile, composed of about 160 executants (choir and orchestra), under the able conductorship of M. Léon Reuchsel. The choruses were rendered in excellent style, and the society, which has only been two years in existence, gives much promise for the future. The study of sacred music at Lyons, it may be added, has hitherto been almost entirely confined to Masses for church service."

It can devolve upon us merely to record in these columns the awful calamity which has visited Vienna in the destruction by fire, on the 8th ult., of the Ring Theatre of that town, and which for the appalling number of its victims (close upon 800 human beings, as the latest returns state) has no parallel in the annals of theatrical history.

On November 30 died, at Milan, Gustavo Rossari, professor of the Conservatorio, and known also as a composer, at the age of fifty-four.

The death is announced at Lerida (Spain) of Magin Ponti, an organist and composer of great merit.

We also record the death, on November 22, at Leipzig, of Franziska Lortzing, daughter of the well-known composer of that name, at the age of forty-eight.

We subjoin, as usual, the programmes of concerts* recently given at some of the leading institutions abroad:—

Paris.—Inaugural Festival of the Quartett-Verein (November 26); "Stiftungsfeier," for male chorus (Mendelssohn); Tenor Songs (Liebe, Schubert); Violin Solos (Raff, Holländer, Laub); Theme and Variations for Soprano (Proch); "So weit," for male chorus (Engelsberg); Male Chorus from "Pilgrimage of the Rose" (Schumann); Polonaise for Pianoforte (Liszt); "Das Kirchlein," male quartet (Becker); Songs for Soprano; "Dankgebet," for male chorus (Kremser); First Concert of the Conservatoire (November 27): Symphony in F (Beethoven); Pater noster (Meyerbeer); Concerto for orchestra (Handel); Fragments from "Sappho" (Gounod); Overture, "Ruy Blas" (Mendelssohn). Nouveaux Concerts (November 27): Symphony in F (Gouvy); Duet from "Carmen Seculare" (Philidor); Overture, "Flying Dutchman" (Wagner); Minuet for strings (Handel); Air from "Gloires d'Italie" (Lotti); Divertissement from "Les Erinnyes" (Massenet). Châtelet Concert (November 27): "Roméo et Juliette" (Berlioz); Fragments from "Tannhäuser" (Wagner). Concert Populaire (November 27): "Le Démon de Faust" (Berlioz). Concert Populaire (December 4): Repetition of "Le Démon de Faust" (Berlioz). Châtelet Concert (December 4): Overture, "Le Pardon de Plörmel" (Meyerbeer); Fragments from "Tasse" (B. Godard); Concerto, C minor (Beethoven); Fragments from "Tannhäuser" (Wagner). Nouveaux Concerts (December 4): Symphony, C minor (Beethoven); Minuet for strings (Handel); Pianoforte Concerto (Widor); Aria for violoncello (Bach); Suite Algérienne (Saint-Saëns); Overture, "Oberon" (Weber). Conservatoire (December 11): Symphony, A minor (Mendelssohn); Choral Fantasia (Beethoven); Pianoforte Concerto, No. 4 (Saint-Saëns); Fragments from "Herculeum" (F. David); Overture, "Euryanthe" (Weber). Châtelet Concert (December 11): Anniversary of Berlioz's birth. Overture, "King Lear," Fragments from "Harold en Italie," "Sarah la Baigneuse," Fragments from "Roméo et Juliette," Second Act from "Les Troyens," Hungarian March from "Faust" (Berlioz). Nouveaux Concerts (December 11): Symphony, C minor (Beethoven); Minuet for strings (Handel); Pianoforte Concerto (Widor); Cavatine from "Flying Dutchman" (Wagner); Suite Algérienne (Saint-Saëns); Overture, "Oberon" (Weber). Concert Populaire (December 18): Symphony, C major (Haydn); "Le Soir" (Gounod); Ballet Air from "Prometheus" (Beethoven); Chorus from "Oberon" (Weber); Fragments from second act of "Tannhäuser" (Wagner). Châtelet Concert (December 18): "Carnaval Romain," Second Act from "Les Troyens," "Harold en Italie," "Sarah la Baigneuse," Trio from "L'Enfant du Christ," Fragments from "Roméo et Juliette" (Berlioz). Nouveaux Concerts (December 18): Italian Symphony (Mendelssohn); Two pieces for strings (Ch. Dancla); Air from "Magic Flute" (Mozart); Fragments from "Die Meistersinger" (Wagner); Air from "Samson" (Handel); Overture, "Michael Angelo" (Niels Gade).

Leipzig.—Festive Concert in commemoration of the Centenary of the Gewandhaus Concerts (November 25): Overture, "Zur Jubelfeier" (C. Reinecke); Prologue (R. von Gottschalk); Symphony in G (Haydn); Symphony, D minor (Schumann); Violin Concerto (Mendelssohn); Concerto for violin and viola (Mozart).

Cologne.—Concert-Gesellschaft (December 6): Overture, "Prometheus" (Beethoven); Scene and air from "Faust" (Spohr); Violin Concerto (Arnold Krug); Hymn for soprano solo, chorus, and pianoforte (Mendelssohn); Variations for Orchestra (E. Rudolph); Gipsy Melodies for Violin (Naché); Songs (Schubert, Brahms, Schnell); Orchestral Suite, "L'Arlesienne" (Bizet).

Boston.—Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Herr Henschel (November 19): Overture, Recitative, and Air from "Joseph" (Méhul); Symphony, "Eroica" (Beethoven); Songs (Rubinstein, Henschel); Overture, "Faniska" (Cherubini). Symphony Orchestra (November 26): Overture, Scherzo, and Finale, Op. 52 (Schumann); Violin Concerto (Joachim); Minuetto (Boccherini); Sinfonia in D (Ph. E. Bach). Symphony Orchestra (December 3): Overture, "Magic Flute" (Mozart); Air, "Mitrane" (Rossi); Symphony No. 4 (Beethoven); Ballet Music, "Iphigénie en Aulide" (Gluck); Air, "Abu Hassan" (Weber); Overture, "La Dame Blanche" (Boieldieu). Symphony Orchestra (December 10): Overture, "Athalie" (Mendelssohn); Violoncello Concerto (Saint-Saëns); Symphony, C minor (Brahms); Adagio for violoncello (Bargiel); "Les Préludes," symphonic poem (Liszt).

Baltimore.—Peabody Institute (November 5): String Quartet (Rubinstein); Song (Liszt); Pianoforte Quartet (Saint-Saëns). Peabody Institute (November 12): String Quartet, Op. 76, No. 2 (Haydn); Air (Mozart); Kreutzer Sonata (Beethoven). Peabody Institute (November 19): String Quartet, Op. 18, No. 6 (Beethoven); Rhapsodie Hongroise for pianoforte, No. 12 (Liszt); String Quartet (Rubinstein). Peabody Institute (November 26): String Quartet, Op. 44, No. 1 (Mendelssohn); Songs (Robert Franz); Pianoforte Trio, Op. 52, No. 3 (Rubinstein).

CORRESPONDENCE.

MALE-VOICE CHOIRS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—I have perused with the keenest interest the letters on the above subject in your issues of November and December, and can but lament with your first correspondent the decadence of male-voice part-singing in this country. A glance into musical affairs scarcely more than a generation since will suffice to show that the English glee held a far higher position in musical estimation than at present. I have before me as I write the programmes of the Antient Concerts, from 1820 to 1830, from which I note that such compositions as Dr. Callcott's "With sighs, sweet rose," Spofforth's "Mark'd you her eye?" Webbe's "Glorious Apollo," Paxton's "Breathe soft, ye winds," and many other male-voice gems were deemed not unworthy to be placed side by side with the immortal choruses of Handel, and the more classical effusions of Gluck, Spohr, Spontini, &c.

* Contributions intended for this column should indicate clearly the place and date of performance, as otherwise they cannot be inserted.

Being passionately fond of, and particularly interested in, these essentially English ornaments to the grand pillar of music, I have been at some pains to ascertain the present state of affairs in many large provincial towns with regard to male-voice singing, though the result is, I grieve to say, far from encouraging—Manchester and Bristol being, as far as I am aware, the only two towns in which periodical concerts are given of male-voice glees, albeit a faint musical flicker is occasionally perceptible in Birmingham, Liverpool, and one or two other places. In the latter city, indeed, one or two old musical glee clubs still exist—notably the Apollo, established in 1798—which, while possessing the finest library, perhaps, in the provinces, can rarely muster an attendance of more than six or seven at each fortnightly meeting during the season (October to March). These, although only private societies, may be safely taken as an index of the state of male-voice singing in the present generation.

To me it appears simply astounding that, whilst mixed-voice societies are being so rapidly formed in almost every part of England, more importance is not given to the fact that there exists an almost untold mine of wealth in the male-voice music of this country, which the enterprise of Messrs. Novello and other leading publishers has rendered accessible to the most slender purse. As if this were not enough, we are enabled to cull the choicest treasures of the German school of part-music at an equally reasonable figure. Surely, then, with such advantages, some powerful effort might be made to revive in the breasts of all musically inclined Englishmen that love for the "glee and catch" which our forefathers so frequently evinced. 'Tis a consummation devoutly to be wish'd," though, as his Royal Highness the Duke of Albany remarked in his admirable speech on English music at Manchester yesterday, "such a result can only be obtained by the enlisting of the combined sympathies of all lovers of good music."

Any movement tending in this direction must receive the commendation of all who have the welfare of English music at heart.—Yours faithfully, 28, Church Street, Liverpool, JOSEF CANTOR.

December 13, 1881.

MUSIC IN THE UNITED STATES OF COLOMBIA.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—The United States of Colombia are evidently determined not to rest on their laurels. I read in the "Official Diary" of that Republic that the Consejo Academico have passed a resolution to recommend the publication in the "Annals of Public Instruction" of a "New System of Musical Notation" invented by Señor Diego Fallon. This system appears to consist of the employment of certain letters of the alphabet (consonants) to represent sounds, with the addition of vowels to represent duration. It is not stated whether it has anything in common with the Tonic Sol-fa method. With the sanguine expressions common to the Spanish Americans, the member of the Council deputed to report on the scheme thinks that if it can be popularised and caused to take root in Colombia, the system will extend throughout the civilised world, and will become an honour to its inventor and to that country which first lent itself to its propagation. He adds, rather naïvely, that the invention can only germinate and blossom in a new country like Colombia, where an extensive professorhood accustomed to the system in present use and a large publishing industry have not created great vested interests which would unite in smothering an invention which casts aside as unnecessary much of the science and skill hitherto acquired and renders valueless large stocks on hand; and he calls on the Government on that account to give the invention greater attention, and warns them against the "egotism" of certain professors.

The resolution of the Council is as follows: "The Consejo Academico believe that the system of musical notation invented by Señor Diego Fallon, on account of the ease which it introduces into the study, as well as the reading and publication of music, is intended to replace that actually in use; that it ought to be taught in the schools side by side with that system, and they recommend that the proposed contract be entered into. The Council congratulate Señor Fallon, and recommend his system to all lovers of music and education in general."

The contract above referred to is for the purpose of assisting in the dissemination of the new method.—I remain, sir, yours faithfully, London, December 14, 1881.

C. B.

PROFESSOR MACFARREN'S ADDRESS AND MR. CORDER.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—Will you kindly permit me space for a few words concerning Professor Macfarren's recent address to the students of the Royal Academy?

Being myself a student at the Royal Academy of Music, and possessing a copy of his address exactly as it was delivered to the students, I should like to correct one or two misunderstandings of which Mr. F. Corder has availed himself somewhat freely. Professor Macfarren distinctly said that he desired no wilful disregard of present art, but merely that students should be cautious in accepting innovations upon established principles. Surely this is only the mild and natural advice which every wise and discreet artist of every age would give. He also stated that in order to arrive at a just appreciation of present art, and to understand thoroughly the productions of modern times, we need a sound knowledge of bygone masterpieces. Truly if any man has the ambition to compose an oratorio, we expect that he possesses also the ability to carry out his intentions; and if Mr. Corder wishes specially to impress on our minds the fact that we cannot compose a modern oratorio merely on the strength of our acquaintance with such works as the "Messiah," "Creation," "Elijah," &c., I may remind him, or perhaps inform him, that still more impossible would all our attempts be if we relied solely on our knowledge of present works.

If Mr. Corder so soon grows weary of such a master as Mendelssohn, he may indeed soon get to the end of art, even before he has reached the beginning.

I am, sir, yours truly,

FREDERICK K. HATTERSLEY.
48, Fitzroy Road, N.W., December 3, 1881.

SECULAR TUNES TO HYMNS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—It is impossible to draw a rigid line which shall separate music into the two classes of sacred and secular. But "O. H." deserves sympathy in his protest against the use in church of tunes which have been unfitted for it by secular association. This use is one of the ways in which the efforts, good in themselves, to "popularise" our services have overreached their object; and, so far as it goes, must tend to degrade music from its highest function in the worship of God to an expression of nothing but the liking for a pretty tune. Perhaps "O. H." may think himself fortunate if he escapes being asked to play "Believe me, if all those endearing young charms," which I heard in a church not long ago.

It is true that there are some "secular" tunes in "Hymns Ancient and Modern"; but, not having a copy at hand, I cannot refer "O. H." to the numbers. Besides, they are not familiarly associated with other words, and therefore stand on a different footing from that of tunes which are; but he might learn something about the source of them and of some other tunes in common use from the music of the "Crown of Jesus," published by Richardson, of Paternoster Row.—I am, faithfully yours,

H. E. P.

ORGANISTS AND CHOIRMASTERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—May I ask your correspondent "A London Organist" if it is not just possible that those who appointed a choirmaster "to relieve him of some of his work" may differ from him somewhat as to the efficiency of the choir, and that the pretext of relief is only a delicate mode of informing him of the fact? It is well known that a good organist does not always make a good choirmaster, and it may be so in his case; otherwise it would hardly be likely that the authorities would go to the expense of employing a choirmaster if they were satisfied of his abilities in that direction.

As to a choirmaster's duties, if "A London Organist" will consult any recognised authority he will find that the choirmaster has complete control over the music, of course subject to the vicar's approval.

I am sorry to add that, in my opinion, London abounds in good organists, while good choirmasters are scarce, and consequently good singing in church is the exception, not the rule.—Yours truly,

AN OLD ORGANIST AND CHOIRMASTER.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

ABERDEEN.—Handel's Oratorio Samson was performed by the Aberdeen Choral Union in the Music Hall, on Friday, November 24, the soloists being Miss Anna Williams, Miss Palmer, Mr. Barton M'Guckin, Signor Foli, and Mr. J. Addison Kidd. Miss Williams was highly successful in her solos, especially in "Let the bright seraphim," a better exposition of which could not have been desired. A feature, also, in the number was the trumpet accompaniment played by Mr. Wood. Miss Palmer, an old favourite in Aberdeen, made a most satisfactory appearance, and Mr. Barton M'Guckin and Signor Foli were thoroughly appreciated. Mr. Kidd was very successful in "How willing my paternal love," and well merited the encore which followed. The choruses were exceptionally good, the Choral Union having seldom been heard to better advantage. The band, led by Mr. Rae, was very efficient. Mr. Morrison presided at the organ, and Mr. Kirby conducted.

ANDOVER.—The Musical Society gave its first Concert of the season on Thursday evening, the 15th ult., before a crowded audience. The work performed was Mendelssohn's St. Paul, the whole of which was executed in a very efficient manner. The solos were rendered by the Misses Dowling, Messrs. Blandford, Hortner, Crouch, and Stagg. The choruses were sung with great precision. Mr. W. Harvey presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. G. H. Westbury at the harmonium. Mr. J. W. Chuter conducted.

BAGSHOT.—A Concert was given by the members of the Choral Class, in aid of the Institute funds, on the 14th ult., under the direction of Mr. G. Paton More, Organist of the Parish Church. The programme consisted principally of popular Scotch songs and part-songs. Two pianoforte duets were well performed by Miss Hare and Miss Alice James. The solo vocalists were Miss Sumpster, Miss J. Frimbley, Messrs. Cave, Sumpster, Lee, and Sear, all of whom gave much satisfaction to a large audience.

BECKENHAM.—A Concert in aid of the Organ Fund was given in the Congregational Church on the 8th ult., by the Organist, Mr. Arthur Wilmot, assisted by Miss Bowtree, the Misses Hart, and Mr. A. Cole, vocalists. An excellent programme, selected from works of a high standard, was well rendered. Mr. Roger Askham presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. E. W. Townley contributed concertina and horn solos. Mr. A. Wilmot, besides singing several solos, played the viola obbligato to Bach's "My heart ever faithful."

BEDFORD.—A complimentary Concert was given on November 22 to Mr. P. H. Diemer by the Bedford Musical Society, of which he has for many years been the able Conductor. No more appropriate work could have been selected for the occasion than Mr. Diemer's Cantata Bethany, which was rendered throughout with excellent effect. The solo vocalists were Miss Clara Samuell, Miss Damian, the Rev. C. H. Murphy, and Mr. Hutchinson, all of whom were most successful in the music allotted to them. The second part of the Concert was miscellaneous.

BELFAST.—The second Concert of the season given by the Philharmonic Society took place on the 9th ult., when the Society relied upon its own resources, and although the performance was intrusted to amateurs only, the programme was admirably rendered. The part-singing of the choir was a feature of the Concert. Schumann's "Gipsy Life" terminated a programme replete with interest. Herr Beyschlag conducted.

BIRMINGHAM.—Proceeding upon the plan previously laid down in the conduct of his Chamber Concerts, Mr. Stratton took advantage of the occasion to introduce in his programme for the third Concert of the present series, which took place on the 6th ult. at the Masonic Hall, works both new and old. Of the former class, the Quintet in F minor for piano and strings, by Brahms, was an excellent specimen. Great pains had evidently been bestowed upon its preparation, and the work received a very adequate rendering. Following the Brahms quintet came a Duo concertante in G major for two pianos, from the pen of Mr. Chas. E. Stephens (performed by the composer and Miss Emily Walker), which, although essentially popular in structure, exhibits Mr. Stephens as a perfectly correct writer. Nothing better as an exhibition of playing could be desired, and the unanimous recall was as much deserved as it was unreservedly admitted. The Romance in F major for violin, displayed Mr. Ward, whose labours during the evening were of no slight importance, to manifest advantage, and Chopin's Scherzo in B flat minor for the pianoforte, by Miss Emily Walker, was also highly appreciated. The Concert finished with the Otter in E flat major, for strings, one of the earlier works of Mendelssohn, the rendering of which, no less than the work itself, amply repaid those who stayed to hear it throughout. Mr. F. Ward was at the head of the instrumental department, and with him were associated Messrs. J. M. Abbott, Abbott, jun., E. W. Priestley, S. Blythe, W. Griffin, J. Owen and A. J. Priestley.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—On Tuesday, the 13th ult., the Musical Society, under the direction of Mr. Kilburn, performed Bennett's May Queen and a miscellaneous selection, including Schubert's B minor Symphony for orchestra, and Goring Thomas's Choral Ode The Sun-Worshippers, which was received with much favour. The principal artists were Miss Annie Sinclair, Mr. G. H. Welch, Mr. Frederick Bevan, Mdlle. Brouil, Mdlle. C. Brouil, and M. Brouil. Mr. W. Brotherton acted as Organist, and Mr. J. H. Brotherton as leader of the orchestra, which, with the choir, numbered 150 performers.

BOURNEMOUTH.—On Wednesday, November 30, two Concerts were given at the Town Hall, under the conductorship of Mr. Charles Hammett, Organist of St. Paul's Church. The artists engaged were Mdlle. José Sherrington, Madame Edwyn Frith, Mr. Henry Guy, Mr. Edwyn Frith, Mdlle. Adeline Dinella (violinist), and Mdlle. Brunelle (pianist), all of whom elicited much applause for their performances. The Italian band played the overtures at each Concert, that in the morning being to Don Carlos, and that in the evening to William Tell.

BRECHIN, N.B.—Mr. T. Pearson, Organist of the Cathedral, gave an Organ Recital on the 16th ult. The programme consisted of a well-rendered selection from the works of Mendelssohn, Mozart, Spohr, Handel, Wely, and Bach. The soloists were Mr. Lamond and Mr. Balfour.

BRISTOL.—Special Advent Services have been held in the Cathedral during the past month, the ordinary Cathedral choir being augmented by about 200 voices. At the service on the 1st ult. the anthem was Mendelssohn's "When Israel out of Egypt came," and on the 8th Mozart's "O God, when Thou appearest," the Magnificat and Nunc dimittis on each occasion being sung to Dr. S. S. Wesley's setting in F. On the 15th ult., in addition to the augmented choir, a very large and efficient band was engaged, and the music was excellently rendered. Handel's "Dettingen" Te Deum and Mendelssohn's Lauda Sion created a profound impression, the solos in the two works being carefully given by the members of the Cathedral choir. During the collection of the offertory Beethoven's Grand Symphony, No. 5, in C minor, was finely performed by the band. Mr. George Riseley conducted.—On Saturday, the 3rd ult., two Concerts were given in the Colston Hall by the band of the Grenadier Guards, conducted by Mr. Dan Godfrey. Miss Helen D'Alton was the vocalist.—On Monday, the 5th ult., Mr. Riseley gave his sixth Monday Popular Concert in the Colston Hall. The programme included Schubert's unfinished Symphony, No. 8, in B minor; the Overtures, "Naïades" (Sir W. S. Bennett), Les Deux Femmes (Cherubini), Masaniello (Auber), and Le Pré aux Clercs (Hérold). An oboe solo, "Lieberliedchen" (Taubert), was well given by Mr. S. Horton; and a bassoon solo, "Air varié" (F. Beer), was capably played by Mr. J. Hutchins. Mrs. A. J. Caldicott and Miss E. Lloyd were the vocalists; Mr. A. W. Waite led the band, and Mr. George Riseley conducted.—On Saturday, the 17th ult., a series of cheap Concerts for the People was inaugurated by the Bristol Musical Association in the Colston Hall. The object of the Association is to familiarise the public with the works of the great masters, and this is hoped to be done by fixing the price of admission at so low an amount (threepence) as to bring the performances within the reach of all. At this first Concert The Messiah was very well rendered by a choir of 120 voices, accompanied by a small band and the organ, at which Mr. Riseley presided. The solos were sung by Madame Pennington, Miss Kate Hayes, Mr. E. T. Morgan, and Mr. W. Thomas. The performance was conducted by Mr. George Gordon, and the hall was crowded.—On Monday, the 19th ult., the seventh Monday Popular Concert was given in the Colston Hall. Mr. Riseley's band performed the Overtures The Flying Dutchman (Wagner) and Zampa (Hérold), Weber's "L'Invitation à la Valse," Gounod's Ballet Music from Faust, under their own conductor, and a new MS. Symphony in G minor by Mr. Ebenezer Prout, who conducted the work. Mr. Walter Macfarren also attended and conducted a good performance of his Concertstück for pianoforte and orchestra, the solo instrument being taken by Miss Mary Lock. Handel's beautiful Largo was played by Mrs. Frost (harp), Mr. A. W. Waite (solo violin), Mr. Riseley (organ), and the strings of the orchestra. Miss Marianne Fenna was the vocalist.

CHELTENHAM.—Mr. J. A. Matthews's first subscription Concert for the twelfth season was held in the Assembly Rooms on Tuesday, the 6th ult. The chief work was Dr. Sullivan's Martyr of Antioch. The second part consisted of part-songs, vocal solos by the principal singers, and a pianoforte piece brilliantly performed by Mr. F. Cliffe. The sacred drama was in every respect a great success. The choruses and accompaniments were well rendered throughout, and the solos expressively sung by Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Madame Enriquez, Mr. Redfern Hollins, and Mr. Bridson. Mr. E. G. Woodward led the band, and Mr. J. A. Matthews conducted.—The Musical Society's first Concert for the present season took place on the 13th ult., when Mendelssohn's Athalie and Cowen's St. Ursula were given. The performance was highly creditable to the Society, and showed much improvement in the chorus-singing under the able conductorship of Dr. Dyer. In Athalie the Rev. H. Kynaston undertook the part of reader. The soloists were Mrs. F. Daubeney, Mrs. Ferguson, and Miss Thinkill. In St. Ursula the solos were taken by Miss Dunn, Miss Percival, the Rev. J. H. Churchill Baxter, and Mr. D'Arcy Ferris. The accompaniments were well rendered by a large and efficient band, with Mr. E. G. Woodward as leader, and Mr. A. von Holst as Organist.

CHICHESTER.—A very successful Concert was given by the Choral Society on Tuesday, the 13th ult. The first part of the programme consisted of Gounod's Gallia, followed by Mendelssohn's 42nd Psalm, the solo part in each being sustained by Miss Amy Aylward. The second part, a miscellaneous selection, included the three latter movements of Haydn's Surprise Symphony, the Polacca from Mignon (admirably rendered by Miss Aylward), and Schumann's "Gipsy Chorus." The choir, who sang in a remarkably steady manner throughout, was supported by a small orchestra, and conducted by Mr. T. E. Aylward, Organist of the Cathedral.

CLEVEDON.—The members of the Choral Society gave a Concert on Tuesday evening, the 6th ult., before a large audience. The choir, which has been greatly strengthened since the last concert, sang with commendable accuracy. The concert opened with Sullivan's Festival Te Deum, the solos being undertaken by Mrs. Caldicott, a lady with a very pure and highly cultivated voice. The programme also included the Andante from Spohr's G minor quartet for stringed instruments and Mendelssohn's Lauda Sion. The solos were beautifully rendered by Mrs. Caldicott, and thoroughly appreciated. The quartet "Ye who from His ways have turned" was admirably sung by the Misses Maxwell and Messrs. Cavill and Hudson. Mr. Marchant conducted.

CLIFTON.—On Wednesday, the 7th ult., the second of Mrs. Viner-Pomeroy's Classical Chamber Concerts was given in the Victoria Rooms. The executants were Mr. Henry Holmes (first violin), Mr. M. Rice (second violin), Mr. Alfred Burnett (viola), Mr. J. Pomeroy (violin-cello), and Mrs. Viner-Pomeroy (pianoforte).

DEVONPORT.—The first of a series of three promenade Concerts given on the 13th ult., in the new Public Hall, by Mr. F. Holt, was musically a decided success. The vocalists were Miss Annie Marriott, Miss Edith Miller, and Mr. C. Abercrombie. Miss Florence Holt contributed a pianoforte solo, and Mr. Clemens was the accompanist. The military and orchestral band of the 2nd battalion South Lancashire Regiment, under Mr. Light's conductorship, rendered valuable service during the evening.

DEWSBURY.—The new organ built by Messrs. Conacher and Co., of Huddersfield, for St. Matthew's Church, West Town, was opened on Thursday, the 1st ult. The services were well attended. Mr. W. Dawson, of Liverpool, officiated at the morning service, and gave a Recital upon the organ, which was listened to with great interest. The offertories for the day were devoted to the organ fund.

DOVER.—The first Concert of the Dover College Musical Society under their new Conductor, Mr. C. F. Abdy Williams, was given in the College Hall on the 14th ult. Some of Mendelssohn's Part-songs and "Great Dagon" (Samson) were well sung by the choir; and the College Orchestra, with the assistance of some past members of the Cambridge University Musical Society, performed Haydn's Toy Symphony and a March written for them by the Conductor. The rest of the programme consisted of some violin and violoncello solos, movements from string quartets, and glees.

DUBLIN.—The St. George's Choral Union gave its first Concert on the 16th ult. in the Parochial Hall. The programme commenced with the Kyrie from Mozart's Twelfth Mass. Gounod's song "Nazareth" was well sung by Mr. Dix, and the first part concluded with selections from The Messiah. The second part, which was secular, included Locke's Macbeth music. The glees were well sung by Messrs. Williams, Wentworth, Wood, Nelson, and Dix. This Society, which has been recently established, consists of seventy members, and from the manner in which the choruses and part-songs were sung, it was evident that much care and attention had been bestowed on the rehearsals by the Conductor, Mr. Charles F. Phillips, Organist of St. George's Church. Mr. Marks, Organist of St. Bartholomew's Church, presided at the pianoforte.

DUNEDIN, N.Z.—The first Subscription Concert of the Musical Union took place on October 28. The principal item in the programme was Sir M. Costa's Serenata, The Dream, performed for the first time in Dunedin. The work was well sung, and much appreciated by the audience. The rest of the programme consisted of part-songs, songs, and pianoforte solos, of which the most noticeable were "At the eastern gate" (B. Tours), "Good-morrow" (A. Zimmermann), and "Footsteps of angels" (C. A. Macrone). Mr. Arthur J. Towsey conducted.

EASTBOURNE.—In attempting a performance of Samson, Dr. Sangster undertook a task the magnitude of which can only be duly appreciated by those who know anything at all of the difficulties of drilling amateur singers in elaborate oratorio music, particularly when the composition is unfamiliar; and the highly creditable way in which the work was, as a whole, rendered at the Pavilion, Devonshire Park, on Monday evening, November 28, reflected much credit upon all concerned. The solos were allotted to Miss Catherine Penna, Miss Dones, Mrs. John Easter, Mr. Charles Chiley, and Mr. Sydney Beckley, all of whom were highly effective. Miss Roper presided at the piano, and Mr. Hayes acted as leader of the orchestra. Of the choruses, "Awake the trumpet's lofty sound," "Then round about the starry throne," "Fixed in His everlasting seat" and "Let their celestial concerts" were entitled to the warmest praises. The band was fairly good, and the applause throughout was most demonstrative.

EDINBURGH.—The members of the Nicolson Street Church Musical Association gave a performance of Handel's oratorio, Saul, in the Music Hall, on Tuesday, November 29, under the direction of their Conductor, Mr. J. B. Shaw. The solo vocalists were Misses Outerson, Allan, and M. D. Kennedy, Messrs. James Reid, Spaven, and Conochie, and the choir numbered about seventy voices. A small string orchestra, with Mr. Daly as leader, assisted in the performance, and Mr. J. S. Anderson, Mus. Bac., was Organist. As a rule the choral numbers were rendered with steadiness and a degree of expression that indicated careful rehearsal. The important organ part in the overture and accompaniments was admirably played by Mr. Anderson. Mr. Shaw conducted with tact and judgment.—Sir Herbert Oakeley gave his first Organ Recital this session in the Music Class-room, on the 1st ult. The hall was crowded, the larger portion of the audience being students, who gave Sir Herbert a warm welcome. The performance of the programme was excellent, and the selection and combination of the stops showed great taste. In Haydn's air "In native worth" the tenor voice part was effectively imitated in pitch and in timbre by a 16-ft. reed on the swell organ; and in the "Quis est homo" (Rossini) the soprano and contralto voices were respectively represented by an 8-ft. reed on the swell and on the solo organ.

FARNHAM.—A Promenade Concert and Fancy Sale was held on the 16th ult. at the Town Hall. The fine band of the Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry played a selection of excellent music in first-rate style under the conductorship of Mr. M. Gould, the bandmaster. Madame Edith Murray was the principal vocalist. The proceeds were devoted to the Congregational Church Organ Fund.

GAINSBOROUGH.—Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise and Rossini's Stabat Mater were performed by the Choral Union in the Temperance Hall on the 15th ult. Miss Lily Mason, Miss Lily Parratt, Mr. E. Dunkerton, and Mr. A. McCall were the principal vocalists. Mr. George Robinson was the Conductor.

GREENOCK.—In the Town Hall, on the 2nd ult., before a large audience, was given the first Concert of the season by the members of the Greenock Choral Union. The choir, which numbered about 100 voices, was ably assisted by several soloists of marked ability and by an orchestra of professional instrumentalists. This year the Association is under the conductorship of Mr. D. Middleton, the Organist of the Mid Parish Church, who is to be congratulated on the state of proficiency to which he has brought the chorus, and on the success which attended this the first Concert of the season. The programme consisted of Sterndale Bennett's May Queen and a miscellaneous selection. The choruses were rendered in a highly satisfactory manner, and the soloists acquitted themselves admirably. Altogether the concert was a decided success.

HALIFAX.—On Thursday evening, November 24, a complimentary Concert was given in the Mechanics' Hall to Mr. Herbert F. Sharpe, a promising student of the National Training School of Music. The hall was crowded by a very appreciative audience. The artists were Miss Annie Marriott, Mr. Frederic King, Herr Hugo Daubert, Mr. Ernest Crooke, Mr. Herbert F. Sharpe, and Mr. W. R. Eckersley. The selections, which were chiefly classical, were received with the greatest enthusiasm. A pianoforte solo of Mr. Sharpe's, played by the composer, was most successful.—On Thursday, the 8th ult., Dr. Roberts gave his sixth Organ Recital in the Parish Church, the offertory being towards the churchwardens' expenses. The programme was well selected and excellently rendered.

HARROGATE.—The members of the Choral Society gave their second Concert on the 13th ult. in the Spa Concert Rooms, when Handel's Acis and Galatea occupied the first part of the programme. The solo vocalists were Miss Tomlinson, Mr. W. Coates, Mr. Jarvis Grimshaw, and Mr. Arthur Grimshaw. The choruses on the whole were satisfactorily given. The second part consisted of part-songs, &c., and a pianoforte solo by Master W. Cooke. Mr. R. S. Burton conducted.

HAWICK, N.B.—Mr. W. F. Fiddes-Wilson gave a successful Organ Recital in St. John's Church, on Wednesday evening, the 7th ult., assisted by Miss Laura Smart and Mr. Charles Taylor. The programme was selected from the works of Bach, Handel, Mozart, Schubert, and Mendelssohn. Miss Smart produced a profound impression by her rendering of "Angels ever bright and fair," "Let the bright seraphim," and "I know that my Redeemer liveth," and Mr. Taylor's solo "Honour and arms" was well sung.

HEREFORD.—At the first Subscription Concert given by the Hereford Choral Society since its new management there was a larger audience than ever assembled together since the commencement of the Society in 1838. The principal vocalists were Miss Annie Williams, Miss Hilda Wilson, Mr. Harper Kearton, and Mr. Burgon. The band of the Society was considerably augmented by professional players, and, with the choir, consisted of more than 120 performers. The work performed was Sterndale Bennett's May Queen, which was rendered in a highly satisfactory manner; the audience, which numbered nearly a thousand, received the composition with enthusiastic applause. The second part was miscellaneous, and, besides several vocal solos, included Goss's glee "There is beauty on the mountain" and Pearsall's part-song "Allan-a-Dale" by the Society. Mr. Langdon Colborne, Organist of the Cathedral, conducted, and Mr. Mason and Mr. Reynolds presided at the pianoforte and American organ respectively. Handel's Acis and Galatea will be performed at the next Concert.

HERNE.—On Advent Sunday a series of Special Advent Services was commenced at the ancient church of St. Martin, Herne. The services throughout the day were fully choral, the accompaniments being rendered by a small orchestra under the direction of Mr. E. Norwood, of Margate, in addition to the organ. At Evensong the service used was Bunnett in F, and the anthem "O Lord, have mercy" (Pergolesi), the solo being well sung by Mr. H. Scott. The services throughout were of an excellent character, and reflected the greatest credit on Mr. Fawcett, the Organist and Choirmaster.

HULL.—The first Concert of the seventh season of the St. Cecilia Society was given on Wednesday evening, the 14th ult., in the Exchange Hall. The principal vocalists were Miss Farbstein, Madame Evans-Warwick, Mr. J. Percy Palmer, and Mr. T. B. Tomlinson. Mr. James H. Rooks conducted. The first part of the programme consisted of J. F. Barnett's Cantata, Paradise and the Peri, which was well performed.

JEDBURGH, N.B.—Mr. Frederic Hyde gave an Organ Recital in the Parish Church, on Thursday, the 15th ult., before a crowded audience, the pieces being selected from the works of Bach, Handel, Guilman, Wely, and Henry Smart, all of which were admirably rendered. Vocal solos from Judas Maccabaeus, Jephtha, Elijah, St. Paul, and from Dr. Armes's Oratorio Hezekiah were contributed by Miss Rawdin, Miss Anderson, Mr. Balfour, Mr. Pringle, and Mr. R. Young, and well received.

KENDAL.—The members of the Choral Society gave a Concert on the 5th ult., in St. George's Hall, which was crowded. The performance consisted of Handel's Oratorio Samson. The principal vocalists were Madame Carina Clelland, Miss Wakefield, Mr. Welch, and Mr. George Allen. The band and chorus numbered over one hundred performers. The Oratorio was excellently rendered, and much applauded by an appreciative audience. Mr. W. B. Armstrong and Mr. W. Smallwood conducted.

LEEDS.—At Dr. Spark's Free Organ Recital, in the Town Hall, on Saturday evening, the 10th ult., the audience was both large and appreciative. A well-varied programme, including one of Mozart's symphonies, was excellently rendered. Under the auspices of the Leeds Amateur Orchestral Society, a Concert was given in the Albert Hall Mechanics' Institution, on Saturday evening, the 10th ult. The Society has recently secured the valuable services, as Conductor, of Mr. J. P. Bowling, under whom the members are now making most satisfactory progress. Beethoven's Symphony No. 1 was capitally played by the band, as were also the Overture to Mozart's Figaro and the War March of the Priests from Mendelssohn's Athalie. The vocalists were Miss Woods, who sang several songs very effectively, Mr. Herbert Ramsden, and Mr. H. J. Coldwell. A feature of the Concert was the performance of two solos on the violin by Mr. Carrodus. Mr. Bowling gave a fantasia by Thalberg, on the pianoforte, which was highly appreciated.—The Leeds Orchestral Society gave its first Concert for the season at the Church Institute, on the 16th ult. The band numbered nearly fifty performers, and played the Overtures to La Gazza Ladra and Les Sirènes and Haydn's "Military Symphony" in a highly creditable manner. The soloists were Mrs. Alfred Broughton, Miss Maggie Critchley (violin), Mr. Alfred Broughton (piano), and Mr. J. Sydney Jones, jun. (clarinet). Mr. J. Sydney Jones conducted.

LIVERPOOL.—A Concert was given in the Lecture Hall attached to St. David's Church on Wednesday, November 30, before a large audience. The artists were Miss Hughes, Miss Dempster, Miss Bryan, Mr. Binning, and Mr. Pedder (vocalists); and the Misses Samuelson contributed some pianoforte duets. The church choir and glee party added materially to the enjoyment of the evening; accompanists, Miss Sumner and Mr. Foxley; Conductor, Mr. Wm. Arvon Parry. A song, with chorus, composed expressly for the occasion by Mr. Parry, was effectively sung by Miss Hughes and encoired. The Concert was very successful.—Mr. James J. Monk opened the new organ in the Derby Road Presbyterian Church, Bootle (built by Messrs. Booth and Hepworth), on Thursday evening, the 8th ult. An excellent programme was provided.

MANCHESTER.—Mr. W. Gouk gave a Concert in the Town Hall on Tuesday, the 13th ult. The artists were Miss Miriam Miner and Messrs. E. Marriott, E. Longmore, H. Sunman, and J. Bingley Shaw. Solo violin and accompanist, Mr. A. Marriott.

MARGATE.—A Concert was given on the 12th ult. by the Cliftonville Choral Society, the proceeds being devoted to the reduction of the debt on St. Paul's Church. Gade's Erl-King's Daughter formed the first part, the solos being taken by Madame Pyne-Galton, Miss Martlock, and Mr. Kemp. The second part was miscellaneous, and included a pianoforte solo by Miss Oram, and a duet for violin and double-bass by Mr. Cecil Gann and Mr. White. Mr. J. W. Pearson conducted, and between the parts was presented with a silver-mounted ivory bâton, subscribed for by members of the choral class and other friends.

NEWARK.—The opening Concert of the Amateur Choral Society for the present season was given on Tuesday evening, the 13th ult., and was a most unequivocal success. Sir W. Bennett's Cantata The May Queen formed the main attraction, and received thorough justice at the hands of both principals and chorus. Mrs. Daglish, who took the character of the May Queen, sang most charmingly, and fully sustained the high reputation she has gained in Newark. Miss Phillips was also very successful in the music allotted her. Mr. Gregory and Mr. Dyer were exceptionally good in the tenor and bass solos. Mr. Reay conducted, and Mr. Hamilton White, of Retford, presided ably at the pianoforte.

NEWCASTLE.—The Members of the Society for Performing Chamber Music gave their sixth Concert on the 12th ult., in the Assembly Rooms. The artists were Mr. Henry Holmes, violin; Mr. A. Gibson, second violin; Mr. Burnett, viola; Mr. Ed. Howell, violoncello; and Miss Newman, vocalist. Mr. Marshall H. Bell was the accompanist.

NEW MALDEN AND COOMBE.—A Concert given here on November 29, by Madame Robinson, had, in addition to an attractive programme, the merit of introducing two débütantes—Senorita Juanita Cortés and Miss Lily Marston, both pupils of the beneficiaire. Senorita Cortés has a contralto voice of power and sweetness, and Miss Marston a pure and flexible soprano. Both ladies evinced careful training, and were deservedly encoired in several of their performances. The other solo vocalists were Mr. H. Nash and Mr. S. Gray, both of whom were very successful; Mr. Gray's artistic rendering of Blumenthal's song "Across the far blue hills, Marie" gaining much applause. Mr. Ernest Crooke, a young violinist of ability, performed Mendelssohn's Concerto, and also took part in two Sonatas for violin and pianoforte, the part for the latter instrument being brilliantly executed by Madame Robinson. The programme was varied by several part-songs, which were given with good effect.

NORTH ELHAM.—On Tuesday evening, the 16th ult., a successful Concert was given in the Schoolroom, which was well filled. The solo singers were Mrs. Stubings, Mrs. Vores, and Messrs. Slater and Martin. The choir sang throughout the evening with a precision and accuracy which testified to the care bestowed upon its training. Mr. Slater accompanied on the pianoforte, and the Rev. W. L. Appleford on the harmonium. All the songs and pieces were well received, and many encoired. The Dereham Quintet Party also played two instrumental numbers in excellent style.

NORWICH.—The Norwich Quartet Party, consisting of Messrs. Asker, Claburn, Cropley, and Mallett, gave the first of a series of Concerts for charitable purposes in the Young Men's Room, Oxford Street, on Thursday, the 8th ult., the proceeds being for the Church of St. Peter, Mancroft. A capital programme was arranged, which gave the greatest satisfaction to a crowded audience. The vocalists were Miss Alice Roach, Miss Luckett, Miss Alden, and Messrs. Claburn and R. J. Mallett. A feature of the evening was the performance by Dr. Bunnett of a pianoforte solo of his own composition. The Quartet Party rendered the glees in a most artistic manner. Mr. S. Bennett accompanied.

OLDHAM.—On Wednesday evening, the 14th ult., a Concert was given in Rock Street Schoolroom before a numerous audience. The soloists were Miss Greaves, Miss S. Greaves, Messrs. Tom Smith, Moss, Jos. Greaves, Percy Peplow, Fennell, and Master Jas. Brett; accompanists, Miss S. Greaves and Mr. J. Greaves.

OXFORD.—Mr. William Carter's Cantata Placida, the Christian Martyr, was performed by the Vocal Union in the Boys' Schoolroom, Cowley Road, on Wednesday evening, the 14th ult. The artists were Miss Hellis (a pupil of the composer), Miss Alice White, Mr. Hodgson, Mr. Grice, and Mr. Jellicoe, all of whom were highly successful. The choruses were exceedingly well sung, and great credit is due to the Society and the Conductor (Mr. Fryer) for the trouble which must have been bestowed upon them. The second part of the programme consisted of a miscellaneous selection.

PRESTON.—Mr. J. J. Greaves, on Sunday, the 11th ult., completed his jubilee year of service as Organist at the Parish Church. During his career the venerable gentleman has had more distinguished notice than falls to the lot of most men in his position. He has had the honour of playing before many celebrated personages, he accompanied Samuel Wesley, father of the late Dr. S. S. Wesley, when the former opened the organ at St. Peter's Church, Birmingham, and was by the side of Mendelssohn when the latter played both his pianoforte and organ concertos in the same town. In later years a warm personal friendship existed between Mr. Greaves and Mr. H. Smart, and the latter cordially recommended our Preston organist as his successor at Blackburn. Mr. Greaves, however, preferred to remain with his Preston friends, and it is to be hoped that his official connection with the Parish Church may long continue.

RADCLIFFE.—The second Concert of the season given by the members of the Bury Philharmonic Society took place on the 9th ult. at the Athenæum. There was a large attendance. Mr. J. C. Whitehead conducted with his usual ability, and Mr. H. Sedgwick acted as leader of the band. The vocalists were Miss Bessie Holt and Mr. J. Maas. The programme consisted of selections of a popular character, all of which were highly appreciated. Miss Holt possesses a soprano voice of excellent quality, and her songs were enthusiastically received.

RICHMOND.—A very successful Concert was given on the 19th ult. by Miss Harriet Kendall, assisted by several eminent artists. Vocal and instrumental selections from the works of Mozart, Schumann, Mendelssohn, and Beethoven were comprised in the programme, and the beneficiaire contributed, in addition to other songs, a very meritorious composition of her own, entitled "Out in the street," which was sung with much pathos and artistic feeling, and warmly encoired.

RIPON.—The Musical Society gave its first Concert this season in the Trinity Church Schoolroom on the 14th ult., when Haydn's Spring was performed before an appreciative audience. The soloists were Miss E. Stephenson, Mr. J. J. Simpson, and Mr. A. McCall. The second part comprised part-songs, duets, and solos by members of the Society and the above mentioned artists, and a pianoforte solo by Mr. E. J. Crow, the Conductor.

ROCHDALE.—On Tuesday evening, November 29, the Choral Society gave the first of a series of concerts. The programme comprised Mozart's Twelfth Mass and "Autumn" from Haydn's Seasons. The accompaniments were well played by the pianoforte by Mr. A. Whipp, and on the harmonium by Mr. E. B. Petrie. The solos were well rendered, and the singing of the choir reflected much credit on the training of the Conductor, Mr. Myerscough.—On Thursday evening, the 1st ult., Mr. B. C. Crossley, of Heywood, gave an Organ Recital on the new organ (built by Messrs. Wadsworth and Maskell, of Leeds) in the Baptist Chapel, West Street. The programme was well selected, and effectively displayed the qualities of the instrument.

ROCHESTER.—Dr. Bridge's Cantata Boadicea was performed at the first Concert given this season by the Choral Society, on the 5th ult., and achieved a complete success. The performance was given under specially interesting circumstances, both the composer and Mr. Maas, who sang the principal tenor music, being natives of Rochester, and the band being mainly composed, for the first time at these Concerts, of a strong contingent from the Crystal Palace band. Miss Annie Marriott sang the music allotted to Boadicea with much dramatic power, Mr. Frederic King gave an effective rendering of that of the Druid, and Mr. Maas, as already indicated, sang that of the Centurion, making a special success in the air "O glorious city." Mrs. Leonard also gave valuable aid in a short recitative. At the conclusion of the Cantata Dr. Bridge, who had conducted with much ability, was loudly applauded. The second part of the Concert was miscellaneous, and included songs contributed by the artists above named, two choruses (effectively sung by the Society), and the Overture to William Tell, splendidly played by the orchestra. Miss Kappey acted as accompanist, and the second part was conducted by the Rev. W. H. Nutter.

SABDEN, LANCASHIRE.—Mr. T. Sharples gave his third annual Ballad Concert in the British School on Saturday evening, the 3rd ult., before a large audience. The vocalists were Miss Bessie Holt, Miss Edith Clelland, Mr. H. W. Varley, and Mr. Gudgeon. Miss Holt received a hearty encore for her rendering of the scena, "Softly sighs" (Weber); Miss Edith Clelland and Messrs. Varley and Gudgeon were also very successful in their songs. Mr. E. Sagar was the accompanist.

SALISBURY.—The second Concert of the season of the Sarum Choral Society was given at the Assembly Rooms on Wednesday evening, the 7th ult., before a large audience. The programme included Barnett's Cantata The Building of the Ship, Mendelssohn's Italian Symphony, a violin solo by M. Buziau, the Overture to Masaniello, &c. The principal vocalists were Miss Amy Aylward, Miss Emilie Lloyd, Mr. Harper Kearton, and Mr. Lucas Williams. The orchestra, numbering thirty-six performers, received warm applause at the conclusion of the symphony. Mr. W. P. Aylward conducted.

SHAW.—On Thursday, the 15th ult., the Apollo Musical Society gave its second Concert this season, in the Co-operative Hall, Beal Lane, with great success. The soloists were Messrs. Percy Peplow, Tom Smith, Wyld, Springthorpe, Greaves, Parks, &c. The accompanist was Mr. J. Greaves, whose orchestral band occupied the orchestra.

SHEFFIELD.—The members of the Hanover Choral Society held their annual Musical Festival on Monday, November 28, in Hanover Chapel, Hanover Street, and gave a performance of Schubert's Song of Miriam, Dr. Wesley's anthem The Wilderness, and Rossini's Stabat Mater. The choir, which numbered about forty voices, sang with spirit, under the able command of the Conductor, Mr. Thomas Morton, who has brought the Society into a state of considerable efficiency. The solo in Schubert's song was well rendered by Miss Arthur. In The Wilderness the solos were sustained by Miss Arthur, Miss Lloyd, and Messrs. Royle and Bagshaw; and those in the Stabat Mater by Miss Arthur, Mrs. Davidson, Messrs. Royle, Woodhead, Bagshaw, Roberts, and Berry. Mr. J. H. Kirk accompanied on the organ, and Signor Ginesi on the pianoforte. Mr. Kirk also played two organ pieces.

SILVERDALE.—A most successful performance of Handel's Judas Maccabæus was given on the 19th ult. by the Choral Society, before a large and appreciative audience. The soloists were the Misses Yates, Mr. Kemp, and Mr. M'Call. Great praise is due to Mr. F. Mountford, the Conductor, for the manner in which the choruses were sung; and Mr. Sherratt efficiently accompanied on the organ.

STANNINGLEY.—A performance of Handel's Messiah was given on Tuesday, the 13th ult., in the Wesleyan Chapel. The principals were Miss Clara Jovett, Miss Lily Parratt, Mr. H. Parratt, and Mr. Walker Singleton, with a choir of eighty voices selected from the district and the Leeds and Bradford Festival Chorus. The choruses were all excellently rendered, especially "Glory to God" and "Worthy is the Lamb." Mr. Moore conducted admirably, and Mr. P. A. Strickland was an able accompanist on the organ.

STEVENAGE.—On Monday, the 5th ult., the Amateur Musical Society connected with the above district gave its fifth annual Concert in the Public Hall. The programme consisted of Benedict's St. Cecilia's Day and Bunnett's Out of the Deep. The former work was well rendered, especially the choruses for female voices. The contralto air, "Father, whose blessing," was charmingly sung by Miss Wiles, and encored; and Miss Mina Sheppard, who represented the heroine of the Cantata, was in excellent voice, and enthusiastically received. Messrs. Toll and Salmon were also highly successful in their respective parts. Mrs. Salmon presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. Seymour at the harmonium. Mr. Wurr, who by his energetic efforts has raised the Society to its present efficiency, conducted.

STRATFORD.—On the 5th ult. a successful Concert was given in the Town Hall for the benefit of Miss James, blind vocalist at St. Paul's, Stratford. The chief successes of the evening were two pianoforte pieces by Miss Louis (Gold Medalist L.A.M.), and two violin solos by Mdlle. Cecile Elieson. Vocal solos were also contributed by Miss Gower and Mr. Ashplant.

SUNDERLAND.—Mr. G. F. Vincent gave another Organ Recital at the Victoria Hall on Saturday afternoon, the 10th ult., when Miss Helen McLeod, prize pupil of the National Training School of Music, made her début as a vocalist, and met with an enthusiastic reception. There was an excellent programme of organ music, the whole of which was interpreted by Mr. Vincent with his usual skill.

SYDNEY, N.S.W.—The Musical Union gave an excellent performance of Costa's Oratorio Eli on September 17 last. The choir numbered about 100 voices, and the solo vocalists—Miss Annie Montague, Miss Marie St. Clair, Mr. Charles Turner, Mr. John Bushelle, and Mr. E. J. Hollingdale—were highly efficient throughout. Mr. Sydney Moss conducted, Mr. Banks presided at the organ, and Mr. Kent at the pianoforte. In every respect the concert was a marked success.

TENBY.—On Friday, the 2nd ult., Mendelssohn's Elijah was given before a large audience. The principals were Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Madame Enriquez, and Messrs. Hollins and Bridson. The performance was very successful and gave much satisfaction. At the last rehearsal Mr. J. R. Rowlands, on behalf of the chorus, presented Mr. W. Terence Jenkins, the Conductor, with a very handsome gold-mounted ivory bâton as a mark of esteem and hearty appreciation of his work.

TIMSBURY.—On Monday evening, the 5th ult., a miscellaneous Concert was given in the National Schoolroom. The artists were Mrs. Evens, Mrs. Gieve, Mr. North, Mr. Fergus Asquith, and Mr. Taylor. Miss Florence Fear presided at the pianoforte, Mr. C. S. Oxley at the American organ, and Mr. W. Gold was violinist. The programme was carefully selected and excellently rendered. There was a large and appreciative audience. The proceeds were devoted to the New Classroom Building Fund.

TROWBRIDGE.—The second of the series of Subscription Concerts for the present season was given on November 29, when Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Madame Enriquez, Mr. Redfern Hollins, and Mr. Bridson were the vocalists, and Mr. F. Cliffe solo pianist. The performance was highly satisfactory, and reflected great credit on the concert-giver, Mr. H. Millington.

WATFORD.—An evening Concert, in aid of the funds of the School of Music, took place on the 15th ult. The programme consisted of music of a high order, and was much appreciated by the audience. Miss Brooks, Miss Hyam, and Mr. W. Marshall were very successful in their various vocal solos, and Herr Kummer (violin), Mr. H. Baumer (piano), and Mr. W. Graves (cornet), elicited much applause and several encores. The School of Music is doing good work in the neighbourhood, and Mr. W. A. Barrett's report of his examination of the pupils in July last was very satisfactory. Much credit is due to the energetic Secretary, Miss Brooks, for her continued exertions to promote the study and practice of good music.

WHITTESLEY.—On Wednesday, the 14th ult., the Choral Society gave its first Concert of the season in the New Hall. The principal vocalists were Miss Eliza Thomas, R.A.M., and Mr. J. Bingley Shaw. The band and choir were conducted by Mr. Slater with care and judgment. The Peterborough Quartet also gave a few selections. The hall was crowded.

WINDSOR.—The Windsor and Eton Choral Society commenced its fortieth season with a performance of Haydn's Creation on Thursday, the 1st ult., in the Albert Institute, before a large audience. The soloists were Miss Philippini Siedle, Mr. Gawthrop, and Mr. Thurley Beale; the Conductor being Sir George Elvey, with Mr. J. S. Little as leader of the band—Mr. H. R. Couldrey presiding at the harmonium.

The performance of the Oratorio reflected great credit upon the members of the Society, the careful attention bestowed upon its preparation by the sub-director, Mr. S. Smith, being evidenced by the excellent manner in which the choruses were given. Those calling for special notice were "The marvellous work" and "The heavens are telling," the solo in the first mentioned being given by Miss Siedle, who also elicited warm and well-deserved applause for her rendering of the airs "With verdure clad" and "On mighty pens." Mr. Gawthrop deserved every praise for undertaking the tenor music at almost an hour's notice, through the sudden indisposition of Mr. T. W. Hanson (of St. Paul's), who had been announced. All his solos were well given, especially the air "In native worth." Mr. Thurley Beale was also most successful in the music allotted to him, being particularly effective in "Rolling in foaming billows" and in the grand air "Now heaven in fullest glory shone." The band and chorus, composed entirely of members of the Society, numbered 105.

WORCESTER.—The Worcestershire Musical Union gave its fourth Concert in the Guildhall, on the 13th ult., before a large audience. The programme consisted of Bennett's Woman of Samaria, and a miscellaneous selection, including four excerpts from Mendelssohn's music to A Midsummer Night's Dream. Bennett's charming work was well performed, the choir singing admirably in the choruses, and the Hon. Spencer Lyttelton rendering the bass recitatives and solos in excellent style. In the second part Schubert's Erl-King was well sung by William Anstice, Esq., and the orchestra gave a capital rendering of the Larghetto from Beethoven's second Symphony and the Notturmo from A Midsummer Night's Dream. The Rev. E. V. Hall, Precentor of Worcester Cathedral, officiated as Conductor. The Concert was highly successful.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. Charles Edward Melville, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Philip's Church, Leeds.—Mr. Frederick Williams, Organist and Choirmaster to Holy Trinity Church, Chelsea.—Mr. William Henry Whitmore, Organist and Choirmaster to St. John's Presbyterian Church, Tottenham.—Mr. John William Oxley, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church, Galashiels, Scotland.—Mr. Charles P. Hopkins to Trinity College Chapel.—Mr. William Stansfield, Organist and Choirmaster to St. John's Church, Oldham.—Mr. Horton Corbett, Organist and Director of the Choir to St. Peter's, Eltham Road, Lee.

CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. Laurence Gibson, Choirmaster to Streatham Hill Congregational Church.—Mr. P. H. Vine (Tenor) to St. Peter's Church, Cranley Gardens, South Kensington.—Mr. Henry Hoare (Alto), to St. George's-in-the-East, E.—Mr. J. Maude Crament, Mus. Bac., Oxon., Choirmaster to Brompton Church.

MISS CLARA MARNI (Soprano).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 32, Newton Green, N.

MR. W. H. BRERETON (Bass).

8, Mecklenburgh Street, W.C.

MR. CHAS. FREDERICKS, R.A.M. (Tenor).

(Principal, Hereford Cathedral.) Terms for Oratorios, Concerts, &c., together with critiques for 1880-81, and references to the Conductors of twenty-seven Musical Societies, will be forwarded on application. Engaged: December 31, Cheltenham; January 10, Bristol ("Messiah"); 19, Malvern ("Messiah"); 20, Ross (Miscellaneous); 21, Birmingham Town Hall (Ballad); 26, Ledbury ("Judas Maccabæus"); Bristol ("Samson"); February 6, Penzance (Ballad); 7, St. Austell (Ballad); 8, Camborne (Ballad); March 18, Birmingham Town Hall (Ballad); Llanidloes, Montgomery, Welshpool, and Builth, pending for first week in February. Address, as above, or 42, Shelgate Road, Clapham Junction, London, S.W.

MR. EDWARD DALZELL (Tenor, Westminster Abbey)

is open to accept ENGAGEMENTS for Oratorio, Classical or Ballad Concerts, &c. Address, 2, Woodside Terrace, Mallinon Road, Wandsworth Common, S.W.

A FIRST-CLASS SOLO TENOR, of eight years'

Cathedral experience, desires an APPOINTMENT for Sunday duty, in or near London. Could also attend one or two services in the week. Undeniable testimonials as to voice and ability. Address, Cathedral, Messrs. Novello, Ewer & Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MUSICAL PROFESSION.—To the CLERGY,

&c.—Mr. W. de M. SERGISON, Organist of St. Peter's, Eaton Square, has a VACANCY for a Young Gentleman as ARTICLED PUPIL. The highest advantages for training as a Church musician. Apply to the Vestry, St. Peter's, Eaton Square, S.W.

THE ORGANIST of St. Peter's, Eltham Road,

will shortly have a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL. One able to take a plain service preferred. Address, Mr. Horton Corbett, 1, Oxford Terrace, Burnt Ash Lane, Lee, Kent.

PIANOFORTE LESSONS given by a Lady

(certificated, R.A.M.) Terms, £2 2s. for a course of twelve. Address, K., 20, Windsor Road, Holloway, N.

WANTED, an ORGANIST, for St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Aberdeen. Applications to be lodged with Mr. Muill, Advocate, City Buildings, Aberdeen, on or before January 20, 1882.

WANTED, for the Country, a First-class PIANO-

FORTE and HARMONIUM TUNER. Constant employment. Apply, inclosing photo., &c., No. 100, Novello, Ewer and Co.

JUNIOR PIANOFORTE TUNER WANTED,

for Liverpool. Apply, personally or by letter, to C. Jefferys, 67, Berners Street.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO, EWER &amp; CO.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S PIANOFORTE ALBUMS. Edited by BERTHOLD TOURS. Nos. 7 and 8. Marches. 1s. each. For list of Contents see p. 4.

SCHUMANN, R.—"Mignon's Requiem" ("Wilhelm Meister"). The words translated from the German of Goethe by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK. 8vo, 1s.

WEBER, C. M. VON.—"Preciosa." Choruses only. 8vo, 6d.

CALKIN, J. BAPTISTE.—(in G). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis (Composed for the Dedication Festival at St. Paul's Cathedral, 1882). 8vo, 6d.

COVINGTON, J.—(In F). Te Deum for Parochial Choirs. 8vo, 3d.

DYE, ALFRED J.—(in G). Te Deum. 8vo, 4d.

GREENWOOD, J.—(in C). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 8vo, 4d.

ROBERTS, DR. J. V.—(in G). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. Short Festival Service. 8vo, 6d.

SEWELL, JOHN.—(in C). The Apostles' Creed. 8vo, 3d.

MARRIOTT, ARTHUR.—Christmas Carol ("Sweet Mary mild") for Men's Voices. Post 8vo, 1d.

NOVELLO'S TONIC SOL-FA SERIES.
No. 134. Lord, for Thy tender mercies' sake. R. FARRANT 1d.
135. Behold, I bring you good tidings. Sir JOHN GOSS 1d.
136. Sing unto the Lord. V. NOVELLO ... .. 1d.

ALLEN, ALFRED.—"Dickory, dickory, dock." Humorous Glee. 8vo, 4d.

BEHREND, A. H.—(Novello's Octavo Trios for Female Voices. Nos. 123, 124, and 125). "The Voice of Spring." Poetry by Mrs. HEMANS. 3d.—"Fancy." Poetry by J. KEATS. 3d.—"Haymakers." Poetry by JOHN FORD. 3d.

CROWDER, C. F.—"Sleep calmly." Part-Song (S.A.T.B.). 8vo, 3d.

FARMER, JOHN.—(Harrow School Songs). Latin Songs. 8vo, 6d.

STIDOLPH, HAROLD E.—"Around the throne of England." Part-Song (S.A.T.B.). 8vo, 4d.

SUTTON, ALFRED J.—"The Sea-King." Part-Song (S.A.T.B.). Poetry by BARRY CORNWALL. 8vo, 4d.

—"O Spirit of the summer-time." Part-Song (S.A.T.B.). Poetry by W. ALLINGHAM. 8vo, 2d.

TINNEY, CHARLES E.—"The Night Chimes." Part-Song (S.A.T.B.). 8vo, 3d.

CALDICOTT, A. J.—"Why is thy countenance sad?" Contralto solo from "The Widow of Nain." 1s. 6d.

NOTTINGHAM, C. H.—"I know a maiden." Two-Part Song. Words by LONGFELLOW. 1s. 6d.

—"The Rainy Day." Song. Words by LONGFELLOW. 1s. 6d.

—"Twilight." Song. Words by J. TRUMAN. 1s. 6d.

—"In Thee, O Lord." Sacred Song for Soprano. 1s. 6d.

—"Fifteen Favourite Nursery Rhymes. 8vo, 1s.

—"Tarantelle, pour le Piano. 1s. 6d.

BRAHMS, J.—Hungarian Dances. New and complete edition, for Pianoforte Solo, 7s. 6d.; Duet, 10s.

HOFMANN, H.—New Hungarian Dances for Pianoforte Duet. Books I. and II., each 2s.

BROWN, ARTHUR H.—Twenty Original Voluntaries for the Organ or Harmonium, 1s. 6d.

CULWICK, J. C.—Sonata, in D minor, for [the Organ (Op. 3). 3s.

SPARK, DR. W.—"The Organist's Quarterly Journal." Part LIII. 1. Postlude (E flat major), Julius Katterfeld (Organist, Schwerin); 2. Fantasia on Mendelssohn's "Volklied," George Hepworth (Dom-Organist, Schwerin); 3. Prelude, D minor, Franklin Harvey; 4. Andante con moto (G major), J. Benson; 5. Prayer (F major), Edwin Evans; 6. Moderato (Postlude in E flat), E. Healey, Mus. Bac., Oxon.

LAKE, G. ERNEST.—Daily Studies and complete Pedal Scales for the Organ. 1s.

PIANOFORTE TUNER (Collard and Collard) wants EMPLOYMENT, three or four days, outdoor preferred. H., 121, Seven Sisters Road, N.

Now ready.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION with various improvements and many additional Chants, of THE PSALTER, arranged for Chanting. With appropriate English Chants. Edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY, Bart., M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon., &amp;c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon., Organist and Choirmaster of York Minster.

Edition I., in Post 8vo, with the chants in short score. Cloth, 2s.

Edition II., in Foolscap 4to, large type, with the chants in short score. Cloth, 4s.

Edition III., in Imperial 32mo. Words only. Cloth, 9d. With Proper Psalms, 1s. The Proper Psalms separately, 3d.

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION of THE CANTICLES, &amp;c. First Series.

I. Post 8vo, chants in short score. 6d.

II. Foolscap 4to, chants in short score. 1s.

III. In 32mo. Words only. 1½d.

When this new Edition is required, instead of the original Work (which is on sale in all its original forms), orders should be specific for "REVISED EDITION."

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION

of THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. A Collection of Single Chants, Ancient and Modern, appropriated to the Daily Psalms, Canticles, and Hymns in the Book of Common Prayer. The Chants correspond with those of the "Psalter," and are similarly numbered. Edited by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. 8vo, in paper cover, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d. Foolscap 4to, large type, paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TUNING CONNECTION.—WANTED to PURCHASE in London or Suburbs. Particulars to E. K., 20, Windsor Road, Holloway, N.

LONDON CONSERVATOIRE CONCERTS. Conductor, Mr. Lansdowne Cottell. Programmes, Prospectus, and Reports of the London Press, one stamp. 6, Tavistock Square.

THE LONDON CONSERVATOIRE grants Free Tuition preparatory for various introductions, and for the higher encouragement of solo, oratorio, operatic, piano, and violin study. Branches: Berners Street, Conduit Street, Myddelton Hall, and residential departments, address, The Secretary, 6, Tavistock Square.

THE "SNELL" HARMONIUM is the most perfect instrument extant. May be had of all music-sellers and professors, or of the makers, E. and W. Snell, Pedal Reed-Organ Builders, King Street North, Camden Town, London.

ORGAN (Great Bargain).—The Organ now in use at the Congregational Church, Morecambe. For specification, apply, J. Leach, Pianoforte Dealer, 17, Bank Street, Bradford.

GLEES, PART-SONGS, &amp;c.—A large quantity to be DISPOSED OF cheaply. Recently in use by a Choral Society. Also a number of Copies of "Judas Maccabæus." Apply to Mr. CREASY, 148, Fort Road, Bermondsey, S.E.

TO ORGANISTS AND ORGAN-BUILDERS.—

Articles of Special Interest and Organ News in general appear in "MUSICAL OPINION AND MUSIC TRADE REVIEW," the January number of which is now ready. 44 pp., 2d. To order of all book and music-sellers. PITMAN, Paternoster Row; and by post through REID and NEPHEW, Advertisement Agents, 1, Sherborne Lane, E.C.

Just published.

MINIATURES for the PIANOFORTE

COMPOSED BY

OLIVER KING

Book I.—2s. net.	Book II.—2s. net.	Book III.—2s. net.
SEGUIDILLA.	RÉVERIE.	EDWARD GRIEG.
ROMANCE.	AUBADE.	ADOLPHE HENSELT.
CANON.	IDYLL.	STEPHEN HELLER.
MAZURKA.	MINUET.	FRANZ LISZT.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ARRANGEMENTS for the ORGAN

BY

J. MARTIN DUNSTAN.

Allegretto (Symphony), "Hymn of Praise" ... ..	Mendelssohn	s. d.
Adagio Cantabile (Third Symphony) ... ..	Haydn	1 0
Return, O God of hosts, "Samson" ... ..	Handel	0 6
Pious orgies, "Judas Maccabæus" ... ..	Handel	0 6
Lord, remember David ... ..	Handel	0 6
Quis est homo, "Stabat Mater" ... ..	Rossini	1 0
Heaven and the earth display, "Athalie" ... ..	Mendelssohn	1 6
To Thee, cherubim, "Dettingen" Te Deum ... ..	Handel	1 0
And the glory of the Lord, "Messiah" ... ..	Handel	1 0
Andantino (from a Trio) ... ..	Himmel	1 0
Andante Cantabile (Sonata in C, No. 10) ... ..	Mozart	1 0
Largo (String Quartet. Op. 40) ... ..	Haydn	1 0
The people that walked in darkness, "Messiah" ... ..	Handel & Mozart	1 0
Angels ever bright and fair, "Theodora" ... ..	Handel	0 6

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WANTED, RE-ENGAGEMENT by a thoroughly experienced REPAIRER, REGULATOR, and TUNER, from London, of Pianofortes, Harmoniums, and American Organs. F. W. S., 38, Wynford Street, Eccles New Road, Salford.

WANTED, for a Music Warehouse in the North of England, a MAN who can attend to and repair small goods and make himself generally useful. Apply, stating salary required, to H. B., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

YOUNG LADY WANTED for the Music Trade, North of London. Previous knowledge of the business and one who can read music well preferred. Apply, Agate and Pritchard, 68, Gracechurch Street, E.C.

ADVERTISER (20) seeks a SITUATION as ASSISTANT in a Music Warehouse. Plays piano well and violoncello. Four years' tuning experience. Salary not so much object as good firm. Cello, Davies' Hotel, 1, Devonshire Street, Portland Place, W.

MUSIC PUBLISHING BUSINESS.—A well-established London firm desire a PARTNER with £2,000 to £3,000 to extend the business and take the place of outgoing partner. Apply to Mr. H. Lawrence Harris, Music Trade Accountant and Valuer, 32, Argyll Street, Regent Street, London, W.

OLD MUSIC BOUGHT and SOLD.—Church Music, Full Scores, Oratorios, Biographies, Histories, Treatises, Glee, Madrigals, Organ Music. Full value and cash payments. Reeves's Depot for Old Music, Fleet Street, London.

MARRIOTT and WILLIAMS, Music Publishers, Academy House, 313, Oxford Street, London. Universal Music Warehouse. Authors' Works Engraved, Printed, and Published in the best style at the most moderate charges. Estimates on application.

TO AMATEURS and PROFESSORS about to PUBLISH.—J. McDOWELL, 25, Warwick Street, Regent Street, London, undertakes Revising, Engraving, Printing, and Publishing all musical works, in the best manner, at lowest possible terms. Estimates given on receipt of MS.

IMPORTANT TO MUSICSELLERS.—Having the largest varied stock of Music in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day, or if in stock posted immediately, if required. Terms upon application.
London: B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster Row, E.C.

AUTHORS' WORKS CORRECTED, REVISED, and PRINTED with despatch on moderate terms. Quotations given on receipt of MSS.
London: B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster Row, E.C.

MELBOURNE EXHIBITION, 1881.—FIRST PRIZE to BORD'S PIANOS on SALE, with 25 per cent. discount for cash, or on the three-years hire system, 15s. per month. Illustrated Lists free, of CHAS. STILES and CO., 42, Southampton Row, Holborn, London, W.C. Second-hand Pianos on the three-years system, 10s. 6d. per month. Pianos exchanged.

Price 1s. per pair.
NEW SPRING LEAF HOLDER (Registered) for Music and Reading Desks. Easily fixed; noiseless in action; does not become loose; insensible to wear. Drawings are not permitted in this advertisement, but may be had from the Inventor, J. STUTTAFORD, 41, Rathbone Place, W. Trade supplied.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, supplied at wholesale prices, at J. Moore's, Buxton Road, Huddersfield. Prices, with drawings of every instrument, post-free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the Army, Navy, and Rifle Corps.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c. 29, Minorities, London. List for stamp.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications made out for Organs. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing, and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. Willis, 29, Minorities, London. PRACTICE can be had on a complete Instrument.

EUSTACE INGRAM, Church Organ Builder, combines excellence of tone and workmanship with economy. Inspection invited. Organ Works, Burnard Place, Eden Grove, Holloway Road, London, N.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 1s., post-free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing-Class Tutor, 12th edition, 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity Street, Huddersfield.

ORGAN for SALE.—Stop diapason, dulciana, flute, soft reed, slides for three more, general swell. Price £25. Apply, Griffins, Henley-in-Arden.

ORGAN for SALE, in St. Matthew's Church, Croydon. Two manuals and pedals, 25 stops. Apply to Norman Carr, Fairfield Road, Croydon.

SECOND-HAND ORGAN for SALE.—Great organ, 6 stops; swell organ, 4 stops; separate bourdon pedals, 30 notes, couplers, composition pedals, &c. To be seen at A. Hunter's New Organ Factory, 65A, High Street, Clapham, S.W.

ARRANGEMENT OF SALES OF MUSICAL PROPERTY FOR 1882.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON beg to announce that they will hold their SPECIAL MONTHLY SALES OF MUSICAL PROPERTY of every description on the following dates:—

Tuesday, Jan. 24.	Tuesday, May 23.	Tuesday, Sept. —
" Feb. 27.	" June 20.	" Oct. 17.
" March 21.	" July 25.	" Nov. 21.
Friday, April 28.	" Aug. 15.	" Dec. 19.

Property intended for insertion in any of the above Sales, or particulars of same sufficiently detailed for the Catalogue, should reach us ten days prior to the dates mentioned.

Auction Gallery, 47, Leicester Square, London, W.C.

[Established 1794.]

KELLY and CO., PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM MAKERS (to Her Majesty), 14 and 16, Mortimer Street, London, W.

Kelly's Organ Harmoniums are the "only instruments" of English manufacture that gained "any award" at the Dublin and Paris Exhibitions.

A liberal discount for Schools and Charitable Institutions.

Three hundred Second-hand Pianofortes by the leading makers, at all times very cheap. New Pianos (warranted), in elegant Walnut or Rosewood cases, from 19 guineas.

The Trade, Merchants, and Shippers supplied.

Quarterly Sale of Musical Property.—16, Mortimer Street, London, W. Important to the Trade, Profession, and public in general. About One Hundred Pianofortes by Broadwood, Collard, Kirkman, Erard, Allison, Hopkinson, Brinsmead, &c. Harmoniums and Organs by Christophe, Alexandre, Trayer, Hermann, Mason and Hamlin, Estey, &c. Harps by Erard, Erat, &c. Violins, Pianoforte Small-Work, Music Stools, Sundries, &c.

MESSRS. KELLY & CO. beg to announce that they will Sell by Auction, at their Mart, 16, Mortimer Street, London, W., on WEDNESDAY, January 4, 1882, the important and valuable property as stated above. The Sale will commence at 12 o'clock precisely. Catalogues may be had post-free, and goods viewed the day prior and morning of Sale.

A USEFUL PRESENT for CHRISTMAS and the NEW YEAR. Every Nursery should have one of the NEW PATENT ORGANETTES. It is a useful little instrument for the festive season. It is capable of playing sacred and secular music of any kind. Any one can play it without difficulty. The case is of walnut, nicely finished with gilt trimming. A set of tunes and a complete catalogue are given with each instrument.

Style I., price £1 11s. 6d. Style II., price £2 12s. 6d. Carriage paid to any Railway Station in Great Britain. The Trade supplied. Sole Importers—Carpenter and Co. Address, John A. Matthews, Wholesale Manager, 9, North Place, Cheltenham.

CARPENTER'S IMPROVED AMERICAN ORGANS and REED ACTIONS.

WORKS—WORCESTER, MASS., U.S.A.

Agents throughout the United Kingdom.

THE CONCERT SEASON.—The Grand Orchestral Action, 17 stops (11 sets of reeds), in new patent chapel case, is a splendid organ for concert or church use. It is the best and cheapest organ manufactured.

Pedal Organs, with one or two manuals and accessories.

The Professor's Organ, 15 stops, 7 sets of reeds, from 35 guineas.

The new COTTAGE ORGAN, 4 sets of reeds, 8 stops, including "Sub-Bass" and "Vox-Humana," 20 guineas. An effective organ.

School Organs, in elegant cases, from 12 guineas.

The PATENT "AERO-DYNAMIC EXPRESSION INDICATOR" and "VOX-HUMANA" may be had in any style of action. Organs for India and tropical countries.

N.B.—All organs warranted for six years. See that all actions have the "Carpenter" Trade Mark.

Catalogues post-free. Liberal discount for cash.

Address, John A. Matthews, Sole Wholesale Manager for Great Britain and Colonies, 9, North Place, Cheltenham.

ORGAN, 2 manuals, in handsome pitch-pine case, to be SOLD at very low price. The owners going abroad. Would suit church or chamber. Particulars of W. Beales, Waterloo Place, Bromells Road, Clapham, S.W.

CHURCH ORGAN, 2 manuals, &c., can be had on easy terms. A beautiful and perfect instrument, W. Beales, Waterloo Place, Bromells Road, Clapham.

SMITH AMERICAN ORGAN, in resonant case, for SALE; of rich tone and in good condition; 11 stops and 2 knee actions, 4 rows of vibrators in treble (including baritone), and 2½ in the bass. Price £20; original price, 40 Guineas. Apply to Mr. Ingham, Moira House, Addiscombe, Croydon.

ORGAN METAL PIPE and BRASS REED MAKER. First-class workmanship. J. White, 9, Richmond Terrace, Westminster, Bristol.

CC ORGAN, 1 manual, 6 stops, 1½ octave of pedals, illuminated speaking pipes. £25. C. Lloyd and Co., Brighton Street, Nottingham.

ORGAN, 2 manuals, 16 stops, oak case, illuminated speaking pipes, pedal organ, &c.; suitable for Church or Chapel. £120. C. Lloyd and Co., Organ Builders, Brighton Street, Nottingham.

TO ORGAN STUDENTS.—A full compass COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, having 2½ octaves pedals (sticker action), all in good condition, FOR SALE. £18. L., 32, Aden Grove, Stoke Newington.

BRISTOL.

MR. J. HAMILTON,
6, CHESTERTON TERRACE, CITY ROAD,
MANUFACTURER OF

Pedals and Action for Pianofortes,

Begs to inform Organists, Organ Students, and others that his invention for attaching PEDALS to PIANOFORTES is so useful that it has earned the approbation of over a thousand members of the musical profession. For a small outlay the great pleasure of playing organ music (from Bach's Grand Fugues to the late Henry Smart's beautiful movements) at home can be obtained. This action is easily attached to any kind of Pianoforte in a short time, as it is all sent complete with printed instructions "How to attach."
A Set of Straight Pedals (CC to F, 30 notes), with action and printed instructions, price £4 4s.

Or Radiating and Concave Pedal Board (CC to F, 30 notes), with action and printed instructions, price £5 5s.

Agents are required for every town and district.

Send for prices to the profession and trade; also for testimonials. Orders accompanied with cheque or P.O. Order will receive immediate attention.

Address, J. HAMILTON, 6, Chesterton Terrace, City Road, Bristol.

NEW MUSIC-ENGRAVING

(STEAM PRINTING)

EXHIBITED IN

PARIS, VIENNA, and PHILADELPHIA.

Superior to Pewter Plates and Metal Types.

50 PER CENT. CHEAPER.

SPECIMENS and ESTIMATE

will be sent post-free on receipt of manuscript.

SONG, PIANO PIECE, &amp;c. Engraving, Printing, and Paper:—

4 Pages, including Title, 100 Copies (Folio) ... £1 8 0

The following 100 Copies ... .. 0 4 0

ANTHEM, PART-SONG, KYRIE, HYMN, &amp;c.:—

4 Pages, including Heading, 100 Copies (Octavo) ... 1 2 0

The following 100 Copies ... .. 0 2 0

OPERA, CHORUS, BAND-PART, &c.; Sacred Music of any kind; BOOK with ILLUSTRATIONS; TITLES with Views, in colours, highly ornamental; COPYING old Books, Manuscripts, Drawings, &c., by Photography and Patent Processes.

Reprint supplied.

The most perfect Machinery and a large well-trained Musical Staff enable us to supply even the largest orders within the shortest time.

PATENT PAPER TYPE COMPANY,

62, HATTON GARDEN, LONDON, E.C.

BUTLER'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

Violins, Guitars, and Banjos.

Flutes, Clarinets, and Flageolets.

Concertinas, Accordions, and Flutinas.

Harmoniums, Pianos, and Organs.

Cornets, Drums, and Band Instruments.

Musical Boxes and Musical Instruments of every description.

The largest and most varied assortment in the Kingdom.

G. BUTLER'S, 29, Haymarket, London.

Illustrated Catalogue, fifty pages, sent post-free.

MALEY, YOUNG &amp; OLDFKNOW,

ORGAN BUILDERS,

KING'S ROAD, ST. PANCRAS, N.W.

Organs rebuilt to suit any position, repaired, enlarged, tuned, and revoiced in any part of the kingdom, at very moderate charges.

Materials, workmanship, and tone guaranteed to be first-class.

Specifications, estimates, and designs for chancel, bracket, chamber, and all descriptions of organs.

N.B.—New and second-hand organs for sale. Inspection invited.

SOLO VIOLIN, by JOSEPH GUARNERIUS. War-

ranted genuine. Hill's certificate. In fine preservation, and grand tone. Price £75. Address, Violin, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

FINE old Italian VIOLIN for SALE, cheap.

Grand tone and condition, from the Gillot collection, with mahogany case and Dodd Bow. Also a fine old VIOLIN, by GILKES. Address, B., Clairmont House, Anchor Head, Weston-super-Mare.

WANTED, a fine perfect VIOLIN, by STRADI-

UARIUS or JOSEPH GUARNERIUS. Apply, M., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

VIOLONCELLO, a very fine example, by

W. FORSTER. A copy of Guarnerius. To be SOLD, by a Gentleman, for £50. The instrument is numbered, signed, and dated, and is still in a very fine condition. Apply, Mr. Keyworth, 20, Regent Street, Waterloo Place, London, W.

FINE Italian VIOLONCELLO for SALE. Grand

tone, excellent condition. Must be sold, as former owner is deceased. K., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

VIOLIN AND BOW

MAKERS AND REPAIRERS,

GEORGE WITHERS &amp; CO.

(Late of Coventry Street),

WHOLESALE IMPORTERS OF

MUSICAL STRINGS

FROM ROME, PADUA, AND NAPLES.

A FINE COLLECTION OF ITALIAN INSTRUMENTS.

Bows, Cases, Music Stands, &amp;c. See Price Lists.

95, ST. MARTIN'S LANE, LONDON.

NO OTHER ADDRESS.

TO VIOLINISTS.—THREE FIRST ITALIAN
VIOLIN STRINGS (finest quality imported), sent post-free for thirteen stamps. Alphonse Cary, Manufacturer and Importer, Newbury, Berks. Professional violinists supplied at wholesale prices.

VIOLIN STRINGS.—The Trade and Shippers supplied with the best Italian Strings, finest in tone and unequalled in durability. Three sample Firsts sent post-free for thirteen stamps. London: Shepherd and Kilner, Music Publishers and Importers of Musical Instruments, Strings, &c., 7, Grocers' Hall Court, Poultry, E.C. Lists free.

VIOLIN STRINGS to stand at Concert Pitch, five first (gut or silk) or two everlasting metallic strings sent free for thirteen stamps. Dean's Music Warehouse, 77, City Road, London, E.C. Established 1848. Price Lists sent free.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

CASES

FOR BINDING THE NUMBERS FOR THE PAST YEAR,
VOL. XXII.

Are now ready, and may be had of all Musicsellers in Town and Country.

Cloth, bevelled boards, handsome design in black.

PRICE 1S. 6D.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S ORIGINAL OCTAVO EDITION.

THE CHORUSES

OF THE

ORATORIOS, CANTATAS, &amp;c.

IN VOCAL SCORE,

ESPECIALLY FOR THE USE OF CHORAL SOCIETIES.

	s.	d.
BACH'S PASSION (ST. MATTHEW) ... ..	1	0
BEETHOVEN'S MOUNT OF OLIVES... ..	0	6
BENNETT'S MAY QUEEN ... ..	1	0
GRAUN'S PASSION ... ..	1	0
HANDEL'S MESSIAH ... ..	0	8
" JUDAS MACCABÆUS ... ..	0	8
" SAMSON ... ..	0	8
" HERCULES ... ..	1	0
" SOLOMON ... ..	1	6
" L'ALLEGRO ... ..	1	0
HAYDN'S CREATION ... ..	0	8
MACFARREN'S MAY DAY... ..	0	8
MENDELSSOHN'S ELIJAH ... ..	1	6
" ST. PAUL ... ..	1	0
" HYMN OF PRAISE ... ..	0	6
ROSSINI'S STABAT MATER ... ..	0	6
SPOHR'S LAST JUDGMENT ... ..	0	6

(To be continued.)

All the above works may be had in paper boards, price 6d. each extra.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency

(Established for the transaction of all Musical Business, Professional and General),

12, BERNERS STREET, LONDON, W.

Office Hours, 10 to 5; Saturday, 10 to 1.

TO CONCERT-GIVERS AND ENTREPRENEURS GENERALLY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform Projectors of Concerts, Secretaries of Institutions, and Entrepreneurs generally that he is prepared to arrange for large or small parties of artists of all positions in the profession, and for Concert Tours. All details of management undertaken without the slightest trouble to those favouring Mr. Stedman with their wishes. Terms upon application.

TO THE CLERGY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform the Clergy that he has established a REGISTRY of ORGANISTS, CHOIRMEN, and CHORISTERS seeking APPOINTMENTS, which is open to their inspection, and they are invited either to call, or to write stating their requirements. From his personal knowledge of the qualifications of Organists and Singers, Mr. Stedman is able to give the Clergy valuable information as a guide to selection.

CHURCH FESTIVALS arranged and carried out in all details.

CHOIR-BOYS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to supply good SOLO CHOIR-BOYS for Church Festivals, Choral Weddings, Concerts, &c.

MUSIC FOR BANQUETS, &c.

MR. STEDMAN undertakes the music (and all the necessary details) for Banquets of City Companies, Masonic Lodges, &c., at the shortest notice.

ORCHESTRAS AND CHOIRS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to provide CHOIRS and ORCHESTRAS for the performance of Orationes and Cantatas.

MR. STEDMAN will be happy to advise his clients upon all professional matters, confidential or otherwise, either by letter or personally by previous appointment at his Offices, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

Just published.

W. A. MOZART'S PIANOFORTE CONCERTOS

For Pianoforte alone, or with Accompaniment of a second Pianoforte, String Quintet, or Full Orchestra.

REVISED AND EDITED FOR STUDY AND CONCERT-ROOM BY

DR. S. LEBERT.

Nos.	Key.	Piano Solo.		Second Piano.		Quintet
		net.	s. d.	net.	s. d.	net.
5 (12).	F major	...	3 0	...	1 2	1 10
6 (10).	A major	...	3 0	...	1 2	1 10
7 (5).	C major	...	3 4	...	1 4	1 10
8 (14).	E flat major	...	3 0	...	1 4	1 10
12 (11).	B flat major	...	3 4	...	1 6	2 0
14 (8).	D minor	...	3 6	...	1 8	2 0
15 (1).	C major	...	3 4	...	1 6	2 0
16 (6).	E flat major	...	3 6	...	1 8	2 0
17 (2).	A major	...	3 0	...	1 4	1 10
18 (7).	C minor	...	3 4	...	1 6	2 0
19 (16).	C major	...	3 4	...	1 6	2 0
20 (20).	D major	...	3 6	...	1 8	2 0

In this edition the Concertos are numbered in chronological order, the numbers under which they are known in the old edition of Messrs. Breitkopf and Härtel, of Leipzig, being added in brackets.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Crown Octavo, cloth, 2s. 6d.

MUSIC OF THE BIBLE

WITH AN ACCOUNT OF THE

DEVELOPMENT OF MODERN MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FROM ANCIENT TYPES, BY

JOHN STAINER, M.A., Mus. Doc.

"The very excellent illustrations scattered throughout the book materially increase its value; and we sincerely hope that Dr. Stainer's labours may be rewarded as they deserve, for not only has he accumulated a large mass of reliable information upon a subject of the deepest interest, but he has thrown additional light upon much of this evidence by giving us the result of his own practical experience."—Musical Times.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Messrs. CASSELL, PETTER, GALPIN & CO.

WILL PUBLISH IN MONTHLY PARTS,

PRICE SEVENPENCE EACH,

THE

HISTORY OF MUSIC

BY

EMIL NAUMANN,

Director of Music at the Chapel Royal, Dresden.

TRANSLATED BY

FERDINAND PRAEGER,

WITH NOTES AND ADDITIONAL CHAPTERS BY THE

REV. SIR F. A. GORE OUSELEY, BART., M.A., Mus. Doc.,

Professor of Music in the University of Oxford.

ILLUSTRATED THROUGHOUT.

PART I. NOW READY.

To be completed in 24 Parts.

*.* In this Work will be given a comprehensive history of Music from the earliest period to the present time, illustrated throughout with Engravings of the Musical Instruments of all times, Portraits of celebrated Composers, &c., &c.

Prospectuses at all Booksellers, or Post-free from

CASSELL, PETTER, GALPIN AND CO.,

LUDGATE HILL, LONDON.

CROWN 8vo, CLOTH, PRICE 3s. 6d.

DRAMATIC SINGING PHYSIOLOGICALLY ESTIMATED

BY

WALTER HAYLE WALSHE, M.D.

"None of our readers who take any interest in dramatic singing should fail to read this book."—Lancet.

"An excellent treatise on the subject, and deals with it in an original and thoughtful manner."—Science Gossip.

London: KEGAN PAUL, TRENCH, and Co., 1, Paternoster Square.

FULL ORCHESTRAL SCORES

PUBLISHED BY

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

SPOHR

THE LAST JUDGMENT. English and German words ... £1 11 6
GOD, THOU ART GREAT. ditto ... 0 10 6

HANDEL

MESSIAH ... .. I 1 0

HANDEL AND MOZART

ACIS AND GALATEA. English and German words.
(Mozart's Accompaniments) ... .. I 11 6

HAYDN

CREATION ... .. I 1 0

MENDELSSOHN

ELIJAH. English and German words ... .. I 5 0
ST. PAUL. ditto ... .. I 5 0
HEAR MY PRAYER. ditto ... .. 0 6 0

SIR W. S. BENNETT

THE MAY QUEEN. New Edition (In the press).

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

ASHDOWN & PARRY'S CATALOGUES OF MUSIC.

PART 1. PIANO, ORGAN, HARMONIUM.
PART 2. VOCAL.
PART 3. HARP, CONCERTINA.
PART 4. VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, ORCHESTRA, &c.
PART 5. FLUTE, CORNET, CLARINET, &c.
Sent Gratis and Post-free to any part of the world.

1882.

Ashdown & Parry's Yellow Catalogue

Compiled expressly for the use of the Trade, Profession, and Schools, comprises A SELECTION OF UPWARDS OF 5,000 STANDARD MUSICAL WORKS. SENT GRATIS AND POST-FREE TO ANY PART OF THE WORLD. All applications for trade terms must contain card, circular, or reference.

SHILLING BOOKS

PUBLISHED BY

ASHDOWN & PARRY.

J. JOUSSE'S CATECHISM OF MUSIC. Edited and Revised by WALTER MACFARREN.
THE MOTHER'S OWN ASSISTANT AT THE PIANOFORTE. An easy method.
A PIANOFORTE CATECHISM, by EDWIN M. LOTT.

PIANOFORTE.

1. FIRST ALBUM OF DANCE MUSIC. Containing Cornflower Waltz, &c., &c.
2. SECOND ALBUM OF DANCE MUSIC. Containing Punch and Judy Quadrilles, &c., &c.
3. THIRD ALBUM OF DANCE MUSIC. Containing Pauline Valse, &c., &c.
4. FOURTH ALBUM OF DANCE MUSIC. Containing The Language of Flowers Valse, &c., &c.
5. FIFTH ALBUM OF DANCE MUSIC. Containing Awfully Jolly Valse, &c., &c.

VOCAL.

1. TWELVE COMIC SONGS BY ARTHUR LLOYD (First Series). Including "Dada," "The Baby Show," "The Blighted Barber," &c., &c.
2. TWELVE COMIC SONGS BY ARTHUR LLOYD (Second Series). Including "The Schoolmaster," "Married to a Mermaid," "My Wife's Relations," &c., &c.
3. TWELVE COMIC SONGS BY FRED ALBERT. Including "Bradshaw's Guide," "Playing on the same Old String," &c., &c.
4. TWELVE COMIC SONGS BY GEORGE LEYBOURNE. Including "I won't believe it's true," "Shy, shy, awfully shy," &c., &c.
5. TWELVE POPULAR BALLADS. Including "Silver Herring," "I'll be all smiles to night," &c., &c.
6. UNCLE TOM'S CABIN. Songs and Choruses (introduced in the Drama) composed and arranged by J. E. MALLANDAIN.
7. ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY COMIC SONGS. (Words and Melodies.)
8. ONE HUNDRED POPULAR SONGS AND SCENAS BY HENRY RUSSELL. (Words and Melodies.)
9. THE CHILD'S OWN SINGING BOOK, OR OLD SONGS FOR YOUNG SINGERS. Containing popular melodies and favourite rounds, with Pianoforte Accompaniment by MARIA and WILLIAM HUTCHINS CALLCOTT.

VIOLIN.

1. POPULAR DANCE MUSIC (15 Sets). Including Immenseikoff Quadrille, Twilight Schottische, Blue Danube Waltzes, &c., &c.
2. POPULAR DANCE MUSIC (15 Sets), Second Series. Including Oughts and Crosses Quadrille, Derby Galop, Les Roses Valses, &c., &c.
3. SIXTY-FOUR COMIC MELODIES. Including "The German Band," "Constantinople," "Song of Songs," &c., &c.

FLUTE.

1. SIXTY-FOUR COMIC MELODIES. Including "The German Band," "Constantinople," "Song of Songs," &c., &c.
2. TUTOR, WITH A SELECTION OF THE MOST ADMIRE MELODIES BY R. SIDNEY PRATTEN.

CORNET.

1. SIXTY-FOUR COMIC MELODIES. Including "The German Band," "Constantinople," "Song of Songs," &c., &c.
2. TUTOR WITH A SELECTION OF THE MOST POPULAR MELODIES BY CARL HÖCHST.

CONCERTINA.

- SIXTY-FOUR COMIC MELODIES. Including "The German Band," "Constantinople," "Song of Songs," &c., &c.

LONDON: ASHDOWN &amp; PARRY, HANOVER SQUARE.

NEW FOREIGN PUBLICATIONS.

ANDERSSON, R.—Swedish Dances for Pianoforte Duet. Books I. and II. ... each	10 0
— Ditto for Pianoforte Solo. Books I. and II. ...	7 0
BRAHMS, J.—Op. 80. Academic Festival Overture. Arranged for Two Pianos, eight hands ...	16 0
— Op. 81. Tragic Overture. Arranged for ditto ...	16 0
BRUCH, M.—Op. 47. Kol Nidrei. Adagio for Violoncello with Orchestra and Harp:—
Full Score ...	9 0
Orchestral Parts ...	12 0
Violoncello and Piano ...	6 0
Violin and Piano ...	6 0
HARTMANN, E.—Op. 30. Scandinavian Songs and Dances. Arranged for Pianoforte. Two Books ... each, net	5 0
HERMANN, F.—Op. 21. The First Exercise in Ensemble Playing. Twenty-five Pieces for Two Violins in the first position:—
Book I. ...	6 0
Book II. ...	7 0
HUBER, H.—Op. 63. A "Tell" Symphony, for full Orchestra:—
Full Score ...	32 0
Orchestral Parts ...	70 0
Piano Duet ...	18 0
JADASSOHN, S.—Op. 64. Serenade for Pianoforte Duet ...	7 0
— Op. 66. Menuet for Pianoforte ...	4 0
JENSEN, A.—Rustic Festival Music, for Pianoforte Duet ...	14 0
KIRCHNER, TH.—Op. 55. New "Childhood Scenes" for Pianoforte ...	8 0
— Op. 59. Novellettes. Trios for Pianoforte, Violin, and Violoncello. Two Books ... each	15 0
KOLBERG, O.—Polish Dances. Mazurkas for Pianoforte net	5 0
LALO, E.—Romance.—Serenade for Violin and Piano ...	5 0
LISZT, F.—Valse Oubliée, for Pianoforte ...	4 0
— Symphonic Poems, for Full Orchestra. No. 2. Tasso. Orchestral Parts ...	28 0
MOZART.—Serenade. No. 7, in D. Arranged for Pianoforte Duet ...	18 0
NÉRUDA, F.—Op. 30. Three Slavish Marches, for Pianoforte Duet ...	8 0
PERFALL, K.—"Raimondin." Opera. Vocal Score ...	12 0
REINECKE, C.—Op. 165. A Fairy-tale without Words. Ten Pianoforte Pieces:—
Pianoforte Duet—Book I., 6s.; Book II., 6s.; Book III. ...	10 0
Pianoforte Solo—Book I., 4s.; Book II., 4s.; Book III. ...	7 0
— Op. 166. Zur Jubelfeier. Overture. Arranged for Pianoforte Duet ...	6 0
SARASATE, P.—Spanish Dances. Arranged for Violoncello and Piano. Book III. ...	9 0
SCHUMANN, R.—Op. 44. Quintet. Arranged for Pianoforte Solo ...	12 0
STANGE, M.—Op. 5. Five short Waltz-Impromptus, for Pianoforte ...	3 0
STETTHEIMER, L.—Two Mazurkas, for Pianoforte ...	3 0

Sold at half-price, if not marked net.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published.

JOHANNES BRAHMS'S HUNGARIAN DANCES

NEW AND COMPLETE EDITION.

PIANOFORTE SOLO.	s. d.
4 Books, in 1 Vol. ...	net 7 6
PIANOFORTE DUET.
4 Books, in 1 Vol. ...	10 0
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

A NEW ORGAN-BOOK

By ALEX. GUILMANT

L'ORGANISTE PRATIQUE

BOOK 8.—CONTENTS.

Allegro non troppo. Scherzo Symphonique. Chant Elégiaque. Strophes sur l'Hymne de l'Ascension. Ite Missa est.

Published by SCHOTT and Co., 159, Regent Street, W., London.

Just published.

JOHANN SEBASTIAN BACH'S ORGAN COMPOSITIONS

EDITED BY

GRIEPENKERL and ROITZSCH.

VOLUME IX.

Containing Concerto in G, Fugues, and other pieces never before published. Price, net, 3s.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

STAFF NOTATION MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS

BY

J. CURWEN AND SONS,

8, WARWICK LANE, E.C.

APOLLO CLUB, THE. Part-Songs and Choruses for men's voices in staff notation, including several French descriptive pieces of novel character. Fifteen numbers now ready, price 2d. to 8d., according to size.

APOLLO LEAFLETS. Short Part-Songs for men's voices in the staff notation. Thirty-two numbers now ready, 1d. each.

CHILD'S OWN HYMN-BOOK. By JOHN CURWEN. The first of the penny hymn-books. The tune-book, staff notation, price 1s.

CHORAL HANDBOOK, THE. Glees, Anthems, Part-Songs, &c., in staff notation, all of proved popularity. Seventy-two numbers now ready, prices 3d. and 1½d., according to size.

CHORAL LEAFLETS. Short pieces in staff notation, of proved popularity. Twenty-eight numbers ready, price 1d. each.

CHORAL SINGER, THE. A graduated course of exercises, rounds, and part-songs for beginners in singing. Applies the Tonic Sol-fa system to the staff notation. Price 1s.

CONGREGATIONAL ANTHEMS. Edited by JOHN CURWEN. First, Second, and Third Series, in cloth, 2s. 6d. each, either staff or Tonic Sol-fa notation. Simple and tuneful; for singers of ordinary capacity. Can be used and enjoyed in places where classical anthems would be badly sung and ill-appreciated.

COUNTERPOINT, TEXT-BOOK OF. By GEO. OAKEY, Mus. Bac., Cantab. Mr. Ebenezer Prout writes in the Academy: "It gives us, within the space of 32 pages, a résumé of the whole subject of simple Counterpoint, which is at once concise and clear." Price 1s.

EASY ANTHEMS FOR CONGREGATIONAL USE. No more difficult than hymn-tunes; the easiest collection of anthems ever issued. Fifty anthems. 1s., either notation.

EIGHTY MUSICAL SENTENCES, to illustrate chromatic chords, Composed by G. A. MACFARREN, M.A., Mus. D., Professor of Music in the University of Cambridge, and Principal of the Royal Academy of Music. Shows the chords in their natural use as occurring in a musical phrase. Third edition, price 3s.

ELEMENTARY RHYTHMS. Passages from songs arranged in progressive order to afford practice in the study of time. Staff notation, 1½d.

GERMAN TWO-PART SONGS. Set to English words by A. J. FOXWELL. School songs of a good class; tasteful and musical. Staff notation, price 6d.

GRADED ROUNDS AND CATCHES, forming an easy introduction to sight-singing. The rounds are arranged according to the plan of progression adopted in the Tonic Sol-fa system. Staff notation, 3d.

HARMONIUM ALBUM, THE. A collection of voluntaries, &c. Edited by J. SPENCER CURWEN. Made with a constant view to the nature and capabilities of the harmonium. Vol. I. (64 pieces), 2s.; Vol. II. (61 pieces), 2s.; the two volumes in one, cloth, 5s.

HARMONY PLAYER FOR THE HARMONIUM. By JOHN CURWEN. Mr. Henry F. Frost, the musical critic, writes: "We have seldom met with so much valuable material comprised within 44 pages of print." Staff notation, price 1s. 6d.

HOW TO OBSERVE HARMONY. By JOHN CURWEN. Sixth edition, with appendix and revision. Price 2s. By the use of single chants and short phrases, the student hears each combination as it is explained to him. All the examples are in both notations.

HOW TO READ MUSIC AND UNDERSTAND IT. By JOHN CURWEN. Posthumous work. Teaches sight-singing by the Tonic Sol-fa system; then applies the knowledge gained to the staff notation, and teaches that thoroughly. There are further chapters and exercises on Finding the Key in the Staff Notation, on Expression, Ornaments, the Outlines of Harmony, the Voice as an Instrument, Musical Acoustics, Common Musical Forms, and a Table of Musical Terms, with a list of composers, is added. Twenty-four chapters, pp. 128. Price 1s.

MECHANISM OF THE HUMAN VOICE. By EMIL BEHNKE. In clear and untechnical language the author gives an accurate account of the construction and mode of action of the human larynx. Second edition, price 3s., copiously illustrated.

MUSICAL STATICS. By JOHN CURWEN. An attempt to show the bearing of recent discoveries in Acoustics on practical music. Price 4s. 6d.

MUSICAL THEORY. By JOHN CURWEN. Topics: The Common Scale and Time; the Minor Mode and Transition, Musical Form, Expression, Harmony and Construction. Price 3s. 6d. Full of examples in both notations.

POPULAR CANTATAS. By various composers. Send for list of this series. The cantatas are easy and taking.

PRONUNCIATION FOR SINGERS, with especial reference to the English, German, Italian, and French languages, with examples and exercises. By A. J. ELLIS, F.R.S. "The first reasonable attempt to furnish a manual upon the subject."—Athenæum.

SACRED QUARTETS. Settings chiefly of favourite hymns for solo and quartet: Suited for Sunday Evenings and Sacred Concerts. Twelve numbers now ready, others in the press. Price 1½d. each.

SCHOOL CANTATAS AND OPERETTAS. Send for list. Red Riding Hood's Rescue, 1s. 4d. New Year's Eve, 1s. The Flower Queen, 2s. 6d. The Picnic, 1s.

SERVICES OF SONG FOR SUNDAY SCHOOLS. Compiled by T. K. LONGBOTTOM. A long list. Threepence each in either notation.

SHORT ANTHEMS, for Choirs and Congregations. Edited by J. SPENCER CURWEN A.R.A.M. Contributors: E. J. Hopkins, W. Smallwood, G. A. Macfarren, Sir J. Goss, Sir Geo. Elvey, G. B. Allen, J. Langran, J. Vaughan, J. L. Hatton, W. H. Birch. Seeks to avoid difficulties and also to avoid commonplaces. 1s. in either notation.

SHORT SONGS. Short popular pieces in the staff notation. Price 2s. 6d. per 100; ½d. each. Twenty-one numbers now ready.

SLUMBER, DARLING. Part-song by J. SPENCER CURWEN, A.R.A.M. The Musical Times says: "His voice parts appear written with a practised hand. The melody, too, is extremely pleasing." Staff notation, price 3d.

SONGS AND TUNES FOR EDUCATION. Edited by JOHN CURWEN. Children's songs, arranged with piano-forte accompaniment. Full of favourite words and tunes. Price 2s. 6d.

STANDARD ANTHEMS. By MACFARREN, HENRY SMART, E. J. HOPKINS, and HENRY LAHEE. Staff notation. Prices, 3d., 4½d., and 6d., according to size.

NOTE.—A specimen set of this series, the full price of which is 3s. 9d., will be sent to any Organist or Choirmaster during the present month for 1s. 9d.; postage, 2½d. additional.

STUDIES IN WORSHIP MUSIC. By J. SPENCER CURWEN, A.R.A.M. "It would be difficult to estimate how many congregations would send their thanks to Mr. Curwen if their respective organists would follow his wise counsel."—Church Times, 225 pp. 8vo. Price 5s.

LONDON: J. CURWEN AND SONS, 8, WARWICK LANE, E.C.

THE HANOVER EDITION

OF

CLASSICAL &amp; STANDARD WORKS.

A COLLECTION of the most POPULAR and CELEBRATED COMPOSITIONS for the PIANOFORTE—newly engraved, thoroughly revised, fingered, and printed upon the best paper, half-sheets being entirely avoided. The "Hanover Edition" is preferred to any other, and is in extensive circulation throughout the United Kingdom and the Colonies. The following are now ready:—

Air, Louis XIII. ... ..	Henri Ghys	s. d.
Airs Bohémiens ... ..	Jules Schulhoff	3 0
Andante and Allegro, in A ... ..	Mendelssohn	3 0
Andante and Rondo Capriccioso ... ..	Mendelssohn	4 0
Andante (Op. 35) ... ..	Beethoven	3 0
Arabesque ... ..	R. Schumann	4 0
A Ray of Sunshine ... ..	C. Leduc	3 0
Blue Bells of Scotland ... ..	Henri Herz	3 0
Bourrée ... ..	J. Sebastian Bach	3 0
Blumenlied ... ..	Gustav Lange	3 0
Caprice Hongrois (Etude de Concert) ... ..	E. Ketterer	4 0
Carnaval de Venise ... ..	T. Oesten	3 0
Carnaval de Venise ... ..	Jules Schulhoff	4 0
Chant du Berger ... ..	C. Galos	3 0
Consolation ... ..	Dussek	3 0
Danse Slave ... ..	J. Ascher	4 0
Dead March ("Saul") ... ..	Handel	2 0
Duet in D ... ..	A. Diabelli	5 0
Edelweiss (Idyl) ... ..	Gustav Lange	3 0
Etude de la Vélocité, Book 1 ... ..	C. Czerny	6 0
Do. do. Book 2 ... ..	"	6 0
Do. complete in one book ... ..	"	10 6
Etude Mazurka ... ..	Adrien Talex	3 0
Exercises and Scales ... ..	Henri Herz	3 0
Fairies' Wedding Waltz ... ..	J. W. Turner	4 0
Fairy Waltz, The ... ..	F. A. Reissiger	3 0
Five-Finger Exercises ... ..	Aloyse Schmidt	2 6
Gaëtana (Mazurka) ... ..	E. Ketterer	3 0
Galop di Bravura ... ..	Jules Schulhoff	4 0
Gavotte in A ... ..	H. Fliege	3 0
Gipsy Rondo ... ..	Haydn	3 0
God save the Queen ... ..	F. Kalkbrenner	3 0
Gondolied ... ..	T. Oesten	3 0
Grande Marche Militaire ... ..	H. A. Wollenhaupt	4 0
Grande Valse ... ..	Jules Schulhoff	4 0
Guillaume Tell ... ..	T. Oesten	4 0
Harmonious Blacksmith, The ... ..	Handel	3 0
Heimliche Liebe (True Love) Gavotte ... ..	Johann Resch	3 0
Home (Heimweh) ... ..	A. Jungmann	3 0
Home, sweet home ... ..	S. Thalberg	3 0
Idylle ... ..	F. Braungardt	3 0
Il Corricolo Galop ... ..	Durand de Grau	4 0
Do. Duet ... ..	"	5 0
Impromptu in A flat ... ..	F. Schubert	3 0
Impromptu in A flat ... ..	Frederic Chopin	3 0
Indispensable Scales ... ..	F. Kalkbrenner	3 0
I Puritani ... ..	J. Leybach	4 0
La Campanella ... ..	Jules Eggard	3 0
La Châtelaine (Fantasie à la Valse) ... ..	A. Leduc	3 0
La Gazelle (Polka de Salon) ... ..	H. A. Wollenhaupt	4 0
La Prière d'une Vierge ... ..	T. Badarzewska	3 0
La Sonnambula ... ..	J. Leybach	4 0
La Sympathie (Valse Sentimentale) ... ..	Oscar Comettant	3 0
Largo (The Celebrated) ... ..	Handel	3 0
L'Argentine (Fantasie Mazurka) ... ..	E. Ketterer	4 0
Les Cloches du Monastère (Nocturne) ... ..	Lefebvre Wely	3 0
Les Clochettes (Grande Galop) ... ..	Durand de Grau	4 0
Les Hironnelles ... ..	Henry Streich	4 0
Le Zéphyr ... ..	J. W. Harmston	3 0
Liedslied ... ..	A. Henselt	3 0
L'Invitation à la Valse ... ..	Weber	3 0
Lucrezia Borgia ... ..	T. Oesten	4 0
Marche Funèbre ... ..	Frederic Chopin	3 0
March Tannhäuser ... ..	Richard Wagner	3 0
Martha ... ..	T. Oesten	4 0
Mazeppa (Galop de Concert) ... ..	A. Quidant	3 0
Melodious Exercises. Duets ... ..	A. Diabelli.	3 0
In Four Books:—
Do. Book 1 ... ..	"	3 0
Do. Book 2 ... ..	"	3 0
Do. Book 3 ... ..	"	3 0
Do. Book 4 ... ..	"	3 0
Melody in F ... ..	Anton Rubinstein	3 0
Melody (played by Princess Christian) ... ..	Halfdan Kjerulf	3 0
Minuet and Trio (Mozart) ... ..	Jules Schulhoff	3 0
Musidora (Polka Mazurka) ... ..	Adrien Talex	3 0
Obéron (Fantaisie) ... ..	R. Favarger	4 0
Olga (Mazurka) ... ..	A. Gorla	4 0
One Hundred and One Exercises: Book 1 ... ..	C. Czerny	4 0
Do. do. Book 2 ... ..	"	4 0
Do. complete in one book ... ..	"	8 0
Où vas-tu, petit oiseau? (Rêverie) ... ..	J. C. Hess	3 0
Polonaise in A ... ..	Frederic Chopin	3 0
Presto in E minor ... ..	Mendelssohn	3 0

(See next column.)

HANOVER EDITION—continued.

Pupil's Daily Exercises ... ..	J. B. Cramer	s. d.
Rigoletto ... ..	T. Oesten	3 0
Rivulet, The ... ..	Mendelssohn	3 0
Romance in A flat ... ..	Mozart	3 0
Rondo in C ... ..	Beethoven	3 0
Rule, Britannia ... ..	F. Kalkbrenner	4 0
Scherzo Brilliant ... ..	H. A. Wollenhaupt	4 0
Shepherd Boy, The (Idyl) ... ..	G. D. Wilson	3 0
Signal March, The ... ..	H. Kleber	3 0
Silvery Waves ... ..	A. P. Wyman	4 0
Slumber Song (Schlummerlied) ... ..	R. Schumann	3 0
Tarantelle in A flat ... ..	S. Heller	3 0
Tarantelle in A ... ..	H. Mayer	3 0
Thème Allemande ... ..	J. Leybach	4 0
Those Evening Bells ... ..	Henri Herz	3 0
Twenty-five Preparatory Studies, Op. 29.
Book 1 ... ..	H. Bertini	4 0
Do. Do. Book 2 ... ..	"	4 0
Do. complete in one book ... ..	"	8 0
Une Petite Fleur ... ..	C. Voss	2 6
Vaillance (Polka Militaire) ... ..	J. Ascher	3 0
Violetta (Polka Mazurka) ... ..	Carl Faust	2 6
Waltz in D flat ... ..	Frederic Chopin	3 0
Wedding March, The ... ..	Mendelssohn	3 0
Zur Guitarre (Impromptu) ... ..	F. Hiller	3 0

Other important works are in course of publication.

LONDON: DUFF &amp; STEWART, 2, HANOVER ST., W.

SIX FOUR-PART SONGS

FOR MEN'S VOICES

BY

HEINRICH HOFMANN.

(Novello's "Orpheus," No. 169 to 174).

169. Roaming ... ..	2d.
170. Sir Cuckoo ... ..	4d.
171. Glorious May ... ..	3d.
172. In Spring-time ... ..	4d.
173. Our Maxim ... ..	3d.
174. In dulci júbilo ... ..	4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SONGS FOR THE LITTLE ONES

BY

MRS. ARTHUR GOODEVE.

A charming little Gift-book for Christmas and New Year.

Price 3s. 6d.

Beautifully illustrated and daintily bound.

London: WEEKES and Co. and SIMPKIN, MARSHALL and Co.

SIMPLE CAROLLERS ARE WE

CAROL FOR CHRISTMASTIDE

Words by J. P. DOUGLAS

Music by J. B. BOUCHER.

Price Twopence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

GRAND MASONIC MARCH

By J. B. BOUCHER.

Price Four Shillings.

Played with great success at Brighton and elsewhere.

London: PATEY and WILLIS, 39, Great Marlborough Street.

THE REAPER AND THE FLOWERS

FOUR-PART SONG WITH SOLOS

Words by LONGFELLOW

Music by J. B. BOUCHER.

Price Threepence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWO-PART SONGS

WITH PIANOFORTE ACCOMPANIMENT

(For Schools and Classes).

MONARCH WINTER ... ..	Poetry by W. S. PASSMORE	2d.
THE SKYLARK ... ..	" R. Y. STURGES	2d.
A SCHOOLBOY'S SONG ... ..	" EDWARD LAWRENCE	2d.
A SPRING WELCOME ... ..	" " "	2d.

MUSIC BY

STEPHEN S. STRATTON.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Large octavo, paper cover, 4s.; cloth, gilt edges, 6s.

ISRAEL RESTORED

AN ORATORIO

(As performed at the Norwich Festival, September 22, 1852, and the Royal Albert Hall, London, April 15, 1880)

COMPOSED BY

W. R. BEXFIELD, MUS. DOC., CANTAB.

The Chorus and Orchestral Parts can be had on application to the publishers.

"The fact seems to us positive that 'Israel Restored' is in various respects a thing of sterling worth. . . . Not a few among both airs and choruses evince exceptional and remarkable power."—Daily Telegraph.

"We need only study the chorus, 'Thou hast mightily delivered Thy people,' to learn how great a loss English music suffered in 1853. . . . With regard to the songs much more might be said than space now permits, for they supply the most conspicuous of all the meritorious features in the work."—Musical Times.

"There is much in the oratorio to excite true admiration and delight."—Musical World.

"We pass on to No. 34, a soprano song, 'The sun shall no more go down,' with obligato accompaniment for horn, viola, cello, and double-bass. This is a lovely composition—probably the gem of the oratorio. . . . The musical interest is well sustained until the end, and there is hardly a number which does not put forth some special claim. The short chorus in D, 3-4 time, makes a bright and majestic conclusion to a work which is an honour to its author and his countrymen."—Orchestra.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Second Thousand.

RUTH

NEW SACRED CANTATA

By ALFRED R. GAUL

Words by EDWARD OXENFORD.

Performed five consecutive nights in Birmingham Town Hall.

Price, paper cover, 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Second Edition.

THE WIDOW OF NAIN

SACRED CANTATA

FOR SOLI VOICES AND CHORUS

BY

ALFRED J. CALDICOTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab.

Performed with great success at the Worcester Musical Festival.

Band parts on application. Piano Score, paper, 3s.; boards, 4s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Post-free of the Composer, Worcester.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO EDITION.

THE GENERAL HISTORY

OF THE

SCIENCE & PRACTICE OF MUSIC

BY

SIR JOHN HAWKINS.

In Two Volumes, Super-royal Octavo, cloth, 21s.

Supplementary Volume of Medallion Portraits, 16s.

Printed from the Original Plates.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOW READY, NEW EDITIONS OF

Novello, Ewer & Co.'s Catalogues

No. 1. ORGAN AND HARMONIUM MUSIC.

" 2. SACRED MUSIC WITH ENGLISH WORDS.

" 3. MUSIC WITH VOCAL AND ORCHESTRAL PARTS.

" 4. MUSIC FOR THE PIANOFORTE.

" 5. SECULAR VOCAL MUSIC.

" 6. SACRED MUSIC WITH LATIN WORDS.

Sent gratis and post-free.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

JUST PUBLISHED.

BLUE BEARD

A HUMOROUS CANTATA

For Solo Voices (S.C.T.B.), Chorus, and Orchestra

MUSIC COMPOSED BY

EDMUND ROGERS.

Price 3s. net.

WEEKES & Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.

Third Edition.

JACK & THE BEANSTALK

COMIC CANTATA FOR FOUR SOLO VOICES AND CHORUS, BY

EDMUND ROGERS.

Price 3s. net.

"Will doubtless prove very popular."—Society.

For special terms to Choral Societies apply to the Composer, 4, Melrose Gardens, West Kensington Park, W.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

NARCISSUS AND ECHO

Cantata for Mixed Voices. Price 3s.

GOD IS OUR REFUGE (Ps. xlv.)

Soli and Chorus. Price 1s.

COMPOSED BY

EDWIN C. SUCH, MUS. BAC., CANTAB.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CANTATAS

FOR

FEMALE VOICES

TWO SHILLINGS & SIXPENCE EACH.

MINSTER BELLS ... .. F. ABT.

THE WISHING STONE ... .. "

THE SILVER CLOUD ... .. "

THE WATER FAIRIES ... .. "

THE SLEEPING BEAUTY ... .. H. LAHEE.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

SUMMER NIGHTS

(LES NUIT'S D'ÉTÉ)

SIX SONGS BY THÉOPHILE GAUTIER

Set to Music, with accompaniment for small Orchestra or Pianoforte.

BY

HECTOR BERLIOZ

Op. 7.

English version by FRANCIS HUEFFER. Price 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

Reduced to 2s. 6d. per Volume.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

IN EIGHT VOLUMES

EACH CONTAINING FORTY-EIGHT CHORAL PIECES, SACRED AND SECULAR.

The attention of Conductors and Secretaries of Choral Societies is specially called to these Volumes, which offer a large collection of useful pieces at an exceedingly low cost.

Lists of Contents of each Volume may be had on application.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

EIGHTY-FIRST EDITION.

PRICE ONE SHILLING, ENLARGED.

*A specimen copy post-free for twelve stamps.COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL
SIGHT-SINGING MANUAL.FOR CHOIRS.—The easiest system that can be obtained for training, improving, and learning to read music at sight.

FOR SCHOOLS.—Every requisite for learning music, and reading at sight in a few lessons.

FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.—The exercises will be found invaluable, tending to produce musical effects seldom heard.

COLLEGIATE ORGAN TUTOR

EDITED BY FREDERIC ARCHER.

3s. 6d. net.

"Well adapted for making an excellent player."

"For pedal-playing, any difficulties surmounted in a short time."

"Contains the most pleasing arrangements for the organ we have seen."

THIRTEENTH EDITION.

Paper cover, 1s.; bound in cloth, 1s. 6d.

CATHEDRAL CHANT-BOOK

Containing nearly 200 Single and Double Chants; Gregorian Tones.

Just published.

BOOKS 2, 3, &amp; 4,

COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL
SINGING MANUALS

Containing

ROUNDS, FOUR-PART SONGS, MADRIGALS, MOTETTS, CHORUSES, GLEES, &c.

Price One Shilling.

A specimen copy post-free for twelve stamps.

London: WEEKES and CO., 16, Hanover Street, W.

Second Edition.

SUPPLEMENTAL

BOOK OF EXERCISES

FOR THE USE OF THOSE

LEARNING TO SING AT SIGHT

COMPILED AND ARRANGED BY

HENRY GADSBY.

ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

New and Revised Edition.

THE

SCHOOL ROUND BOOK

A COLLECTION OF ONE HUNDRED

ROUNDS, CATCHES, AND CANONS

The Words Edited by

REV. J. POWELL METCALFE, M.A.

The Music Edited by

J. STAINER, M.A., Mus. Doc.

Price 8d.; cloth, 1s. 2d.

IN SOL-FA NOTATION, 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Dedicated, by permission, to the College of Organists.

ON TUNING THE ORGAN: Illustrated.
Faults with remedies. Post-free, 2s. 6d. P.O.O. to A. HEM-
STOCK, Disa."Every page shows that Mr. Hemstock is master of his subject."—
Musical Standard."Contains much useful information."—Musical Times."A practical and useful book."—Musical Trade Review.

REDUCED PRICE, ONE SHILLING.

A MANUAL OF SINGING

FOR THE USE OF

CHOIRTRAINERS &amp; SCHOOLMASTERS

BY

RICHARD MANN.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION, WITH ADDITIONS, BY

DR. STAINER.This work offers to the clergy and other amateur choir-trainers a systematic and simple course of instruction, by which they may teach their pupils to read music at sight
in a comparatively short time.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

A COLLECTION

OF

TWO-PART SOLFEGGIIn the principal major keys, designed for the practice of Choristers and Vocal Classes generally,

SELECTED FROM

DURANTE, HANDEL, LEO, SCARLATTI, STEFFANI,
NARES, WEBBE, &c.

BY

JAMES HIGGS,

Mus. Bac., Oxon.

ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

32 pp., price 6d. Annual Subscription, 6s. 6d. post-free.

THE ORCHESTRA AND THE CHOIR.(Edited by W. A. BARRETT, Mus. B., F.R.S.L., &c.) A Monthly Review; Musical, Dramatic, and Literary.
Printers, SWIFT and Co.; sold by W. REEVES, Fleet Street, London.THE JOURNAL FOR THE MUSIC TRADE, containing news of interest to publishers, pianoforte and harmonium makers, organ builders, and manufacturers of and dealers in instruments, is "MUSICAL OPINION AND MUSIC TRADE REVIEW." Price 2d. Of all book and musicsellers; by post (3d.) of
J. F. REID and NEPHEW, Advertising Agents, 1, Sherborne Lane, E.C.

Now ready, No. 52, 44 pp., 2d.; post-free, 3d.

MUSICAL OPINION AND MUSIC TRADE
REVIEW. PITMAN; and to order of all Book and Musicsellers.DR. STAINER'S RECENT LETTER, recommending the Tonic Sol-fa system for training Church Choirs, together with explanatory pamphlet and list of books and apparatus, will be sent gratis and post-free to any Clergyman, Organist, or Choirmaster applying by post-card to the Tonic Sol-fa Agency, 8, Warwick Lane, London, E.C.THE EPIKLEIS! Pooley's Patent, an aid to Pianists for the Slow Shake and other Exercises, entirely of a mental character. Testimonials from the most eminent Pianists.
The price has been reduced owing to employment of machinery in manufacture. By Post, 2s. 6d.; Handbook, 1s. John Pooley, 3, The Terrace, Clapham Park Road, S.W., or Musicsellers.THE DIATONIC and CHROMATIC SCALESfor STUDENTS' USE, edited by ARTHUR O'LEARY, Examiner to the Royal Academy of Music. The minor form as used at Academy,
National Training and High Schools. Complete, 6s.; Diatonic only
3s. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.HARMONY NOTES. Compiled by E. M.
BOWLES. Price One Shilling."The modest title of this little book will scarcely perhaps sufficiently indicate its value."—Musical Times."A great deal of information as to what is generally called 'Thorough Bass' is presented in a concise form, as well as the principles of Harmony."—Orchestra.

London: LAMBORN COCK, 23, Holles Street, Oxford Street, W.

This day is published. New Edition, Enlarged.

ON MUSICAL EDUCATION and VOCAL CULTURE. By ALBERTO B. BACH. Second edition enlarged, with a Lecture "On the Equalisation of the Voice." 8vo, cloth, 5s."His remarks upon the art of singing are extremely good, and evidently the result of much practical knowledge."—Musical Times."Signor Bach being himself a professional singer of high standing, he is enabled to speak with authority on the subject, and his advice can be followed with confidence. He goes thoroughly and systematically into the question of the correct treatment of the voice."—
Musical Opinion.

WILLIAM BLACKWOOD and SONS, Edinburgh and London.

THE HYMNARY

A BOOK OF CHURCH SONG.

THE FOLLOWING EDITIONS ARE NOW READY:

No.				s. d.
1.	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Bourgeois Antique. Cloth, red edges ...	...	...	1 0
2.	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Cloth, red edges ...	...	...	0 6
"	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Limp cloth ...	...	...	0 4
"	Hymns only. Royal 24mo. Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Paper cover ...	...	...	0 3
3.	Hymns with Tunes. Demy 8vo. Cloth ...	...	...	4 0
4.	Hymns with Tunes. Demy 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges ...	...	...	5 0
5.	Tunes only. Demy 8vo. Cloth ...	...	...	3 0
6.	Tunes only. Demy 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges ...	...	...	4 0
7.	Hymns with Tunes. Treble part only. Royal 24mo ...	...	...	1 6
"	Hymns with Tunes. Treble part only. Royal 24mo, cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges ...	...	...	2 0
8.	Hymns with Tunes. Small post 8vo, to bind with the Pearl 8vo Prayer Book. Cloth ...	...	...	2 6
9.	Hymns with Tunes. Ditto. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges ...	...	...	3 0
10.	Hymns with Tunes. Large type. Imperial 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges ...	...	...	10 6
Selections of Hymns with Tunes for Advent, Christmas, Easter, and Harvest, price One Penny each.
A Discount of 20 per Cent. will be allowed to the Clergy, for Cash, when not less than six copies of one edition are taken.
Applications for permission to print the Hymns and Tunes for Choral Festivals should be addressed to the Publishers.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK

SUPPLEMENT 1881, CONTAINING 37 TUNES, 6d.
TO MATCH EITHER EDITION.

No. g.				s. d.
1.	Limp cloth ...	...	...	4 0
10.	Cloth boards ...	...	...	5 0
11.	Small edition ...	...	...	3 0
12.	Tonic Sol-fa ...	...	...	3 0

First and Second Series can still be had separate.

THE BOOK OF PSALMS (BIBLE VERSION),
With Canticles and Anthems.

Pointed for Chanting for Congregational use ... 1 3
(Offered in quantity at reduced price per dozen.)

The Pointing is of the simplest plan, easily understood, and without multiplication of marks and accents, which tend to confuse rather than help.

Communications and inquiries as to copyrights, and also as to supplies of these works at reduced prices, may be addressed to the Compilers, at Clare Street, Bristol.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.; BRISTOL: W. AND F. MORGAN;
And all Booksellers and Musiciansellers.

THE ANGLICAN HYMN-BOOK.

SECOND EDITION. REDUCED PRICES.

Words and Music, 4to, cloth, price 4s. 6d.; 18mo, 1s. 9d.; Treble, 16mo, 1s. Words only, 9d. and 6d.; paper, 4d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.; AND SIMPKIN AND MARSHALL.

Now ready, revised and enlarged, price 7s.

PARR'S PSALMODY, containing 401 Tunes, 301 Chants, various Responses, &c., free from modern tinkering, with above 400 Memoirs of Composers and references to the works in which the Pieces first appeared, giving historical and bibliographical information nowhere else to be found.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE-BOOK, with the additional Tunes as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tunes; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

HERRING'S METRICAL TUNES, &c. 8vo, 12 pp., 6d. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published. Third edition, considerably enlarged, price 1s.

SUPPLEMENTAL TUNES TO POPULAR HYMNS, as sung at St. Michael's, Folkestone. Edited by EDWARD HUSBAND. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

FOR CHORAL WEDDINGS.

BLESSED ARE ALL THEY THAT FEAR THE LORD. Psalm 128. Verse Anthem. By GEORGE CARTER. With accompaniment for Harp (ad lib.) and Organ. Price 1s. 6d.

HIGH FESTIVAL COMMUNION SERVICE. By GEORGE CARTER. Kyrie, Credo, Sanctus, Benedictus, Agnus Dei, and Gloria in excelsis. Price 3s. "We seldom meet with so fine a work."—Church Review. NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Easy and effective.

ANTHEM

GOD IS OUR HOPE AND STRENGTH

Written expressly for Parish Choirs by FRANK BATES, Mus. Bac.

This Anthem has been sung at several Choral Festivals.

"Just the thing for village choirs."—Church Times.

Price Threepence.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS, set to music in the key of G, by ALFRED J. DYE. Price 4d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS. Set to music with special regard to the poetical structure of the hymn, by the Rev. V. W. POPHAM, M.A. Price 4d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Second Edition.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS in B flat. Dedicated by permission to Sir Robert P. Stewart, Mus. Doc. Composed by BARRY M. GILHOLY. Price Fourpence.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published.

THE APOSTLES' CREED. Set to music in the Key of C, by JOHN SEWELL. Price Threepence.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

For the special use of Organists. Post-free, 6d. each.

A FULL HARMONISED ORGAN ACCOMPANIMENT TO THE APOSTLES' CREED AND THE LORD'S PRAYER, in G, by THOMAS E. LEETE, Organist, Parish Church, Sutton Bridge, Lincolnshire.

"Your harmonies are very effective and supply a want hitherto inadequately furnished."

Also Two Kyries, in F and G, taken from his collection, post-free, 2d.; per dozen, 1s. 7d. The above to be had only of the Composer.

By the same. The cheapest collection extant. 20 pp. 8vo.

A SET OF TWELVE KYRIES, with TWELVE OFFERTORY SENTENCES, complete in one book. All original music. Price 1s.; to choirs, 7s. 6d. per dozen copies. Of Composer, and Messrs. CONRAD HERZOG AND CO., 62, Hatton Garden, London, E.C.

Books I. to VIII., New Series, 1s. each.

COLLECTION OF KYRIES, &c. Compiled, &c., by W. T. FREEMANTLE, Sheffield. Separate Numbers (Nos. 1 to 98), 1d. each.

SPOHR'S 24TH PSALM. Net, 9d. and 2s.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Reduced Price, 3d.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and G. DEUS MISEREATUR. For Voices in Unison and Organ. 8vo. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

REDUCED TO THREEPENCE EACH.

G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEMS for small Choirs. First Series. Boys' and Female Voices. Second Series. Female and Male Voices.

These Anthems are available as Duets for private use.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published. Price 1s. 6d.

CHURCH MUSIC: a Popular Sketch. Being a Glance at its Origin, Development, and Present Use, with Illustrations. By the Rev. EDWARD HICKS, B.A., Vicar of Kidsgrove, Staffordshire. JOHN HEYWOOD, Manchester and London.

EASY ANTHEMS, by THOMAS SMITH. Price 3d. each.

"O worship the Lord." Eighth Edition. "Sing we merrily." Third Edition. "Hear my prayer." "I was glad." "My heart is fixed." "The Lord is my Shepherd." "O send out Thy light." "Lift up your heads." "Like as the hart." "It is a good thing to give thanks." "O sing unto the Lord." Second Edition. Te Deum in F. Five Kyrie Eleisons. Second Edition.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Post-free from the Composer, 25, Angel Hill, Bury St. Edmunds.

Third Edition. Price 1s.

HOW TO LEARN TO PLAY THE PIANO WELL. By ONE WHO HAS TAUGHT HIMSELF.

"Here, in the compass of fourteen pages, is matter calculated to produce better results than half-a-dozen years' teaching."

THE ART OF PLAYING AT SIGHT. By ONE WHO HAS TAUGHT HIMSELF. Price 1s.

"The author believes his system to be infallible; after a fair trial, we must say we believe so too."

HOW TO FORM AND TRAIN A VILLAGE CHOIR. By AN ORGANISING CHOIRMASTER. Price 1s.

THE HARMONIUM, AND HOW TO PLAY IT. Price 1s.

Bury St. Edmunds: THOS. SMITH, Music Warehouse, Angel Hill.

Just published.

INTRODUCTION, VARIATIONS, and FINALE for the ORGAN, on "Go bury thy sorrow." By JOHN WRIGLEY, A.R.A.M. Price 2s. net.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Now ready. Small 4to. Price 1s. Vocal parts, 12mo, price 6d. each. 1st and 2nd Series bound together, cloth, 2s. 6d. Vocal parts, 1st and 2nd Series, bound together in limp cloth, 1s. 4d. each.

SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES AND HYMNS of the CHURCH, pointed for Chanting, and set to appropriate Anglican Chants, Single and Double; together with Responses to the Commandments. Edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK. This work contains a selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co. Oxford: PARKER.

Eighth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Large edition, cloth, 3s. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo, without Chants, 9d.; with Proper Psalms, 1s.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to, with Chants, 4s.; each voice part, separately, 1s. 6d. Canticles, score, small 4to, 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo, 1½d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co., and PARKER and Co.

Fifteenth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Reduced price, 4s. 6d., paper cover; 6s., limp cloth; separate vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation, Score, 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. St. J. B. JOULE. Large type, price 2s. 6d. This Psalter having been collated with the Sealed Books is free from the errors contained in all other pointed Psalters, through printing from the incorrect copies commonly sold by the Stationers. N.B.—A small edition is in preparation.

Eighth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. 18mo, price 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Fourth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. Quarto, in cloth, elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Fifth Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION. Harmonised on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. St. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S COLLECTION OF

ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTY-FIVE

Responses to the Commandments

EDITED BY

GEORGE C. MARTIN

SUB-ORGANIST OF ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.

Bound in cloth, gilt edges, price Five Shillings; or Forty-seven Numbers, Twopence each.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WILFORD MORGAN'S GRAND MARCHES.

"CHRISTIAN THE PILGRIM" for ORGAN, with PEDAL OBLIGATO. 24 stamps, post-free. As played at Crystal Palace, Kuhe's Festival, and Promenade Concerts. Also for Piano solo:—

MARCIA GIUBILANTI
MARCHE JOYEUSE
MARCHE MILITAIRE
MARCH IN C MINOR

Post-free, eighteen stamps each.

MORGAN and Co., 27, Charles Street, St. James's Square, London.

TO CONDUCTORS OF CHORAL SOCIETIES.

Send thirty postage stamps, and receive by return a bound copy of WILFORD MORGAN's semi-sacred cantata, "CHRISTIAN THE PILGRIM," a work admirably adapted for large or small Choral Societies; easy, but very effective. Chorus parts printed.

MORGAN and Co., 27, Charles Street, St. James's Square, London.

TO ORGANISTS.—WILFORD MORGAN's popular

semi-sacred March, "CHRISTIAN THE PILGRIM," for Organ, with pedal obligato. Post-free, 18 stamps.

MORGAN and Co., 27, Charles Street, St. James's, S.W.

TO PIANISTS.—WILFORD MORGAN's GAVOTTE

in G, as played at the St. James's Theatre and Promenade Concerts with great success. Sent free for 18 stamps. MORGAN and Co., 27, Charles Street, S.W.

The Cathedral Psalter

POINTED FOR CHANTING.

	s.	d.
Imperial 32mo, cloth .. .. .	0	9
Ditto, with Proper Psalms, cloth .. .. .	1	0
Demy 8vo, large type, with Proper Psalms, cloth .. .. .	2	6
Proper Psalms, separately. Paper cover. 32mo .. .. .	0	3
Canticles, 32mo .. .. .	0	1
Ditto, 8vo .. .. .	0	3

The Psalter, with Chants, Post 4to, cloth .. .. .	5	0
Canticles, 4to, with Chants .. .. .	0	6

THE

CATHEDRAL PSALTER CHANTS.

Post 4to, paper cover .. .. .	2	0
Ditto, cloth .. .. .	3	0
Foolscap 4to, paper cover .. .. .	1	0
Ditto, cloth .. .. .	1	6

The Clergy can be supplied with copies, in quantities of not less than 25, on special terms.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Reduced price, Five Shillings.

THE VILLAGE ORGANIST

New Edition, complete in One Volume. 142 pages.

CONTAINING

SEVENTY-EIGHT VOLUNTARIES

All of which, except four, were composed expressly for the work by eminent English musicians.

Bound in cloth, Five Shillings.

Suitable for a Christmas Present or School Prize.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PRICE SIX SHILLINGS. FOLIO, 200 PAGES.

J. S. BACH'S

Forty-Eight Preludes and Fugues

IN ALL THE MAJOR AND MINOR KEYS

("The Well-Tempered Clavichord").

Edited and collated with all former editions of the work by

W. T. BEST.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ORIGINAL

COMPOSITIONS FOR THE ORGAN

By EDWIN EVANS.

No.		...	...	...	...	net	s.	d.
1.	Postlude-Fughetta in C	...	...	...	...	1	6
2.	Melody in E flat	...	...	...	...	1	6
3.	Processional March in A	...	...	...	...	2	0
4.	Postlude-Fughetta in B flat	...	...	...	...	1	0

EWALD and Co., 16, Argyll Street, London, W.

NEW PART-SONG.

THE NIGHT CHIMES

FOR S.A.T.B., BY

C. E. TINNEY.

Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW PART-SONG, THERE IS DEW FOR THE FLOW'RET, price 6d., by EATON FANING, composer of "The Vikings." London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOUR-PART SONGS. By ALFRED ALLEN.

When twilight dews ... .. 2d.

Dickory, dickory, dock (humorous) ... .. 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MARATHON. Reduced to 2s. Cantata for Solos and Chorus (piano and orchestral accompaniment). Composed by R. FORSEY BRION, Assoc. R.A.M., and dedicated to Professor Macfarren. HOLLIS and Co., 63, Ebury Street, S.W.

HEAVE HO! New Sea Song, for Bass or Baritone, with chorus ad libitum. Words and music by EDWIN ALLWRIGHT. "A stirring sea-song."—Graphic. "Always encored." Price 1s. 6d. net. London: F. PITMAN, 20, Paternoster Row.

REDUCED PRICE.

Third edition, enlarged. Small 4to. Price 2s. paper cover; 3s. cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS

SINGLE AND DOUBLE

EDITED BY THE

REV. SIR F. A. GORE OUSELEY, BART., ETC.,

AND

EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This Work contains nearly 400 Chants, which are appropriated to "Venite, exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c.; those for each Service occupying a separate page and affording several Series, suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter, from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with especial reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, BERNERS STREET, W., AND 80 & 81, QUEEN STREET, E.C.

HARROW SCHOOL MUSIC

BY

JOHN FARMER

ORGANIST AND MUSIC-MASTER TO HARROW SCHOOL.

ORATORIO.—"CHRIST AND HIS SOLDIERS."

Cloth, 4s.; paper cover, 3s. Book of Words, 2d. Orchestral Parts, complete, 7s.

GLEE-BOOK.—Vols. I. and II. Cloth, 4s. each.

PART-SONGS for PUBLIC SCHOOLS, being Cheap Edition of above. Vols. I & 2, 1s. 6d. each, paper cover

GLEES AND SONGS FOR HIGH SCHOOLS. Paper cover, 1s. 6d.

SONGS.—Vols. I. and II. Cloth, 4s. each.

SINGING QUADRILLES.

1st Set—"Jack and Jill," &c. ... .. 1s. | 3rd Set—Hunting Quadrilles: "John Peel," &c. 1s.
2nd Set—"Humpty Dumpty." Duet, 3s.; Solo 1s. | 4th Set—Singing Quadrilles: "Girls and Boys," &c. 1s.

HYMNS AND TUNES FOR HIGH SCHOOLS, 1s. 6d.

Lists and full particulars may be obtained on application.

Harrow: J. C. WILBEE, Bookseller to Harrow School. London: NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

THE

HARMONIUM TREASURY

A SERIES OF SELECT PIECES ARRANGED BY

J. W. ELLIOTT.

In Two Volumes. Vol. I., SACRED; Vol. II., SECULAR. Handsomely bound in Cloth 10s. 6d. each; or in 51 Numbers, 1s. each.

HARMONIUM VOLUNTARIES

ARRANGED BY

J. W. ELLIOTT.

In Six Sets, each containing Sixty Voluntaries, One Shilling each; or in Two Volumes, Cloth, 4s. each.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NEW COMPOSITIONS by ALFRED J. CALDICOTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (winner of Manchester and Huddersfield Glee Prizes):—

Part-Songs—Out on the Waters ... ..	4d.
The Haymakers ... ..	4d.
Yule ... ..	4d.
Jack and Jill ... ..	4d.
Little Jack Horner ... ..	6d.
Humpty Dumpty ... ..	6d.
Winter Days ... ..	4d.

Songs—The New Curate and Two Spoons... .. each 2s.
Post-free of the Composer, Worcester. Special terms to Societies.

WILLIAM J. YOUNG'S Popular Part-Songs for S.A.T.B.

	s.	d.
1. I love the merry springtime ... ..	21st	thousand net
2. Gaily through the greenwood ... ..	40th	do. "
3. O welcome, merry May ... ..	7th	do. "
4. The mountain maid ... ..	6th	do. "
5. Come o'er the mountain ... ..	8th	do. "
6. Hail, merry, merry Christmas ... ..	18th	do. "
7. Songs of praise the angels sang ... ..	6th	do. "
8. Blow, ye balmy breezes, blow ... ..	8th	do. "
9. Fairy revels ... ..	11th	do. "
10. Oh! peaceful vale of rest ... ..	5th	do. "
11. The merry bird ... ..	5th	do. "
12. Come, let us be merry and gay ... ..	5th	do. "
13. Forest echoes ... ..	9th	do. "
14. Haste, ye merry elves ... ..	5th	do. "
15. The streamlet (with soprano solo) ... ..	3rd	do. "
16. Sunshine and shadow ... ..	3rd	do. "
17. Sunny rays (with soprano solo) ... ..	3rd	do. "
18. A happy New Year ... ..	3rd	do. "
19. The coming of Spring ... ..	3rd	do. "
20. England's Glory ... ..	5th	do. "
21. A merry Christmas to you all ... ..	4th	do. "
22. The air resounds with music sweet ... ..	2nd	do. "
23. To a sleeping child ... ..	1st	do. "
24. Our National Church ... ..	2nd	do. "
Ditto (Organ copy) ... ..	1st	do. "

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

POPULAR PART-SONGS by W. W. PEARSON.

The Ironfounders (10th thousand) ... ..	3d.
The Stormy Petrel (soprano or tenor and bass solos) ... ..	3d.
The Coral Grove ... ..	3d.
Pibroch of Donuil Dhu (Sir Walter Scott) ... ..	3d.
Sweet Spring (madrigal) ... ..	3d.
The Ocean (Barry Cornwall) ... ..	3d.
Over the mountain-side (four-part serenade) ... ..	3d.
Soul of Living Music (soprano solo and chorus) ... ..	3d.
The Jäger Chorus (5th thousand) ... ..	3d.
The River ... ..	3d.
Departed Joys (Thomas Moore) ... ..	2d.
Summer and Winter ... ..	2d.
The Anglers (6th thousand) ... ..	2d.
Sweet to live amid the mountains (10th thousand) ... ..	2d.
The Dream of Home (Thomas Moore) ... ..	2d.
There's beauty in the deep (6th thousand) ... ..	1d.
Soldier, rest! (Sir Walter Scott) ... ..	1d.
Woods in Winter (Longfellow) ... ..	1d.
Autumn (Montgomery) ... ..	1d.
The sombre shadows of the night (trio for S.A.B.) ... ..	1d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

POPULAR COMPOSITIONS by GABRIEL DAVIS.

SONGS.	s.	d.
WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? (New Patriotic Song.) The Words written by F. E. Weatherly ... ..	4	0
KING CARNIVAL. The Words written by F. E. Weatherly ... ..	4	0
BY THE RIVER. The Words written by Herbert Gardner ... ..	4	0
ELSIE (The Flower Girl's Song) ... ..	4	0

(Sung by Miss ADA TOLKIEN.)

THE ZINGARA ... ..	4	0
(Sung by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON.)
THE COMING YEAR. The Words written by Dean Alford ... ..	4	0
THE OLD MEADOW GATE. The Words written by R. Richardson ... ..	4	0

PART-SONGS, S.A.T.B.

THE THREE STARS ... ..	0	2
THE KNIGHT'S RETURN. 5th Edition ... ..	0	2
GOD SAVE THE PRINCE. 18th Edition ... ..	0	2
THE DISTANT SEA. 5th Edition ... ..	0	2
TO THE WOODS. 5th Edition ... ..	0	2
HARK! 'TIS MUSIC. 6th Edition ... ..	0	2
DAME WIGGINS OF LEE. (Humorous.) 5th Edition ... ..	0	2
DAME TROT. (Humorous.) 3rd Edition ... ..	0	2
WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? (Patriotic Part-Song. For T.T.B.B.) 2nd Edition ... ..	0	3

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W., and 80 & 81, Queen Street, E.C.

SUNG BY MR. CHAPLIN HENRY.

THREE BARITONE SONGS.—"An English Christmas home," "Our oldest friend," and "The best of all good company." Post-free, 2s. 6d., of the composer, ORBEL HINCHLIFF, 10, Kennington Park Road, S.E.

SELECT COMPOSITIONS from the GREAT MASTERS, arranged for the Organ, with Pedal Obbligato, by ARTHUR HENRY BROWN.

No.
40.	Aria, by Gluck. 1767.
41.	"Sanctus" and "Hosanna," from André's Mass. Op. 43.
42.	Last Chorus, from Beethoven's "Mount of Olives."
43.	"He shall feed His flock," from Handel's "Messiah."
44.	"Quoniam Tu solus," by Vincenzo Righini. 1788.
45.	"Hallelujah" Chorus, from Handel's "Messiah."
46.	"Turn Thy face," "Then shall I teach," "I will magnify Thee," from Anthems by J. Weldon.
47.	"The heavens are telling," from Haydn's "Creation."
48.	Andante and Allegretto, from Handel's Violin Sonata in A major.
49.	Slow Movement from Symphony 36, by Haydn.
50.	Andante con Variazioni, from Spohr's Notturmo. Op. 34.
51.	"Wie nahte mir der Schlummer," by C. M. von Weber. Aria by the Comte de St. Germain, 1760.
52.	"Marche Solennelle," by Franz Schubert.
53.	Adagio, from the Notturmo (Op. 34), by Louis Spohr.
54.	"Ave Maria," from the "Evening Service," Book 7, by Cherubini.
55.	Overture and Minuet to "Samson," Handel, 1742.
56.	"The arm of the Lord," by Haydn.
57.	"Deh lascia o Core," from "Astianatte," by G. Buononcini, 1727.
58.	"Gloria in excelsis," from Schubert's Mass (No. 2), in C.
59.	"Il pensier sta negli oggetti," Aria, by Haydn, 1792.
60.	"Gloria in excelsis," from Mozart's 12th Mass.
61.	"How lovely are the messengers," by Mendelssohn.
62.	Notturmo, by Kalkbrenner.
63.	"Che farò," by Chr. Gluck, 1769.
64.	Aria in A flat, by Louis Spohr.
65.	"Cujus animam," from Rossini's "Stabat Mater."
66.	Air and Gavotte, from the Suite for Orchestra in D, by J. S. Bach.

(Continuing.)

Price Three Shillings each.

Volumes I., II., and III., bound in cloth, are now ready, each containing 20 numbers, price One Guinea each.

A list of the preceding numbers post-free on application.

London: B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster Row, E.C.

Just published.

THE KING OF THE NIGHT

Song for Baritone or Bass, by ALFRED J. DYE (composer of "The Lighthouse").

Price 4s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW SONG FOR BASS OR BARITONE.

O MISTRESS MINE

By DR. F. E. GLADSTONE.

Price 4s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW SACRED SONG.

THE PILGRIMS

(AGNUS DEI)

By J. T. FIELD.

Words by ADELAIDE A. PROCTER.

Price 4s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SUNG BY MR. FRANK BOYLE.

NEW SONG.

THE LOVE HELD DEAR

By J. T. FIELD.

Words by EDWARD OXFENFORD.

Price 4s.

London: PATEY and WILLIS, 39, Great Marlborough Street, W.

NEW CHORAL MUSIC by ALFRED R. GAUL.

OLD NEPTUNE. (Second Thousand.) Words by Edward Oxenford. Price 3d.

"Its vigorous and thoroughly English style makes it suitable for renderings by numerous assemblies of vocalists."—Birmingham Daily Gazette.

JACK FROST. (Sixth Thousand.) Words by Edward Oxenford. Price 3d.

"Enthusiastically redemanded on each of ten renderings in St. Andrew's Hall, Norwich, and the Town Hall, Birmingham."

THE ERL-KING. (Second Thousand.) Price 3d.

"A graphic illustration of a difficult subject. The narrative portions are powerfully descriptive strains."—Birmingham Daily Gazette.

THE SHIPWRECK, Birmingham Prize Glee. Fourth Edition, reduced price, 4d.

THE POTTER. (Fifth Thousand.) Price 3d.

"Thoroughly deserves all the popularity it is certain to obtain."—Musical Times.

THE TWENTY-THIRD PSALM, "The Lord is my Shepherd." (Fourth Thousand.) Sung by large choirs on six occasions in the Birmingham Town Hall. Price 4d.

"Written upon a theme of great beauty, and the harmonies are rich."—Birmingham Daily Gazette.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S

LIST OF WORKS SUITABLE FOR

PRESENTS AND SCHOOL PRIZES

PIANOFORTE CLASSICS.

BACH.—FORTY-EIGHT PRELUDES AND FUGUES .. .. . Folio	s. d. 6 0	MENDELSSOHN.—LIEDER OHNE WORTE	s. d.
BEETHOVEN.—SONATAS. Edited by Agnes Zimmermann .. .. . Folio, cloth, gilt	21 0	Cheap edition. Containing Books 7 and 8. 8vo, 102 pages. Cloth, gilt, 4s. 6d.; paper cover	2 6
BEETHOVEN.—SONATAS. Edited by Agnes Zimmermann. 8vo, cloth, gilt, 7s. 6d.; paper cover	5 0	MENDELSSOHN.—OVERTURES (Solo). The only complete edition .. .. . Folio, cloth, gilt	12 0
HANDEL.—MESSIAH. Arranged for Pianoforte Solo by Berthold Tours .. .. .	3 0	MENDELSSOHN.—OVERTURES (Duet). The only complete edition .. .. . Folio, cloth, gilt	15 0
MENDELSSOHN.—PIANOFORTE WORKS (including the Lieder ohne Worte). An entirely new and carefully revised edition. Folio, 518 pages. Handsomely bound .. .. . Cloth, gilt	21 0	MENDELSSOHN.—SYMPHONIES (Solo). The only complete edition .. .. . Folio, cloth, gilt	12 0
MENDELSSOHN.—PIANOFORTE WORKS (including the Lieder ohne Worte). An entirely new and carefully revised edition. 8vo, 518 pages. Cloth, gilt, 10s. 6d.; paper cover	7 6	MENDELSSOHN.—SYMPHONIES (Duet). The only complete edition .. .. . Folio, cloth, gilt	15 0
MENDELSSOHN.—LIEDER OHNE WORTE. The only complete edition. Containing Books 7 and 8. Elegantly bound. Folio, 145 pages (with Portrait of the Composer) .. .. .	12 0	MENDELSSOHN.—ELIJAH. Arranged for Pianoforte Solo by Berthold Tours .. .. .	5 0
MENDELSSOHN.—LIEDER OHNE WORTE. The only complete edition. Containing Books 7 and 8. Elegantly bound. Folio, 102 pages. Cloth, gilt, 8s.; paper cover	5 0	MOZART.—SONATAS. Edited by Agnes Zimmermann .. .. . Folio, cloth, gilt	18 0
MENDELSSOHN.—LIEDER OHNE WORTE. The only complete edition. Containing Books 7 & 8. 8vo, 155 pages. Cloth, gilt, 6s.; paper cover	4 0	MOZART.—SONATAS. Edited by Agnes Zimmermann. 8vo, cloth, gilt, 5s.; paper cover	3 0
		PIANOFORTE ALBUMS.—Edited by Berthold Tours. Vol. I., Bach; Vol. II., Handel. Cloth, each	4 0
		PIANOFORTE ALBUMS.—Edited by Berthold Tours. Nos. 1, 2, and 3, Compositions by Bach; Nos. 4, 5, and 6, Compositions by Handel each	1 0
		SCHUMANN.—FOREST SCENES. Paper cover	1 0
		SCHUMANN.—PIANOFORTE ALBUM. Op. 68 and 15 (56 pieces). 8vo, cloth, gilt, 4s. 6d.; paper cover	2 6

VOCAL ALBUMS.

BENNETT (Sir W. Sterndale).—TWELVE SONGS. Op. 23 and 35 (English and German Words). 8vo, cloth, gilt, 4s. 6d.; paper cover	2 6	MENDELSSOHN.—THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS. German and English words. 8vo, cloth, gilt, 4s.; paper cover	2 0
BERLIOZ (Hector).—SUMMER NIGHTS (Les Nuits d'Été). Six Songs by Théophile Gautier. English Version by Francis Hueffer. 8vo, paper cover	2 6	MOORE.—IRISH MELODIES. Edited by M. W. Balfe .. .. . Folio, cloth, gilt	21 0
FRANZ.—FOURTEEN SONGS. Set to poems of Robert Burns .. .. . Paper cover	2 6	MOORE.—IRISH MELODIES. Edited by M. W. Balfe .. .. . 8vo, cloth, gilt, 4s.; paper cover	2 6
MENDELSSOHN.—SONGS. The only complete edition. With Portrait of Composer. Folio, cloth, gilt	21 0	MOORE'S IRISH MELODIES. For Two Voices	1 0
MENDELSSOHN.—SONGS. The only complete edition. German and English words. 8vo, cloth, gilt, 6s.; paper cover	4 0	RUBINSTEIN.—EIGHTEEN TWO-PART SONGS .. .. . Cloth, 4s. 6d.; paper cover	2 6
MENDELSSOHN.—SONGS (for Deep Voice). German and English words. 8vo, cloth, gilt, 8s.; paper cover	6 0	SCHUBERT.—TWENTY SONGS. For Mezzo-Soprano. The English version by N. Macfarren	1 6
MENDELSSOHN.—THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS. The only complete edition .. .. . Folio	2 6	SCHUMANN.—SONGS. Vol. I., containing Op. 24, 25, 27, and 30. Edited by N. Macfarren. Folio, cloth, gilt	10 6
MENDELSSOHN.—THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS. With the original words. 8vo, cloth, gilt, 2s.; paper cover	1 0	SCHUMANN.—VOCAL ALBUM. Containing Thirty of his most celebrated Songs. 8vo, cloth, gilt, 4s. 6d.; paper cover	2 6
		VOLKSLIEDER ALBUM.—Forty Songs, with the original words and an English Version by John Oxenford .. .. . Cloth, gilt, 4s. 6d.; paper cover	2 6

CHRISTMAS BOOKS.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS—NEW AND OLD. Edited by Rev. H. R. Bramley, M.A., and J. Stainer .. .. . Post 8vo, cloth, gilt	5 0	SACRED SONGS FOR LITTLE SINGERS. Words by F. R. Havergal. Music by A. Randerger. Illustrated. Cloth, gilt, 5s.; paper cover	2 6
CHRISTMAS CAROLS—NEW AND OLD. Library Edition, with Historical Preface, Roxburgh binding .. .. .	7 6	THE CHRISTMAS BOOK OF LITTLE SONGS FOR YOUNG SINGERS. By J. F. Lorraine. Cloth, gilt	5 0
CHRISTMAS CAROLS—NEW AND OLD. Super-royal 8vo (Series 1 & 2), beautifully illustrated and elegantly bound .. .. . Cloth, gilt	7 6	THE SUNLIGHT OF SONG. A Collection of Sacred and Moral Songs, with original Music by the most eminent English Composers. With forty-six Illustrations. Handsomely bound. Cloth, gilt edges	7 6
NATIONAL NURSERY RHYMES AND SONGS. By J. W. Elliott. With sixty-five illustrations, and elegantly bound .. .. . Cloth, gilt	7 6

DOMINION ORGAN COMPANY,

BOWMANVILLE, ONTARIO, CANADA.

FORSYTH BROTHERS

Beg to announce that they have accepted the SOLE AGENCY for the United Kingdom for the Sale of the celebrated ORGANS manufactured by the DOMINION ORGAN COMPANY.

The points of superiority claimed for these Organs are—

- |   |   |
|---|---|
| 1. SUPERIORITY OF TONE.                 | 8. SMOOTHNESS AND PERFECTION OF ACTION.   |
| 2. POWER AND VOLUME OF TONE.            | 9. STYLE AND GENERAL APPEARANCE OF CASE.  |
| 3. CAPACITY FOR VARIETY OF EFFECT.      | 10. BELLOWS AND ACTION ARE ALL TESTED BY A MECHANICAL ARRANGEMENT BEFORE BEING PUT INTO THE CASE. |
| 4. CAPACITY FOR EXPRESSION.             |   |
| 5. QUICKNESS OF TOUCH.                  |   |
| 6. UNIFORMITY AND EQUALITY OF TONE.     |   |
| 7. THE QUALITY OF KEEPING IN GOOD TUNE. |   |

Style 95.

TWO-MANUAL & PEDAL BASS ORGAN

SIXTEEN SETS OF REEDS, TWENTY-FIVE STOPS,

105 GUINEAS.

Illustrated Catalogues and all particulars post-free.

FORSYTH BROTHERS,

272A, Regent Circus, Oxford Street, London, and 122 & 124, Deansgate, Manchester.

NOW READY.

TWO NEW PIANOFORTE ALBUMS

BY

STEPHEN HELLER & CARL REINECKE

BEING COLLECTIONS OF THE LATEST COMPOSITIONS BY THESE EMINENT COMPOSERS.

EDITED AND CAREFULLY FINGERED BY CHARLES HALLÉ.

Price in Paper Cover, 5s. each net; Cloth, gilt edges, 7s. each net.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL.

Section I., No. 1.—PIANOFORTE TUTOR.

FORSYTH BROTHERS,

272A, REGENT CIRCUS, OXFORD STREET, LONDON,

AND

122 & 124, DEANSGATE, MANCHESTER

(Late Cross Street, South King Street).

MELBOURNE EXHIBITION, 1881.

CHALLEN & SON

HAVE BEEN ADJUDGED THE

GOLD MEDAL

FOR UPRIGHT IRON-FRAME PIANOS.

MELBOURNE, March, 1881.

We, the undersigned Jurors for Musical Instruments at the Melbourne International Exhibition, have no hesitation in certifying that Messrs. Challen & Son, of London, have obtained the highest number of points for Cottage Pianos, in the British Court.

The award was based on the excellence of the quality, combined with the cheapness and solidity of the instruments exhibited, which we consider to be well adapted to the requirements of the Colonies.

LÉON CARON,

Chairman,

L. MOONEN,

Vice-Chairman,

ANTONIO GIAMMONA,

WILLIAM. ANDERSON,

THOMAS MORANT,

GUSTAV GERLACH,

C. T. PLUNKET,

JULIUS LIEDE.

May be obtained from all Musicsellers. Illustrated Lists and Testimonials forwarded free.

Sole Wholesale Agents for WARD'S PATENT ROYAL PIANOFORTE LAMP.

"A very ingenious application of lamp-light on the desk of the Pianoforte, Harmonium, or Organ."—Vide Illustrated London News.

CHALLEN & SON, 46, OXFORD ST.

STEAM WORKS—CARDINGTON STREET, EUSTON SQUARE.

ESTABLISHED 1804.

HOPKINSON'S PIANOFORTES.

PRIZE MEDALS—1851, 1855, 1862, 1865, 1866, 1872, 1875, 1877, 1879, AND AT THE PARIS EXHIBITION, 1878,

the highest distinction was conferred upon Messrs. HOPKINSON by the Musical Jurors—viz., the only Gold Medal awarded to any British Manufacturer.

MESSRS. HOPKINSON, therefore, feel fairly entitled to repeat the opinions expressed in the year 1845, by the most celebrated Pianists and Musicians then living—viz., THALBERG, Sir JULIUS BENEDICT, Madame DULCKEN, Sir HENRY BISHOP, and others, as still being correct—that their Pianofortes are "unsurpassed in tone and touch by those of any other maker."

Since these opinions were expressed, the leading musical judges in all parts of the world have confirmed them.

Messrs. H. having also, after carefully conducted experiments, introduced improvements of great value, with confidence invite the Trade, Professors, and the Musical Public, specially to inspect and judge of their Metal-framed Grand and Cottage Pianofortes, which they believe to deserve the eulogium passed upon them by the President of the Musical Jurors at Paris, 1878, that—

"THEY ARE FAULTLESS."

WAREROOMS—235, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.

MANUFACTORY—FITZROY ROAD, PRIMROSE HILL, N.W.

NOTE.—As many persons are not aware at how moderate a price they can obtain Instruments of such proved and undoubted excellence, they are invited to apply for Illustrated Lists.

CHAPPELL AND CO.'S IRON-FRAMED PIANOFORTES,

OBLIQUE, AND SINGLE AND DOUBLE OVERSTRUNG.

35 TO 150 GUINEAS.

CLOUGH & WARREN'S AMERICAN ORGANS,

A COMBINATION OF PIPES AND REEDS.

18 TO 225 GUINEAS.

ALEXANDRE ORGAN HARMONIUMS,

6 TO 150 GUINEAS.

Show Rooms—50, NEW BOND STREET, W.

City Branch—15, POULTRY, E.C.

Steam Pianoforte Works—CHALK FARM ROAD, N.W.

TO ORGANISTS, CHOIRMASTERS, AND THE CLERGY. PEDAL ORGANS. CHANCEL ORGANS. NEW AND SECOND-HAND.

PEDAL ORGAN, with 2 manuals, 23 stops, full pedal compass, 30 notes and accessories (style 800).

Price 160 Guineas.

Suitable for a congregation of 500 people.

PEDAL ORGAN, with 1 manual, 17 stops, and full pedal compass, 30 notes and accessories (style 432).

Price 80 Guineas.

Suitable for organ practice.

PEDAL ORGAN, with 1 manual, 9 stops, and pedal compass, 27 notes and accessories (style 410).

Price 60 Guineas.

Suitable for a congregation of 300 people.

LIBERAL DISCOUNT
FOR CASH.

New Illustrated Catalogue
Post-free.

CHANCEL ORGAN, with 1 manual, 15 stops, and ventrillo chest (style 501).

Price 110 Guineas.

The most powerful organ with 1 manual.

CHANCEL ORGAN, with 1 manual, 13 stops, and accessories (style 431).

Price 50 Guineas.

Suitable for a congregation of 300 people. Used by Moody and Sankey.

CHANCEL ORGAN, with 12 stops and Venetian organ swell (style 350).

Price 38 Guineas.

Suitable for a congregation of 200 people.

CHANCEL ORGAN, with 8 stops, including 2 couplers (style 108).

Price 23 Guineas.

Suitable for a congregation of 100 people.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN COMPANY, 37, Great Marlborough Street, London, W.

MUIR SMITH'S VERTICAL IRON GRAND PIANOFORTES

First London Manufacturer,

116 & 118, BAYHAM ST., CAMDEN TOWN, N.W.

The Trade are invited to inspect these Instruments, which for qualities of Tone, Touch, and excellence of Finish are unsurpassed by any other Maker.

Designs and Prices on application.

BORD'S PIANOS ON SALE

With 25 per Cent. Discount for Cash, or 15s. per Month on
Three Years' Hire System.

Second-hand on Three Years' Hire System, 10s. 6d. per Month.

ILLUSTRATED LIST FREE OF

CHARLES STILES & CO.,
42, SOUTHAMPTON ROW, HOLBORN, LONDON.
PIANOS EXCHANGED.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 468.—Vol. 23.

Registered for transmission abroad.

FEBRUARY 1, 1882.

Price 3d.; Post-free, 4d.

Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 4s.

ORPHEUS MUSICAL SOCIETY.—

Second Season, 1881-82.

Conductor, Mr. F. A. W. DOCKER (Associate of the Royal Academy of Music).

Accompanist, Mr. E. G. CROAGER (R.A.M.)

The REHEARSALS of this Society are held every THURSDAY Evening, at 6 o'clock, in St. Andrew's Schoolrooms, 71, Wells Street, Oxford Street, and will be continued up to the end of April. The following music is selected for practice:—

"Tu es petrus" (Chorus for five voices)... Mendelssohn.

13th Psalm ... .. Liszt.

93rd Psalm ... .. Meyerbeer.

and Melusina (a Cantata)... .. H. Hofmann.

Ladies and Gentlemen wishing to join this Society are requested to make application to Mr. Docker, 115, Priory Road, West Hampstead.

The subscription is Half a Guinea, and members are requested to provide themselves with all music for practice.

THE TUFNELL PARK CHORAL SOCIETY.—

Conductor, Mr. W. HENRY THOMAS.—will give a PUBLIC CONCERT at the Athenæum, Camden Road, on THURSDAY Evening, February 2, 1882, at 8 o'clock. Doors open at 7.30. Tickets (Reserved and Numbered Seats) 4s.; Unreserved Seats, 2s. can be obtained at the Athenæum. Hofmann's Cantata, CINDERELLA, will be performed for the first time in England, and the first part of Haydn's Oratorio, THE CREATION. Artists: Miss Margaret Hoare, Miss Price, and Miss Philips, Mr. James Sauvage, Mr. A. Smith, Mr. Grylls, and Mr. Lewis Thomas.

Notice.—The Rehearsals of the Tufnell Park Choral Society take place in the St. George's Church Room, Carleton Road, Tufnell Park, on Tuesday Evenings, 8 o'clock until 9.45.

Subscription for the remainder of the Season, Members or Honorary Subscribers, Half a Guinea. Honorary Subscribers will have two Reserved Seats for the above Concert and four Tickets for the last Invitation Concert of the Season at Easter.

Ladies and Gentlemen desirous of becoming Members are requested to apply to the Conductor, Mr. W. Henry Thomas, 7, Lidlington Place, Harrington Square, N.W.

MUSICAL UNION.—38th Season.—M. JULES

LASSERRE, Director and Proprietor, begs to inform his friends and subscribers that the SEVEN MATINEES will COMMENCE at St. James's Hall, on TUESDAY, April 18, to be continued on the following dates (TUESDAYS): May 9, 16; June 6, 13, 20, 27. Subscription for the series, £2 2s., received by Mr. Austin, St. James's Hall; Messrs. Chappell, 50, New Bond Street; or M. Lasserre, 124, New Bond Street.

SATURDAY POPULAR ORGAN RECITALS,

Bow and Bromley Institute, E., every SATURDAY, 8 p.m. Admission, Threepence; Chairs, Sixpence.

THE SCOTTISH SIMS REEVES, HAMILTON

CORBETT, in the Steinway Hall, Portman Square, commencing MONDAY, February 6, under the distinguished patronage of the Highland Society of London.

LONDON CHURCH CHOIR ASSOCIATION.—

This Association offers the sum of TEN GUINEAS for a Setting of the TE DEUM, to be sung at the Tenth Annual Festival, at St. Paul's Cathedral, in November next. Dr. Stainer and Dr. Bridge will act as umpires. Printed particulars may be had on application to Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.—On TUESDAY,

February 7, at 8, W. A. BARRETT, Esq., Mus. Bac., F.C.O., will lecture on "Old English Country Songs," with musical illustrations. J. SPENCER CURWEN, Esq., will read a Paper on "Welsh Popular Music," on TUESDAY, March 7, at 8.

E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Sec.

95, Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

ST. GEORGE, Hanover Square.—WANTED, for

the Choir of this Church, a SOPRANO (Lady) and TENOR. Powerful voices and fair reading indispensable. Stipend, £10. Duties: Two services on Sunday, Good Friday, and Christmas Day, and one weekly practice. Apply, by letter, to W. Pinney, Mus. B., 70, Elgin Crescent, Notting Hill, W.

FREE VACANCIES in a resident Country Choir

for two LEADING TREBLES. Orphans (gentlemen's sons) preferred. Address, Precentor, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, a leading CHOIRBOY for All Saints',

Knightsbridge, S.W. Apply to Mr. F. W. Belchamber, 59, Grove Place, Brompton, S.W.

CITY CHURCH CHOIR.—There is a VACANCY for a CONTRALTO VOICE in the Choir of St. Alphage, London Wall. The duties comprise two services on Sunday and a rehearsal on Thursday evening. Service, full choral. Salary, £10 per annum. Candidates must be well up in Church music, and be able to read fairly at sight. Address, with testimonials or references, Organist, care of R. A. Knight and Co., 3, Abchurch Lane, E.C.

CONTRALTO.—REQUIRED for St. George-the-Martyr, Southwark, a Lady with a good voice and fair reader. Choral service. Small gratuity given. Apply to Organist, after Wednesday evening service.

ALTO, TENOR and BOYS' VOICES WANTED.

Must be able to read Cathedral service. Apply at St. Mary-at-Hill Church, Eastcheap, on Sundays.

TENOR WANTED for All Saints' Church,

S. Lambeth. £10 per annum. Address, Mr. W. H. Holmes, 42, Chantrey Road, Stockwell, S.W.

TENOR WANTED for the Choir of the Licensed

Victuallers' Asylum Chapel, Old Kent Road. Duties: Sunday morning and evening, with Wednesday evening rehearsals. Applicants should be equal to solo parts of anthems and services. Address, stating terms, The Rev. the Chaplain.

BARITONE of experience, who has just arrived

in London, seeks an ENGAGEMENT in Choir or Chorus, and as occasional soloist. Sight reader. Address, Baritone, 100, Huddleston Road, N.

BASS (not Baritone) WANTED, for surpliced

choir in Kensington. First-rate reader indispensable. Thursday practice and two Sunday services. Salary, £10. Address, Organist, 163, Piccadilly, W.

WANTED, a CHOIRMAN, who could occasionally conduct at Rehearsals under the Choirmaster. True Bass voice. Good reader in Anglican music. Communicant, with clerical reference. Two services on Sundays and high days. Friday evening fixed rehearsal. Stipend, £15. Address, N. B. P., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

AN ORGANIST WANTED for St. Mary's Church

(Iron), Stamford Brook, Hammersmith. Apply to Rev. W. E. Freeman Greene, 26, Linden Gardens, Bayswater.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED,

for the Mission Church of St. Stephen, Buckhurst Hill, Essex. Organ new; cost £200. Apply to the Rector.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER combined.—

WANTED, for the Church of the Annunciation, Chislehurst, the above. Must be resident, catholic, and a thorough musician. Organ of 21 stops. Psalms, Gregorian; choral celebrations, with occasional festival services. Salary, £100. Address, with references, Rev. H. Lloyd Russell, The Vicarage.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED,

for St. Paul's Church, Dorking, at the end of March. Plain service. Sundays and on Wednesday evenings. CC Organ, two manuals. Salary, £40 per annum. A gentleman who can reside in the neighbourhood preferred. Apply, by letter, to the Vicar, St. Paul's, Dorking.

ORGANIST and ASSISTANT-CHOIRMASTER

WANTED for the Unitarian Congregation at Croydon. Salary, £30. Two services on Sunday, and Saturday evening practice. Church close by West Croydon Station. Apply by letter to F. Walters, The Waldrons, Croydon.

LOUGHTON, Essex.—ORGANIST REQUIRED

for the Parish Church. Good organ. Surpliced Choir. Three services every Sunday and one practice during week. Apply, stating salary required, to Rev. J. W. Maitland, Loughton Hall, Essex.

WANTED, by the Director of the Sidcup Musical

Society, an ASSISTANT-ORGANIST. Must be thoroughly efficient, and able to accompany Choral (Gregorian) service. Commencing salary, £40. For duties, apply by letter, with references, to Mr. Butterworth, Bath Villa, Sidcup, Kent. Replies to suitable candidates only.

SITUATION WANTED by BLIND MAN as

ORGANIST; just left Blind School, Birmingham. Perfectly trained, pupil of Stimpson. Can tune organ and piano. Address, E. H. W., Hanslope Park, Stony Stratford.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MRS. BELLAMY (Soprano).

Oratorio and Ballad Concerts, 32, Hunter's Lane, Birmingham.

MISS CARINA CLELLAND.

All communications for Oratorios and Concerts can be addressed to her permanent address, 15, Athol Road, Manningham, Bradford.

MISS MARIE COPE (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Concerts, Lessons, 167, New Cross Road, London, S.E.

MISS EVA FARBSTEIN (Soprano).

Pupil of Signor Ardit, Conductor of Her Majesty's Opera. For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 20, Story Street, Hull; or, N. Vert, Esq., 50, New Bond Street, London, W.

MISS HARDMAN (Soprano)

Is open to engagements for Oratorios, Concerts, &c. For terms and open dates, address, Bacup, Manchester.

MISS BESSIE HOLT, R.A.M. (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Rawtenstall, Manchester.

MRS. T. HOOPER (Soprano).

Pupil of Theodore Distin, Esq., R.A.M. For Concerts, Lessons, &c., 116, Newington Butts, London, S.E.

MISS JULIA JONES (Soprano).

For Oratorios, &c., address, 1, Great Western Terrace, Cheltenham.

MISS CLARA MARNI (Soprano).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 32, Newington Green, N.

MISS NELLY McEWEN (Soprano)

Is open to engagements for Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 1, Cavendish Place, Cavendish Square, W.

MISS FANNIE SELLERS (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., York Place, Knaresborough.

MISS LAURA SMART (Soprano).

For Oratorio, Concert, or Operatic Recital, &c., address, 28, Church Street, Liverpool.

MRS. ALFRED J. SUTTON (Soprano)

Is open to engagements for Concerts and Oratorios. 54, Duchess Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.

MRS. HORATIO TAYLOR (Soprano).

References: T. Mee Pattison, Esq., Seaford, Liverpool; George Marsden, Esq., Mus. Bac., Cantab., Fallowfield, Manchester. For Oratorios and Concerts, address, 6, Southbank Road, Southport.

MISS LOUISA BOWMONT

(Principal Contralto of St. Peter's, Manchester).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 51, Mercer Street, Embden Street, Hulme, Manchester. Criticisms on application.

MISS EDITH CLELLAND (Contralto).

71, Hulton Street, Brooks' Bar, Manchester.

MISS SARA CRAGG (Contralto).

12, North Castle Street, Halifax.

MRS. SAML. WORTON FIELDING (Contralto).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 11, Pershore Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham, and 56, Hammersmith Road, London, W.

MISS LEYLAND (Contralto).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 6, Wilton Street, Oxford Road, Manchester.

MISS LILY PARRATT (Contralto Vocalist).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 224, Airedale View, Otley Road, Bradford.

MISS JEANIE ROSSE (Contralto).

Fairmead Lodge, Upper Holloway, N.

MISS WOLSTENHOLME (Contralto).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Radcliffe, Manchester.

MISS FLORENCE WYDFORD (Contralto).

For Oratorios, Miscellaneous Concerts, Dinners, Soirées, &c., 95, St. Paul's Road, Lorrimer Square, S.E.

MR. GEORGE BANKS (Tenor).*MR. JAMES B. SMITH (Bass).

(Both late of St. Mary's Cathedral, Edinburgh.) Address, The Cathedral, Peterborough.

MR. VERNEY BINNS (Tenor).

65, King Cross Street, Halifax.

MR. ALFRED GREENWOOD (Tenor).

For Oratorio or other engagements, address, 14, South Molton Street, Oxford Street, W.

MR. EDWARD KEMP (Tenor)

Requests communications respecting Oratorios and Concerts to be addressed, The Cathedral, Lichfield.

MR. EDWIN LONGMORE (Solo Tenor).*MR. HENRY SUNMAN (Solo Bass).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, The Minster, Southwell.

MR. EDWIN T. MORGAN (Tenor).

(Bristol Cathedral.)

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, The Cathedral.

The Era says: "Mr. Peach has a tenor voice of very pure quality."

MR. FRANK PEACH (Tenor).

For Oratorios, Concerts, Church Solos, &c., address, 58, Foulden Road, Stoke Newington, N.

"The enormous building (St. Paul's Cathedral) was crammed from end to end."

The Morning Post says: "The solo recitative, 'In splendour bright,' was admirably sung by Mr. Frank Peach."

Favourable comments also appeared in the Times, Daily News, Daily Chronicle, People, City Press, Citizen, South London Press, &c.

MR. STEDMAN (Tenor).

12, Berners Street, W.

MR. HUBERT F. DELMA (Baritone).

For Concerts, Lessons, &c., address, Mr. Austin Sparks, 51, Elizabeth Street, Eaton Square, S.W.

MR. J. F. NASH (Baritone).

Address, Cathedral, Bristol. Quartet or complete Concert Parties.

MR. W. H. BRERETON (Bass).

8, Mecklenburgh Street, W.C.

MR. SEYMOUR KELLY (Bass).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, The Cathedral, Chichester.

MR. HOWARD LEES (Bass).

For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, &c., Concert Parties arranged for, address, Delph, Manchester.

MR. ADOLPHUS PHILLIPS (Basso).

Address, Magdalen College Choir, Oxford.

MR. J. BINGLEY SHAW (Bass).

For Oratorios, Concerts, Banquets, &c., address, 12, Berners Street, London, W., or The Minster, Southwell.

MR. WM. THOMAS (Bass).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, The Cathedral, Bristol.

SIGNOR ODOARDO BARRI (Tenor) begs to announce that he is prepared to accept ENGAGEMENTS for Oratorio, Classical, Ballad, and other Concerts. He also gives lessons in Voice-Production and Italian Singing. New address, 60, Margaret Street, Cavendish Square, W.

MR. E. DUNKERTON (Tenor, Lincoln Cathedral), engaged: Horncastle, Jan. 31; Hull, Feb. 6; Grimsby, 14; Ilkeston, 20 ("Lord of the Isles"); Sheffield, 21 ("Magna Charta"); Stockport, March 15 ("Stabat Mater," "Hymn of Praise").

MR. EDWARD DALZELL (Tenor, Westminster Abbey) is open to accept ENGAGEMENTS for Oratorio, Classical or Ballad Concerts, &c. Address, 2, Woodside Terrace, Mallinson Road, Wandsworth Common, S.W.

MR. J. T. HUTCHINSON (Baritone) begs that all communications respecting Concerts or Pupils may be sent to his new address, 26, Brunswick Square, W.C.

MR. FREDERICK BEVAN (Bass, H.M. Chapel Royal, Whitehall) begs to announce that he is open to accept engagements for Oratorio, Classical, Operatic, or Ballad Concerts, &c. (New address) 21, Bonham Road, Brixton Rise, S.W.

AUGUSTE CARREE (Basso), of the Holborn Promenade Concerts, has several dates still open. Terms moderate. Address, 3, Burton Crescent, W.C.

MR. W. H. HARPER (Pianist and Accompanist), 2, Bedford Villas West, Dartford, or care of Messrs. Brewer and Co., 38, Poultry, E.C.

THE HARP.—Miss LOCKWOOD, Harpist to the Carl Rosa Company, will be happy to give LESSONS on the above Instrument. Address, Her Majesty's Theatre.

VIOLIN.—Miss ALICE IVIMY, Solo Violinist, is open to ENGAGEMENTS for Concerts in town or country. Press testimonials forwarded. Address, Sutton, Surrey.

MR. ALFRED FERDINAND RIPPON, the celebrated Violinist, may be engaged for Concerts. Address, care of Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

MR. ARTHUR DOREY (Organist of the Alexandra Palace). For Pupils, Engagements for Concerts, &c., 14, Huntley Street, Bedford Square, W.C.

LESSONS by CORRESPONDENCE. E. W. TAYLOR, Mus. Bac., F.C.O., L.Mus. T.C.L., Stafford.

DR. BENTLEY (St. Ann's Street, Manchester). Lessons per post in Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, Form, Acoustics, and Analysis; also Correction of Musical MSS.

MR. JOHN HILES, 51, Elsham Road, Kensington, W. (Author of the "Catechism of Harmony, Thoroughbass, and Modulation," "Hiles's Short Voluntaries," "Catechism for the Pianoforte Student," and several other important musical works), gives Lessons in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by post.

DR. CORBETT gives LESSONS through Post in Harmony, Counterpoint, &c., &c. Upwards of sixty pupils have passed musical examinations. Address, Bridgenorth, Salop.

THE ORGANIST of RIPON CATHEDRAL teaches HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT by Correspondence. For terms, address Edwin J. Crow, F.C.O., Mus. Bac., Cantab.

MR. CHARLES W. PEARCE, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1881), F.C.O., L. Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS per post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FORM, &c. 50, Blomfield Road, Maida Vale, W.

MR. CLEVELAND WIGAN, composer of "Sons of Vulcan," "Song for Mariners" (sung by Miss Mary Davies), &c., &c., undertakes the Revision of Amateur Compositions, Vocal and Instrumental. 69, Folkestone Road, Dover.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who passed RECENT UNIVERSITY EXAMINATIONS for the DEGREES of MUS. DOC. and MUS. BAC. (Oxford, Cambridge, and Dublin). Dr. Allison prepared Candidates who passed this year's (1882) Examination for Licentiate of the Royal Academy of Music, "Passed with Honours" Royal Academy of Music, Local Examinations F.C.O., and every other Musical Examination open to the public. Harmony, Acoustics, Form, Plan or Design, Counterpoint, Canon, Fugue, Analysis, Orchestration, and Revision of Compositions, by Post. Personal instruction in Singing, Organ and Pianoforte playing. CAMBRIDGE HOUSE, 68, NELSON STREET, MANCHESTER.

PIANO, HARMONY.—A Young Lady, pupil of Sir Julius Benedict, gives PIANOFORTE and HARMONY LESSONS. Harmony lessons by post. Address, Miss C., 15, Dover Street, Piccadilly.

MR. MARK J. MONK, Mus. Bac., Oxon., gives LESSONS by post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares Candidates for the University Examinations in Music. Address, Ashby-de-la-Zouch, Leicestershire.

LITERARY EXAMINATION for MUSICAL DEGREES.—A Cambridge Graduate and experienced tutor, who is also studying for degree of Mus. Bac., would prepare a Professor of Music for above, in return for advanced assistance in the musical portion of examination, and in Piano, Organ, and Violin. Highest references. University, 244, The Grove, Shepherd's Bush.

EXTRACT from TESTIMONIALS to MR. R. MASON, Gentleman of the Chapel Royal.

"I can bear testimony to your excellent method of teaching, production of voice, and singing in general."—THURLEY BEALE.

"I can with sincerity bear evidence to your qualifications as a teacher of vocal music."—LEWIS THOMAS.

For terms, address, 68, Winchester Street, Pimlico.

MUSIC SCHOOL.—CHURCH OF ENGLAND HIGH SCHOOL for GIRLS (Limited), 6, Upper Baker Street, Regent's Park.—Head Music-Mistress, Miss Macirone, late Professor of Royal Academy of Music. Fees, two or three guineas a term. Pupils not in the school pay an entrance fee of one guinea. Examinations for Scholarships will be held at Easter by Professor Macfarren. The Music School reopened on Wednesday, January 18. F. J. HOLLAND, Chairman.

LONDON ORGAN SCHOOL and COLLEGE of MUSIC (established 1865), 3, Princes Street, Cavendish Square, W. Piano, singing, violin, flute, organ lessons, and practice, £2 2s. per course. Lessons day and evening. Prospectus for one stamp. SCOTSON CLARK, Mus. B., Principal.

PRACTISING ROOMS.—AGATE and PRITCHARD, 68, Gracechurch Street, E.C. Professors attend to give lessons on various Instruments, also in Singing. An Elementary Class for the Violin.

ORGAN LESSONS, or PRACTICE, 36, STRAND (four doors from Charing Cross), and at St. Michael's, Lorn Road, Brixton Road, S.W., on fine two-manual C ORGANS (HILL and SON). PEDALLING specially taught. W. VENNING SOUTHGATE, "The Strand Organ Studio," 36, Strand, W.C. Established 1867.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Three manuals, each of 56 notes, pedal organ, 30 notes, 18 effective stops, and blown by the Automatic Hydraulic Engine. Terms, strictly inclusive, ONE SHILLING PER HOUR, at Blennerhasset's Organ School and Studio, 1A, Vernon Street, Pentonville, W.C. Sole Agent for THE HYDRAULIC ORGAN BLOWER. Cheapest, simplest, best, and most effective ever invented. Full particulars, and estimates as above, free. Inspection invited.

ORGAN PRACTICE (Private) on exceptionally moderate terms. Three manuals, 34 stops; separate pedal organ of 4 stops. Blown by engine-power. Five minutes from the "Angel." Apply to Ewald and Co., 16, Argyll Street, Regent Circus, W.

ORGAN STUDIO, 58, Herne Hill Road, near Loughborough Junction, S.E. New Organ. Two manuals, concave pedals. Practice, per quarter, One Guinea. Lessons with practice, Two Guineas. J. Faux Boardman.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—At the South London Organ Studio. Three manuals and pedals. 343, Coldharbour Lane, Brixton. Close to Station.

MUSICAL PROFESSION.—To the CLERGY, &c.—Mr. W. de M. SERGISON, Organist of St. Peter's, Eaton Square, has a VACANCY for a Young Gentleman as ARTICLED PUPIL. The highest advantages for training as a Church musician. Apply to the Vestry, St. Peter's, Eaton Square, S.W.

THE ORGANIST of St. Peter's, Eltham Road, will shortly have a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL. One able to take a plain service preferred. Address, Mr. Horton Corbett, 1, Oxford Terrace, Burnt Ash Lane, Lee, Kent.

MR. EDWIN EVANS will shortly have a VACANCY for a RESIDENT PUPIL, to train for the profession. Organ (30 stops, 3 manuals) in the house. Large musical library, separate piano, and every facility for progress and experience. Large church organ. Apply, by letter, 16, Argyll Street, W.

A PROFESSOR of MUSIC (Country) has a VACANCY for a RESIDENT PUPIL. Organ, piano, and violin may be studied. Last pupil good appointment. Large house and garden, with every home comfort. Premium. Address, Signor V. de Monaco, 24, Scarsdale Villas, Kensington, W.

A JUNIOR ARTICLED PUPIL REQUIRED by a Mus. Bac. Excellent opportunity of acquiring a thorough knowledge of the profession. Further particulars upon application to X. Y. Z., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

AS ASSISTANT PUPIL (near London).—Required for a Youth, who has been well trained from childhood, and is a brilliant pianist. Very good organist. Can take a plain service. One year's experience in teaching. A comfortable home indispensable, with small stipend, and finishing instructions. Address, Musica, Madame West, The Studio, Bexley Heath, Kent.

THE following Artists may be engaged for Oratorio, Ballad, and Miscellaneous Concerts, either as a quartet party, or separately, viz.:

MISS ANNIE SINCLAIR (Soprano).

Of the Royal Albert Hall and Exeter Hall Concerts.

MISS EMILY DONES (Contralto).

Of the Royal Albert Hall Concerts.

MR. ALFRED KENNINGHAM (Tenor).

Principal Tenor of St. Paul's Cathedral.

MR. THOMAS KEMPTON (Bass).

Of the Bach Choir Concerts and St. Paul's Cathedral.

For terms, vacant dates, &c., &c., to Thomas Kempton, 6, Halliford Street, London, N., where all communications respecting Church Festivals, Masonic Banquets, &c., should be addressed.

MR. and MADAME EDWIN FRITH'S GRAND ORATORIO, OPERATIC, and BALLAD CONCERT ARTISTS and PARTIES (under Royal Patronage, 1880) for London or Provincial engagements. Terms very moderate, especially so for en route consecutive dates. Most important and complete prospectus for 1882 now ready. Upwards of 150 well-known artists to select from. Great success on January 21 at Birmingham, third visit since October. Engagements settled: Stroud, February 15; Six nights in Yorkshire, 20 to 25 (Northerners should write in); Manchester, 25; Hereford, Ross, pending; Bermondsey, 28; Holloway, March 7; Tunbridge Wells to follow; Birmingham (Musical Association), 18; &c. Many other dates pending for all parts. Vacancies for Resident and few other Vocal Pupils. Terms moderate. All London artists should communicate provincial dates as booked; other dates might be opened en route. Mr. Frith is always open to hear musical talent in all branches. Address, Yealm House, Netherwood Road, Kensington, W.

TO CONCERT PARTIES and SOLOISTS (Instrumental) of repute. Tours and engagements for England or America arranged and conducted by J. W. R. Binns, 78, Reuben Street, Leeds.

A CONCERT PARTY (consisting of Mr. Joseph Maas, Mdle. Giulia Velmi, Miss De Fonblanque, Miss Helen D'Alton, Mr. H. T. Bywater, and Mr. Thureley Beale, Vocalists; Mr. D. Ffrench, Solo Harp; Herr Volkmer, Solo Piano) will commence a four weeks' tour on April 10. All communications to be sent to Mr. H. T. Bywater, The Retreat, Wolverhampton.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES and MANAGERS of CONCERTS.—Mr. T. Harper's Concert Party for Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, &c. For vacant dates, 25, Brecknock Crescent, N.W.

THE BRISTOL CATHEDRAL QUARTET.—For Concerts, Banquets, &c., address, Mr. J. F. Nash, The Cathedral, Bristol.

MR. JOSEF CANTOR'S CONCERT COMPANY is now arranging dates for ensuing season. List embraces the principal artists in the North of England. Secretaries and Managers of Musical Societies, send for prospectus. Oratorio, Ballad Concert, or Operatic Recital. Artists may be engaged singly. Address, Church Street, Liverpool.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON.

LOCAL EXAMINATIONS IN PRACTICAL MUSIC.

The Academical Board, in the year 1878, originated a System of Local Examinations in Instrumental and Vocal Music, and appointed a Visiting Examiner, on whose report Certificates (Honours or Pass) are granted to efficient Candidates.

Local Centres and Schools may be visited by the Examiner at any time, by special arrangement with the Academical Board. Application should be made through the Local Secretary for the District. The Subjects of Examination are as follows:—1. Pianoforte, Organ, or Harmonium Playing. 2. Pianoforte Duet Playing. 3. Solo Singing. 4. Performance on any Orchestral Instrument.

The Regulations, with the Official List of approved Pieces, may be had gratis of the Secretary, Trinity College, London, W.

CLASSES AND LECTURES.

Half Term commences FEBRUARY 27.

Regulations and Forms of Application for the undermentioned Classes may be obtained of the Secretary, Trinity College, W.

HARMONY.—Gordon Saunders, Mus. D.; F. E. Gladstone, Mus. D.; Baron Bódog Orczy; Humphrey J. Stark, Mus. B.

COUNTERPOINT.—F. E. Gladstone, Mus. D.; H. J. Stark, Mus. B.

FORM AND ORCHESTRATION.—E. H. Turpin, L.Mus.T.C.L.

MUSICAL ACUSTICS.—W. H. Stone, M.A., M.B., F.R.C.P.

PIANOFORTE.—Sir Julius Benedict, W. G. Cusins, Bradbury Turner,

Mus. B., King Hall, Miss Alma Sanders, Mrs. Baskcomb, Fredk.

G. Cole, L.Mus.T.C.L., G. E. Bambridge, Ridley Prentice.

ENSEMBLE PIANOFORTE CLASS.—Sir Julius Benedict.

ORGAN.—W. S. Hoyte, L.Mus.T.C.L.; W. Pinney, Mus. B.

HARMONIUM.—King Hall.

SOLO SINGING.—F. Schira, A. Visetti, J. C. Beuthin, J. H. Nappi, Wallace Wells, Miss Kate Steel.

VIOLIN.—J. T. Carrodus, L. Szczepanowski.

VIOLONCELLO.—E. Woolhouse. FLUTE.—John Radcliff. OBOE.—

A. J. B. Dubruq; W. M. Malsch. CLARINET.—H. Lazarus. HARP.—

John Cheshire.

ORCHESTRAL SOCIETY.—George Mount. MUSICAL HISTORY.—

E. H. Turpin. ELEMENTS OF MUSIC AND SIGHT SINGING.—E. Burritt

Lane, L.Mus.T.C.L. CHORAL SOCIETY.—George Mount.

VOCAL AND AURAL PHYSIOLOGY.—Llewelyn Thomas, M.D., and Lennox Browne, F.R.C.S.

CHORAL SERVICE CLASS (FOR CLERGY).—Rev. the Warden, Mus. B.

*.* Classes have also been established in General Subjects for the benefit of Students of the College.

TRINITY COLLEGE, MANDEVILLE PLACE, MANCHESTER SQUARE, W.

PRACTICE OF CONDUCTING.

Arrangements have been made with Mr. GEORGE MOUNT for forming a Class for the training of Conductors, including the practical control and management of an Orchestra and Chorus. Particulars may be obtained of the Secretary, Trinity College, London, W.

By ORDER OF THE ACADEMICAL BOARD.

October 16, 1880.

Patent, No. 4219.

NEUMEYER Quadruplex Pianos.

THE principle of our Double Overstrung System in connection with the Iron framing is acknowledged by all. The best proof of superiority is the fact that even the largest manufacturers have tried to imitate our system.

Not for the simple love of cross-stringing, but to obtain an improved effect, we have tried divers experiments to improve a most important part—the notes in the middle of the instrument.

Every practical pianoforte-maker must see at a glance the advantages of our new and quite original system, and we think a non-professional will understand that the quality of tone is not only produced by the simple four times, or quadruple over-stringing, but that the effects result from our particular method of the over-stringing, as described in the following lines:—

The steel strings in the middle of the piano, which formerly did not quite produce the full sympathetic tone desirable for the unsurpassed power of the bass and of the excellent clear treble.

In the Quadruplex System the steel strings are much longer, which is one advantage, but the greater effect results from the laying of the above-mentioned steel strings much further apart at the lower ends, which necessitates a much longer bridge, and gives the desired effect to utilise the entire vibratory power of the sounding-board.

The space formerly occupied by the two-string copper wires, which were lying on the same bridge with the steel strings, is now taken by the steel strings alone. This, of course, necessitates a new bridge, and consequently a new crossing of the wires. The new bridge brings again a greater surface of the sounding-board in use, and therefore a still greater vibratory power is obtained.

In all other systems an inequality of tone and a special weakness in the tenor notes is very perceptible, but in the Quadruplex System of stringing a perfectly equal tone throughout the instrument is obtained, and that is the advantage we claim for our new construction above all others.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

(PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH)

Price Threepence.

Annual subscription, including postage, 4s.

Subscriptions will also be received by all Book and Musicsellers (not including postage), 3s.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£	s.	d.
Two Lines ...	0	3	0
Three Lines ...	0	3	4
For every additional Line ...	0	0	10
Half a Column ...	2	0	0
A Column ...	4	0	0
A Page ...	7	10	0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.

A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

To insure insertion in their proper places, Advertisements should reach the Office not later than the 24th of each month. It cannot be guaranteed that those received after this date will appear among the classified announcements; they will, however, be inserted in the space allotted to Advertisements arriving late.

THE MADRIGAL SOCIETY offers Two Prizes, of Ten and Five Pounds respectively, for the best and second best APPROVED MADRIGALS in not less than four, nor more than six parts, the upper part or parts to be for one or two treble voices. The character of the composition to be after the manner of the Madrigal of the 17th century, by Bennet, Wilbye, Weelkes, Marenzio, and others, and to consist of independent part-writing, in figure or imitation; therefore a mere part-song or melody harmonised will be inadmissible.

The Madrigals to be delivered, addressed to the Secretary of the Madrigal Society, Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen Street, London, on or before April 15, 1882, each composition having a device or motto affixed thereto, with the composer's name in a sealed envelope bearing a corresponding mark.

The award of the Judges will be made known at the last meeting of the Society for the current season, in June, 1882.

J. EDWARD STREET, Hon. Sec.

December 1, 1881.

Just published.

ERIC THE DANE

A DRAMATIC CANTATA

THE LIBRETTO WRITTEN BY

ROBERT McLEAN

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

EDWARD HECHT.

Op. 22.

Dedicated to the Members of Mr. Charles Hallé's Choir in Manchester.

Price Three Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS FOR SOLO VOICES, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA

BY

W. G. CUSINS.

Inscribed to the Hon. and Very Rev. Gerald Wellesley, Dean of Windsor, &c., &c.

Price 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

REDUCED PRICE.

DER RING DES NIBELUNGEN

LETTERS FROM BAYREUTH

BY

JOSEPH BENNETT

Special Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph.

WITH AN APPENDIX.

Price 1s.

In addition to a notice of the performance at Bayreuth in 1876, this work contains a full description of the plot of Wagner's greatest Musik-Drama, a critical notice of the music, and a full discussion of the artistic principles involved.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

FEBRUARY 1, 1882.

"BENVENUTO CELLINI."

THE circumstances connected with the composition of this opera, and with its production both in England and abroad, have so recently been stated in our columns that we may now devote all the space at command to a notice of the work itself.

That Berlioz was not fortunate in his librettists, MM. de Wailly and Auguste Barbier, may be said even without reference to the character of the drama with which they provided him. They pleased neither their first public nor their first critics. When "Benvenuto" was produced at the Grand-Opéra (September, 1838) the audience received some of the scenes with a storm of disapprobation; at certain of the incidents they laughed in derision, and generally took up such an attitude with reference to the literary part of the work that considerable excisions and alterations were made before a second performance could be attempted. The professional critics were scarcely less severe. One declared that "anything more puerile than the drama of 'Benvenuto Cellini' it is hardly possible to imagine," while a writer in Galvani's Messenger asserted that "had Mozart's chef-d'œuvre, the music of 'Don Juan,' been adapted to such a libretto, it would infallibly have been condemned." The English critics were of the same mind as their Parisian brethren when the work made its appearance at Covent Garden in 1853. The Musical World—a journal well disposed to Berlioz—pronounced the book "one of the silliest ever written," and the terse judgment of our contemporary was more or less warmly supported by the rest of the press. "The result," said a writer immediately after the events at the Grand-Opéra, "affords another illustration of a fact which composers seem determined never to admit—namely, that the only secure foundation for an opera is a good libretto." Berlioz, however, can hardly be blamed in the matter. He had not then discovered that he himself could write poetry—witness the book of "Les Troyens"—and he went to the best available men. M. Barbier enjoyed a reputation based upon poetical works of real power, while M. de Wailly's romance, "Angelica Kauffman," had given him an enviable literary name. Yet both failed. So true is it, in stage matters especially, that the best laid schemes "gang aft aglee."

The reader shall now judge the character of the plot and its incidents for himself.

The scene is laid in Rome, under the reign of Pope Clement VII., and the action takes place during the Carnival season. The sculptor, Benvenuto Cellini, being engaged upon a bronze statue of Perseus for his Holiness, comes into contact with Balducci, the Papal Treasurer, with whose daughter, Teresa, he falls in love, and finds his passion returned. His suit, however, is not favoured by Balducci. This is the situation at the rise of the curtain. The action begins with a stolen interview of the lovers, in which Benvenuto persuades Teresa to elope with him; and it is arranged that when both are participating in the Carnival revels on the morrow, they shall recognise each other's disguise and make off. Unfortunately, the plot is overheard by a rival, Fieramosca, who at once resolves to adopt Benvenuto's disguise, be first in the field, and appropriate the lady himself. Balducci, at this point, returns home. Benvenuto escapes unseen; but Fieramosca is not so lucky, and only just saves himself from the summary vengeance of the enraged father's household and neighbours. Here ends the first act. The second act opens on a Carnival scene in the Plaza di Colonna. Cellini, and some of his pupils, are drinking at a wine-shop, and find the reckoning too heavy for them, when Ascanio, a favourite student, brings some money paid in advance for the statue by the Pope. The amount does not satisfy Benvenuto, and, to be revenged upon his Holiness's niggardly Treasurer, the sculptor proposes that one of the young men present shall simulate Balducci in a pantomime about to be played on the stage of one of the street theatres. Presently the Treasurer appears, accompanied by his daughter, and sees himself held up to the laughter of the crowd as King Midas, with very long ears. Irritated beyond endurance, Balducci attacks the performers, and at this moment of tumult, Benvenuto and Fieramosca, dressed precisely alike as monks, try to carry off Teresa each for himself. At once divining the trick on seeing his "double," Benvenuto draws his sword; but the rival runs away leaving a friend, Pompeo, to bear the brunt. Pompeo is quickly despatched, and then Benvenuto takes to flight, closely pursued by the mob, while Ascanio conducts Teresa to his master's foundry. Upon this exciting scene the curtain falls for the second time. The third act—now considerably changed from what it was at first—opens in the foundry, whither Ascanio brings Teresa. The lady is in despair, when Benvenuto enters, and relates the manner of his escape from the mob. All this time Balducci and Fieramosca are on his track. They appear and reproach him with his misdeeds. Soon, however, a greater man arrives on the scene. He is Cardinal Salviati, the Papal Minister, who hears with astonishment and indignation of the sculptor's offence. Benvenuto must answer to the law, and another artist must cast the statue. Against this decree, the sculptor protests; snatches a hammer, and is about to break the mould, when the Cardinal interferes, and gives Benvenuto an hour in which to complete his task on pain of death. The artist accepts; but then the workmen come protesting that they have no more metal to throw into the furnace. Intensely moved Benvenuto orders them to sacrifice castings already completed by throwing them into the flames. This done the liquid ore is released, and runs into the mould. Soon Benvenuto breaks the mould; the statue is seen in ravishing beauty, and the Cardinal, the artist, and all join in celebrating his genius. Then, upon a scene of general rejoicing, the curtain finally descends.

We must admit that this is not an heroic story nor one that accords with the bent of the composer's mind. Its incidents are often vulgar, its personages excite little or no sympathy, and its motives are anything but noble. It is usual, however, to judge opera libretti by the scope they give for musical effect rather than by their intrinsic merits; and the book of "Benvenuto" certainly presents opportunities enough to satisfy any musician willing to take such things as they come. It need hardly be pointed out that the business of the last scene is ludicrously unreal. Without expecting too much verisimilitude in opera, we may claim that a line must be drawn somewhere; and no reasonable line can include the act of a sculptor who breaks his mould directly after the molten metal has run into it. The scene, however, comes in a good place for our English public. It ends the opera, and will be played when the audience are rushing for carriages or, with an eye on the doorway, donning their outer garments.

No work by Berlioz in which an orchestra is employed can be analysed to any good purpose save from the full score, so much does the character of his music depend upon the details of its instrumentation. Our present purpose, however, is not analysis. We seek merely to give a general idea of the various numbers, their sequence and relative importance. For this the ordinary pianoforte score sufficiently serves.

The overture is a distinct piece introduced by an Allegro deciso in G major (22 bars), after which comes a Larghetto in the same key, leading to the principal movement—a resumption of the Allegro deciso, now worked out in proper form. Berlioz soon asserts the independence and variety of his rhythms. The Larghetto—a stream of melody and rich harmonies—is not distinguished in this respect, it is true; but when the theme of the Allegro reappears, the master, as though in very wantonness, heralds it by two bars of syncopation. Observe the character of the theme itself:—

By way of contrast, the second subject, in the orthodox key, is more regularly constructed, but the movement as a whole illustrates the almost erratic spirit in which the composer exercised his powers. Its vigour is unflagging, and, at moments when its harmonies are of the hardest, its progress suggests that of some forest monster crashing a path for itself through all obstacles. The musical interest of the first dramatic number appears, at the outset, in the orchestra. Balducci, like Dr. Bartolo, orders his fair charge from the window, and grumbles at having to leave home, while a theme, introduced fugally, passes from instrument to instrument. To this number, however, belongs a short chorus of masks, which is very characteristic. Let the opening bars witness:—

We have next an air wherein, after receiving Cellini's billet, Teresa reasons that hot youth should not be guided in love matters by cold age. The Cavatina (Larghetto) opens very sedately, but contains an episode of striking contrast both as regards subject and treatment. Following the Cavatina comes an Allegro con fuoco, by way of cabaletta; and as the whole begins with a recitative, we have the conventional Italian scena in, at least, its essential form. The Allegro—a rondo in D major—is not specially distinctive, but may claim to be melodious, bright, and pleasing. The next number begins dramatic action in earnest. Cellini having found his way into Balducci's house, the lovers carry on a dialogue interspersed with snatches, for orchestra, of the chorus of masks. An Andante follows, carried on for some time in dialogue form. The theme is one of uncommon symmetry—and, at the beginning of the ensemble, is treated as a canon on the octave, the voices being a single beat apart. No one can hear this movement without admiration. The duet continues with an Allegro, in which Cellini unfolds his plan, but soon gives place to a trio, as the listening Fieramosca comments upon what he hears. Marked by great vivacity and point, this movement is in the true spirit of comic opera, and might have been written by Auber. In admirable contrast comes an episode suggested by the maiden's qualms of conscience, and when these are removed the whole of the sparkling trio is repeated. Finally the episode also recurs, while Fieramosca pursues the original theme, the two thus moving together for some time in ingenious fashion, and with excellent dramatic effect. This trio, we may add, has always been accounted one of the very best numbers in the opera. The finale to Act I. is not greatly extended, but sufficiently bustling. Responding to the cries of Teresa and Balducci, the servants and neighbours gather together literally to put Fieramosca under the pump as a libertine; and he, frightened to death, compares himself to Orpheus pursued by the Bacchantes. The theme of the neighbours, taken up in succession by different groups, is capital:—

In the spirit of this extract the ensemble continues till Fieramosca escapes, and the curtain falls.

The second act opens with a romance for Cellini, in which he declares that his passion for artistic renown has yielded to the more tender passion of love. An andantino in B flat, the air is of quite regular construction, melodious and expressive, but presents nothing calling for particular notice. A short drinking chorus is sung by Cellini's pupils, and one calls for a song. Here the sculptor intervenes. He will have them sing of their noble art, and not of the joys of wine. The command is obeyed, and an extended chorus of elaborate design follows. Here is the leading theme, given out by Bernardino, a pupil, and all the first basses in unison:—

This subject is presented in several ways, and, together with a refrain—constitutes a kind of rallying point to which the music returns after divers more or less fanciful or eccentric excursions. The chorus, we should add, abounds in the élan of youth, and so far is a true students' outpouring. Bernardino now calls for more wine, but the landlord presents his bill and runs over the items in a spirit of rueful comedy which the music happily expresses. The convives protest with energy against his charges, but the question is how to pay them. "Wait for Ascanio" says Cellini, and Ascanio soon appears with a sum of money from the Papal treasury. The youth here sings a short air of no particular merit, in which he states he can hand over the cash only on condition that Cellini and his men swear to finish the statue of Perseus on the morrow. This condition having been fulfilled in a vigorous chorus, principally unison, the money changes hands. The scene in which Cellini proposes to burlesque Balducci now follows, and with a reference to the chorus in praise of their art, the party breaks up. We are next introduced to Fieramosca alone. He is preparing for his expedition, and sings an air expressive of his love for Teresa, after some vaunting to keep his courage up. This number is certainly a remarkable one, and well illustrates the master's characteristics as a dramatic composer. Greater disregard for musical form per se not even Wagner could show. Towards the close of the song Fieramosca makes passes with his sword as though encountering Cellini, and here we have some curious rhythmic devices:—

The Carnival scene now begins, heralded by a lively passage for orchestra. Balducci and Teresa appear, followed by Cellini and Ascanio dressed as monks, and a quartet commences, in which the soli themes just previously sung by the four characters are cleverly combined. Finally the people join, as they talk of the coming performance of "Il Re Midas." Then the bateleurs are heard inviting the people to see the show, and here again the master's rhythmic diversity stands him in good stead:—

In this spirit and in dialogue form the chorus runs on for some time. At last silence is proclaimed and the pantomime begins. With short ejaculations the people recognise the travesty of Balducci, and their comments, together with those of the outraged Treasurer, fill up the musical foreground so to speak. Presently the chatter of the women comes out from the more slow and stolid utterances of the men, and all are engrossed with the pantomime, when, at a particular part, Balducci can stand it no longer. He protests; the people mock, and, in the confusion, Cellini accosts Teresa. But so does Fieramosca also, dressed as a monk, and having with him a friend, Pompeo, in similar disguise. All this while the orchestra is running on in liveliest fashion, and so continues, as though derisively, when the business becomes more serious. Cellini and Fieramosca storm at each other; swords are drawn; Fieramosca runs away, and Pompeo is despatched by the enraged artist. The chorus of indignation which follows is striking. First come two contrasted themes—repeated again and again in different keys. Next we have an ascending scale passage in unison, breaking into harmony on the summit:—

This is also repeated, while intense agitation occasionally finds expression in syncopated passages:—

After the progression just cited, one report of a cannon is heard from St. Angelo, and then another, which puts out all the lights. Terrible confusion ensues. The guards seek to retain their prisoner, Cellini, and his pupils to rescue him. Meanwhile a massive chorus goes on, throughout which the subjoined unison theme plays a prominent part—and in the end Cellini escapes, while Ascanio hurries off with Teresa. The whole of this finale is powerful; somewhat rough and coarse, perhaps, but instinct everywhere with dramatic spirit. In point of noise few things of the kind excel it.

The third act, which opens in the house of Cellini, adjoining his atelier, is introduced by a short orchestral movement founded on the theme (already quoted) of the pupils' chorus at the beginning of Act II. This leads into a chorus of workmen, who complain that while the master takes his pleasure they must labour. Though short, the chorus has a decided character, due in part to the frequent and long-continued repetition of a lugubrious figure—which might well stand as the musical expression of a grumble. When the men have passed into the foundry, Teresa and Ascanio appear. The lady is almost in despair, but Ascanio affects gaiety as he retires to put off his monkish garb. Then the workmen are heard singing a wild and plaintive melody—which Bernardino, who is busy in the room, connects with ill-fortune as one of evil omen. At the conclusion of the song, Ascanio re-enters, still assuming light-heartedness, and sings a gay air—characterised by pretty melody and extremely simple treatment—coming, therefore, as a welcome relief after so much turmoil and complication. From the air he passes to a rehearsal of the scene whence he has just fled, counterfeiting the actors in it as he repeats their words. Finally he returns to the air and brings his most important musical contribution to a happy end. A short dialogue follows on the subject of Cellini's safety, soon interrupted by a chorus of passing monks, who, in bare fifths, intone a Litany to the Virgin as they wend their way to some function. This suggests a prayer to Teresa and Ascanio, and forthwith the pair add their special supplications to those of the religious outside:—

In this fashion the prayer is for some time prolonged, the sound of the monks' voices dying away in the distance. As it ends, Cellini appears, and is rapturously welcomed. We now learn the story of his escape in a récit mesuré (allegro), throughout the first part of which the movement of the orchestral basses is a special feature:—

Ascanio having departed to make arrangement for flight to Florence, the lovers sing a duet of a very melodious, but at the same time distinctive, character. Its opening bars are sufficiently representative—and its form, we may add, is orthodox in all essential respects. Having found general acceptance as one of the most pleasing numbers in the work, the duet may look for a favourable reception amongst ourselves. Fieramosca and Balducci now discover Cellini, and we pass again into a region of strife. There is great energy in the onslaught of the old father—who, heedless of his daughter's prayers, enjoins Fieramosca to take away his wife from Cellini. That not particularly brave man declines the task, awed by Cellini's threats. At this crisis the Cardinal enters to a solemn strain from the orchestra, and, continuing the strain, bestows his blessing upon the kneeling group. Balducci and Fieramosca lose not a moment in appealing for justice, the one following the other in canonic form:—

The Cardinal demands particulars, and again the father's voice, imitated by that of the rival, is heard. A scene of attack and defence follows but the Cardinal thinks more of the statue than of justice, and when Cellini owns that it is not yet cast, his Eminence becomes really angry, declaring that the work shall be completed by another. On this Cellini waxes furious in his turn, and expresses himself in a passage of immense vigour, ending thus:—

The Cardinal orders his arrest, but the sculptor, seizing a hammer, threatens to destroy the mould. A parley follows, and, after some dialogue in recitative, the Cardinal pronounces that if the statue be not completed in an hour Cellini shall suffer death. A short sestet of astonishment, pity, and entreaty then precedes the adjournment to the foundry of all save Cellini and his guards. Left thus to himself the sculptor muses upon his destiny, while the orchestral basses convey the gloomy colour of his thoughts:—

A short recitative then leads to an air in which he longs for the life of a simple shepherd on the mountains. Always happy with subjects of a pastoral character, Berlioz here is seen at his best. The accompaniments are delightfully characteristic, and the melody ranks among the best of the master's long-drawn tunes. Thus it begins:—

The finale, at which we now arrive, takes place in the foundry. A bustling orchestral passage, the idea of which may be conveyed by quoting a single bar—depicts the active life of the place; but soon there is a cry for more metal. In short, detached phrases the alarm sounds over the foundry, and the artist confesses that he has none left. In despair, Cellini prays to heaven for help, his pitiful entreaty rising higher and higher:—

Then comes a happy thought, and he orders his assistants to sacrifice all his completed castings. This done, we have another orchestral interlude, at the close of which, with words of proud defiance,

Cellini breaks the mould whereinto the molten liquid has run—and reveals the statue. Then comes a dialogue of forgiveness and reconciliation, and the Pupils' Chorus (already twice heard) brings the opera to a triumphant end.

To convey even an approximate idea of the harmonic structure of the music in "Benvenuto Cellini" would take up far more space than can be accorded here. Enough that it is in its way remarkable, full of hardihood, which sometimes results in hardness, and distinguished by a large measure of the independence asserted by Berlioz in every one of his important efforts. The fate of the work in England we cannot pretend to foretell. That the story will not operate much against it may, however, be affirmed; and as the stage is bustling throughout, as the musical and scenic effects are broad, and as the name of Berlioz is now a name of power, it is decidedly on the cards that the forthcoming production of "Benvenuto Cellini" at Her Majesty's Theatre will prove a success.

THE MASTERSINGERS OF NUREMBERG

AN ANALYSIS OF RICHARD WAGNER'S OPERA

By F. CORDER.

(Continued from page 12.)

Hans Sachs, having beaten Eva out of the field with her own weapons, chuckles and retires into his house, but only to listen to the result of his artful manœuvre. For he has determined to help the lovers and at the same time defeat any rash folly of which they may be guilty. Magdalena wants Eva to come in, as it is now late and they have to decide what to do about Beckmesser, who intends to come in the night and serenade Miss Pogner with the prize-song by which he hopes to win her on the morrow. It is decided that Magdalena shall go to the window instead of Eva, who seems already to be contemplating an elopement. After impatient waiting, Walter rushes down the alley and the lovers meet again.

Here we might expect one of those love-scenes in which the composer shows himself at his greatest—but no! The dramatic situation will not properly admit of such a thing, and the musician in Wagner must always give way to the dramatist. After a few endearments, accompanied in a most wild and tumultuous fashion, the first phrase of our last quotation being the only recognisable theme flung up at intervals from the orchestral billows, Walter gets upon the subject of his wrongs, and utters a long tirade against his enemies the Masters. The music here is wild and furious, working chiefly the Marker motive (No. 13) and the phrase (No. 9a). At the climax, Walter is interrupted and startled by the approaching sound of the Night-Watchman's horn, and Eva makes him hide behind a tree till the danger is over, she, meanwhile, retiring indoors. Here we have a theme which seems intended to represent our heroine, or else her projected elopement:—

Then the old Watchman crosses the stage, singing the old traditional song to the old traditional tune:—

Hark to what I say, good people;
Strikes ten from every steeple,
Put out your fire and eke your light
That no one may take harm this night:
Praise the Lord of Heaven!

A funny effect is here made by the song being in F, and the Watchman's horn in F sharp, causing horrible discord. The coast being clear Walter is enraptured by the reappearance of Eva, disguised in Magdalena's clothes. Here appear some more suggestions of the master-song which Walter composes later on; the idea of this being inspired by his love for Eva is very beautifully worked out. As the lovers prepare to fly, Sachs, who has kept on the watch, lets fall a stream of light across the street from his lamp, so that discovery is inevitable. They draw back into the shadow, uncertain what to do, when the tinkling of a lute is heard, suggesting to Sachs a still more ingenious mode of teasing, yet protecting the lovers, of revenging himself for Beckmesser's impertinence, and at the same time indulging his own love of a joke. Beckmesser comes and plants himself before Pogner's house to serenade Eva, thus effectually preventing the lovers from passing down the alley to escape, and Sachs turns his mischievousness to play against him. Just as the serenade is about to begin the cobbler strikes up a rough, not to say profane, ditty, hammering lustily on his last. This song is too long to quote with any effect, but it has a fine bold melody, of which the cobbler's motive forms the refrain. In spite of all Beckmesser's entreaties, Sachs insists upon singing three long verses, and is about to encore himself when the Marker contrives a parley. Before proceeding we should point out how in the third verse of this cobbler's song, where the sentiment becomes more poetic, the violoncello sustains a melody of a totally distinct character, which in the third act becomes the symbol of Hans Sachs's poetical nature. It runs thus:—

The lovers are hiding under the lime-tree in an agony of suspense, and Beckmesser is wanting to begin his song. Sachs refuses to leave off his job, not wishing any more abuse from the Marker for his delay in finishing the shoes, and he cannot work without singing. After long argument it is agreed that Beckmesser shall proceed with his serenade and Sachs shall mark the faults by strokes of his hammer:—

Beck. But you must agree to restrain your tool,
And not strike when I am breaking no rule.

Sachs. Though a cobbler, my power I'll not abuse,
Though my fingers itch to complete those shoes.

Beck. Your master's word?

Sachs. And cobbler's truth.

Beck. If it is faultless, fair and smooth—

Sachs. Then you must go unshod, forsooth!

And under these ridiculous circumstances the song is sung, but to Magdalena, who appears at the window in Eva's dress. The above dispute has been held to an ingenious working-out of the cobbler-motive and the first bar of No. 9a. Beckmesser's serenade is a piece of farcical nonsense; the words are made to go as wrongly as possible to the music, and the tune, involving as far as possible nothing but the open notes of a guitar or lute, is preposterous: e.g.—

I see the dawning daylight,
With great pleasure I do;
For now my heart takes a right
Courage both fresh and new.
I do not think of dying,
Rather of trying
A young maiden to win.
Oh, wherefore doth the weather
Then to-day so excel?
I to all say together
'Tis because a damsel
By her beloved father,
At his wish rather
To be wed doth go in,
The bold man who
Would come and view
May see the maiden there so true
On whom my hopes I firmly glue;
Therefore is the sky so bright blue
As I said to begin.

The principal features of the music to this ridiculous effusion are—the symphony on the lute, and—

"I see the dawning daylight, With great pleasure I do."

Sachs drives the wretched Marker frantic by his perpetual corrections and hammerings, winding up by copying his sneer to Walter: "Have you nearly finished? . . . I've finished with the shoes, that's all." He retires, shouting with laughter at the consciousness of having paid off old scores, while Beckmesser desperately hurries through the last verse of his unlucky serenade. But new misfortunes befall. David is awakened by the noise, and beholds a man serenading his Magdalena. He leaps out of the window, and attacks him. The neighbours are also roused by these unusual nocturnal sounds, and begin to collect at door and window. Excited by the fight, they gradually join in—Prentices, Journeymen, and the public at large, till the row becomes general. Women scream from the windows, and pour water on the heads of the combatants to separate them; the masters and old citizens come out and threaten them in vain. The subject of this ensemble, which is in about twenty-two separate vocal parts, is a theme made from phrases in the serenade, thus—the upper part being the "street-riot" motive, which is worked fugally with the passages in thirds for a counter-subject. Simultaneously with this fugue the trombones play the serenade in its normal form. The uproar and confusion of this ingenious and original scene are beyond description; indeed, to shirk the almost insuperable task of teaching a chorus in more than twenty parts which is only chaos when sung, it is not uncommon in performance to let every one sing what and how he chooses, and this increases the fun of the scene without hurting the effect, the orchestra having it all its own way. When the riot is at its height—cudgels flying, oaths and abuse resounding—Walter resolves to make a dash for it and escape with Eva in the confusion, but the watchful Sachs clears a path to them with his strap, and shouting, "Get in, Mistress Lena," hands the terrified girl to her father, who has appeared in his nightcap, sent in Lena (thinking her to be his daughter), and come out on the doorstep to look for the missing servant. Sachs then tears David from the wretched Beckmesser, whom he is still pounding, kicks him into the shop, and drags Walter in there with him, locking and bolting his door. At the same moment the sound of the Watchman's horn is heard; a panic seizes the crowd; they disperse with ludicrous rapidity, so that by the time the old man totters round the corner rubbing his eyes and staring about to find the cause of the noise, the stage is quite empty. As he discordantly sings—

Hark to what I say, good people:
Eleven strikes from each steeple;
Defend you all from spectre and sprite,
Let no evil pow'r your souls affright.
Praise the Lord of Heaven—

the murmur of the orchestra dies away, the "Eva" motive (No. 18) peacefully reappears, pervaded by little scraps of the serenade; and as the battered Marker limps home, avoiding the Watchman, and leaving the so lately crowded stage empty and silent, the curtain falls—a striking end to perhaps the most strikingly original and humorous scene in all opera.

The Prelude to the third act is one of those pieces of programme-music—tone-pictures, to use a rather affected expression—which Wagner alone of all composers knows how to write. Analysed, it is found to be a mere collection of scraps taken from various themes allotted to Hans Sachs. But who can analyse the gorgeous orchestral colouring, or the nameless charm which causes this formless pot-pourri to conjure up before our eyes the old cobbler-poet, seated in his chair in the morning sunlight, reading his big volume, while all around him is peace and holiday brightness? The groundwork of the movement is the "Hans Sachs" motive already quoted (Nos. 19a and 19b), the second half of which bears a short fugato leading to a beautiful choral, said to be by Hans Sachs himself. Half way through this we wander off into scraps of the cobbler's song, which have entirely lost their grotesque character, and become serious and poetic. The violins, with an imitation on a phrase which before had no importance—rise higher and higher till they seem to vanish in the sky, when the choral is resumed below by the brass and finished, its close being interrupted by a return of the "Hans Sachs" motive fully harmonised in the strings, bringing the movement to an end in the following exquisitely beautiful manner:—

The close is, as usual, broken by the entry of another subject—the Prentices' music (No. 7), the curtain rising at the same time, and showing us the interior of Hans Sachs's house, with the cobbler seated, as above described, reading and dreaming. The timid and repentant David, in disgrace for his escapade of last night, strives in vain to propitiate his master, who hardly seems to hear or heed his words. The "Prentice" motive is almost the sole material of this rather unnecessary scene, which is probably only inserted to heighten the effect of Hans Sachs's magnificent monologue which follows. The old man ponders over the ease with which all the world can be led astray, and the passions of men roused and turned in any desired direction—witness last night's brawl. No. 19 forms the groundwork for most of this, but at the words—

Old ways and customs keeping,
How peacefully I see
My dear old Nürnberg sleeping
In midst of Germany—

the "Nürnberg" motive (No. 16) appears, improved by the following added counterpoint as a middle part, which henceforth always accompanies it:—

No. 16a.

As he goes on to recall all the circumstances of the riot, No. 16 grows strangely agitated, and finally melts into the music of the end of the last act:—

'Twas like some impish spell.
Some glowworm could not find his mate;
'Twas he stirred up this wrath and hate.
The elder's charm—Midsummer Eve.

During these lines the "Eva" motive, high up on muted violins and harps, becomes a fairylike scherzo, giving tremendous force to the burst of full orchestra on the following line:—

But now, behold—Midsummer Day, when the "St. John's Day" figure appears as in Pogner's speech, and continues to the end of the soliloquy in fine combination with the Nuremberg theme.

Walter then enters, and in reply to his host's greeting and inquiry mentions that he has had a wondrous lovely dream. Sachs begs that he will dictate it to him in the form of a song, but avoids giving his reasons. He defends the Masters against Walter's abuse, and explains their principles. The music of this scene is founded chiefly on the "Poet-Walter" theme (No. 2), and a new phrase derived from No. 19a:—

A beautiful melody (bearing, however, an unfortunate resemblance to the well-known second subject of Nicolai's Overture to "The Merry Wives of Windsor") pervades Hans Sachs's defence of the Mastersingers:—

Walter is at last persuaded to narrate his vision, which is certainly not more clear than the generality of dreams, being, in fact, a mere pile of poetic words to the effect that he thought himself in a lovely garden, where the tree of life, the muse of poetry, the tree of fame, and Eva all got mixed up. Poetically speaking this song is a decided failure, but the music is all aglow with melody. The opening phrase is—to which follows an altered version of No. 2. There are two verses of this, and the third is on the love theme No. 4 (put in 3-4 time, of course), the whole forming a "bar" or "stave," according to the rules of the Mastersingers. Sachs makes Walter compose two such staves and wants a third, but Walter gets tired (like the audience) and refuses to go on. So the old man, leaving the paper on which he has taken down the song upon his table, takes his guest into the next room to put on his best clothes and prepare for the Festival; for he has a deep-laid plan which he keeps to himself. A very curious scene follows, apparently introduced merely to give time for Sachs to dress: Beckmesser, not yet recovered from his last night's adventure, comes down the street at back, and, seeing the workshop empty, comes in to rest and compose himself. He says not a word, but the orchestra follows the current of his thoughts in the most extraordinary fashion—his examination of his injuries, his reflections on his disgrace, the riot, Sachs, Walter, Eva—his tumultuous feelings bring all these before him in a chaotic flood, and however good or bad the actor may happen to be, it is impossible to mistake the meaning of the music during a scene of one hundred bars long. Casting his eyes around in search of Sachs (No. 19), they light on the paper containing Walter's song (No. 25), and a glance at this convinces him that Sachs has written it with a view to competing for Eva's hand himself, and this is the reason of last night's trick. As this light breaks in on him Sachs re-enters and Beckmesser taxes him with his perfidy, in a very harsh and ugly scene of which the "Marker" (No. 13), "Cobbler" (No. 14), and "Riot" (No. 21) motives form the material with one new comical phrase added:—

No. 25.

No. 26.

Sachs, without denying the authorship of the poem, disclaims any intention of competing, and makes Beckmesser a present of the paper. This throws the Marker into an ecstasy of joy and gratitude, for his own song, having produced such dire results last night, must be abandoned, and he has no other. With a song by the great Sachs, who promises not to claim it as his own, he feels sure of the prize, and goes home in exuberant delight to commit it to memory. Sachs moralising over the deceit and bad-heartedness of Beckmesser, who to us certainly appears more of a fool than a rogue, is interrupted by a morning call from the fair Eva, in festal array. Something is wrong with her shoe, but she gives the most contradictory descriptions of what ails it. The "Eva" motive is here presented in a new and simpler guise:—

No. 18a.

Sachs removes one of her shoes and pretends to do something to it, leaving Eva unable to move, with her shoeless foot on a stool, when he hears her utter a cry of astonishment and delight: Sir Walter has appeared at the chamber-door in all his splendid knightly array:—

Sachs. Aha! 'tis here! now the reason I know.
Child, you are right—'tis in the sole.
One moment and I'll make it whole. . . .
Hark ye, child! I've given it much thought
How my work should to an end be brought.
The best way's to join the contest for you;
I might win some renown as a poet too.
Come now, reply. You do not heed?
Your head's full of some one else indeed!
All right! You say: "Stick to your shoes!"
Will some one give us a song to amuse?
I heard to-day a lovely one:
Let's see if the third verse can be done.

Whereupon Walter is inspired with his third verse, at the end of which Sachs, still hiding his intense emotion beneath a mask of humour, restores Eva's shoe, asking her if it still pinches, with other quaint speeches. Eva, with an outburst of sincere feeling, blesses her old friend for his watchful kindness to her, and ends by assuring him that if she had any choice at all in the matter he should be her husband. To which Sachs replies drily:—

My child
Sir Tristan I have read of—
Isolde's story dark:
Hans Sachs has prudent dread of
The fate of poor King Mark.

And here, to our delight, we find the two most prominent themes from Wagner's opera on this subject presented to us:—

No. 27. "The Love-potion."

No. 28. "King Mark."

In a long and whimsical speech Sachs now declares that a new master-song has just been born, and that they must all solemnly christen it, for which purpose he calls in Magdalena and David as witnesses. The christening hymn, No. 6, is the most prominent feature here. David is released from his apprenticeship (by the old custom of a box on the ear) and made a journeyman, that he may be a legal witness, and Eva is requested to make the christening speech. Here we have Wagner's solitary specimen—and a very lovely one it is—of a set concerted piece; a quintet in which all the parts are of equal importance and interest. The opening phrases—

No. 29.

which suggest the main subject of the "Siegfried Idyl"—form the principal material, combined with the first bars of the phrases of Walter's prize-song, Nos. 4 and 25. This quintet forms a fitting climax and end to the scene; the curtain shrouds the stage during a change (indeed the last scene is often made into a fourth act), and the orchestra occupies itself with the "Nuremberg" motive, No. 16a, until a trumpet-call, much used during this last scene—

No. 30.

is heard behind, when a torrent of different themes sets in, with the March, No. 1, as a bass, and soon afterwards we are shown an open meadow by the River Pegnitz, where the Mastersingers' Festival is just commencing. Several of the trades guilds march on, singing characteristic choruses—the Cobblers with No. 14, the Tailors with a well-known phrase from Rossini's "Tancredi" (in allusion to the story of how a tailor saved a besieged city by dressing up as a goat and capering on the walls).

Then boats come up the river, bringing girls from different villages of the neighbourhood, the Prentices join them, and a charming dance takes place. This is an old-fashioned waltz written entirely in periods of seven bars:—

No. 31.

It is interrupted by the approach of the Mastersingers in procession with their banner and all their pomp to the strains of the Prelude Nos. 1 and 3. When all have entered and taken their places Eva is put in the seat of honour; and on the entry of Sachs, the darling of Nuremberg, the whole crowd bursts out into the exquisite choral which forms the Prelude to Act 3. As the shouts and cries of "Hail, Hans Sachs!" die away, the orchestra softly takes up No. 19, and the old cobbler rises, with much emotion, to express his thanks, saying:—

Your hearts you ease—mine you oppress:
I feel my own unworthiness—and then proceeds to recapitulate the substance of Pogner's address in First Act, telling, what we have already heard several times, what they have met together to do. The music of the "competition" reappears, with the addition of the "Nuremberg" motive, and altogether this speech is superfluous. Beckmesser, taking Sachs aside, assures him that the new song will drive him mad: he cannot learn it and it will not fit his old tune. Sachs encourages him, and the Marker advances to his trial. Seeing his confusion and grotesque nervousness the people jeer him in an odd chorus to the phrase No. 36, while the Prentices are making a raised mound of turf to serve as a singer's seat. After much preparation he begins, but—whether from Sachs's bad writing or his own stupidity is not clear—he turns the words of the song into sheer nonsense. Thus what was in Walter's song—

Morning was gleaming with roseate light,
The air was filled
With scent distilled
Where, beauty beaming
Past all dreaming,
A garden did invite
My raptured sight—

becomes with Beckmesser—

Yawning and steaming with roseate light,
My hair was filled
With scent distilled,
My boots were beaming
With no meaning.
A guard I did invite
To strap me tight.

After three verses of this sort of thing the people from murmuring rise to peals of laughter and derision, driving the Marker into upbraiding Sachs for palming off upon him a piece of trash like this; and having thus diverted public attention to another quarter he escapes to hide his discomfiture. Sachs, in answer to the indignant queries of the Masters, simply declares that the song is far too beautiful to be his, and demands leave to prove it by calling a witness who alone can sing it correctly—showing himself its author. This is incredulously acceded to, and Walter steps forward; his gallant bearing creating at once a favourable impression. The Masters now smell a rat, but they consent to hear the young man, who now, instead of singing the song as it was in the previous scene, condenses it into one stave of three verses, each far more elaborate and artistic than the first version. The whole assembly is carried away by the originality and beauty of the song, and Walter is unanimously declared the winner of the prize, amid the acclamations of the multitude. They are about to invest him with the collar of masterhood, but he shrinks back, saying, as he embraces Eva:—

Not Master—nay,
I'll find reward some other way.

At this scarcely courteous rebuff, the Masters and people naturally look blank, but Sachs gently reproves him:—

Disparage not the Masters' ways,
But show respect to Art:
All they can give of highest praise
To you they here impart.
Not through your ancestors and birth—
Not by your weapons' strength and worth—
But by a poet's brain,
Which Mastership did gain,
You have attained your present bliss.
So think you thankfully on this:
How can you e'er the Art despise
Which can bestow so rare a prize?—

and then he proceeds to make a long speech to the effect that Germany can never fall so long as she honours her Masters and her Art, concluding thus:—

So heed my words—
Honour your German Masters,
If you would stay disasters;
For while they dwell in every heart,
Though should depart
The pride of holy Rome,
Still thrives at home
Our sacred German Art.

And as the people repeat these lines in chorus, shouting "Hail, Sachs! Hail, Nuremberg's darling, Sachs!" the curtain falls. The music of this scene, consisting entirely of old material—the Master-singers' and Nuremberg themes—needs no further description.

It will be seen by this mere summary of the action and music that we have here a work of most uncommon calibre and scope. It taxes the resources of the largest opera-houses to their utmost, requiring a four or five-fold chorus, an unusual number of good singers for subordinate parts, an extensive stage, and an enormous orchestra. The music, as we have said before, is—both to the technical musician and the uncultured hearer—as fine as any other work of the master; it is in the poem that the weakness lies. Dialogue of the most prosaic, or at least unlyric, style is there to be found by the dozen pages at a time, and when the composer endeavours to soar—as in Walter's songs—his poetry is of anything but a high order. But this is only a fault which exists equally in the "Nibelung Ring," and goes a very small way towards weakening the gigantic power and grasp shown in every bar of music that Wagner writes. On the whole, this opera may rank as the composer's masterpiece, more popular than "Tristan," more practicable than the "Nibelungen" tetralogy, more beautiful than any.

THE GREAT COMPOSERS.

By JOSEPH BENNETT.

No. XI.—CHOPIN (continued from page 15).

In 1827, Chopin left the Warsaw Lyceum, and his parents, acting on the advice of friends, resolved to let him follow the bent of his own musical inclinations. He was then eighteen years of age, and appears to have been a young man of considerable attractions, both in person and manner. Believing this, however, we need not accept, save with more than the proverbial grain of salt, George Sand's ecstatic word-portrait as we have it in her "Lucrezia Floriani." The illustrious novelist "gushed," as a matter of course, over the man who for some years was her hero, and her imagination ran riot when urged by devotion to make him, if possible, better than the angels:—

"He was delicate both in body and mind. Through the want of muscular development he retained a peculiar beauty, an exceptional physiognomy, which had, if we may venture so to speak, neither age nor sex. It was not the bold and masculine air of a descendant of a race of magnates who knew nothing but drinking, hunting, and making war; neither was it the effeminate loveliness of a cherub couleur de rose. It was more like the ideal creations with which the poetry of the Middle Ages adorned the Christian temples—a beautiful angel, with a form pure and slight as a young god of Olympus, with a face like that of a majestic woman filled with a divine sorrow, and, as the crown of all, an expression at the same time tender and severe, chaste and impassioned."

Of his manner we have a sketch from the same rapturous pen:—

"He was externally so affectionate, his education had been so finished, and he possessed so much natural grace, that he had the gift of pleasing even where he was not personally known. His exceeding loveliness was immediately prepossessing; the delicacy of his constitution rendered him interesting in the eyes of women; the full yet graceful cultivation of his mind, the sweet and captivating originality of his conversation, gained for him the attention of the most enlightened men. Men less highly cultivated liked him for his exquisite courtesy of manner. They were so much the more pleased with this because, in their simplicity, they never imagined it was the graceful fulfilment of a duty into which no real sympathy entered."

If Madame Sand makes an angel of young Chopin, Liszt places him in a paradise. It is hard to say whether the novelist or the musician gushes the more copiously over their common friend. Chopin was naturally a favourite in the aristocratic salons of Warsaw, and upon this foundation Liszt builds an elaborate dream-structure:—

"In these meetings, which might almost be called assemblies of fairies, he may often have discovered, unveiled in the excitement of the dance, the secrets of enthusiastic and tender souls. He could easily read the hearts which were attracted to him by friendship and the grace of his youth, and thus was enabled early to learn of what a strange mixture of heaven and cream of roses, of gunpowder and tears of angels, the poetic ideal of his nation is formed. When his wandering fingers ran over the keys, suddenly touching some moving chords, he could see how the furtive tears coursed down the cheeks of the loving girl, or the young neglected wife; how they moistened the eyes of the young men, enamoured of and eager for glory. Can we not fancy some young beauty asking him to play a simple prelude, then, softened by the tones, leaning her rounded arms upon the instrument, to support her dreaming head, while she suffered the young artist to divine in the dewy glitter of her lustrous eyes the song sung by her youthful heart? Did not groups like sportive nymphs throng around him, and beg him for some waltz of giddy rapidity—smile upon him with such wildering joyousness, as to put him immediately in unison with the gay spirit of the dance? He saw there the chaste grace of his illustrious countrywomen displayed in the mazurka, and the memories of their witching fascination, their winning reserve, were never effaced from his soul."

Leaving this region of romance for the more sober domain of fact, Chopin is found, in 1828, travelling to Berlin under the care of Professor Jarocki, who had been invited by Humboldt to attend a congress of naturalists in the Prussian capital. This was the young man's first plunge into the outer world, and the prospect of it might have been expected to excite him. It would appear, however, that though he described himself as a lunatic, not knowing what he was about, he could express himself in a very calm, matter-of-fact way. Writing to a friend (September 9, 1828), he said:—

"I learn from a good authority in Berlin that I shall have an opportunity, through Lichtenstein, of becoming acquainted with all the best musicians in the Prussian capital, except Spontini, with whom he is not on good terms. . . . I only intend spending a fortnight with Jarocki, but this will give me an opportunity of, at any rate, hearing a good opera once, and so having an idea of a perfect performance, which is worth a good deal of trouble."

A week later Chopin was in Berlin, and writing to his "dearly beloved parents and sisters." No one can read this letter † without being strongly reminded of Mendelssohn's earlier epistles. It contains the same keen and humorous observation of men and things, is marked by the same affectionateness, the same vivacity, and the same subordination of all matters to the love of art. Some of his travelling companions the young man sketched in a few happy strokes:—

"Our travelling companions were a German lawyer, living at Posen, who tried to distinguish himself by making coarse jokes; and a very fat farmer with a smattering of politeness acquired by travelling. At the last stage before Frankfort-on-the-Oder a German Sappho entered the diligence and poured forth a torrent of ridiculous, egotistical complaints. Quite unwittingly, the good lady amused me immensely, for it was as good as a comedy, when she began to argue with the lawyer, who, instead of laughing at her, seriously controverted everything she said."

As for the assembled naturalists, Chopin first drew merciless caricatures of them, and then avoided their company, for reasons suggested, perhaps, by the following extract concerning "Professor Lehmann, a celebrated botanist from Hamburg":—

"I was astonished at the strength of his small fist; he broke with ease the large piece of white bread, to divide which I was fain to use both hands and knife. He leaned over the table to talk to Professor Jarocki, and in the excitement of the conversation, mistook his own plate and began to drum upon mine. A real savant, was he not? with a great, ungainly nose, too. All this time I was upon thorns, and as soon as he had finished with my plate, I wiped off the marks of his fingers with my serviette as fast as possible."

In another letter he gives us a glimpse of a great character, and shows something of the simplicity of a youth unacquainted with courts:—

"At the Singing Academy I observed the handsome Princess von Liegnitz talking to a man in a kind of livery, whose face I could not clearly see; I asked my neighbour if he were a Royal valet de chambre, and received for a reply, 'Ay, that is his Excellency Baron von Humboldt.' You may imagine, my dear ones, how thankful I was that I had only uttered my question in a whisper; but I assure you that the chamberlain's uniform changes even the countenance, or I could not have failed to recognise the great traveller who has ascended the mighty Chimborazo."

One difference between the letters of the youthful Chopin and those of the youthful Mendelssohn—in most respects so much alike—is that the former touched but slightly upon musical matters from a critical point of view. Mendelssohn had a decided opinion, and expressed it about everything and everybody; whereas his Polish contemporary scarcely allows us to know what he thought. In the Berlin epistles he confesses that he was "quite carried away" by Handel's "St. Cecilia," which most nearly approached his ideal of sublime music. Against this one utterance must be placed his silence regarding "Fernand Cortez," "Il Matrimonio Segreto" and Onslow's "Der Hausirer," all of which he heard in the Prussian capital, and dismisses with the statement that he "greatly enjoyed" them. Here we encounter the first evidence of Chopin's modest spirit. He appears to have thought humbly of himself, and, with reference to a meeting of the Congress, says in the most natural way in the world, "Spontini, Zelter, and Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy were also there; but I did not speak to any of them, as I did not think it proper to introduce myself."

* "Life of Chopin," p. 152. † Karasowski, vol. i., p. 43.
† Karasowski, vol. i., p. 45 et seq.

* Karasowski, vol. i., p. 51.

The travellers returned via Posen, and on their way to that city stopped to change horses at the little town of Züllichau. In the inn Chopin found a grand piano and began playing upon it, to such purpose that not only his fellow-travellers but all the people of the house gathered delightedly round. At the height of their enjoyment, the driver shouted, "The horses are ready," only to be called a "confounded disturber" for his pains. Chopin's audience would not let him go. Said the landlord, "Stay and play, noble young artist; I will give you courier's horses if you will only remain a little longer;" and when, at last, the start had to take place he carried Chopin in triumph to the diligence, while his wife and daughters loaded him with wine and cakes. After a short stay in Posen, the travellers resumed their journey, reaching Warsaw on October 6.

Chopin's father, pleased with the effect of the Berlin experience upon his son, resolved that he should next visit Vienna, and in view thereof urged him to entertain the idea of giving a concert in the imperial city. The young man's modesty rejected the proposition, though doubtless his ambition was fired as it never had been before. "Here I have been leniently judged by kind-hearted patriots," were his words; "but what am I to expect in a city which can boast of having heard a Haydn, a Mozart, and a Beethoven?" We find the same spirit in his first letter from the Austrian capital. No sooner had he been heard in the Vienna salons than society discovered a new musical lion. Chopin was pelted with compliments and overwhelmed with offers of assistance to the end of a public hearing. He could not understand this:—

"Why, I do not know, but the people here are astonished at me, and I wonder at them for finding anything to wonder at in me. . . . The artists and lovers of music who know that I am here consider that Vienna would lose a great deal if I left without giving a concert. I do not know what to make of it all. . . . Haslinger thinks that the Viennese should hear me play my own compositions. Everybody protests that the newspapers will be sure to give me a flattering notice. Würfel is of opinion that, as my compositions are to appear now (Haslinger had undertaken to publish them), it would be advisable for me to give a concert, otherwise I should have to come again, but that the present would be the best time, as the Viennese are longing for something new. He calls it unpardonable in a young musician to neglect such an opportunity; I ought to appear in the twofold capacity of pianist and composer, and must not think too modestly of myself. . . . I do not yet know how it will be all arranged."

But he did know before sending off the letter, and added in a postscript, "I have made up my mind." Then, with a touch of pardonable vanity, "The journalists stare at me already, the members of the orchestra salute me quite obsequiously when I walk arm-in-arm with the director of the Italian Opera." Finally, he said, "I hope for God's gracious help. Do not be anxious, my dearest ones."

The concert took place at the Imperial Opera on Tuesday, August 11, 1829, Chopin playing his Variations on "La ci darem" (Op. 2), and improvising a fantasia. A great success rewarded the venture. The applause was hearty, and approval general, the severest criticism being that of an old lady, who remarked, "A pity the youth has so little presence." Many judges, however, insisted that the new comer did not make noise enough—which judges, let us add, should be living now for the full gratification of their taste. On this Chopin observes†:—

"There is an almost unanimous opinion that I play too softly, or rather, too delicately for the public here. That is to say, they are accustomed to the drum-beating of their own piano virtuosi. I am afraid the newspapers will say the same thing, especially as the daughter of one of the editors drums dreadfully; but never mind: if it is to be so, I would much rather they said I played too gently than too roughly."

By the way, Chopin appears to have stood in great dread of the newspapers. In one letter he wrote: "If the newspapers cut me up so much that I shall not venture before the world again, I have resolved to become a house-painter; that would be as easy as anything else, and I should, at any rate, still be an artist." The most important journal did not, as it proved, take notice of the concert, but Chopin found plenty of consolation in the marked success of a second appearance, at which the only dissatisfied people were the "out-and-out Germans." "I have on my side," said Chopin, "the learned and those with poetic temperaments;" so, putting one thing with another, the young man felt very happy, and out of himself to such an extent that he sealed one of his letters with a waiter's seal, inscribed "Madeira," mistaking it for his own. This mood was no doubt intensified when its subject read in the journal just mentioned (Wiener Theater Zeitung) a favourable opinion of his playing: "This is a young man who knows how to please by entirely original means. His style differs totally from that of the ordinary concert-giver. . . . Herr Chopin to-day again received the most unanimous applause."

From Vienna Chopin went to Prague, where he would not play in public for fear of the criticism which had assailed even Paganini. Thence he journeyed to Dresden, and wrote home, saying, "I am merry and well." In the Bohemian capital acquaintance was made with Pixis amongst others, and at Dresden he saw Charles Devrient in Goethe's "Faust," which he calls "a fearful but magnificent conception." Altogether this memorable tour had a happy effect. The young man was in good health; found that with every additional experience of artistic life his powers became stronger; and felt the elation of discovering that he had under-estimated his claim to the honours of a virtuoso and composer. In the early part of September he returned to Warsaw; but the Polish city, though it remained the home of his family, could no longer be a home for him. He had, in a sense, tasted the fruit of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, and was as the gods—no longer to be confined within limits that once bounded for him a sufficient world. Thus, he wrote to an intimate friend:—

"You will learn from me by-and-by what I think of doing this winter. In no case shall I remain in Warsaw. Where fate will lead me I do not yet know. Prince and Princess Radziwill have, in the most polite manner, invited me to Berlin, and offered me apartments in their palace, but of what use would that be? I have begun so much work that it would seem the wisest course to remain here. I have also promised to return to Vienna, and a Vienna paper openly declared that a sojourn in the imperial city would be very advantageous to me, and have the best influence on my career."

To crown all these developments the young man fell in love. In his "Life of Chopin," Liszt refers to an early affection and throws around it, after his manner, a good deal of romance and mystery.† He does not mention the lady's name, but states that "the tempest which in one of its sudden gusts tore * Karasowski, vol. i., p. 64.

† Ibid., vol. i., p. 70.

* Karasowski, vol. i., p. 98.

† "Life of Chopin," p. 149 et seq.

Chopin from his native soil, like a bird, dreamy and abstracted, surprised by the storm upon the branches of a foreign tree, sundered the ties of this first love, and robbed the exile of a faithful and devoted wife, as well as disinherited him of a country." The young girl, we are told, was "sweet and beautiful," and after the separation "she lived on, calm but sad," remaining faithful to his memory, and devoting herself to his parents. She had painted his portrait, which the father of Chopin would never set aside for another and better. "We saw," continues Liszt, "the pale cheeks of this melancholy woman glow like alabaster when a light shines through its snow many years afterwards, when, in gazing upon this picture, she met the eyes of his father." As Liszt speaks here from personal knowledge, there must have been such a woman, but we do not recognise her at all in Constantia Gladkowska, the dramatic singer, with whom Chopin, at twenty, was beyond question enamoured. His love for Constantia seems to have been fervid. Thus, he writes :—

"I have already, to my misfortune perhaps, found my ideal, which I sincerely and loyally worship. Half a year has passed without exchanging a syllable with her of whom I dream every night. While thinking of this lovely being I composed the adagio in my new concerto (E minor, Op. 11), and, early this morning, the waltz which I send you. Notice the passage marked  $\times$  : nobody knows of it but yourself."

He felt all a lover's longing for sympathy :—

"Oh! how miserable it is to have no one to share your sorrows and joys, and when your heart is heavy to have no soul to whom you can pour out your woes! You know very well what I mean. How often do I communicate to my piano all that I would confide to you!"

Following this are, in various letters, several references to the young lady's doings on the Warsaw stage, and there is scarcely room for doubt that her fascinations kept Chopin at home longer than his ardent desire for fresh artistic laurels would otherwise have allowed. Meanwhile the father resolved that Frederic should make, next time, a longer stay abroad, and take a larger flight, and the son himself went on a visit to Prince Radziwill at his country seat. Here he found a charming Princess, "who knows quite well that the value of a man does not depend on his descent," and three daughters, "extremely amiable, musical, and kind-hearted." Moreover, he found an opera, written by the Prince, on the subject of "Faust," and, curiously enough, forecasting changes that have since become notorious :—

"He (the Prince) is a great admirer of Gluck. In the drama he only gives importance to music in so far as it depicts the situation or the feelings; therefore the overture has no conclusion, but leads directly to the introduction. The orchestra is always invisible, placed behind the stage, so as not to distract the attention by such externals as the conducting, the movements of the musicians, &c."

Having returned to Warsaw, Chopin gave two immensely successful concerts before setting out on his long journey, which sad event—for sad it was to him—took place on November 2, 1830. Having taken leave of his parents and sisters, he was accompanied by a circle of friends to the end of his first stage, where the final adieux were made, and a goblet filled with his native earth was presented to him with an appropriate exhortation. Then the two parties went their several ways, and one era in the life of Chopin closed.

The youth Chopin is presented to us by his one authoritative biographer, and by the evidence of his letters, as a genuinely attractive character. In point of home-love he rivalled even Mendelssohn, who, like himself, was the pet of a fond mother and worshipping sisters. "All within the domestic circle were his 'dear ones,' and, while the passages of affection in his communications bear no mark of mere effusiveness, they are strong enough to show that his mouth spoke out of what was emphatically the abundance of the heart. Modesty, as we have already indicated, was another conspicuous feature in Chopin's character—one, moreover, that never deserted him. There is not the smallest reason to suppose that his expressed surprise at the reception he met with in Vienna was assumed. His words of astonishment were written for eyes long accustomed to look him through and through, and even had this not been the case, the whole tenor of the young man's character, as far as revealed to us, must be accepted in proof of sincerity. But the most remarkable point is an utter absence of anything calculated to form the basis of a morbid and mystic nature. Save for a certain reserve, due to a shrinking from self-assertion, Chopin was very much like other amiable young fellows of his age. As we have seen, he loved a little fun, had a quick eye for humorous situations, and enjoyed the good animal spirits that accompany a healthy body. Some of Karasowski's observations on these generally misconceived points are worth quoting. With regard to Chopin's social qualities we read :—

"In a general way he was fond of pleasure, and delighted to share it with his parents, family, and friends. He never marred any one's enjoyment. If he were among company who wished to dance, he would sit down to the piano without being pressed, and play the most charming mazurkas and other dances. If a bad player were at the piano, he would politely and pleasantly put himself in his place."

On the score of health, Karasowski remarks, after quoting Liszt and Madame Sand :—

"Chopin neither looked like 'a beautiful angel,' 'a majestic woman filled with a divine sorrow,' nor 'a young god from Olympus'; just as little did he imagine daily 'that the hour of his death was near.' On the contrary, his cheerful letters, pervaded with the joy of youth, showed that Frederic had as good health as any other young man of his age. . . . It was not until ten years later that he was threatened with the illness brought on by the excitement of Parisian life. And if Frederic had been sickly, would his parents have permitted their only, tenderly loved son to travel abroad? Would they have consented to an absence of two years—which followed the earlier journeys—if the young artist had been troubled with a dangerous malady? Only in the last years of his life his physical strength was often greatly exhausted, in consequence of the rapid strides of the disease which caused his early death. Chopin's playmate and schoolfellow, Wilhelm von Kolberg, who is still living in Warsaw, affirms that till manhood, Chopin was only ill once and then from a cold. It is true that, after the manner of loving and womanly hearts, mother and sisters very much petted their dear Frederic. There was no lack of exhortations to 'wrap up carefully in cold, damp weather'; he laughed good-humouredly at the instructions, but followed them like an obedient son."

This surely disposes once for all of the fanciful structures erected upon the hypothesis of Chopin's abnormal youth.

An important reflection, looking back upon the Polish musician's early years, has to do with the spontaneous and individual character of his genius. Chopin could have heard but little music in Warsaw, during those troublous times, save such as Warsaw made for itself, and it is strange that hardly anything is said of him or by him as to the extent of his acquaintance with the works of other men. Mozart he loved and revered, yielding perhaps to an instinct of fellow-feeling; but whatever the degree of his knowledge of the masters, it is certain that it had no influence upon even his earliest works. In this Chopin differed from most other composers, the greatest of whom had a model before following the bent of his own fancy. The Polish composer's youthful compositions are indeed the most Chopinesque of all he did. They show a perfectly independent mind, and not only that, but a method of treating the pianoforte entirely distinct from any other. Hence the sensation made by them at the outset, and so vividly described by Schumann in the first of his "Davidbündler" papers:—

* Karasowski, vol. i., p. 99

* Karasowski, vol. i., p. 91.

† Ibid., vol. i., p. 90.

"With the words, 'Off with your hats, gentlemen—a genius!' Eusebius laid down a piece of music. We were not allowed to see the title-page. . . . But here it seemed as if eyes, strange to me, were glancing up at me—flower eyes, basilisk eyes, peacock's eyes, maiden's eyes; in many places it looked yet brighter—I thought I saw Mozart's 'La ci darem' wound through a hundred chords, Leporello seemed to wink at me, and Don Juan hurried past in his white mantle. . . . Florestan concluded by saying that he had never experienced feelings similar to those awakened by this finale, except in Switzerland. . . . 'Dear Florestan,' I answered, . . . 'as deeply as yourself I bend before Chopin's spontaneous genius, his lofty aim, his mastership.'"

Finally, on the subject of Chopin's youthful art, let us quote a passage from an essay on his works written many years ago, when the master was almost unknown here, by Mr. J. W. Davison:—

"Commonplace is instinctively avoided in all the works of Chopin—a stale cadence or a trite progression—a humdrum subject or a worn-out passage—a vulgar twist of the melody or a hackneyed sequence—a meagre harmony or an unskilful counterpoint—may in vain be looked for throughout the entire range of his compositions, the prevailing characteristics of which are a feeling as uncommon as beautiful; a treatment as original as felicitous; a melody and a harmony as new, fresh, vigorous, and striking as they are utterly unexpected and out of the original track. In taking up one of the works of Chopin you are entering, as it were, a fairyland untrodden by human footsteps—a path hitherto unfrequented but by the great composer himself."

These words apply to the Warsaw compositions as much as to any other, and they help us to see how, from the first, Chopin lived, moved, and had his being in a world of his own.

(To be continued.)

SCOTT AND PURCELL.

By JULIAN MARSHALL.

A LETTER of Sir Walter Scott has recently come to light which has a peculiar interest for those who revere the name of our great English composer. It is addressed to Mrs. Ellis, the wife of George Ellis, an eminent antiquary, with whom Scott had been brought into contact and correspondence while editing his "Border Minstrelsy." Many letters from Scott to Ellis are printed in Lockhart's "Life" of the poet. The present letter is dated Edinburgh,

December 16, 1806, and seems to have been written at a time when Mr. Ellis was recovering from an illness, and in answer to a letter from Mrs. Ellis which gave an account of her husband's progress towards health. Scott, in replying, wrote a chatty, agreeable epistle, touching on some topics of private, and some of public, interest; among these, Heber's disappointment "in the object of his ambition; but, as he had all Christ Church against him, it could not, I suppose, be well expected that he should succeed;" and again, "We have a report here that the Princess of Wales's affair will be brought on in Parliament. Good God! how thick her distresses have come upon her!"

Then comes the following passage: "You will be surprised, my dear Mrs. E., when I, of all the world, ask after a musical collection. But at present I am very curious to see the dedication of Henry Purcell's musical collection, entitled "Orpheus Britannicus," published by that great composer's widow about two years after his death, and dedicated to Lady Howard. If this old music-book happen to be in your collection, or in that of any of your friends, a copy of the dedication, which I take to be very short, would be a great favour to your friend. I cannot find the book in Edinburgh."

Scott suggests that his correspondent would "be surprised when he, of all the world, asked after a musical collection," because he was well known to be nearly devoid of musical taste. He says, in another letter, addressed to Clarke-Whitfield, of Cambridge, who had set some of his verses to music: "I am no musician. . . . I have a wretched ear myself. . . . This circumstance is the more provoking as I believe no man in Britain had more songs of all kinds by heart than I once could have mustered, . . . though I am not capable of whistling a tune myself."

It was, therefore, no matter of purely musical interest that could have led him to wish to see the dedication of the "Orpheus Britannicus." His object, however, is not far to seek.

In 1806 he was busy editing the works of Dryden. While so employed, he had his attention naturally directed to the dedication in question by a statement, made both by Burney and Hawkins, on which he remarks, in a note, as follows: "The 'Orpheus Britannicus' being inscribed by the widow to the Hon. Lady Howard, both Sir John Hawkins and Dr. Burney have been led into a mistake in supposing that the person so named was no other than Lady Elizabeth Dryden, our author's [Dryden's] wife. Mr. Malone has detected this error; and indeed the high compliments paid by the dedicatory to Mr. Purcell's patroness as an exquisite musician, a person of extensive influence, and one whose munificence had covered the remains of Purcell with 'a fair monument,' are irreconcilable with the character, situation, and pecuniary circumstances of Lady Elizabeth Dryden. The Lady Howard of the dedication must unquestionably have been the wife of the Hon. Sir Robert Howard; whence it follows that the 'honourable gentleman who had the dearest and most deserved relation to her, and whose excellent compositions were the subject of Purcell's last and best performances in music,' was not our author, as has been erroneously supposed, but his brother-in-law, the said Sir Robert Howard, who continued to the last to be an occasional author, and to contribute songs to the dramatic performances of the day."

It is difficult to understand how Burney and Hawkins could have fallen into this blunder, but the fact that both of them did so is indisputable. In no circumstances could the Lady Elizabeth Dryden have been addressed as "The Honourable Lady Howard,"—least of all, after her marriage; and she had been married since 1665. Sir Robert Howard had in 1692, when he can scarcely be supposed to have been much less than seventy years of age, married Mrs. Dives, who was one of the maids of honour to Queen Mary. He lived six years after this, and died on September 3, 1698, soon after the dedication to his wife of Purcell's "Orpheus."

* "Music and Musicians," vol. i., p. 4 et seq.

The point is a small one, and has been passed over by the biographer of Purcell in "Grove's Dictionary," though that writer correctly ascribes the monument in Westminster Abbey to the liberality of Sir R. Howard's wife, the pupil of the deceased composer. But it has not been hitherto noticed that the only grounds, which Mr. Husk justly calls "insufficient," for the attribution of Purcell's epitaph to the pen of Dryden are to be found in the mistaken supposition that the "Orpheus Britannicus" was inscribed to Dryden's wife, and that the monumental tablet was erected by her pious care and munificence, whereas the honour of the one and all the credit of the other are due to the wife of Sir R. Howard.

There is yet another point which arises in reading this dedication, and is not so easily cleared up. It lies in the remark that the "excellent compositions" of Lady Howard's husband "were the subject of his [Purcell's] last and best performance in music." Now it is well known that the last song set by Henry Purcell, "it being in his sickness," was the beautiful "From rosie bow'rs," undoubtedly written by Tom D'Urfey, and sung in the third part of his comedy of "Don Quixote." It is not likely that Howard contributed songs to the plays of D'Urfey, who was himself quite capable of writing his own, such as they were; and this particular song is claimed by that eccentric poet. But it is, of course, very possible that Scott may have been right in saying that Howard "continued to the last to be an occasional author, and to contribute songs to the dramatic performances of the day," though he is not supported in that statement by the "Biographia Dramatica," nor by Langbaine, who names none of Howard's works with a later date than 1665. In that year he wrote the "Indian Queen," and Purcell composed music for that play in 1692, three years before his death.

It is perhaps to this composition that his widow alludes in her dedication; but it was very far from being his last "performance in music."

THE HYMN OF CHAUCER'S OXFORD CLERK, "ANGELUS AD VIRGINEM."

THE readers of Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales" will well remember his description of the poor Oxford scholar, Nicolas, and of his lodging, where—

... al above ther lay a gay sawtreye [Psaltrey]
On which he made, a-nightes, melodye
So sweteley, that al the chamber rang;
And Angelus ad Virginem he sang.
And, after that, he sang The King's note:
Full often blissed was his mery throte.

The "Angelus ad Virginem" was one of the Anglo-Latin Hymns of the Annunciation, a copy of which has been recently found, with an English version underneath it, of a date about a hundred years before "The Canterbury Tales" were written. Chaucer died in 1400, and the date of the manuscript is from 1250 to 1260. It was unknown to Sir John Hawkins because, when he was writing his "History of Music," the manuscript was in the library of the Royal Society. It came from Norfolk, and was bequeathed to the Royal Society by one of the Norfolk branch of the Howards, together with many manuscripts and books on different branches of science. About the commencement of the present century such of those manuscripts as were found to be useless in a library devoted to science were transferred by the Royal Society to the British Museum, and this manuscript was then classed with the Arundel Collection and numbered 248. It is described in the printed catalogue of that collection, but many of the articles included in it are of later date than the musical portion, which occupies only a few leaves. Since the manuscript was thrown open to the antiquarian readers in the British Museum, the hymn was perhaps first noted down and copied by Mr. Henry Bradshaw, F.S.A., Librarian of the University of Cambridge, for a collection which he then contemplated. This was about twelve years ago; but quite recently Mr. Coombes drew the attention of Mr. F. J. Furnivall, the Director of the Chaucer Society, and of several other literary antiquarian societies, to the hymn, and he had a photograph taken of the page, and kindly gave a copy to the writer of this notice. The music is written in timeless notes, but so exactly over the words, that there is no difficulty in barring the notes by the metre of the verse. This was the course universally adopted before music had notes of definite duration in proportion to others. We see the timebeaters represented on the paintings of ancient Egypt. The Greeks and Romans had their Coryphæus, and as music had no time-marks, it could only be the metres of the verses that they were beating, or that of a well-known tune which had become familiar to the ears by a similar process. It is, therefore, thus presented to the reader.

One peculiarity of the writing should be noted—that where the accent falls upon a long vowel, two notes are placed close together, as if the singer were to iterate the note. This manner of singing seems to have been the precursor of the comparatively modern tremolo, now so much employed by singers.

The manuscript is an important one in the history of music, because it was written within about twenty years of the Harleian manuscript which contains "Sumer is icumen in," and, like it, contains some pieces in two and in three parts. Having recently pointed out these to Mr. W. H. Cummings, he has kindly undertaken to score them in modern notes. The Latin words of the thirteenth century are by far more intelligible than the English, but, even these are occasionally difficult to read, on account of the excessive minuteness of the writing, and the abbreviations; as if parchment had been very scarce and difficult to procure.

There are five stanzas in the Latin and five in the English version, of which the latter, if not both, will be printed literatim by the Early English Text Society. It may therefore suffice here to publish the first stanza of the English text, somewhat modified to make it intelligible to modern readers:—

Gabriel fram [h]evene [s] king sent to the maid [en] swete, brou [gh]t hir blisful tiding and faire he [gan] hir grete:
Heil be thu, ful of grace ari [gh]t!
for Godes sone this [h]evene light for mannes loven
will man bicomen,
and taken fles [h] of the maiden bri [gh]t, mank [ind] fre for to make of sinne and devil's mi [gh]t.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

WE are given to understand that his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales intends, in the course of the month, to hold a meeting of representative persons from the counties and important towns of the kingdom, at which he will expound his scheme for a Royal College of Music, and will elicit the feeling of his audience on the subject, and their disposition to support it with the money necessary for carrying out the project. On this latter head, without being oversanguine, we do not feel much anxiety. The Prince of Wales has shown, in the recent Paris Exhibition and elsewhere, so rare a union of practical ability, tact, and judgment, that there is probably no one in the country in whom greater confidence would be placed as leader of any scheme that he may bring forward. Add to this his unique position, and the immense force of British loyalty, and it may be taken for granted that when the Prince lays a well-considered scheme before such an assembly as that proposed to be called together, it will be adopted by them. Seeing that his Royal Highness is Chairman of the Commissioners for 1851, it is natural to suppose that the locality of the College will be on their land, and in connection more or less close with the Albert Hall. On this point, however, we know nothing, and are not anxious. We are content to leave the question of ways and means alone, in the belief that there will be no great difficulty in its solution. All we are anxious about is that an Institution shall be founded which shall act as the recognised and authorised focus for the various and widespread streams and currents of energy with which music is now inspiring the educated classes throughout the country. We want a place which shall put a thorough and systematic education in music within the reach of all who can show themselves worthy of it, and shall give that direction and assistance to individual and struggling talent that Universities, Colleges, Conservatoires, Instituts, Academies are recognised as affording in all civilised countries, and in all branches of learning. Such a College will have all the advantage which our existing Academies and Schools possess, and it will possess in addition the strength and power due to the prestige, the position, and the ample funds which no private concern, however good, can command. Its effect cannot fail to be highly beneficial. Look at the immense list of large works composed in England in the last fifty years—oratorios, cantatas, operas, symphonies, &c.—a few successful, a large number unsuccessful, but all, good and bad, testifying to a prodigious and unsuspected amount of ability and energy. Can any one doubt that if the authors of these works, instead of getting taught how they could and where they could, and struggling on, often in a very imperfect manner, had been able to profit by the systematic education and the thousand good influences, direct and indirect, of a central College, the result would not have been much better for themselves and the country? It is often said that the great creative geniuses are not produced by academies, and the answer is obvious and as trite as the question. The answer is that they are great creative geniuses. But the fact that Burns and Byron, Beethoven and Rossini, Reynolds and Turner, were not taught in academies, but made their own way for themselves, must not blind us to the equally self-evident fact that the mass of their followers cannot make their own way, but want help, every help they can get. No one but a fanatic will deny that the Royal Academy, the Royal Society, the South Kensington Department of Science and Art, the Institut at Paris, &c., have done and are doing an immense service to the great army of workers in painting, science, and literature in our own and the continental countries. Why should not music in England receive similar assistance? The prospect should animate all lovers of the great art to which we so are devoted.

We entertain no fear that the new College will supersede or absorb existing institutions. There is room for all. Our musical academies and schools were never more prosperous or doing better work than they now are. It is their very activity, as a leading sign of the increased general interest in music, that supplies a strong argument for the foundation of a new institution on a wide and thoroughly national basis. We feel confident that the Prince of Wales may count on the hearty support of all the musicians of the metropolis, including those most actively engaged in instruction.

WHATEVER may be our own opinion upon the effect of Messrs. Moody and Sankey's mission to this country, and the eccentric doings of the band of fanatics known as the "Salvation Army," we should certainly not bring such matters before the readers of this journal were we not convinced that by pressing music into their service they are not only degrading the art, but doing their utmost to persuade the multitude into accepting their commonplace ditties in lieu of the pure and heavenly compositions of the great writers in sacred music. We have before alluded to this subject, and should not again do so were we not supported in our convictions by the Bishop of Manchester, who most emphatically assures us that he does not think the visit of Messrs. Moody and Sankey is likely to be attended by good results. When he reads, he says, of excited meetings "where people cried out in an hysterical way, and grovelled on the ground, shedding hatfuls of tears," he feared that the excitement would pass away almost as rapidly as it was produced. "Where," he asked, "were now the tens of thousands who six years ago rushed to hear the earnest American evangelists, Moody and Sankey, at Manchester?" But if the singing at these meetings is scarcely in accordance with the Bishop's idea of truly religious devotion, what would he say to the services of the "Salvation Army," where, as an eyewitness recently tells us, "an energetic individual announced a hymn, in singing which he took the lead with remarkable gusto, throwing out his arms, emphasising particular words by interspersing the verses with impromptu Te Deums and Hallelujahs." And then, he says, a "popular air" was occasionally started, the "changes being rung with various lively tunes." When we add that the preachings of the "Army" are enforced by the fantastic scrapings of the "Hallelujah Fiddler," the exciting nature of the proceedings may fairly be imagined. It is almost unnecessary to repeat our assertion that such music does harm to the advance of the higher forms of the art; and as we have the authority of the Bishop of Manchester for asserting that it also does harm to the higher forms of Christian worship, it would be difficult indeed to say what good can be effected by the presence of these evangelists in our midst.

THE recent establishment of "Smoking Concerts" in the metropolis is scarcely so much a proof of the advance of smoking as of the advance of music. The fact is that many persons accustomed to enjoy a cigar or pipe in the evening, and also exceedingly fond of listening to the performance of good works, have begun to see that the gratification of the one desire need not interfere with the occasional gratification of the other, and the result is the growth of the entertainments at one of which a few evenings ago we "assisted." Of course with a full orchestra, and a programme containing some of the best of our standard compositions, not only the total absence of ladies, but the arrangement of tables intermingled with seats, appeared strange to one accustomed to attend evening concerts at St. James's Hall; but then the stiffness inseparable from fashionable assemblies was replaced by an air of luxurious enjoyment which appeared thoroughly in consonance with the feelings of the audience; and when the performance commenced the few who desired to converse were effectually hushed by the frowning looks of the musical majority. We can confidently affirm that the characteristic feature of the concert was faithfully preserved, for not only the audience smoked, but the Conductor, the stringed instrument players, and the performers upon wind instruments too, whenever they could get a chance. It was remarked by many that Beethoven sounded much better when, instead of sitting between two elegantly dressed ladies in a sofa stall, you could recline at your ease, and combine the aroma of the music with the fragrance of the weed. Upon this observation we make no comment. At all events the music was excellently played and heartily appreciated by several who would not have heard a note of it had they been debarred from their usual evening relaxation. It is true that we heard one dissenter observe that he should enjoy a Smoking Concert very much if it were not for the smoking; but then why, it may be reasonably asked, had he come there?

ALTHOUGH our opinion is often asked with the object of settling local musical disputes, it is seldom that we comply with the request, partly because the matter can scarcely be of interest to our general readers, and partly because we can rarely be placed sufficiently in possession of the facts on both sides of the question to give a conscientious verdict. A correspondence lately forwarded to us for comment, however, makes us deviate from our usual course, because the subject seems of public importance. It appears that at a concert at Aberdeen Herr Reiter, the Conductor, in a part-song by Professor Macfarren, altered some notes which he considered to be "harsh"; and that a critic in the Aberdeen Journal, who mentioned this fact, had been so annoyed by "verbal messages" respecting his notice, that he wrote to the composer, who of course declared the printed copy to be correct, and thus tacitly reproved the Conductor who had tampered with it. Then came a paper war in the Aberdeen Journal, many correspondents declaring that it was Herr Reiter's place to conduct, and not to criticise, the compositions under his direction; and that Professor Macfarren's ripened talent had earned for himself a place too high for his technical knowledge to be called into question. Now we perfectly know the harmony in dispute, and should be prepared, if necessary, to defend it. But this is beside the question: as a matter of principle, we deny that a Conductor has any right to alter a composition. If he does not like it, or his choir cannot sing it, he should not select it for performance. In pronouncing judgment upon the merits of this controversy, therefore, we have nothing to do with the artistic positions of either the composer or the Conductor.

Professor Macfarren has written certain notes, and Herr Reiter can only be justly blamed if his choir sings them incorrectly.

IN the course of our remarks upon the decay of Italian Opera we have often called attention to the fact of so few of our most eminent lyrical vocalists being Italians. We are indebted, however, to our contemporary the Standard for furnishing us with a list of those who, although appearing during the fashionable season at our two Italian Opera houses, are really natives of almost every musical country except Italy. Madame Patti is an American, of Spanish extraction; Madame Albani is a Canadian; Madame Sembrich is a Pole; Madame Fürsch-Madier is a German; Madame Valleria, American; Madame Trebelli and Mdlle. De Reszké, French; Señor Gayarré, Spanish; Signor Mierzwinski, a Pole; Herr Labatt, German; M.M. Faure, Maurel, Verguet, Nicolini, Soulaacroix, and Lasalle, French. Granting, then, that when purely Italian operas are given, those to whom the language is foreign, although able to sing the notes, must pronounce the words imperfectly, what possible reason can there be, when so many nationalities are represented in a lyrical company, for translating every opera into Italian? With a number of German vocalists accustomed to sing the music in the language to which it was composed, why should not a German Opera be performed in German? With French artists imbued with the characteristics of the school, why not play a French Opera in French? Surely those who were not born in Germany or France could quite as easily study the language of those countries as that of Italy. It is true that these questions are now practically answered by the visit of a German company to England, and this may very probably be followed by a company from France; but in the interest of the lessees to whom the lyrical drama in this country has been so long intrusted, we should have been glad if they could have foreseen and prepared for this decline in the taste for Italian Opera before it was too late.

THE vagaries of German taste are sometimes astonishing. On the 17th ult. there appeared in the programme of the sixth Euterpe Concert at Leipzig a "Prelude and Fugue by J. S. Bach, set for orchestra, with a Choral, by Abert." It will hardly be believed that this consisted of, first, the Prelude to the great C sharp minor Fugue in the first part of the "Wohltemperirte Clavier"; secondly, a brand-new choral played exclusively by wind instruments of the brazen class, with an intolerable noise of trombones; and, thirdly, the famous Organ Fugue in G minor, the "Giant," so well known to all organists, in the midst of which reappeared the new-fangled Choral, blared forth by the aforesaid trombones so as entirely to ruin the effect of the incomparable Fugue. Two questions are suggested by this ill-favoured production, neither of them complimentary to the Leipzig public. On the one hand, is it necessary to dress up the works of Bach, and blend a pathetic piano-prelude with a jocund organ-fugue, in order to commend them to the taste of the day? Or can the concert-managers rely on so complete an ignorance of the great Leipzig master, that they can play their "fantastic tricks" without risk of exposure, and careless of making "the angels weep"? It was far otherwise a generation ago, when Mendelssohn and Schumann swayed the musical sceptre there.

IN our "Foreign Notes" this month mention is made of a new Oratorio by Joachim Raff, recently performed at Weimar, called "Weltende—Gericht—Neue Welt," or "End of the World—Judgment—

New World." In The Times of the 24th ult., under the heading of "Miscellaneous Foreign News," it is stated that a new Oratorio has been produced at Weimar "by Joachim Kapf, entitled Weltende Gericht, Neue Welt (The Last Judgment and Paradise)." For the information of our readers, who might imagine that these are two distinct works by different composers, we may mention that the quotation from our contemporary is a free rendering of the fact alluded to by ourselves.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

MR. CARL ROSA commenced his season of operatic performances in English on the 14th ult., before an overflowing audience. Wagner's "Lohengrin," although no novelty in the répertoire of this company, was well chosen to inaugurate the season, for not only are all the parts admirably fitted for the artists engaged at this establishment, but it has been so carefully prepared as to make the performance one of unusual excellence, even to those accustomed to hear the greatest vocalists in one or two of the principal characters. Miss Julia Gaylord's Elsa has lost none of its charm histrionically, but her voice shows signs of wear; and, much as we should miss her from the cast of the operas with which she has been so long associated, occasional rest should be absolutely insisted upon by all interested in her career. Herr Schott has to struggle against his foreign accent, and is scarcely perhaps the ideal Lohengrin that Elsa might be presumed to see in her vision; but he sings well, especially in the declamatory parts, and has evidently much improved since he last appeared here. The Ortrud and Telramund of Miss Josephine Yorke and Mr. Ludwig deserve special commendation; and Mr. Henry Pope as King Henry, and Mr. Leslie Crotty in the difficult, but somewhat thankless, part of the Herald, were thoroughly satisfactory. The orchestra was excellent, but the choir scarcely realised the dramatic effect of the important choruses with which the opera abounds, and in many parts the intonation was faulty. The "Flying Dutchman," played on the second night of the season, gave Madame Alwina Valleria an opportunity of proving, as the heroine, the possession of more real dramatic power than many, perhaps, may have credited her with; and her singing—especially in her great duet on first meeting with the Dutchman—created an effect as enthusiastic as it was thoroughly merited. Both as a singer and an actor Mr. Ludwig achieved a perfect triumph in the part of the Dutchman, his first scene indeed eliciting a storm of approbation which could scarcely be controlled; and in the duet already alluded to he exercised as potent a spell over the audience as over the woman who devotes her life to his service. Miss Josephine Yorke, in the comparatively small part of Mary, was everything that could be desired; and the same praise may be awarded to the Eric of Mr. F. C. Packard, the Steersman of Mr. J. W. Turner, and the Daland of Mr. H. D'Egville. The opera was mounted with the minutest care, the ship indeed being a marvel of mechanical skill; and the whole stage arrangement, as well as the scenery, evidencing a laudable desire on the part of the management to give a perfect realisation of the Wagnerian theories respecting the lyrical drama. The choruses were on the whole well rendered; and Signor Randegger, who conducted both the Operas under notice, showed unflinching skill and judgment in the discharge of his arduous duties. Wallace's "Maritana," Ambroise Thomas's "Mignon," and Balfe's "Bohemian Girl," have also been performed with much success. As Frederic, in "Mignon," Miss La Rue strengthened materially the favourable impression created a few nights previously on her début in the small part of Lazarillo in "Maritana"; and we must also chronicle the warm reception accorded to Mr. Barton McGuckin, who made his first appearance on the stage in the character of Wilhelm Meister, in "Mignon," and, in addition to his well-known qualifications as a vocalist, displayed powers as an actor which will doubtless ripen by experience. A repetition of the "Bohemian Girl," on the 25th ult., introduced Mr. B. Davies in the part of Thaddeus. He has an excellent voice, and was warmly and most deservedly applauded in his principal songs. His method of vocalisation is extremely good, and he displays an aptitude for stage business which warrants us in believing that he will prove a valuable acquisition to the company. It must be mentioned that Mr. Pew has occasionally replaced Signor Randegger as Conductor with much success. Balfe's Opera "The Painter of Antwerp" was announced for production too late for notice in our present number.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

No time has been lost in recommencing for the new year these truly popular Concerts, the first of which took place on the 2nd ult., when Mdlle. Marie Krebs made her first appearance this season at the pianoforte. Mdlle. Krebs having periodically appeared before the English public ever since she was a mere child, her reception on this occasion was, as usual, of that warm and cordial description which we reserve for tried and valued friends; and, albeit no very perceptible progress may be traced of late years in the lady's artistic development, her graceful and brilliant execution will always ensure her the continuance of the popularity she has earned. The Concert opened with Beethoven's Quartet in A major, Op. 18, No. 5, an old favourite at this institution, and capitably rendered by MM. Holländer, Ries, Zerbini, and Piatti. The same composer's Sonata in E flat, Op. 31, No. 3, was the much-applauded solo performance by the pianist of the evening, who also, later in the programme, played, in conjunction with Signor Piatti, Chopin's Polonaise Brillante in C major, Op. 3, for pianoforte and violoncello; a not very remarkable production of one of the most remarkable composers of modern days. The Pianoforte Quintet in C minor, Op. 44, by the late Hermann Goetz, was likewise included in the evening's proceedings, and received a very fine interpretation at the hands of Mdlle. Krebs, MM. Holländer, Zerbini, Piatti, and White (who had replaced Mr. Reynolds at the contrabass). We have before had occasion to speak of this interesting and musicianlike specimen of modern chamber music, one of the few of this class which the gifted composer of "The Taming of the Shrew" produced. Mr. Lloyd was the vocalist, and gave in excellent style songs by Schubert and Blumenthal, to Mr. Zerbini's able accompaniment.

At the second Concert (on the 9th ult.), Mozart's bright and genial Quintet in E flat for two violins, two violas, and violoncello, stood at the head of the programme, and was played in the true spirit in which the prolific master conceived it by MM. Straus, Ries, Holländer, Zerbini, and Piatti. Mdlle. Krebs was again the pianist, and in an Allegro, Allegretto, and Presto by Scarlatti exhibited to the best advantage those specific qualities which we assigned to her at the commencement of these notices. The call for an encore (inevitable, as it seems, at these Concerts) which followed was responded to by the lady playing an additional piece. Signor Piatti's noble tone and masterly technique were again most conspicuous in Beethoven's Sonata in G minor, Op. 5, No. 2, for pianoforte and violoncello, in the rendering of which he was joined by Mdlle. Krebs, who also played the pianoforte part in Schumann's Quartet in E flat, Op. 47, assisted by MM. Straus, Holländer, and Piatti. This charming work, displaying all the best characteristics of Schumann's individuality, has now justly become one of the established favourites with the audience here, and as such requires no further comment on our part, beyond stating the fact that its execution on this occasion was such as in every way to deserve the enthusiastic applause with which it was greeted. Mrs. Hutchinson's sympathetic voice and excellent training were displayed to advantage in an air by Hummel (a rara avis this name of an excellent composer in modern concert programmes), "L'ombrosa notte vien," and Molique's song, "O sweet lute," the latter with a viola obbligato, played in masterly manner by Herr Holländer.

On the third Monday of the series (the 16th ult.) Brahms's String Quartet in A minor, Op. 51, No. 2, which was first introduced here at the opening Concert of the present season, was repeated, and fully confirmed the favourable impression it produced on the former occasion.

To say that the quartet is throughout elaborated in a masterly manner is in the case of Brahms stating a matter of course. Not so the fact that there is, if not a total absence from, at least no very conspicuous tendency towards diffuseness in this work, an element which, in fact, enters very largely more especially into the later productions of this, as indeed of many other composers of the modern German school. Herr Brahms has something very interesting to say in each of the four movements of which the work is composed, and says it exceedingly well. The Quartet in A minor moves with perfect ease and freedom in recognised forms, bearing, however, a distinctly individual stamp, both in general conception and modes of expression, and works up to a spirited climax in the final Allegro, which, although the least elaborate of the movements, is for that reason also most easily comprehended, and calculated to decide the success of the work at a first hearing. It will doubtless become one of the stock-pieces at the Popular Concerts. MM. Straus, Ries, Zerbini, and Piatti were again, as on the previous occasion, the worthy interpreters. Mr. Charles Hallé was the pianist, and gave, with that perfect lucidity of exposition by which his performances are invariably characterised, Schubert's Sonata in B flat major; being also associated with MM. Straus and Piatti in Beethoven's Pianoforte Trio in E flat, Op. 70, No. 2 (of which the present was the eighteenth performance), and, at the conclusion of the evening, with the eminent violinist just named, in the exquisite rendering of three of the Pensées Fugitives by Heller and Ernst, which certainly deserve to be more frequently heard than has of late years been the case. Madame Fasset was very successful in declaiming a canzone, "Ritonerai fa poco," by Hasse, and Sullivan's plaintive song, "The Willow."

Johans Svendsen's Ottet in A major was an interesting novelty introduced at the fourth Concert (the 23rd ult.), and created a most favourable impression. There is a freshness—the freshness of youth—in this early production of the Swedish composer, a protest against conventionalities, an exuberant assertion of the national element, which at once captivate the listener and atone for a great deal of incoherence, undeveloped ideas, and diffuseness likewise apparent in the work. Beautiful melodic phrases, mostly of a national colouring, abound throughout the four movements, raising expectations of further elaboration, which, however, in most instances, and conspicuously so in the Andante sostenuto, are disappointed. The Scherzo is undoubtedly the most original of the movements, and at the same time the most consistent in the use of what is evidently a popular Swedish dance-tune; it was most vigorously applauded, and, if the listeners had had their way, would have been repeated, a disposition which was wisely ignored by the executants, MM. Straus, Ries, Wiener, Gibson, Holländer, Zerbini, Pezze, and Piatti. A repetition of the Ottet of Herr Svendsen—with whose Symphony and Norwegian Rhapsodies London audiences are already familiar—will doubtless soon take place, judging by the highly favourable reception it met with on this occasion. Mlle. Krebs contributed two of Mendelssohn's "Lieder ohne Worte," and the Con moto in A major by the same composer, and in response to an encore added another of the "Lieder." The lady also played with Herr Straus Bach's Sonata in C minor for pianoforte and violin, and was later in the evening associated with the same artists and Signor Piatti in a con amore rendering of Spohr's Pianoforte Trio in E minor, Op. 119. Miss Santley, who was the vocalist, gracefully declaimed songs by Gounod, Schubert, and Sullivan; Mr. Zerbini, as usual, accompanying.

At the following Concert (30th ult.) Madame Norman-Néruda was announced to make her first appearance this season. We must defer our notice of the event until next number.

GUILDHALL ORCHESTRAL SOCIETY.

On the afternoon of Saturday, the 21st ult., a Concert was given in the Egyptian Hall of the Mansion House by the Guildhall Orchestral Society, assisted by the pupils of the Guildhall School of Music. The orchestra was conducted by Mr. Weist Hill, the principal of the school.

The instrumental pieces performed consisted of Mendelssohn's Overture, "A Calm Sea and Prosperous Voyage"; the first movement of the "Eroica" Symphony; a Largo by Handel, arranged for orchestra by Von der Finck; a Gavotte in F, by Bourgault Ducoudray; the "Serenade de Mandolins," by Desormes; and Meyerbeer's March from the "Prophète."

Miss Marie Schumann, De Keyser Exhibitioner, and pupil of Mr. Weist Hill, played the Andante and Finale of Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto; Miss Ellen Marchant, pupil of Mr. J. B. Welch, of the Guildhall School, sang the aria from "La Favorita," "O mio Fernando"; Miss Isabella Stone, pupil of Signor Nicola Ferri, of the same institution, sang Verdi's "Ernani involami"; "O ruddier than the cherry" was given (with orchestra) by Mr. Henry Blower; Hobbs's "Phyllis is my only joy," by Mr. Dalgety Henderson; and Mr. Charles Chilley sang "Yes, let me like a soldier fall," from "Maritana," with orchestral accompaniment. Possibly the musical library at Guildhall is not yet very complete, and Italian opera scores may not be plentiful. A very slight demand on the corporate fund would remedy that evil. It was unfair to the singer and to the particular composer to give the Cavatina from "Ernani" with pianoforte accompaniment when an orchestra was at hand which had only the fault of being too powerful for the room. It completely swamped Miss Schumann's violin, so tenderly and neatly bowed by the fair executant. Miss Isabella Stone gave a true Italian rendering of the Cavatina she selected. She failed in the prolonged trill in the final cadence; but both Miss Stone and Miss Marchant are promising illustrations of the method of teaching at the Guildhall School, which may prove a valuable nursery for English opera. Miss Marchant's voice, if not very sympathetic, is of good quality, and in the present dearth of contraltos would be an acquisition even on the Italian stage. The male soloists did not exemplify the same advancement in style, but they sang fairly, and gained deserved applause. The room was crowded, and the concert seemed to give entire satisfaction. The Lady Mayoress was present with a large party of friends. An important question to future concert-givers in mid-winter was suggested to us by the delicious coolness of the Mansion House room, lit as it is with two or three electric lights. With the ordinary complement of gaslights, the room would possibly have been overheated; but we must remember that without some substitute for the supply, and graduated supply, of caloric, the concert-room of the future will be like an ice-house.

BOROUGH OF HACKNEY CHORAL ASSOCIATION.

THE Second Concert of the season was given at the Shoreditch Town Hall, on the 23rd ult., the programme being of that classical character to which the Conductor has now thoroughly accustomed his audience. The first part contained Schubert's "Song of Miriam," and Mendelssohn's "Lauda Sion," both works displaying the excellent powers of the choir to the utmost advantage. "Miriam's War Song," as it was originally called, although brief, is one of the most charming of Schubert's compositions, the varied feelings so admirably expressed in the poem being faithfully reflected in the music. Especially effective in this performance were the passages descriptive of the miracle of the parting of the waters, the destruction of Pharaoh with his host, and the final fugue, all of which were listened to with an earnestness proving that even those who could not thoroughly appreciate the beauties of the music, were modest enough to bow to its influence. Miss Marian Williams—in spite of a severe cold, which compelled her to omit a song in the second part of the programme—sang with much artistic feeling the soprano solo, her efforts at the conclusion being rewarded by the warmest applause. In Mendelssohn's work the principal vocalists were Miss Marian Williams, Miss Hilda Wilson, Mr. Sinclair Dunn, and Mr. Albert McGuckin, all of whom gave an excellent rendering of the music allotted to them, the quartets, with chorus, being especially well sung. A feature in the second part was Schumann's "Requiem for Mignon," the solos being assigned to Miss Marian Williams, Madame Clara West, Miss Hilda Wilson, Miss Rose Dafforne, and Mr. Albert McGuckin.

This fine composition was sung both by principals and choir with much refinement and true dramatic expression; and the music, although doubtless new to the majority of the audience, created a marked effect. Mr. J. F. Barnett's recitative and air, "Ah! when the wanderer," from his cantata, "The Building of the Ship," was excellently sung by Miss Hilda Wilson, and so enthusiastically received that she was compelled to return to the platform and bow her acknowledgments. Mr. Ernest Ford's chorus for female voices, "Winter," received a very fair rendering; and the excellent quality of the orchestra was amply evidenced by the performance of Haydn's Symphony in D (No. 2), and Auber's bright and tuneful overture "La Part du Diable." Mr. E. Prout was, as usual, an efficient Conductor.

ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.

THE Feast of the Conversion of St. Paul was duly observed at St. Paul's Cathedral on the 25th ult., the number of services held there throughout the day having now reached the large total of eight. Only two of these, however, possess any musical interest—to wit, the Morning Service, with choral celebration of Holy Communion, at which, on the present occasion, Schubert's Mass in C was used for the first time; and the four o'clock Evensong, which for the last nine years has formed the chief musical attraction of the Festival, a full orchestra being employed in addition to the organ, and the Anthem consisting of a great portion of Mendelssohn's "St. Paul."

An Evening Service (Magnificat and Nunc dimittis), composed specially for the Festival by Mr. J. Baptiste Calkin, received ample justice from the choir and orchestra. Both canticles show the musicianship which the name of the composer leads us to look for, but give evidence, at the same time, of that tendency to drift into the part-song style which appears to be rife among the majority of the Church writers of the present day. Notwithstanding their occasional secularity in style, however, they will doubtless be welcomed as useful additions to the répertoire of the Church. The Magnificat opens with a theme in character pastoral, a tone which is more or less preserved throughout the canticle, and which, we venture to think, commends itself to thoughtful minds as possibly the truest reading of the text; the Nunc dimittis, however, is in our opinion the more pleasing portion of the Service.

The selection from Mendelssohn's "St. Paul" was, as we have already stated, the same as in past years. The solos were taken by two choristers of the cathedral and Messrs. Frost, Kenningham, Kempton, and Winn. Mr. G. C. Martin presided at the organ; Dr. Stainer, of course, conducting.

"ERIC THE DANE."

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

THE night of Thursday the 26th ult., was made notable in the present Manchester season by the production, at one of Mr. Charles Hallé's Concerts, of a new Cantata, "Eric the Dane," the joint work of Mr. Robert McLean and Mr. Edward Hecht. In his search for a subject, the author of the book went far back in English history—to the point where that history almost touches the frontier of myth. His work deals with Saxon and Dane—the "kites and crows" of Milton's famous and contemptuous sentence—opening up, therefore, new ground for the making of cantatas, and a fresh store of heroic or graceful characters. That he will have followers may be assumed. There are a thousand incidents in the far past of our "rough island story" which still wait for the poet and musician destined to give them a higher life. The "argument" of our new Cantata is thus stated by Mr. McLean:—

"Eric, at the head of a host of Danes, invades the territory of Edward, King of the Saxons. It is night, and the two armies lie opposite each other, waiting for daylight. Eric has, on a former expedition, become acquainted with King Edward and also with his daughter, Edith. With the latter he has fallen deeply in love, and he resolves to see her once again for what may be the last time. Accordingly he steals, disguised as a minstrel, into the camp of the Saxons, and in that character sings before the King. His voice is recognised by Edith, and the lovers have a brief interview, which, however, is soon interrupted by King Edward, who has also recognised in the self-styled minstrel his enemy, Eric. The King denounces him and is about to put him to death, when the timely intercession of Edith saves him, and brings about a peace between the two leaders."

The treatment of this simple and straightforward story by Mr. McLean is, as to sequence and contrast of incident, very good. With regard to the literary merit of the poem, there may be a difference of opinion. Great things are not usually expected in libretti, and, as a matter of fact, it is open to discussion whether, looking at the inevitable (pace Herr Wagner) predominance of music, the last degree of polish is necessary in verses destined to alliance with the sister art. Let me, therefore, be excused from such criticism of Mr. McLean's poem as would fall to it were it put forward to stand alone. For the rest, little is demanded save words of praise. The drama hangs well together and the verses present a sufficiently varied rhythmic form, while in most cases the diction is elevated and the ideas poetical enough for the composer's purpose. On the other hand, the rhymes are not always good, and I would particularly remind Mr. McLean that only within the limits of traditional Cockaigne does "law" rhyme to "more," and "dawn" to "morn."

The formal "introduction" is, in this case, not instrumental but vocal with orchestral accompaniment. A chorus of Saxons, speaking in the narrative form, pictures the night that has fallen upon the hostile camps; tells how King Edward impatiently strides upon the battlemented tower, and prays for victory in the coming fight. The chorus is in three sections—first, an Andante (E flat minor, 6-8) "Dark is the night"; next, a Più allegro, "Alone upon the battlemented tower"; and, lastly, a Moderato in E flat, "Strengthen the arm." All the vocal music is here extremely simple, even the contrapuntal Moderato being almost studiously diatonic. It is evident, however, even from the pianoforte score, that the orchestral music presents features of interest and importance—that it plays a distinct, though, as the true principles of art would suggest, not the chief part in the ensemble. The next number is a Scena for King Edward, "O tranquil night." It begins with an Andantino in B major, of a very calm and beautiful character, sufficiently indicated by the opening phrase:—

The whole construction of this short movement is masterly, and the listener is sorry when it gives place to an Allegro energico (B minor), "But peace will fly from yonder glades," although this has points of interest. At length, with a return to the original key, comes a Maestoso con moto, "O God of war," in which the King, after the manner of kings, solemnly invokes the Deity of Battles, with the customary regal confidence of being right and his enemy wrong. As the prayer concludes, distant voices are heard appealing to Thor, the opposition Lord of War. The enemy is also at his devotions, but the King seems to find some comfort in the thought that the gods of the Danes are heathens' gods, and as deaf as Baal himself. "Mighty Thor" is now appealed to in a chorus (Andante religioso, G major). The voices here are mostly in unison, breaking into harmony on the closing petition, "Warrior god, hear," with fine effect. Passing over a dialogue, in recitative, between the King and Edith, we next come to an air, "Was ever maiden's tortured heart" (Andante con moto, E flat, 9-8), in which Edith confesses to herself the love she bears for Eric, contrasting it with her duty towards her father's foe. The opening theme is both melodious and expressive:—

The Princess's soliloquy is presently interrupted by her maidens, who are heard, in two-part chorus, calling her to the feast, where the King expects her presence. Their unaffected music, in thirds and sixths, contrasts well with Edith's troubled song, a portion of which she sings after answering the summons. This portion, moreover, ends without a regular cadence, on the chord of G minor, on which also the festal trumpets enter, preliminary to a "flourish" in B flat, whence, after a period of indefiniteness, the orchestral introduction of the chorus finally settles down on F major. The new number, "Now fill the foaming goblet high" (Allegro ma non troppo, F major, 4-4), contains several changes of rhythm, from a liberal use of which Mr. Hecht is not averse. After a few bars of common time, a theme in 12-8 is heard:—

This, with a short counter-theme, is worked till the common time reappears with an occasional bar of 2-4, and an exciting coda is reached. Of the good musical effect of this chorus a glance suffices to give assurance. Eric is now introduced, in his minstrel's guise, and proposes to sing of love. This he does in an air, "O love, how mighty is thy strength" (Andantino, B flat, 3-4), prominently accompanied by harp and horn. In this instance, as it appears to me, the poet has not served the musician well. His lines are too didactic for such a theme, and it is clear that Mr. Hecht could derive from them very little inspiration. This is the more to be regretted, because the opportunity, as well from a lyric as from a dramatic point of view, was splendid. Prominent in the orchestral part of this song is a theme—

The King, having thanked the supposed minstrel, proposes one cup more and then to rest, whereupon his men break into a savage choral strain, "Drink confusion to the foe" (Moderato ma con fuoco, D major, 3-4). There is immense energy here. Observe how the basses lead off:—

The minor seventh is significant of crashing 6-4-2 chords, and they are by no means wanting, nor, indeed, is anything else that can be called musically true, to the situation and sentiment. We are now to suppose that the lovers have an opportunity of speaking together. Eric implores Edith not to betray him, and presently both join in a duet "I'll trust thy love" (Andante, D flat), constructed as a canon on the fifth above, the second voice following at a bar's interval. When the canon closes, the orchestra takes it up, with the parts inverted, while the voices pursue an independent course. This is very well done, and admirable as a scholastic device to which nothing is sacrificed. Some animated and impassioned episodes follow, with several changes of key, &c., and the duet ends with a quasi-Andantino in B flat minor. In this number Mr. Hecht has put forth all his strength with generally good results. The music is quick—using the word in its good old Saxon sense, and not stuff wanting the breath of life. The King is now heard approaching, and Edith begs her lover to fly. But there is no time. Edward recognises his enemy (the orchestra at this point is capital), and his attendants express their feelings in a savage chorus (Allegro feroce, E minor,

3-4), "Forth from its sheath let the sharp sword fly." The principal theme, treated contrapuntally, runs thus:—

Connoisseurs will at once divine that the triplets are made good use of, and this is, in fact, the case. Example, on a dominant pedal, to the words "Eric the Dane":—

Subsequently another theme appears as counterpoint to the first, and the two are worked with the ease and effect that seem to be characteristic of the composer under such circumstances. In the dialogue which follows, Edward demands the reason of Eric's intrusion, and the Dane answers to the theme of his "Love" song, while the orchestra gives out the motive already quoted. Then Eric bids his enemy strike, and as the musical subject afterwards reappears, it may be given here:—

He is answered by a short chorus of male voices, "Rush on the foe," each part uttering angry, detached sentences, whereupon Edith intervenes with an appeal for mercy, "O father, stay their hands" (Allegro agitato, D minor). She confesses her reason, and as she does so, the "love motive," followed by the opening phrases of her song, is heard to excellent purpose from the orchestra. A brief unaccompanied trio follows—"Alas! my heart knows but too well" (Andante con moto, B minor, C)—but calls for no special remark. Then Edith resumes her intercession in an Andantino, "Father, spare him":—

The theme of this having been taken up in full chorus, Edward and Eric, one desiring peace and the other love, soon settle all dispute, and then begins the final ensemble, "In the east the rising morn" (Andante mosso, E flat, C). After a short invocation of Peace, the time changes to 6-8, and a lightsome episode leads to an Allegro, common time, two in a bar. Here occurs a prominent phrase:—

A return to the opening subject is then made, and soon the Coda begins with a combination of the bass theme "Strengthen the arm," &c., in the opening chorus, and of Eric's challenge, "So strike," both augmented":—

(BY TELEGRAPH.)

Before summing up the merits of the work, let me describe the circumstances and character of the initial performance. That Mr. Hecht enjoys the sympathies of the people among whom he has laboured long and well was obvious not only from the crowded state of the magnificent Free Trade Hall, but from the unanimous applause that greeted his appearance in the conductor's place. The audience seemed perfectly disposed to discount the success of the Can-tata, and certainly no performance could have been entered upon under more encouraging auspices: this may be said as much with regard to the resources placed at its service as to the goodwill of the public. Having a band like that of Mr. Charles Hallé, a chorus the best in Manchester, and such principals as Miss Mary Davies, Mr. Lloyd, and Mr. Santley, Mr. Hecht would have been unreasonable indeed had he desired more favourable conditions. It will be assumed that the execution of the music fully met the anticipations of those who knew that the task involved not only novelty but difficulty. "Eric the Dane" is a work not to be entered upon with the historic cœur léger of M. Emile Olivier. Many of its numbers, for solo, chorus, and orchestra alike, are of an exacting character; wherefore it was not to be expected perhaps that the ensemble should challenge criticism as absolutely perfect. As a matter of fact, and bearing all things in mind, the execution of the work was singularly good, reflecting much credit upon those concerned, and giving the composer a perfectly fair chance of appreciation. There can be no doubt that he was appreciated—a more attentive hearing novelty never had. The audience, it is true, encored only one piece—the unaccompanied trio, "Thy shame indeed I hear thee tell"—and this was well, because the dramatic action was not materially broken. When, however, the last note had sounded, Mr. Hecht was applauded and recalled with a heartiness indicative of real enthusiasm. He will, no doubt, be encouraged by this to persevere in the high walk of art upon which he has now entered, and only needs to give more attention to pure vocal phrasing in order to do that which should be as almost surely popular as musicianly. Miss Mary Davies (Edith) did full justice to the composer's conception, singing with the power which she has recently developed, and that promises to take her into the very front rank. Mr. Lloyd, admirable always, was a perfect Eric; and, seeing his good "form," it seemed a pity that the one great song of his part does not rank as the best in the work. The King Edward of Mr. Santley commanded equal admiration. Our popular baritone undertakes no character without making it characteristic, and his impersonation of the monarch was by many a subtle touch made clear and distinct. Thanks to this general and specific excellence, the Cantata was fairly started on a path of success, and I shall only add that it deserves attention everywhere for thoroughly legitimate musical qualities.

THE DUNDEE LADIES' ORCHESTRA.

It is not long since "Bonnie Dundee" began to claim attention as a musical town. With the exception of the "Air Mélancolique," played on the "bugpipe" by Victor Hugo's celebrated hero, it was supposed to have very little music belonging to it. But for some years past there has been abundant evidence of a great amount of latent vitality there in musical matters. Good work, chiefly choral, has been going on in many directions; but lately a remarkable impetus has been given to instrumental music, and especially to the study of the violin, which is fast becoming a household instrument, for women as much as for men.

The announcement, therefore, that the "Dundee Ladies' Orchestra," conducted by Mr. Arthur C. Haden, would give its first Concert on Monday, December 19, 1881, excited no little interest and curiosity. This orchestra numbers at present thirty-one ladies, of whom twenty-one play the violin, four the viola, four the violoncello, and two the double-bass. It would perhaps be more correct, at its present stage of development, to describe it as a class, or group of classes, all its members being pupils of Mr. Haden, and none of them having had, we are assured, more than a very few months' instruction or practice. This being so, anything like absolute excellence of playing was not to be looked for; and to venture on a public concert so early in the career of his orchestra was a bold step on the part of Mr. Haden. It was, however, justified by a degree of success which should be most encouraging to him and to the Dundee ladies. The pieces selected were short and simple in the extreme, but tuneful and well contrasted. A few of them were varied by a pianoforte accompaniment played by Mrs. Julian Marshall. The audience from the first manifested an indulgent temper, as creditable to their intelligence as to their disposition, entering heartily into the situation, and giving to every number a good share of applause.

To set this elementary band to accompany songs,—a matter in which first-rate orchestras are apt enough to fail in delicacy,—was perhaps a mistake; it was certainly trying to the singers, Mrs. A. C. Haden and Miss Emily Francis, both of whom, it should be mentioned to their honour, were, when not singing, playing in the orchestra. The principal vocal piece was the scena from "Der Freischütz," sung by Mrs. Haden with such silvery quality of voice as made it hard to realise that she was labouring under the disadvantage of a bad cold, although an apology had been previously made for her on this account. Her singing was most artistic, and elicited a warm encore. She was accompanied on the pianoforte by Mr. Haden. Weber's "Concertino" for clarinet was remarkably well played by Miss Frances Thomas, whose tone and phrasing recall those of her teacher, Mr. Lazarus. She was loudly applauded and encored.

The chief feature of the evening was Mr. Haden's own performance of the Andante and Finale from Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto. His technique is of the best school; and, in his playing, he unites an uncommon facility of execution to singular beauty of tone and tenderness of expression. His enthusiastic reception showed that his efforts in the cause of music are appreciated by his fellow-townsmen, and the frequent applause which broke out at intervals, and culminated at the end of the piece, sufficiently testified to the rare pleasure afforded by his performance to all who heard it.

If we might venture on a criticism, it would be to hint that the pianist, animated, no doubt, by a laudable desire to subdue the accompaniment to the solo part, played at times so softly as to be inaudible in the room,—a mistake, we submit, in a concerted work, where the orchestral part is of individual importance.

But this concert is of special interest, even more for what it indicates than for what it actually accomplished. It seems as if Mr. Haden might revive in this northern town the departed glories of the Venetian scuole, each of which had its "ladies' orchestra" of girl-students. But what we welcome most is the evidence of the gradual growth of instrumental music in this country. Oaks spring from acorns; but our British plan is to buy and cut down a ready-grown foreign oak, to dig a hole for it, set it there, shower gold around it, write odes and epics in its praise, and expect it to grow. It withers: and another forest-tree is imported, and erected in its place. Meanwhile, our country remains unwooded as before: we have learnt what a full-grown oak is like, and that is all. In the Leipzig letter of the January number of THE MUSICAL TIMES, reference was made to the fact that the Gewandhaus Concerts had their origin in a little club-meeting at a public-house. For eighteen years its members quietly worked, room after room becoming too small for them, before they built themselves the concert-room from which they derive their name, and of which they have just celebrated the centenary festival.

This,—from small things to great,—is the natural order of growth, the only guarantee of stability; and it is this of which we see a germ in our little Dundee orchestra. It has achieved much in a short time; another year's steady work under its Conductor should bring it far on its path to excellence and ultimate success.

MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

MR. HALLÉ's tenth Concert of the series, given on December 29, was devoted to a performance of Berlioz' Symphony, "Romeo and Juliet." The chorus and orchestra acquitted themselves admirably, the latter particularly so in the "Queen Mab" Scherzo. The principal vocalists were Miss Orridge, Mr. F. Boyle and Mr. F. King, of whom the first and last named sang their somewhat ungrateful music with considerable success, but Mr. Boyle was not so fortunate in the small but trying part, Mercutio.—On the 5th ult., Haydn's Symphony in D, No. 5 (Clock Symphony), the Overtures to "Faust" and "Otello," and the first set of Dvorák's "Danse Slaves" constituted the orchestral portion of the programme. Signor Piatti introduced his own "Fantasia Romantica"—a work of considerable length, and containing, particularly in the Andante, well-conceived themes and appropriate treatment—and played, with Mr. Hallé, Schumann's "Mährchenbilder." In the performance of both works Signor Piatti's tone and perfection of technique were even more than usually striking. Madame Blanche Barton sang with excellent effect "Deh vieni," "Qui la voce," and Dudley Buck's song, "When the heart is young."—On the 12th ult., Berlioz' "Faust" was given, with Miss Mary Davies, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. Hilton, and Mr. Santley as principal singers. The performance was of unusual excellence, both as regards orchestra and chorus, and the soloists, who were all in good voice, gave their respective parts with admirable effect.—The programme of the thirteenth Concert included amongst the instrumental works Schumann's Symphony in B flat, Op. 38 (Spring Symphony), Overtures "Hebrides" and "Coriolan," Gounod's Funeral March of a Marionette, and the Polacca from Spohr's "Faust," all of which were exceedingly well played. Mr. Hallé, who departed somewhat from his usual lines, played Rubinstein's Pianoforte Concerto, No. 4, in D minor, and with even greater success Liszt's transcription of Schubert's songs "Auf dem wasser zu singen," "Du bist die Ruh," "The Erl-King," and "Leise flehen meine Lieder." Madame Marie Roze sang "Doux rêve de ma vie" (Poniatowski), "Let the bright seraphim," and the "Habanera" from "Carmen."—On the 26th ult., Mr. Edward Hecht's Cantata "Eric the Dane," a notice of which appears in another column, was given for the first time. The second part of the Concert consisted of Beethoven's Choral Fantasia, the chorus, "Crown ye the altars," from the "Ruins of Athens," and songs given by Miss Davies, Mr. Lloyd, and Mr. Santley.

At the Gentlemen's Concert on the 2nd ult., Mendelssohn's "Reformation" Symphony was revived, after a lapse of some years since its last performance here. The other orchestral numbers were Hofmann's Hungarian Suite in F, Raff's Scherzo for stringed instruments, entitled "The Mill," and Berlioz' fine "Carnaval Romain" Overture. M. Dubrucq played with pure tone, good taste, and perfect mastery of technique S. Verroust's eleventh Fantasia de Concert for oboe. Mdlle. Valleria and Mr. Santley were the vocalists: the former sang Spohr's air "Tu m' abbandoni," "Io dico no" from "Carmen," and, with Mr. Santley, Mozart's duets, "La ci darem" and "To vado, ma ti vorrei dir"; the latter gave in his incomparable style Gounod's "Au bruit des lours marteaux" and F. Clay's "Gipsy John."

Messrs. Risegari, Speelmann, Bernhardt, and Vieuxtemps gave a classical Chamber Concert on the 18th ult., when Schubert's Quintet in C, Mendelssohn's Andante in E and Scherzo in A minor, and Svendsen's Octet in A were admirably played. In the latter work the four artists named above were reinforced by Messrs. Hunneman, Scuderi, Goedhart, and Smith.

Miss Amina Goodwin gave, on the 16th ult., a Chamber Concert, at which she was assisted by Herr Bauerkeller, and M. E. Vieuxtemps. Miss Goodwin, who, though very young, has already taken a high place amongst local pianists, has recently returned from Paris, where she has been studying, after completing a course at the Leipzig Conservatoire. Her touch is crisp and firm, her gradations of tone are legitimately produced, and her technique generally of remarkable excellence. Her only solo was Saint-Saëns's Menuet and Valse, Op. 56, but her artistic style was not less noticeable in the trios by Rubinstein, in B flat, Op. 52, and Mendelssohn, in C minor, Op. 66, and Grieg's Sonata for piano and violin, Op. 8. Herr Bauerkeller played in excellent style Tartini's "Trille du Diable," and M. Vieuxtemps was equally successful in a Romanza by Mendelssohn and a Tarantella by D. Popper for violoncello solo.

Mr. De Jong gave a sensational Concert on December 31, at which five military bands assisted his ordinary orchestra. The vocalists were Madame Rose Hersee and Mr. Abercrombie. Mr. De Jong played Briccialdi's Fantasia on "Lucrezia Borgia" for solo flute.—At the Concert on the 14th ult. Madame Alice Barth, Miss Hope Glenn, Mr. Maas, and Signor Foli contributed several songs with generally good effect, if we except Mr. Maas's unfortunate selection of Rossini's florid "Ecco ridente." Berlioz' March "Troyenne" and Rossini's Overture to "Semira-mide" were the principal orchestral numbers; a descriptive piece entitled "The forge in the forest," by Michaelis, proved popular, but has no pretensions to artistic excellence.

The Manchester Vocal Society's programme on the 11th ult. included Spohr's Hymn to St. Cecilia, "Non s' degnare" from Gluck's "Elena e Paride," and sundry glees and part-songs, which were all rendered in a highly creditable manner. Miss Miller, who is the possessor of a pleasing soprano voice, was the solo vocalist.

HANS VON BÜLOW AND THE MEININGEN HOF-CAPELLE IN BERLIN.

By W. LANGHANS.

NOTHING, according to Goethe, is more difficult to endure than a succession of enjoyable days. Bearing in mind this warning of the poet, it was not without a feeling of anxiety that we read the announcement of six successive evening concerts to be given by the Meiningen orchestra, under its above-named leader, in the hall of the Singakademie. And yet the recollection of the Bülow Concerts with their monster programmes of five sonatas by Beethoven respectively was still fresh in our minds; we were aware that this artist produces other and higher impressions than those of a so-called "enjoyable evening," that he conquers us by his will. And the influence of this will, of this power, was again felt at the very first concert of the present series; it was felt so distinctly and beneficially as to dispel all possible misgivings concerning our own receptive endurance, and cause us to look forward with eager anticipation to the evenings which were to follow.

The means by which Bülow succeeds as orchestral conductor, in irresistibly attracting and fascinating his hearers are, in the main, the same as those to which he owes his success as a virtuoso: the minute regard for detail which is elaborated with the utmost diligence, but without detracting for a moment from the uniform conception of the whole; unerring precision combined with perfect rhythmic freedom; and, finally, a mastery in the art of phrasing which for its taste and charm need not fear comparison with the best efforts of Italian vocalisation. These qualities he has exercised in his well-known splendid manner as a pianist in the service of the highest ideals of the art; but he is too much of a musician to be unconscious of the absolute limits of expression, which, in spite of all improvement in its mechanism, his instrument necessarily presents. He had to look for another and more variable instrument, which, endowed with a universal faculty of expression, would be in complete sympathy with his own reproductive powers, and he found it in an orchestra whose members were able and willing to enter into his artistic intentions and to realise them with a uniformity of execution such as has hitherto only been witnessed in the separate performances of individual artists. This is the great glory of the Meiningen Hof-Capelle, and in the face of it the inquiry would be a gratuitous one as to what rank it may occupy, as compared with the other Court-Orchestras. Suffice it that such perfect orchestral playing has never hitherto been heard, which praise is due not only to the faultless purity and distinctness with which every detail in the score is executed, but also to the fulness and beauty of sound which, considering the by no means unusual numerical strength of the orchestra (ten first violins, five contrabasses, three violoncellos, &c.), are simply surprising. The reason for the latter phenomenon we must seek, in the first place, in the devotion of the artists to their leader, and in the purity of intonation which is shared alike by the wind and string instruments. Only in the second place can the marvellous sound-production of the Meiningen orchestra be to some extent influenced by the new instruments here made use of, viz.—the viola alta, invented by H. Ritter, of Würzburg (three), a five-stringed contrabass, constructed by Carl Otto, of Leipzig, and the chromatic kettle-drums, introduced by a Dresden maker.

Turning now to the particular features of the concerts, we encounter such an abundance of musical works produced (there were three Beethoven evenings, one Mendelssohn, and two Brahms evenings) that I can see no other way but to reproduce the respective programmes, and to add such few remarks here and there as may appear opportune. First evening, Overture, "Coriolan"; Symphony, C major, No. 1; Overture, "Egmont"; Symphony in A, No. 7. Already the first few bars of the "Coriolan" Overture brought a surprise in their conspicuously slow tempo; a most agreeable surprise, however, since for the first time I was able fully to distinguish the ascending figure in quavers of the violins, so full of pathetic meaning. Imperceptibly almost, and as a necessary concomitant of the development of the ideas in the overture, the pace quickened more and more, reaching about midway what is considered the orthodox speed when it again slackened and gradually returned to the original tempo. This reticence in respect to time I looked upon as a good augury for the following numbers, since it is to the undue acceleration now so frequently met with in the performances of our classical masterpieces that so many other shortcomings in their execution are attributable. The reason for this prevailing tendency we must undoubtedly look for in the predominance of the pianoforte, which, with its incapacity to sustain its notes, has infused into the entire tone-perception of modern conductors (whose chief musical education has generally been obtained at the pianoforte) a certain restlessness and haste. Strange enough, then, that the admonition to return from this erroneous path should have come from a musician whom the world justly considers the pianist par excellence. Bülow, indeed, has here again clearly shown that his capacity to express himself musically is not confined to the keys of the pianoforte; that he has completely mastered the fundamental condition of all musical delivery—viz., the art of singing—with or without voice is perfectly immaterial. This orchestral singing became surprisingly conspicuous in the Andante of the C major symphony, and I could mention scores of passages where that joyous agitation manifested itself amongst the audience which in this cooler northern clime takes the place of the loud exclamations of admiration usual among Frenchmen and Italians—even at seemingly unimportant and generally disregarded melodic particles such as this:—

or at the final bars of the phrase:—

The crowning success, however, of the entire symphony was the, as I had hitherto considered it, musically rather insignificant phrase with which the first violins usher in the finale. Here Bülow laid his bâton aside, leaving the performers entirely to their own devices, who on their part made such excellent use of their liberty, imparting to the phrase, combined with the highest precision, so much individual colouring that it assumed a degree of importance to which we have been altogether unaccustomed. I am convinced that a repetition of the experiment in similar passages would prove successful. As such I might instance the humorous conversation at the conclusion of the B flat major symphony—the effect of which would be similarly enhanced by an individual rendering unfettered by the dictates of the conductor's bâton.

In mentioning the B flat major symphony I have already trespassed upon the proceedings of the third evening, and return now to those of the second, equal in interest to any of the series, both as regards the programme—Overture "Zur Weihe des Hauses" (Op. 124), Concerto for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello (Op. 56), Symphony "Eroica"—and its execution. The triple Concerto does not rank among Beethoven's masterpieces, and the rendering of the solo parts by Mr. G. F. Hatton and Herren Fleischhauer (violin) and Hilpert (violoncello), although satisfactory, was not brilliant. Nevertheless, the unexampled finish of the ensemble kindled a warm admiration for this work also, while the effect produced by overture and symphony was simply electrifying.

On the third evening—Symphony, B flat major; Overtures, "Leonore," Nos. 1 and 3; Symphony, C minor—Bülow's subjective reading was again most pronounced, and met with enthusiastic approval. I do not remember ever witnessing a similar enthusiasm at the Singakademie to that aroused by the performance of the third "Leonore" Overture. To mention one or two particulars only of this incomparable rendering. The violin passage immediately preceding the final Presto, which usually, according to the prescript of "so schnell als möglich" with an additional "noch etwas schneller" ("as fast as possible" and "a little faster still"—actually to be found in one of Schumann's compositions), degenerates into a breathless scrambling of the violinists, was commenced in exceedingly moderate tempo, gradually accelerated and enlivened in its dynamic effect by the entry of additional violins so that both in distinctness and animation nothing was left to be desired. No less novel and gratifying was the management of the trumpet fanfare where the inartistic practice of most conductors of placing the player of the instrument outside the concert-room was dispensed with, the player instead being made to deliver his solo the first time sitting, with his instrument turned downwards, and the second time standing up and turning towards the audience, whereby the desired contrast was completely realised. Respecting the two symphonies of this evening I can only regret that space does not permit me to invite the reader to follow me step by step through the scores in order to point out the reverent and intelligent care bestowed upon them by the conductor. One part, however, I must not pass over in silence; I allude to the Trio of the C minor Symphony with its animated quaver-figure for the basses, which, as a rule, is represented as a hopeless chaos. In this instance, thanks to the moderate speed at which it was given, and to a scarcely perceptible rest (similar to the breath-taking of the singer) before the entry of the basses, the passage reached my ear, for the first time since my more than thirty years' acquaintance with it, with absolute clearness.

I cannot blame the public if, exhausted by the exertions of these three concerts, it regarded rest as imperative, and consequently mustered in comparatively small numbers on the Mendelssohn evening. But I heartily condole with them, nevertheless, and especially with those amongst them who, while granting to Mendelssohn a first position as a composer of oratorio, question his title to be ranked as a classical representative of instrumental music; they would have been practically taught here to entertain a different opinion. Indeed, from their point of view, the Mendelssohn evening might easily be considered the most remarkable and at the same time most enjoyable of the entire series, since in the works chosen for performance—Overtures, "Calm Sea and Prosperous Voyage" and "Fingal's Cave," the Violin Concerto, the Pianoforte Capriccio in B minor, and the so-called "Scotch" Symphony in A minor—the revered master was revealed in all his greatness as a symphonic writer, the same minute care having been bestowed upon the elaboration of every detail as in the case of Beethoven. Again, in the orchestral part of the Violin Concerto, Bülow's slackened tempo appeared at first somewhat strange, the result being, however, that for the first time I was able to appreciate completely the instrumentation of this marvellous score.

That which Mendelssohn had failed to attract—viz., an audience filling the very last seat of the Singakademie, as in the preceding concerts—was again realised by Brahms on both the evenings devoted to his compositions. Whatever share in this fact may be assigned to the personal co-operation of the composer—the first evening at the pianoforte, the second as conductor—certain it is that the presence and the highly animated disposition of the audience, composed of the intellectual élite of Berlin, conclusively proved how much solid ground Brahms's compositions have already gained in this capital. The royal box was occupied on both occasions by the members of the Crown

Break forth into joy.

February 1, 1892.

Isaiah lii. 9, 10.

ANTHEM FOR EASTER.

Composed by J. BARNBY.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 &amp; 81, Queen Street (E.C.)

Allegro con spirito.

SOPRANO.

ALTO.

TENOR.

BASS.

ORGAN.

♩ = 104.

Allegro con spirito.Gt. ffPed.

Break forth in - to joy, break

Break forth in - to joy, break

Break forth in - to joy, break

Break forth in - to joy, break

senza Ped.Ped.

mf

of Je - ru - sa - lem: for the Lord [hath com-fort-ed His peo - ple,

of Je - ru - sa - lem:

of Je - ru - sa - lem:

of Je - ru - sa - lem:

Sw. with Reeds.

cres.

for the Lord hath com-fort-ed His peo - ple. Break forth in - to joy, break

Break forth in - to joy, break

Break forth in - to joy, break

Break forth in - to joy, break

cres. ff Gt.

Break forth in - to joy, break

mf

forth in - to joy, He hath re - deem - ed Je - ru - sa - lem, forth in - to joy,

forth in - to joy,

forth in - to joy,

mf Sw.

sing to - ge - ther, ye waste pla - ces
 sing to - ge - ther, ye waste pla - ces
 He hath re - deem - ed Je - ru - sa - lem, sing to - ge - ther, ye waste pla - ces
 sing to - ge - ther, ye waste pla - ces

mf ff dim. ff

of Je - ru - sa - lem : for He hath re - deem - ed Je - ru - sa - lem.
 of . . Je - ru - sa - lem : for He hath re - deem - ed Je - ru - sa - lem.
 of Je - ru - sa - lem : for He hath re - deem - ed Je - ru - sa - lem.
 of . . Je - ru - sa - lem : for He hath re - deem - ed Je - ru - sa - lem. The rit. a tempo. rit. a tempo. rit. a tempo. ff

Lord hath made bare His ho - ly arm in the sight of

Sw.

Break forth in - to joy, break forth in - to joy; sing to -

Break forth in - to joy, break forth in - to joy; sing to -

Break forth in - to joy, break forth in - to joy; sing to - all His peo - ple, . . . . . sing to - ff Gt.

Ped.

ge - ther, ye waste pla - ces of Je - ru - sa - lem,

ge - ther, ye waste pla - ces of Je - ru - sa - lem,

ge - ther, ye waste pla - ces of Je - ru - sa - lem, ge - ther, ye waste pla - ces of Je - ru - sa - lem, The Lord hath made bare His

Sw.

ff

The Lord hath made

The Lord hath made bare His ho - ly arm, ho - ly arm in the sight of the peo - ple,

Gt.

bare His ho - ly arm in the sight of all the
 The Lord hath made bare His arm to all the hath made bare . . His arm in the sight of all the in the sight of all the

rit.      Tempo lmo.
 peo - - ple.      Break forth in - to joy, break
rit.      Tempo lmo.
 peo - - ple.      Break forth in - to joy, break
rit.      Tempo lmo.
 peo - - ple.      Break forth in - to joy, break
rit.      Tempo lmo.
 peo - - ple.      Break forth in - to joy, break

forth in - to joy; sing to - ge - ther, ye waste pla - ces of Je - ru - sa - lem, break forth in - to joy; sing to - ge - ther, ye waste pla - ces of Je - ru - sa - lem, break forth in - to joy; sing to - ge - ther, ye waste pla - ces of Je - ru - sa - lem, break forth in - to joy; sing to - ge - ther, ye waste pla - ces of Je - ru - sa - lem, break

senza Ped.      Ped.

forth in - to joy, break forth in - to joy, the Lord . . hath forth in - to joy, break forth in - to joy, the Lord hath forth in - to joy, break forth in - to joy, the Lord . . hath forth in - to joy, break forth in - to joy, the Lord hath

com - fort - ed and . . re - deem - ed His peo - ple, and hath made bare His

com - fort - ed and re - deem - ed His peo - ple, and hath made bare His

com - fort - ed and . . re - deem - ed His peo - ple, and hath made bare His

com - fort - ed and re - deem - ed His peo - ple, and hath made bare His ho - ly arm in the sight of all peo - ple.

ho - ly arm in the sight of all peo - ple.

ho - ly arm in the sight of all peo - ple.

ho - ly arm in the sight of all peo - ple.

Hymns of praise then let us sing, Al - le - lu - ia, Un-to Christ, our Heav'nly King,

Hymns of praise then let us sing, Al - le - lu - ia, Un-to Christ, our Heav'nly King,

Hymns of praise then let us sing, Al - le - lu - ia, Un-to Christ, our Heav'nly King,

Hymns of praise then let us sing, Al - le - lu - ia, Un-to Christ, our Heav'nly King,

Maestoso. ♩ = 66.

Al - le - lu - ia, Who en-dured the Cross and grave, Al - le - lu - ia,

Al - le - lu - ia, Who en-dured the Cross and grave, Al - le - lu - ia,

Al - le - lu - ia, Who en-dured the Cross and grave, Al - le - lu - ia,

Al - le - lu - ia, Who en-dured the Cross and grave, Al - le - lu - ia,

Sin - ners to re - deem and save. Al - le - lu - ia, A - - men.

Sin - ners to re - deem and save. Al - le - lu - ia, A - - men.

Sin - ners to re - deem and save. Al - le - lu - ia, A - - men.

Sin - ners to re - deem and save. Al - le - lu - ia, A - - men.

rall.

The Congregation might join the Choir in singing this (the 2nd) verse of the well-known Easter Hymn.

ORATORIOS, CANTATAS, MASSES, &c.

ONE SHILLING EACH.

THOMAS ANDERTON.

THE WRECK OF THE HESPERUS.

E. ASPA.

THE GIPSIES.

ASTORGA.

STABAT MATER.

BACH.

GOD GOETH UP WITH SHOUTING.

GOD'S TIME IS THE BEST.

MY SPIRIT WAS IN HEAVINESS.

O LIGHT EVERLASTING.

BIDE WITH US.

A STRONGHOLD SURE.

MAGNIFICAT.

J. BARNBY.

REBEKAH.

BEETHOVEN.

ENGEDI, OR DAVID IN THE WILDERNESS.

MOUNT OF OLIVES.

MASS IN C (LATIN WORDS).

MASS IN C (LATIN AND ENGLISH).

RUINS OF ATHENS.

Sir W. STERNDALÉ BENNETT.

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION ODE, 1862.

J. BRAHMS.

A SONG OF DESTINY.

CARISSIMI.

JEPHTHAH.

CHERUBINI.

REQUIEM MASS IN C MINOR (LATIN AND ENGLISH).

THIRD MASS, IN A (CORONATION).

FOURTH MASS, IN C.

SIR M. COSTA.

THE DREAM.

NIELS W. GADE.

SPRING'S MESSAGE. 8d.

CHRISTMAS EVE.

THE ERL-KING'S DAUGHTER.

HERMANN GOETZ.

BY THE WATERS OF BABYLON.

NŒNIA.

CH. GOUNOD.

MESSE SOLENNELLE (LATIN WORDS).

THE SEVEN WORDS OF OUR SAVIOUR ON THE CROSS (FILÆ JERUSALEM).

DAUGHTERS OF JERUSALEM.

GALLIA.

J. O. GRIMM.

THE SOUL'S ASPIRATION.

HANDEL.

MESSIAH (POCKET EDITION).

ISRAEL IN EGYPT (DITTO).

JUDAS MACCABÆUS (DITTO).

DETTINGEN TE DEUM.

UTRECHT JUBILATE.

O PRAISE THE LORD WITH ONE CONSENT.

ACIS AND GALATEA.

ACIS AND GALATEA. Edited by J. BARNBY.

HAYDN.

THE CREATION (POCKET EDITION).

SPRING. SUMMER. AUTUMN. WINTER.

FIRST MASS, IN B FLAT (LATIN AND ENGLISH).

FIRST MASS, IN B FLAT (LATIN WORDS).

SECOND MASS, IN C (LATIN WORDS).

THIRD MASS (IMPERIAL) (LATIN WORDS).

THIRD MASS (IMPERIAL) (LATIN AND ENGLISH).

TE DEUM (LATIN AND ENGLISH).

DR. HILLER.

A SONG OF VICTORY.

G. A. MACFARREN.

MAY DAY.

MENDELSSOHN.

HYMN OF PRAISE (LOBGESANG).

AS THE HART PANTS.

COME, LET US SING.

WHEN ISRAEL OUT OF EGYPT CAME. 8 Voices.

NOT UNTO US.

LORD, HOW LONG WILT THOU FORGET ME?

HEAR MY PRAYER.

THE FIRST WALPURGIS NIGHT.

MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM.

MAN IS MORTAL (8 VOICES).

FESTGESANG (HYMNS OF PRAISE).

FESTGESANG (MALE VOICES).

CHRISTUS.

TO THE SONS OF ART.

AVE MARIA (SAVIOUR OF SINNERS). 8 VOICES.

THREE MOTETTS. FEMALE VOICES.

MEYERBEER.

91ST PSALM (LATIN WORDS).

91ST PSALM (ENGLISH WORDS).

MOZART.

FIRST MASS (LATIN AND ENGLISH).

SEVENTH MASS (LATIN WORDS).

TWELFTH MASS (LATIN WORDS).

TWELFTH MASS (LATIN AND ENGLISH).

REQUIEM MASS (LATIN WORDS).

REQUIEM MASS (LATIN AND ENGLISH).

PERGOLESI.

STABAT MATER (FEMALE VOICES).

ROMBERG.

THE LAY OF THE BELL (NEW EDITION).

THE TRANSIENT AND THE ETERNAL.

ROSSINI.

STABAT MATER (LATIN AND ENGLISH).

F. SCHUBERT.

SONG OF MIRIAM.

MASS IN G.

R. SCHUMANN.

ADVENT HYMN, "IN LOWLY GUISE."

MANFRED.

NEW YEAR'S SONG.

E. SILAS.

MASS IN C.

ALICE MARY SMITH.

ODE TO THE NORTH-EAST WIND.

SPOHR.

THE LAST JUDGMENT.

GOD, THOU ART GREAT.

THE CHRISTIAN'S PRAYER.

HYMN TO ST. CECILIA.

A. SULLIVAN.

FESTIVAL TE DEUM.

C. M. VON WEBER.

MASS IN G (LATIN AND ENGLISH).

MASS IN E FLAT (LATIN AND ENGLISH).

JUBILEE CANTATA.

S. WESLEY.

DIXIT DOMINUS.

S. S. WESLEY.

O LORD, THOU ART MY GOD.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Prince's family and the Hereditary Prince of Meiningen : at the second concert the Emperor himself was present.

The present would be so far a favourable opportunity for entering somewhat minutely into the merits of Brahms's productions, since in the two concerts of the 8th and 9th ult. (to which on the first-named day a matinée was added, consisting exclusively of pianoforte works by the same composer), a tolerably complete representative picture was offered of his creative activity. This article being, however, devoted chiefly to the Meiningen orchestra, I must be content to record the programmes and their more or less satisfactory execution, viz.—Pianoforte Concertos, Nos. 1 and 2 (the former played by Bülow, the latter by the composer); Symphony, C minor, No. 1; Orchestral Variations on a theme by Haydn, Op. 56B; Serenade for small orchestra, Op. 16; "Tragic" Overture, Op. 81; and "Academical" Overture, Op. 80. In all these compositions a gifted artistic individuality manifests itself, always commanding respect, though in its cool, aristocratic attitude, but rarely, at least in my case, warming the heart. Brahms appears to me more rational in his thoughtful, sombre works, such as the "Tragic" Overture and the C minor Symphony, than, for instance, in the seemingly naïve Serenades. His predilection for, and universally acknowledged mastery in, the variation-form should be an argument in the side of his contrapuntal knowledge, and of the predominance of the reflective faculty in his artistic nature. The last-mentioned qualities are conspicuous also in the second pianoforte concerto, which, as the latest (manuscript) production of the artist, commanded the special attention of all present. Appertaining to the unfortunately now so much cultivated dual-species of symphony and solo-piece, wherein even the most expert virtuoso finds himself mercilessly "pushed against the wall" (to use a Bismarckian expression), this work by no means merits the applause which in its generally enthusiastic disposition the audience accorded to it. Nor can, in my opinion, the want of charm noticeable in the new concerto be ascribed merely to the fact that the solo part was executed by the composer himself, whose hardness of tone—somewhat modified only by the splendid Bechstein instrument—could not be gratifying to ears just now rendered over-critical by the presence of a Bülow.

Looking back once more upon the total artistic results achieved by the Meiningen Capelle Concerts in Berlin, we must confess that not only are we indebted to them for a series of enjoyments of the highest and noblest character, but we may also expect to date from them a salutary revolution in our musical status generally. Both on the part of the public and the critical press the opinion was expressed unanimously that a community of excellent artists such as Berlin, and more especially the Royal orchestra, can boast should no longer be suffered, through unfavourable circumstances, to remain in a state of quasi-unproductiveness; that the obstacles should be removed which the harassing life of a great capital and the regard for the financial welfare of our Opera have placed in the way of our artists—every one of whom is at least the equal of their Meiningen rivals—so that they may be enabled to devote more time to the serious study of the symphonic masterpieces. In this direction, then, a reformatory influence may be anticipated from the Meiningen Capelle similar to that which the famous troupe of dramatic artists emanating from the same place has exercised upon the drama throughout Germany. We have thus double cause to be grateful to the small Thuringian Residence; sufficient reason to look upon it as a fostering asylum of culture which our fatherland, in the present phase of its development, stands peculiarly in need of, lest it should become unmindful of its true calling, viz.—to preserve and increase our ideal possessions.

MR. FRANCIS HOWELL, composer of the Oratorios "Captivity" and "Land of Promise," the Cantata "Song of the Months," and other works, has, we regret to hear, been seriously ill for the last fifteen months, and become totally blind. The leading inhabitants of Westerham, where he was organist for seven years, in sympathy with his afflictions, have organised a testimonial fund, in aid of which Mr. S. C. Grover, of the London and County Bank in that town, will gladly receive contributions.

THE Philharmonic Society announces six Concerts during the season. The programmes present an unusual amount of variety, modern music being judiciously mixed with many of the time-honoured works for which the subscribers annually look. An important feature will be Rubinstein's "Paradise Lost" (the English adaptation by Mr. Henry Hersee), the composer having been specially invited to conduct its performance. Liszt's symphonic poem "Hungaria" will also be produced for the first time in England, and Signor Sgambati, of Rome, will make his first appearance in this country, and play his new Pianoforte Concerto. Arrangements are also in progress for the production of Brahms's new Pianoforte Concerto, and his Choral Ode "Nanie" (Schiller's poem), never before heard in England. Native talent will be recognised by the production of new orchestral works by Mr. C. Villiers Stanford and Mr. F. Corder. We may also mention that Weber's "Preciosa," with the dialogue (in Cantata form) to be read, will be given at the last concert. Under the direction of Mr. W. G. Cousins (who conducts the concerts), a Philharmonic choir of 200 voices is actively engaged in rehearsing the choral works to be given, and, pursuing the course adopted last season, two rehearsals will precede every concert. Madame Christine Nilsson, Madame Rose Hersee, Madame Marie Roze, Miss Marriott, Miss Santley, Miss Orridge, Mr. Maas, Mr. Barton McGuckin, Mr. F. Boyle, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. Frederic King, Mr. F. B. Foote, Signor Foli, and Mr. J. T. Carrodus have already accepted engagements; and negotiations are pending with several eminent artists, including Madame Albani, Madame Patey, Herr Joachim, and Madame Schumann. The first concert takes place on the 9th inst.

MR. THOMAS MOLINEUX, who so munificently gave the Royal Society of Musicians one thousand guineas last year, has recently forwarded to the Honorary Treasurer, Mr. W. H. Cummings, a letter inclosing a New Year's gift of one hundred guineas. We are glad to be able to add that the members of the Society at their Christmas general meeting, unanimously decided to rescind the clause in the by-laws of the Society which made it imperative for all candidates for membership to have resided for a certain period within twenty-five miles of London—an absurd regulation, for as soon as a candidate became elected he was free to live where he pleased; and, as a matter of fact, there have been members and claimants on the Society in America, Australia, France, and other foreign countries. The Society is described in its charter as of Great Britain, and it is now wisely and liberally determined that professors of music in any part of Great Britain shall be eligible for membership. This reform was ardently desired by many members of the Society now deceased, notably Sir Sterndale Bennett and Sir John Goss, and it is to be hoped that all cathedral organists and eminent provincial musicians will at once evince their instinct for self-protection, and their love and charity for their less fortunate brethren and sisters, by enrolling themselves as members of this truly benevolent institution. The books of the Society show that in the year 1881 actual money grants have been made to over eighty persons, in various sums amounting in the aggregate to nearly three thousand pounds.

MR. EDWARD R. TERRY was, on the 11th ult., presented by the choir of St. Peter's Church, Paddington, with a testimonial, on his resigning the post of Organist and Choirmaster, which he had held for eight and a half years. The presentation took the form of a beautifully illuminated address accompanied by an ebony and gold cabinet, containing bound volumes of all Handel's and Mendelssohn's Oratorios, and works by Bach, Beethoven, Sterndale Bennett, Barnby, H. Smart, Guilmant, &c. Mr. Terry acknowledged the present in a few well-chosen words, and the Vicar and Churchwarden expressed their indebtedness to him for his valuable services.

A CONCERT will be given on Thursday evening, the 9th inst., at the Langham Hall, Great Portland Street, in aid of the fund for the restoration of Holy Trinity Church, Marylebone. Miss Mary Davies, Madame Mudie-Bolingbroke, Mr. John Thomas (harp), and Mr. Charles Fletcher (violin) are among the artists announced to appear.

THREE Orchestral Concerts, at popular prices, are announced by Mr. Walter Macfarren at St. James's Hall, which promise to be of the highest interest. There will be a band of seventy performers, led by M. Sainton, comprising most of our eminent orchestral performers. The programmes will include Beethoven's Symphony in C minor (No. 5) and Overture, "Leonora" (No. 3); Weber's Overture to "Oberon"; Spohr's Symphony "Die Weihe der Töne" and Dramatic Concerto for violin; Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto, Overture to "Ruy Blas," and Overture, Scherzo, Notturmo, and Wedding March from the "Midsummer Night's Dream" music; Schumann's Pianoforte Concerto in A minor; Sterndale Bennett's Pianoforte Concerto in C minor; Piatti's Fantasia Romantica for violoncello (first time in London); G. A. Macfarren's Overture to "St. John the Baptist"; and Walter Macfarren's Symphony in B flat, Pastoral Overture, Overture "Hero and Leander," Overture "King Henry V." (first time in London), and Pianoforte Concertstück in E. The solo instrumentalists are Herr Joachim and M. Sainton (violin), Signor Piatti (violoncello), Miss Cantelo, Miss Margaret Gyde, and Mr. Charlton T. Speer (pianoforte); and the solo vocalists Miss Mary Davies, Miss Clara Samuëll, Madame Patey, Mr. Edward Lloyd, and Mr. Santley. The concerts (which will be conducted by Mr. Walter Macfarren) will take place on Saturday evenings, commencing on the 25th inst.

WE take the following from the Times of the 18th ult. :—

A meeting of the citizens of Manchester, convened by the Mayor, in compliance with a requisition signed by Mr. Charles Hallé and other prominent musicians, was held yesterday at the Town Hall for the purpose of considering the desirability of establishing a National Conservatoire of Music in London on the lines advocated by the Duke of Edinburgh, the Duke of Albany, and Prince Christian on the occasion of their recent visit to Manchester. The Mayor presided, and there was a large attendance of musicians. Mr. Charles Hallé, in moving a resolution approving the scheme for the establishment of a National Conservatoire, said England was the only country in Europe which did not possess such an institution, and yet it was the most music-loving, as distinguished from music-making, country in the world. There was a great lack of competent teaching power in the country, and there were no means by which young people who promised to become good musicians could be trained, unless their parents were possessed of ample resources. The lack of teaching power would be met by the proposed institution, which would create a number of thorough musicians. It was intended to give education gratuitously to all pupils at the Conservatoire, but they would be bound to go through the full course of five or six years' study. In this respect the Conservatoire would differ from existing institutions, where pupils paying fees could enter for as many terms as they pleased. There would be more English vocalists and more musicians in the front rank, if they could complete their education at home. A Frenchman, a German, a Swede, a Dutchman could complete his education in his own country, but an Englishman had to be sent abroad to finish his musical education. This would no longer be necessary when the Conservatoire was established, and he believed it would be so beneficial in its effects that it would change the musical face of the country completely. Mr. Freemantle seconded the resolution, which was supported by Mr. John Slagg, M.P., and carried unanimously, and a committee was appointed to take steps for the carrying out of the scheme.

THE prospectus of the "Sunday Evening Association," recently forwarded to us, announces as its object "to bring together all persons who, estimating highly the elevating influence of music, the sister arts, literature and science, desire by means of meetings on Sunday evenings to see them more fully identified with the religious life of the people." As we have always warmly advocated such performances of sacred music, we need scarcely say that the movement has our heartiest sympathy; and, if only as a protest against the hysterical "services" to which we have lately called attention, we hope that all true music-lovers will give this project their earnest support. The first meeting takes place at Neumeyer Hall, Hart Street, Bloomsbury, on Sunday, the 12th inst., when selections from "Elijah," some of Mendelssohn's Psalms, and four-part songs will be performed.

SPECIAL Services were held at Christ Church, Bermondsey, on Christmas Day. The Morning Service consisted of Dykes's Te Deum in F, Garrett's Kyrie in D, and Hopkins's Anthem, "Let us now go even unto Bethlehem." The Evening Service was Bunnett in F, and the Anthem "Now when Jesus was born" (Hatton). At the close of the Evening Service the recitative and solo "But who may abide" and the chorus "Glory to God" ("Messiah"), Gounod's "Nazareth," and Mozart's "Gloria" were well rendered. A selection of carols was also sung. Mr. Stretton Swann presided at the organ.

THE provisional programme of the Birmingham Musical Festival in August next announces for Tuesday morning Mendelssohn's "Elijah"; Tuesday evening, Sir Julius Benedict's Cantata "Graziella," and a miscellaneous Selection, including Cowen's Scandinavian Symphony and Gounod's "Marche Nuptiale." On Wednesday morning will be produced Gounod's Oratorio, written expressly for the Festival, called "The Redemption"; and in the evening Mr. A. R. Gaul's Cantata "The Holy City," Mr. C. V. Stanford's Serenade for orchestra, and Berlioz' Overture to "Benvenuto Cellini" will be given. Thursday morning will be devoted to the "Messiah"; and in the evening Gade's new Cantata "Psyche," Weber's Concerto for clarinet and orchestra, and the Overture to "William Tell" will be performed. Friday morning's programme will comprise Cherubini's Mass in C, Mozart's Symphony in G minor, Brahms's "Triumphlied," and Beethoven's "Mount of Olives"; and the Festival will conclude on Friday evening with a repetition of Gounod's new Oratorio. A programme of such high interest reflects the utmost credit upon all concerned in its management; and there can be little doubt that artists and amateurs of all countries will assemble to do honour to so memorable an occasion.

WE are requested to state that Sir Michael Costa has awarded the prize of ten guineas and the gold medal—offered by the Academical Board of Trinity College, London, for the best sonata for pianoforte and violin—to Mr. J. Conway Brown, a Fellow and Licentiate of the College. He has also accorded special mention to a sonata with the motto "Vulnerati, non victi." The prize of three guineas, offered for the best choral or hymn-tune, has been awarded by the adjudicator, Professor W. H. Monk, to Mr. W. H. Sampson. Sir Herbert Oakeley, the adjudicator in the competition for the best essay on "The Importance of General Culture to the Musician," has awarded the gold medal to Miss Amelia Roberts, and distinguished as proxime accessit Miss Gertrude Mosely, both ladies being students of Trinity College.

A VERY successful Concert was given at the Victoria Hall, Victoria Park, on the 25th ult. The vocalists were Miss Mary Beare, R.A.M. (who won great applause for her rendering of Weber's "Softly sighs" and Bishop's "Mocking-Bird," the flute obligato to the latter being admirably played by Mr. J. Beare), Miss Hughes, Mr. Alfred Kenningham, and Mr. J. T. Hutchinson. Mdlle. C. A. Brousl gave violin solos; and the programme was agreeably diversified by a selection of part-songs, well sung by Messrs. Everett, Ponsford, and Thomas. The accompaniments were played by Mrs. J. Hughes and Miss Beare, and Messrs. W. Thomas and W. T. Beare were the Conductors.

THE New Highbury Athenæum, which has replaced the old iron building of the same name, was opened on the 23rd ult. with a Conversazione. It is a handsome stone structure in the modern Italian style, built from the designs of Mr. Pickering, capable of holding 1,000 people, and provided with a permanent concert platform, accommodating 200 performers. The Highbury Philharmonic Society, whose concerts henceforth will be held in this hall, performed a selection of music, under the direction of Dr. Bridge, the programme including the Overture to "Zampa," a Minuet and Trio by the Conductor, and several part-songs.

THE prospectus of the Brighton Sacred Harmonic Society, under the conductorship of Mr. Robert Taylor, announces three Subscription Concerts during the ensuing season, commencing on the 7th inst., the programmes of which will be selected from Macfarren's "Christmas," J. F. Barnett's "Ancient Mariner," Mendelssohn's 42nd Psalm, Handel's "Joshua," and Gounod's "Messe Solennelle," several madrigals and part-songs being also included. The organist is Mr. F. Butler, jun.

THE Church of St. Alphege, Southwark, situate in Lancaster Street, Borough Road, will be opened on Thursday, the 2nd inst., on which occasion Evensong will be sung with full orchestral accompaniment by the Orchestral Guild of St. Stephen, South Kensington, commencing at 8 o'clock.

MR. SIMS REEVES'S first Concert of operatic, national, and miscellaneous music took place at St. James's Hall on the 24th ult. A notice was circulated in the hall that Mr. Reeves would be unable to sing all the music set down for him in consequence of the weather having affected his throat. He was consequently compelled to omit the scena "Thro' the forests" ("Der Freischütz"), but he gave "My pretty Jane" and "The Bay of Biscay," with the usual result of arousing the audience to enthusiasm. Madame Marie Roze, Miss Spenser Jones, Mr. Herbert Reeves, Mr. F. Barrington Foote, and Mr. Henry Pyatt pleased greatly in their various solos, Miss Jones winning an encore for her singing of "On the banks of Allan Water." The Anemoic Union played selections from "Don Giovanni," "Il Conte Ory," &c., and Mr. Lazarus contributed a clarinet solo. Mr. Sidney Naylor officiated as conductor.

THE Erith Choral Society gave the first Concert of the tenth season at the Public Hall on the 17th ult., conducted by Mr. Richard Lemaire. Mendelssohn's "Elijah" was performed with orchestral accompaniment, the band being composed of members of the Royal Artillery, under the leadership of Mr. Mansfield. The vocalists were Madame Worrell, Mr. Redfern Hollins, and Mr. Frederic King, the alto solos being sung by a member of the choir. The choruses were given with much precision and effect. Mr. W. S. Hoyte presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. G. E. Blunden at the harmonium.

THE 119th monthly Concert of the Grosvenor Choral Society was given at the Grosvenor Hall on the 20th ult., under the direction of Mr. G. R. Egerton. The principal feature of the programme was the comic Cantata, "Jack and the Beanstalk," by Edmund Rogers. The solos were rendered by Mrs. Luff, Miss Lizzie Turner, Mr. S. G. Millen, and Mr. R. Prestidge Tabb. A miscellaneous selection was also given, in which Mrs. Alfred Morris, Miss Annie Daymond, R.A.M., and the before-mentioned vocalists took part. Miss Florence Hartley was an able accompanist.

WE are informed that, besides the series of Symphony Concerts announced by Messrs Schulz-Curtius for May and June next, Mr. Charles Hallé has consented to undertake the artistic direction and conductorship of the series of Symphony Concerts to be given at St. James's Hall on Saturday nights during the winter 1882-3, beginning in October, and ending in June. On some occasions, when Mr. Hallé will be compelled to be absent owing to his engagements in the country, other conductors of eminence will be invited to take his place as guests.

A SACRED Concert took place at Tottenham Court Road Chapel on the 23rd ult., under the direction of Mr. Arthur Dorey. The vocalists were Miss Annie Matthews, Miss Jeanie Rosse, Messrs. W. Rendell and H. G. Froome, all of whose efforts were much appreciated by the audience. Two violin solos by Miss Titterton were very successful, and anthems by Goss, Gounod, &c., agreeably varied the programme. Mr. Dorey played two organ solos with excellent effect.

THE following is a list of the candidates who have passed the recent Examinations at the University of London: Intermediate D. Mus. Examination (First Division): William Henry Hunt, private study. Intermediate Examination in Music (First Division): Ebenezer Goold, Trinity College, Dublin, and New College; (Second Division): Walter Hurst, Owens College.

A CONCERT was given at the Lecture Hall, Bloomsbury Chapel, on Tuesday, the 24th ult., by the choir, under the direction of Mr. J. G. Freeman. The programme, which consisted of ballads and glees, was executed very creditably. Miss Turner and Mr. Arthur Weston were the soloists.

THE Church Times says:—

The small organ on wheels, just erected in St. Paul's Cathedral by Willis, was used for the first time on Christmas Day to accompany the celebrant's chanting of the Comfortable Words, Preface, &c., at the High Celebration. The effect was excellent, far better than when the great organ was used, the distance of the latter from the high altar, and the difficulty felt by both celebrant and organist in hearing each other, rendering it almost impossible for them to keep together.

THE Royal Albert Hall Choral Society gave the usual performance of "The Messiah," on the evening of Dec. 26, the soloists being Messdames Marie Roze and Isabel Fassett, Messrs. Lloyd and Santley. The gentlemen were both in excellent voice, and sang the tenor and bass solos in their usual perfect style. Madame Fassett made an excellent impression by her beautiful voice and expressive rendering of the contralto airs, and Madame Roze was much appreciated in "Rejoice greatly." The choir was effective, though hardly so numerous as usual. On the 18th ult. Hiller's "Song of Victory" and Sullivan's "Martyr of Antioch" were performed, with Miss Anna Williams, Madame Trebelli, and Messrs. Frank Boyle, F. King, and Brereton as principals. Mr. Barnby conducted on both occasions.

THE first number of a monthly journal devoted to music, called the "St. Cecilia Magazine," published in Edinburgh with the commencement of the new year, may be accepted as a proof of the growing love for, and appreciation of, the art in Scotland. It is evidently edited by one who is not only an earnest partisan, but a valuable worker in the good cause; and as he has enlisted the services of thoroughly competent contributors, there can be little doubt of the permanent success of the new venture, which we need scarcely say has our warmest sympathy.

A CONCERT was given at Regent's Park Chapel on Thursday, December 22, under the management of Mr. Hulbert L. Fulkerson, assisted by Miss Henrietta Beebe, Miss Kate Bentley, Miss Augusta Arnold, Mr. Alfred Moore, and Mr. R. H. Cummings, vocalists. Herr Otto Booth contributed two violin solos, which were much appreciated. The accompaniments were artistically played by Mr. Ernest Ford on the pianoforte, and Mr. Ernest O. Kiver officiated at the organ.

AT the Priory Church of St. Bartholomew the Great, West Smithfield, a selection of Christmas Carols was sung after Evensong on New Year's Day, among which were Novello's arrangement of "Adeste Fideles," Gounod's "Nazareth," "Bethlehem," &c. A choir, increased for the occasion, rendered both the Service and the Carols in a manner reflecting much credit upon Mr. F. Earnshaw, the Organist and Choirmaster.

THE Organ, rebuilt by Bryceson and Sons, at St. Luke's Church, Woodside, near Croydon, was reopened by Mr. Charles J. Frost, Mus. Bac., Cantab., on the 18th ult., when an excellent programme was provided. The choir of the church sang two anthems, and Bunnett's Service in F, accompanied by Mr. George, Organist of the church. An appropriate sermon was preached by the Rev. H. R. Blackett, M.A., Vicar of St. Andrew's, Croydon.

THE members of the St. George's Glee Union held their usual monthly Concert at the Pimlico Rooms on the 5th ult. The programme, which consisted of a miscellaneous selection, was well performed. The soloists were Madame Osborne Williams, Miss Edith Mahon, Mr. H. Schartau, Mr. H. Parkin, Mr. T. Burridge, and Mr. P. Hannant. Mr. F. R. Kinkeed accompanied, and Mr. Joseph Monday conducted.

THE Bolingbroke Choral Society gave its first Concert on the 23rd ult., at Bolingbroke Hall, when the greater part of "The Messiah" was rendered by a chorus of sixty voices, assisted by Miss Bessie Webber, Miss Edith Ball, Mr. F. Brough, and Mr. G. Whillier. Miss Halcrow presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. J. Liddell at the harmonium. Mr. John Ulrich was Conductor.

A SERVICE of Praise was held on December 22 at St. Peter's Church, Eaton Square, at which portions of "The Messiah" were sung. The choir was assisted by about thirty gentlemen, and Mr. W. de M. Sergison ably presided at the organ. The solos were sung entirely by members of the choir.

IN consequence of the resignation of Dr. Arnes, Mr. T. A. Alderson, Organist of St. Andrew's, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, has been elected Conductor of the Durham Musical Society.

THE Queen has been pleased to accept the dedication to her by M. Gounod of his Oratorio "The Redemption," composed for the next Birmingham Musical Festival.

THE Choir of the Kyrle Society, under the direction of Mr. Malcolm Lawson, gave a performance of "Elijah" on Thursday, the 12th ult., in the Church of St. Clement's, Notting Hill. The soloists were Miss Edith Philips, Miss E. Lawson, Miss Clara Myers, Mr. George Corby, and Mr. Albert Orme. Mr. E. H. Turpin presided at the organ, and Mr. W. Tate at the harmonium.

MR. WALTER SKEEN gave a Concert on the 17th ult. in the New Public Hall, Balham. The vocalists were Miss M. Roby, Miss Marian Burton, Mr. G. Bassett, and Mr. Tabb, all of whom were most favourably received by the audience. The "Toy" Symphony was a feature in the programme. Mr. Percy Hawkins was an efficient accompanist.

MR. WALTER WESCHE gave an Organ Recital at Lancaster Hall on the 16th ult. The programme included selections from the works of Bach, Gounod, Berlioz, &c. Mr. Gabriel Thorp and Mr. D. Trevor Roper were the vocalists, and Mr. Russell Lochner presided at the pianoforte.

THE prospectus of the third season of the Brondesbury Philharmonic Society, under the conductorship of Mr. Frederick Walker, announces that an Amateur Orchestral Association, conducted by Herr Alfred Laubach, has been formed in connection with the Society, meetings for practice being held every Thursday evening.

WE regret to announce the decease of Madame Alexander Newton, a well-known vocalist some thirty years since, and one of the artists engaged to accompany Jenny Lind (Madame Goldschmidt) on her first concert-tour in this country. Her death occurred on the 22nd of December last, in her sixty-third year.

AN Organ Recital of music appropriate to Christmas was given by Mr. Charles J. Frost, Mus. Bac., Cantab., at the Wesleyan Church, College Park, Lewisham, on the 4th ult. The programme was carefully selected, and included several vocal pieces, well sung by Miss Eva Thompson.

THE programme of the Sacred Harmonic Society's Concert at St. James's Hall on Friday evening next, the 3rd inst., comprises Handel's "Zadock the Priest," Gounod's "Messe Solennelle," and Beethoven's "Mount of Olives."

THE Annual Festival of the Lay Helpers' Association will take place in St. Paul's Cathedral on Monday evening, the 20th inst. The Magnificat and Nunc dimittis will be Dr. Stainer's "Irregular Chant" setting (No. 1), and Schubert's "Song of Miriam" is to form the Anthem.

THE Madrigal Society has offered two prizes, of ten and five pounds respectively, for the best and second best Madrigals, to be written in the style of the seventeenth century. The Madrigals must be sent in by April 15, and the award of the judges will be made known in June.

THE Special Lenten Services, which have for several years past been held at St. Anne's, Soho, will be continued this year every Friday evening during Lent, at 8 o'clock, and on Good Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

MENDELSSOHN'S "Hymn of Praise" and Rossini's "Stabat Mater" will be performed at the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society's next Concert on Wednesday evening, the 8th inst.

HOFMANN'S Cantata "Cinderella" will be performed, for the first time in London, by the Tufnell Park Choral Society, under the direction of Mr. W. H. Thomas, on the 2nd inst.

THE organ at the Bow and Bromley Institute is, we are informed, under reconstruction, and will not be completed until about the 7th inst. Meanwhile pianoforte and string Recitals have been successfully given.

We understand that M. Gounod has received the command of Her Majesty to compose a March in honour of the approaching marriage of H.R.H. the Duke of Albany.

THE subscription for the "Nibelungen" performances at Her Majesty's Theatre next May already amounts to more than £3,500, without reckoning any "property seats."

ALL matter and advertisements for the March number should reach us not later than the 21st inst., as the short month obliges us to go to press earlier than usual.

REVIEWS.

Handlexikon der Tonkunst. Herausgegeben von Dr. August Reissmann. [Berlin: Robert Oppenheim, 1882.]

THIS is an abridged edition of Dr. Reissmann's elaborate and necessarily expensive work entitled "Musikalisches Conversations-Lexikon"—much esteemed by all musicians for the variety and solidity of its contents. The professed intention, therefore, of the editor to present "in the most concise form" (we are quoting from the preface) "all the results of a ten-years' task on the part of the most prominent musical writers of the present day, as represented in the larger work," ought certainly to command the earnest support of both amateur and professional musicians. Such a work would undoubtedly meet the requirements of at least the vast majority of the first-named constituents of the musical community, inasmuch as it would be (again quoting the words of the preface) "a real handbook, a truly reliable guide in the far-extending field of the musical art."

We have spoken thus far in conditional terms, and should be glad to be able to follow up our propositions by positive praise of the manner in which Dr. Reissmann has acquitted himself of his self-imposed and by no means easy task. Unfortunately, we are unable to do this. Abridgments—and especially such as involve the compressing of the matter contained in eleven volumes into a single one—require the exercise of an exceptional amount of judgment and patient care on the part of an author; and if Dr. Reissmann has given abundant proof of the possession of both these qualities in his former works, he has but imperfectly exercised them in the present instance. His "Handlexikon," in fact, bears every trace of having been hastily compiled, without any fixed plan as to the proportionate treatment of the various subjects, and is therefore teeming with anomalies, omissions, and, what is worse, inaccuracies. Or how shall we otherwise explain the fact—referring to the first-named category—that while to Mendelssohn ten columns are devoted, Beethoven only occupies three, Wagner four, and Brahms is just alluded to in the space of less than half a column? Nor are these incongruities atoned for by a reference to the existing standard biographies of individual composers; the handbook alone must remain, as far as its readers are concerned, the "reliable guide in the far-extending field of musical art." In the chapter of omissions so many names might be quoted of composers of merit, both past and present, that we must confine ourselves to the mention of a few which we select at random. Thus among English musicians we look in vain for Sir Henry Bishop, Barnett, Cowen, Villiers Stanford, and many others equally deserving of recognition. Among foreign composers we miss the names of E. Reyer, B. Godard, A. Dvorák, Sgambati, &c. And this in a work which has professedly "curtailed the notices concerning the older masters in order to gain more space for those of the present day." As regards the inaccuracies to which we have alluded, they are such either by implication—as in the case of Charles Lamoureux, of whom it is said (in 1882) "he is now the principal conductor at the Grand-Opéra," when as a matter of fact he ceased to hold that position after the resignation of the former director, M. Halanzier—or by direct commission. As an instance of the latter we may cite the word "Dactylus," which is defined as "a metrical foot, consisting of a short syllable followed by two long ones," the reverse, of course, being the truth. Such mistakes may be unfortunate, but they certainly bear out our assertion that the work under notice has been hastily got up, and imperfectly revised. For the information of the German readers of the volume we may add that the English denomination for an eighth-note is "quaver," and that the words "fiddle-faddle," however expressive in English, do not by any means constitute "another term for music" in this country, as the "Handlexikon" will have it.

If we say, in conclusion, that there is much that is excellent and reliable to be found in Dr. Reissmann's handbook, especially in those articles dealing with the technical and historical development of our art, or with abstract conceptions, such as "Romantik," &c., we are conscious of bestowing a doubtful praise upon a work wherein inaccuracies, even in minor points and details, should be rare exceptions. There can be no doubt, however, that the shortcomings we have pointed out, and which might easily have been multiplied, could be speedily reduced to a minimum by a careful revision, and that by such means the "Handlexikon," which is printed in small but conspicuously clear type, would render absolute its intended usefulness, which at present, for want of such proper revision, is at any rate but a relative one.

The Great Musicians. Edited by Francis Hueffer.

Purcell. By William H. Cummings.

[Sampson Low, Marston, Searle and Rivington.]

As Mr. Cummings truly says in his preface, the person who undertakes to write a life of Purcell is placed at a disadvantage, for the many who might have put upon record accurate details of the composer's career—more especially Sir John Hawkins and Burney—have most unaccountably, either through indifference or culpable neglect, allowed the facts which were in their lifetime accessible to pass into oblivion. To gather up the loose fragments on this interesting subject, however, and to correct numerous misstatements relating to the life of England's representative composer, no man is more competent than the author of the present book, which assuredly will form one of the most valuable of the series of biographies of the great creative musical artists of the world. The father of Henry Purcell was a gentleman of the Chapel Royal, and in that capacity sang at the coronation of Charles II. He was afterwards appointed a "singing man" of Westminster Abbey, master of the chorister-boys of that church, and music-copyist of the Abbey, "at that time," as Mr. Cummings reminds us, "a very honourable and important position, in consequence of the wholesale destruction of service-books which had taken place during the Commonwealth." The young composer (who was born in 1658), therefore, not only inherited the musical faculty from his father, but probably was indebted to him for much of his early instruction in the art. Amongst the many errors corrected by Mr. Cummings in the course of the volume is that which connects the name of Matthew Locke with the music to "Macbeth." No doubt—as with "Weber's Last Waltz," which we now know was composed by Reissiger—the truth might have been known long ago; but, as nobody thought the subject worth investigation, the item "Locke's Music to Macbeth" was placed for years, and indeed is even now placed, in our programmes as a mere matter of course. Apart from the internal evidence of the music itself, we have now the authority of Mr. Cummings for assigning the composition to Purcell, for he tells us that a copy of the score in the composer's youthful hand is in his own library, "that many old MS. copies of the music have his name attached as composer; and that he was entitled to the credit of it was believed by Dr. William Hayes, Dr. Philip Hayes, Dr. Arnold, and many other eminent musicians." Another important misstatement, made by Hawkins and Burney, is that Purcell was elected organist of Westminster Abbey at the age of eighteen. It is now proved that Dr. Blow resigned this appointment in favour of the young composer in 1680, and thus it was not until he was twenty-two that Purcell obtained this distinguished position. Considering how highly the composer's numerous works were esteemed during his lifetime, their comparative neglect in after years can only be accounted for by the fact of English music being eclipsed by the fashionable mania for works of the Italian school, the "incredible graces" of which, unfortunately, were occasionally copied by Purcell in deference to the growing taste of the day. We are now, however, rapidly recovering from this Italian fever; and, as music of all other countries is freely admitted and admired, it is more than probable that the produce of our own country will again find favour and be restored to the high place it formerly occupied. The author of this book modestly says: "My hope is that this little work may be the forerunner of other Purcell studies, in which it will be possible to give further details respecting Purcell's ancestry, descendants and family, and also to say something more of his noteworthy contemporaries and pupils." So indefatigable, however, have been his researches that we doubt whether much can be added to the facts here put forward; and the thanks of all Purcell lovers are due to Mr. Cummings for the zeal he has displayed in a cause which we know he has so much at heart.

Miniatures pour le Piano. Books I., II., III.

Gavotte pour Piano.

Composées par Oliver King.

[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE young composer of these works may be congratulated upon a distinct advance, because they show that he is learning and profiting by the lesson which experience teaches. Though marked by great talent, some of his earlier productions displayed the effusiveness, contempt of difficulties, and vagueness of expression natural to youth when dominated by a delightful feeling of power. In the pieces before us we see greater conciseness, far more self-restraint, and fuller cognisance of conditions against which it is vain for anything short of the greatest genius to rebel. Mr. King will doubtless learn his lesson still more as time goes on, and become fully alive to the often ignored yet always important truth that a creative artist shows his power almost as much in what he declines to do as in what he does. The first of the three books of "Miniatures" contains a Seguidilla, Romance, Canon, and Mazurka, in all of which both amateur and connoisseur will find plenty to admire. The Seguidilla is, perhaps, destined to greatest popularity, because at once simple in structure and pleasing in effect. With lovers of contrapuntal music the Canon will, of course, have interest, and those who like a piece ingeniously elaborated and somewhat novel in character cannot do better than turn their attention to the Mazurka. In the second book we have a Reverie, Aubade, Idyl, and Menuet, of which the Aubade is likely to be most often heard in drawing-rooms. It is a pretty trifle, full of character. In the Reverie Mr. King indulges his polyphonic taste a little more, perhaps, than is desirable, since the ear soon wearies of involved themes from a single instrument incapable of distinguishing them by varieties of timbre. The Idyl is fanciful and pleasing, and the Menuet, like the Mazurka, illustrates the composer's tendency to develop the old dance forms till their character runs some risk of non-identification. The third book excites a special interest because containing pieces avowedly in imitation of the composers Grieg, Henselt, Heller, and Liszt. This kind of work, as far as its outward form goes, is neither the highest nor the most difficult, but Mr. King shows that he has caught something of the spirit of his subject. The resemblance in this subtle respect, as well as in form, is often striking and ingenious. The Gavotte is a very elaborate thing of its kind, only possible to players of some capacity, who will find interest in mastering its pages. Looking at the works as a whole, it is impossible to deny that Mr. King promises to become one of our best composers for the "household instrument."

Twenty Songs for a Mezzo-Soprano Voice. With Piano-forte Accompaniment. Composed by Franz Schubert. The English version by Natalia Macfarren.

[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

ALTHOUGH Schubert has recently acquired a world-wide celebrity for works of the highest importance, his songs still rank amongst the choicest specimens of the art; and now that the taste for something beyond "pretty" music is rapidly spreading, the issue of the twenty vocal pieces before us is indeed well-timed. Schubert does not write for the voice alone, but considers his singer as one only of the artists employed, the instrumental part being so intricately woven into the composition as to render a sympathetic pianist as necessary as a sympathetic vocalist for the due rendering of his songs. In illustration of this, we may select from this volume "Know'st thou the land?" "The Summer Waves," "The Maiden's Lament," and, more especially, the charming Barcarole "On the Water," in which, apart from the excessive beauty of both melody and accompaniment, the alternation between the tonic minor and major forms so distinguishing a feature. We have alluded to these four songs only to call the attention of pianists to the importance of their share in the performance of the pieces, but need scarcely say that the whole contents of the volume will be treasured by all mezzo-soprano singers who can appreciate the highest class of vocal music. In conclusion, we must commend the English version of the verses, which, being undertaken by one who is not only an excellent translator but an excellent vocalist, cannot fail to prove equally acceptable to admirers of the poetry and of the music.

Sonata (in D minor) for the Organ. Composed by James C. Culwick. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

NOTWITHSTANDING the very large additions made of late by English composers to our stock of original organ music, we must confess that we are sadly in want of compositions of real merit and beauty. We have quantities of what is commonly called clever music, but, with one or two splendid exceptions, how few modern composers have given us works possessing the true ring of genius. The Sonata now under notice is fairly interesting, well worked out, and certainly ranks above mediocrity. In the Moderato Assai, which precedes the Allegro, the chief subject and general working of the Sonata is shadowed forth. The Allegro itself—in D minor—is vigorous, brilliant, and very well designed for a large instrument. Of the Andante and Finale we may remark that the subjects of which they are composed, though tolerably interesting, do not contain sufficient beauty or originality to warrant their being employed in an important work of this kind; neither do they increase sufficiently in interest as they are developed. Notwithstanding this, however, the Sonata, owing to its presenting no great difficulties to the performer, will be found an excellent work for teaching purposes.

Daily Studies and complete Pedal Scales for the Organ. By George Ernest Lake. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THIS little work of five pages is such a distinct gain to the organ student that we commend it without hesitation. To convey to our readers an idea of its real object we cannot do better than quote a few words from the prefatory remarks. After eulogising Dr. Stainer's "Primer" and Mr. Best's "Art of Organ-Playing," the author goes on to say: "It would, however, seem to me that there is still a want of studies, scales, &c., which would suit equally the novice and the more advanced student for daily practice, and which could not be expected in either of the works I have named above. I have hitherto been compelled to select such studies from several "Organ Schools," in imperfect and not always practical forms. In order, therefore, to obviate the compulsory use of so many different books, I venture to think that Dr. Stainer's and Mr. Best's books, combined with the following Scales and Exercises, will prove to the earnest student all that is necessary beyond what his own perseverance and industry can supply." We can only add that, in our opinion, these Exercises cannot fail to be beneficial to those who practise them carefully.

The Musical Directory, Annual, and Almanack, 1882.
[Rudall, Carte and Co.]

THE thirtieth issue of this Directory retains all the features which have secured for the publication so extensive a sale amongst professors and amateurs of music. The alphabetical list of country professors, in addition to that arranged under the heads of the towns in which they reside, is one amongst the many improvements recently introduced; and we can also speak in high terms of the care now exercised in collecting the large amount of information contained in the work.

FOREIGN NOTES.

DR. HANS VON BÜLOW gave a series of six most interesting concerts with his Meiningen orchestra, from the 4th to the 9th ult., at Berlin, of which we render a detailed account in another part of our present issue. On the 16th ult. another cyclus of three evenings devoted to works by Beethoven was inaugurated by the indefatigable pianist-conductor at the Berlin Skating-Rink, in the presence of some two thousand listeners, every available seat having been filled. The demonstrations of enthusiasm were similar to those on the preceding occasions, although the acoustic conditions of the locality are less favourable than those of the hall of the Singakademie, where the former concerts were held. We refer our readers to the programmes of the three additional concerts given at the foot of these notes.

At the Berlin Opera an obsolete work by Auber, entitled "Carlo Broschi," was revived last month with some success.

Madame Albani's success during her recent appearance in a series of characters at the Royal Opera of Berlin has been most complete; her impersonation of Elsa, in "Lohengrin" (which she sang in German), having more especially aroused general admiration. The diva received the honour of a private interview with the imperial family, and on the day following was presented with a magnificent vase, the gift of the Empress, in recognition of her talent.

Anton Rubinstein's fifth Symphony was performed for the first time at the Leipzig Gewandhaus on the 12th ult., under the personal direction of the composer, whose work was most enthusiastically received. Rubinstein thereupon played three pianoforte pieces by way of acknowledging his thanks to the audience. The eminent pianist was announced to give several concerts at Paris near the end of last month.

The first performance of a grand oratorio by Joachim Raff, entitled "Weltende, Gericht, Neue Welt" (The End of the World, The Judgment, The New World), took place, after most careful preparation, at Weimar, on the 17th ult. The text of the new work is founded upon the Book of Revelation.

Wagner's "Lohengrin" was produced for the first time, as the opening piece of the season, at the Teatro alla Fenice, of Venice, with much success.

The projected performances of Wagner's "Lohengrin" at Paris, under the auspices of Herr Angelo Neumann, are meeting with considerable opposition, and, if not altogether abandoned, will at least be delayed beyond the period originally fixed upon. The patriotic French element enters, of course, very largely into the question, there being, moreover, as is well-known, a strong and not altogether unfounded feeling still at work against the composer personally, who has said some hard things of our French neighbours in his day. Still, it is expected that purely artistic motives will prevail, and that the cosmopolitan Parisians will not be deprived, after all, of the enjoyment of the chef-d'œuvre of the reformer.

A subvention of 115,000 francs has been granted by the Town Council of Brussels to the Théâtre de la Monnaie of that town.

The centenary of the birth of Auber, which occurred on the 29th ult., was to be celebrated in a conspicuous manner at several leading institutions of the French capital. At the Grand-Opéra a special performance of some of the popular composer's works, and of a festival cantata composed by M. Léo Délibes, was announced. At the Opéra-Comique a festival performance was to take place on the following day, as also at the Conservatoire, of which institution Auber was director, he having succeeded Cherubini, in 1842, in that position.

It is rumoured that M. Gounod's next opera will be founded on the legend of "Loreley," and will bear the title of "Loreley, ou la Fée du Rhin." Ballet-action is to form a conspicuous element in the projected new work.

A correspondent writes to us from Milan: "A grand benefit Concert, in aid of the sufferers by the burning of the Ring Theatre of Vienna, was given here on the 16th ult., at the Royal Conservatorio, by the German Choral Quartet Society in union with the Italian Società di Canto Corale, and the Scuole Popolari di Canto Corale. The chorus was excellent, especially in the selections from Gounod's Second Mass, which were given with wonderful precision, vigour, and finesse of execution. After this performance Milan may claim a foremost place in choral singing. The sum of 2,000 francs was realised for the charity." We give the programme of this concert in another column.

Under the title of Archivio Musicale, a fortnightly musical periodical devoted to the interests of the art in all its branches, has just been established at Naples. The journal is most ably supported by both Italian and foreign writers, and is likely to take a leading part in the musical press of Italy. We wish our enterprising young contemporary every success.

We have also received the first number of La America Musicale, published in the Spanish language at New York, edited by Dr. Godoy, and that, for the second year of its existence, of Le Passe Temps Musical, edited by MM. Georges Cordonnier and Paul Bilhaud, and issued at Paris.

The winter season of the Teatro Regio of Turin was inaugurated with the first performance of Ponchielli's opera "Gioconda," which was most favourably received.

The Museum of the Royal Conservatoire at Brussels is to be enlarged by an addition of Chinese musical instruments. The collection is remarkable for the great variety of instruments represented, and will be the only complete one of specimens of the Chinese instrumental system in Europe.

M. Massenet has introduced several Jewish chants into his opera "Hérodiade," shortly to be transferred from Brussels to Paris, among others being "Hosanna" and "Shemang Yisrael." The Belgian clerical press denounces the work as a profanation of scriptural subjects, while the Brussels performances continue to attract crowded audiences.

Franz Schubert's little-known operetta "Die Zwillingsbrüder" ("The Twin-brothers") is shortly to be performed at the Hoftheater of Vienna.

At the Imperial Opera of Vienna four operatic works will be added to the répertoire during the present season, viz.: Ambroise Thomas's "Françoise de Rimini," Wagner's "Tristan und Isolde," Boito's "Mefistofele," and Verdi's "Don Carlos."

Franz Rummel, the eminent pianoforte virtuoso, is making a highly successful concert-tour in Germany. He has recently played at one of the Gewandhaus Concerts of Leipzig, where he met with the most flattering reception.

An International Exhibition of musical instruments is to be held next year at Berlin, for which the preliminary arrangements are already in course of progress.

At a sale of autographs recently held at Berlin, the manuscript of Mozart's Pianoforte Trio in G was sold for the sum of 1,330 marks, and a musical autograph of Meyerbeer realised 260 marks, while the original sketches for Beethoven's Symphony in F only fetched 24 marks.

M. Camille Saint-Saëns will shortly produce his cantata, "Lyre and Harp," and his "Suite Algérienne" at the Singakademie of Berlin.

Robert Schumann's opera "Genoveva" is in course of preparation at the Dresden Hoftheater, and will be produced in the course of the present month.

Herr Joachim, the eminent violinist, is just now engaged upon a concert-tour in Russia.

Carl Brandt, the technical director of the Darmstadt Hoftheater, died in the last week of the past year, at Frankfurt, at the age of fifty-nine. Brandt's reputation as the inventor of most of the modern improvements in stage machinery and scenic contrivances was a European one, his ingenuity being especially displayed in the mounting of Wagner's latest music-dramas, including that of the Nibelungen tetralogy at the Bayreuth Theatre. Previous to his death Brandt had completed the mechanical arrangements for the forthcoming performances of "Parsifal," which are said to be marvels of ingenuity, and furnish another proof of his inexhaustible technical resources.

At Leipzig died, at the age of forty-six, the famous zither virtuoso, R. A. Kobatek.

Carl Schneider, once famous as a tenor singer, and for many years afterwards a valued instructor of his art, died at Cologne, on the 3rd ult., at the age of fifty-nine. It was of him Jenny Lind once wrote, "I number him amongst my purest stage-recollections."

Jean Chéret, the excellent scene-painter, died at Paris on the 6th ult.

The death is also announced, at Paris, of Ferdinand Hérold, late Senator and Prefect of the Seine Department, a son of the composer of "Zampa." Although no musician himself, M. Hérold took a lively interest in all matters connected with the art; and to him is owing, among other institutions, that of the Grand Prix de Musique of Paris.

We subjoin, as usual, the programmes of concerts* recently given at some of the leading institutions abroad:—

Paris.—Conservatoire (January 8): Symphony in B flat (Beethoven); Les Béatitudes (C. Franck); Overture, "Fingal's Cave" (Mendelssohn); Choruses from "Cosi fan Tutte" (Mozart); Symphony in G, No. 29 (Haydn). Concert Populaire (January 8): Symphony, C major (Beethoven); "Le Soir" (Gounod); Concerto Symphonique for pianoforte (Litolff); Fragment from "Hérodiade" (Massenet); Larghetto (Mozart); Fragments from "Tannhäuser" (Wagner). Châtelet Concert (January 8): Symphony, C major (Beethoven); Jeux d'Enfants (Bizet); Second Rhapsody (Liszt); Overture, "Manfred" (Schumann); Le Rouet d'Omphale" (Saint-Saëns); "Ride of the Valkyries" (Wagner). Châtelet Concert (January 15): "Reformation" Symphony (Mendelssohn); Overture, "Artevelde" (Guiraud); Serenade (Beethoven); Violoncello pieces (Godard); Last Rhapsody (Liszt). Concert Populaire (January 15): Symphony in A (Beethoven); Symphonie-Ballet (Godard); Violin pieces (R. Wagner); Serenade (Haydn); Overture, "Guillaume Tell" (Rossini). Conservatoire (January 22): Symphony in C (Schumann); La Prière du Matin et du Soir (E. del Cavaliere); Overture, "Coriolan" (Beethoven); Fragments from "La Damnation de Faust" (Berlioz); Marche Hongroise (Berlioz). Concert Populaire (January 22): Historical Concert illustrating the progress of the Symphony; Fragments of an Orchestral Suite (Bach); Symphony, "La Chasse" (Gossec); Symphony (Haydn); Fragments from "Midsummer Night's Dream" (Mendelssohn); Finale of Choral Symphony (Beethoven). Châtelet Concert (January 22): Overture, "Melusine" (Mendelssohn); Scènes Pittoresques (Massenet); Concert Air (Mozart); Symphonie Funèbre et Triomphale (Berlioz); March, "Tannhäuser" (Wagner).

Leipzig.—Gewandhaus Concert (January 1): Overture, "Anakreon" (Cherubini); Air, "Iphigenia in Tauris" (Gluck); Pianoforte Concerto No. 2, manuscript (Brahms); Air, "Le Nozze di Figaro" (Mozart); Two Rhapsodies for pianoforte (Brahms); Symphony No. 8 (Beethoven). Gewandhaus Concert (January 12): Overture, "Faust" (Spohr); Scene and Air from "Faust" (Spohr); Adagio, Siciliano, and Allegro for flute (Bach); Overture, "Hebrides" (Mendelssohn); Symphony, G minor, No. 5 (Rubinstein).

Berlin.—Beethoven Evenings of Dr. Hans von Bülow and the Meiningen Hof-Capelle, at the Skating Rink (January 16): Symphony No. 1; Overture, "Fidelfio"; Symphony, "Pastoral." Beethoven Evenings, &c. (January 17): Overture, "King Stephen"; Pianoforte Concerto, E flat major; Rondino, E flat major, for wind instruments; Overture, "Prometheus"; Symphony, No. 8. Beethoven Evenings, &c. (January 18): Overtures, "Egmont" and "Leonore," No. 3; Symphonies, Nos. 5 and 7.

Cologne.—Concert of the Concert-Gesellschaft (January 10): Academic Overture (Brahms); Air from "Seraglio" (Mozart); Violin Concerto (Mendelssohn); Spanish Dances (Sarasate); Songs (Schumann, Jensen, Hiller); "Winter und Lenz," Concertstück for chorus and orchestra (E. Hartmann); Symphony, "Pastoral" (Beethoven).

Wiesbaden.—Cur-Orchestra (January 1): Suite in D (Bach); Symphony No. 5 (Beethoven); Prelude to "Die Meistersinger" (Wagner). Cur-Orchestra (January 6): Overture, "Faniska" (Cherubini); Symphony No. 5 (Rubinstein); Dance of Priestesses, from "Samson and Dalila" (Saint-Saëns); Overture, "Zur Weihe des Hauses" (Beethoven). Cur-Orchestra (January 8): Overture to a Tragedy (Bargiel); Märchenlied, Op. 113, arranged for Orchestra (Schumann-Erdmannsdorfer); Suite No. 1 (F. Lachner); Toccata, F major, arranged for Orchestra (Bach-Esser).

Milan.—Charity Concert of the German Choral Quartet Society (January 16): Overture, "Il Portatore d'Acqua" (Cherubini); Romance, "Tannhäuser" (Wagner); Second Mass, "Gloria" (Gounod); Funeral Ode (Brahms); Overture, "Prometheus" (Beethoven); Madrigal (Lotti); Agnus Dei, from Second Mass (Gounod); First Finale from "Creation" (Haydn); Vocal Soli (Halévy, Meyerbeer).

Turin.—Stefano Tempia Choral Society (December 18): Kyrie, Paternoster; "Sogni dorati," for violin and pianoforte; "Il Paese Natio," Chorus for soprano and alto (S. Tempia); Tenth Psalm (Marcello); "Addio," Chorus for tenor and bass (Mendelssohn); Chorus and March from "Les Deux Journées" (Cherubini); "Confidence," Duet for violin and pianoforte (S. Tempia); "Gipsy Life" (Schumann).

Boston.—Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Herr Henschel (December 17): Overture, "Egmont"; Pianoforte Concerto, No. 4; Symphony, C minor; vocal soli (Beethoven). Symphony Orchestra (December 31): Overture, "Ali Baba" (Cherubini); Scene and Air from "Euryanthe" (Weber); Symphony in C, No. 2 (Schumann); Caprice, Op. 146 (Hiller); Pogner's address, from "Die Meistersinger," and "Kaisermarsch" (Wagner).

Baltimore.—Peabody Institute (December 3): String Quartet, Op. 11 (Tschaiowsky); Songs (R. Franz); Sonata for pianoforte and violoncello, Op. 38 (Brahms). Peabody Institute (December 10): String Quartet, Op. 44, No. 1 (Mendelssohn); Air and Arioso from "St. Paul" (Mendelssohn); Vocal Duets (E. Lassen); Pianoforte Trio, Op. 3 (R. Volkmann).

CORRESPONDENCE.

MALE-VOICE CHOIRS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—My attention has been drawn to Mr. J. Cantor's letter upon this subject in your issue for January, and, while admitting the truth of much that he says as to the neglect of this branch of the musical art, I cannot allow his statement (so far as Liverpool is concerned) to pass unchallenged.

It is well known that, in addition to the two private Glee Clubs referred to in his communication, there is in very healthy existence a Society called the "Liverpool Vocalists' Union," consisting of twenty-four male voices, which meets once a week (oftener if necessary) for the practice solely of male-voice music. This Union was established in 1872, is governed by a strict code of rules and an annually elected committee, and possesses a library of some 150 pieces (constantly increasing), consisting of glees, ancient and modern, madrigals, part-songs, and choruses, sacred and secular, all of which are sung unaccompanied.

* Contributions intended for this column should indicate clearly the place and date of performance, as otherwise they cannot be inserted.

During its existence several honours have been won, and over 200 appearances have been made by this Union in London and other large towns, which you will admit is fair work.

In addition to the Vocalists' Union there are several quartet parties, viz.—the "Orpheus" (sixteen years old), "Liver," &c., and Mr. Cantor has also a double quartet party, though of very recent existence.

I will also add that, in 1873, I think, Liverpool sent up a representative choir of eighty male voices to the Crystal Palace which brought away the first prize of £50 against all comers. I think your readers will agree with me that the art is not so much neglected as Mr. Cantor would make them believe—at least, as far as Liverpool is concerned.

I am, your obedient servant,

HUGH SHIMMIN, Hon. Sec.

Liverpool, January 19, 1882.

AN ORGANIST'S GRIEVANCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—There can scarcely be but one reply, as it appears to me, to the question put by a "London Organist," in his now somewhat altered position. The entire control of the music reverts naturally into the hands of the newly appointed choirmaster, otherwise the appointment of such an agent is simply meaningless; and the organist should now perform his special function subject to the direction of the choirmaster, in the same manner as the members of the choir are expected to do.

I am connected with a church where the two posts referred to have lately been divided by the appointment of a choirmaster, and, so far, with the most satisfactory results, both as regards the music and the esprit de corps of the choir.

I may also add that the many years' experience I have had of choir work, &c., leads me to entertain an opinion exactly the reverse of that expressed by a "London Organist" at the close of his letter; and I apprehend that the explanation of the two posts being generally combined is mostly to be traced to one of finance. CHAIR.

THE CURIOSITIES OF CRITICISM.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—I send you the inclosed criticism on a concert which I have found in a local paper, thinking it might perhaps, be worthy of a place in your "Curiosities of Criticism": "... Mention should be made of one of the most attractive instrumental pieces on the programme, 'Little May,' composed by the conductor himself. In this piece several parts were attractive for their resemblance to snatches from the standard works of some of the greatest composers; at one period the stringed instruments give a low murmur of cadence, and anon the whole force of the band unites to give power to the finale, which is full of vigour, exploding in a crash of an instrumental tempest. . . ."

As this might interest many of your readers, I hope you will allow it a little space in your correspondence.

I am, sir, yours truly,

FRANCIS W. GALPIN.

Trinity College, Cambridge, Jan. 20, 1882.

SCARCITY OF ALTO VOICES.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—In the article on "Male-Voice Choirs" inserted in THE MUSICAL TIMES for January, a remark is made as to the unhappy scarcity of altos.

Undoubtedly such is the truth, but I think a remedy might be found by endeavouring to offer more encouragement towards cultivating this voice. Although stronger than the contralto voice, the latter is always chosen in our choral societies before an alto, in rendering an occasional quartet.

Alto vocalists are never heard at ballad concerts, simply because there are no songs specially written for them. Let some of our song-writers try the experiment of composing for them, and watch the result. An alto's scope is so limited that many, for the sake of appearing at concerts as soloists, sing in their lower (generally baritone) voice, thus invariably deteriorating, and often killing, their falsetto register.

Singing-masters, too, might study the production of the alto voice a little more, for as a rule they know nothing about it. With a little attention to the matter, I have no doubt but that the number of good alto singers might be largely increased.—I am, yours, &c.,

January 3, 1882.

AN ALTO.

THE FIRST DULCIANA.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—Allow me to thank Mr. Hopkins for his letter on this subject.

Mr. Edwards and I have since carefully examined the stop, when I found, to my surprise, that, whereas all the flute-pipes have their names marked on them in German characters, the dulciana is not so marked.

I consider this a proof that Mr. Hopkins is right in his conjecture, and that our dulciana is a later addition to our organ.—Yours faithfully,

EDWIN J. CROW.

Ripon, December 21, 1881.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

* * Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

Correspondents are informed that their names and addresses must accompany all communications.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all Subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music is always kept in stock, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

ABSCHEID.—We cannot in this journal recommend any particular "system." You must take your own choice. To "X.Y.Z.'s" communication the same answer will apply.

STUDENT.—You should apply to the Professor of Music at the University, who will afford you all necessary information.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

ABERDEEN.—The Choral Union gave an excellent performance of The Messiah on the 4th ult. The solo vocalists were Miss Annie Marriott, Miss Hope Glenn, Mr. Joseph Maas, and Mr. Burdon. Mr. A. F. Rae led the band, Mr. John Kirby conducted, and Mr. W. Morrison presided at the organ.

ABINGDON.—The Musical Association gave The Messiah on December 21, assisted by an excellent band. The principal vocalists were Miss Marianne Fenna, Miss Jeanie Rosse, Mr. Hodgson, and Mr. Bonell. The solos were well rendered, and the choruses sung with spirit and decision. Mr. Frederick K. Coudrey conducted.

ALTON.—The members of the Choral Society gave their first Concert for the season, at the Assembly Rooms, on the 12th ult. The first part consisted of a selection from Judas Maccabæus, and the second was miscellaneous. The soloists were Miss Jessie Jones, Mr. Redfern Hollins, and Mr. Pennell Cross, vocalists; and Mr. Edmund Woolhouse, violoncello—all of whom were highly satisfactory. The choir, which numbered about seventy voices, sang admirably. The accompaniments in Judas were played on the pianoforte by Mr. L. Reeves, and on the harmonium, by Mr. H. Shepherd, supplemented by a local orchestra, led by Mr. C. G. Halliday. Miss Ella Smith accompanied the songs, &c., in the second part, and Mr. H. Piggott conducted.

ARMAGH.—Mr. W. G. Wood and Mr. Albert McGuckin gave a very successful Concert, on the 9th ult., assisted by Miss Mary Russell, Mr. G. F. Townley, vocalists; Mr. C. Wood, violoncello; and Dr. Marks, pianoforte. Mr. W. G. Wood gave an excellent rendering of the "Moonlight" Sonata, Mendelssohn's Prelude and Fugue in E minor, and also of some compositions of his own. The singing of Mr. McGuckin, Miss Mary Russell, and Mr. G. F. Townley was much appreciated. Dr. Marks was an able accompanist.

BACUP.—On the 21st ult. a successful Concert was given in the Mechanics' Hall, the services of the Rochdale Amateur Orchestral Society being secured for the occasion. The principal vocalists were Miss Hardman and Mr. Dumville; solo violin, Mr. H. Rothwell; pianist and accompanist, Mr. F. J. Hill. Mr. J. P. Fielden was the Conductor, and Mr. H. Sedgwick led the band.

BELFAST.—A Ballad Concert was given in the Ulster Hall on Friday, December 30. The first part consisted of selections from Maritana, excellently sung by Miss Perry, Miss Damian, Mr. McGuckin, and Mr. Ludwig. Mr. Rudersdorff and Herr Leipold contributed a pianoforte and violoncello duet; Mr. B. Hobson Carroll played some of the pianoforte accompaniments, and Herr Werner presided at the organ.

BIRMINGHAM.—At the Popular Concerts of the Musical Association, on the 15th ult., the Festival Choral Society assisted, when Haydn's Creation was performed. The principal vocalists were Miss Helen M. Stark, Mr. Young, and Mr. Bingley Shaw. Mr. Stockley was an able Conductor, and Mr. Stimpson accompanied with his usual skill.

BLACKBURN.—A performance of The Messiah, in connection with Mr. Jones's Popular Concerts, was given in the Exchange on Christmas Eve. The principal vocalists were Miss H. Tomlinson, Madame Florence Winn, Mr. T. Buckland, and Mr. Rickard. Mr. J. L. Goodwin led the band, Mr. Charles Ford played the trumpet obligato, and Mr. G. Mellor conducted. The choruses were very well rendered.

BRIXHAM.—A very successful Concert was given in the Temperance Hall by the Choral Society on Thursday, December 29. The first part of the programme consisted of choruses from The Messiah, and the second part was miscellaneous. Miss Pardew and the Rev. W. Watkins were the vocalists. The Rev. P. A. Highmore conducted, and Mr. C. Fitz-Loam was solo pianist and accompanist.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—The first Concert of the Choral Society was given in the Corn Exchange on the 10th ult., on which occasion Haydn's Creation was successfully performed. The band and choir numbered 130 performers, and, considering the Society has been only three months in existence, the choruses were rendered with much precision. The principal vocalists were Miss Agnes Larkcom, Mr. Edward Dalzell, and Mr. R. Hilton, and the Conductor was Mr. T. B. Richardson.

CHESTERFIELD.—The Choral Society gave a performance of Handel's Messiah in the Stephenson Memorial Hall on December 28. The soloists were Miss Catherine Pickering, Miss A. Shaw, Mr. T. Cooper, Mr. E. Slack and Mr. Wardle. Mr. Wallhead led the band, and Mr. H. N. Biggin conducted.

CHICHESTER.—Mr. Seymour Kelly gave his annual Concert on the 12th ult. The artists were Miss Marian McKenzie, Miss Alice Osmond, Messrs. Walker, C. W. Kelly, and C. G. Marchant (Organist of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin), whose pianoforte solos were highly appreciated.

CLIFTON.—On Thursday, the 12th ult., the Bristol Madrigal Society gave their forty-eighth (annual) Ladies' night, at the Victoria Rooms, which was a great success. A well-selected programme was excellently rendered under the conductorship of Mr. D. W. Rootham.

CONGLETON.—On December 22 Handel's Messiah was given by the Choral Society in the Town Hall under the Conductorship of Mr. Gee. The choir numbered about eighty voices, and the band, led by Mr. H. Nuttall, comprised over twenty performers. The principal vocalists were Mrs. Hutchinson, Miss Wakefield, Mr. H. Latham, the Rev. J. T. Penrose, and Mr. H. Hankinson. The obligato to "The trumpet shall sound" was played by Mr. Kelly, and Mr. A. Barlow presided at the American organ.

COVENTRY.—On the 5th ult., at the Corn Exchange, the Musical Society gave a performance of J. F. Barnett's Cantata, The Ancient Mariner, followed by a miscellaneous selection. The principal vocalists were Mdlle. José Sherrington, Miss Sharpe, Mr. Mason and Mr. Thurley Beale. Haydn's Symphony in D concluded the Concert, which was conducted by Mr. Trickett.

CREWE.—The Philharmonic Society gave the second Concert of the present season in the Town Hall on the 17th ult. The Messiah was the work selected for performance, the principal vocalists being Miss Annie Marriott, Miss Helen D'Alton, Mr. Harper Kearton, and Mr. Robert Hilton, all of whom were highly satisfactory. The orchestra (under the leadership of Mr. Hamer Hayes) and choir were largely augmented. The choruses on the whole were well rendered, and the obligato to "The trumpet shall sound," played on the cornet by Mr. Bell, was a feature in the performance. A word of praise is due to the Conductor, Mr. James, for the manner in which he discharged his duties; also to Mr. G. Young for his services at the harmonium.

DELPH.—The members of the Saddleworth Amateur Choral Society gave their annual performance of Handel's Messiah on Christmas Eve, in the Wesleyan school, the principal vocalists being Miss Bessie Holt, Miss Louisa Bowmont, Mr. R. L. Whittaker, and Mr. Howard Lees. Mr. F. T. Whitehead conducted.

DINGWALL.—The Musical Association gave its first Concert this season on Friday evening, the 20th ult., before a large and appreciative audience. The programme consisted of selections of vocal and instrumental music of a popular character, including Romberg's Toy Symphony; and a small orchestra contributed to the success of the Concert. The pianoforte accompaniments were admirably rendered by Miss Ross, whose solo on the same instrument was much appreciated. Miss Chisholm ably presided at the organ. Mr. Roddie conducted.

DUNDEE.—The members of the Harmonic Society gave their annual performance of The Messiah, in the Kinnaird Hall, on December 27. The orchestra, principally composed of local amateurs, was very efficient. Mr. Cole led and Mr. Styles presided at the organ. The solo vocalists were Miss A. Dawson, Miss Amy Ronayne, Mr. H. Parratt, and Mr. A. McCall. Mr. S. C. Hirst conducted.

DUNSTER.—On Thursday, the 5th ult., the Philharmonic Society gave the first Concert of the season at the Assembly Rooms, before a large audience. The first part of the programme consisted of Cowen's Cantata The Rose Maiden. The solos were well sung by Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Windsor, Miss Geen, the Rev. R. Utten Todd, the Rev. J. Utten Todd, the Rev. W. P. Michell, and Dr. Clark. The band and chorus numbered upwards of fifty performers. The second part of the programme, which was miscellaneous, commenced with an excellent rendering of Beethoven's Symphony, No. 1, by the orchestra. Another feature in the second part was the performance of a new "Scena Drammatica e Duo," composed by the Conductor, and well sung by Miss Uppington and Miss Geen. The leader of the band was Mr. O. Sadler; Miss Uppington and Mrs. West presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. John Warriner, Organist of the Parish Church, conducted.

EDINBURGH.—Sir Herbert Oakeley's Recital in the Class Room on the 12th ult., was fully attended; and the programme, which was, as usual, of the highest interest, afforded the utmost pleasure to the audience. A special feature in the selection was Bach's well-known fugue on the letters of his name.

ELTON.—A miscellaneous Concert was given in the Conservative Hall by the St. Stephen's Choir, on the 16th ult. The first part consisted of songs and glees, which were warmly received, and for the second part Sullivan's Cox and Box was performed. The work was exceedingly well rendered by Messrs. E. Kelly, J. Simpson, and T. Boon. Mr. Walter B. Bell was the pianist, and Mr. Albert Bell conducted.

FALMOUTH.—A Concert was given on the 4th ult. in aid of the widows and orphans of the crew of the "Jackal" steamer, recently lost on the Cornish coast. The principal artists were Miss Clara Dowle, the Revs. J. S. Flynn and W. C. Mackey, Miss F. Mitchell, Miss C. Potheroe-Smith, Mr. A. L. Wills, Mr. C. G. Grylls, Mr. John Mead, and Mr. Robinson, Conductor. The result, both musically and financially, was highly successful.

FINCHLEY.—A successful Concert was given by the Choral Society on Tuesday evening, the 24th ult., at the National Schools. The first part of the programme comprised Macfarren's May Day, which was well rendered, the solo being sung by Miss Jessie Royd. The second part consisted of part-songs, vocal solos by Mr. H. Parkin, solo pianoforte (Mr. A. A. Yeatman), and a violin solo. Mr. A. A. Yeatman was Conductor.

GLASGOW.—On the 13th ult., Dr. Spark, of Leeds, gave an interesting Matinée in the saloon of Messrs J. Muir Wood and Co. With the idea of assisting in the preservation of the many favourite glees for men's voices, Dr. Spark has organised a quartet for the purpose of bringing these compositions prominently before the public; and the pieces sung on this occasion fully proved the excellent result of his labours in the cause. At the close of the performance Mr. James Richardson moved a hearty vote of thanks to Dr. Spark and his colleagues.

GRANGE.—On Monday the 16th ult., a Concert was given in the Institute by the Choral Society. The first part of the programme consisted of Gade's Cantata The Erl-King, which was well rendered. The principal singers were Miss H. Tomlinson, Mrs. M. Riley, and Mr. Higginson. Mr. E. Sewell, M.A., conducted. The second part of the programme was miscellaneous.

GRANTHAM.—On December 28 The Messiah was successfully performed by the Amateur Vocal Society. The soloists were Miss Helen M. Stark, Miss J. M. Ward, Mr. Dunkerton, and Mr. A. Basker. The accompaniments were played by Mr. T. J. Morris's orchestra: Conductor, Mr. H. P. Dickinson.

GREAT MARLOW.—On the 12th ult., the Choral Society gave a very successful performance of Haydn's Oratorio The Creation, assisted by Miss Cockburn, Mr. A. L. Fryer, and Mr. Henry Cross. Great praise is due to the Conductor (Mr. Chaundy), for the manner in which his choir proved its efficiency on the occasion. "The heavens are telling," "Achieved," and "Sing the Lord" being especially well rendered. The performance was greatly enhanced by the fine orchestra which included some of the best instrumentalists from Oxford.

GREENOCK.—The Choral Society held its Annual New Year's Concert at the Town Hall on Monday, the 2nd ult., when Handel's Messiah was given, with Miss Laura Smart, Madame Marie Jernau, Mr. G. Howard Welch, and Mr. Fred. Gordon as vocalists; all of Mr. Josef Cantor's Concert Company. Mr. Cole ably led the orchestra, Mr. Cantor accompanied the recitatives, and Mr. Middleton conducted. The performance was successful throughout.

HANLEY.—The members of the Hanley and Shelton Philharmonic Society gave their annual performance of The Messiah on Thursday, the 5th ult., in the Imperial Circus, which was crowded in every part. The solo vocalists were Miss Mary Davies, Miss Orridge, Mr. H. Guy, and Mr. F. King; Mr. F. Ward, principal violin, and Mr. Robinson, solo trumpet. The performance was in every respect highly successful.

HERTFORD.—On Christmas Day the Services at St. Andrew's Church commenced with a celebration of the Holy Communion, followed by full choral Matins, and a second celebration. The psalms were sung to Anglican chants by Elvey, Haverall, and Holmes; the Te Deum was Hopkins in G; Kyrie, Mendelssohn in A. In the afternoon the special service consisted of the Litany, anthem, "Sing, O heavens" (B. Tours), and several carols; there was also full choral evensong. Mr. C. E. Holmes, Organist and Choir-master, presided at the organ.

HIGHAM.—A successful Concert was given on the 5th ult., the principal vocalists being Miss Lucia Carreras, Miss Ada Earee, Miss Fyson, Messrs. E. Tietkens, W. E. Gregory, and R. T. Haines. The instrumentalists were Miss Minnie Earee (pianoforte), Miss Ada Borrow and Dr. Henry (violins), and Miss E. M. Borrow (violoncello). The Conductor was the Rev. W. Borrow.

HORNINGSHAM.—On Tuesday, December 27, a Concert was given by Mr. O. A. Mansfield in the British Schoolroom. The principal feature of the programme was the pianoforte-playing of Mdlle. Jutz, of the Conservatoire, Geneva, who performed several solos, and also assisted in two overtures, arranged for two pianos, harmonium, and violin. The vocalists were Miss Mansfield, Mr. T. Foakes, and Mr. C. Cooper.

KING'S LYNN.—The Philharmonic Society gave the first Concert of the season in the Music Hall on Friday, the 13th ult., before a crowded audience, when Handel's Messiah was performed. The solo portions were well sustained by Miss Jessie Jones, Miss Bertha Alden, Mr. Harper Kearton, and Mr. A. S. Kinnell; and Messrs. W. O. Jones and J. H. Pratt acted as accompanists at the organ and piano. Mr. John Bray, as usual, led the band, and Dr. Horace Hill (who has been assisted by Mr. A. H. Crosse, of Sandringham) very ably conducted throughout.

KINGSTON.—On the 19th ult. Mr. Falshaw (organist of the Parish Church, Esher) gave an Organ Recital on the fine instrument at All Saints' Church. The programme was well selected, and the pieces excellently rendered.

LAMBOURN.—The Choral Society, which has been reorganised, gave the first of a series of four Concerts on Monday, December 26, in the National Schoolroom, when glees, part-songs, &c., by Calcott, Bishop, Pinsuti, Sydenham, and several vocal solos were very creditably rendered. Mr. Swift, Organist of St. Michael's, Lambourn, presided at the piano, and the vicar, the Rev. J. Edgell, conducted.

LEAMINGTON.—The Choral Society gave its first Concert on Friday, the 13th ult., in the Public Hall, Windsor Street, on behalf of the Warneford Hospital, and the Hospital for Incurables. The Society was represented by about thirty voices, and the solo vocalists were Miss Clara Montague, the Rev. A. Sewell, Mr. Richard Clarke, and Mr. Percy Watson. The principal items were Mr. Edmund Rogers's Cantatas, The Bridal Lay and Blue Beard. Mr. E. F. Hall contributed an effective harp solo, and joined with Mr. C. S. Birch in a duet with the piano, the latter playing as a solo, "Silver Birch," a new Gavotte by Mr. Percy Watson.

LEWES.—On Sunday, the 1st ult., the services at St. Anne's Church were fully choral. The anthem was well rendered by members of the choir, conducted by Mr. Scammell. At the conclusion of the evening service Mr. P. J. Starnes, the Organist, gave a Recital.

LIMERICK.—On Thursday evening, December 29, the Musical Society gave the second Concert of the present session. The programme included Leslie's First Christmas Morn, Adeste Fideles, and the first part of The Messiah. The band and chorus numbered 140. Mr. Gibbons presided at the organ, and Dr. Smith conducted.

LISKEARD.—The choir and congregation of the Wesleyan Chapel met on the 6th ult. in the Masonic Hall, and presented Mr. J. Mathews with a handsome gilt and porcelain clock, with candelabra to match. A silver plate attached bore the following inscription: "Presented to Mr. John Mathews by members of the choir and congregation of the Wesleyan Chapel, Liskeard, in appreciation of his able and honorary services as Organist during the past eight years. December, 1881."

LONDONDERRY.—On Christmas Eve there was a special service in the Cathedral, during which the first part of The Messiah and the "Hallelujah" Chorus were sung. The choruses were excellently given, the parts being well balanced. The principal vocalists were Master Henry Phillips, Messrs. R. Combes, R. Jones, E. Bickley, and Hemingway. The Organist of the Cathedral, Mr. D. C. Jones, ably presided at the organ.

MACCLESFIELD.—On Friday evening, the 13th ult., a Concert took place at Parkside Asylum. The programme comprised "Autumn" and "Winter" from Haydn's Seasons, the solos being well sung by Mrs. Scarsbrook, Mrs. Coates, Dr. Deas, and Messrs. Wallace and Young, all of whom, with the exception of the last-named gentleman, are members of the Asylum staff. The Asylum band and choir were augmented by a few local amateurs. The second part consisted of a selection of songs, glees, &c., in which Mr. C. Seal, Mus. Bac., Oxon., Mr. Latham, and Miss Cartwright were the principal performers. Mr. Hawkins conducted, and Mr. Coates presided at the organ.

MILFORD HAVEN.—An evening Concert was given at the opening of the New Masonic Hall on the 4th ult., under the presidency of the Right Honourable Lord Kensington, M.P. The vocalists were Miss Julia Jones, Mr. C. Videon Harding, and Mr. Fergus Asquith; solo violinists, Messrs. E. Ribbon and S. Dawkins. The band of the 1st Pembrokehire Rifle Volunteers, under the able leadership of Mr. Scotton, also rendered valuable assistance.

MODBURY.—Miss Dinah Shapley, of the Royal Academy of Music, gave a successful Concert at Davis's Hotel, on the 10th ult. The feature of the evening was the pianoforte-playing of the bénédicte, which was warmly applauded. The vocalists were Miss Mary Beare, the Misses Hicks and Mr. Hosking; Mr. John Pardew (violin) and Mr. Alfred Davis (pianoforte) also contributing solos.

NEWARK.—On Tuesday, the 17th ult., the Amateur Choral Society gave the first part of The Messiah and a miscellaneous selection in the Town Hall. The principal vocalists were Mrs. Daglish, Miss Phillips, Mr. J. Gregory, Mus. Bac., Oxon., and Mr. Bingley Shaw. Miss Lilley was the accompanist, and Mr. S. Reay, Mus. Bac., Oxon., conducted.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—An excellent Concert was given at the Town Hall by Mr. T. A. Alderson's Choir on December 26, the programme including Hofmann's Legend of the Fair Melusina and Gade's Christmas Eve, both of which works were most ably rendered by the choir, numbering 150 voices. The singing of Mrs. W. F. Whatford as Melusina was much admired. We are glad to find that Mr. Alderson proposes to organise an orchestra in connection with his choir. A Concert was given on the 18th ult. by Mr. Samuel Wiggins, in the Northumberland Hall, which was well attended. Mr. Wiggins was highly successful in several pianoforte solos, and also in a duet of his own composition, for violin and pianoforte, in which he was assisted by Mr. A. P. Spence. The vocalists were Mrs. C. H. Shepherd, Miss Brooks, Mr. G. H. Welch, and Mr. J. Nutton; Conductor, Mr. C. H. Shepherd.

NEWPORT, MONMOUTHSHIRE.—On Thursday, the 19th ult., at the Albert Hall, Miss Clara Dowle gave a Concert, assisted by Mrs. H.

Langmaid, Miss Laura Dowle, Mr. F. E. Wade, Mr. Richards, Mr. W. H. Williams, and Mr. G. Rickards, solo pianist and accompanist. The Concert was very successful, Miss Dowle being enthusiastically received in all her songs.

NEWTOWN.—On December 26 an evening Concert was given in the Congregational Chapel, under the presidency of Mr. James Hall. The principal vocalists were Mrs. Joseph Morris, Messrs. J. James, W. R. Parry, and J. H. Jones. The choir was efficient throughout the evening; and the organist, Mr. W. P. Phillips, deserves much credit for his exertions in organising so excellent a concert.

NORTHAMPTON.—The Choral Society, which has lately been reconstituted upon a more popular basis, gave the second Concert of the present session, on the 5th ult., in the Corn Exchange. The Messiah was selected for performance, and its rendering reflected great credit upon the Conductor, Mr. Brook Sampson, Mus. Bac., who was appointed at the beginning of the session. The soloists were Miss Robertson, Miss F. Robertson, Mr. Piercy, and Mr. Henry Pope.

NORTH WALSHAM.—The Annual Concert of the Amateur Musical Society was given in the National Schoolroom on the 11th ult., when Handel's Judas Maccabæus was the work selected. The principal vocalists were Miss Jessie Jones, Mrs. John Wilkinson, Mr. Harper Kearton, and Mr. J. H. Brockbank; pianoforte, Mr. Walter Lain; harmonium, Mr. John Dixon. The band and chorus consisted of about eighty performers. The Oratorio was well rendered, and the band, though small, was very efficient. The singing of the choruses reflected great credit on the Conductor, Dr. Horace Hill, of Norwich.

OLDHAM.—On Monday evening, the 16th ult., a Concert was given in the Co-operative Hall, Greenacres Hill, the vocalists being Miss Greaves, Mrs. Mitton, Miss S. Greaves, Messrs. Smith, Roberts, and Percy Peplow. Mr. J. Greaves and the Watersheddings Orchestral Band accompanied, and Mr. George Bardsley conducted. The eighth Popular Concert took place on Monday evening, the 23rd ult., in the Henshaw Street Coffee Tavern, when the vocalists were Messrs. Coulton, Brette, Greaves, and several amateurs. Mr. J. Greaves accompanied.

OTTAWA.—A very good performance of Barnett's Ancient Mariner was given by the members of the Choral Society on Thursday, December 15, in the Grand Opera House. The solos were well rendered by Miss Maloney, Miss Torrington, Miss L. Hurdman, and Mr. Gauthier. There was an efficient orchestra, led by Mr. Reichling. Mrs. Harrison presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. Harrison conducted. The Cantata was preceded by a few part-songs and solos, including "Up the dreadful steep" (Handel), excellently sung by Miss Denzill.

PAISLEY, N.B.—On Friday evening, the 13th ult., an Organ Recital was given in the Abbey, by the Organist, Mr. J. Barratt, Mus. B. There was a large audience, and Mr. Barratt's playing was much appreciated. The organ is by M. Cavallé-Coll, and its fine qualities were clearly exhibited and much admired.

PENZANCE.—A performance of the Oratorio Elijah was given in St. John's Hall by the Choral Society on December 27. The principal vocalists were Miss G. Nunn, Mrs. Nunn, Mr. Sampson, and Mr. James Sauvage. Mr. J. H. Nunn conducted, and Mr. R. White, jun., presided at the organ. The rendering of the work was in every respect highly satisfactory. A Concert was given, on the 13th ult., by Mr. R. White, jun., assisted by Miss Clara Dowle, Mr. M. Sampson, Mr. Wills (vocalists), and Mr. J. Pardew (violin). The Concert was a great success.

PETERHEAD.—A performance of Handel's Messiah was given in the Temperance Hall, on December 28. The choruses were very creditably sung, by the Choral Union, under the conductorship of Mr. J. Wood, and the band was led by Mr. Justice. The principal vocalists were Miss Annie Dawson, Miss Amy Ronayne, Mr. Herbert Parratt, and Mr. Andrew McCall.

PLYMOUTH.—The Messiah was performed in the Guildhall, on Wednesday, December 21, by the members of the Vocal Association, Mr. F. N. Löhr conducting. The solos were well rendered by Misses K. Liftton, A. Dwelley, Adams, Anthony, and Messrs. C. Watts, W. H. Morris, W. H. K. Wright, W. H. Jarvis, and J. Barker. Mr. A. Faulk presided at the organ. On Saturday, the 14th ult., a Popular Concert was given at the Guildhall. The vocalists were Miss Clara Dowle, Miss Annie Dwelley, and Mr. Moon, all of whom were highly successful, Mr. Elford's cornet solos being also much appreciated. Mr. Hannaford presided at the organ.

PRESTON.—The Concert of the Vocal Union, on December 21, in the Town Hall, was in every respect highly successful. The first part of the programme was devoted to a performance of Gade's Cantata The Erl-King's Daughter, the principal vocalists being Miss Greenwood, Miss Tasker, and Mr. J. B. Christie. In the second part, which was miscellaneous, a Trio by Mozart was effectively performed by Miss Donkersley (violin), Mr. Cuttle (viola), and Mr. Tattersall (violoncello). Mr. W. Tattersall was the Conductor. On the fiftieth anniversary of the appointment of Mr. J. Greaves as Organist of the Parish Church, a testimonial was presented to him at the Town Hall, in the presence of a large audience. The gift was a purse containing 100 guineas, which had been subscribed by past and present members of St. John's Choir, of the congregation of the church, and other friends. The Vicar, the Rev. J. H. Rawdon, alluded in flattering terms to the long and valuable services of Mr. Greaves, and mentioned the probability of a Choral Association being shortly formed in Preston.

READING.—An Organ Recital was given after the evening service at Christ Church on Wednesday, December 28, by Mr. F. J. Read, Mus. Bac. The programme was well selected and highly interesting. The Royal Berkshire Academy of Music, under the patronage of her Royal Highness Princess Christian and many influential ladies in the county, has been recently formed in this town. Sir Julius Benedict is to be examiner, Herr Ernst Pauer lecturer, and the list of professors includes the names of Mr. J. Francis Barnett, Miss Emma Barnett, Signor Caravaglia, Signor Montecco, Herr Rosenthal, Herr Oberthur, &c.

ST. HELENS.—The members of the Congregational Church Choir gave a successful performance of the greater portion of Handel's Messiah in the Congregational Church, on Friday, December 30. Mr. G. Barton sang the tenor solos excellently, the remainder of the vocal numbers being rendered by amateurs. Mr. W. Gardner led the band, Mr. J. Hayes presided at the organ, and Miss A. L. Sharples at the piano. Mr. J. T. Elliott conducted.

SALISBURY.—The Vocal Union gave its first Concert of the season in the Hamilton Hall, on Tuesday evening, the 24th ult., to a large and enthusiastic audience. The soloists were Miss Julia Jones, Mr. Hayden, and Mr. Arthur Crick; solo violin, Mr. Alfred Foley—all of whom gave the greatest satisfaction. The Vocal Union now numbers upwards of fifty voices. Miss Kate Harding and Miss Rose Thomas were the accompanists, and Mr. John M. Hayden conducted.

SHEFFIELD.—Mr. Charles Harvey gave two performances of The Messiah, the first at the Albert Hall, on December 24, the principal vocalists being Miss Agnes Larkcom, Miss Spenser Jones, Mr. J. W. Turner, and Mr. Grice. Mr. Henry Parkin led the orchestra, Mr. A. Robinson played the trumpet obbligato, and Mr. Tallis Trimmell presided at the organ. The band and chorus numbered 300 performers, conducted by Mr. Harvey. The second performance was given at the Drill Hall, on December 26. The principal vocalists were Miss Agnes Larkcom, Miss Spenser Jones, Mr. E. Dunkerton, and Mr. J. Bingley Shaw. Mr. G. F. Birkinshaw played the trumpet obbligato. The orchestra was led by Mr. John Peck, Mr. Tallis Trimmell presided at the organ, and Mr. Charles Harvey conducted.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Mr. George H. L. Edwards gave a successful Concert at the Polytechnic Institution on Wednesday evening, December 21, terminating the first half-session. The vocalists were Miss Agnes Larkcom, Miss Coyte Turner, Mr. C. A. White, and Mr. Franklin Clive; solo pianist and accompanist, Mr. G. H. L. Edwards.

SUNDERLAND.—Mr. G. F. Vincent's second Chamber Concert took place on Friday, the 20th ult. Miss Dora Schirmacher was the pianist, Mr. H. Lazarus, clarinet, Signor A. Pezze, violoncello, Miss E. Burnett, vocalist, and Mr. G. F. Vincent, Conductor. Miss Schirmacher's performance elicited warm and well-deserved applause. Amongst other items in the programme a Fantasia and Fugue for two pianos by Mr. G. F. Vincent, performed by Miss Schirmacher and the composer, proved most acceptable to the audience.

SUTTON.—On the 9th ult. Mr. Dewy gave his first Concert, under the direction of Mr. Alfred Moore, when an excellent programme was performed by the following artists: Miss José Sherrington, Miss Nelly McEwen, Miss Emily Dones, Miss Annie Matthews, Messrs. Arthur Thompson, Lovett King, and Alfred Moore. A new trio, composed by Mr. Myles B. Foster, Organist of the Founding Chapel, was sung for the first time, and received with warm applause.

TRIM.—On Christmas Eve there was a Special Service in St. Patrick's Cathedral Church, which was semi-choral. After the service the carols "See amid the winter snow," with solos for soprano and tenor, and "The first Nowell," were sung. At the early service on Christmas Day the hymn "O! come all ye faithful" was sung; and at the noon service the following music was given: Opening hymn, No. 87; Venite, 160 (Chants Ancient and Modern); Te Deum, 141; Jubilate, 11; Hymn after Morning Prayer, 79; Hymn before sermon, 83. The anthem consisted of the latter parts of "O! Zion that bringest" (Stainer), and "Behold I bring" (Barnby). The evening service was semi-choral, the Anthem and Carols, with Hymn 83, being repeated. The Pastoral Symphony (Messiah) was played as a voluntary at all the services by Mr. W. A. Collisson, who was also the accompanist throughout.

UXBRIDGE.—On Wednesday, the 11th ult., the Colnbrook Choral Society gave a successful concert of secular music in the new Hall (recently erected) in Iver. Mr. Richard Ratcliff, Organist of Thorney Church, Iver, conducted.

WELLINGBOROUGH.—On Thursday evening, December 29, The Messiah was performed in the Congregational Church. The soloists were Miss James, Mrs. Huxson, Mrs. Gent, Mr. Brooks, Mr. R. De Lacy, and Mr. J. E. Ekins. The band and chorus numbered about 100, and the performance was in every respect a success. Mr. A. J. Patenall led the band; A. Wildsmith, Esq., of Newark, presided at the organ; and Mr. W. J. Lamb, of Higham Ferrers (the Organist of the church), conducted.

WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.—On the 10th ult. the Harmonic Society gave an excellent performance of The Messiah, under the conductorship of Mr. Manley. The principal vocalists were Miss Adela Vernon, Miss Sanford, Miss Fitzgerald, Mr. Tozer, and Mr. Francis, all of whom were highly efficient.

WELSHPOOL.—The Services at the Parish Church on Christmas Day were full choral. Goss's "Behold, I bring you glad tidings" was the anthem in the morning, and the "Gloria" from Mozart's Twelfth Mass in the evening. Proper Psalms were sung to chants by Goss, Ouseley, Weldon, Farrant, and Macfarren; the Magnificat and Nunc dimittis were from Clarke-Whitfield's Service in E, and the "Amen" from Dr. Stainer's Communion Service. Mr. C. A. E. Harriss, the Organist and Choirmaster, gave an Organ Recital before the evening service. The programme was well selected, and Raff's Cavatina for organ and violin was effectively rendered by Mr. Harriss and Mr. C. E. Newman.

WINDSOR.—There was a large attendance at St. George's Chapel on Christmas Eve. In the introductory voluntary—a very pleasing composition by Sir George Elvey—stringed instruments combined with the organ in producing an excellent effect, especially when the joyous pealing of bells was imitated. The Magnificat and Nunc dimittis were an adaptation from Croft's fine service in A. After the third collect, the Nativity music from Handel's Messiah took the place of the anthem, and consisted of Adagio from the overture; solo, "Comfort ye" (sung with much effect by Mr. Gawthrop); chorus, "And the glory;" solo (Mr. Bateman) and chorus, "O, Thou that tellest;" recitative and air, "The people that walked in darkness" (well rendered by Mr. Sutton Shepley); chorus, "For unto us a child is born;" Pastoral Symphony; recitative, "There were shepherds," Master Hillyard; chorus, "Glory to God in the highest;" recitative and air, "He shall feed His flock," Master Wiltshire; air, "Come unto Me," Master Lewis; chorus, "Hallelujah!" The congregation stood during the singing of "For unto us," "There were shepherds," "Glory to God," and the "Hallelujah" Chorus. The choirs of St. George's and Eton College, augmented by several members of the Choral Society, &c., numbered seventy-two voices. Several carols were sung, and Sir G. Elvey's "Albert Edward March" formed the concluding voluntary.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—An excellent performance of The Messiah was given in the Agricultural Hall on Thursday, December 28, by the members of the Festival Choral Society, under the conductorship of Dr. Heap. Miss Agnes Larkcom, Mdle. Helene Arnim, Mr. Redfern Hollins, and Signor Foli were the solo vocalists, and Mr. Robinson played the trumpet obbligato.

WORKINGTON.—The members of the Vocal Union gave a performance of The Messiah, on Tuesday, December 27, in St. John's Church, by the kind permission of the vicar. The solo vocalists were Madame Edith Wynne, Miss Martha Harries, Mr. Shakespeare, and Mr. Maybrick. Mr. Dearnaly, of the Parish Church, Ashton-under-Lyne, presided at the organ, and Mr. Walter Williams conducted.

WORKSOP.—On December 21 the first concert of this season was given by the Choral Society, in the Corn Exchange Assembly Rooms. The programme comprised the scriptural Idyll entitled Rebekah (Barnby) and the Twelfth Mass (Mozart). There were also some miscellaneous selections of great merit. The principal vocalists were Mr. Dunkerton, Miss Rissmann, Miss Hardcastle, and Mr. J. Mackie. Mr. Hamilton White, of Retford, conducted.

YORK.—A performance of Mendelssohn's Elijah was given by the Musical Society in the Festival Concert Rooms on December 22, which attracted a large audience. The principal vocalists were Miss Tomlinson, Miss Orridge, Mr. King, and Mr. Bywater; Mr. Burton being, as usual, a highly efficient Conductor.

The Concert given by the St. Cecilia Society, noticed in our last number, should have been headed Blackburn, instead of Hull.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. James Hallé to Clapham Congregational Church, Grafton Square, S.W.—Mr. Edwin M. Lott, Organist and Director of the Choir to St. Ethelburga, Bishopsgate, E.C.—Mr. F. W. Clarke, Mus. Bac., Oxon., to St. Peter's, Dulwich—Mr. Law Starkey, Organist and Choirmaster to Greyfriars' Church, Dumfries.—Mr. Douglas H. Hallett, A.C.O., Organist and Choirmaster to St. Alban's, Cheetwood, Manchester.—Mr. Arthur J. Greenish, F.C.O., to St. Saviour's Church, Haverstock Hill, N.W.—Mr. James W. Hammond to St. Paul's, Bunhill Row, E.C.—Mr. Harvey Pinches, Organist and Choirmaster to the Congregational Church, Gosport.—Mr. George Dixon, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Anne's Church, Hoxton.—Mr. W. G. Runacres, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church of Holy Trinity, South Heigham, Norwich.—Mr. Joseph Arthur Luckam, Organist and Choirmaster to St. John's Church, Sheffield.—Mr. Welsh Leith, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church, Wishaw, N.B.

CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. W. S. Brown (Alto) to Holy Trinity, Brompton.—Mr. Henry E. Vickers (Bass) to St. Peter's, South Crodon.—Mr. Hugh Davis (Alto) to the Italian Church, Hatton Garden.—Mr. H. W. Suter (Tenor) to Holy Trinity, Brompton.—Mr. Charles E. Tinney, Choirmaster to St. James's Church, Kidbrooke, Blackheath.

DEATHS.

On December 17, 1881, at his residence, 5, Ampton Street, W.C., THOMAS WESTROP, aged 60.

On December 22, 1881, Madame ALEXANDER NEWTON, aged 63.

On New Year's Day, JANET, wife of Dr. MONK (Organist and Choirmaster of York Minster), aged 54.

On the 8th ult., at Nice, T. G. DAY, medalist of the Royal Academy of Music, and founder of the Kensington Choral Association, aged 23.

Now ready.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION with various improvements and many additional Chants, of THE PSALTER, arranged for Chanting. With appropriate English Chants. Edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY, Bart., M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon., Organist and Choirmaster of York Minster.

Edition I., in Post 8vo, with the chants in short score. Cloth, 2s.

Edition II., in Foolscap 4to, large type, with the chants in short score. Cloth, 4s.

Edition III., in Imperial 32mo. Words only. Cloth, 9d. With Proper Psalms, 1s. The Proper Psalms separately, 3d.

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION of THE CANTICLES, &c. First Series.

I. Post 8vo, chants in short score. 6d.

II. Foolscap 4to, chants in short score. 1s.

III. In 32mo. Words only. 1d.

When this new Edition is required, instead of the original Work (which is on sale in all its original forms), orders should be specific for "REVISED EDITION."

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION

of THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. A Collection of Single Chants, Ancient and Modern, appropriated to the Daily Psalms, Canticles, and Hymns in the Book of Common Prayer. The Chants correspond with those of the "Psalter," and are similarly numbered. Edited by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. 8vo, in paper cover, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d. Foolscap 4to, large type, paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO, EWER &amp; CO.

NOVELLO, EWER and CO.'S PIANOFORTE ALBUMS. Edited by BERTHOLD TOURS. No. 9. Marches. 1s. For List of Contents see p. 115.

HECHT, E.—"Eric the Dane." A Dramatic Cantata. The Libretto written by R. McLEAN. 8vo, paper cover, 3s.; chorus parts, 3s.

CUSINS, W. G.—Te Deum. For Solo Voices, Chorus, and Orchestra. 8vo, paper cover, 1s. 6d.; Chorus Parts, 1s. 4d.

ABT, FRANZ.—"Minster Bells." A Cantata for Female Voices. The Words written by E. OXENFORD. 8vo, paper cover, 2s. 6d.

READ, J. F. H.—"Caractacus." A Cantata for Solo Voices, Chorus, and Orchestra. The Poetry by E. J. STOKES. 8vo, paper cover, 2s. 6d.

WOOD, W. G.—(in F). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 8vo, 3d.

PASCOE, C. F.—Benedicite omnia opera. Three Settings. 8vo, 4d.

PARTRIDGE, G. NOBLE.—Kyrie eleison. Six Settings. 8vo, 4d.

NOVELLO'S ORPHEUS (New Series):—

No. 169.	Roaming (T.T.B.B.) ...	H. HOFMANN.	2d.
170.	Sir Cuckoo (T.T.B.B.) ...	Ditto	4d.
171.	Glorious May (T.T.B.B.) ...	Ditto	3d.
172.	In Spring-time (T.T.B.B.) ...	Ditto	4d.
173.	Our Maxim (T.T.B.B.) ...	Ditto	3d.
174.	In dulci júbilo (T.T.B.B.) ...	Ditto	4d.
175.	Dim and grey appear the mountains (T.T.B.B.) ...	FRANZ ABT.	3d.
176.	At Andernach, in Rhineland (T.T.B.B.) ...	Ditto	3d.
177.	The grave of a singer (T.T.B.B.) ...	Ditto	3d.
178.	Laughing (T.T.B.B.) ...	Ditto	4d.

NOVELLO'S TONIC SOL-FA SERIES:—

No. 137.	Christ is risen from the dead ...	Sir G. ELVEY.	1d.
138.	Rejoice in the Lord ...	J. B. CALKIN.	1d.
139.	As pants the hart ...	SPOHR.	1d.
140.	{ Praise His awful Name... Holy, holy, holy ... }	Ditto	1½d.
141.	{ All glory to the Lamb ... Blessing, honour ... }	Ditto	1½d.
142.	Lord God of heaven and earth ...	Ditto	1½d.
143.	Destroyed is Babylon ...	Ditto	2d.
144.	Blest are the departed ...	Ditto	1d.
145.	Great and wonderful ...	Ditto	2d.
146.	Despairing, cursing rage ...	HAYDN.	1d.
147.	The marvellous work ...	Ditto	1d.
148.	Awake the harp ...	Ditto	1d.
149.	The Lord is great ...	Ditto	1d.
150.	Achieved is the glorious work ...	Ditto	1d.
151.	Sing the Lord ...	Ditto	1d.

HORSLEY, L.—"Come unto Me." Sacred Song. 1s. 6d.

AVISON, CHILDS.—"Scarlet and Gold." Song. 2s.

CROSSLEY, HASTINGS.—"The Cottage by the Sea." Song. Contralto or Baritone. 1s. 6d.

—"In the Night." Song. Baritone or Mezzo-Soprano. 1s. 6d.

—"The Lament of the Rose." Song. Mezzo-Soprano or Tenor. 1s. 6d.

—"Reine d'Amour." Song. Soprano or Tenor. 2s.

—"Strew on her roses." Song. Soprano or Tenor. 1s. 6d.

DAVIS, GABRIEL.—"The Old Meadow Gate." Song. 2s.

SCOTT, ALICIA FLORENCE.—"Unchanged." Song. 2s.

MOODIE, W.—Rondo in E flat, from First Violin Quartet. For Pianoforte. 1s. 6d.

NOTTINGHAM, C. H.—Berceuse for the Pianoforte. 1s. 6d.

—"Gavotte for the Pianoforte. 1s.

—"Genifrède." Valse Brillante for Pianoforte. 2s.

—"Marche for the Pianoforte. 1s.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—Continued.

NOTTINGHAM, C. H.—Polonaise for the Pianoforte. 1s. 6d.

—"Deuxième Mazurka for the Pianoforte. 1s. 6d.

THOMAS, W. HENRY.—The Major and Minor Scales in various forms and rhythms, compiled for the use of Pianoforte Students. 2s. 6d.

STARNES, PERCY J.—Marche Triomphale for the Organ. 2s.

MR. J. AUSTIN HERBERT (Tenor).

(St. Michael's, Cornhill.)

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, 277, Brunswick Road, Poplar, E.

MR. CALLOW (Accompanist).

Godwin Road, Forest Gate, E.

MR. ALFRED MOORE (Bass) will be happy to forward vacant dates for Oratorios and Concerts of all descriptions, in town or country, on application to his new address, Saint Winifred, Underhill Road, Lordship Lane, S.E.

CHESTER CATHEDRAL.—VACANCY for a SOLO BOY in the Choir. Board and education free, and £20 per annum. Age 9 to 12. Apply to the Rev. the Precentor, The Precincts, Chester.

MISS ELIZA THOMAS, Medalist R.A.M. (Contralto), will sing at Darlington ("Israel in Egypt"), February 14; Knaresborough, 17; Newcastle-on-Tyne, 18. 49, Upper George Street, Bryanston Square, London, W.

MUSICAL ASSOCIATION, 27, Harley Street, W. On MONDAY, February 6, 1882, at 5 o'clock, a Paper will be read by the Rev. Sir F. A. Gore Ouseley, Bart., M.A., Mus. D.: "Concerning some Theoretical Treatises on Music during the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries."

JAMES HIGGS, Hon. Sec.

9, Torrington Square, W.C.

WANTED, an ASSISTANT in a Music and Pianoforte Warehouse, about 20 miles from London. Must understand Sheet Music Business and be able to play the Piano. A good opening for a young man desirous of improvement. All kinds of repairs done on the premises. Address, M. S. S., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., stating salary required. Most unexceptional references must be given.

TRAVELLERS WANTED on COMMISSION for SHEET-MUSIC PARCELS sent on Sale at cash prices to Musicsellers throughout the kingdom: "La Petite Croizette" Valse, "Braemar" Galop, "Pantomime" Polka, "Severn Bridge" Galop, Gavotte Fantastique, Andante with variations, and "My first and only love" (Ballad). Schools and professors at wholesale prices. T. C. Turner and Co., Music Publishers, 74, Kingsdown Parade, Bristol.

PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM TUNER

WANTED at once for the country. Unexceptional references as to character and ability for general work required. Apply to Albertus, 111, West Street, Farnham, Surrey.

A BARGAIN.—ORGAN for SALE, now in the Rectory Place Congregational Church, Woolwich. Contains 8 stops in great organ, 6 stops in swell organ; one on the pedals, and the usual couplers and compensation pedals. Is being parted with to make room for a much larger instrument. For further particulars and orders to view, &amp;c., apply to the Organist, care of Mrs. Smith, 16, Rectory Grove, Woolwich.

ORCHESTRION WANTED, Second-hand. State lowest price. Address, X., care of J. W. Hime, Musicseller, 2, Elm Park Terrace, Fulham Road.

IMPORTANT to BANDMASTERS.—A new Brass and Military Band Journal will shortly be ready for issue. Edited by A. G. Mitchell, Mus. Bac., Oxon. First-class compositions and arrangements. Subscription (which may begin at any time) from 10s. 6d. per annum. Prospectus, with full particulars, free by post. Address, 44, High Street, Stamford.

Second Thousand.

O HOW AMIABLE ARE THY DWELLINGS, for Solo, Quartet, and Chorus. Anthem. Suitable for anniversary festival or ordinary services, by W. H. WILSON. "There is much we like in this anthem. It is vocal and melodious, and might with careful singing become very effective."—Musical Times. "It is within the powers of a fair choir, and worthy the attention of good ones."—Musical Standard. Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ROSSINI'S
POSTHUMOUS SONGS

IN MEMORIAM. The Words by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK ... 3s

LA LONTANANZA. Romanza ... 4s.

Sold at half-price.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CONDUCTOR, SUNDAY EVENING ASSOCIATION CHOIR.—Any Gentleman willing to give his services will oblige by applying to Mrs. E. Berry, 27, Upper Bedford Place, W.C.

BRONDESBURY (KILBURN) ORCHESTRAL SOCIETY.—AMATEURS WANTED to complete this Band. Wood wind wanted. Particulars of Herr Laubach, 59, Victoria Road, Kilburn.

SITUATION as TEACHER REQUIRED by a certificated student of Leipzig Conservatorium and of National Training School for Music. Composition, piano, and singing. L. C. M., 14, Boswell Street, Lodge Lane, Liverpool.

WANTED immediately, an ASSISTANT ORGANIST, for St. James's, Clapham Park, S.W. One who can train Boys. Apply to G. W. R. Hoare, Wednesday or Friday Evenings, 8 to 9 p.m.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER DIS-ENGAGED. Held last appointment over nine years. Thoroughly experienced as above, and holder of good testimonials. Surpliced Choir preferred. T. P., 19, Victoria Grove, Folkestone, Kent.

OXFORD (in or near).—An ORGANIST, now resident in Oxford, seeks an APPOINTMENT as above. Six years' London experience. Previously a pupil under Mr. G. F. Geaussen. Address, Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge Depot, Queen Street. Would deputise in the interim.

ORGANIST.—Young Lady, of considerable experience, desires RE-ENGAGEMENT. London or suburbs. Highest references and testimonials. Address, A. A., 20, Perth Road, Finsbury Park, Holloway, N.

MR. WARREN TEAR resigns the post of ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER of St. Philip's, Kennington, and seeks a RE-APPOINTMENT. 12, Clapham Road, S.W.

AN ORGANIST desires an APPOINTMENT. Held present post four years. Elvey's service preferred. Address, W. Wellstead, Organist, Duke's Street, Winterbourne-Kingston, Blandford, Dorset.

AS ORGANIST. Excellent references. Age 22. B. Y., 67, Church Road, Battersea.

ORGANIST.—A Gentleman (Pupil of J. Loaring, St. Sepulchre's Church, Holborn Viaduct) requires an APPOINTMENT as ORGANIST. Small salary. W. G., 13, Trevor Square, Brompton, S.W.

A CLERGYMAN highly recommends his late ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, who will be DISENGAGED in March, or could take engagement earlier. Services, Anglican or Gregorian. First-class player and accompanist. Address, Clericus, care of Mr. Eavestaff, Pianoforte Manufacturer, 14, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, a PIANOFORTE TUNER (Collard or Erard preferred). Must be a thoroughly sound Tuner and have good references. Apply, Mr. W. A. Boucher, Shrewsbury.

WANTED, a thoroughly practical Pianoforte and American Organ TUNER and REPAIRER for a permanency. None but first-class steady men need apply. Liberal wages to a competent man. Bruton and Co., Stokescroft, Bristol.

WANTED, immediately, a first-class TUNER and REGULATOR. Unexceptional references required. Good salary given. Apply, G. A. M., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNERS WANTED, in London, and also for provincial firms. Good hands may apply (personally preferred) to Challen and Son, 46, Oxford Street, London, W.

WANTED, a PIANOFORTE REPAIRER and TUNER, for a provincial house of old standing. Good wages to an experienced man. Good references indispensable. Apply, with full particulars, to P. S., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, an ACTION FITTER, who is able to fit up check and horizontal grand actions. Good references will be required, and to a clever finisher good wages will be paid. Apply, stating full particulars, to Hamburg, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, a SITUATION as PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM TUNER and REPAIRER. Good references given. Understands small instruments. North of England preferred. Apply, T., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER seeks ENGAGEMENT. Town or country. Age 27. Would make himself useful. Tuner, Sydney Place, Bright Street, Aston, Birmingham.

PIANOFORTE TUNER seeks ENGAGEMENT. Last two years with Messrs. Brinsmead and Sons. Steady; good references. Address, W. O., 38, Kentish Town Road, N.W.

A SITUATION REQUIRED as indoor TUNER and practical REPAIRER of PIANOS, HARMONIUMS, and ORGANS. A. Z., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TO MUSIC PROFESSORS and OTHERS.—WANTED, by an experienced PIANOFORTE TUNER, a few days' Tuning every month, in the Midland Counties. Address, T. W., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, by a Young Man, a SITUATION in Music Warehouse, as TUNER and ASSISTANT. Understands repairs of small goods. Good references. Address, Viola, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNING.—A Young Gentleman, who has been ten years in present situation, wishes an ENGAGEMENT in London or neighbourhood. Apply, Tuner, care of Philosophical Institution, Edinburgh.

AN experienced PIANOFORTE TUNER and REGULATOR wishes to meet with a RE-ENGAGEMENT. Address, Mr. F. Leach, 1, June Street, Chorlton-upon-Medlock, Manchester, or C. Clapham, Camp Road, Leeds.

PRACTICAL TUNER, REPAIRER, SALESMAN, PIANIST, and SIGHT READER, aged 24, wants whole or part EMPLOYMENT. Tuner, 26, Woodfield Crescent, Harrow Road, London.

WANTED, an experienced REPAIRER of CONCERTINAS, ACCORDIONS, HARMONIUMS, and small goods. Need not apply unless thoroughly practical and having good references. Address, Mr. W. A. Boucher, Shrewsbury.

EMPLOYMENT WANTED, by a Young Man, as HAMMER COVERER and REPAIRER of PIANOS, HARMONIUMS, and ORGANS. Would fill up spare time by doing any other light work. F., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TO PIANOFORTE MANUFACTURERS, &c.—A first-class TUNER and TONER, at present with an eminent firm, is open to an ENGAGEMENT (whole or partial). Good references. Great experience. F. G., 56, Crawshaw Road, North Briton.

YOUNG MAN, Good Character, desires a SITUATION in a Music Warehouse, where he could obtain a knowledge of Piano Tuning, and the trade generally. Is a fair pianist. Small salary required. Address, H. G. Moulden, The Biggin, Hitchin, Herts.

AN ASSISTANT WANTED in a General Music Warehouse. Lady or Gentleman. Inclose photograph and state wages required, and age. Address, Messrs. Jackson, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TO PIANOFORTE and MUSIC WAREHOUSES, SCHOOLS, &c.—A Lady, good Soloist (soprano), Reader and Accompanist, and possessing testimonials as an Organist and Choir-trainer, desires a good HOME in lieu of services. Address, M. G., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, an ASSISTANT, for a first-class Music Warehouse. Must be well up in Bookkeeping, also a good correspondent. One who can tune and regulate preferred. First-class character indispensable. Address full particulars to W. F., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, a YOUTH (about 17), to assist in Bookkeeping and to make himself useful. Must be a good writer and quick at figures. Highest references indispensable. W. Morley and Co., Music Publishers, 70, Upper Street, London, N.

TO PIANOFORTE and MUSIC WAREHOUSES. A Lady (37) will give her services as HOUSEKEEPER or BOOKKEEPER or both, to above, in return for a comfortable home. West district preferred. Address, A. Y., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TO THE MUSIC TRADE.—A Lady, with several years' experience in first-class houses, desires an ENGAGEMENT as COUNTER MANAGER or ASSISTANT. Address, M. F., care of Miss Howe, Fye Bridge, Norwich.

A RE-ENGAGEMENT WANTED in Sheet Music Department. Long experience in town and country; thorough knowledge of catalogues. A. B., 100, Jermyn Street, London.

WANTED, a Young Man to assist in a MUSIC BUSINESS. One who can tune preferred. Apply to J. La Feuillade, 91, High Street, Lewisham.

PROFESSOR'S HIGH-CLASS PRACTICE for DISPOSAL, Midland Counties. A Musical Graduate, of gentlemanly bearing, who can teach Singing, Piano, and Organ, conduct a Musical Society, &c., will find this an unusually good opportunity. Personal introductions. Apply, Cantab., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MUSIC BUSINESS for DISPOSAL. Old established. First-class connection. Piano Hiring and Concerts. Market town, Eastern Counties. Fine premises. Corner position. Rent, £70. Long lease. Profits, £350 net. About £800 required. Part might remain. A rare chance. Mr. Burghes, 1A, Paternoster Row, London, E.C.

MUSIC legibly COPIED, 4d. per page. Transposed, 6d. per page. Guitar Lessons on moderate terms. A Young Lady of neglected education can be received as Resident Pupil. Address, prepaid, to Professional, care of Messrs. Cocks and Co., 6, New Burlington Street, London.

MESSRS. LUCAS, SON & CO. have received instructions to negotiate the SALE of the following MUSIC BUSINESSES:—

A N Old-established and flourishing Business in a Cathedral Town in the West of England.

A FIRST-CLASS Business in a fashionable watering-place, on the North-west Coast.

A RATHER small but good Business and Tuning Connection in the County of Kent.

A GOOD Tuning Connection with small Stock, &c., in Lancashire.

They are also instructed to arrange a Partnership with a practical Gentleman for the purpose of purchasing an old-established and profitable Pianoforte Business in the West of England; also to arrange a Partnership with a Gentleman with moderate capital who is desirous of entering into the Music Trade.

For further particulars, apply to Messrs. Lucas, Son & Co., 20, Great Marlborough Street, London, W.

THE CO-OPERATIVE PIANOFORTE CLUB.—

The above Club is forming to supply its members with genuine instruments of elegant design and superior workmanship at actual cost price. This Club affords a means of obtaining a Piano in an easy and economical manner. For prospectus, rules, &c., apply to Mr. Arthur Davies, 52, Great Queen Street, Lincoln's Inn, W.C.

ORGAN to be SOLD, property of a Lady, two manuals, mahogany case, gilt front pipes, 21 stops. W. E. Richardson, Central Organ Works, Hulme, Manchester.

THREE-MANUAL ORGAN, 25 stops, suitable for Church, &c., almost entirely new. W. E. Richardson, Builder to Her Majesty, Central Organ Works, Hulme, Manchester.

TWO-MANUAL ORGAN for SALE, new, suitable for Church or Chamber. Compass, both manuals CC to G, 56 notes; 20 stops. Great Organ: open diapason, viol di gamba, hohlflute, dulciana, clarinet and bassoon, harmonic flute, principal, twelfth, fifteenth. Swell Organ: open diapason, keraulophon, oboe, double diapason, principal, twelfth, fifteenth. Separate pedal organ bourdon, full compass. Couplers: swell to great, great to pedal, swell to pedal. 3 compositions. Price £200. Apply, by letter only, Vox Humana, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGAN (Finger), 5 stops, powerful tone, handsome case, playing order. Maker, LINCOLN and SON. Price £18 10s. To be seen at 47, Asylum Road, Peckham, S.E.

SMALL ORGAN for SALE, cheap. Two manuals, 10 stops, pedals. Can be seen by appointment at owner's house. W. W. Johnson, Wingfields, Snaresbrook, E.

CC ORGAN, 10 stops, independent pedals, 2 octaves. Fine tone; perfectly sound. Rebuilt 5 years since at cost of £60. Decorated front. £25. E. Edwards, Capel Road, Watford.

CC ORGAN for SALE, in St. Matthew's Church, Ipswich. Two manuals and pedals, 23 stops. Apply to T. Palmer, Mus. Bac., London Road, Ipswich.

EXQUISITE CHAMBER ORGAN of special design. Two keyboards, with 8-ft. speaking pipes on great and reeds in swell. Independent pedal organ with 16-ft. tone; 12 stops in all, and magnificent polished rosewood case only 8½ ft. high. Cash price, £100. Letters only to X., care of Housekeeper, 59, Mark Lane, E.C.

ORGAN (nearly new), 2 manuals, 14 stops, bourdon pedals, 30 notes, for SALE, at very low price. Apply, A. B., Chalcot House, High Street, Hampstead, London.

ORGAN (quite new), 2 manuals, 7 stops, bourdon pedals. 3, Southcote Road, Upper Holloway, N.

FINE ORGAN, quite new, for SALE, in consequence of the room for which it was built not being available. Two manuals and pedals, full compass, 17 stops. Case pine-stained and varnished, front pipes decorated. Suitable for Church or Concert-room. May be seen at Gray and Davison's, 370, Euston Road, N.W.

ORGAN for SALE. Now in Congregational Church, Willesden, but must be moved in a fortnight to make room for larger instrument. Diapasons, principal, harmonic flute. Separate pedal organ of 20 notes and coupler. Ornamental front. £25. Apply to John Burr, 10, Blandford Place, Regent's Park, N.W.

SECOND-HAND ORGAN for SALE. Great Organ: 6 stops. Swell Organ: 4 stops. Separate bourdon, pedals, couplers, composition pedals, &c. Apply to A. Hunter, Organ Builder, 65A, High Street, Clapham, S.W.

HARMONIUM, 4 rows of reeds, 14 perfect stops. Church model, by Bauer. Rich and powerful tone. A bargain, 19 guineas. — Clematis Villa, Milton Road, Acton, W.

FOR SALE, OAK HARMONIUM by DEBAIN. 16 stops, knee swell, 4 rows reeds of 5 octaves each. £20. Apply, Arnold & Son, 2, High Street, Fareham.

TO ORGANISTS.—A 6½ Rosewood Cottage PIANOFORTE, in excellent order, and of good tone, with 2½ octaves of pedals, roller board and Sticker action, by WALKER and SON. Price £20. L. E. M., 11, Sparsholt Road, Crouch Hill, N.

A VERY fine Cottage PIANO, by KIRKMAN, new, and in perfect condition. Price 30 guineas; worth double retail. A most exceptional bargain. 60, Colvestone Crescent, Ridley Road, Kingsland.

SOLO VIOLIN, by JOSEPH GUARNERIU. War-ranted genuine. Hill's certificate. In fine preservation, and grand tone. Price £75. Address, Violin, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

FINE old Italian VIOLIN for SALE, cheap. Grand tone and condition, from the Gillot collection, with mahogany case and Dodd Bow. Also a fine old VIOLIN, by GILKES, Address, B., Clairmont House, Anchor Head, Weston-super-Mare.

WANTED, a fine perfect VIOLIN, by STRADIVARIUS or JOSEPH GUARNERIU. Apply, M., Messrs Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

FOR SALE.—An Italian VIOLIN, and another by PETER WAMSLEY; also VIOLONCELLO by THOMAS SMITH; and another, name unknown; all in perfect condition. Particulars of J. W. S., 43, Saxe-Coburg Street, Leicester.

FOR SALE.—A good VIOLA, STRAD. copy, in perfect condition. Price 35s. Viola, 15, Granby Street, Leicester.

FOR SALE.—A good VIOLONCELLO, in perfect condition. Price 50s. Cello, Gladstone Street, Loughborough.

VIOLONCELLO, a very fine example, by W. FORSTER. A copy of Guarnerius. To be SOLD, by a Gentleman, for £50. The instrument is numbered, signed, and dated, and is still in a very fine condition. Apply, Mr. Keyworth, 20, Regent Street, Waterloo Place, London, W.

FINE Italian VIOLONCELLO for SALE. Grand tone, excellent condition. Must be sold, as former owner is deceased. K., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TO VIOLINISTS.—THREE FIRST ITALIAN VIOLIN STRINGS (finest quality imported), sent post-free for thirteen stamps. Alphonse Cary, Manufacturer and Importer, Newbury, Berks. Professional violinists supplied at wholesale prices.

VIOLIN STRINGS.—The Trade and Shippers supplied with the best Italian Strings, finest in tone and unequalled in durability. Three sample Firsts sent post-free for thirteen stamps. London: Shepherd and Kilner, Music Publishers and Importers of Musical Instruments, Strings, &c., 7, Grocers' Hall Court, Poultry, E.C. Lists free.

VIOLIN STRINGS to stand at Concert Pitch, five first (gut or silk) or two everlasting metallic strings sent free for thirteen stamps. Dean's Music Warehouse, 77, City Road, London, E.C. Established 1848. Price Lists sent free.

NEW FIDDLES.—Messrs. W. J. MINTER and CO. beg to inform Amateurs and the Profession that they are Sole Agents in London for the splendid VIOLINS made by Mr. W. H. MAYSON, of Manchester. They have many choice specimens in stock, and will be pleased to submit the same for inspection either at their warehouse or by appointment in any part of London. Prices from £5 to £25. W. J. Minter and Co., Whitehall, near Maryland Point Station, E.

OLD MUSIC BOUGHT and SOLD.—Church Music, Full Scores, Oratorios, Biographies, Histories, Treatises, Glee, Madrigals, Organ Music. Full value and cash payments. Reeves's Depot for Old Music, Fleet Street, London.

MARRIOTT and WILLIAMS, Music Publishers, Academy House, 313, Oxford Street, London. Universal Music Warehouse. Authors' Works Engraved, Printed, and Published in the best style at the most moderate charges. Estimates on application.

TO AMATEURS and PROFESSORS about to PUBLISH.—J. McDOWELL, 25, Warwick Street, Regent Street, London, undertakes Revising, Engraving, Printing, and Publishing all musical works, in the best manner, at lowest possible terms. Estimates given on receipt of MS.

IMPORTANT TO MUSICSELLERS.—Having the largest varied stock of Music in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day, or if in stock posted immediately, if required. Terms upon application. London: B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster Row, E.C.

AUTHORS' WORKS CORRECTED, REVISED, and PRINTED with despatch on moderate terms. Quotations given on receipt of MSS. London: B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster Row, E.C.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, is., post-free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing-Class Tutor, 12th edition, 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity Street, Huddersfield.

ORGAN METAL PIPE and BRASS REED MAKER. First-class workmanship. J. White, 9, Richmond Terrace, Bedminster, Bristol.

ARRANGEMENT OF SALES OF MUSICAL PROPERTY
FOR 1882.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON beg to announce that they will hold their SPECIAL MONTHLY SALES OF MUSICAL PROPERTY of every description on the following dates:—

Tuesday, Feb. 27.	Tuesday, June 20.	Tuesday, Oct. 17.
March 27.	July 25.	Nov. 21.
Friday, April 28.	Aug. 15.	Dec. 19.
Tuesday, May 23.	Sept. —

Property intended for insertion in any of the above Sales, or particulars of same sufficiently detailed for the Catalogue, should reach us ten days prior to the dates mentioned.

Auction Gallery, 47, Leicester Square, London, W.C.

[Established 1794.]

KELLY and CO., PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM MAKERS (to Her Majesty), 14 and 16, Mortimer Street, London, W.

Kelly's Organ Harmoniums are the "only instruments" of English manufacture that gained "any award" at the Dublin and Paris Exhibitions.

A liberal discount for Schools and Charitable Institutions.

Three hundred Second-hand Pianofortes by the leading makers, at all times very cheap. New Pianos (warranted), in elegant Walnut or Rosewood cases, from 19 guineas.

The Trade, Merchants, and Shippers supplied.

Monthly Sale of Musical Property.—16, Mortimer Street, London, W. About Fifty Pianofortes by Broadwood, Collard, Kirkman, Erard, Allison, Hopkinson, Brinsmead, &c. Harmoniums and Organs by Christophe, Alexandre, Trayser, Hermann, Mason and Hamlin, &c. Harps by Erard, &c. Violins, Pianoforte Small-Work, Music Stools, Sundries, &c.

MESSRS. KELLY & CO. beg to announce that they will Sell by Auction, at their Mart, 16, Mortimer Street, London, W., on WEDNESDAY, February 8, 1882, the important and valuable property as stated above. The Sale will commence at 1 o'clock precisely. Catalogues may be had post-free, and goods viewed the day prior and morning of Sale.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, supplied at wholesale prices, at J. MOORE'S, Buxton Road, Huddersfield. Prices, with drawings of every instrument, post-free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the Army, Navy, and Rifle Corps.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c. Violins, Concertinas, &c. 29, Minories, London. List for stamp.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications made out for Organs. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing, and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. Willis, 29, Minories, London. PRACTICE can be had on a complete Instrument.

EUSTACE INGRAM, Church Organ Builder, combines excellence of tone and workmanship with economy. Inspection invited. Organ Works, Burnard Place, Eden Grove, Holloway Road, London, N.

A. MONK, ORGAN BUILDER.—Organs built to any specification or size, and to suit any position or limited space, in any part of the kingdom, or for foreign climates. All Organs guaranteed to be of best materials and workmanship, and constructed on the most improved principles, at moderate prices. Organs for sale by hire, or on easy terms. Price-list, specifications, estimates, and testimonials sent free. Old Organs taken in exchange or rebuilt. Additions, repairs, tunings, &c. Inspection of work solicited. 6, Sussex Terrace, top of Great College Street, Camden Town, London, N.W.

D'ALMAINE PIANOS, HALF-PRICE.—In consequence of a change of partnership, the whole of this splendid stock, perfected with all the improvements of the day by this long-standing firm, of 100 years reputation, and, in order to effect a speedy sale, the easiest terms arranged, with seven years' warranty. Trichord Cottages from hire, or taken in exchange, £10 to £12.

Class 0, £14.	Class 2, £20.	Class 4, £26.	Class 6, £35.
Class 1, £17.	Class 3, £23.	Class 5, £30.	Class 7, £40.

American Organs, from £5.—91, Finsbury Pavement, Moorgate.

MALEY, YOUNG, & OLDFKNOW,
ORGAN BUILDERS,

Manufactory:

KING'S ROAD, ST. PANCRAS, LONDON, N.W.

ORGANS Rebuilt to suit any position, Repaired, Enlarged, Tuned, and Re-voiced (in any part of the kingdom), at very moderate charges. Materials, workmanship, and tone guaranteed to be first-class.

Specifications, estimates, and designs for chancel, bracket, chamber, and all descriptions of Organs.

N.B.—New and Second-hand Organs for Sale.

INSPECTION INVITED.

JAMES CONACHER AND SONS,
ORGAN BUILDERS,
BATH BUILDINGS, HUDDERSFIELD.

Specifications and Estimates free of charge.

VIOLIN AND BOW
MAKERS AND REPAIRERS,
GEORGE WITHERS & CO.

(Late of Coventry Street),

WHOLESALE IMPORTERS OF

MUSICAL STRINGS

FROM ROME, PADUA, AND NAPLES.

A FINE COLLECTION OF ITALIAN INSTRUMENTS.

Bows, Cases, Music Stands, &c. See Price Lists.

51, ST. MARTIN'S LANE, LONDON.

NO OTHER ADDRESS.

NEW MUSIC-ENGRAVING
(STEAM PRINTING)

EXHIBITED IN

PARIS, VIENNA, and PHILADELPHIA.

Superior to Pewter Plates and Metal Types.

50 PER CENT. CHEAPER.

SPECIMENS and ESTIMATE

will be sent post-free on receipt of manuscript.

SONG, PIANO PIECE, &c. Engraving, Printing, and Paper:—

4 Pages, including Title, 100 Copies (Folio) ... £1 8 0

The following 100 Copies ... 0 4 0

ANTHEM, PART-SONG, KYRIE, HYMN, &c.:—

4 Pages, including Heading, 100 Copies (Octavo) ... 1 2 0

The following 100 Copies ... 0 2 0

OPERA, CHORUS, BAND-PART, &c.: Sacred Music of any kind; BOOK with ILLUSTRATIONS; TITLES with Views, in colours, highly ornamental; COPYING old Books, Manuscripts, Drawings, &c., by Photography and Patent Processes.

Reprint supplied.

The most perfect Machinery and a large well-trained Musical Staff enable us to supply even the largest orders within the shortest time.

PATENT PAPER TYPE COMPANY,

62, HATTON GARDEN, LONDON, E.C.

BUTLER'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

Violins, Guitars, and Banjos.

Flutes, Clarinets, and Flageolets.

Concertinas, Accordions, and Flutinas.

Harmoniums, Pianos, and Organs.

Cornets, Drums, and Band Instruments.

Musical Boxes and Musical Instruments of every description.

The largest and most varied assortment in the Kingdom.

G. BUTLER'S, 29, Haymarket, London.

Illustrated Catalogue, fifty pages, sent post-free.

J. HAMILTON would draw the attention of those requiring PEDALS and ACTION to their Pianofortes to the correspondence on page 46 of the Musical Standard for January 21, which shows the success of Pedals made by him according to the resolution of the Organ Conference at the College of Organists. The action is easily attached to any kind of Pianoforte in a short time.

A Set of Straight Pedals and Action (30 notes), price £4 4s.

A Set of Radiating and Concave Pedals and Action (30 notes), price £5 5s.

A Set of Straight and Concave Pedals, as recommended at the Organ Conference, 1881, and Action, price £5 5s.

Full printed instructions, "How to Attach," are sent with each set. Liberal discount to the Profession and Trade. Send for testimonials and terms to J. Hamilton, 6, Chesterton Terrace, City Road, Bristol.

ORGAN PEDALS TO PIANOFORTES
TO ORGAN STUDENTS AND ORGANISTS
RUMMENS'S ATTACHMENT
(PATENTED)

Is quite free from the defects and disadvantages attendant upon other modes of attachment. Humphrey J. Stark, Esq., Mus. Bac., Oxon, says of it: "Mr. Rummens's invention is a valuable one, as it entirely obviates the objections usually raised against pedal attachments. There is not the slightest fear of injury to the Pianoforte, and the action is so contrived that rapid legato passages can be played with ease and certainty. I have much pleasure in cordially recommending the invention."

Prices and full particulars from the Inventor, Patentee, and Manufacturer, Henry J. Rummens, 102, Railton Road, Brixton, London.

60 GENUINE old VIOLINS for SALE, including solo instruments by A. and H. and Nicholas Amati, Banks, Cappa, Cross, Duke, Guadagnini, P. Guarnerius, Klotz, Lupot, Maggini, Raphael, &c.; and an Andreas Amati, belonging to Cervetto in 1748. Apply, Mr. J. Dace, Colchester.

ORGAN MUSIC for SALE, cheap. List sent. A. Thistlewood, 5, Hunter's Lane, Birmingham.

Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency

(Established for the transaction of all Musical Business, Professional and General),

12, BERNERS STREET, LONDON, W.

Office Hours, 10 to 5; Saturday, 10 to 1.

TO CONCERT-GIVERS AND ENTREPRENEURS GENERALLY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform Projectors of Concerts, Secretaries of Institutions, and Entrepreneurs generally that he is prepared to arrange for large or small parties of artists of all positions in the profession, and for Concert Tours. All details of management undertaken without the slightest trouble to those favouring Mr. Stedman with their wishes. Terms upon application.

TO THE CLERGY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform the Clergy that he has established a REGISTRY of ORGANISTS, CHOIRMEN, and CHORISTERS seeking APPOINTMENTS, which is open to their inspection, and they are invited either to call, or to write stating their requirements. From his personal knowledge of the qualifications of Organists and Singers, Mr. Stedman is able to give the Clergy valuable information as a guide to selection.

CHURCH FESTIVALS arranged and carried out in all details.

CHOIR-BOYS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to supply good SOLO CHOIR-BOYS for Church Festivals, Choral Weddings, Concerts, &c.

MUSIC FOR BANQUETS, &c.

MR. STEDMAN undertakes the music (and all the necessary details) for Banquets of City Companies, Masonic Lodges, &c., at the shortest notice.

ORCHESTRAS AND CHOIRS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to provide CHOIRS and ORCHESTRAS for the performance of Oratorios and Cantatas.

MR. STEDMAN will be happy to advise his clients upon all professional matters, confidential or otherwise, either by letter or personally by previous appointment at his Offices, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

NOW READY.

SCHUBERT'S SONGS

VOLUME I.

TWENTY SONGS

FOR A

MEZZO-SOPRANO VOICE

The English Version by NATALIA MACFARREN.

PRICE ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE.

CONTENTS.

Praise of Tears.
Knowest thou the land? (Mignon's first song in "Wilhelm Meister.")
The Message of Flowers.
Nought may'st thou ask me. (Mignon's second song in "Wilhelm Meister.")
Oh, let me dream till I awaken. (Mignon's third song in "Wilhelm Meister.")
The greenwood calls. (Slumber Song.)
The full-orbed moon. (Romance from "Rosamunde.")
Hallow'd night, descend.

Huntsman, rest. (Ellen's second song in "The Lady of the Lake.")
Thro' the pine-wood.
The summer waves.
Wanderer's Night-song.
Trust in Spring.
The Maiden's Lament.
To Mignon.
The Passing-Bell.
Alinda.
Ave Maria. (Ellen's third song in "The Lady of the Lake.")
The Fisherman.
On the water.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Crown Octavo, cloth, 2s. 6d.

THE

MUSIC OF THE BIBLE

WITH AN ACCOUNT OF THE

DEVELOPMENT OF MODERN MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FROM ANCIENT TYPES, BY

JOHN STAINER, M.A., Mus. Doc.

"The very excellent illustrations scattered throughout the book materially increase its value; and we sincerely hope that Dr. Stainer's labours may be rewarded as they deserve, for not only has he accumulated a large mass of reliable information upon a subject of the deepest interest, but he has thrown additional light upon much of this evidence by giving us the result of his own practical experience."—Musical Times.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FULL ORCHESTRAL SCORES

PUBLISHED BY

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

SPOHR

THE LAST JUDGMENT. English and German words ... £1 11 6
GOD, THOU ART GREAT. ditto ... 0 10 6

HANDEL

MESSIAH ... I 1 0

HANDEL AND MOZART

ACIS AND GALATEA. English and German words.
(Mozart's Accompaniments) ... I 11 6

HAYDN

CREATION ... I 1 0

MENDELSSOHN

ELIJAH. English and German words ... I 5 0
ST. PAUL. ditto ... I 5 0
HEAR MY PRAYER. ditto ... 0 6 0

SIR W. S. BENNETT

THE MAY QUEEN. New Edition (In the press).

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

CASES

FOR BINDING THE NUMBERS FOR THE PAST YEAR,

VOL. XXII.

Are now ready, and may be had of all Musicsellers in Town and Country.

Cloth, bevelled boards, handsome design in black.

PRICE 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE

LIFE OF MOZART

INCLUDING HIS CORRESPONDENCE

BY

EDWARD HOLMES.

A New Edition, with Notes, by EBENEZER PROUT.

Cloth, Five Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

MINIATURES for the PIANOFORTE

COMPOSED BY

OLIVER KING.

Book I.—2s. net.	Book II.—2s. net.	Book III.—2s. net.
SEGUIDILLA.	RÉVERIE.	EDVARD GRIEG.
ROMANCE.	AUBADE.	ADOLPHE HENSELT.
CANON.	IDYLL.	STEPHEN HELLER.
MAZURKA.	MINUET.	FRANZ LISZT.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ARRANGEMENTS for the ORGAN

BY

J. MARTIN DUNSTAN.

Allegretto (Symphony). "Hymn of Praise" ...	Mendelssohn	s. d.
Adagio Cantabile (Third Symphony) ...	Haydn	1 6
Return, O God of hosts, "Samson" ...	Handel	0 6
Pious orgies, "Judas Maccabæus" ...	Handel	0 6
Lord, remember David ...	Handel	0 6
Quis est homo, "Stabat Mater" ...	Rossini	0 6
Heaven and the earth display, "Athalie" ...	Mendelssohn	1 6
To Thee cherubim, "Dettingen Te Deum" ...	Handel	1 0
And the glory of the Lord, "Messiah" ...	Handel	1 0
Andantino (from a Trio) ...	Himmel	1 0
Andante Cantabile (Sonata in C, No. 10) ...	Mozart	1 0
Largo (String Quartet. Op. 40) ...	Haydn	1 0
The people that walked in darkness, "Messiah" ...	Handel & Mozart	1 0
Angels ever bright and fair, "Theodora" ...	Handel	0 6

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ASHDOWN & PARRY'S CATALOGUES OF MUSIC.

PART 1. PIANO, ORGAN, HARMONIUM.
PART 2. VOCAL.
PART 3. HARP, CONCERTINA.
PART 4. VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, ORCHESTRA, &c.
PART 5. FLUTE, CORNET, CLARINET, &c.

Sent Gratis and Post-free to any part of the world.

1882.

Ashdown & Parry's Yellow Catalogue,

Compiled expressly for the use of the Trade, Profession, and Schools, comprises A SELECTION OF UPWARDS OF 5,000 STANDARD MUSICAL WORKS. SENT GRATIS and POST-FREE to ANY PART of the WORLD. All applications for trade terms must contain card, circular, or reference.

SHILLING BOOKS

PUBLISHED BY

ASHDOWN & PARRY.

J. JOUSSE'S CATECHISM OF MUSIC. Edited and Revised by WALTER MACFARREN.

THE MOTHER'S OWN ASSISTANT AT THE PIANOFORTE. An easy method.

A PIANOFORTE CATECHISM, BY EDWIN M. LOTT.

PIANOFORTE.

1. FIRST ALBUM OF DANCE MUSIC. Containing Cornflower Waltz, &c., &c.

2. SECOND ALBUM OF DANCE MUSIC. Containing Punch and Judy Quadrilles, &c., &c.

3. THIRD ALBUM OF DANCE MUSIC. Containing Pauline Valse, &c., &c.

4. FOURTH ALBUM OF DANCE MUSIC. Containing The Language of Flowers Valse, &c., &c.

5. FIFTH ALBUM OF DANCE MUSIC. Containing Awfully Jolly Valse, &c., &c.

VOCAL.

1. TWELVE COMIC SONGS BY ARTHUR LLOYD (First Series). Including "Dada," "The Baby Show," "The Blighted Barber," &c., &c.

2. TWELVE COMIC SONGS BY ARTHUR LLOYD (Second Series). Including "The Schoolmaster," "Married to a Mermaid," "My Wife's Relations," &c., &c.

3. TWELVE COMIC SONGS BY FRED ALBERT. Including "Bradshaw's Guide," "Playing on the same Old String," &c., &c.

4. TWELVE COMIC SONGS BY GEORGE LEYBOURNE. Including "I won't believe it's true," "Shy, shy, awfully shy," &c., &c.

5. TWELVE POPULAR BALLADS. Including "Silver Herring," "I'll be all smiles to-night," &c., &c.

6. UNCLE TOM'S CABIN. Songs and Choruses (introduced in the Drama) composed and arranged by J. E. MALLANDRAINE.

7. ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY COMIC SONGS. (Words and Melodies.)

8. ONE HUNDRED POPULAR SONGS AND SCENAS BY HENRY RUSSELL. (Words and Melodies.)

9. THE CHILD'S OWN SINGING BOOK, OR OLD SONGS FOR YOUNG SINGERS. Containing popular melodies and favourite rounds, with Pianoforte Accompaniment by MARIA and WILLIAM HUTCHINS CALICOTT.

VIOLIN.

1. POPULAR DANCE MUSIC (15 Sets). Including Immenseikoff Quadrille, Twilight Schottische, Blue Danube Waltzes, &c., &c.

2. POPULAR DANCE MUSIC (15 Sets), Second Series. Including Oughts and Crosses Quadrille, Derby Galop, Les Roses Valse, &c., &c.

3. SIXTY-FOUR COMIC MELODIES. Including "The German Band," "Constantinople," "Song of Songs," &c., &c.

FLUTE.

1. SIXTY-FOUR COMIC MELODIES. Including "The German Band," "Constantinople," "Song of Songs," &c., &c.

2. TUTOR, WITH A SELECTION OF THE MOST ADMIRE MELODIES, BY R. SIDNEY PRATTEN.

CORNET.

1. SIXTY-FOUR COMIC MELODIES. Including "The German Band," "Constantinople," "Song of Songs," &c., &c.

2. TUTOR, WITH A SELECTION OF THE MOST POPULAR MELODIES, BY CARL HÖCHST.

CONCERTINA.

SIXTY-FOUR COMIC MELODIES. Including "The German Band," "Constantinople," "Song of Songs," &c., &c.

LONDON: ASHDOWN & PARRY, HANOVER SQUARE.

JUST PUBLISHED.

JOHANNES BRAHMS'S CONCERTO No. 2

IN B FLAT

FOR

PIANOFORTE & ORCHESTRA

ARRANGED FOR

TWO PIANOFORTES

PRICE 40s.

SOLD AT HALF-PRICE.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published.

JOHANNES BRAHMS'S HUNGARIAN DANCES

NEW AND COMPLETE EDITION.

PIANOFORTE SOLO. s. d.
4 Books, in 1 Vol. ... .. net 7 6

PIANOFORTE DUET. s. d.
4 Books, in 1 Vol. ... .. „ 10 0

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

JOHANN SEBASTIAN BACH'S ORGAN COMPOSITIONS

EDITED BY

GRIEPENKERL AND ROITZSCH.

VOLUME IX.

Containing Concerto in G, Fugues, and other pieces never before published. Price, net, 3s.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

RITTER ALBUM

FOR THE ORGAN

A COLLECTION OF FIFTY-FOUR ORIGINAL PIECES
COMPOSED IN HONOUR OF

A. G. RITTER,

Fifty Years Organist at Magdeburg

BY THE

MOST EMINENT GERMAN COMPOSERS OF ORGAN MUSIC

EDITED BY

RUDOLPH PALME.

Price, net, 21s.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published.

W. A. MOZART'S PIANOFORTE CONCERTOS

For Pianoforte alone, or with Accompaniment of a second Pianoforte, String Quintet, or Full Orchestra.

REVISED AND EDITED FOR STUDY AND CONCERT-ROOM BY

DR. S. LEBERT.

Nos.	Key.	Piano Solo.		Second Piano.		Quintet
		net.	s. d.	net.	s. d.	net.
5 (12).	F major	...	3 0	...	1 2	1 10
6 (10).	A major	...	3 0	...	1 2	1 10
7 (5).	C major	...	3 4	...	1 4	1 10
8 (14).	E flat major	...	3 0	...	1 4	1 10
12 (11).	B flat major	...	3 4	...	1 6	2 0
14 (8).	D minor	...	3 6	...	1 8	2 0
15 (1).	C major	...	3 4	...	1 6	2 0
16 (6).	E flat major	...	3 6	...	1 8	2 0
17 (2).	A major	...	3 0	...	1 4	1 10
18 (7).	C minor	...	3 4	...	1 6	2 0
19 (16).	C major	...	3 4	...	1 6	2 0
20 (20).	D major	...	3 6	...	1 8	2 0

In this edition the Concertos are numbered in chronological order, the numbers under which they are known in the old edition of Messrs. Breitkopf and Härtel, of Leipzig, being added in brackets.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

ANTHEMS, &c., FOR LENT.

All ye who weep ... ..	Ch. Gounod	3d.
Come and let us return ... ..	Sir John Goss	3d.
Come unto Him ... ..	Ch. Gounod	2d.
Come unto Me ... ..	J. Stafford Smith	14d.
Comfort the soul of Thy servant ... ..	Dr. Crotch	14d.
Day of anger ... ..	Mozart	6d.
Distracted with care ... ..	Haydn	4d.
Enter not into judgment ... ..	Attwood	14d.
For our offences ... ..	Mendelssohn	14d.
Have mercy upon me ... ..	C. Steggall	6d.
He in tears that soweth ... ..	Dr. Hiller	14d.
Incline Thine ear ... ..	Himmel	14d.
In Thee, O Lord ... ..	B. Tours	3d.
In Thee, O Lord ... ..	Weldon	3d.
I will cry unto God ... ..	C. Steggall	3d.
Lord, for Thy tender mercies' sake ... ..	Farrant	14d.
Lord, on our offences ... ..	Mendelssohn	14d.
Make me a clean heart ... ..	J. Barnby	3d.
O come near to the cross ... ..	Ch. Gounod	8d.
O day of penitence ... ..	...	6d.
O Lord my God ... ..	C. Malan	14d.
O Lord, my God ... ..	S. S. Wesley	14d.
O saving Victim ... ..	Ch. Gounod	4d.
O saving Victim ... ..	Berthold Tours	14d.
O Saviour of the world ... ..	Sir John Goss	14d.
Out of the deep ... ..	J. Naylor	3d.
Rend your heart ... ..	J. Baptiste Calkin	14d.
Seek ye the Lord ... ..	Dr. Roberts	3d.
Think, good Jesu ... ..	Mozart	6d.
Thus saith the Lord ... ..	Dr. Garrett	6d.
Turn Thee again ... ..	Attwood	14d.
Turn Thy face from my sins ... ..	...	14d.
Turn Thy face from my sins ... ..	A. Sullivan	14d.
Turn Thy face from my sins ... ..	C. Steggall	14d.
Unto Thee have I cried ... ..	Sir G. Elvey	3d.
Word of God Incarnate ... ..	Ch. Gounod	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR LENT.

THE PASSION OF CHRIST. Set to Music by G. F. HANDEL. Octavo, paper cover, 3s. Paper boards, 3s. 6d. Scarlet cloth, gilt, 5s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (According to St. Matthew.) Set to Music by JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH. Octavo, paper cover, 2s. Paper boards, 2s. 6d. Scarlet cloth, gilt, 4s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (According to St. John.) Set to Music by JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH. Octavo, paper cover, 2s. Paper boards, 2s. 6d. Scarlet cloth, gilt, 4s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (The Seven Words of Our Saviour on the Cross.) Set to Music by J. HAYDN. Octavo, paper cover, 2s. Paper boards, 2s. 6d. Scarlet cloth, gilt, 4s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (The Seven Words of Our Saviour on the Cross.) Set to Music by CH. GOUNOD. Octavo, paper cover, 1s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. ("Der Tod Jesu.") Set to Music by C. H. GRAUN. Octavo, paper cover, 2s. Paper boards, 2s. 6d. Scarlet cloth, gilt, 4s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR LENT.

THE BENEDICITE

SET TO MUSIC BY THE FOLLOWING
MODERN COMPOSERS

OCTAVO.
GEORGE C. MARTIN	4d.
W. T. BEST	3d.
J. BARNBY	...
JOHN FOSTER	...
MONTELM SMITH (two settings)	14d.
J. TURLE (two settings)	...
REV. C. A. WICKES (two settings)	...
C. E. MILLER	2d.
HENRY GADSBY	2d.
DR. STAINER, R. DE LACEY, A. GIBBS, and F. CHAMPNEYS	14d.
DR. STAINER, W. WINN, and F. WALKER	14d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR LENT.

THE MISERERE, &c., as used in St. Paul's Cathedral Lenten Services. Arranged by J. STAINER. 8vo. Price 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. The music composed by J. BARNBY. 8vo. Price 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Third edition, price 3d.
BENEDICITE.—For Lent and Advent. Three different settings. By ALEX. S. COOPER. "Simple, appropriate, and very effective."—The Choir.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; and WEEKES and Co.

BENEDICITE, in Chant Form. By ALBERT E. BISHOP. 3d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

BENEDICITE OMNIA OPERA. Set to Music by C. F. SOUTH (Organist of St. Augustine's and St. Faith's, Watling Street). Price 14d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

BENEDICITE OMNIA OPERA. Price 2d. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis (Chant Form). Price 4d. "The eyes of all" (Anthem). Price 4d. By HAYDN KEETON, Mus. Doc., Oxon.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

New Anthem for Lent.

OUT OF THE DEEP

Composed expressly for and presented to the Choir Benevolent Fund by Dr. F. E. GLADSTONE.
Octavo, 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ALBERT LOWE'S EASTER ANTHEM.—THE LORD IS MY STRENGTH. Short, easy, full, and effective. Composed expressly for Parish Choirs. Octavo, 3d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FESTIVAL SETTINGS

OF THE

MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS,

WITH ACCOMPANIMENTS FOR ORGAN AND ORCHESTRA.
Calkin, J. Baptiste (in G)..... 6d. Martin, George C. (in A)..... 6d.
Barnby, J. (in E flat)..... 8d. Stainer, Dr. (in A)..... 4d.
Bridge, Dr. (in G)..... 4d. Stanford, C. Villiers (in A)..... 6d.
Fanning, Eaton (in C)..... 6d. Tours, Berthold (in F)..... 4d.
Gadsby, Henry (in C)..... 6d. Steggall, Dr. (in C)..... 6d.
Martin, George C. (in C)..... 6d.

The above may also be performed either with strings and organ accompaniment, or with organ only, when necessary.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

New Edition of Bach's Organ Works.

THE ORGAN WORKS

OF

JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH

EDITED BY

J. F. BRIDGE AND JAMES HIGGS,
Mus. Doc., Oxon. Mus. Bac., Oxon.

BOOK I.—EIGHT SHORT PRELUDES AND FUGUES.
PRICE 2s. 6d.

In this edition much help is offered toward a correct and effective rendering of Bach's Organ Music. The distribution of the parts between the two hands is clearly shown. The notes most conveniently played by the right hand are printed on the upper, and those best taken by the left hand on the lower, of the two manual staves. The pedalling is indicated where necessary. Marks of expression and phrasing are added occasionally, and suggestions for the effective use of the organ are given throughout. The preface contains many useful hints.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

SONATA (in D minor) for the ORGAN. Composed by JAMES C. CULWICK. Op. 3. Dedicated to Sir R. P. Stewart, Mus. D. Price 3s. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MUSICAL DIRECTORY ANNUAL and ALMANAC for 1882. THIRTIETH ANNUAL ISSUE. Now ready. Contents: The names and addresses of the Professors of Music, Musicians, and Musical Instrument Dealers in the United Kingdom; New Copyright Music published during the year; Principal Events, &c., &c. Price 3s., or in cloth, 4s. Also SIR JULIUS BENEDICT'S PROFESSIONAL POCKET BOOK, giving spaces for engagements for every hour in the day. Price in roan, 3s.; or in Russia, 6s.
RUDALL, CARTE and Co., 23, Berners Street, W.

THE PEERAGE, BARONETAGE, and KNIGHTAGE of the BRITISH EMPIRE for 1882, by JOSEPH FOSTER.

In one or two volumes, royal 8vo, cloth gilt, price 42s. The Peerage or Baronetage separate, each, 21s.

The THIRD EDITION, for 1882, containing all new Creations, has been considerably enlarged, and carefully corrected throughout. It is illustrated by upwards of 1,400 engravings of Arms, &c., and contains fuller pedigrees than any other work.

Westminster: NICHOLS and SONS, 25, Parliament Street.
CHAPMAN and HALL, Limited, 11, Henrietta Street, W.C.

EIGHTY-FIRST EDITION.

PRICE ONE SHILLING, ENLARGED.

*A specimen copy post-free for twelve stamps.COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL SIGHT-SINGING MANUAL.

FOR CHOIRS.—The easiest system that can be obtained for training, improving, and learning to read music at sight.

FOR SCHOOLS.—Every requisite for learning music, and reading at sight in a few lessons.

FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.—The exercises will be found invaluable, tending to produce musical effects seldom heard.

COLLEGIATE ORGAN TUTOR

EDITED BY FREDERIC ARCHER.

3s. 6d. net.

"Well adapted for making an excellent player."

"For pedal-playing, any difficulties surmounted in a short time."

"Contains the most pleasing arrangements for the organ we have seen."

THIRTEENTH EDITION.

Paper cover, 1s.; bound in cloth, 1s. 6d.

CATHEDRAL CHANT-BOOK

Containing nearly 200 Single and Double Chants; Gregorian Tones.

Just published.

BOOKS 2, 3, &amp; 4,

COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL
SINGING MANUALS

Containing

ROUNDS, FOUR-PART SONGS, MADRIGALS, MOTETS,
CHORUSES, GLEES, &c.

Price One Shilling.

A specimen copy post-free for twelve stamps.

London: WEEKES and CO., 16, Hanover Street, W.

Second Edition.

SUPPLEMENTAL

BOOK OF EXERCISES

FOR THE USE OF THOSE

LEARNING TO SING AT SIGHT

COMPILED AND ARRANGED BY

HENRY GADSBY.

ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

New and Revised Edition.

THE

SCHOOL ROUND BOOK

A COLLECTION OF ONE HUNDRED

ROUNDS, CATCHES, AND CANONS

The Words Edited by the

REV. J. POWELL METCALFE, M.A.

The Music Edited by

J. STAINER, M.A., MUS. DOC.

Price 8d.; cloth, 1s. 2d.

IN SOL-FA NOTATION, 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Dedicated, by permission, to the College of Organists.

ON TUNING THE ORGAN: Illustrated.
Faults with remedies. Post-free, 2s. 6d. P.O.O. to A. HEM-
STOCK, Diss."Every page shows that Mr. Hemstock is master of his subject."—
Musical Standard."Contains much useful information."—Musical Times."A practical and useful book."—Music Trade Review.

REDUCED PRICE, ONE SHILLING.

A MANUAL OF SINGING

FOR THE USE OF

CHOIRTRAINERS &amp; SCHOOLMASTERS

BY

RICHARD MANN.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION, WITH ADDITIONS, BY

DR. STAINER.

This work offers to the clergy and other amateur choir-trainers a systematic and simple course of instruction, by which they may teach their pupils to read music at sight
in a comparatively short time.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

A COLLECTION

OF

TWO-PART SOLFEGGIIn the principal major keys, designed for the practice of Choristers
and Vocal Classes generally,

SELECTED FROM

DURANTE, HANDEL, LEO, SCARLATTI, STEFFANI,
NARES, WEBBE, &c.

BY

JAMES HIGGS,

Mus. Bac., Oxon.

ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

32 pp., price 6d. Annual Subscription, 6s. 6d. post-free.

THE ORCHESTRA AND THE CHOIR.(Edited by W. A. BARRETT, Mus. B., F.R.S.L., &c.) A Monthly Review; Musical, Dramatic, and Literary.

Printers, SWIFT and Co.; sold by W. REEVES, Fleet Street, London.

Now ready, No. 53, 44 pp., 2d.; post-free, 3d.

MUSICAL OPINION AND MUSIC TRADE
REVIEW. PITMAN; and to order of all Book and Musicsellers.A PRO-CONSERVATOIRE IN POSSE.—See February number of Musical Education. 16 large pages and Supplement of Music. Post-free, 2d.

A. HAMMOND and Co., 5, Vigo Street, London, W.

MANUSCRIPT MUSIC BOOK.—ArthurRegaldi's Manuscript Music Book is the best ever introduced; it contains 20 leaves of stout, hard music-paper of twelve staves on each page, adapted either for songs, pieces, or dance music. The advantage of this book is that it is full music size, and music can be copied in it in fac-simile, page for page, as published, and bound with ordinary sheet music. Price One Shilling; by post Fourpence additional. Can only be obtained of THOMAS ROBINSON, Wholesale Music-seller, Romford. A liberal discount to the profession.THE JOURNAL FOR THE MUSIC TRADE,Containing news of interest to Publishers, Piano and Harmonium Makers, Organ Builders, and Makers of and Dealers in Instruments, is MUSICAL OPINION AND MUSIC TRADE REVIEW.Forty-four pages. Price 2d. Of all Book and Musicsellers; by post (3d.) of

J. F. REID and NEPHEW, Advertising Agents, 1, Sherborne Lane, E.C.

WILFORD MORGAN'S GRAND MARCHES."CHRISTIAN THE PILGRIM" for ORGAN, with PEDAL OBLIGATO. 24 stamps, post-free. As played at Crystal Palace, Kuhe's Festival, and Promenade Concerts. Also for Piano solo:—

MARCIA GIUBILANTI

MARCHE JOYEUSE

MARCHE MILITAIRE

MARCH IN C MINOR

Post-free, eighteen stamps each.

MORGAN and Co., 27, Charles Street, St. James's Square, London.

TO CONDUCTORS OF CHORAL SOCIETIES.Send thirty postage stamps, and receive by return a bound copy of WILFORD MORGAN's semi-sacred cantata, "CHRISTIAN THE PILGRIM," a work admirably adapted for large or small Choral Societies; easy, but very effective. Chorus parts printed.

MORGAN and Co., 27, Charles Street, St. James's Square, London.

TO ORGANISTS.—WILFORD MORGAN's popularsemi-sacred March, "CHRISTIAN THE PILGRIM," for Organ, with pedal obligato. Post-free, 18 stamps.

MORGAN and Co., 27, Charles Street, St. James's, S.W.

TO PIANISTS.—WILFORD MORGAN's GAVOTTEin G, as played at the St. James's Theatre and Promenade Concerts with great success. Sent free for 18 stamps. MORGAN and Co., 27, Charles Street, S.W.

THE HYMNARY

A BOOK OF CHURCH SONG.

THE FOLLOWING EDITIONS ARE NOW READY:

No.				s.	d.
1.	Hymns only.	Royal 24mo.	Bourgeois Antique. Cloth, red edges	1	0
2.	Hymns only.	Royal 24mo.	Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Cloth, red edges	0	6
"	Hymns only.	Royal 24mo.	Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Limp cloth	0	4
"	Hymns only.	Royal 24mo.	Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Paper cover	0	3
3.	Hymns with Tunes.	Demy 8vo.	Cloth	4	0
4.	Hymns with Tunes.	Demy 8vo.	Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	5	0
5.	Tunes only.	Demy 8vo.	Cloth	3	0
6.	Tunes only.	Demy 8vo.	Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	4	0
7.	Hymns with Tunes.	Treble part only.	Royal 24mo	1	6
"	Hymns with Tunes.	Treble part only.	Royal 24mo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	2	0
8.	Hymns with Tunes.	Small post 8vo.	to bind with the Pearl 8vo Prayer Book. Cloth	2	6
9.	Hymns with Tunes.	Ditto.	Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	3	0
10.	Hymns with Tunes.	Large type. Imperial 8vo.	Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	10	6

Selections of Hymns with Tunes for Advent, Christmas, Easter, and Harvest, price One Penny each.

A Discount of 20 per Cent. will be allowed to the Clergy, for Cash, when not less than six copies of one edition are taken.

Applications for permission to print the Hymns and Tunes for Choral Festivals should be addressed to the Publishers.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK

SUPPLEMENT 1881, CONTAINING 37 TUNES, 6d.
TO MATCH EITHER EDITION.

No. 9.				s.	d.
	The complete work, containing 751 Tunes and Chants.
10.	Limp cloth	...	...	4	0
11.	Cloth boards	...	...	5	0
12.	Small edition	...	...	3	0
13.	Tonic Sol-fa	...	...	3	0

First and Second Series can still be had separate.

THE BOOK OF PSALMS (BIBLE VERSION),
With Canticles and Anthems.

Pointed for Chanting for Congregational use ... 1 3
(Offered in quantity at reduced price per dozen.)

The Pointing is of the simplest plan, easily understood, and without multiplication of marks and accents, which tend to confuse rather than help.

Communications and inquiries as to copyrights, and also as to supplies of these works at reduced prices, may be addressed to the Compilers, at Clare Street, Bristol.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.; Bristol: W. and F. MORGAN;
And all Booksellers and Musicsellers.

THE ANGLICAN HYMN-BOOK.

SECOND EDITION. REDUCED PRICES.

Words and Music, 4to, cloth, price 4s. 6d.; 18mo, 1s. 9d.; Treble, 16mo, 1s. Words only, 9d. and 6d.; paper, 4½d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.; and SIMPKIN and MARSHALL.

Now ready, revised and enlarged, price 7s.

PARR'S PSALMODY, containing 401 Tunes, 301 Chants, various Responses, &c., free from modern tinkering, with above 400 Memoirs of Composers and references to the works in which the Pieces first appeared, giving historical and bibliographical information nowhere else to be found.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE-BOOK, with the additional Tunes as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tunes; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

HERRING'S METRICAL TUNES, &c. 8vo, 12 pp., 6d. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

For the special use of Organists. Post-free, 6½d. each separately.

A FULL HARMONISED ORGAN ACCOMPANIMENT to the APOSTLES' CREED and the LORD'S PRAYER, in G, by THOMAS E. LEETE, Organist, Parish Church, Sutton, Bridge, Lincolnshire.

"Your harmonies are very effective and supply a want hitherto inadequately furnished."

By the same. The cheapest collection extant. 20 pp. 8vo.

A SET OF TWELVE KYRIES, with TWELVE OFFERTORY SENTENCES, complete in one book. All original music. Price 1s.; to choirs, 10s. per dozen copies. Of Composer, and Messrs. CONRAD HERZOG and Co., 62, Hatton Garden, London, E.C.

Easy and effective.
ANTHEM

GOD IS OUR HOPE AND STRENGTH

Written expressly for Parish Choirs by FRANK BATES, Mus. Bac.

This Anthem has been sung at several Choral Festivals.

"Just the thing for village choirs."—Church Times.
Price Threepence.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS, set to music in the key of G, by ALFRED J. DYE. Price 4d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS. Set to music with special regard to the poetical structure of the hymn, by the Rev. V. W. POPHAM, M.A. Price 4d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Second Edition.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS in B flat. Dedicated by permission to Sir Robert P. Stewart, Mus. Doc. Composed by BARRY M. GILHOLY. Price 4d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

H. R. COULDREY'S TE DEUM, BENEDICTE, and KYRIES, published together, for Parish Choirs. Price 4d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in F. Suitable for Parish Choirs. By W. G. WOOD. Price 3d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Books I. to VIII., New Series, 1s. each.

COLLECTION of KYRIES, &c. Compiled, &c., by W. T. FREEMANTLE, Sheffield. Separate Numbers (Nos. 1 to 98), 1d. each.

SPOHR'S 24TH PSALM. Net, 9d. and 2s.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published.

SIX KYRIES. By G. NOBLE PARTRIDGE, Choir-master, St. Ann's Church, Nottingham. Price 4d., post-free from the Composer.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Reduced Price, 3d.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and G. DEUS MISEREATUR. For Voices in Unison and Organ. 8vo. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

REDUCED TO THREEPENCE EACH.

G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEMS for small Choirs. First Series. Boys' and Female Voices. Second Series. Female and Male Voices.

These Anthems are available as Duets for private use.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NEW CANTATA.—"The Lion of Judah." By R. DAWRE. 6d., post-free 7d. In Old and Tonic Sol-fa Notations. A capital work for Choirs not large enough to do an oratorio. JOHN GUEST (1st floor), 20, Warwick Lane, E.C.

EASY ANTHEMS, by THOMAS SMITH. Price 3d. each.

THE EASTER ANTHEMS.—CHRIST OUR PASSOVER, &c. Just Published.

ANTHEMS FOR EASTER: "Christ is risen from the dead." Seventh Edition. "Sing we merrily." Third Edition. "Lift up your heads."

"O worship the Lord." Eighth Edition. "Hear my prayer." "I was glad." "My heart is fixed." "The Lord is my Shepherd." "O send out Thy light." "Like as the hart." "It is a good thing to give thanks." "O sing unto the Lord." Second Edition. Te Deum in F. Five Kyries. Second Edition.

THE RULES OF SIMPLE HARMONY.—Dedicated to Sir F. A. Gore Ouseley, Professor of Music at the University of Oxford. Third Edition, 1s.

SHORT METHOD FOR TEACHING SINGING. Second Edition, 6d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Post-free from the Composer, 25, Angel Hill, Bury St. Edmunds.

Third Edition. Price 1s.

HOW TO LEARN TO PLAY THE PIANO WELL. By ONE WHO HAS TAUGHT HIMSELF.

"Here, in the compass of fourteen pages, is matter calculated to produce better results than half-a-dozen years' teaching."

THE ART OF PLAYING AT SIGHT. By ONE WHO HAS TAUGHT HIMSELF. Price 1s.

"The author believes his system to be infallible; after a fair trial, we must say we believe so too."

HOW TO FORM AND TRAIN a VILLAGE CHOIR. By AN ORGANISING CHOIRMASTER. Price 1s.

THE HARMONIUM, AND HOW TO PLAY IT. Price 1s.

Bury St. Edmunds: THOS. SMITH, Music Warehouse, Angel Hill.

Fourth Edition, enlarged. Small 4to. Price 2s. paper cover, 3s. cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS, Single and Double, edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY, Bart., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK. This work contains nearly 400 Chants; which are appropriated to "Venite exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c.; those for each Service occupying a separate page, and affording several Series suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with especial reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now ready. Small 4to. Price 1s. Vocal parts, 12mo, price 6d. each. 1st and 2nd Series bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d. Vocal parts, 1st and 2nd Series, bound together in limp cloth, 1s. 4d. each.

SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES and HYMNS of the CHURCH, pointed for Chanting, and set to appropriate Anglican Chants, Single and Double; together with Responses to the Commandments. Edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK. This work contains a selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co. Oxford: PARKER.

Eighth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Large edition, cloth, 3s. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo, without Chants, 9d.; with Proper Psalms, 1s.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to, with Chants, 4s.; each voice part, separately, 1s. 6d. Canticles, score, small 4to, 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo, 1½d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co., and PARKER and Co.

Sixteenth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Reduced price, 4s. 6d., paper cover; 6s., limp cloth; separate vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation, Score, 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. St. J. B. JOULE. Large type, price 2s. 6d. This Psalter having been collated with the Sealed Books is free from the errors contained in all other pointed Psalters, through printing from the incorrect copies commonly sold by the Stationers. N.B.—A small edition is in preparation.

Eighth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. 18mo, price 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Fourth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. Quarto, in cloth, elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Fifth Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION. Harmonised on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. St. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO ORGANISTS.—THE RITUAL MARCH. 1s. 6d. post-free. W. REEVES, Fleet Street, London.

Just published.

CHURCH MUSIC IN TOWN AND COUNTRY, by "The Stranger within thy Gates." The subject is considered under the following divisions: I. Church Music generally; II. In Rural Villages; III. In large Villages in Colliery and Manufacturing Districts; IV. In Towns; V. Suggestions how to form a Choir, and how to keep a Choir when formed, and thus promote Harmony in the Church and in the Parish. Price One Shilling; by post Thirteenpence. London: BEMROSE and SONS, 23, Old Bailey; and Derby.

PRIZE CHORAL.—"Thou hidden Love of God" (with accompaniment for Strings and Organ in Short Score). 3d. Twelve Hymn-Tunes (including Prize Choral, unaccompanied). 4d. Te Deum and Jubilate, in D. 6d. Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, in D. 6d. By W. H. SAMPSON. London: WEEKES and Co., 16, Hanover Street, W.

ORIGINAL

COMPOSITIONS for the ORGAN BY EDWIN EVANS.

No.		s.	d.
1.	Postlude Fughetta, in C	net	1 6
2.	Melody, in E flat	"	1 6
3.	Processional March, in A	"	2 0
4.	Postlude Fughetta, in B flat	"	0 9
5.	Allegretto for Flute Stops	"	1 6
6.	Moderato for Soft Organ	"	1 6

Subscription, First Series (12 Numbers), 9s.

Sample Number, 10 stamps.

London: EWALD and Co., 16, Argyle Street, W., and 27, Upper Barnsbury Street, N.

The Cathedral Psalter

POINTED FOR CHANTING.

	s.	d.
Imperial 32mo, cloth	..	0 9
Ditto, with Proper Psalms, cloth	..	1 0
Demy 8vo, large type, with Proper Psalms, cloth	..	2 6
Proper Psalms, separately. Paper cover. 32mo	..	0 3
Canticles, 32mo	..	0 1
Ditto, 8vo	..	0 3

The Psalter, with Chants, Post 4to, cloth	..	5 0
Canticles, 4to, with Chants	..	0 6

THE

CATHEDRAL PSALTER CHANTS.

Post 4to, paper cover	..	2 0
Ditto, cloth	..	3 0
Foolscap 4to, paper cover	..	1 0
Ditto, cloth	..	1 6

The Clergy can be supplied with copies, in quantities of not less than 25, on special terms.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER and CO.

Reduced price, Five Shillings.

THE VILLAGE ORGANIST

New Edition, complete in One Volume. 142 pages.

CONTAINING

SEVENTY-EIGHT VOLUNTARIES

All of which, except four, were composed expressly for the work by eminent English musicians.

Cloth, Five Shillings.

Suitable for a Present or School Prize.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S COLLECTION OF

ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTY-FIVE

Responses to the Commandments

EDITED BY

GEORGE C. MARTIN

SUB-ORGANIST OF ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.

Bound in cloth, gilt edges, price Five Shillings; or Forty-seven Numbers, Twopence each.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

RECENTLY PUBLISHED COMPOSITIONS

(8vo) by SIR HERBERT OAKLEY.

TWO SACRED CHORAL QUARTETS for Mixed Voices.

1. Morning and Evening ("Comes, at times"), price 4d.

2. Past and Future ("Adown the river"), price 6d.

Sung by Her Majesty's command.

FORSYTH BROTHERS, London and Manchester.

CHORAL SONGS for Male Voices.

1. The Troubadour.

2. Omnia vincit Amor, price 6d.

CRAMER and Co., London.

TWELVE NATIONAL SCOTTISH MELODIES, arranged for Male Chorus; in Four Parts of Three Songs each, 6d.; or complete, 2s.

A MORNING, COMMUNION, and EVENING SERVICE, in E flat, respectively 9d., 1s., and 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

COMPOSITIONS by GEORGE CARTER.

1. Sinfonia Cantata, "I love the Lord" (Ps. 116) ... 2 0

Choruses for Vocal Societies, One Shilling.

2. Introduction and Allegro from ditto as Pfte. Duet ... 6 0

3. Larghetto from ditto as Pianoforte Duet ... 4 0

4. High Festival Communion Service in E ... 3 0

"We seldom meet with so fine a work."—Church Review.

5. Wedding Anthem, "Blessed are all they" (Ps. 128) ... 1 6

With Accompaniment for Harp and Organ.

6. Part-Song, "Dreaming of thee" ... 0 3

7. Andante con Variazioni for Organ ... 2 0

8. Grand Festival March in D ... 3 0

9. " as Pianoforte Duet ... 6 0

10. Song, "The Changed Cross," for Soprano ... 4 0

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.—R. FORSEY BRION'S Cantata, MARATHON. Reduced price, 2s. Composed for Soli Voices and Chorus, and dedicated to Professor Macfarren. London: HOLLIS and Co., 63, Ebury Street, S.W.

REDUCED PRICES OF OUSELEY AND MONK'S
 POINTED PSALTER.

4to Edition, with Chants in Short Score	....	....	....	....	s. d.
12mo Edition. Vocal parts	....	....	....	....	4 0
32mo Edition. Words only	....	....	....	....	Each 1 6
Ditto ditto with Proper Psalms	....	....	....	....	0 9
					1 0

This pointing of the Psalter is authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York.

London: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.)

HARROW SCHOOL MUSIC

BY

JOHN FARMER

ORGANIST AND MUSIC-MASTER TO HARROW SCHOOL.

ORATORIO.—"CHRIST AND HIS SOLDIERS."

Cloth, 4s.; paper cover, 3s. Book of Words, 2d. Orchestral Parts, complete, 7s.

GLEE-BOOK.—Vols. I. and II. Cloth, 4s. each.

PART-SONGS for PUBLIC SCHOOLS, being Cheap Edition of above. Vols. 1 & 2, 1s. 6d. each, paper cover.

GLEES AND SONGS FOR HIGH SCHOOLS. Paper cover, 1s. 6d.

SONGS.—Vols. I. and II. Cloth, 4s. each.

SINGING QUADRILLES.

1st Set—"Jack and Jill," &c. ... .. 1s. | 3rd Set—Hunting Quadrilles: "John Peel," &c. 1s.
 2nd Set—"Humpty Dumpty." Duet, 3s.; Solo 1s. | 4th Set—Singing Quadrilles: "Girls and Boys," &c. 1s.

HYMNS AND TUNES FOR HIGH SCHOOLS, 1s. 6d.

Lists and full particulars may be obtained on application.

Harrow: J. C. WILBEE, Bookseller to Harrow School.

London: NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

THE HARMONIUM TREASURY

A SERIES OF SELECT PIECES ARRANGED BY

J. W. ELLIOTT.

In Two Volumes. Vol. I., SACRED; Vol. II., SECULAR. Handsomely bound in Cloth, 10s. 6d. each; or in 51 Numbers, 1s. each.

HARMONIUM VOLUNTARIES

ARRANGED BY

J. W. ELLIOTT.

In Six Sets, each containing Sixty Voluntaries, One Shilling each; or in Two Volumes, Cloth gilt, 4s. each.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

MUSIC (The HISTORY of). Monthly, 7d.

Just commenced, in Monthly Parts, price 7d.,

THE HISTORY OF MUSIC. By EMIL NAUMANN.

Director of Music at the Chapel Royal, Dresden. Translated by FERDINAND PRAEGER. With Notes and Additional Chapters by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY, Bart., M.A., Mus. Doc., Professor of Music in the University of Oxford. Illustrated throughout. To be completed in 24 parts. Parts I. and II. now ready.

"Herr Naumann treats his subject at once learnedly and with abundant power of popular exposition. The work is excellently printed and profusely illustrated."—Scotsman.

"To all those who can appreciate this delightful art, the work will prove of especial interest, and will also be the means of imparting to the general reader much interesting and curious information concerning music and musical instruments from the very earliest times."—Brighton Guardian.

"A comprehensive account of the art of music, containing the history of its growth, with explanations of the science of music, and of the natural laws from which harmony springs. . . . The book is full of illustrations, which will make it a most entertaining as well as a most instructive book."—Gloucester Journal.

CASSELL, PETER, GALPIN and Co., Ludgate Hill, London.

MUSIC.—STANDARD WORKS FOR STUDENTS and the PROFESSION.

Hopkins and Rimbault's History and Construction of the Organ.

Price £1 6s. 3d.

Spohr's Violin School. Price 15s. 9d.

Campagnoli's Method on the Violin. Price 15s.; and in 4 Parts, post-free, 3s. 6d. each.

W. T. Best's Modern School for the Organ. Price £1 3s. 8d.; and in 4 Parts, from 3s. 6d. to 6s.

Corelli's celebrated 48 Trios, for two Violins and Bass. Price 18s.

Rinck's First Three Months at the Organ. Price 3s., post-free.

Bishop's Half-Hours at the Organ. In 2 Vols. Price 15s. 9d. each; and in 24 Books, 1s. 6d. each, post-free.

W. T. Best's Choruses of Handel, for the Organ. Price £1 19s. 6d.; also in 24 Books, from 1s. 3d. to 4s. 9d. each, post-free.

Geo. Dubourg's "The Violin." Price 7s. 6d., post-free.

Otto's Treatise on the Violin. Price 4s., post-free.

Hamilton's Pianoforte Tutor. Price 2s., post-free.

London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., 6, New Burlington Street.

STANDARD TEXT BOOKS.

	s. d.		s. d.
Rockstro's Harmony	2 0	Hamilton's Singing	2 6
"History of Music	2 0	"Dictionary	1 0
Pinsuti's Daily Vocal Exercises	1 6	West's Questions	1 0
Hamilton's Harmony and Thorough-Bass	1 0	Clarke's Catechism	1 0
West's Hints to Teachers	1 0	Sutton's Theory	2 0
		Pinsuti's Hints on Singing	1 0

Payment as above received in postage stamps.

London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., 6, New Burlington Street.

BOOSEY AND CO.'S PUBLICATIONS. Price

2s. 6d. each volume, paper; and 4s. cloth, gilt edges.

THE SONGS OF SCANDINAVIA (100 songs).*THE SONGS OF EASTERN EUROPE

(83 songs), all with English words.—"We must say that no musical library is complete without these books. 'The Songs of Eastern Europe' contains a very valuable collection of Volkslieder from the hitherto untouched wealth of the Austrian provinces."—Daily Telegraph.

HAMILTON TIGHE. Cantata by GEORGE FOX. For Baritone, Soprano, and Chorus.

HAMILTON TIGHE, words from the "Ingoldsby Legends," occupies twenty minutes in performance. Price 1s. vocal score.

Price 5s. each, paper covers; 7s. 6d. cloth, gilt edges.

THE ROYAL OPERATIC ALBUMS. The most comprehensive collection of Dramatic Music ever published, containing 190 celebrated Songs from the most renowned Operas, including many hitherto unknown in England. All with Italian and English words, in the original keys, without abbreviation or alteration.

1. THE PRIMA DONNA'S ALBUM. Forty-one Songs for Soprano.

2. THE CONTRALTO ALBUM. Fifty Songs for Mezzo-Soprano and Contralto.

3. THE TENOR ALBUM. Fifty Songs.

4. THE BARITONE ALBUM. Forty-five Songs.

"A more useful publication than these collections of Italian melodies cannot be conceived."—Athenæum. "A capital idea admirably carried out."—Illustrated Dramatic News.

Boosey and Co., 295, Regent Street.

NEW NUMBERS OF THE CHORALIST,

price 1d. each. Grief (Prize Madrigal, Moir), Bridal Chorus (Cowen), Song of Peace (Sullivan), The Hop-pickers (Philp), The Jovial Beggars (Montgomery), The Little Drummer (Kappey), Love me little, love me long (Montgomery).

Boosey and Co., 295, Regent Street.

BONNIE WEE THING. New Part-Song forS.A.T.B. By MYLES BIRKET FOSTER. See Musical Education

for February. Annual Subscription, 2s. 6d.

A. HAMMOND and Co., 5, Vigo Street, London, W.

JUST PUBLISHED.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S

PIANOFORTE ALBUMS

EDITED BY BERTHOLD TOURS

PRICE ONE SHILLING EACH.

No. 7.—MARCHES.
1. Hero's March (Op. 22)	...	Mendelssohn.
2. Marche Militaire (Op. 51)	...	Schubert.
3. Festival March, from the Opera "Aennchen von Tharau"	...	H. Hofmann.
4. Marche Solennelle	...	Ch. Gounod.
5. Bridal March, from "Lohengrin"	...	R. Wagner.
6. Gipsy March, from "Preciosa"	...	Weber.
7. March (Op. 13)	...	A. Zimmermann.
8. March, from "Le Nozze di Figaro"	...	Mozart.
9. March, from "Fidelio"	...	Beethoven.
10. Rakoczy March.
11. Funeral March ("Lied ohne Worte," No. 27)	...	Mendelssohn.
12. March, from "St. Polycarp"	...	Rev. Sir Fred. Ouseley.
13. Dead March, from "Saul"	...	Handel.
14. The Watch on the Rhine.
15. The British Grenadiers.
No. 8.—MARCHES.
16. Coronation March, from "Le Prophète"	...	Meyerbeer.
17. March, from "Idomeneo"	...	Mozart.
18. "Cornelius" March	...	Mendelssohn.
19. Turkish March ("Ruins of Athens")	...	Beethoven.
20. Processional March ("Onward, Christian soldiers")	...	A. Sullivan.
21. Marche Cosaque	...	H. Hofmann.
22. March (Posthumous Work)	...	Schubert.
23. March, from the "Occasional Oratorio"	...	Handel.
24. Marche Funèbre, from Sonata I., Op. 35	...	Chopin.
25. Triumphant March, from "King Stephen"	...	Beethoven.
26. Pilgrims' March (Fourth Symphony)	...	Mendelssohn.
27. March of the Men of Harlech.
28. Fetal March	...	J. B. Calkin.
29. Birthday March	...	R. Schumann.
30. La Marseillaise.
No. 9.—MARCHES.
31. Funeral March (Op. 103)	...	Mendelssohn.
32. March, from "Egmont"	...	Beethoven.
33. March, from "Iphigenia in Aulis"	...	Gluck.
34. March, from "Abraham"	...	B. Molique.
35. March, from "Tannhäuser"	...	R. Wagner.
36. March, from "Die Zauberflöte"	...	Mozart.
37. Bride's March, from "Rebekah"	...	J. Barnby.
38. March, from Op. 3	...	H. Hofmann.
39. March, from "Scipio"	...	Handel.
40. Marcia Funèbre, from Sonata, Op. 26	...	Beethoven.
41. Wedding March, from "Midsummer Night's Dream"	...	Mendelssohn.
42. March, from "Titus"	...	Mozart.
43. Alexander March	...	Beethoven.
44. Persian March	...	Strauss.
45. (a) Dessauer March (b) Hohenfriedberger March.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S ORIGINAL OCTAVO EDITION.

THE CHORUSES

OF THE

ORATORIOS, CANTATAS, &c.

IN VOCAL SCORE,
ESPECIALLY FOR THE USE OF CHORAL SOCIETIES.

	s. d.
BACH'S PASSION (ST. MATTHEW)	1 0
BEETHOVEN'S MOUNT OF OLIVES	0 6
BENNETT'S MAY QUEEN	1 0
GRAUN'S PASSION	1 0
HANDEL'S MESSIAH	0 8
" JUDAS MACCABÆUS	0 8
" SAMSON	0 8
" HERCULES	1 0
" SOLOMON	1 6
" L'ALLEGRO	1 0
HAYDN'S CREATION	0 8
MACFARREN'S MAY DAY	0 8
MENDELSSOHN'S ELIJAH	1 6
" ST. PAUL	1 0
" HYMN OF PRAISE	0 6
ROSSINI'S STABAT MATER	0 6
SPOHR'S LAST JUDGMENT	0 6

(To be continued.)

All the above works may be had in paper boards, price 6d. each extra.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Large octavo, paper cover, 4s.; cloth, gilt edges, 6s.

ISRAEL RESTORED

AN ORATORIO

(As performed at the Norwich Festival, September 22, 1852, and the Royal Albert Hall, London, April 15, 1880)

COMPOSED BY

W. R. BEXFIELD, MUS. DOC., CANTAB.

The Chorus and Orchestral Parts can be had on application to the publishers.

"The fact seems to us positive that 'Israel Restored' is in various respects a thing of sterling worth. . . . Not a few among both airs and choruses evince exceptional and remarkable power."—Daily Telegraph.

"We need only study the chorus, 'Thou hast mightily delivered Thy people,' to learn how great a loss English music suffered in 1853. . . . With regard to the songs much more might be said than space now permits, for they supply the most conspicuous of all the meritorious features in the work."—Musical Times.

"There is much in the oratorio to excite true admiration and delight."—Musical World.

"We pass on to No. 34, a soprano song, 'The sun shall no more go down,' with obligato accompaniment for horn, viola, cello, and double-bass. This is a lovely composition—probably the gem of the oratorio. . . . The musical interest is well sustained until the end, and there is hardly a number which does not put forth some special claim. The short chorus in D, 3-4 time, makes a bright and majestic conclusion to a work which is an honour to its author and his countrymen."—Orchestra.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Second Thousand.

RUTH

NEW SACRED CANTATA

By ALFRED R. GAUL

Words by EDWARD OXENFORD.

Performed five consecutive nights in Birmingham Town Hall.

Price, paper cover, 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Third Edition.

THE WIDOW OF NAIN

SACRED CANTATA

FOR SOLI VOICES AND CHORUS

BY

ALFRED J. CALDICOTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab.

Performed with great success at the Worcester Musical Festival.

Band parts on application. Piano Score, paper, 3s.; boards, 4s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Post-free of the Composer, Worcester.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO EDITION.

THE GENERAL HISTORY

OF THE

SCIENCE & PRACTICE OF MUSIC

BY

SIR JOHN HAWKINS.

In Two Volumes, Super-royal Octavo, cloth, 21s.

Supplementary Volume of Medallion Portraits, 16s.

Printed from the Original Plates.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOW READY, NEW EDITIONS OF

Novello, Ewer & Co.'s Catalogues

- No. 1. ORGAN AND HARMONIUM MUSIC.
 " 2. SACRED MUSIC WITH ENGLISH WORDS.
 " 3. MUSIC WITH VOCAL AND ORCHESTRAL PARTS.
 " 4. MUSIC FOR THE PIANOFORTE.
 " 5. SECULAR VOCAL MUSIC.
 " 6. SACRED MUSIC WITH LATIN WORDS.

Sent gratis and post-free.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Third Edition.

JACK & THE BEANSTALK

COMIC CANTATA FOR FOUR SOLO VOICES AND CHORUS, BY

EDMUND ROGERS.

Price 3s. net.

"Will doubtless prove very popular."—Society.

For special terms to Choral Societies apply to the Composer, 4, Melrose Gardens, West Kensington Park, W.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

NARCISSUS AND ECHO

Cantata for Mixed Voices. Price 3s.

GOD IS OUR REFUGE (Ps. xlvii.)

Soli and Chorus. Price 1s.

COMPOSED BY

EDWIN C. SUCH, MUS. BAC., CANTAB.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CANTATAS

FOR

FEMALE VOICES

TWO SHILLINGS & SIXPENCE EACH.

MINSTER BELLS	...	...	...	...	...	F. ABT.
THE WISHING STONE	...	...	...	...	...	"
THE SILVER CLOUD	...	...	...	...	...	"
THE WATER FAIRIES	...	...	...	...	...	"
THE SLEEPING BEAUTY	...	...	...	...	...	H. LAHER.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

SUMMER NIGHTS

(LES NUITS D'ÉTÉ)

SIX SONGS BY THÉOPHILE GAUTIER

Set to Music, with accompaniment for small Orchestra or Pianoforte

BY

HECTOR BERLIOZ

Op. 7.

English version by FRANCIS HUEFFER. Price 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SIX FOUR-PART SONGS

FOR MEN'S VOICES

BY

HEINRICH HOFMANN.

(Novello's "Orpheus," No. 169 to 174).

169. Roaming	...	...	...	...	...	2d
170. Sir Cuckoo	...	...	...	...	...	4d
171. Glorious May	...	...	...	...	...	3d
172. In Spring-time	...	...	...	...	...	4d
173. Our Maxim	...	...	...	...	...	3d
174. In dulci júbilo	...	...	...	...	...	4d

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

Reduced to 2s. 6d. per Volume.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

IN EIGHT VOLUMES

EACH CONTAINING FORTY-EIGHT CHORAL PIECES, SACRED AND SECULAR.

The attention of Conductors and Secretaries of Choral Societies is specially called to these Volumes, which offer a large collection of useful pieces at an exceedingly low cost.

Lists of Contents of each Volume may be had on application.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NEW COMPOSITIONS by ALFRED J. CALDICOTT, Mus. Bae., Cantab. (winner of Manchester and Huddersfield Glee Prizes).—

Part-Songs—Out on the Waters ... ..	4d.
The Haymakers ... ..	4d.
Yule ... ..	4d.
Jack and Jill ... ..	4d.
Little Jack Horner ... ..	6d.
Humpy Dumpty ... ..	4d.
Winter Days ... ..	2d.
Songs—The New Curate and Two Spoons... ..	each 2s.
Post-free of the Composer, Worcester. Special terms to Societies.

WILLIAM J. YOUNG'S Popular Part-Songs for S.A.T.B.

1. I love the merry spring-time ... ..	21st thousand net	s. d.
2. Gaily through the greenwood ... ..	40th do.	0 2
3. O welcome, merry May ... ..	7th do.	0 2
4. The mountain maid ... ..	6th do.	0 2
5. Come o'er the mountain ... ..	8th do.	0 2
6. Hail, merry, merry Christmas ... ..	18th do.	0 2
7. Songs of praise the angels sang ... ..	6th do.	0 3
8. Blow, ye balmy breezes, blow ... ..	8th do.	0 3
9. Fairy revels ... ..	11th do.	0 3
10. Oh! peaceful vale of rest ... ..	6th do.	0 1
11. The merry bird ... ..	5th do.	0 3
12. Come, let us be merry and gay ... ..	5th do.	0 3
13. Forest echoes ... ..	9th do.	0 3
14. Haste, ye merry elves ... ..	5th do.	0 3
15. The streamlet (with soprano solo) ... ..	3rd do.	0 3
16. Sunshine and shadow ... ..	3rd do.	0 2
17. Sunny rays (with soprano solo) ... ..	3rd do.	0 3
18. A happy New Year ... ..	3rd do.	0 3
19. The coming of Spring ... ..	3rd do.	0 3
20. England's Glory ... ..	5th do.	0 3
21. A merry Christmas to you all ... ..	4th do.	0 3
22. The air resounds with music sweet ... ..	2nd do.	0 2
23. To a sleeping child ... ..	1st do.	0 2
24. Our National Church ... ..	2nd do.	0 3
Ditto (Organ copy) ... ..	1st do.	1 6
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

POPULAR PART-SONGS by W. W. PEARSON.

The Ironfounders (10th thousand) ... ..	3d.
The Stormy Petrel (soprano or tenor and bass solos) ... ..	3d.
The Coral Grove ... ..	3d.
Pibroch of Donuill Dhu (Sir Walter Scott) ... ..	3d.
Sweet Spring (madrigal) ... ..	3d.
The Ocean (Barry Cornwall) ... ..	3d.
Over the mountain-side (four-part serenade) ... ..	3d.
Soul of Living Music (soprano solo and chorus) ... ..	3d.
The Jäger Chorus (5th thousand) ... ..	3d.
The River ... ..	3d.
Departed Joys (Thomas Moore) ... ..	2d.
Summer and Winter ... ..	2d.
The Anglers (6th thousand) ... ..	2d.
Sweet to live amid the mountains (10th thousand) ... ..	2d.
The Dream of Home (Thomas Moore) ... ..	2d.
There's beauty in the deep (6th thousand) ... ..	1d.
Soldier, rest! (Sir Walter Scott) ... ..	1d.
Woods in Winter (Longfellow) ... ..	1d.
Autumn (Montgomery) ... ..	1d.
The sombre shadows of the night (trio for S.A.B.) ... ..	1d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

POPULAR COMPOSITIONS by GABRIEL DAVIS.

SONGS.	s. d.
WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? (New Patriotic Song.) The Words written by F. E. Weatherly ... ..	4 0
(Sung by Mr. THURLEY BEALE.)
KING CARNIVAL. The Words written by F. E. Weatherly ... ..	4 0
BY THE RIVER. The Words written by Herbert Gardner ... ..	4 0
ELSIE (The Flower Girl's Song) ... ..	4 0
(Sung by Miss ADA TOLKIEN.)
THE ZINGARA ... ..	4 0
(Sung by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON.)
THE COMING YEAR. The Words written by Dean Alford ... ..	4 0
THE OLD MEADOW GATE. The Words written by R. Richardson ... ..	4 0

PART-SONGS, S.A.T.B.	s. d.
THE THREE STARS ... ..	0 2
THE KNIGHT'S RETURN. 5th Edition ... ..	0 2
GOD SAVE THE PRINCE. 18th Edition ... ..	0 2
THE DISTANT SEA. 5th Edition ... ..	0 2
TO THE WOODS. 5th Edition ... ..	0 2
HARK! 'TIS MUSIC. 6th Edition ... ..	0 2
THE HOUR OF REST. 4th Edition ... ..	0 2
DAME WIGGINS OF LEE. (Humorous.) 5th Edition ... ..	0 2
DAME TROT. (Humorous.) 3rd Edition ... ..	0 2
WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? (Patriotic Part-Song. For T.T.B.B.) 2nd Edition ... ..	0 3
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W., and 80 & 81, Queen Street, E.C.

SUNG BY MR. CHAPLIN HENRY. THREE BARITONE SONGS.—"An English Christmas home," "Our oldest friend," and "The best of all good company." Post-free, 2s. 6d., of the composer, ORBEL HINCHLIFF, 90, Kennington Park Road, S.E.

SELECT COMPOSITIONS from the GREAT MASTERS, arranged for the Organ, with Pedal Obligato, by ARTHUR HENRY BROWN.

No.
40.	Aria, by Gluck. 1767.
41.	"Sanctus" and "Hosanna," from André's Mass. Op. 43.
42.	Last Chorus, from Beethoven's "Mount of Olives."
43.	"He shall feed His flock," from Handel's "Messiah."
44.	"Quoniam Tu solus," by Vincenzo Righini. 1788.
45.	"Hallelujah" Chorus, from Handel's "Messiah."
46.	"Turn Thy face," "Then shall I teach," "I will magnify Thee," from Anthems by J. Weldon.
47.	"The heavens are telling," from Haydn's "Creation."
48.	Andante and Allegretto, from Handel's Violin Sonata in A major.
49.	Slow Movement from Symphony 36, by Haydn.
50.	Andante con Variazioni, from Spohr's Notturmo. Op. 34.
51.	"Wie nahte mir der Schlummer," by C. M. von Weber. Aria by the Comte de St. Germain, 1760.
52.	"Marche Solennelle," by Franz Schubert.
53.	Adagio, from the Notturmo (Op. 34), by Louis Spohr.
54.	"Ave Maria," from the "Evening Service," Book 7, by Cherubini.
55.	Overture and Minuet to "Samson," Handel, 1742.
56.	"The arm of the Lord," by Haydn.
57.	"Deh lascia o Core," from "Astianatte," by G. Buononcini, 1727.
58.	"Gloria in excelsis," from Schubert's Mass (No. 2), in C.
59.	"Il pensier sta negli oggetti," Aria, by Haydn, 1792.
60.	"Gloria in excelsis," from Mozart's 12th Mass.
61.	"How lovely are the messengers," by Mendelssohn.
62.	Notturmo, by Kalkbrenner.
63.	"Che farò," by Chr. Gluck, 1769.
64.	Aria in A flat, by Louis Spohr.
65.	"Cujus animam," from Rossini's "Stabat Mater."
66.	Air and Gavotte, from the Suite for Orchestra in D, by J. S. Bach.

[Continuing.]
Price Three Shillings each.
Volumes I., II., and III., bound in cloth, are now ready, each containing 20 numbers, price One Guinea each.
A list of the preceding numbers post-free on application.
London: B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster Row, E.C.

THE KING OF THE NIGHT

Just published.
Song for Baritone or Bass, by
ALFRED J. DYE (composer of "The Lighthouse").
Price 4s.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW CHORAL MUSIC by ALFRED R. GAUL.

OLD NEPTUNE. (Second Thousand.) Words by Edward Oxenford. Price 3d.
"Its vigorous and thoroughly English style makes it suitable for renderings by numerous assemblies of vocalists."—Birmingham Daily Gazette.
JACK FROST. (Sixth Thousand.) Words by Edward Oxenford. Price 3d.
"Enthusiastically redemanded on each of ten renderings in St. Andrew's Hall, Norwich, and the Town Hall, Birmingham."
THE ERL-KING. (Second Thousand.) Price 3d.
"A graphic illustration of a difficult subject. The narrative portions are powerfully descriptive strains."—Birmingham Daily Gazette.
THE SHIPWRECK, Birmingham Prize Glee, Fourth Edition, reduced price, 4d.
THE POTTER. (Fifth Thousand.) Price 3d.
"Thoroughly deserves all the popularity it is certain to obtain."—Musical Times.
THE TWENTY-THIRD PSALM, "The Lord is my Shepherd." (Fourth Thousand.) Sung by large choirs on six occasions in the Birmingham Town Hall. Price 4d.
"Written upon a theme of great beauty, and the harmonies are rich."—Birmingham Daily Gazette.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWO-PART SONGS

WITH PIANOFORTE ACCOMPANIMENT
(For Schools and Classes).
MONARCH WINTER ... Poetry by W. S. PASSMORE 2d.
THE SKYLARK ... " R. Y. STURGES 2d.
A SCHOOLBOY'S SONG ... " EDWARD LAWRENCE 2d.
A SPRING WELCOME ... " " 2d.

MUSIC BY STEPHEN S. STRATTON.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW PART-SONG, THERE IS DEW FOR THE FLOW'RET, price 6d., by EATON FANING, composer of "The Vikings." London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HEAVE HO! New Sea Song, for Bass or Baritone, with chorus ad libitum. Words and music by EDWIN ALLWRIGHT. "A stirring sea-song."—Graphic. "Always encored." Price 1s. 6d. net. London: F. PITMAN, 20, Paternoster Row.

DICKORY, DICKORY, DOCK. Humorous Glee for S.A.T.B. By ALFRED ALLEN, Composer of the celebrated Humorous March, "A Race between Two Walking Dolls." Price 4d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TONIC SOL-FA.—Congreve's Glees, Part-Songs, 1d. each. No. 3. "Away to the woods." London: PITMAN, Paternoster Row.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S

CIRCULATING MUSIC LIBRARY

1, BERNERS STREET, W.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

CLASS A	-	-	ONE GUINEA	-	-	PER ANNUM.
CLASS B)	-	-	TWO GUINEAS	-	-	PER ANNUM.
CLASS E)			Six Months, £1 5s.; Three Months, 15s.; One Month, 8s.; One Week, 3s.
CLASS C)	-	-	THREE GUINEAS	-	-	PER ANNUM.
CLASS F)			Six Months, £1 15s.; Three Months, £1 1s. One Month, 12s. 6d.; One Week, 5s.
CLASS D)	-	-	FIVE GUINEAS	-	-	PER ANNUM.
CLASS G)

Subscriptions received by all Musicsellers in town or country.

TOWN.

- CLASS A—Entitles the Subscriber to receive Six Pianoforte Pieces or Songs (ordinary sheet music), which may be exchanged once a week.
- CLASS B—Entitles the Subscriber to receive Twelve Pieces (one copy of each), including Volumes or Collections of Music, each volume counting as three pieces. May be exchanged once a week. On the completion of each subscription in this Class, Annual Subscribers are entitled to receive Music of the value of Half-a-Guinea (half-price) without further charge.
- CLASS C—Entitles the Subscriber to receive Eighteen Pieces (one copy of each), or a proportionate number of Volumes, which MAY BE EXCHANGED DAILY. On the completion of each subscription in this Class, Annual Subscribers are entitled to receive Music of the value of Half-a-Guinea (half-price) without further charge.
- CLASS D—Entitles the Subscriber to the same privileges as Class C, including the right of occasionally borrowing a sufficient number of INSTRUMENTAL PARTS for the use of a SMALL ORCHESTRA.

* * The Special attention of Conductors and Secretaries of Musical Societies is called to this subscription.

COUNTRY.

- CLASS E—Entitles the Subscriber to receive Twenty Pieces (one copy of each), including Volumes or Collections of Music, each volume counting as three pieces. May be exchanged twice a month. On the completion of each subscription in this Class, Annual Subscribers are entitled to receive Music of the value of Half-a-Guinea (half-price) without further charge.
- CLASS F—Entitles the Subscriber to Thirty Pieces (one copy of each), or a proportionate number of Volumes, which MAY BE EXCHANGED DAILY, or as often as required. On the completion of each subscription in this Class, Annual Subscribers are entitled to receive Music of the value of Half-a-Guinea (half-price) without further charge.
- CLASS G—Entitles the Subscriber to the same privileges as Class F, including the right of occasionally borrowing a sufficient number of INSTRUMENTAL PARTS for the use of a SMALL ORCHESTRA.

* * FOR STILL LARGER QUANTITIES OF MUSIC, SPECIAL SUBSCRIPTIONS CAN BE ARRANGED.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S

LIST OF WORKS SUITABLE FOR

PRESENTS AND SCHOOL PRIZES

PIANOFORTE CLASSICS.

BACH.—FORTY-EIGHT PRELUDES AND FUGUES .. .. . Folio	s. d. 6 0	MENDELSSOHN.—LIEDER OHNE WORTE .. .. .	s. d. 2 6
BEETHOVEN.—SONATAS. Edited by Agnes Zimmermann .. .. . Folio, cloth, gilt	21 0	Cheap edition. Containing Books 7 and 8. 8vo, 102 pages. Cloth, gilt, 4s. 6d.; paper cover
BEETHOVEN.—SONATAS. Edited by Agnes Zimmermann. 8vo, cloth, gilt, 7s. 6d.; paper cover	5 0	MENDELSSOHN.—OVERTURES (SOLO). The only complete edition .. .. . Folio, cloth, gilt	12 0
HANDEL.—MESSIAH. Arranged for Pianoforte Solo by Berthold Tours .. .. .	3 0	MENDELSSOHN.—OVERTURES (DUET). The only complete edition .. .. . Folio, cloth, gilt	15 0
MENDELSSOHN.—PIANOFORTE WORKS (including the Lieder ohne Worte). An entirely new and carefully revised edition. Folio, 518 pages. Handsomely bound .. .. . Cloth, gilt	21 0	MENDELSSOHN.—SYMPHONIES (SOLO). The only complete edition .. .. . Folio, cloth, gilt	12 0
MENDELSSOHN.—PIANOFORTE WORKS (including the Lieder ohne Worte). An entirely new and carefully revised edition. 8vo, 518 pages. Cloth, gilt, ros. 6d.; paper cover	7 6	MENDELSSOHN.—SYMPHONIES (DUET). The only complete edition .. .. . Folio, cloth, gilt	15 0
MENDELSSOHN.—LIEDER OHNE WORTE. The only complete edition. Containing Books 7 and 8. Elegantly bound. Folio, 145 pages (with Portrait of the Composer) .. .. .	12 0	MENDELSSOHN.—ELIJAH. Arranged for Pianoforte Solo by Berthold Tours .. .. .	5 0
MENDELSSOHN.—LIEDER OHNE WORTE. The only complete edition. Containing Books 7 and 8. Elegantly bound. Folio, 102 pages. Cloth, gilt, 8s.; paper cover	5 0	MOZART.—SONATAS. Edited by Agnes Zimmermann .. .. . Folio, cloth, gilt	18 0
MENDELSSOHN.—LIEDER OHNE WORTE. The only complete edition. Containing Books 7 & 8. 8vo, 155 pages. Cloth, gilt, 6s.; paper cover	4 0	MOZART.—SONATAS. Edited by Agnes Zimmermann. 8vo, cloth, gilt, 5s.; paper cover	3 0
		PIANOFORTE ALBUMS.—Edited by Berthold Tours. Vol. I., Bach; Vol. II., Handel. Cloth, each	4 0
		PIANOFORTE ALBUMS.—Edited by Berthold Tours. Nos. 1, 2, and 3, Compositions by Bach; Nos. 4, 5, and 6, Compositions by Handel each	1 0
		SCHUMANN.—FOREST SCENES. Paper cover	1 0
		SCHUMANN.—PIANOFORTE ALBUM. Op. 68 and 15 (56 pieces). 8vo, cloth, gilt, 4s. 6d.; paper cover	2 6

VOCAL ALBUMS.

BENNETT (Sir W. Sterndale). — TWELVE SONGS. Op. 23 and 35 (English and German Words). 8vo, cloth, gilt, 4s. 6d.; paper cover	2 6	MENDELSSOHN.—THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS. German and English words. 8vo, cloth, gilt, 4s.; paper cover	2 0
BERLIOZ (Hector).—SUMMER NIGHTS (Les Nuits d'Été). Six Songs by Théophile Gautier. English Version by Francis Hueffer. 8vo, paper cover	2 6	MOORE.—IRISH MELODIES. Edited by M. W. Balfe .. .. . Folio, cloth, gilt	21 0
FRANZ.—FOURTEEN SONGS. Set to poems of Robert Burns .. .. . Paper cover	2 6	MOORE.—IRISH MELODIES. Edited by M. W. Balfe .. .. . 8vo, cloth, gilt, 4s.; paper cover	2 6
MENDELSSOHN.—SONGS. The only complete edition. With Portrait of Composer. Folio, cloth, gilt	21 0	MOORE'S IRISH MELODIES. For Two Voices	1 0
MENDELSSOHN.—SONGS. The only complete edition. German and English words. 8vo, cloth, gilt, 6s.; paper cover	4 0	RUBINSTEIN.—EIGHTEEN TWO-PART SONGS .. .. . Cloth, 4s. 6d.; paper cover	2 6
MENDELSSOHN.—SONGS (for Deep Voice). German and English words. 8vo, cloth, gilt, 8s.; paper cover	6 0	SCHUBERT.—TWENTY SONGS. For Mezzo-Soprano. The English version by N. Macfarren	1 6
MENDELSSOHN.—THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS. The only complete edition .. .. . Folio	2 6	SCHUMANN.—SONGS. Vol. I., containing Op. 24, 25, 27, and 30. Edited by N. Macfarren. Folio, cloth, gilt	10 6
MENDELSSOHN.—THIRTEEN TWO-PART SONGS. With the original words. 8vo, cloth, gilt, 2s.; paper cover	1 0	SCHUMANN.—VOCAL ALBUM. Containing Thirty of his most celebrated Songs. 8vo, cloth, gilt, 4s. 6d.; paper cover	2 6
		VOLKSLIEDER ALBUM.—Forty Songs, with the original words and an English Version by John Oxenford .. .. . Cloth, gilt, 4s. 6d.; paper cover	2 6

MISCELLANEOUS.

DICTIONARY OF MUSICAL TERMS. By J. Stainer and W. A. Barrett .. .. . Cloth, gilt	16 0	SACRED SONGS FOR LITTLE SINGERS. Words by F. R. Havergal. Music by A. Randerger. Illustrated. Cloth, gilt, 5s.; paper cover	2 6
THE MUSIC OF THE BIBLE. With an Account of the Development of Modern Musical Instruments from Ancient types .. .. . Cloth	2 6	NATIONAL NURSERY RHYMES AND SONGS. By J. W. Elliott. With sixty-five illustrations, and elegantly bound .. .. . Cloth, gilt	7 6
THE GENERAL HISTORY OF THE SCIENCE AND PRACTICE OF MUSIC. By Sir John Hawkins. Two volumes .. .. . Cloth	21 0	THE SUNLIGHT OF SONG. A Collection of Sacred and Moral Songs, with original Music by the most eminent English Composers. With forty-six Illustrations. Handsomely bound. Cloth, gilt edges	7 6
SUPPLEMENTARY VOLUME OF MEDALLION PORTRAITS to above. Printed from the Original Plates .. .. . Cloth	16 0

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

JUST PUBLISHED.

“BROTHER, THOU ART GONE BEFORE US,” ANTHEM

FROM

SULLIVAN'S MARTYR OF ANTIOCH

IN A CHEAP FORM FOR CHOIRS AND CHORAL SOCIETIES

(Who are at full liberty to sing the same anywhere, without further permission).

PRICE SIXPENCE.

CHAPPELL'S VOCAL LIBRARY

OF PART-SONGS, &c.

	Composed or arranged by	PRICE		Composed or arranged by	PRICE
1. Dulce domum S.A.T.B. ... ..	G. A. Macfarren	1d.	45. O Thou, whose power (Prayer from "Mosè in Egitto")	Rossini	2d.
2. Down among the dead men. S.A.T.B. ... ..	"	1d.	46. The Guard on the Rhine. S.A.T.B. ... ..	G. A. Macfarren	1d.
3. The girl I've left behind me. S.A.T.B. ... ..	"	1d.	47. The German Fatherland. S.A.T.B. ... ..	"	1d.
4. British Grenadiers. S.A.T.B. ... ..	"	2d.	48. The Lord is my Shepherd (Quartet). S.A.T.B. G. A. Osborne		2d.
5. Long live England's future Queen. S.A.T.B. Dr. Rimbault		2d.	49. Te Deum in F ... ..	"	2d.
6. My task is ended (Song and Chorus). A.T.B.B. ... ..	Balfé	4d.	50. Te Deum in F ... ..	"	2d.
7. Thus spake one summer's day. S.A.T.B. ... ..	Abt	2d.	51. Charity (La Carità). S.S.S. ... ..	Rossini	2d.
8. Soldiers' Chorus. T.T.B.B. ... ..	Gounod	4d.	52. Cordelia. A.T.T.B. ... ..	G. A. Osborne	4d.
9. The Kermesse (Scene from "Faust") ... ..	"	6d.	53. I know. S.A.T.B. ... ..	Walter Hay	2d.
10. Up, quit thy bower. S.A.T.B. ... ..	Brinley Richards	4d.	54. Chorus of Handmaidens (from "Fridolin")	A. Randegger	4d.
11. Maidens, never go a-wooing. S.S.T.T.B. ... ..	G. A. Macfarren	2d.	55. The Offertory Sentences ... ..	Edmund Rogers	4d.
12. Faggot-binders' Chorus ... ..	Gounod	4d.	56. The Red Cross Knight ... ..	Dr. Callcott	2d.
13. Sylvan Hours (for six female voices) ... ..	Joseph Robinson	6d.	57. The Chough and Crow ... ..	Sir H. R. Bishop	3d.
14. The Gipsy Chorus ... ..	Balfé	4d.	58. The "Carnovale" ... ..	Rossini	2d.
15. Ave Maria ... ..	Arcadelt	1d.	59. Softly falls the moonlight ... ..	Edmund Rogers	4d.
16. Hark! the herald angels sing. S.A.T.B. ... ..	Mendelssohn	1d.	60. Air by Himmel ... ..	Henry Leslie	2d.
17. England yet (Solo and Chorus). S.A.T.B. ... ..	Sir J. Benedict	2d.	61. Offertory Sentences ... ..	E. Sauerbrey	4d.
18. The Shepherd's Sabbath day. S.A.T.B. ... ..	J. L. Hatton	2d.	62. The Resurrection ... ..	C. Villiers Stanford	6d.
19. Thoughts of childhood. S.A.T.B. ... ..	Henry Smart	2d.	63. Our Boys. New Patriotic Song	H. J. Byron & W. M. Lutz	4d.
20. Spring's return. S.A.T.B. ... ..	"	2d.	64. The Men of Wales ... ..	Brinley Richards	2d.
21. An old Church song. S.A.T.B. ... ..	"	2d.	65. Dame Durden ... ..	"	1d.
22. Sabbath Bells. S.A.T.B. ... ..	"	2d.	66. A little farm well tilled ... ..	Hook	1d.
23. Serenade. S.A.T.B. ... ..	"	2d.	67. There was a simple maiden ... ..	G. A. Macfarren	1d.
24. Cold Autumn wind. S.A.T.B. ... ..	"	2d.	68. Fair Hebe ... ..	"	1d.
25. Orpheus with his lute. S.S.S. ... ..	Bennett Gilbert	2d.	69. Once I loved a maiden fair ... ..	"	1d.
26. Lullaby. S.A.A. ... ..	"	1d.	70. The Jovial Man of Kent ... ..	"	1d.
27. This is my own, my native land. S.A.T.B. G. A. Macfarren		1d.	71. The Oak and the Ash ... ..	"	1d.
28. March of the Men of Harlech. S.A.T.B. ... ..	Dr. Rimbault	2d.	72. Heart of oak ... ..	"	1d.
29. God save the Queen. S.A.T.B. ... ..	"	1d.	73. Come to the sunset tree ... ..	W. A. Philpott	4d.
30. Rule, Britannia. S.A.T.B. ... ..	"	1d.	74. May. S.A.T.B. ... ..	W. F. Banks	2d.
31. The Retreat. T.T.B.B. ... ..	L. de Rille	2d.	75. Pure, lovely innocence ("Il Re di Lahore")	Chorus for female voices	4d.
32. Lo! morn is breaking. S.S.S. ... ..	Cherubini	2d.	76. A Love Idyl. S.A.T.B. ... ..	J. Massenet	4d.
33. We are spirits. S.S.S. ... ..	G. A. Macfarren	4d.	77. Hail to the woods. A.T.T.B. ... ..	E. R. Terry	2d.
34. Market Chorus ("Masaniello"). S.A.T.B. ... ..	Auber	4d.	78. Near the town of Taunton ... ..	J. Yarwood	2d.
35. The Prayer ("Masaniello"). S.A.T.B. ... ..	"	1d.	79. Merry boys are we at sea. A.T.T.B. ... ..	Dean Thomas J. Dudeney	2d.
36. The Water Sprites. S.A.T.B. ... ..	Kücken	1d.	80. The shepherd's farewell. S.A.T.B. ... ..	J. Yarwood	2d.
37. Eve's glittering star. S.A.T.B. ... ..	"	2d.	81. When the sun sets o'er the mountains ("Il Demonio")	Berlioz	3d.
38. When first the primrose. S.A.T.B. ... ..	"	2d.
39. O dewdrop bright. S.A.T.B. ... ..	"	1d.
40. Sanctus, from the "Messe Solennelle." S.A.T.B. Rossini		4d.
41. Nine Kyries, Ancient and Modern ... ..	J. Gill	4d.
42. Sun of my soul. S.A.T.B. ... ..	Brinley Richards	2d.	82. Hymn of Nature ... ..	A. Rubinstein	3d.
43. 'Twas fancy, and the ocean's spray. S.A.T.B. G. A. Osborne		2d.	83. Michaelmas Day (Humorous Part-Songs, No. 1)	W. Maynard	4d.
44. A Prayer for those at Sea. S.A.T.B. ... ..	"	2d.	84. Sporting Notes (Humorous Part-Songs, No. 2)	W. Maynard	4d.
			85. Austrian National Hymn ... ..	Haydn	4d.

LONDON:

CHAPPELL &amp; CO., 50, NEW BOND STREET, W.

CITY BRANCH—14 AND 15, POULTRY, E.C.

FORSYTH BROTHERS' LATEST PUBLICATIONS.

PIANOFORTE SOLOS.

N.B.—The Letters before the names denote the degree of difficulty corresponding with the five Sections of CHARLES HALLÉ'S "Practical Pianoforte School," viz., A, Elementary; B, Easy; C, Moderately Difficult; D, Difficult; and E, Very Difficult.

CROOK, J.				LÖHR, F. N.
		s.	d.			s.	d.
c Valse Caractéristique .. ..	3	0		c Daybreak. Song without words .. ..	2	6
DIEMER, P. H.				c Fleur-de-lis. Mazurka de Salon .. ..	4	0
c A Spring Morning. Sketch .. ..	3	0		c Gavotte in G .. ..	3	0
DICK, COTSFORD.				b Gondola Song .. ..	3	0
c Clouds and Sunshine .. ..	3	0		c March in F .. ..	3	0
b Danse Magique .. ..	3	0		c Maud. Romance .. ..	3	0
c Madrigal .. ..	3	0		c Tarentelle .. ..	4	0
b On the Lake. Barcarolle .. ..	3	0		b Thuringia. Fantasia .. ..	4	0
HAWKINS, H.				c Twilight. An Idyl .. ..	3	0
b Gavotte in C .. ..	3	0		MARSDEN, G.
b Ditto in G .. ..	3	0		c Minuetto Grazioso .. ..	3	0
HECHT, E.				OCKLESTON, KATE.
c Prelude Op. 23, No. 1 .. ..	2	0		d Nocturne in D flat major .. ..	3	0
c Bourrée and Musette " " 2 .. ..	3	0		OESCH, J. A.
c Scherzino " " 3 .. ..	4	0		b Farewell to the Swiss Mountains .. ..	3	0
c Courante " " 4 .. ..	2	6		WEHLE, C.
HIME, E. L.				d Carnaval Artistique. Four Morceaux de Danse:—
b Chanson de la Sirène. Romance .. ..	3	0		No. 1. Valse Caractéristique .. ..	3	0
KERBUSCH, L.				" 2. Polka de Concert .. ..	4	0
b A Lullaby .. ..	2	6		" 3. Mazurka Élégante .. ..	3	0
KLITZ, R. A.				" 4. Contredanse Brillante .. ..	4	0
c Forest Echoes. Morceau de Salon .. ..	3	0		d Má Vlast—Chanson Bohème .. ..	4	0
				d Troisième Berceuse .. ..	3	0
				d Troisième Grand Polonaise .. ..	4	0
				d Troisième Tarentelle .. ..	4	0

TWO NEW PIANOFORTE ALBUMS by STEPHEN HELLER & CARL REINECKE

BEING COLLECTIONS OF THE LATEST COMPOSITIONS BY THESE EMINENT COMPOSERS.

EDITED AND CAREFULLY FINGERED BY CHARLES HALLÉ.

Price in Paper Cover, 5s. each net; Cloth, gilt edges, 7s. each net.

ORGAN.

OAKELEY, SIR H. S.				s.	d.
Four Morceaux from Gluck's "Orpheus," arranged .. ..	4	0
Gluck's Menuet Grazioso in G, arranged .. ..	3	0
Funeral March, Op. 23 .. ..	4	0
STATHAM, WILLIAM.
Four Movements, arranged .. ..	3	0

VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE.

BAUERKELLER, W.
Andante in D .. ..	4	0	Allegretto in A, All' Ongarese .. ..	4	0
Andantino in E .. ..	3	0	Notturmo in F .. ..	3	0
PERERA, C.
Morceau Chantant .. ..	3	0

SONGS.

CAMERANA, L.
A Gallant's Song	..	..	..	..	4	0	Where art thou, O beloved and lost..	..	..	3	0
Deserted ..	..	..	..	..	4	0	Song of the Huntsman	..	..	3	0
LÖHR, F. N.
A Shadow	..	..	..	..	3	0	The Vesper Hour	..	..	4	0
Give ..	..	..	..	..	3	0	The Years that come and go ..	..	..	3	0
Somebody is coming	..	..	..	..	3	0
NICHOLLS, W. H.						OCKLESTON, KATE.
The Offer'd Flower	..	..	..	..	3	0	A Shadow	..	..	4	0

FORSYTH BROTHERS,

272a, Regent Circus, Oxford Street, London; 122 & 124, Deansgate, Manchester.
AND ALL MUSICSELLERS IN THE UNITED KINGDOM AND THE COLONIES.

MELBOURNE EXHIBITION, 1881.

CHALLEN & SON

HAVE BEEN ADJUDGED THE

GOLD MEDAL

FOR UPRIGHT IRON-FRAME PIANOS.

MELBOURNE, March, 1881.

We, the undersigned Jurors for Musical Instruments at the Melbourne International Exhibition, have no hesitation in certifying that Messrs. Challen & Son, of London, have obtained the highest number of points for Cottage Pianos, in the British Court.

The award was based on the excellence of the quality, combined with the cheapness and solidity of the instruments exhibited, which we consider to be well adapted to the requirements of the Colonies.

LÉON CARON,

Chairman,

L. MOONEN,

Vice-Chairman,

ANTONIO GIAMMONA,

WILLIAM ANDERSON,

THOMAS MORANT,

GUSTAV GERLACH,

C. T. PLUNKET,

JULIUS LIEDE.

May be obtained from all Musicsellers. Illustrated Lists and Testimonials forwarded free.

Sole Wholesale Agents for WARD'S PATENT ROYAL PIANOFORTE LAMP.

"A very ingenious application of lamp-light on the desk of the Pianoforte, Harmonium, or Organ."—Vide Illustrated London News.

CHALLEN & SON, 46, OXFORD ST.

STEAM WORKS—CARDINGTON STREET, EUSTON SQUARE.

ESTABLISHED 1804.

No.
469

Price
3d.

MUSICAL TIMES

MARCH 1, 1882

HOPKINSON'S PIANOFORTES.

PRIZE MEDALS—1851, 1855, 1862, 1865, 1866, 1872, 1875, 1877, 1879, AND AT THE PARIS EXHIBITION, 1878,

the highest distinction was conferred upon Messrs. HOPKINSON by the Musical Jurors—viz., the only Gold Medal awarded to any British Manufacturer.

MESSRS. HOPKINSON, therefore, feel fairly entitled to repeat the opinions expressed in the year 1845, by the most celebrated Pianists and Musicians then living—viz., THALBERG, Sir JULIUS BENEDICT, Madame DULCKEN, Sir HENRY BISHOP, and others, as still being correct—that their Pianofortes are "unsurpassed in tone and touch by those of any other maker."

Since these opinions were expressed, the leading musical judges in all parts of the world have confirmed them.

Messrs. H. having also, after carefully conducted experiments, introduced improvements of great value, with confidence invite the Trade, Professors, and the Musical Public, specially to inspect and judge of their Metal-framed Grand and Cottage Pianofortes, which they believe to deserve the eulogium passed upon them by the President of the Musical Jurors at Paris, 1878, that—

"THEY ARE FAULTLESS."

WAREROOMS—235, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.

MANUFACTORY—FITZROY ROAD, PRIMROSE HILL, N.W.

NOTE.—As many persons are not aware at how moderate a price they can obtain Instruments of such proved and undoubted excellence, they are invited to apply for Illustrated Lists.

CHAPPELL AND CO.'S IRON-FRAMED PIANOFORTES,

OBLIQUE, AND SINGLE AND DOUBLE OVERSTRUNG.

35 TO 150 GUINEAS.

CLOUGH & WARREN'S AMERICAN ORGANS,

A COMBINATION OF PIPES AND REEDS.

18 TO 225 GUINEAS.

ALEXANDRE ORGAN HARMONIUMS,

6 TO 150 GUINEAS.

Show Rooms—50, NEW BOND STREET, W.

City Branch—15, POULTRY, E.C.

Steam Pianoforte Works—CHALK FARM ROAD, N.W.

THE AMERICAN PORTABLE Music Stands.

J. F. WALTERS' PATENT.

		s.	d.
Iron Single Desks	... from	10	6
„ Double „	... „	25	0
Brass Single „	... „	30	0
„ Double „	... „	45	0
Desks for Table, in Iron	... „	3	6
„ „ Brass	... „	10	0

A large variety of designs in Brass Stands kept in Stock.

THESE Stands are unsurpassed in simplicity, strength, portability, cheapness, and elegance of finish.

They are suitable for Military Bands, Orchestras, Reading and News Rooms, Libraries, Studies, and Drawing Rooms. When opened to their full capacity they stand 5 feet high, and can be folded and inclosed in a case 21 inches long by 2 inches diameter. The weight is about 3 lbs. 12 oz., and they will support a weight of 50 lbs.

To be obtained of all Music Dealers, and of the Manufacturers and Proprietors of the Patent,

HARROW & CO., Music Smiths, Brass Workers, &c., 13 & 14, Portland Street, Soho, London, W.
DESCRIPTIVE CIRCULARS FREE.

STEINWAY & SONS' NEW UPRIGHT GRAND PIANOFORTE

(HEIGHT, 4 FEET 6 INCHES),

With the STEINWAY PATENT CUPOLA and PIER FRAME, constructed of SOLID STEEL finished in BRONZE (as in the STEINWAY HORIZONTAL GRAND PIANOFORTES), and cast in the STEINWAY FOUNDRIES, also the NEW PATENT CAPO D'ASTRO BAR; the STEINWAY PATENT OVERSTRUNG SCALING, and NEW PATENT EXTRA HARMONIC DUPLEX SCALE; PATENT SOUND-BOARD RESONATOR; PATENT RING BRIDGE; PATENT INDESTRUCTIBLE HAMMERS; GRADUATING SOFT PEDAL CASED in METAL; PATENT METALLIC ACTION STANDARDS; THREE STRINGS TO EACH NOTE; SEVEN OCTAVES, &c., &c.

PRICE 105 GUINEAS.

* Attention is directed to this magnificent STEINWAY UPRIGHT GRAND PIANOFORTE, which is a NEW MODEL specially designed to meet the requirements of those English households who have wished for a "STEINWAY" at a somewhat lower price than had previously existed. It possesses all the well-known STEINWAY characteristics in respect to TONE, displaying a volume, fulness, depth, and richness, with a purity, refinement, and exquisite sympathetic quality utterly unknown in any English Pianofortes, whilst in regard to STRUCTURAL SOLIDITY it obviously compares with them (as has been happily said) "as a MODERN IRONCLAD to a CANOE."

STEINWAY HALL,
LOWER SEYMOUR ST., PORTMAN SQUARE, LONDON, W.
(AND AT STEINWAY HALL, NEW YORK.)

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 469.—Vol. 23.
Registered for transmission abroad.

MARCH 1, 1882.

Price 3d.; Post-free, 4d.
Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 4s.

COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

MEADOWCROFT MEMORIAL PRIZE.

A PRIZE of SIXTEEN GUINEAS is OFFERED for the best ANTHEM adapted for PAROCHIAL USE. This COMPETITION is open to ALL COMPOSERS. MSS. must be sent in on or before May 1, 1882, designated by a motto or device in each case, and accompanied by a sealed letter in each instance, similarly designated, and containing composer's name and address. Unsuccessful MSS., with corresponding sealed letter, will be returned on application. Conditions may be obtained at the College.

A PRIZE of TEN GUINEAS is also OFFERED for the best POSTLUDE for ORGAN, to be written in the form of the first movement of a Sonata. MSS. to be sent in on or before May 1, 1882. This Competition is open to MEMBERS OF THE COLLEGE ONLY.

J. SPENCER CURWEN, Esq., will read a Paper on "Welsh Popular Music," on TUESDAY, March 7, at 8. This Lecture will be given at the Neumeyer Hall, Hart Street, Bloomsbury.

E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.

95, Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury.

MR. WALTER BACHE'S ORCHESTRAL CONCERT. St. James's Hall, March 2, at 8.30. Franz Liszt: A "Faust" Symphony (Faust, Gretchen, Mephistopheles); Der Tanz in der Dorfschenke (Mephisto-Walzer). Episode from Lénau's "Faust." Orchestra of 81 performers. Mr. Ben Davies (of the Carl Rosa Opera). Chorus of 80 voices (tenors and basses). Conductor, Mr. Walter Bache. Stalls, 10s. 6d.; reserved, 5s.; balcony, 3s.; admission, 1s.

BONAWITZ'S GRAND EVENING CONCERT. St. James's Hall, TUESDAY, March 7, at 8 o'clock, IN AID OF THE PRINCESS FRÉDÉRIKA'S CONVALESCENT HOME. REQUIEM (Bonawitz), conducted by the Composer, and miscellaneous programme. Tickets at principal Music Publishers.

SATURDAY POPULAR ORGAN RECITALS. Bow and Bromley Institute.—REOPENING of ORGAN on SATURDAY, March 4, by Mr. E. H. Turpin, Hon. Sec., College of Organists. Admission, Threepence; chairs, Sixpence.

MUSICAL ASSOCIATION, 27, Harley Street, W. On MONDAY, March 6, at 5 o'clock, a Paper will be read by F. E. GLADSTONE, Esq., Mus. Doc., Cantab., "On Consecutive Fifths." JAMES HIGGS, Hon. Sec.

9, Torrington Square, W.C.

TRINITY COLLEGE, London.—On TUESDAY, March 14, at 7.30, W. F. AUSTIN, Esq., L. Mus., T.C.L., will read a Paper entitled "Some Practical Suggestions as to the Formation of a School of English Organ." C. W. PEARCE, Hon. Sec. Licentiate's Committee.

KENSINGTON PARISH CHURCH CHOIR.—Choir Scholarship. A Free Education at Kensington Grammar School will be given to two BOYS whose voices are suitable for the Church Choir. The Scholarships will be tenable as long as the holder is able to sing in the Choir, subject to the approval of the Head Master of the School and the Choir Committee. Applications to be made in writing, addressed, the Choir Warden, St. Mary Abbots Church Vestry, Kensington, W.

CITY CHURCH CHOIR.—There is a VACANCY for a CONTRALTO VOICE in the Choir of St. Alphage, London Wall. The duties comprise two services on Sunday and a rehearsal on Thursday evening. Service, full choral. Salary, £10 per annum. Candidates must be well up in Church music, and be able to read fairly at sight. Address, with testimonials or references, Organist, care of R. A. Knight and Co., 3, Abchurch Lane, E.C.

WANTED, Two Young Women, between 22 and 30 years of age, who can sing from notes, as ATTENDANTS in an ASYLUM. Salary to commence at £20 a year, with board, lodging, washing, and uniform dresses. Apply to the Superintendent, County Asylum, Rainhill, Liverpool.

FREE VACANCIES in a resident Country Choir for two LEADING TREBLES. Orphans (gentlemen's sons) preferred. Address, Precentor, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

THERE is a VACANCY in the Choir of the Lock Chapel, Harrow Road, for an ALTO (Male). Salary, £10 per annum. Applications to be sent in to Mr. Walter Wesché, 14, Tavistock Road, Westbourne Park, W.

ALTO and FIRST BASS (Gentlemen Amateurs) WANTED by an old-established City Glee Club. Conductor, at Newsagent's, 3, Bird Street, West Square, S.E.

ALTO (good experience) is open to an ENGAGEMENT. The neighbourhood of Dulwich preferred. Apply to W. C. P., 20, Victoria Road, Finsbury Park.

CHRIST CHURCH CATHEDRAL, Dublin.—WANTED, on April 1, 1882, a TENOR SOLO-SINGER. A good sight reader and accustomed to part-singing. Not to exceed 30 years of age. Must be of unexceptionable character and a communicant. Duty, the usual morning and afternoon service throughout the year. Salary at the rate of £120 per annum. Applications, by letter only (inclosing copies of testimonials, and stating references), to be made to the Precentor, the Rev. Edward Seymour, M.A., 52, Upper Leeson Street, Dublin, on or before March 15.

TENOR WANTED, in the Choir of St. Mary's, Vincent Square, S.W. Stipend, £12. Apply to the Organist at the Church, either on Sundays, after the evening service, or on Thursdays at 8 p.m.

PRINCIPAL TENOR WANTED for Church in West-End. Salary, £25 per annum. Apply to Vicar, 129, Gloucester Road, S.W.

THE VICTORIA ORCHESTRAL and CHORAL SOCIETY.—AMATEURS WANTED for Sacred Concert, Good Friday. Address, Mr. T. R. J. Ames, 77-79, Green Street, E.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED for Holy Trinity, Gainsborough, and the Mission Church of St. John. Must be thoroughly familiar with Gregorian as well as Anglican music. Catholic service. Salary, £40. Apply to Canon Hodgkinson, Trinity Vicarage, Gainsborough.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER REQUIRED at Ladytide, for the Parish Church, Horsham. Two services on Sunday and morning service on Christmas Day and Good Friday. Music, Anglican; supplanted choir. Sunday evening service full choral. Fine organ, by Willis, of London, with three manuals and pedals. Salary to a thoroughly competent man, £70 per annum. There is a good opening for teaching. Applications, with testimonials, to be sent in on or before March 8 to the Rev. J. F. Hodgson, the Vicarage, Horsham.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER REQUIRED, from Lady-Day next, for Whitfield's Tabernacle, Tottenham Court Road. Two Sunday services, one week-night. Good stipend to first-rate professor. No others need apply. Address, Organ Committee, at the Chapel.

WANTED, an ORGANIST, who can train a Choir, for Parish Church, Grays, Essex. For particulars, apply to the Vicar.

ENGAGEMENT WANTED as ORGANIST, in or near London. Good references. H. G. Mead, Palmerston Road, Buckhurst Hill.

ORGANIST for St. Stephen's, Buckhurst Hill, Essex. The post advertised last month has been filled up. Copies of testimonials will be returned on application to Rector.

WANTED, in North of London, post as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, either or both. Address, W. B. P., 77, Offord Road, Barnsbury, N.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER DISENGAGED. Highest references. Service, Anglican or Gregorian. A communicant. A. S., Mrs. Mose, Post Office, West Green, Tottenham, N.

AS ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, aged 22. Excellent testimonials and references. W. M., 18, Bellamy Street, Balham.

AS ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—The above desires a RE-ENGAGEMENT. Good testimonials. Address, Musicus, Post-office, Southampton Street, Camberwell.

ORGANIST.—Young Lady, of considerable experience, desires RE-ENGAGEMENT. London or suburbs. Highest references and testimonials. Address, A. A., 20, Perth Road, Finsbury Park, Holloway, N.

ORGANIST open to permanent ENGAGEMENT or as DEPUTY. B., 54, Trinity Square, Borough.

ORGANIST DISENGAGED (can train choir). Experienced, punctual, and zealous. Moderate salary if S.W. district. V., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MRS. BELLAMY (Soprano).

Oratorio and Ballad Concerts, 32, Hunter's Lane, Birmingham.

MISS E. A. BLACKBURN (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 30, Woodview Terrace, Manningham, Yorks.

MISS MARIE COPE (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Concerts, Lessons, 167, New Cross Road, London, S.E.

MISS EVA FARBSTEIN (Soprano).

Pupil of Signor Arditi, Conductor of Her Majesty's Opera. For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 20, Story Street, Hull; or, N. Vert, Esq., 50, New Bond Street, London, W.

MISS HARDMAN (Soprano)

Is open to engagements for Oratorios, Concerts, &c. For terms and open dates, address, Bacup, Manchester.

MISS BESSIE HOLT (Soprano).

(Of the London, Manchester, and Newcastle Concerts.) Address, Rawtenstall, Manchester.

MISS JULIA JONES (Soprano).

For Oratorios, &c., address, 1, Great Western Terrace, Cheltenham.

MISS MINNIE JONES (Prize Soprano).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 104, Mytton St., Moss Side, Manchester.

MISS CLARA MARNI, R.A.M. (Soprano).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 32, Newington Green, N.

MISS NELLY McEWEN (Soprano)

Is open to engagements for Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 1, Cavendish Place, Cavendish Square, W.

MRS. ALFRED J. SUTTON (Soprano)

Is open to engagements for Concerts and Oratorios. 54, Duchess Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.

MISS LOUISA BOWMONT

(Principal Contralto of St. Peter's, Manchester.) For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., address, 51, Mercer Street, Embden Street, Hulme, Manchester. Criticisms on application.

MISS SARA CRAGG (Contralto).

12, North Castle Street, Halifax.

MRS. SAML. WORTON FIELDING (Contralto).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 11, Pershore Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham, and 56, Hammersmith Road, London, W.

MISS ADA LEA (Contralto).

Concerts, Dinners, Lessons, &c., 5, Park Place, Norwood Road, S.E.

MISS JEANIE ROSSE (Contralto).

Fairmead Lodge, Upper Holloway, N.

MISS FLORENCE WYDFORD (Contralto).

For Oratorios, Miscellaneous Concerts, Dinners, Soirées, &c., 95, St. Paul's Road, Lorrimer Square, S.E.

MISS EMILIE YOUNG (Contralto).

(Of the Popular and Promenade Concerts) 2nd Prize (1880), and two 1st Prizes (1881), Lea's Open Competitions. Address, care of Wm. Lea, Church Street, Liverpool.

MR. GEORGE BANKS (Tenor).

MR. JAMES B. SMITH (Bass).

(Both late of St. Mary's Cathedral, Edinburgh.) Address, The Cathedral, Peterborough.

MR. VERNEY BINNS (Tenor).

65, King Cross Street, Halifax.

MR. TOM BUCKLAND (Tenor).

New Bond Street, Halifax.

MR. EDWIN LONGMORE (Solo Tenor).

MR. HENRY SUNMAN (Solo Bass).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, The Minster, Southwell.

The Era says: "Mr. Peach has a tenor voice of very pure quality."

MR. FRANK PEACH (Tenor).

For Oratorios, Concerts, Church Solos, &c., address, 58, Foulden Road, Stoke Newington, N.

MR. STEDMAN (Tenor).

12, Berners Street, W.

MR. DUNCAN CALLOW (Baritone).

Godwin Road, Forest Gate, E.

MR. W. H. BRERETON (Bass).

8, Mecklenburgh Street, W.C.

MR. W. J. INESON (Solo Bass).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Cathedral, Hereford.

MR. J. BINGLEY SHAW (Bass).

For Oratorios, Concerts, Banquets, &c., address, 12, Berners Street, London, W., or The Minster, Southwell.

MR. FREDERICK SHAW (Bass).

5, Adelaide Terrace, Lincoln.

MISS LAURA SMART (Soprano), engaged:

Greenock ("Messiah"), Halifax, Mold, Preston, Nantwich ("Trial by Jury"), Bradford ("Creation"), Berwick-on-Tweed ("Creation"), Barnard Castle ("Judas Maccabæus"), &c., &c. All communications, 28, Church Street, Liverpool.

MISS FANNIE SELLERS (Soprano) will sing at Stockton-on-Tees, February 25; Blyth, 27; West Hartlepool ("Rose Maiden"), March 13. Address, York Place, Knaresboro'.

MR. EDWARD COLLETT (Alto) seeks ENGAGE

MENT for BALLAD CONCERTS. Just finished two years engagement in the provinces (see Midland Sunbeam, Nottingham) E. Collett, the "boy singer," freely pronounced to be equal to Sims Reeves. Address, 150, St. John Street Road, Clerkenwell, E.C.

MR. E. DUNKERTON (Tenor, Lincoln Cathedral), engaged: Hull, March 9 (Ballads); Rotherham, 14 ("Creation"); Stockport, 16 ("Hymn of Praise," "Stabat Mater"); Swadlincote, 22 ("Ode for St. Cecilia's Day"); Mansfield, April 11 ("Messiah"); Leeds, 13 ("Lauda Sion"); Heckington, 18 (Ballads); Walsall, 20 ("Ancient Mariner"). For vacant dates, address, Cathedral, Lincoln.

MR. FREDERICK BEVAN (Bass, H.M. Chapel

Royal, Whitehall) begs to announce that he is open to accept engagements for Oratorio, Classical, Operatic, or Ballad Concerts, &c. (New address) 21, Bonham Road, Brixton Rise, S.W.

MR. ALFRED MOORE (Bass) will be happy to forward vacant dates for Oratorios and Concerts of all descriptions, in town or country, on application to his new address, Saint Winifred, Underhill Road, Lordship Lane, S.E.

MR. ARTHUR DOREY (Organist of the Alexandra Palace). For Pupils, Engagements for Concerts, &c., 14, Huntley Street, Bedford Square, W.C.

DR. CORBETT gives LESSONS through Post in Harmony, Counterpoint, &c., &c. Upwards of sixty pupils have passed musical examinations. Address, Bridgenorth, Salop.

LESSONS by CORRESPONDENCE. E. W.

TAYLOR, Mus. Bac., F.C.O., L.Mus. T.C.L., Stafford.

THE ORGANIST of RIPON CATHEDRAL

teaches HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT by Correspondence. For terms, address Edwin J. Crow, F.C.O., Mus. Bac., Cantab.

MR. MARK J. MONK, Mus. Bac., Oxon., gives

LESSONS by post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares Candidates for the University Examinations in Music. Address, Ashby-de-la-Zouch, Leicestershire.

MR. C. FRANCIS LLOYD, Mus. Bac., Oxon.,

L.Mus., T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by post. Address, Alma Place, North Shields.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who passed RECENT UNIVERSITY EXAMINATIONS for the DEGREES of MUS. DOC. and MUS. BAC. (Oxford, Cambridge, and Dublin). Dr. Allison prepared Candidates who passed this year's (1882) Examination for Licentiate of the Royal Academy of Music, "Passed with Honours" Royal Academy of Music, Local Examinations F.C.O. (1882), and every other Musical Examination open to the public. Harmony, Acoustics, Form, Plan or Design, Counterpoint, Canon, Fugue, Analysis, Orchestration, and Revision of Compositions, by Post. Personal instruction in Singing, Organ and Pianoforte playing. CAMBRIDGE HOUSE, 68, NELSON STREET, MANCHESTER.

MUSIC SCHOOL.—CHURCH OF ENGLAND

HIGH SCHOOL for GIRLS (Limited), 6, Upper Baker Street, Regent's Park.—Head Music-Mistress, Miss Macrone, late Professor of Royal Academy of Music. Fees, two or three guineas a term. Pupils not in the school pay an entrance fee of one guinea. Examinations for Scholarships will be held at Easter by Professor Macfarren. The Music School reopened on Wednesday, January 18. F. J. HOLLAND, Chairman.

LONDON ORGAN SCHOOL and COLLEGE of MUSIC (established 1865), 3, Princes Street, Cavendish Square, W. Piano, singing, violin, flute, organ lessons, and practice, £2 2s. per course. Lessons day and evening. Prospectus for one stamp.

SCOTSON CLARK, Mus. B., Principal.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Three manuals, each of 56

notes, pedal organ, 30 notes, 18 effective stops, and blown by the Automatic Hydraulic Engine. Terms, strictly inclusive, ONE SHILLING PER HOUR, at Blennerhasset's Organ School and Studio, 1A, Vernon Street, Pentonville, W.C.

Sole Agent for THE HYDRAULIC ORGAN BLOWER. Cheapest, simplest, best, and most effective ever invented. Full particulars, and estimates as above, free. Inspection invited.

ORGAN PRACTICE (Private) on exceptionally moderate terms. Three manuals, 34 stops; separate pedal organ of 4 stops. Blown by engine-power. Five minutes' from the "Angel." Apply to Ewald and Co., 16, Argyl Street, Regent Circus, W.

ORGAN LESSONS, or PRACTICE, 36, STRAND

(four doors from Charing Cross), and at St. Michael's, Lorn Road, Brixton Road, S.W., on fine two-manual C ORGANS (HILL and SON). PEDALLING specially taught. W. VENNING SOUTHGATE, "The Strand Organ Studio," 36, Strand, W.C. Established 1867.

ORGAN LESSONS (with Practice), St. Saviour's
Church, or Mr. J. Faux Boardman's Organ Studio, 58, Herne
Hill Road, Camberwell, S.E. Modern organ.

PRACTISING ROOMS.—AGATE and PRITCH-
ARD, 68, Gracechurch Street, E.C. Professors attend to give lessons on various Instruments, also in Singing. An Elementary Class for the Violin.

ADVERTISER requires LESSONS on the FLUTE on Saturdays. Apply by letter, stating terms, &c., to A. W., care of Mr. Pike, 1, Hertford Street, Mayfair.

MUSICAL PROFESSION.—To the CLERGY,
&c.—Mr. W. de M. SERGISON, Organist of St. Peter's, Eaton
Square, has a VACANCY for a Young Gentleman as ARTICLED
PUPIL. The highest advantages for training as a Church musician.
Apply to the Vestry, St. Peter's, Eaton Square, S.W.

MR. EDWIN EVANS will shortly have a VACANCY for a RESIDENT PUPIL, to train for the profession. Organ (30 stops, 3 manuals) in the house. Large musical library, separate piano, and every facility for progress and experience.
Large church organ. Apply, by letter, 16, Argyl Street, W.

ARTICLED PUPIL.—The ORGANIST of St.
Paul's Collegiate Church, Malta, could receive a Young Gentleman as above. Large house and good climate. Thorough instruction in Organ, Piano, Singing, Composition, and Italian (if required).
Advertiser hopes to visit England this summer, and would take charge of the pupil on his return. Organist, 136, Strada Forni, Valetta, Malta.

TO ORGANISTS.—WANTED to ARTICLE a
YOUTH, for four years, to a thorough musician. Comfortable home indispensable. Address, for reciprocal terms, Musica, care of Madame West, The Studio, Bexley Heath, Kent.

THE following Artists may be engaged for Oratorio,
Ballad, and Miscellaneous Concerts, either as a quartet party, or separately, viz.:—

MISS ANNIE SINCLAIR (Soprano).
Of the Royal Albert Hall and Exeter Hall Concerts.

MISS EMILY DONES (Contralto).
Of the Royal Albert Hall Concerts.

MR. ALFRED KENNINGHAM (Tenor).
Principal Tenor of St. Paul's Cathedral.

MR. THOMAS KEMPTON (Bass).
Of the Bach Choir Concerts and St. Paul's Cathedral.

For terms, vacant dates, &c., &c., to Thomas Kempton, 6, Halliford Street, London, N., where all communications respecting Church
Festivals, Masonic Banquets, &c., should be addressed.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES and MANAGERS of
CONCERTS.—Mr. T. Harper's Concert Party for Oratorios,
Ballad Concerts, &c. For vacant dates, 25, Brecknock Crescent, N.W.

THE BRISTOL CATHEDRAL QUARTET.—
For Concerts, Banquets, &c., address, Mr. J. F. Nash, The Cathedral, Bristol.

MR. and MADAME EDWYN FRITH'S
GRAND ORATORIO, OPERATIC, and BALLAD CON-CERT ARTISTS and PARTIES (under Royal Patronage, 1880) for London or Provinces. Especially moderate terms for en route consecutive dates. Prospectus and highest testimonials. Over 150 artists to select from. Engagements settled: Scarborough, February 22;
Hull, 23; Huddersfield, 24; Manchester, 25; Derby, 25; Bermondsey, 28; Hammersmith, March 6; Holloway, 7; Birmingham (Musical Association), 18; Leeds, &c., to follow; Woolwich (Royal Arsenal Philharmonic Society), April 7; Cardiff, &c., to follow. Many other dates pending. Vacancies for Resident and a few other Vocal Pupils.
Terms moderate. Mr. Frith can always hear musical talent in all branches. Address, Yealm House, Netherwood Road, Kensington, W.

MR. JOSEF CANTOR'S CONCERT COMPANY have fulfilled engagements at the following places this season:
Wellington (Salop), Southport, Oldham (twice), Appleton, Widnes,
St. Helen's, Bacup, Ormskirk, Manchester (twice), Mossley, Darwen, Tintwistle, Tranmere (Cheshire), Greenock (N.B.), Ripon, Hollingworth, Warrington, Douglas (Isle of Man), in every case yielding unbounded satisfaction. Write for prospectus, &c., 28, Church Street, Liverpool.

MR. JOSEF CANTOR'S CONCERT COMPA- NIES.—Artists may be engaged singly or otherwise. List includes the principal artists in the North of England. Oratorio, Cantata, or Ballad Concert. I invite communications from secretaries and conductors of small societies who are desirous of avoiding heavy expense. Testimonials, opinions of the press, &c., on application, 28, Church Street, Liverpool.

AN Amateur desires an ENGAGEMENT as ORGANIST, in or near Oxford. Permanent or otherwise.
Apply by letter, to Mr. R. D. Wakefield, Pembroke College, Oxford.

ORGANIST.—A Lady (Certificated R.A.M.),
Organist of a Church in North London (two-manual organ), desires PRACTICE once a week on a three-manual organ, either paying or helping with a weekday service in return. N. or N.W. district preferred. F. H. P., 92, Junction Road, Highgate, N.

AN ORGANIST desires an APPOINTMENT.
Held present post four years. Elvey's service preferred. Address, W. Wellstead, Organist, Duke's Street, Winterbourne-Kingston, Blandford, Dorset.

OXFORD (in or near).—An ORGANIST, now resident in Oxford, seeks an APPOINTMENT as above. Six years' London experience. Previously a pupil under Mr. G. F.
Deaumont. Address, Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge
Depôt, Queen Street. Would depute in the interim.

THE ORGANIST of St. Mary Abbots, Kensington, is seeking an ASSISTANT, whose duties would be to Train the Choirboys, and be present with them at the morning and evening services on Sunday. For further particulars, apply by letter to Mr.
H. R. Bird, at the Church.

THE REV. J. W. MAITLAND, Loughton Hall,
Essex, begs to thank those gentlemen who have replied to his advertisement for Organist, and to inform them that the vacancy has been filled up.

ANY CHURCH or other place wanting an ORGAN and PLAYER can be supplied on moderate terms (advantageous). Address, Baldwin, Burnham, Somerset.

PIANOFORTE TUNER of experience WANTED.
Liberal salary, and permanent situation to one thoroughly qualified. Apply, James Graham, Music Warehouse, Stirling, N.B.

TUNER.—WANTED immediately, an experienced and reliable PIANOFORTE TUNER and REGULATOR.
Good salary given. Unexceptional references required. Apply,
A. B. C., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER.—WANTED for Coun- try, Young Man as PIANOFORTE TUNER, and to Assist as Regulator and Repairer. Highest references required. Apply, Beta,
Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

WANTED, an experienced TUNER and REGU- LATOR for a Provincial Music Warehouse of old standing in the South of England. One accustomed to Country work preferred.
Good references indispensable. Address, with particulars, to J. W.,
Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

WANTED, PIANOFORTE TUNER. A per- manent situation to an experienced and reliable man. Send carte. References and full particulars to W. Duck and Co., Pianoforte Sellers, Bath.

PIANOFORTE TUNER WANTED for a firm in the Eastern Counties. A good hand, and with Factory experience.
Apply to Challen and Son, 46, Oxford Street, London.

WANTED by a Young Man, a SITUATION as TUNER. Good factory experience. Small salary to commence. Apply to W. B., 8, Conderton Road, Camberwell, S.E.

TUNER and ASSISTANT.—WANTED, by a Young Man, SITUATION as above in Music Warehouse; understands repairs of small musical instruments. Good references. Address Amber, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, a SITUATION as PIANOFORTE and
HARMONIUM TUNER and REPAIRER; understands
American Organs. Good references given. Apply G. E. M., Messrs.
Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

FIRST-CLASS TUNER and TONER (from COLLARD and COLLARD) is open to ENGAGEMENT as GENERAL ASSISTANT or ASSISTANT MANAGER in Pianoforte and Music Warehouse. Would make himself useful. Good sight reader. Plays Piano, American Organ, and Harmonium very well. Sound knowledge of counter department. Good experience as salesman. Speaks German fluently. Good appearance. Apply, J. C., 94, St. Pancras Road, N.W., stating salary given and full particulars.
Exceptional references given and required.

A PIANOFORTE TUNER and REPAIRER wants RE-ENGAGEMENT. Has had Factory experience, and understands American Organs. Apply to G. N., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

EXPERIENCED TUNER, BOOKKEEPER, and
CORRESPONDENT desires ENGAGEMENT as Tuner or Assistant Manager. Steady, total abstainer. Moderate salary. H.C., Messrs. Brooks and Co., 194, Mare Street, E.

GENTLEMANLY OCCUPATION (£150 a year made easily). Pianoforte Tuning and Repairing Taught.
References to Pupils making good incomes. Tuner, Florence House,
Prince of Wales Road, N.W.

WANTED, a Business Man of good address and with some knowledge of music, as TRAVELLER and CAN-VASSER for a high-class and old-established Country Music House.
Age not less than 25. Salary, 40s. Commission and expenses extra.
Apply by letter, to Voyageur, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON.

HIGHER EXAMINATIONS IN MUSIC.

The next Examinations for the positions of Licentiate, Associate, and Student in Music, for Matriculation, and for Special Certificates in Harmony, Counterpoint, and Practical Music, will commence on July 10, 1882. The last day for receiving candidates' names for any of the above Examinations is June 23, 1882. Copies of the Regulations and Forms of Application for Admission may be obtained from the Secretary, Trinity College, 13, Mandeville Place, London, W.

[N.B.—The Examinations are held in London only, with the exception of the Matriculation Examination, which may, by special arrangement, be held also at certain of the more important local centres of the College.]

LOCAL EXAMINATIONS IN INSTRUMENTAL AND VOCAL MUSIC.

In response to a desire very generally expressed throughout the country for a system of Local Examinations in Pianoforte-Playing and Singing, the Academical Board, in the year 1873, originated such a System of Practical Musical Examinations, and appointed a Visiting Examiner, on whose report Certificates (Honours or Pass) are granted to efficient Candidates.

Local Centres and Schools may be visited by the Examiner at any time, by special arrangement with the Academical Board. Application should be made through the Local Secretary for the District at least three months before the proposed date of the Examination. The Subjects of Examination are as follows:—1. Pianoforte, Organ, or Harmonium Playing. 2. Pianoforte Duet Playing. 3. Solo Singing. 4. Performance on any Orchestral Instrument.

The Regulations, with the Official List of approved Pieces, may be had of the Secretary, Trinity College, London, W.

LOCAL SECRETARYSHIPS.

The Academical Board are prepared to receive Applications for vacant Local Secretaryships at the following places: Bath, Barnsley, Bury St. Edmunds, Cambridge, Carlisle, Darlington, Deal, Doncaster, Durham, Gloucester, Grantham, Grimsby, Halifax, Hull, Lewes, Lichfield, London (N.W.), Lynton, Macclesfield, Market Harborough, Merthyr Tydvil, Monmouth, Newark, Oswestry, Preston, Sheerness, Southampton, Southend, Shrewsbury, Taunton, Torquay, Towcester, Trowbridge, Tunbridge Wells, Wakefield, York. Applicants must be prepared to qualify for appointment by being duly elected Honorary Members of the College.

For particulars as to duties, &c., address, The Secretary, Trinity College, London, W.

CLASSES AND LECTURES.

Prospectuses, containing names of professors, subjects, fees, and all particulars of the teaching department, may be had on application to the Secretary, Trinity College, Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, W.

BY ORDER OF THE ACADEMICAL BOARD.

LATEST NOVELTY. GREAT SUCCESS.

NEUMEYER Quadruplex Pianos.

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.
No. 4,219.

MOST PERFECT AND CHEAPEST
INSTRUMENTS.

WARRANTED TO STAND ALL CLIMATES.

For new Designs and Price-List apply to

NEUMEYER AND CO.,

NEUMEYER HALL, HART STREET, BLOOMSBURY,
LONDON, W.C.

BELL ORGANS

AHEAD OF ALL OTHERS

MANUFACTURED BY

BELL & CO., GUELPH, ONTARIO, CANADA.

Sole European Agents:

NEUMEYER AND CO.,

NEUMEYER HALL, HART STREET, BLOOMSBURY,
LONDON, W.C.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

(PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH)

Price Threepence.

Annual subscription, including postage, 4s.

Subscriptions will also be received by all Book and Musicsellers (not including postage), 3s.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£	s.	d.
Two Lines ... ..	0	3	0
Three Lines ... ..	0	3	4
For every additional Line ... ..	0	0	10
Half a Column ... ..	2	0	0
A Column ... ..	4	0	0
A Page ... ..	7	10	0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.

A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

To insure insertion in their proper places, Advertisements should reach the Office not later than the 24th of each month. It cannot be guaranteed that those received after this date will appear among the classified announcements; they will, however, be inserted in the space allotted to Advertisements arriving late.

Just published.

ERIC THE DANE

A DRAMATIC CANTATA

THE LIBRETTO WRITTEN BY ROBERT McLEAN

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

EDWARD HECHT.

Dedicated to the Members of Mr. Charles Hallé's Choir in Manchester.

Price Three Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS

FOR SOLO VOICES, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA

BY

W. G. CUSINS.

Inscribed to the Hon. and Very Rev. Gerald Wellesley, Dean of Windsor, &c., &c.

Price 1s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

New Edition.—Just published.

A TREATISE ON MODERN INSTRUMENTATION AND ORCHESTRATION

(Dedicated to Frederick William IV., King of Prussia), to which is appended The Chef d'Orchestre, by

HECTOR BERLIOZ

TRANSLATED BY

MARY COWDEN CLARKE.

NEW EDITION, REVISED AND EDITED BY

JOSEPH BENNETT.

Price Twelve Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

REDUCED PRICE.

DER RING DES NIBELUNGEN LETTERS FROM BAYREUTH

BY

JOSEPH BENNETT

Special Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph.

WITH AN APPENDIX.

Price 1s.

In addition to a notice of the performance at Bayreuth in 1876, this work contains a full description of the plot of Wagner's greatest Musik-Drama, a critical notice of the music, and a full discussion of the artistic principles involved.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

MARCH 1, 1882.

THE CENTENARY OF AUBER.

THE celebration of the Centenary of the birth of the composer Auber, which has recently taken place in Paris, was the occasion of one of those fêtes which are so thoroughly in harmony with the genius of the French people, and into the spirit of which they enter with such adorable enthusiasm. In doing honour to the memory of their most representative composer, the Parisians were not merely discharging a debt due to a most eminent musician, a Frenchman, and, above all, a Parisian of the Boulevards; they honoured also the genius of Comedy, both as exemplified in the animated dramatic works of Scribe, and in the rare genius of the master of opéra comique. In the quaint town of Caen, so typical to Englishmen of all that is Norman, there is to be unveiled next May a statue by M. Delaplanche of Daniel François Esprit Auber, to be placed between those of Elie Beaumont and Malherbe. The father of Auber has been variously represented as having been a dealer in prints in Paris and in charge of the royal preserves, the latter being probably his occupation at the time of the birth of the composer; it is certain that his illustrious son was born at Caen on January 29, 1782, and that he died in Paris on the 11th of the melancholy May of 1871. With the exception of a short sojourn in London when a youth, in the uncongenial atmosphere of an office, Auber lived the whole of his long existence in Paris, and in an extremely circumscribed area of that city, mostly in the Rue Georges, frequenting the Boulevards, and occasionally varying his rides and drives in the Bois de Boulogne with an excursion to St. Germain. His love of Paris and city life was as consistent and remarkable as Johnson's love of Fleet Street. He was in the habit of noticing the return of summer, the long days of which season he heartily disliked, by replacing the curtains and hangings of his room with those of lighter texture and colour, remarking that his collaborateur, Scribe, brought to him in his plays all of the country he found requisite for his purposes. When the rigorous exclusiveness of this town life is considered, the unvarying and delightful freshness of his compositions is most remarkable; it would seem that he possessed in an eminent degree one faculty of the poet, that power of complete self-absorption and clear command over the creatures of his reveries, for he was by nature a visionary. The large expressive eyes of the musician and the strong development of the temples, as are well shown in his portraits, indicate his possession of the idealising faculty. The freshness and fecundity of his inspiration are alike marvellous. It is notable how throughout his long and successful career the same wonderful freshness of melody, the engaging charm of his style, the facile spontaneity of phrase, are always apparent: from the production of his first successful work, "La Bergère Châtelaine," in 1820—from the climacteric periods that witnessed the success of "La Muette de Portici" and "Fra Diavolo"—down to the work of his old age, "Le Premier Jour de Bonheur," these qualities are more or less present in all his works. That the operas of Auber are little performed now in England is partly owing to the caprice of fashion, partly to the fact that opéra comique has never found but a very temporary home in our uncongenial atmosphere; we find, as a people, infinite solace and delight in the lofty and dignified works of MM. Offenbach and Hervé, whereas the frivolities of "Le Domino Noir" and "Dieu et la Bayadère" are an offence to our gravity. The very even tenor of Auber's life was broken by nothing more exciting than a première at the Opéra and the usual réunions in his artistic circle; and it is probable that the last weeks of his life were more fraught with trial to the venerable composer than any period of his existence. In the circumstances of his death it is a touch of irony that he who had made the heart of Paris to be merry for half a century, and with such success, should die in the midst of the discordant and convulsive throes of the Commune.

It is curious to mark that, at a time when the influence of Wagner was making itself powerfully apparent in the works of other composers, the French alone seemed to be beyond that influence. The cause is not far to seek; for, with all their cosmopolitanism in art, they have ever been in music the most intensely national of music-producing people. Auber, the most characteristic of Parisians, did not set himself a great moral and regenerating task as Wagner has done; he was possessed by no theories, and no passion for the illustration of them, nor for the formation of a propaganda for their promulgation. He produced, in surprising and bewildering abundance, his exquisite melodies, even as Béranger and Burns produced their songs, impelled only by an uncontrollable exuberance of lyrical emotion. He never felt that his works required the dubious moral support of pamphlets, and knew that their justification consisted in their very abandon and pure unaffected nature; and his appeal for recognition was not made to any one school, or in the diseased hope and fatuous ambition of proselytism, but to the whole heart of humanity. It is easy to affirm of many popularities that they are ephemeral, and that vox populi often proves to be vox diaboli; but the old reading of the proverb is far more often true than otherwise, and in Auber's case its judgment is beyond quibble or doubt. His insusceptibility to foreign influence has been very helpful in assuring to him his firm place among the great composers; his services to the muse of Comedy were purely voluntary, and the product of his own unassisted genius; and it is his special praise that he has revived and exalted the opéra comique, which, but for him, might have sunk into the abysmal depths of farcical bouffe and the infamy of burlesque. Through the whole of his long life he was ever true to the instincts of his own genius, and if, in the astonishing fertility of his fancy, he framed some works that do not rise above mediocrity, he has only erred in that direction with most other opera composers. It is true that it has been reported by one who knew him, M. Blaze de Bury, that on the occasion of the last performance before the war of his greatest work, "La Muette de Portici," he expressed his acute sense of dissatisfaction and disappointment, affirming it was not the creation he had imagined, and hinting that he would write it in a far different style had he to undertake the theme once more; but we have here merely another instance, added to others familiar to all, of a great author's usual retrospective view of his work, a view which has always something of pathos in its incomplete sense of vision. It is almost absolutely certain that had Auber reconstructed the setting of the incomparable melodies of this work, and substituted for the existing orchestral accompaniments others more elaborate and recondite, and possibly Wagnerian in form, "La Muette" would no longer be what it is, the glory of French opera. It would have been nothing less than a disaster had the aged composer set to a work of revision, under the domination of Wagner's genius, after having from his youth upwards produced his compositions with the unerring instincts and unembarrassed facility of an improvisatore. The evil effect of the influence of the master-mind of modern music upon one who never can be en rapport with that spiritual force is clearly discernible in a recent production of Verdi: the Wagnerian element in "Aida" is too often suggestive of an unholy alliance, or, at least, it exists as an incongruity which strikes the hearer with a sense of pain, and makes him recall, with an avidity of compensating appreciation, the masterly force and originality of "Rigoletto." It is far otherwise when such an influence is exerted over the first productions of genius, when there exists, as in the case of Boito, a natural affinity between the dominating force and the plastic and fecund imagination that is conscious of the divinity that temporarily overawes it. This has ever been—Wagner himself not having been exempt from this natural law, as a study of Beethoven's symphonies and Meyerbeer's operas suffices to show; and it is through this subtle and spiritual interchange of influence that the philosophic historian of music is enabled to trace, in the diverse compositions of the great masters, the ethereal and protean links of a mighty chain of intellectual and sensuous production that has ever been in progress towards its sublime completion and fruition in the future. It is idle to talk of the music of the future as if music had no past, or were self-existent independent of that past; equally futile and uncritical is it to deplore Auber's comparatively narrow compass of creative power. His work as an artist is essentially his own, and his place is as irrevocably decreed to him, and with as much certainty, by fate as that of far greater men; and no foolish regrets that he was not such an one as this writer or that, and no pamphleteering, will affect his position or cause any settling in the pedestal of his statue in the temple of fame. It is not a little thing to make one of the vestibules of that mighty temple sweet with tenderest reminiscences of unsophisticated melody; and this is the glory of Auber.

"TRISTAN AND ISOLDE"

AN ANALYSIS OF RICHARD WAGNER'S MUSIC-DRAMA
BY F. CORDER.

BEFORE dealing with the Nibelung Ring and Parsifal it is our difficult duty to give some idea of a work which, while it is constructed on the same lines as these, stands apart from them, as from everything yet conceived in the operatic way—that stupendous, crushing effort of genius, which after twenty years is only now beginning to be appreciated and understood.

The love-tale of Tristan and Isolde is of very remote origin and is to be found in the French romance by Luce de Gast (twelfth century), a German poem by Bilhart von Oberg (1190), besides our own Morte d'Arthur. The opening incidents of the story are everywhere the same, and these Wagner has preserved, putting, however, a more poetic and dramatic conclusion than that afforded by the legend. The libretto may, indeed, be reckoned his very best, having none of the lamentable offences against good taste which disfigure the otherwise fine book of Parsifal. The verse is a compound of alliterative and rhyming verse, as unlike old poetry as our modern-antique furniture is to its models, but admirable for music, and all but impossible to translate. The music is, with the exception of one short movement, entirely formed on about thirty "leading-motives" and their symphonic working. What makes this work so entirely distinct from all others by the same master is, first, the intensity of the component themes and, secondly, the tremendous grasp and power shown in their development. The force of emotional music can no further go than in "Tristan and Isolde."

Before the opening of the action events have happened which it is necessary to relate. Tristan, nephew of Mark, King of Cornwall, once fought and slew one Morold, an Irish chief, who came over to demand tribute. (Curious that 1,400 years have exactly reversed the mutual position of England and Ireland as to rent-paying!) His head being sent home in scorn to his friends, the Princess Isolde, his betrothed (his niece in the old legend), found in it a splinter of Tristan's sword. Tristan himself was so sorely wounded in the fight that he ordered himself to be placed in a boat with all his arms and cast adrift on the sea to die. This was done, and he drifted to the very spot on the Irish coast held by his late foe. As an unknown wanderer, and concealing his identity by the feeble device of calling himself Tantris, he was hospitably received and his desperate wounds healed by Isolde, the greatest living practitioner of "leechcraft." His valour endeared him to all the court, but one fatal day Brangäne (Bragwaine), Isolde's maid, with the inquisitiveness of her class, found a notch in the stranger's sword, exactly corresponding with the splinter found in Morold's head. With the noble chivalry of the time, instead of putting the murderer to death, his hosts sent him back to his own country with a grim warning to return no more. But alas! Isolde and Tristan had fallen violently in love with each other, though both now were forced to conceal and subdue their passion. In this these noble hearts would have succeeded had not fate been too strong for them. Some time afterwards Tristan was sent by his uncle as ambassador to make peace with Ireland and to demand the hand of Isolde for Mark to seal the bond. The offer was too good to be rejected; all was forgiven and forgotten, and the proud Tristan had to bring his beloved over to wed with his uncle. Her thoughtful mother, knowing Isolde's love-trouble, had intrusted a love-potion to the hands of Brangäne, with directions to give it to the bride on her wedding-day. According to the old story Isolde took it by mistake during the voyage—possible as a remedy for sea-sickness—and her smouldering passion for Tristan became uncontrollable. Let us now see how artistically Wagner has improved this incident; for with the sea-voyage his drama begins.

The wonderful prelude works out the principal motive:—

No. 1. Lento. Ob.  Cello. p p Fag.

The "Love-potion" theme and other phrases more or less directly springing from it:—

No. 2. Cello.  No. 3. Str.  3 Fag. Bass Cl. (a) & D. Bass.

It should here be pointed out that most of the motives in this work have a more or less obvious mutual relationship, according to the ideas or objects which they represent. Thus, the oboe phrase in No. 1 occurs in various forms as the representative of Isolde; while the cello phrase already reappears as a middle part to No. 3, and is the germ of several motives connected with Tristan. No. 2 expresses the love-glances cast on each other by the pair after drinking the potion; while No. 3 is more complex still. The menacing bass notes (a) form the "death"-motive; while the phrase (b) recurs in the last act as representing Tristan's yearning for his absent love. These themes are all woven into a marvellously continuous web, culminating by means of the following new motive—representing the lovers' wild intoxication of love (at the end of Act 1)—to an impressive climax, the uttering of No. 1 by the full orchestra, after which all gradually subsides and dies away with fragmentary repetition of the various phrases.

The curtain then rising—to silence—shows us the deck of Tristan's ship, or rather, a pavilion erected thereon and tenanted by Isolde and her faithful Brangäne. An unseen sailor sings on the mast-head (unaccompanied):—

Westward surges slip, eastward
speeds the ship.
The wind so wild
blows homeward now:
my Irish lass,
where waitest thou?
Say, must our sails be weighted,
filled by thy sighs unbated?
Waft us, wind strong and wild!
Woe! ah, woe for my child!
Irish maid,
thou wild and marvellous maid!

The music to one portion of this forms a motive expressive of the nautical element which pervades the whole of this act:—

"The wind so wild blows homeward now:"

Isolde, aroused from a reverie, and being told that the voyage is nearly over, bursts out into a furious appeal to the elements to destroy the ship and all in it. Her wrath is typified by the following unison for strings—

No. 6. Allegro.

and a fierce phrase, moulded on No. 5, accompanies her speech:—

No. 5a. Allegro molto.

We are startled at the composer commencing the drama in such a tempestuous fashion, and it is indeed a prodigious effort to sustain the emotion at this high pitch throughout, without allowing a moment's repose.

Brangäne opens the curtains to give her mistress air, when Tristan is seen at the other end of the vessel, with his knights, people, and squire, Kurwenal. At sight of him Isolde utters a deep malediction—

No. 7. Moderato.

Death - de - vot - ed head! . . .

Death - de - vot - ed heart!

and after roundly abusing Tristan to the perplexed Brangäne, bids her summon him hither. Brangäne departs on her mission, but Tristan only evades compliance to the demand. On her insisting, Kurwenal volunteers to settle the matter, and sends her back to her mistress with a rough but decided answer, singing mockingly after her a song about Morold and his fate, in which the knights join with the refrain—

No. 8.

"Bra-vo, our brave Tris-tan! Let his tax take who can."

the first bar of which reappears in many other shapes as a Tristan-motive. Isolde, having overheard all the colloquy, is more indignant than ever at Tristan's coldness and apparent discourtesy towards her. In a long and violent scene she relates what we have already told, the Morold and Tantris business, declaring that her love is changed to hate—forgetting that as her blood-enemy he could not possibly wed her, but has made the best possible reparation by getting Mark for her husband. This Brangäne vainly represents to her incensed lady. The motive predominant in this scene is a chromatic phrase, evidently born of No. 1, and given in every possible key and tempo:—

At last Brangäne, endeavouring to soothe her mistress, says—while No. 1 is uttered in its original form:—

Mindest thou not thy mother's arts?
Think'st thou that she who'd mastered them would have sent me o'er the sea without assistance for thee?

She shows her a casket containing healing drugs, poisons, and—the love-potion. But Isolde sternly selects one and bids Brangäne give it her. "The draught of death!" cries the terrified maid. At this thrilling moment two interruptions occur—the shouts of the sailors reducing sail—

No. 10.

"Ho, heave ho, heave . . . ho!"

and then the entrance of Kurwenal, to sprightly music, compounded of this motive and the sailor-theme (No. 5) put into 6-8 time. Isolde refuses to prepare for landing as she is requested unless Tristan will come to her and seek grace for his offences. The bluff Kurwenal takes back the message sulkily, and Isolde, hurrying to Brangäne, kisses her hastily, bids her comfort her parents, and now quickly make a loving-cup and pour the death-draught in it. The horrified confidant is kneeling to expostulate, but is silenced by Kurwenal announcing "Sir Tristan." "Sir Tristan may approach," says Isolde, calmly.

To a solemn and majestic theme, new, yet suggestive of the opening motives, Tristan enters and asks the Princess's will. First she upbraids him for shunning her on the voyage, to which he pleads etiquette. Then she reminds him of what took place in Ireland, and shows him what a heavy debt of revenge she has against him. He calmly offers her his sword and bids her take his life. She bitterly replies that it would never do to risk King Mark's displeasure: let them rather end the feud with a cup of reconciliation. Tristan understands her meaning and is content to end his hopeless love thus. The trembling Brangäne, in obedience to Isolde's repeated summons, brings the fatal cup, and Tristan, speaking words which show him to be aware that he is drinking his death, lifts it to his lips. Isolde, crying—

Deceived e'en here?
I must halve it!

snatches it from him, and herself swallows half. Then, as they stand gazing silently and with blanched faces on one another, awaiting the death agony, we hear the first yearning strains of the Prelude, and presently their eyes soften, their cheeks flush with love, their hearts palpitate, their blood boils, and at the passionate phrase No. 2 they pronounce each other's name with trembling lips, and stand locked in a blissful embrace unconscious of all around. The sailors without are shouting "Hail to King Mark!" Trumpets are sounding. Brangäne wrings her hands in terror at what she has done in trying to save her mistress's life, but the lovers, in a rapture of passion, sing a wild duet formed of various motives from the Prelude, heeding nothing.

Now the curtains are withdrawn, and we find the ship anchored by King Mark's burg; the stage is crowded with people shouting "Hail to King Mark!" In the accompaniment to these bits of chorus we find another form of the sailor-motive (No. 5). Brangäne forces the lovers apart, and throws the royal mantle over Isolde. Kurwenal comes in jolly, as usual, to announce the King. "Where am I?" asks Isolde. "Living?" Then, suddenly recollecting, "Ha! what potion was't?" "The love-draught," confesses Brangäne, grovelling in terror. Isolde sinks, overcome with emotion, into Tristan's arms. The music works up this thrilling situation to the utmost pitch, and during a tutti, in which four themes are to be found together, just as King Mark steps on board, amidst the acclamations of the people, the curtain falls.

The exhausted listener probably feels that nothing in music can equal, far less exceed, the tremendous emotion of this first act. Wait till he hears the second!

The prelude begins with startling abruptness. A simple phrase, derived from No. 8—which is so marvellously worked out in the great love-scene—forms the commencement. Then after a few bars of tremolo for strings, expressive of Tristan's impatient watch for Isolde, comes a bass theme with triplet accompaniment, used while he is hastening towards her. Presently a new motive—the "love-summons"—appears above, and to save space we will quote the two together:—

Notice the four chromatic semitones always—as in Nos. 1, 3, and 9—associated with Isolde. After a few repetitions of the Isolde-motive (No. 1) we burst into a new motive, representing the rapture of the reunited lovers: this is most strikingly and pathetically used, in an altered form, at the tragic close of the drama:—

After working these materials awhile, all dies away and the curtain rises, showing the garden of King Mark's castle, with Isolde's apartments at one side. A torch is burning as a signal at the door, which is up a flight of steps, and from the elevation Brangäne is watching the retreat of King Mark and his court on a night-hunt. Their horns are heard thus curiously sounding, the kettle-drums of the orchestra supplying a light pedal bass F:—

Presently Isolde comes out and asks impatiently if the horns are still within hearing. Brangäne hears them still plainly, though her mistress's ears are deaf to the sound. She warns Isolde that they are being betrayed by Sir Melot, Tristan's professed friend, who wishes to rise by Tristan's fall, but the Queen laughs at these fears. "This very night-hunt," she says, "was contrived by Melot to serve his friend." After a lengthy dialogue, in which Nos. 12 and 13 are prominent, and future love-themes are hinted at, Isolde exclaims—

Go watch without;
keep wakeful guard!
The signal!
And were it my spirit's spark,
smiling
I'd destroy it and hail the dark!

These words are accompanied by several bursts of No. 12, which then becomes a mere descending chromatic scale accompanying the "Death-motive" (No. 7) as Isolde throws down the torch. Now the agitated phrase (lower portion of No. 12) reappears and works up in an exciting crescendo as Isolde stands waving her handkerchief to the distant Tristan. A joyous burst shows that he is in sight, and the upper quaver figure in our next quotation sets in, rising higher and higher, till the lovers rush into one another's arms, when the orchestra plunges madly into the jubilant No. 13. A wild exchange of endearing epithets follows, and then a joyous love-phrase—pours forth in a tumult of passionate rapture. The scene which ensues—a whole hour in length—almost baffles analysis. The lovers rhapsodise wildly about daylight being their cruel foe and night their friend, and the phrase (No. 11) identified with this idea is worked symphonically in a most astonishing manner, with inexhaustible variety and resource. At last, when the lovers have gradually calmed down, Tristan remarks that they have only one wish—

We yearn to hide in holy night,
where unending,
ever true,
Love extendeth delight!

to which tender sentiment the following weird phrase is allotted, and much repeated hereafter:—

But now weariness overtakes the lovers, the orchestra sighs and throbs forth an exquisite slow movement, of which we only dare quote one tiny phrase, which reappears in Act 3:—

Although the "daylight"-motive is ingeniously worked into this splendid piece, the movement itself is but an enlargement of a lovely song, one of a set of five composed a short time before this opera. The song called "Träume, Studie zu Tristan und Isolde," is not, as most people imagine, taken from the opera, but the opera from the song. And it is most interesting to note how Wagner has developed his own idea to such full dimensions.

The half-sleeping lovers are now warned by Brangäne that morning is approaching, but they only give vent to still more yearningly tender phrases:—

This, which has already been hinted at in the slow movement above mentioned, is perhaps the most delicious idea Wagner ever had. It is made plentiful use of, and only gives way to the crowning motive of the scene, a phrase of four notes which we give in its developed form below. The lovers wish that death might come and unite them wholly. This phrase gives way for a short space before another interruption from Brangäne and a renewal of the idea No. 16, made still more strange by the following astounding voice-parts:—

It may be questioned whether all music contains a passage to match this. But now we approach the climax: the "love-death" motive—reappears and is worked up into a flood of passionate melody; No. 13 is added to it, and forms a rising, soaring crescendo, which culminates—alas! in a crash, as Brangäne shrieks, and Kurwenal rushes in with an unavailing warning. A discordant version of the hunting-phrase (No. 14) tells us what has happened. The lovers are surprised, and King Mark stands before them in noble sorrow and indignation, followed by all his retinue. Discordantly wail forth fragments of the love-themes, including the "daylight"-motive, as Tristan murmurs—

The dreary day!
It comes once more!

and the day indeed slowly dawns, while all parties stand in mute emotion. Melot advances, and with ill-concealed triumph shows the king that his accusations are just. Then the noble king (in all the legends King Mark was a mere cowardly ruffian) pours out a flood of touching reproaches to the hero he loved better than a son:—

Where now has truth fled if Tristan can betray?
Where now are faith
and friendship fair, when from the fount of faith—
my Tristan—they are lost?

And then, in a beautiful and expressive but lengthy solo, the theme of which we have quoted in our "Meistersinger" paper, he recalls the whole history of Tristan's fetching the bride. Was it for him, the stainless knight, to do his uncle this foul wrong? He implores him to explain. While Tristan, deeply moved, hesitates what to say, the love-potion theme (No. 1) is heard, for that is the unknown cause of all the trouble. Says Tristan—

O monarch,
I truly may not tell thee;
what thou dost ask must ever be unanswered.

and, turning to the cowering Isolde, he goes on solemnly, while the music melts into the delicious No. 18, and its weird companion theme, No. 16:—

Where Tristan now is going wilt thou, Isolde, follow?
The land that Tristan means of sunlight has no gleams.
It is the dark abode of night from whence I first was brought to light.

The solemn sweetness of the music here is most beautiful. At the mention of the land of night there is a slight reminiscence of the slow movement of the love duet. The remainder of the act is best told in the dramatist's own words:—

Is. To Tristan's house and home
Isolde will gladly roam.
The road by which we ought to go
I pray thee quickly show.

(Tristan bends down slowly and hisses her forehead. Melot starts furiously forward.)

Mel. Thou villain! Ha!
Avenge thee, monarch!
Wilt thou suffer this scorn?

(Tristan draws his sword and turns sternly round.)

Tris. Who's he will set his life against mine?
This was my friend;
he told me he loved me dearly. [Looking at Melot.]

Thy glance, Isolde, glamoured him thus,
and, jealous, my friend
played me false
to King Mark, whom I betrayed.
Guard thee, Melot.

(He rushes on Melot. As they engage Tristan drops his guard, and instantly falls wounded in the arms of Kurwenal. Isolde faints over his body. Mark holds Melot back. The curtain falls quickly.)

The story has hitherto been pretty closely followed, but the lapse of many years, and Tristan's marriage with the other Isolde (of the "white hands") being undramatic, Wagner invents a new end, thoroughly in keeping with what has gone before.

We are transported to Tristan's castle, on the rocky cliffs of Breitaine—wherever that may be. There is a short prelude of an intensely mournful character, in which the Isolde-motive (No. 1) takes strange and lugubrious forms, and a new subject of a wailing nature, No. 21, appears, representing the anxious waiting for Isolde. It is founded on the phrase marked b in No. 3:—

The curtain then rises, and shows us Tristan lying insensible on a couch in the castle garden, while the faithful Kurwenal watches beside him, and a shepherd without plays on a Corno Inglese, the most afflicting and nightmareish strains it is possible to conceive. Two prominent phrases we quote:—

As the pipe ceases the orchestra takes up a portion of the theme, while the shepherd comes and looks over the wall to ask after Sir Tristan. Kurwenal, to a funeral version of No. 1, states his fears that his lord is dying. Then, to No. 21:—

Unless we find the lady leech,
the only one to help.

And he bids the shepherd look out seawards, and if a ship appears in sight to play a merry air. As the shepherd withdraws, and his melancholy pipe dies in the distance, Tristan opens his eyes and murmurs faintly—

The ancient ditty!
Why wake to that!

whereupon Kurwenal, transported at hearing the beloved voice once more, bursts into a torrent of rapturous expressions, while the music assumes a most jubilant character. Another theme occurs here, the "Kareol"-motive, in an odd combination of 6-4 and 3-2 times, but space forbids our quoting it. Kurwenal explains how, after his wound, he bore his master home, where he hopes to see him cured. How touching is Tristan's gasping and broken rejoinder—

Think'st thou thus?
I know 'tis not so,
but this I cannot tell thee.
Where I awoke walked I ne'er
but where I wandered
I can indeed not tell thee.
The sun I could not see,
nor passage fair, nor people:
but what I saw
I can indeed not tell thee.
It was the land from whence I once came,
and whither now I fare;
the murky realm of mortal night . . .

and thus he wanders on, recalling all his past, till at last, exclaiming (to No. 12)—

The light, how long it glows!
When will the house repose?

he sinks back exhausted. The four long soliloquies of Tristan in this act, perfect marvels as they are, must be passed over in a few words. Kurwenal reveals that he has sent for Isolde as a last chance of healing his master. To a new and joyous theme (founded on No. 1)—

Tristan pours out an eloquent flood of gratitude; then, wandering again, fancies he sees the ship coming, and insists on Kurwenal going to meet it. As the latter hesitates, the wail of the shepherd's pipe is heard, and Tristan's shifting thoughts transfer themselves to this:—

Why do I hear thee now, thou old pathetic ditty,
with all thy sighing sound?
In evening grey
I heard thee once,
when as a boy
I heard my sire was butchered.
Through morning's mist,
still sadder stealing,
when the son
his mother's fate was taught.

And through a long soliloquy the weird ditty is maintained in combination with No. 1 and other themes. After much raving Tristan curses the fatal potion with the following deadly phrase—which is repeated many times, and combined with No. 1. Tristan now falls senseless from his exertions (well he may!), and Kurwenal, deeming him dead, utters pitiful lamentations. But once more the wounded man revives, to a curious new form of the inexhaustible No. 1, spread out by hesitating chords in broken triplets. Then come lovely melodious phrases, founded on No. 18, as he dreams he sees Isolde smiling and beckoning him. So vivid is the impression that he begins to get excited again. The time quickens, the melody of No. 17 appears in the bass, and the agitation increases, till suddenly leaving the chromatic harmonies and vague tonalities, we are thrust boldly upon a long-continued chord of C (actually for the first time!), and the shepherd is heard without, playing quick phrases thus—

No. 25. Vivace.

and Kurwenal, rushing to the wall, sees the ship approaching. Breathless is the interest here, the subject (No. 25 b) being worked up vigorously by the orchestra. Kurwenal hastens to meet Isolde and bring her up the hill, while Tristan tosses on his couch in a fever of impatience, and a wild torrent of love-themes sets in. At last, mad with excitement, he tears off his bandages in delirious transport, and staggers to his feet. Isolde's "signal"-theme (No. 12) is heard, and her voice calls on Tristan. Shrieking—

The torch is extinct!
I come! I come!

he totters forward and falls into her arms. But ah! the "death"-motive (No. 7) crashes forth, and as Tristan sinks to the ground all melts into No. 1; and as his dying eyes look a farewell, and his lips murmur "Isolde!" the loving-phrase (No. 2) dies out with a whisper from the harp: the hero is no more!

Words entirely fail to paint the thrilling excitement, the gigantic dramatic force of this marvellous scene. It is simply Wagner's chef-d'œuvre: he has never approached it before or since. But does it make an anti-climax? Does the end of the drama suffer from its grandeur? Not a bit of it! observe the skill with which the interest is sustained to the end.

Isolde utters a most heartrending lament, in which there is a new theme, the last in the work—and sinks fainting on her lover's body. Now another ship is in sight—King Mark is in pursuit of Isolde. Kurwenal and the shepherd barricade the gate, while the crew of Isolde's ship is being overpowered outside by the new-comers. But the besiegers gain an entrance, and are madly attacked by Kurwenal, who kills Melot, and in reply to Mark's call of "Hold, madman!" exclaims:—

Here ravages Death!
That only, King,
is here to be holden.

Wilt he should own thee?—come on!

Mark calls in vain on Tristan (No. 26), and Kurwenal, overpowered by numbers, crawls to his master's feet, and gasping—

Tristan! true lord!
chide me not that I try to follow thee—

expires, while the King utters his grief for the loss of his hero, mingled with reproaches at his renewed act of falseness. Brangäne has come, and endeavours to restore Isolde, telling her that she has revealed the story of the love-potion to the King, and that it was to make the lovers happy that he came—and only found death and horror.

Isolde is not dead, for in a drama of this epoch the hero requires a drapa, or death-song, and she must sing it. A few hints of No. 20 show that her senses are returning, and then, unconscious of all around, she sings not only Tristan's drapa but her own; for with the last words her heart breaks and her spirit flies to rejoin his. This piece, now well known in the concert-room, is identical in its music with the latter portion of the great love-duet, a magnificent climax and coda being added, formed from No. 13 augmented. The words we must quote, for they are certainly more genuine poetry than Wagner has ever been able to produce elsewhere:—

Mild and softly
he is smiling:
how his eyelids
sweetly open!
See, oh, comrades,
see you not
how he beameth ever brighter,
steeped in starlight,
borne above?
See you not
how his heart,
with lion zest,
calmly happy
beats in his breast?
From his lips,
in heavenly rest,
sweetest breath
he softly sends.
Harken, friends!
Hear and feel ye not?
Is it I alone am hearing strains so holy and endearing?
Passion swelling,
all things telling.

Gently bounding,
from him sounding,
in me pushes,
upward rushes,
trumpet tone
that round me gushes.
Brighter growing,
o'er me flowing,
are these breezes'
airy pillows?
Are they balmy beauteous billows?
How they rise
and gleam and glisten!
Shall I breathe them?
Shall I listen?
Shall I sip them,
dive within them,
to my panting
breathing win them?
In the breezes around,
in the harmony sound,
in the breath of the scent-floods be drowned;
and, sinking,
be drinking in a kiss highest bliss!

The most striking points in "Tristan und Isolde" are the enormous use made of the love-potion theme, No. 1, the manner in which most of the other motives are derived from it (thereby seeming to multiply its repetition), and—what naturally results from this—the extreme chromatic nature of the harmony. In the prelude to Act I. not a single concord is heard, and so throughout, for many pages at a time. There is only one "full close" in the opera—at the end of Act I. All this adds to the "intense" or emotional character of the music and the unbroken continuity of the drama. "Tristan und Isolde" can never become popular, in the sense of being frequently played, because of the tremendous demands it makes on the powers of the two leading singers. We much doubt the wisdom of producing it to an English audience, which is as yet wholly unacquainted with the other and comparatively simpler works of Wagner's "third period." At the same time this work is slowly becoming understood, and must eventually stand unchallenged as the supreme masterpiece of its author—an ideally perfect lyric tragedy.

THE GREAT COMPOSERS.

BY JOSEPH BENNETT.

No. XI.—CHOPIN (continued from page 74).

WE are now to see Chopin really out in the great world; no longer a temporary wanderer from the paternal roof, looking behind him frequently, lest he should forget the way back. He set his face towards Italy, the land of his dreams, and was all aglow with anticipation of that which lay before him, the only bitter in his cup of sweets being the thought that every moment put a greater distance between himself and Constantia. The young man's correspondence soon shows that even this did not trouble him always. We get glimpses through it of the still-retained vivacity and humour that marked his earlier years.

From Breslau, which he now visited for the second time, Chopin wrote to his "beloved parents and sisters," telling them that he had begun well. A certain Referendar Hellwig was going to play the E flat Concerto of Moscheles at the concerts conducted by Schnabel, but, on hearing the Polish virtuoso "try" the pianoforte at rehearsal, he insisted upon yielding up his place to the new-comer. After some hesitation, Chopin accepted, performed some of his own music, and puzzled the good, stolid German connoisseurs very considerably. Said one, "There is no doubt this young man can play, but he cannot compose;" and of the rest Chopin remarks, "None . . . except Schnabel, whose face beams with real delight, and who claps me on the shoulder every moment, quite know what to make of me." He continues:—

"As I have not yet got a name, people could not make up their minds whether to praise or to blame me, and connoisseurs were not quite certain whether my music was really good, or only seemed so. A gentleman came up to me and praised the form as something quite new. I don't know his name, but I think of all my listeners he understood me the best."

There is a touch of humour in his subsequent reference to the pianist he had displaced: "The Referendar consoled himself and sang—though very indifferently—Figaro's air from the 'Barbiere di Siviglia.'"

From the Silesian city Chopin went on to Dresden, and attended a musical soirée at Councillor Kressig's, of which he gives a lively description in one of his letters:—

"After making a very careful toilet, I had a sedan chair fetched, got into the queer, comfortable box, and was carried to the house where the musical entertainment was to take place. The spirit of mischief seized me, and I felt a desire to stamp through the bottom of the chair; however, I forbore. Arrived at Kressig's abode, I sent up my name to Fraulein Pechwell, whereupon the master of the house appeared, received me with many compliments, and led me into a room where a number of ladies were sitting at eight large tables. No flashing of diamonds met my gaze, but the more modest glitter of a host of steel knitting-needles, which moved ceaselessly in the hands of these industrious ladies. The number of ladies and of needles was so large that, if the ladies had proposed an attack upon the gentlemen, the latter would have been in a sorry plight. They could only have made weapons of their spectacles, of which there were as many as there were bald heads. The clatter of knitting-needles and teacups was suddenly interrupted by music from the adjoining room. The overture to 'Fra Diavolo' was played first, then Signora Palazzesi sang in a magnificent voice, clear as a bell, and with plenty of bravura. I presented myself to the songstress, which gave me an opportunity of speaking also to the musical director, Rastrelli, who had accompanied her. With true artistic politeness, Rastrelli introduced me to Signor Rubini, who, with much affability, promised me a letter to his brother, the famous tenor. I do not need anything more for Milan."

Chopin declined to linger in Dresden, saying: "I don't think Dresden would bring me either much fame or much money, and I have no time to spare." Whereupon he started for Prague, and we have a letter written thence to his friends at home, dated November 21, 1830. On December 1 he was in Vienna, assuring his "dearests" in Warsaw that, owing to the receipt of a letter from home his appetite had increased a hundred per cent. at once, and that he had partially satisfied it by consuming an "excellently prepared fritter" at the sign of the "Wild Man." At the same time he expressed a decided opinion that there were "many charming girls in Vienna." Altogether, the outlook was pleasant. In the same letter* we read:—

"I have taken lodgings with Titus, in one of the principal streets, close to the vegetable market. For three elegant rooms on the third floor we pay fifty gulden a month, which is considered cheap here. An English admiral is occupying them at present, but he leaves to-day. Admirable! And I am admired. So the house is a desirable one, especially as the mistress, a handsome widowed baroness, still young, has been, as she says, for some time in Poland, and heard of me in Warsaw. . . . The presence of this charming and intelligent lady makes the apartments all the more agreeable, for she likes Poles, and, being a Prussian, regards the Austrians with no great favour."

Then we get a glimpse of Czerny:—

"I have been to see Czerny, who was as polite as ever, and asked, 'Have you been studying diligently?' He has arranged another overture for eight pianos and sixteen players, and seems very happy about it."

In the matter of presenting introductions, Chopin met with the usual percentage of rebuffs. He visited Stamitz, the banker, and was received just as if he had come for money. Another banker, Geymüller, said, "It was very agreeable to him to become acquainted with an artist of such distinction as myself, but he could not advise me to give a concert here, as there were very many good pianists in the city, and a great reputation was requisite to make money. Finally, he remarked, 'I cannot help you in any way; the times are bad.' I listened with big eyes to this edifying discourse, and when it was over I replied that I was not at all sure that it would pay me to make a public appearance, for I had not yet called upon any influential people, not even on the Russian Ambassador, to whom I had a letter from the Grand Duke Constantine. At that, Herr Geymüller suddenly changed his tone; but I took my leave, regretting that I had robbed him of his precious time, and thought to myself, 'Wait, you — Jew.'"

Chopin ends this letter in buoyant, almost boyish, spirits:—

"I am as strong as a lion, and they say I am stouter. Altogether I am doing well, and I hope, through God, who sent Malfatti to be a help to me—oh, splendid Malfatti!—that I shall do still better."

The High Power in whom he trusted had other designs with regard to the young Pole. Just as Chopin had settled down in Vienna, his unhappy country rose in arms against the detested Russian, who, in the person of the brutal, almost unhuman, Constantine, could be endured no longer. The movement had an inevitable effect upon the scattered sons of down-trodden Sarmatia. Singly or in bands, openly or by stealth, these men made their way to the field of strife, and among them was Chopin's travelling companion, Titus Wayciechowski. Chopin himself was ready to go, and actually started to overtake his friend, but he eventually yielded to the prayers of his parents, whose natural affection appears to have been stronger than their patriotism. Reluctantly the young musician held aloof from the glorious, and, as events proved, unhappy strife, but his fortunes in Vienna were no longer bright. Some of his friends looked askance because he was a Pole, others because they were jealous of his success, while Chopin himself, full of anxiety about affairs at home, had only half his heart in those immediately surrounding him. Hence the idea of concert-giving was abandoned, and the young man had plenty of leisure to nurse his grief, above all to bewail separation from his "angel of peace," Constantia Gladowski. A friend, John Matuszynski, appears to have written from Warsaw to the effect that Constantia did not look well, whereupon all the lover's fears were up in arms:—

* Karasowski, vol. i., p. 156.

† Ibid., vol. i., p. 158 et seq.* Karasowski, vol. i., p. 163 et seq.

"Does she really look so changed? Do you think she was ill? She is of such a sensitive nature that this is not at all unlikely. But perhaps it was only your imagination, or she had been frightened by something. God forbid that she should suffer anything on my account! Comfort her, and assure her that as long as my heart beats I shall not cease to adore her. Tell her that, after my death, my ashes shall be spread beneath her feet. But this is not half what you might say to her on my behalf. I would write to her myself, and, indeed, should have done so long ago, to escape the torments I endure; but, if my letter chanced to fall into other hands, might it not injure her reputation?"

He returns to Constantia again:—

"The day before yesterday I dined with Frau Beyer, who is also called Constantia. I enjoy visiting her very much, because she bears a name so unspeakably dear to me; I even rejoice if one of her handkerchiefs or serviettes marked 'Constantia' falls into my hands."

Once more we read:—

"I do not know how to part from my sweet Hänschen [the pet name of his friend Matuszynski]. Depart, you wretch! If W— loves you as warmly as I do, so would Con— No, I cannot even write the name; my hand is too unworthy. Oh! I should tear my hair out if I thought she forgot me: I feel a regular Othello to-day."

Chopin's indecision and melancholy at this moment appear in other parts of the same letter:—

"I would not willingly be a burden to my father; were I not afraid of that I should immediately return to Warsaw. I am often in such a mood that I curse the moment in which I left my beloved home. You will, I am sure, understand my condition, and that, since Titus went away, too much has fallen suddenly upon me. The numerous dinners, soirées, concerts, and balls I am obliged to attend only weary me. I am melancholy. I feel so lonely and deserted here, yet I cannot live as I like. . . . There is not a soul I can unreservedly confide in, and yet I have to treat every one as a friend."

Concerning his future movements we read:—

"You know that I have letters from the Saxon Court to the Viceroy of Milan, but what had I best do? My parents leave me to follow my own wishes, but I would rather they had given me directions. Shall I go to Paris? Friends here advise me to stay in Vienna. Or shall I go home, or stay here and kill myself? Advise me what to do. Please ask a certain person in Warsaw, who has always had great influence over me. Tell me her opinion, and I will act upon it."

Presently the writer brightens up, and becomes less concerned with himself. Here is a passage full of delicate humour:—

"Thalberg is also here and playing famously, but he is not the man for me. He is younger than I am, very popular with the ladies, makes pot-pourris on the 'Mutes' (La Muette de Portici?), plays forte and piano with the pedals, but not with his hands, takes tenths as I do octaves, and wears diamond studs. He does not at all admire Moscheles; so it is not surprising that the tutti were the only part of my concerto that pleased him. He, too, writes concertos."

Then he sketches his daily life:—

"The intolerably stupid servant wakes me early; I rise, take my coffee, which is often cold, because I forget my breakfast over my music. My German teacher appears punctually at nine o'clock; then I generally write. Hummel (son of the composer) comes to work at my portrait, and Nidecki to study my concerto. I keep on my comfortable dressing-gown till twelve o'clock, at which hour Dr. Liebenfrost, a lawyer here, comes in to see me. Weather permitting, I walk with him on the Glacis; then we dine at the 'Zum Böhmischen Köchin,' the rendezvous of the students from the Academy; and afterwards, according to the custom here, we go to one of the best coffee-houses. Then I make calls, returning home at dusk, when I throw myself into evening dress, and go to a soirée. About eleven or twelve o'clock (never later) I come home, play, laugh, read, and then go to bed and dream of you."

From a subsequent letter* (January 1, 1831) to the same friend we learn that Chopin had made up his mind to visit Paris. The manner of this epistle is almost that of hysteria. Its short, jerky, exclamatory sentences tell their own tale, and say that the young Pole's sensitive nature was already breaking down under a feeling of loneliness and disappointment:—

"At the end of next month I shall go to Paris, if things remain quiet there. There is no lack of amusements here, but I very seldom care to participate in them. . . . This is the first of January. Oh! what a sad beginning of the year for me! I love you dearly. Write as soon as possible. Is she at Radom? Have you built forts? My poor parents! How are my friends? I would die for you, for any of you. Why am I condemned to stay here, lonely and forsaken? You who are together can comfort one another in these fearful times. Your flute will have enough to mourn over. How my piano will 'weep itself out'!"

Despite this manifest unrest, Chopin remained at Vienna nearly seven months longer. Of his doings in the early part of 1831 few traces exist beyond a letter to Elsner, his old master, and three or four addressed to his parents. From these it is possible to gather certain particulars worth noting. The Elsner letter shows that Chopin was not entirely satisfied with the state of music in the Austrian capital. He speaks of good taste ruined, and a public made distrustful by "a succession of the most miserable concerts." Moreover, no music had a chance against waltzes, which, says Chopin, "are here called 'works,' and Lanner and Strauss, who play first violin at the performance of these dances, 'capellmeister.'" The fact was that the Viennese era of great masters had come to an end. Beethoven and Schubert were lying side by side in the Währing graveyard, and—not because of this, perhaps, yet mysteriously connected with it—the city which knew not how to appreciate them seemed to be in the position of him concerning whom it was said, “Ephraim is joined to his idols; let him alone.”

* Karasowski, vol. i., p. 190 et seq.

In the first of the letters to his parents, Chopin speaks more cheerfully than had been his wont since the breaking out of the Polish rebellion:—

“As to myself, I am in excellent spirits, and feel that good health is the best comforter in misfortune. Perhaps it is Malfatti’s soups which have given me such strength that I really feel better than ever.”

Then he tells, with undisguised satisfaction, how he found himself in the Imperial Library:—

“Yesterday, I was at the Imperial Library with Handler. Do you know this is my first inspection of what is, perhaps, the richest collection of musical manuscripts in the world? . . . Now, my dearest ones, picture to yourselves my astonishment at beholding among the new manuscripts a book entitled ‘Chopin.’ It was a pretty large volume, elegantly bound. I thought to myself, ‘I have never heard of any other musician named Chopin, but there was a certain Champin, and perhaps there has been a mistake in the spelling.’ I took out the manuscript and saw my own handwriting. Haslinger has sent the original of my variations to the Library. This is an absurdity worth remembering.”

On May 28 he writes home to say, “I am quite well and amusing myself capitably”—amusing himself, in one way, by hitting out at Herz on account of his Jewish nationality. Chopin appears to have been as thorough a Jew-hater as the Varsovians of our own day:—

“He (Herz) is an Israelite, and made his début at Fraulein Henrietta Sonntag’s concert in Warsaw, when he was almost hissed off the stage. The pianist Döhler is also to give some of Czerny’s compositions, and, in conclusion, Herz will give his own variations on Polish airs. Poor Polish motives! you little think how they will overlard you with ‘Majufes’ (Jewish melodies), giving you the title of ‘Polish music’ to attract the public! If you are honest enough to distinguish between real Polish music and these imitations of it, and to assign a higher position to the former, you are thought crazy, more especially as Czerny, who is the oracle of Vienna, has not, as yet, in the manufacture of his musical tit-bits, included any variations on a Polish theme.”

Subsequent letters are full of gossip about preparations for journeying to Paris; passport troubles, the cholera, and so on—all of gravity at the moment, but as dead now as yesterday’s echo. Only one point need be touched upon here. Liszt says:†—

“He left Vienna with the design of going to London, but he came first to Paris, where he intended to remain but a short time. Upon his passport, drawn up for England, he had caused to be inserted, ‘Passing through Paris.’ These words sealed his fate. Long years afterwards, when he seemed not only acclimatised, but naturalised in France, he would smilingly say, ‘I am passing through Paris.’”

The statement that Chopin intended a visit to London, “passing through Paris,” is about as true as many others in Liszt’s book. Writing from Vienna, June 25, 1831, the Polish master said: “I have followed Herr Beyer’s advice, and had my passport viséd for England, although I am only going to Paris.”

In another letter, dated July, 1831, we read:—

“I asked for my passport to be viséd for London, and the police did it at once; but it was kept two days at the Russian Embassy, and was sent back with permission to travel to Munich, not to London. It is all the same to me if Herr Maison, the French Ambassador, will sign it.”

The meaning of this is clear. Patent reasons existed for the stoppage of intercourse between Russian subjects and the liberal western nations. But London was not tabooed as closely as Paris, whence the revolutionary movement of 1830 had spread. Hence Chopin’s ruse of a visit to the English capital, taking Paris on the way; hence, also, the action of the Russian Embassy in stopping the journey at Munich; and hence, furthermore, Chopin’s statement that all would be well if he could get the visé of the French Ambassador. Somehow or other, matters adjusted themselves, and on July 20, 1831, Chopin began the journey which, to use Liszt’s words, “decided his fate.”

With reference to the second Vienna sojourn, it is clear that “the stars in their courses” fought against Chopin. Liszt says that he appeared at several concerts, but his public performances were only two in number—one at a matinée given by Madame Garcia-Vestris, the other at a concert of his own, the expenses of which exceeded the receipts. The rest was disappointment, brought about by causes easily discernible in the light of what has already been said. Thenceforward Chopin had almost nothing to do with Germany. He played in Munich on his way to Paris, but rarely again addressed himself to Teutonic ears.

On reaching Paris, where the fumes of the powder that had scared away Charles X. were yet discernible, Chopin sought lessons of Kalkbrenner, animated thereto by the genuine modesty that ever distinguished him. Upon the action of Kalkbrenner in this matter, Karasowski has some words which are worth quoting:—

“Frederic Kalkbrenner, then at the height of his fame as a virtuoso, was regarded as the first pianist in Europe. Chopin, therefore, paid him a visit, and expressed his desire of becoming a pupil. Directly the young Pole began to play, Kalkbrenner perceived his genius, and that he had nothing more to learn. Chopin, with his modesty and zeal after the highest attainments in art, little imagined what was passing in Kalkbrenner’s mind. To the latter’s fame as a pianist nothing could add, but he might also attain the reputation of a first-rate teacher were he to obtain a pupil of such rare gifts as Chopin. He therefore thought it wise not to refuse to take him. Kalkbrenner, whose judgment was authoritative, and who either thought his own opinions infallible or knew how to proclaim them as such, fancied he could pick holes in Chopin’s playing: he declared that his fingering was quite opposed to the classic method; that his execution was not of the best school; that he was, indeed, a gifted composer and virtuoso, but that, although on the right road, he might easily go astray.”

Carrying out the policy here indicated, Kalkbrenner agreed to take Chopin as a pupil, but only on condition that the lessons extended over at least three years. The young Pole was surprised at the stipulation, and sought the advice of his old master, Ellsner, from whom he quickly received an admirable letter,† worth reading apart from its immediate application. Subjoined is the most pregnant passage:—

“The playing of any instrument, be it ever so perfect, like that of Paganini on the violin, or Kalkbrenner on the piano, is, with all its charm, only the means, not the end of the true art. The achievements of Mozart and Beethoven as pianists have long been forgotten; and their pianoforte compositions, although undoubtedly classic works, must give way to the diversified, artistic treatment of that instrument by the modern school (1). But their other works, not written for one particular instrument, the operas, symphonies, quartets, &c., will not only continue to live, but will, perhaps, remain unequalled by anything in the present day. Sapienti pauca! A pupil should not be kept too long to the study of one method, or of the taste of one nation. What is truly beautiful must not be imitated, but felt and assimilated with the individual genius. The only perfect nature is the Divine, and art must not take one man or one nation as a model, for these only afford examples more or less imperfect. In a word, that quality in an artist (who continually learns from what is around him) which excites the wonder of his contemporaries, can only arrive at perfection by and through itself. The cause of his fame, whether in the present or the future, is none other than his own gifted individuality manifested in his works."

* Karasowski, vol. ii., p. 197 et seq. † “Life of Chopin,” p. 165.

* Karasowski, vol. ii., p. 221. † Ibid., vol. ii., p. 223 et seq.

Elsner did not counsel Chopin in so many words to decline Kalkbrenner's condition, but the young artist could have had no difficulty in making out the drift of his friend's argument. He could not, however, altogether agree with Elsner's disparagement of virtuosity. "I have to think," he said, "how I can best make my way as a pianist, and so must, for a time, leave in the background the loftier artistic aims of which you spoke. . . . In my opinion the composer who can perform his works himself is best off." Nevertheless, he soon perceived that his position under Kalkbrenner would compromise that he had already gained, and in the result the negotiations were broken off though in a perfectly friendly manner.

Chopin was naturally delighted with the new world of Paris. He wrote* to his friend Titus, who had not fallen before Russian bullets:—

"In Paris you find everything. You can amuse yourself, weary yourself, laugh, weep, and, above all, do what you like without a soul taking any notice of you, because thousands are doing likewise. Everybody goes his own way. I believe there are more pianists, more virtuosi, and more donkeys in Paris than anywhere."

In Paris, too, he formed new friendships at the very outset. Rossini, Cherubini, Bailleu, Hiller, Herz, and Sowinski, to say nothing of vocal artists high in place, took more or less kindly to the young stranger, who lived as though he had reached the seventh heaven by means of the diligence that conveyed him across the Rhine. Soon, however, there came a rude awakening. Paris was of the earth earthy, after all, and the dweller therein needed "filthy lucre" wherewith to pay his way. Of this Chopin had only what his father could spare; nor when he gave his first concert, in February, 1832, were the fates propitious, since expenses were more than receipts. What to do in this emergency? He would emigrate, as other young Poles, driven from their motherland, were doing, hoping to find in the New World some redress of the grievances of the Old. To this step, however, his friends, and especially his parents, strongly opposed themselves; but it appears to have been an accident, rather than their settled purpose, which finally banished the idea of America from Chopin's mind. One day, meeting Prince Valentine Radziwill in the street, Chopin revealed to him his emigration scheme, and the Prince did not attempt to combat it, being satisfied with the artist's promise to attend a soirée at Baron Rothschild's the same day. Chopin kept his word, was induced to improvise on the pianoforte, and fortunately showed himself at his best. That single performance turned the scale of fortune in his favour. The great world of Paris took him up, and in Paris Chopin settled down for good and all.

(To be continued.)

FAIRY MUSIC.

BY HENRY C. LUNN.

CHARLES LAMB, in one of his most delightful essays, tells us that "Credulity is the man's weakness, but the child's strength." Granting the truth of this assertion, let us frankly acknowledge that we cling with fond recollection to the days when the poetical existence we firmly believed in was the only one we knew. The fabulous world around us was reflected in our nursery reading, and tales of wonder were related by our elders which made us not only look up to them in admiration of their knowledge, but love them for their kindness in imparting it. From infancy the fairy is the child's friend; for does he not learn from the numerous stories told to his playmates as well as to himself, that whenever a difficulty in life arises, there is always one of these benevolent little creatures ready to aid him, and place him in ease and affluence? Marrying a Princess covered with jewels is but one of the many states of existence which may be his if he will only obey the fairy's injunctions; and how many little girls have been made happy by dancing in imagination at the ball where Cinderella left her glass slipper, and, through the events which followed this loss, triumphed over her cruel and envious sisters! It is unquestionably true, as Charles Lamb says, time ruthlessly shakes our faith in the reality of fairy godmothers; and the child, even of tender age, begins to ask himself whether fays and goblins really do dance upon mushrooms by moonlight, and even whether fairies sleep in cowslip bells; yet, when this doubt grows into a certainty, poetry takes the place of fact, and fairy-life still entwines itself around our hard, prosaic world.

It is a proof of our affection for the land of fairies when we find that so many eminent writers have devoted their talents to the subject. Spenser's "Faerie Queene," although called by the author "a continued allegory, or darke conceit," is often read apart from the meaning intended to be conveyed, deriving most of its beauty from the supernatural air which surrounds it; and we need scarcely remind our readers how exquisitely Shakespeare, Milton, Shelley, and others too numerous to mention, have immortalised by their genius the fanciful life of which we are treating. In more modern literature, too, there are excellent tales, the principal actors in which are those endeared to us in the dream-life of our childhood; and these are of all others the most healthy stories to place before young readers; for it is far better to fall back upon the troubles of fairyland, which they can never experience, than to brood over the troubles of our own social existence.

But if some of our most delightful literature teems with poetical allusions to fairies—and in many books these imaginative beings are mixed up throughout with the men and women we daily see around us—it would be strange indeed were musicians not to feel the influence of fairy-life upon their art. Goethe says that music "requires no material, no subject-matter, whose effect must be deducted." Fairies, then, not being of the earth, must have a language not of the earth; and the "tone-poets" of the world may therefore legitimately claim to know and sympathise with more of their inner life than any of their fellow-men. Does not Weber show us that he is one of the chosen mediums of communication between fairies and mortals in his fanciful Opera of "Oberon"? From the moment we hear the charmed horn at the commencement of the overture are we not transported into an unknown land; and when we listen to the exquisite opening chorus, "Light as fairy foot can fall," do we not feel the very fluttering of the wings of the aerial beings before us? When Mendelssohn, as a mere boy, gave to the world a work which, not only for masterly construction, but for then unknown points in harmony, and effects in orchestration surpassing anything of the kind yet written, did he not choose for his subject Shakespeare's play "The Midsummer Night's Dream"? It may be said that, as a youth, he longed to give expression to the love for that fairy-land, a belief in which had brightened his childhood; but that his fondness for the theme did not afterwards weaken is shown by the fact of his willingly yielding to the desire of the King of Prussia, seventeen years after the composition of the Overture, to write music for the play, the intrinsic beauty as well as the appropriateness of which to the varied action of the drama have long been so generally acknowledged that the work of the poet seems now almost incomplete without the addition of the work of the musician. It may be said, too, that fairy life on the stage gives greater scope for scenic display than when the action is carried on by mortals. Fairies live amidst charming surroundings, and evidently in a climate the mildness of which makes the audiences at our metropolitan theatres envious. It would indeed, then, be a matter for regret if the music which colours our fairy dreams were allowed to fall below the standard to which our great composers have raised it. Were pantomime what it should be, we can imagine nothing which more calls for the genius of a fairy musician. True it is that children can perhaps scarcely appreciate the refined and delicate music which we should like to hear as an accompaniment to the gambols of the fays, sprites, and goblins of pantomimic life; but at least they would be infinitely better pleased with it than with the coarse ditties of music-hall singers, to whose peculiar talents our Christmas annual seems now principally intrusted; and, assuredly, those of a maturer age amongst the audience would be delighted with the change.

* Karasowski, vol. ii., p. 231.

Of fairy music for our drawing-rooms we have many beautiful specimens; but, like all characteristic compositions, it is so easy to write that inferior works embodying this idea are certain to glut the market. Music to fairy poetry is by no means necessarily fairy music; and it would be well if second-rate composers were to remember that only the greatest masters have succeeded in it. It is a question, however, whether the words of many fairy songs, even with indifferent music, are not generally more acceptable in a domestic concert than those filled with maudlin sentiment, or those which appeal to the lacerated feelings of listeners who may be presumed to seek society rather to forget, than to revive the recollection of, recent losses. Coral caves, mossy groves, and homes in the "deep, deep sea" are at all events agreeable subjects; and we can follow a fairy to her cheerful moonlight haunts with more pleasure than we can follow a mortal into his weary solitude, especially when he is, throughout the song, calling upon one whose heart has been given to "another."

Again, to refer to our opening quotation from the genial "Elia," whether the fondness for fairies be a "strength" or a "weakness," we should cherish that fondness for its unworldliness and purity. Fairies are the beloved of children, and children are the beloved of their elders. In infancy or age, then, these creatures of the fancy should be ensured a welcome in our hearts; and whilst we have charming fairy tales let us hope that we may have equally charming fairy music.

It has been said that when a fashion dies out in one country, it is usually resuscitated in another. If this really be the case, we sincerely hope that should the American custom of "interviewing" become a thing of the past in the New World, it will not be revived in the Old; for although it may be interesting to know the unsolicited opinions of eminent artists upon the various persons with whom they have from time to time been brought into contact, we care not to force them to this confession on the understanding that it is to be printed and circulated as an advertisement. But "interviewing" has another bad effect, for it brings into prominence many who, although holding fair positions in a profession, have never earned the right to consider that a familiar chat with a stranger especially sent to "draw them out" can have any interest for the general public. A case in point has recently occurred in America. Mr. F. Nicholls Crouch is the composer of a ballad called "Kathleen Mavourneen"; and as he has fallen into reduced circumstances, we lately drew attention to his state, in hopes of aiding him in his attempt to obtain some employment. But a reporter from the Herald has "interviewed" him. He rang the bell, and asking for Mr. Crouch, an old gentleman answered, "I am the individual." Then we are told, "the great composer" began the talk by saying, "Two years before the war I went to the City of the Seven Hills to reside permanently. My business was as teacher and professor of vocal and instrumental music, and I was engaged as organist at Dr. Minnigrode's church at 300 dollars a year." He then proceeded to relate the circumstances under which he wrote "Kathleen Mavourneen," and especially prided himself upon retaining the copyright of a song which he composed for Jimmy Lynch, one of the old Sanford Minstrels, called "Hold her while I squeeze her," a work which he said obtained a very wide popularity. Now it is very true that had the "great composer" not been "interviewed," we might never have known the author of "Hold her while I squeeze her"; but was this information really of vital importance to the world of art?

If our recollection fail us not, it was Thackeray who said that the editor's chair always reminded him of the seat which the dentist kindly requested you to take before he proceeded to business. Although no doubt this is a somewhat exaggerated simile, there can be no question that there are very many points of resemblance. In the first place, every morning letters arrive from authors who have not been reviewed with unqualified praise complaining openly of malice, jealousy, and favouritism: and although of course an editor who knows he has done his duty may throw all these communications into the waste-paper basket, he cannot always do so without a certain feeling of sympathy with the writer who fancies himself a martyr. In our case, however, in addition to correspondence concerning the reviewing department, we have constant complaints from those who furnish us with reports of concerts from the country, and whenever, in a fit of generosity, we have given the reasons why they have not been inserted, the explanation has rather added fuel to the flame. Of course no notice can possibly be thrown aside without a very tangible cause. One, for example, gives no date of the concert mentioned, another does not even indicate what part of the world it took place in, and a third, written by the person who takes a principal part in the performance, contains such fulsome adulation that it would be impossible to print it. Our latest cause of offence is the non-insertion of a notice which told us that a concert was given "on the 6th proximo;" and, in spite of our informing the sender of this astounding news the reason for our withholding it, we are threatened with his eternal displeasure. This dreadful result we will endeavour to meet with fortitude; but correspondents should remember the parallel of the dentist's chair, and spare us as much as they conveniently can.

CONSIDERING the universal desire to popularise music, it should be the duty of all who have the power, to aid the cause by making published compositions equally intelligible in every country. What is known as the "English fingering" of course prevents the circulation, to the extent we should wish, of our own pianoforte works on the Continent and in America; and the "foreign fingering" is an equal barrier to the sale in this country of compositions published abroad. This however will, we fear, for many years remain a disputed point; for it can scarcely be expected that foreigners will give up their system of fingering in favour of our own; and the method recognised in England is so rooted in the minds both of students and teachers that they will certainly not change it without a hard struggle. But there cannot be the same reason for preventing the adoption of one language to express the composer's intention throughout a pianoforte piece. When Italy more ruled the world of music than it does at the present time, it was tacitly agreed upon that musical directions should be given in the language of that country; and had this system been adhered to, pianists would only have been put to the inconvenience of understanding a little of Italian in order to arrive at a knowledge of the composer's meaning. But now that we have a confusion of languages in every work, even professors themselves are often sorely puzzled to translate them. The poor students who used to rely upon their "Catechism of Italian Words used in Music" have a right to complain when they find "A little slower," "Con dolore," "Ad lib.," and "M. G." on the same page of music; and, seeing that we have also to construe long sentences in German, it seems only reasonable to express a hope that the subject may shortly be ventilated as it seems to demand.

AMONGST the various competitions in public which originated with the revival of a "Spelling Bee" a short time ago, we particularly recollect a display of musical talent, both vocal and instrumental, which really elicited some singing and playing much above the average of amateur exhibitions in our drawing rooms. At this "Musical Bee" a well-known professor was engaged as adjudicator; and although it need scarcely be said that his decisions did not spread a universal feeling of satisfaction amongst the audience, his knowledge of the subject at least ensured respect for his verdict, and any audible expression of discontent was—as in our law courts—"instantly suppressed." We have lately heard of a revival of these musical trials of skill; but with the object, we presume, of securing absolute fairness in awarding the prizes, every member of the audience is requested to record upon a card—on the plan of electoral vote by ballot—the name of the candidate he or she may think the most deserving of reward. Now, even supposing, for the sake of argument, that every one of the listeners had the power of accurately judging the artistic qualifications of each performer, is it at all likely that parents and friends will vote against those in whom they take the greatest interest? And, this fact once admitted, will it not be a question of which competitor can secure the greatest number of voters tacitly pledged to return her, if possible, at the head of the poll before entering the room? However much a professor engaged for the occasion may err in his judgment, it may at least be fairly presumed that he is free from bias, and his vote, therefore, should be doubly gratifying to the student. "To be guided entirely by the opinions of the listeners" sounds very well; but, as a rule, the cards could just as well be filled up before, as after, the performance.

THE Report of the Committee of the Sacred Harmonic Society, recently issued, although dispiriting to the many supporters of an institution which has effected so much good to the cause for which it was especially organised, cannot but be regarded as one of the most straightforward and carefully considered documents ever issued to the public. Finding that the subscription-list is steadily decreasing, it is distinctly stated that in the absence of a guarantee fund it will be impossible to undertake the liabilities involved in arranging a series of Concerts for next season. There can be no doubt that the practical monopoly of the performance of oratorio held by the Society for many years no longer exists, and that the patronage accorded to smaller and local associations materially interferes with the receipts of this old-established institution; but when we find that such works as "Judas Maccabæus," "Solomon," "Samson," and "St. Paul" have been latterly performed at a positive loss, other causes must be sought for the decline of the Society; and we are glad to find that the truth has been told, so that the admirers of the great compositions in sacred music may see that, unless some such support as we find willingly offered by the stewards at the provincial Festivals is forthcoming, a great—and it may almost be said a national—work must be abandoned. Surely such an appeal cannot be made in vain. The Committee has nobly performed its long and laborious duties; and in tendering to the public the result of its exertions it merely resigns a trust to those whose wealth and love of art may enable them to carry on the enterprise irrespective of those pecuniary considerations which it has been clearly shown at present impede its progress.

MANY who read of the death of the Dowager Countess of Essex, which occurred on the 22nd ult., at her house in Belgrave Square, will remember how often they have listened with pleasure to the charming singing of the deceased artist when, as Miss Stephens, she appeared in the then popular Operas, "Artaxerxes," "The Duenna," and "The Beggar's Opera." Those, however, were days when dramas interspersed with songs satisfied a large portion of the musical public, and Miss Stephens was perhaps even greater in mere ballad-singing than in the rendering of more important pieces. Her voice was most sympathetic in quality, and its compass reached to D in alt; but she relied less upon display than upon the earnest and natural delivery of her words. With all who loved an artless style and purity of vocalisation she was a great favourite; and much regret was felt when, in the zenith of her popularity, she became Countess of Essex, and retired from the profession. The Earl of Essex, whom she married, was a widower, and at the time of the wedding was eighty-two years of age. He died shortly after his marriage; and the Dowager Countess, who was much respected in private society, lived to be eighty-eight.

THE many admirers of Mr. Charles Hallé who marvel at the mental strain necessitated by not only conducting but performing the greatest works before the public, are scarcely, perhaps, aware of the physical strain which he also has to endure in fulfilling engagements, with his admirably trained band, in towns so widely separated. The following account of a week's work, for the truth of which we can vouch, will give some idea of the extraordinary vigour and activity—we may almost say ubiquity—of this artist: February 9, sixteenth weekly Orchestral Concert at Manchester; February 10, 11, and 13, Reid Festival, Edinburgh; February 14, Orchestral Concert at Dundee; February 15, Orchestral Concert at Glasgow; February 16, seventeenth weekly Concert ("Elijah") at Manchester; February 17, Concert in London. We much doubt whether an instance can be found in any other country of so extensive and rapid a tournee, during which more than seventy musicians, with all their "impedimenta," travelled some 700 miles.

SINCE the discovery of the hymn "Angelus ad Virginem" in the Arundel MS., and its publication in THE MUSICAL TIMES, we find that Mr. Henry Bradshaw, of Cambridge, made his transcript of the same hymn, with the same notes, in 1870, from another source. This was a Troparium written at the beginning of the fourteenth century for St. Patrick's Cathedral, in Dublin, and bought in that year, from Dr. J. H. Todd's collection; for the Cambridge University Library, where it now is. Scarcely have these two discoveries been made known, when a third Chaucerian illustration is found to present itself in a third manuscript. Many of our readers will remember that, in Chaucer's Prioress's Tale, the little boy sang "Alma Redemptoris Mater." This is an English hymn, and the Latin words form the burden of each stanza. We hope to present it shortly to the readers of THE MUSICAL TIMES, with its tune.

WE need scarcely say with how much pleasure we announce that the serious attack from the effects of which Sir Michael Costa has been suffering during the past month is rapidly passing away, and that he is now enabled to walk about his room, and to some extent use his right hand. His medical attendant, Professor Rodgers, has been unremitting in his attentions, and this favourable report of his patient's progress will be received with a widely spread feeling of satisfaction, and an earnest hope that he may shortly be able to resume that position before the public which he has so long and so honourably occupied.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

MR. BALFE, although undoubtedly a clever man, was not a dramatic genius—indeed, he was not a genius at all—but having the faculty of writing pleasing ballads and small concerted pieces admirably fitted for the vocalists of his time, he attained a popularity the value of which can only be appreciated when the circumstances which called his talent into existence have passed away. As a specimen of his style, an occasional welcome may be accorded to the "Bohemian Girl," for there is always a section of the public ready to listen to the melodies which were sung in drawing-rooms and whistled about the streets before opera assumed anything like a tangible form on the English stage; but when we find that Mr. Carl Rosa, who has done so much to educate his audiences to the appreciation of high-class works, devotes a portion of his season to the production of an opera by Balfe which failed in Trieste, we cannot but think that he has relied for success more upon the patriotism than upon the judgment of the British public. "Moro," the first performance of which took place on January 28, is a curious instance of the manner in which the composer could accommodate himself to his surroundings; for not only has he translated his style into Italian, but he has boldly pressed themes from the modern Italian composers into his service, and produced a musical "mixture" which defies artistic criticism. Into the plot of this work it will be unnecessary to enter at any length. Based upon events which took place in the Low Countries whilst in the possession of the Spaniards, under King Philip the Second, the incidents chiefly turn upon the love of the Duke of Alva for Olivia Campana, who is sincerely attached to Moro, the painter of Antwerp. The hair-breadth escapes of the lovers, and their eventual happy union, in spite of Olivia being condemned to death by the Duke, afford some excellent situations for dramatic musical colouring; but of these the composer has taken little advantage, the notes being set to the words rather than to the feeling which they convey, and the orchestration being, as a rule, so meagre as to afford but small aid to the general effect. Indeed the libretto—translated and adapted by Mr. W. A. Barrett—is scarcely of an inspiring nature; but remembering Mr. Balfe's boast that he could "set the London Directory to music," this could hardly be felt as an obstacle to the composer's task. Let us say, however, that there are many pleasing melodies scattered throughout the opera, amongst which may be cited the romance for Moro, in the first act, "Is it, then, in vain?" the air sung by Olivia in the nunnery, and the Barcarole, "On my gondola," for Moro (with chorus), which was encored. Of the concerted pieces, the finale to the second act is by far the best, most of the solo music, in combination with the chorus, being bright and effective, although too noisily scored. As the heroine, Madame Valleria sang and acted well throughout—so well, indeed, that had an apology not been made for her, we could hardly have imagined that she was suffering from a severe cold. Mr. Barton McGuckin more than confirmed the impression made upon the occasion of his début, his singing, especially of the melodious solos assigned to the young painter, Moro, being in every respect thoroughly satisfactory. Mr. L. Crotty, as the Duke, sang with much energy, but scarcely realised the sternness of the character; and in the subordinate parts Miss G. Warwick, Mr. D. Thomas, and Mr. H. D'Egville lent efficient aid. The scenery and dresses proved that no expense had been spared in the presentation of the work; and Mr. Carl Rosa, who conducted on the occasion, was greeted with enthusiastic and well-deserved marks of approbation. On the second performance of the opera the part of Olivia was transferred to Miss Georgina Burns, but without any reason being assigned for the change. Her voice is somewhat too shrill in the upper notes, a defect aggravated by a habit of forcing the higher part of her register; but she was effective in much of the subdued music, and acted throughout with energy and earnestness. The production of Wagner's "Tannhäuser," on the 14th ult., was the great triumph of the season, for not only was the performance excellent in every respect, but the scenery and minutest details of stage arrangement were such as even the exacting composer himself must have acknowledged to be thoroughly in accordance with his views. Especially must we award praise to the Venusberg, the elaborate "set" of which, with the well-studied groupings, form a strong contrast to the commonplace ballet scene presented at Covent Garden. For the first time, indeed, we can almost forgive the impressionable Tannhäuser for lingering in an abode with which the audience even parted with regret; and the applause, long and continuous as it was, was never more thoroughly deserved. Madame Valleria, by her singing in the part of Elisabeth, achieved a success which must place her in the highest rank of lyric vocalists; Miss Georgina Burns as Venus, and Miss Irene Adams in the small part of the Shepherd Boy being also thoroughly satisfactory. The acting of Herr Schott in the character of Tannhäuser was so instinct with dramatic feeling throughout as to cover any defects in his singing, the declamatory portions of the music, however, being given with a legitimate power rarely perhaps united with that depth of expression demanded in some of the more quiet parts of the opera. Mr. Ludwig sang the music of Wolfram with such artistic finish as to excite genuine applause, especially in "O star of eve," and the rest of the parts were efficiently sustained by Messrs. Pope, Davies, D'Egville, Thomas, and Leahy. On the whole, the chorus-singing—considering the merciless manner in which the composer has occasionally written for the choir—was most satisfactory; and Signor Randegger, who conducted the opera, received a cordial mark of recognition of his valuable services from an overflowing and thoroughly appreciative audience. We must not omit to mention the marvellous performance of the orchestra throughout this arduous work, nor the care and judgment evidenced by Signor Randegger in its direction.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

THE Philharmonic Directors are evidently determined to continue the new policy initiated last year, and to regain for the Society the important position in English musical life which the sluggish and retrograde conduct of many previous seasons had threatened to forfeit. The prospectus issued for the present season shows a happy combination of the classical and modern, well adapted to please amateurs of all tastes; and there is every reason to hope that our oldest and most essentially national institution will survive its troubles, and once more flourish and increase. The programme of the first Concert (the 9th ult.), although devoid of absolute novelty, was none the less interesting for that reason, including as it did the highest effort of musical art, Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, written in 1823 expressly for the Philharmonic Society, and unexpressly for all the world besides. The execution of this great work, under Mr. Cusins's leadership, although not absolutely perfect, was sufficient to show the fine quality of the band, and redounded especially to the credit of the newly formed Philharmonic Choir, which sang with accuracy and vigour. The solo quartet consisted of Miss Marriott, Miss Orridge, and Messrs. F. Boyle and Barrington Foote. The only other feature of the Concert worthy of record was the excellent rendering of Molique's Violin Concerto in A minor by Mr. Carrodus, who brought to his task solid technical qualities, combined with the love of a pupil for the work of his master, on the violin. The result was, as we indicated before, a performance as spirited as it was scrupulously correct.

The absence of novelty from the first Concert was amply atoned for by the introduction, at the second (the 23rd ult.), of a Symphonic Poem by Liszt, written a quarter of a century ago, but never before heard in this country, where the works of that remarkable composer have hitherto met with strange and deplorable neglect. The title of the Symphony—the ninth of its class—is "Hungaria," and beyond this Liszt has not vouchsafed any further indication as to the poetic meaning of his music, which, however, the imaginative listener can easily supply according to the bent of his nature. What will strike every one is the truly national feeling imparted by Liszt to his work through means of the rhythms and intervals characteristic of Hungarian music, combined with an orchestral colouring of unprecedented brilliancy. In his scoring, indeed, Liszt's master-hand is shown to greatest advantage. But his melodies also have a weird beauty of their own, and their treatment, although far from conventional, is none the less interesting and in the highest sense artistic for that reason. It requires all the obtuseness of the typical épicier to deny that in "Hungaria" a great master is speaking. Of the structure of the work it would be impossible to give a distinct idea within the limits of our space, and the barest outline must suffice. Beginning with a Largo con duolo (in D minor), the work introduces a brilliant Hungarian March (in B major), the theme of which is elaborately treated in conjunction with other melodic materials, and at one time takes the form of a Dead March (in B minor), to emerge from its sadness again in a major key (D), and in brilliant orchestral garb, towards the end. The performance of this difficult work was a triumph for Mr. Cusins and his orchestra, the rhythmical difficulties, pointed out by Liszt in his preface, being overcome to a degree rarely heard in this country, where special rehearsals for the single instruments are an impossibility. Mozart's "Jupiter" Symphony and Beethoven's Overture to "Leonora" (No. 3) were the remaining orchestral items of the programme, which also included an impressive performance of Schumann's Pianoforte Concerto in A by Herr Scharwenka, and vocal contributions by Madame Trebelli—who could think of nothing more interesting than "Voi chère sapete" and "Eccomi alfine in Babilonia"—and Madame Marie Roze, who gave an admirable rendering of "Divinités du Styx," from Gluck's "Alceste," and of Berlioz' beautiful song "L'Absence," one of the "Nuits d'Été" previously noticed by us.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

THE Crystal Palace Concerts were resumed on the 18th ult., after an interval more than usually prolonged for pantomimic reasons. The programme contained one novelty, placed, where no novelty should be placed, at the beginning of the Concert. We are speaking of a selection from Mr. Villiers Stanford's Opera "The Veiled Prophet," performed with considerable success at Hanover in February last year, but not yet produced in England. An account of the plot and an analysis of Mr. Stanford's music have previously appeared in THE MUSICAL TIMES, and it would therefore be unnecessary to return to the subject. The pieces selected were the Overture and the Ballet-music from the second act, including the song for soprano which separates the two movements of the dance. The Overture, more elaborate than introductions to modern operas usually are, gives the gist of the whole drama in a nutshell, being founded on the motives which represent the chief characters, and their guiding passions in the action. It is effectively scored, and produced a very favourable impression on the audience. The first section of the Ballet is a slow, graceful dance in F, and serves as an appropriate introduction to the song, "There's a bower of roses by Bendemeer's stream," to which Miss Mary Davies lent all the charm of her beautiful voice. The second and final portion of the Ballet, in G minor, is of a more lively nature, the Eastern character of the scene being well sustained by means of quaint rhythmical and harmonic devices.

The most important orchestral item of the programme was Beethoven's Symphony in A (No. 7). Miss Zimmermann gave a conscientious and technically perfect rendering of Sterndale Bennett's pianoforte Concerto in C minor (No. 3), to which she added three short solo pieces by Jadassohn, Rubinstein, and Heller. Mr. W. H. Brereton, who appeared for the first time at these Concerts, produced a favourable impression in Handel's recitative and aria "Sorge infausta," and, together with Miss Davies, in the duet "Crudel, perché," from Mozart's "Figaro." The lady deserves a final word of praise for her good taste in selecting as her solo pieces "Rubinstein's "Du bist wie eine Blume," and the beautiful "Widmung," by Robert Franz.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

At the last Concert of January (the 30th), which we have still briefly to notice, Madame Norman-Néruda made her first appearance this season, and was, as usual, extremely well received. The lady selected for her solo performance the Prelude, Romance and Scherzo, from a violin suite (Op. 7) by Franz Ries, a scion of a family of excellent musicians (among them Ferdinand Ries, the pupil of Beethoven), and himself a violinist of repute. As a consequence, the three short pieces introduced on this occasion for the first time are well adapted for the instrument, being moreover written in a thoroughly musicianlike manner. That they were heard to the fullest advantage under the skilful treatment of the great lady violinist it is needless to add. Miss Agnes Zimmermann was the pianist, and gave an excellent interpretation of the Nocturne in D flat (Op. 27) and the Scherzo in B minor by Chopin. The Concert opened with Brahms's Sestet in G major (Op. 18, No. 1), in which Madame Norman-Néruda, MM. Ries, Holländer, Zerbini, Pezze, and Piatti took part, and concluded with a capital rendering of Mr. Davenport's pianoforte Trio in B flat (Op. 5), executed by Miss Agnes Zimmermann, Madame Norman-Néruda, and Signor Piatti. Songs by Beethoven and Cowen were contributed by Miss Spenser Jones.

The programme of the first Concert of last month (the 6th ult.) included Schubert's genial string Quartet in A minor (Op. 29). For the estimation in which it is held at this institution it is sufficient to state that it was heard on this occasion for the twentieth time, and, for the style of its rendering, that the executants were Madame Norman-Néruda, MM. Ries, Straus, and Piatti. Mdlle. Marie Krebs, who was the pianist, played in her best manner Bach's Fantasia Cromatica, and, in conjunction with Signor Piatti, a Larghetto and Allegretto (Op. 10) for pianoforte and violoncello, by A. C. Mackenzie. The latter piece was a novelty, and was deservedly much applauded. The two movements are preceded by an introductory recitative, and are interconnected, the theme of the Larghetto recurring again at the conclusion of the second movement. Without being a very remarkable composition, Mr. Mackenzie's Op. 10 is throughout melodious and well written. Madame Norman-Néruda repeated (by desire) the three numbers from the suite by Franz Ries given at the previous Concert, and was afterwards associated with Mdlle. Krebs in a con amore rendering of Beethoven's Sonata for violin and pianoforte in F (Op. 24), dedicated to Count Moritz von Fries. Mr. Oswald was the vocalist of the evening, and sang with good declamation Berthold Tours's "Deep and true," Bennett's "To Chloe," and Gounod's "The fountain mingles with the river."

Mozart's Quintet in A major was the opening number in the Concert of the 13th ult., when it was heard here for the twenty-eighth time, the executants being MM. Holländer, Ries, Lazarus, Zerbini, and Piatti. Signor Piatti delighted his audience by a violoncello solo by Max Bruch, entitled "Kol Nidrei" (so called from the Hebrew melody upon which it is constructed), wherein his well-known transcendent qualities as a performer on this instrument were again fully displayed. Sebastian Bach's pianoforte Preludio con fuga, alla Tarantella, in A minor, was played with much precision and taste by Mdlle. Marie Krebs, who was greatly applauded. The lady pianist also sustained the pianoforte part in Beethoven's Trio in B flat (Op. 11)—an early work of the composer, in which the influence of Mozart is still predominant—assisted by Mr. Lazarus (clarinet), and Signor Piatti (violoncello). Mr. Barrington Foote, the vocalist on this occasion, successfully rendered Henry Smart's "Sleep, heart of mine," and Gounod's "Au bruit des lourds marteaux" from the Opera "Phlémon et Baucis."

The return of Herr Joachim, at the third Concert of the past month (the 20th ult.), was, as usual, made the occasion for special demonstrations of the favour in which this violinist par excellence is, here as elsewhere, so justly held, the hall presenting a most crowded aspect. Herr Joachim, on the evening in question, once more vindicated the position assigned to him by general consent as an unrivalled master of his instrument, both as leader of the quartet and brilliant virtuoso. The Concert opened with Beethoven's string Quartet in F major, the first of the famous three dedicated by the composer to Count Rasoumowsky, in the performance of which Herr Joachim was, as usual, most ably assisted by MM. Ries, Straus, and Piatti. The solo performance of the violinist of the evening consisted of a Romance of his own composition and a Caprice by Paganini—both characteristic pieces which afforded Herr Joachim an opportunity for the display of his grand qualities of tone and technique, still more apparent, if possible, in the prelude from Bach's violin Sonata, No. 6, which he gave in response to a vociferously demanded encore. Other features in the programme were Mdlle. Marie Krebs's effective rendering of Chopin's Nocturne in C minor and the same composer's Impromptu in F sharp minor (the latter encored), and Beethoven's Trio in G major (Op. 9), played to absolute perfection by MM. Joachim, Straus, and Piatti. Miss Annie Marriott was much applauded in Handel's air "Lusinghe più care" from his Opera "Alessandro," and also sang, with Miss Edith Millar, the duet "How lovely is the face," by the same composer. Mr. Zerbini was the accompanist on all the above occasions.

In the prospective arrangements for these Concerts, we are glad to inform our readers, Madame Schumann is announced to appear on the 13th inst. and to remain till the end of the season.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

Two performances were given during the past month by this Society, neither of which, however, calls for extended notice. On the 8th Mendelssohn's "Lobgesang" and Rossini's "Stabat Mater" were performed, and on the 22nd (Ash Wednesday) "The Messiah" was given before an audience that filled every part of the spacious building. This testimony to the undiminished popularity of Handel's masterpiece is especially valuable at the present time, when circumstances have caused the question to be raised whether oratorio retains its hold on the affections of the English public. It would be a disastrous day for music in this country were the increased interest taken in modern art developments to lead to the dethronement of Handel and Mendelssohn; but of this, happily, there need not be the slightest apprehension. Making allowance for some unusual curtailments, "The Messiah" was admirably rendered on the occasion referred to, the soloists being Madame Sherrington, Miss Orridge, Mr. E. Lloyd, and Signor Foli. Dr. Stainer presided at the organ, and Mr. Barnby occupied his customary position as Conductor.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY.

THE Concert given by the Sacred Harmonic Society on the 3rd ult. was made melancholy by the absence of Sir Michael Costa, who, a few days before, as all know, had been laid upon a bed of sickness. It is a fact, we believe, that Sir Michael anticipated this Concert with particular interest, because of Gounod's "Messe Solennelle," which he last conducted at the Birmingham Festival some years ago. But, while men propose, it is a higher Power who disposes, and the bâton had to be handed over to M. Sainton, who, we may rest assured, was zealous for the fame of his compatriot, and consecrated thereto his best energies and skill.

Handel's Coronation Anthem, "Zadok the Priest," having opened the Concert in a most impressive and grandiose manner, the Mass followed amid general signs of interest and unmistakably profound attention. The work was new to the Sacred Harmonic programme, but we need not treat it here as calling for discussion, since every page has been made familiar to amateurs by frequent performance in churches and elsewhere. No doubt there will always be a difference of opinion as to what constitutes real sacred music, but argument on the matter is as futile as that of the knights about the metal of the shield hanging at the cross-roads. It is very much an affair of temperament and education. To some the sensuous and ornate strains of French and Italian composers are as rain upon the thirsty earth, stirring up religious life, and satisfying a religious sentiment. Others, again, find their ideal in the colder and more measured outpourings of Teutonic writers. Who shall decide between these? and what need is there for any decision? Let every man enjoy that which suits him, and allow others to do the same, without setting himself up as an arbiter on the strength of his own individual liking. The impression made by Gounod's music was obviously great. That it was equal we do not say. There are passages in the Credo, for example, which fall considerably below the level of the rest. But throughout the Kyrie and Gloria, the Sanctus, and, above all, the solemn Benedictus, the master's genius asserted its power, and held the audience in thrall. We can honestly praise the performance, as directed with skill and knowledge by M. Sainton. Now and then Gounod's harmonies seemed to puzzle the chorus, and brought about faulty intonation. But these cases were rare, and weighed little as against the general merit. The solo passages were well delivered by Miss Anna Williams, Mr. Maas, and Mr. Thorndike.

Beethoven's "Mount of Olives" followed the Mass, the soloists just named again appearing. About so familiar a feature in the Society's programme nothing need be said. Here, moreover, band and chorus alike were on firm and well-known ground, and a good result was a foregone conclusion. Miss Williams and Mr. Maas were heard to special advantage in their important solo numbers, while the March and Chorus of the Roman Soldiers and the final "Hallelujah" made their usual effect.

On Friday last another Concert took place, at which was produced a new Te Deum by Mr. W. G. Cusins. Our notice of this must necessarily be deferred.

MR. GEAUSSENT'S CHOIR.

THE second Concert of this new organisation, which took place at St. James's Hall on the 21st ult., was a distinct advance on the first in every respect, and the enterprise may now be considered to have established itself on a firm basis. The programme was, on the whole, well calculated to exhibit the capabilities of the Choir, the only class of music unrepresented being compositions of the madrigalian epoch, which Mr. Geaussen's forces would doubtless render with much effect. Mendelssohn's favourite Psalm, "Judge me, O God," Eaton Fanning's spirited "Song of the Vikings," and part-songs by Pinsuti and W. Macfarren were capitally sung; but perhaps the best effort was in Hecht's "Charge of the Light Brigade." This setting of Tennyson's soul-stirring poem requires not only much spirit and vigour, but undeviating precision in attack, the adoption of cross rhythms, though conducing to the effect, greatly increasing the difficulty of the music. No faltering, however, was shown, and the enthusiastic applause of the audience was well deserved. Spohr's Cantata, "God, Thou art great," was also given, with organ and pianoforte accompaniment. As on the previous occasion, artists of eminence were engaged to take part in the Concert. Mr. Charles Hallé's skilful interpretation of Beethoven's Sonata Pastorale (Op. 28) and of pieces by Brahms and Chopin gained warm appreciation, and vocal selections of an attractive nature were contributed by Miss Mary Davies, Miss Marian McKenzie, and Mr. E. Lloyd. Mr. Geaussen has done much to deserve success, and it would seem that he has attained it. He announces that three Concerts will be given next season, and that his choir will be increased to 400 voices.

THE BACH SOCIETY.

THIS Society again limits its season to two Concerts, whereof the first was given in St. James's Hall on the 16th ult., under the direction of Mr. Otto Goldschmidt. No orchestra was employed, the programme being selected either from purely vocal works or from those intended for use with organ accompaniment only. We do not complain of the arrangement, nor should we of any tending to check the undue predominance of one form of music. As things are now going, no works will be practicable soon except those in which an orchestra is engaged. The very approach towards this is a mistake, because threatening unfair and mischievous neglect of a host of compositions in their way as worthy to be heard as any orchestral piece ever written. The programme of the 16th ult. opened with three anthems representing the English school of church music at as many different periods. These were Byrd's "Sing joyfully unto God" (seventeenth century); Greene's "I will sing of Thy power" (eighteenth century); and Ouseley's "Great is the Lord" (nineteenth century). We might enter upon comparisons, and it is possible to contend that at least one of the selected anthems cannot claim to be the best example of its period. But small good would flow from discussion of such a kind. Enough that each of the three works has merit sufficient to entitle it to notice, that of Dr. Greene especially, in which there is one passage of remarkable beauty and power. Moreover, they together served the purpose of showing what a grave, dignified, and noble school of sacred music our English Church has cherished. A new age may bring a new taste, and the solid joints of the old masters may have to give way before the highly spiced "made dishes" of modern art. It remains, however, that nothing superseding the former can be more in accord with the tradition of our national taste and character. From England the programme travelled to Italy, what time the music of the Latin church began to emerge in something like artistic form and beauty from a chaos of crudities. This period was represented by the famous "Missa Papæ Marcelli" of Palestrina—a work which, as every reader of musical history knows, saved the sacred music of Rome from limitation to the rude and arid domain of simple Gregorianism. Palestrina undertook to show that music need not be offensive in the church, and he succeeded in a way that even now, after centuries of progress, calls forth warm admiration. No doubt the strains of his Mass, with their ingenious part-weaving upon a very limited groundwork, sounded archaic to the audience, but the elevated spirit of the music could not be mistaken, nor its fitness to express the solemn truths of the Christian faith. This is said to have been the first performance of the work in a London concert-room; and if the saying be true all the more credit is due to Mr. Goldschmidt, who has adapted it for modern choral use, and who took such pains to secure a good rendering. In the honour of its execution, however, all the members of the Bach Society share. Their task was a very difficult one; they successfully discharged it, and according to the weight of the cross should be the splendour of the crown.

Another notable feature in the scheme of the Concert was Bach's Sonata in E flat for flute and clavichord—undoubtedly the best of the six of which it forms part, and the one most adapted to please a modern audience. This was very well played by Messrs. Svendsen and Kemp. Following it came Boccherini's Sonata for violoncello, introduced, as often at the Popular Concerts, by Signor Piatti; one of Handel's Italian duets, "Conservate," sung by Miss Robertson and Madame Fassett; and Bach's double chorus, "Nun ist das Heil," together with some madrigals and part-songs. It goes without saying that all this was very interesting and attractive.

GUILDHALL ORCHESTRAL SOCIETY.

THE Concert given by the amateur orchestra under Mr. Weist Hill's leadership, at the Guildhall, on the 18th ult., introduced an interesting work by a composer not sufficiently appreciated in England. Herr Julius Otto Grimm, the composer in question, occupies a prominent position amongst contemporary musicians in Germany. The biographical notice in Grove's "Dictionary," which is neither correct nor complete, states him to have been born at Pernau, in Saxony. He is in reality a native of the Baltic Provinces of Russia, although his style is thoroughly German. At an early age he came under the influence of Schumann, with whom for a time he studied at Düsseldorf, and that influence has left a lasting impress on his works, which, however, show sufficient individuality to secure for Grimm a distinct, though a limited, sphere of original workmanship. One of the chief characteristics of his style is the absolute command of contrapuntal devices, in witness of which we may cite the fugue in the last movement of the "Ode to Music," performed at the Guildhall. It must not, however, be supposed that this Ode is pre-eminently a learned work. Its melodies are flowing, and the part-writing, although musicianly, does not present any great difficulty to cultivated amateurs. To Choral Societies of a certain artistic standing Grimm's work may be cordially recommended. Of the three movements the most attractive is the first (Maestoso in B flat), founded on a striking theme, and including an Intermezzo of great beauty for four soli. The second movement (in D minor), in which the voices declaim the words to an incessant roll of triplets in the orchestra, is less striking as far as melodious invention is concerned; but the final Andante tranquillo, introduced by a bass solo, and including the Fugue (allegro non troppo, ma risoluto) already referred to, again reaches the level of excellence previously attained, and brings the work to a harmonious close. The performance, as far as chorus and orchestra were concerned, was very satisfactory, Mr. Weist Hill's choir especially acquitting itself in a most creditable manner; but the soli left much to be desired. The remainder of the Concert, including Mendelssohn's fragmentary Oratorio "Christus," and many (we think too many) other pieces of a miscellaneous character, does not call for detailed notice. Suffice it to state that, to judge by this and previous trials, the study and practice of music in the City is carried on in a laudable spirit of seriousness. The amateurs forming the orchestra evidently work with a will, and the pupils of the Guildhall School of Music who appear at these Concerts do, in most cases, credit to the teaching power of that young and rising institution.

MR. E. H. THORNE'S CONCERTS.

MR. E. H. THORNE gave two very interesting Concerts in the Hall of the Royal Academy of Music on January 30 and the 13th ult. They deserved a larger audience, though, perhaps, they could not have had one more appreciative; and, on the whole, we may assume that Mr. Thorne was not disappointed. He must have a sanguine soul who, not being a blazing luminary like Herr Rubinstein, hopes to make money nowadays by combining the rôles of artist and entrepreneur. At the first Concert, Mr. Thorne produced a Pianoforte Trio of his own composition, himself taking the chief instrument. This work is one of such manifest ability that, if circumstances gave us the right to wonder at anything, we should marvel why it was left for the composer to bring out at his own risk. The first movement shows that Mr. Thorne has made no ordinary study of classic models, and that he knows how to apply the result without the slavish adherence to copy which betrays want of imagination. The themes are well chosen with a view to diversity of effect, and their general treatment is marked by freedom and fluency that stop short of licence and diffuseness. Possibly the Andante requires more than one hearing for due appreciation of its merits, but not so the Scherzo. Here are no "nods and becks and wreathed smiles," but plain, honest "Mirth that wrinkled Care derides, and Laughter holding both his sides." It is a genuine scherzo, full of the broadest humour, thrown into higher relief by a sedate trio. The finale strikes us as scarcely light enough for a work having two movements so serious as the Allegro and Andante. On this point, however, more complete knowledge may lead to a different conclusion. In any case the Trio is a credit to the composer and to the "native talent" he ably exemplifies. At the second Concert Mr. Thorne was again heard through the medium of a Romance for violoncello and pianoforte. The cantabile theme of this work—given of course to the violoncello—is charming, but the lengthened episode which, for the sake of contrast, breaks its flow, cannot well be so described. Mr. Thorne might advantageously make some change in this part of the Romance with a view to greater homogeneity.

The foregoing were by no means the only novelties produced on these occasions, since the concert-giver acted as sponsor for a young Englishman, Mr. Algernon Ashton, who made his début in the double capacity of composer and pianist. Mr. Ashton, who is, we believe, a native of Durham, was once a chorister in the cathedral there, but at the early age of seven years removed with his family to Leipzig, where he received his education. Although English by birth, Mr. Ashton is, therefore, German by training, and, as all must acknowledge who hear his music, by sympathies as well. It is said that he has received lessons from Raff. We know not if this be so, but it is certain that Raff exercises a marked influence upon his style and method. As at present advised we regard the fact in the light of an evil. Raff has his happy moments, and has composed things that will live, but his laboured manner and his intolerable diffuseness are dangerous habits for a young man to fall into. Mr. Ashton should be wise in time. Already his music strikes one as "manufactured," and the ideas it contains are often spun out to a wearisome length. The young composer, however, can do well when he tries to be concise—as, for example, in the Prelude and Finale of a Suite for two pianofortes, played at the second Concert. Each of these movements is charming, and as full of beauty and grace as of technical skill. Excellence is also noticeable in the opening Allegro of a Quartet in F sharp minor, and the first movement of a Sonata for pianoforte and violin. Upon the merits here displayed we rest our hopes of Mr. Ashton. His faults are mainly those of youth and hero-worship. Youth will pass, and, with perceptions sharpened by experience of the world, men often find their heroes made of materials quite as mixed as those composing the image seen by Belshazzar in his dream. Mr. Thorne was assisted by Mr. H. Holmes, Mr. Hann, Signor Pezze, Mr. Henry Smith, Mr. Herbert Thorne, Signora Scalzi, Fräulein von Hennig, Miss Madeline Ashton, and Signor Luigi Conti.

TUFNELL PARK CHORAL SOCIETY.

THIS rising Society had a gala night on the 2nd ult., when it emerged from comparative retirement in its practice-room to give a highly successful Concert at the Athenaeum, Camden Road. The hall of that institution was crowded, and the gathering could not be regarded as merely local. There were reasons why music lovers should come from a distance, as actually they did, to hear what was done—reasons of novelty and enterprise creditable to the Society and honourable to its talented Conductor, Mr. W. H. Thomas. In point of fact, the occasion was marked by the first performance in England of Hofmann's Cantata, "Cinderella," which work, though taken up by a society in Scotland, has heretofore vainly waited for recognition south of the Tweed. Unless we are unaccountably mistaken, more will be heard of "Cinderella" by-and-by; and when its popularity comes about, let none forget that the claims of the work were first allowed by a body of amateurs meeting within hail of the classic "northern heights" of London.

We may here waive a technical review of "Cinderella," especially as that task will soon be attempted on a more conspicuous page of THE MUSICAL TIMES. But this is the place for a few general remarks suggested by the performance in Camden Road. First of all, as to the libretto. It has been complained that the nursery story here suffers a change. Of course it does. Even the most poetical of nursery stories contains trivial or ludicrous elements. It has, in fact, two sides, the poetic and the childishly prosaic or grotesque. The second belongs to the pantomime writer; the first to the musician when he addresses a higher audience than is found in child-land. Hence the librettist of "Cinderella" very properly got rid of the undignified features in the original. The hateful sisters are not in his book; the fairy does not come in the guise of an old woman; we see nothing of mice-horses and pumpkin-carriages; nor do the Prince's messengers run about trying a glass slipper on ladies' feet. The level of the story is raised above all this, yet without disarranging the sequence of main events, and with the result of affording the composer ample occasion for the exercise of a poetic and refined fancy. Hofmann cannot be accused of having neglected his opportunity. It is true that he draws heavily upon the resources of his interpreters, but the end justifies the means. Especially should attention be directed to the fine contrast between the music of the fairies and that of the mortals. In the former case Hofmann puts no limit on his fancy. All is changeful and erratic, yet full of grace and esprit. In the second instance the music assumes a homelier, more regular and measured form, and the alternation from one style to the other is one of the best features of the work. From this, amongst other things, arises the sustained interest of "Cinderella." As tested in Camden Road, the Cantata keeps its hold on the attention from beginning to end. The performance, all things considered, was very good, and represented a high average of ability as well as much patient labour. It might have been expected that professional artists like Miss Margaret Hoare (Cinderella), and Mr. James Sauvage (The King) would do justice to their respective parts, as, indeed, was the case in an eminent degree. But there were amateurs in positions scarcely less conspicuous, and members of the Society to boot. Miss Philips, for example, took the part of the Fairy Queen to the admiration of all; while Mr. Grylls rendered capital service in the subordinate male voice solos. The place of an orchestra was filled by a pianoforte (Mr. Frank Thomas), and two harmoniums (Miss Lawrence and Mr. F. Partidge). Of course the best combination of such instruments could only be a poor substitute, but the playing in this case was so excellent that pure satisfaction resulted. Mr. Frank Thomas may especially be congratulated upon the skill with which he discharged an arduous task, while the conducting of Mr. W. H. Thomas, always decisive, clear, and alert, explained a good deal of the conspicuous merit of the performance generally.

The Cantata was followed by the first part of Haydn's "Creation," the tenor solos in which were sung by Mr. A. Smith, those for bass having the advantage of Mr. Lewis Thomas's noble voice and appropriate delivery.

FESTIVAL OF THE LAY-HELPERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE annual gathering of the Association of Lay-Helpers for the Diocese of London took place in St. Paul's Cathedral on Monday, the 20th ult. Since last year's Festival, a change has been made in the important post of Conductor, Mr. W. S. Hoyte having resigned the office after a tenure of many years, and having been succeeded therein by Mr. George C. Martin, sub-organist of St. Paul's Cathedral, to whom, we believe, is due the credit of having strengthened the choir by the introduction of the two cornets and two trombones which rendered valuable service on the present occasion. There was no processional hymn to usher in the service, but before its commencement three charming slow movements by Spohr and Beethoven were played by Dr. Stainer, who presided at the organ throughout the service. A new chant, from the pen of the Conductor, was employed for the Psalm (the 104th), and the Canticles were taken to Dr. Stainer's Irregular-Chant setting, composed some five years since for a Sion College Festival. In the Anthem, the first two and the last movements of Schubert's "Song of Miriam," the Association aimed higher than we fancy they have hitherto done, and we are happy, therefore, to be able to congratulate them on a success from a musical point of view. The choruses were well and steadily sung throughout, but it must be added that the choir received the valuable assistance of the thirty chorister-boys of the Cathedral, one of whom sustained the solo, which, as our readers may be aware, is somewhat exacting. In all, the choir numbered about 200 voices, of which about 120 were men: the wind instruments, to which we have already referred, were from the band of the Grenadier Guards. The congregation was fairly good, but could scarcely be called large.

EDINBURGH ORCHESTRAL FESTIVAL.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

GENERAL REID, founder of the Chair of Music in Edinburgh University, and of an Annual Concert to be given for ever on the anniversary of his birth, February 13, can scarcely have realised the amount of good which would be done to the cause of music in Scotland by his bequest. Referring now to the concert only, which was for many years mismanaged and inadequate, "a by-word and a bear-garden," as may be seen from Mr. Grove's interesting article on "Reid Concerts," in his "Dictionary of Music," the occasion has been utilised by Sir Herbert Oakeley, the present "Reid" Professor, by its extension into a three days' "festival," at which Mr. Hallé's fine orchestra is generally engaged, with Madame Norman-Néruda as solo violinist, and on this occasion with two of our rising native artists as vocalists, and with a programme which will bear favourable comparison with any selection at musical festivals at home or abroad. As there is now a sort of offshoot or echo of the Edinburgh Festival at Dundee and at Glasgow, to which towns Hallé's band generally pays visits after the Edinburgh engagement, promulgation of orchestral music is not confined to the capital only, and masterpieces by the greatest composers may now also be heard at those important cities at least once a year, performed by a band continually accustomed to the same conductor, and sufficiently complete to do justice to the great works attempted. And these annual festivals, which have now been held for some dozen consecutive years, have so far whetted musical appetite in Scotland, wherein fasts are more frequent than festivals, as to have there given great impetus to appreciation of orchestral music, a fact which is this year plainly evidenced by the increased support to the series of concerts given under the auspices of the Glasgow and Edinburgh Choral Unions, under the consummate direction of Mr. A. Manns, whose ability and energy have, we understand, this winter secured unprecedented success in both cities. These satisfactory results of General Reid's bequest, which results, as we have said, that great benefactor to Edinburgh University can hardly have anticipated, cannot too often or too warmly be acknowledged and commemorated.

The Scotch accounts of this year's Reid Festival record a success from every point of view not less than that to which the Edinburgh public have been for the last twelve years accustomed; and the event is justly looked upon as the most important, from a musical point of view, in North Britain. The great demand on our space prevents a detailed notice, but we may briefly record that the symphonies were Haydn's in D (No. 5), Beethoven's "Pastoral," and Raff's "Im Walde" (No. 3); the overtures, "Lodoiska," "Leonora," "Oberon," "Gazza Ladra," "Pré aux Clercs," "Hebrides," and "Genoveva." The pianoforte concertos were Mozart's little-known Op. 415, in C, and Mendelssohn's ever-fresh No. 1, and the violin concertos Beethoven's and a new work, the last by the late H. Vieuxtemps, expressly composed for Madame Norman-Néruda, who scored an extraordinary success in it both at Edinburgh and at Manchester, the only places where it had been heard. Shorter orchestral specimens of the modern school were given by Wagner, Délibes, and Dvorák, and also a selection from Berlioz' "Faust." The vocalists, Miss Mary Davies and Mr. Frederic King, seem to have won golden opinions at Edinburgh. Their selections were by Handel, Weber, Schubert, Meyerbeer, Verdi, Raff, Franz, Rubinstein, Gounod, and Sterndale Bennett. The soprano was received with much enthusiasm in all she sang, and Mr. Frederic King proved himself, as he has done elsewhere, to be our most promising English baritone. At the Reid Concert he introduced two songs, "Home they brought her warrior dead" and "Break, break," by the Reid Professor, "who," says a local journal, "has given Tennyson's words settings that fascinate by their melody and faithful reflection of the life of the poetry." The same paper remarks, in its concluding notice:—

The fine judgment of Mr. Hallé and of our Professor in the selection of works, and the admirable nature of the arrangements for their performance in a worthy style, have taught lovers of music to regard this concert as the crown of the musical season. And the richness of the fare presented was paralleled by its prodigal abundance. It evidence were needed of the high musical importance and artistic completeness of the Reid Concerts, it might be found in the fact that a programme which in other circumstances might be deemed of portentous length was heard to the last number with unabated interest. Sir Herbert Oakeley has to be congratulated on the result of this forty-second commemoration concert. In the presentation of sound music solidly rendered it in no way yields to the many preceding concerts which his foresight and musicianly instincts have rendered memorable.

The music hall was decorated with hothouse shrubs and palms, and busts of composers, and the members of the band were laureated with button-hole bouquets, the whole scene looking as gay and brilliant as usual on these festive occasions.

MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BEETHOVEN'S Symphony No. 1 in C, interesting both from its inherent beauty and as containing foreshadowings of the greater works which followed it; Brahms's clever "Tragic" Overture in D minor; and the Overtures to "Alphonso ed Estrella," by Schubert, and "Marco Spada," by Auber, formed the orchestral portion of the programme of Mr. Hallé's Concert on the 2nd ult. Madame Norman-Néruda gave the first performance of a Concerto in G minor, composed expressly for her by Vieuxtemps. It contains four movements of considerable length—an Allegro the themes of which are well contrasted and developed; an Andante in the pastorale style, exceedingly melodious, but somewhat less definite than its predecessor; an Intermezzo, Siciliano, the finest movement in the work, in which a charming and original effect is gained by contrasting rhythms, the solo part being in 12-8 and the accompaniment in common time; and a Finale in the rondo form, which is, however, distinctly inferior, both in subject and treatment to the other movements. The solo part and outlines only of the instrumental portion were all that the composer had completed at the time of his death. A pupil has, however, finished the score, which contains much felicitous instrumentation. Madame Néruda's other solo was Beethoven's Romanza in F. The vocalist, Mlle. Avigliana, sang Elizabeth's Prayer from "Tannhäuser," "Com'è bello," from "Lucrezia Borgia," and Sullivan's "My dearest heart." Her voice is of considerable power and fair quality in the upper portion, but her phrasing is indifferent and her intonation singularly inaccurate.—On the 9th ult. Lachner's Suite in E minor, Op. 113, occupied the place of a symphony. Madame Néruda, who was again the violinist, played in unsurpassable style Beethoven's Concerto in D, introducing cadenzas by Vieuxtemps and Joachim, a somewhat lugubrious Ballad in G minor by Franz Néruda, Paganini's "Le Mouvement Perpétuel" in C, and, with Mr. Hallé, Dussek's Andante and Rondo in B flat. Madame Fasset displayed a fine voice and good style in "Awake, Saturnia," from "Semele" (Handel), "Toglietemi la vita ancor" (Scarlatti), and "Ritornerai fra poco" (Hasse).—The "Elijah" was given on the 16th ult., with Miss Anna Williams, Madame Patey, Mr. Maas, and Mr. Santley as principal vocalists. The performance was good, though not in some respects the best we have heard.

At the Gentlemen's Concert on January 30, the programme included Mozart's Symphony in G minor, Liszt's Poème Symphonique "Les Preludes," F. Lachner's Gavotte from the Suite in C, and Overtures to "Il Barbiere" and "Abu Hassan." M. Brossa played a concerto for the flute by H. Altes, displaying good tone and technical ability of a high order, and Madame Patey and Mr. F. King contributed several songs. The former gave, with her usual success, "Far from my love" (Sarti), Haydn's "Spirit Song," and Anderton's "Come to me, O my children." The latter sang "Di possente" from "Faust," and Benedict's "Rage, thou angry storm."

At Mr. De Jong's Concerts, both on January 28 and the 11th ult., disagreeable scenes occurred in consequence of certain vocalists having omitted to attend rehearsal. On the earlier date Signor Vizzani was the offender, on the latter Madame Sinico and Signor Campobello were the culprits. The last-named gentleman declined to sing with orchestral accompaniment, on the grounds that he had not rehearsed, and, on Mr. De Jong proposing to omit the song, Signor Campobello left the hall with his party, which consisted of Madame Sinico, Mdle. Verdi, and Signor Tecchi, without completing his engagement. The Concert however, proceeded, Mr. Barton McGuckin singing an additional song, and Herr Volkmar and Mr. De Jong playing a pianoforte and flute solo respectively. In addition to the vocalists already mentioned, Madame Trebelli, Miss Clara Samuëll, and Signor Ghilberti also appeared at the earlier Concert and sang with their usual success. Amongst the instrumental works given we may mention the Overtures to "Les Deux Journées," "Poet and Peasant," by Suppé, "Masaniello," and "Guillaume Tell," Gounod's Entr'acte from "La Colombe," "The Forge in the Forest," by Michaelis, and Rossini's "Chinese Polka."

The Vocal Society's programme on the 8th ult. included Mendelssohn's Motett for female voices, "Laudate pueri Dominum," and sundry glees, part-songs, &c., all of which were well rendered.

Miss Amina Goodwin gave her second classical Chamber Concert on the 17th ult., and again displayed the possession of exceptional powers and evidences of careful training. Her solos were the first movement from the Italian Concerto by J. S. Bach, and Chopin's "Allegro Maestoso," Op. 46. She also took part in trios by Beethoven and Schumann, and Chopin's "Polonaise Brillante," Op. 3, for piano and violoncello. She was ably supported by Herr Bauerkeller (violin) and M. Vieuxtemps (violoncello). The former played his own very charming Ballade in G minor, and the latter gave two movements from Boccherini's Sonata in A.

MUSIC IN YORKSHIRE.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

At Bradford the most important musical events of the month have been the fourth and fifth subscription Concerts of the seventeenth annual series. The fourth Concert was given in St. George's Hall on January 20, when an excellent programme (chiefly instrumental) was provided. Mr. Charles Hallé's band played two overtures, Beethoven's "Coriolan" and Rossini's "Guillaume Tell," as well as two sets of Dvorák's characteristic "Sklavische Tänze." The event of the evening was, however, the excellent rendering of Raff's fine Symphony in F ("Im Walde"), each movement being played with the utmost precision and taste, and the whole enthusiastically received. Mr. Hallé gave, with more than his usual success, Mendelssohn's Concerto in G minor; as a solo he contributed three short pieces of Heller's, "Dans les Bois," "Promenades d'un Solitaire," and "Nuits Blanches." The vocalist was Madame Antoinette Sterling.—The fifth Concert was given on the 17th ult., the programme consisting chiefly of ballad music. The artists were Miss de Fonblanque, Madame Patey, Mr. Frank Boyle, Signor Foli, Mr. Carrodus, and Madame Frickenhaus.

Madame Trebelli gave a "Grand Operatic Concert" in St. George's Hall on the 8th ult. The audience was disappointingly small, and the performance robbed of much of its interest owing to Madame Trebelli herself being unable to sing. Miss Clara Samuëll showed herself to be the possessor of a pleasing voice of good compass. Signor Vizzani's songs were highly appreciated, his best effort being Donizetti's "Spirto gentil." Signor Ghilberti made a good impression by his vigorous rendering of all his solos; but the other "vocalist," Herr Dichtburn, was apparently intended to amuse, having no claim whatever to be considered a singer. The instrumental items in the programme were supplied by Mdle. Heape and M. Musin as violinists, the former of whom is as yet much too young to appear in public—the latter carried the audience by storm with his sensational performances; by Signor Bisaccia, who gave a very fine rendering of Liszt's "Rapsodie Hongroise"; and, lastly, by Mr. John Thomas, whose beautiful harp-playing earned him an encore for every one of his solos.

On January 31 the Manningham Vocal Union gave a performance, in the Bradford Church Institute, of Barnett's Leeds Cantata, "The Building of the Ship," its first appearance in Bradford. The Society was assisted by Miss Norton, a local soprano of some promise; and the work was admirably rendered, considering the numbers of band and chorus.

At Huddersfield, which has suddenly risen into prominence as a musical town since its Festival of October last, a repetition performance of Berlioz' "Faust" was given on January 27, by the original principals, chorus, and band. Miss Mary Davies again delighted the audience by her efficient impersonation of Marguerite; Mr. Edward Lloyd's Faust was equally successful; Mr. Santley likewise excelled in the difficult part of Mephistopheles, and Mr. Bartin was quite satisfactory as Brander. The intonation of the chorus was again remarkable, and the band, under Mr. Charles Hallé, executed their share of the work in a most praiseworthy manner. The performance was, therefore, an excellent one, and quite worthy of the large audience which filled the Town Hall, great credit being due to Mr. Marshall, who had been intrusted with the training of the chorus.

On the 17th ult. the Huddersfield Choral Society performed "Judas Macabæus," the principal vocalists being Miss Annie Marriott, Miss Damian, Mr. Redfern Hollins, and Mr. Hilton. The Concert was a fairly good one, although the lady principals were both suffering from colds. The chorus acquitted itself well under Mr. Marshall as Conductor.

At Leeds the Philharmonic Society gave an excellent Concert on the 16th ult. We are glad to notice that this Society is being appreciated at last. For eleven seasons it has given concerts at which the choice of music and ability in performance have been alike praiseworthy; nevertheless, the people of Leeds have not supported it as they should until the present season, when the subscription list has been almost full. At the Concert under notice part-songs and chamber music formed the greater part of the programme; we should have liked more of the former, for those which were given received an excellent rendering: Leslie's "Golden Year" and Eaton Faning's "Song of the Vikings" being splendidly sung by the chorus, whose tone and expression were remarkable. The instrumental music was provided by Messrs. James and Alfred Broughton as pianists, who played in the best style, among other pieces, Saint-Saëns's "Danse Macabre" for two pianos; and by a string quartet—Herr Holländer, and Messrs. E. H. Hann, W. H. Hann, and Charles Ould—who pleased the audience exceedingly by the manner in which they performed Haydn's Quartet in D, the first violin part in the second movement—the Andante—being rendered by Herr Holländer to perfection.

A FOUR-PART SONG.

Words by F. S. PARRY.

Composed by W. A. C. CRICKSHANK.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 &amp; 81, Queen Street (E.C.)

Allegro moderato.

SOPRANO. mf

O Sum - mer wind that far - est south, Speed on by brake and

ALTO. mf

O Sum - mer wind that far - est south, Speed on by brake and

TENOR. mf

O Sum - mer wind that far - est south, Speed on by brake and

BASS. mf

O Sum - mer wind that far - est south, Speed on by brake and

PIANO.* mf

$\text{♩} = 100.$

cres.

bil - low, Bear hence a kiss to my love's mouth, And breathe up - on her

cres.

bil - low, Bear hence a kiss to my love's mouth, And breathe up - on . . .

cres.

bil - low, Bear hence a kiss to my love's mouth, And breathe up - on her

cres.

bil - low, Bear hence a kiss to my love's mouth, And breathe up - on her

cres.

* For Practice only.

mf

pil - low. Hide in the maz - es of her hair, Where - on the sun - light

mf

her pil - low. Hide in the maz - es of her hair, Where - on the sun - light

mf

pil - low. Hide in the maz - es of her hair, Where - on the sun - light

mf

pil - low. Hide in the maz - es of her hair, Where - on the sun - light

poco rall. e dim.

flash - es, Play gent - ly o'er her fore - head fair, And lift her dream - ing lash - es.

poco rall. e dim.

flash - es, Play gent - ly o'er her fore - head fair, And lift her dream - ing lash - es.

poco rall. e dim.

flash - es, Play gent - ly o'er her fore - head fair And lift her dream - ing lash - es.

poco rall. e dim.

flash - es, Play gent - ly o'er her fore - head fair, And lift her dream - ing lash - es.

a tempo.

mf

The lil - ies wake a - cross the lake, The eyes of morn are peep - ing; O

a tempo.

mf

The lil - ies wake a - cross the lake, The eyes of morn are peep - ing; O

a tempo.

mf

The lil - ies wake a - cross the lake, The eyes of morn are peep - ing; O

a tempo.

mf

The lil - ies wake a - cross the lake, The eyes of morn are peep - ing; O

a tempo.

mf

The lil - ies wake a - cross the lake, The eyes of morn are peep - ing; O

The musical score is written for a four-part vocal ensemble (Soprano, Alto, Tenor, Bass) and piano accompaniment. It is in 3/4 time and the key of D minor. The score is divided into two systems. The first system contains the first two verses of the song, and the second system contains the third and fourth verses. The lyrics are: "Sum - mer wind, a - wake, a - wake, The while my love lies sleep - - ing, O kiss her once and kiss her twice, And bear this greet - ing du - ly; Un - til my heart be lapt in ice, I'll love her tru - ly, tru - ly." The score includes dynamic markings such as cres., p, mf, and rall. e dim.. The piano accompaniment features a steady eighth-note pattern in the right hand and a more complex, syncopated pattern in the left hand. The vocal parts are arranged in a harmonized four-part setting, with the Soprano part having the highest melody and the Bass part having the lowest.

cres. p
Sum - mer wind, a - wake, a - wake, The while my love lies sleep - - ing, O

cres. p
Sum - mer wind, a - wake, a - wake, The while my love . . . lies sleep - ing, O

cres. p
Sum - mer wind, a - wake, a - wake, The while my love lies sleep - - ing, O

cres. p
Sum - mer wind, a - wake, a - wake, The while my love lies sleep - - ing, O

cres. p
Sum - mer wind, a - wake, a - wake, The while my love lies sleep - - ing, O

mf
kiss her once and kiss her twice, And bear this greet - ing du - ly; Un -

mf
kiss her once and kiss her twice, And bear this greet - ing du - ly; Un -

mf
kiss her once and kiss her twice, And bear this greet - ing du - ly; Un -

mf
kiss her once and kiss her twice, And bear this greet - ing du - ly; Un -

mf
kiss her once and kiss her twice, And bear this greet - ing du - ly; Un -

rall. e dim.
- til my heart be lapt in ice, I'll love her tru - ly, tru - ly.

rall. e dim.
- til my heart be lapt in ice, I'll love her tru - ly, tru - ly.

rall. e dim.
- til my heart be lapt in ice I'll love her tru - ly, tru - ly.

rall. e dim.
- til my heart be lapt in ice, I'll love her tru - ly, tru - ly.

rall. e dim.
- til my heart be lapt in ice, I'll love her tru - ly, tru - ly.

A FOUR-PART SONG.

Words by THOMAS MOORE

Composed by W. A. C. CRICKSHANK.

Andante.

SOPRANO.

ALTO.

TENOR.

BASS.

PIANO.*

♩ = 80.

How dear to me the hour when day-light dies, .. And sun - beams

How dear to me the hour when day-light dies, .. And sun - beams

How dear to me the hour when day - light dies, .. And sun - beams

How dear to me the hour when day-light dies, And sun - beams

melt a - long the si - lent sea, For then sweet dreams of o - ther days a - melt a - long the si - lent sea, For then sweet dreams of o - ther days a - melt a - long the si - lent sea, For then sweet dreams of o - ther days a - melt a - long the si - lent sea, For then sweet dreams of o - ther days a -

- rise, .. And mem-'ry breathes her ves - per sigh to .. thee. ..

- rise, .. And mem-'ry breathes her ves - per sigh to thee. ..

- rise, .. And mem-'ry breathes her ves - per sigh to .. thee. ..

- rise, .. And mem - 'ry breathes her ves - per sigh to thee.

* For Practice only.

mf And as I watch the line of light that plays . . A - long the mf And as I watch the line of light that plays . . A - long the mf And as I watch the line of light that plays . . A - long the

mf And as I watch the line of light that plays A - long the

A musical score for a song titled "The Burn - ing West". The score is written on five staves. The first four staves are vocal parts (Soprano, Alto, Tenor, Bass) and the fifth staff is the piano accompaniment. The lyrics are: "smooth wave to the burn - ing west, I long to tread that gold - en path of". The music features various musical notations including treble and bass clefs, time signatures, notes, rests, and dynamic markings such as "cres.". The piano part includes chords and arpeggiated figures. The overall style is characteristic of early 20th-century sheet music.

dim. al fine. rall.

rays, And think 'twould lead to some bright isle of rest.

dim. al fine. rall.

rays, And think 'twould lead to some bright isle of rest.

dim. al fine. rall.

rays, . . . And think 'twould lead to some bright isle of rest.

dim. al fine. rall.

rays, And think 'twould lead to some bright isle of rest.

dim. al fine. rall.

(5)

JUST PUBLISHED.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S PIANOFORTE ALBUMS

EDITED BY BERTHOLD TOURS

PRICE ONE SHILLING EACH.

Nos. 7, 8 AND 9, IN ONE VOLUME, CLOTH, 4s.

No. 7.—MARCHES.

1. Hero's March (Op. 22) ... ..	Mendelssohn.
2. Marche Militaire (Op. 51) ... ..	Schubert.
3. Festival March, from the Opera "Aenn- chen von Tharau" ... ..	H. Hofmann.
4. Marche Solennelle ... ..	Ch. Gounod.
5. Bridal March, from "Lohengrin" ... ..	R. Wagner.
6. Gipsy March, from "Preciosa" ... ..	Weber.
7. March (Op. 13) ... ..	A. Zimmermann.
8. March, from "Le Nozze di Figaro" ... ..	Mozart.
9. March, from "Fidelio" ... ..	Beethoven.
10. Rakoczy March.
11. Funeral March ("Lied ohne Worte," No. 27) ... ..	Mendelssohn.
12. March, from "St. Polycarp" ... ..	Rev. Sir Fred. Ouseley.
13. Dead March, from "Saul" ... ..	Handel.
14. The Watch on the Rhine.
15. The British Grenadiers.

No. 8.—MARCHES.

16. Coronation March, from "Le Prophète" ... ..	Meyerbeer.
17. March, from "Idomeneo" ... ..	Mozart.
18. "Cornelius" March ... ..	Mendelssohn.
19. Turkish March ("Ruins of Athens") ... ..	Beethoven.
20. Processional March ("Onward, Christian soldiers") ... ..	A. Sullivan.
21. Marche Cosaque ... ..	H. Hofmann.
22. March (Posthumous Work) ... ..	Schubert.
23. March, from the "Occasional Oratorio" ... ..	Handel.
24. Marche Funèbre, from Sonata I., Op. 35 ... ..	Chopin.
25. Triumphal March, from "King Stephen" ... ..	Beethoven.
26. Pilgrims' March (Fourth Symphony) ... ..	Mendelssohn.
27. March of the Men of Harlech.
28. Festal March ... ..	J. B. Calkin.
29. Birthday March ... ..	R. Schumann.
30. La Marseillaise.

No. 9.—MARCHES.

31. Funeral March (Op. 103) ... ..	Mendelssohn.
32. March, from "Egmont" ... ..	Beethoven.
33. March, from "Iphigenia in Aulis" ... ..	Gluck.
34. March, from "Abraham" ... ..	B. Molique.
35. March, from "Tannhäuser" ... ..	R. Wagner.
36. March, from "Die Zauberflöte" ... ..	Mozart.
37. Bride's March, from "Rebekah" ... ..	J. Barnby.
38. March, from Op. 3 ... ..	H. Hofmann.
39. March, from "Scipio" ... ..	Handel.
40. Marcia Funèbre, from Sonata, Op. 26 ... ..	Beethoven
41. Wedding March, from "Midsummer Night's Dream" ... ..	Mendelssohn.
42. March, from "Titus" ... ..	Mozart.
43. Alexander March ... ..	Beethoven.
44. Persian March ... ..	Strauss.
45. (a) Dessauer March (b) Hohenfriedberger March.

For Contents of Nos. 1 to 6, see p. 176.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S ORIGINAL OCTAVO EDITION.

THE CHORUSES OF THE ORATORIOS, CANTATAS, &c.

IN VOCAL SCORE,
ESPECIALLY FOR THE USE OF
CHORAL SOCIETIES.

BACH'S PASSION (ST. MATTHEW) ... ..	s. d.	1 0
BEETHOVEN'S MOUNT OF OLIVES... ..	0 6
BENNETT'S MAY QUEEN ... ..	1 0
GRAUN'S PASSION ... ..	1 0
HANDEL'S MESSIAH ... ..	0 8
" JUDAS MACCABÆUS ... ..	0 8
" SAMSON ... ..	0 8
" HERCULES ... ..	1 0
" SOLOMON ... ..	1 6
" L'ALLEGRO ... ..	1 0
HAYDN'S CREATION ... ..	0 8
MACFARREN'S MAY DAY... ..	0 8
MENDELSSOHN'S ELIJAH ... ..	1 6
" ST. PAUL ... ..	1 0
" HYMN OF PRAISE ... ..	0 6
ROSSINI'S STABAT MATER ... ..	0 6
SPOHR'S LAST JUDGMENT ... ..	0 6

(To be continued.)

All the above works may be had in paper boards, price 6d. each extra.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

ORATORIOS, CANTATAS, &amp;c.,

RECENTLY PUBLISHED BY

NOVELLO, EWER &amp; CO.

St. John the Evangelist ... ..	P. Armes	s. d.	2 6
Missa Brevis (in A) ... ..	J. S. Bach	1 6
Second Mass (D minor) ... ..	Cherubini	2 0
Fourth Mass (in C) ... ..	Cherubini	1 0
Seventh Mass ... ..	Mozart	1 0
Te Deum ... ..	W. G. Cusins	1 6
Salvator Mundi ... ..	A. E. Dyer	2 6
Christmas Eve ... ..	Niels W. Gade	1 0
The Shunammite ... ..	G. Garrett	3 0
By the Waters of Babylon ... ..	H. Goetz	1 0
Out of Darkness ... ..	G. Henschel	2 6
The First Christmas Morn ... ..	H. Leslie	2 6
Dixit Dominus ... ..	L. Leo	1 6
Missa Papæ Marcelli ... ..	Palestrina	2 0
Te Deum and Jubilate (in D) ... ..	H. Purcell	1 6
Mass (in C) ... ..	E. Silas	1 0
Boadicea ... ..	J. F. Bridge	2 6
The Lord of the Isles ... ..	H. Gadsby	4 0
Columbus (Male Voices) ... ..	H. Gadsby	2 6
Noënia ... ..	H. Goetz	1 0
Acis and Galatea. Edited by J. Barnby ... ..	Handel	1 0
Eric the Dane ... ..	E. Hecht	3 0
Melusina ... ..	H. Hofmann	2 0
Cinderella ... ..	H. Hofmann	4 0
The Bride ... ..	A. C. Mackenzie	1 6
The Year ... ..	W. Jackson	2 0
Prometheus Unbound ... ..	C. H. H. Parry	3 0
Hereward ... ..	E. Prout	4 0
The Transient and the Eternal ... ..	A. Romberg	1 0
Mignon's Requiem ... ..	Schumann	1 0
Ode to the North-East Wind ... ..	A. M. Smith	1 0
The Sun-Worshippers ... ..	A. Goring Thomas	1 6

Complete Lists of Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Original Octavo Edition of Masses, Oratorios, Cantatas, &amp;c., may be had on application.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOW READY.

SCHUBERT'S SONGS

VOLUME I.

TWENTY SONGS

FOR A

MEZZO-SOPRANO VOICE

The English Version by NATALIA MACFARREN.

PRICE ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE.

CONTENTS.

Praise of Tears.	Huntsman, rest. (Ellen's second song in "The Lady of the Lake.")
Knowest thou the land? (Mignon's first song in "Wilhelm Meister.")	Thro' the pine-wood.
The Message of Flowers.	The summer waves.
Nought may'st thou ask me. (Mignon's second song in "Wilhelm Meister.")	Wanderer's Night-song.
Oh, let me dream till I awaken. (Mignon's third song in "Wilhelm Meister.")	Trust in Spring.
The greenwood calls. (Slumber Song.)	The Maiden's Lament.
The full-orbed moon. (Romance from "Rosamunde.")	To Mignon.
Hallow'd night, descend.	The Passing-Bell.
	Alinda.
	Ave Maria. (Ellen's third song in "The Lady of the Lake.")
	The Fisherman.
	On the water.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SIX FOUR-PART SONGS

FOR MEN'S VOICES

BY

HEINRICH HOFMANN.

(Novello's "Orpheus," No. 169 to 174).

169. Roaming ... ..	2d.
170. Sir Cuckoo ... ..	4d.
171. Glorious May ... ..	3d.
172. In Spring-time ... ..	3d.
173. Our Maxim ... ..	3d.
174. In dulci júbilo ... ..	4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Raff's grand Quintet in A minor, by the same executants, with Mr. Alfred Broughton's assistance at the piano, came too late in the programme, and though well interpreted, fell rather flat in consequence. Bach's Concerto in C for three pianos and quartet accompaniment was also an attractive feature of the Concert. The chief honours of the evening were, however, carried off by Herr Holländer, who excelled himself in his only solo, giving Chopin's Nocturne in E flat and a Spanish dance of Sarasate's with the utmost ability. The vocalist was Mdle. Giulia Velmi, who won golden opinions, her most successful effort being Gounod's "Jewel Song" ("Faust"). Mr. James Broughton, the Leeds Festival chorus-master, was the Conductor.

On the 1st ult. an excellent chamber Concert was given in the Philosophical Hall, the executants being Herr Peiniger (violin), Mr. Albert (violoncello), and Mr. Charles Wilkinson (piano), and the vocalist, Miss Arthur. Schubert's Trio in B flat was very well performed, as was Bach's Organ Fugue in G minor by Mr. Wilkinson.

The Leeds Police Band Concert, on the 4th ult., in the Town Hall, was remarkable for the appearance of Madame Marie Roze-Mapleson, who had an enthusiastic reception, and was recalled after each of her songs.

A Masonic Concert, on the 15th ult., in the Leeds Town Hall, deserves notice for the excellence of the music chosen and the manner of performance. Miss Arthur and Bro. Welsh (principal tenor of Durham Cathedral) were the most successful vocalists, and Dr. Spark, on the organ, and the fine band of the 5th Dragoon Guards (now stationed in Leeds) contributed admirable selections of instrumental music.

MUSIC IN LEIPZIG.

Leipzig, February 18.

THE new year opened at Leipzig with three Concerts of exceptional interest, since each was attended by a musician of the highest rank. First and greatest came Brahms, on January 5, with his new Pianoforte Concerto in B flat. Perhaps the peculiarities and the want of colour in the composer's playing hindered the work from producing the strong impression which its merits should have ensured; but in Leipzig Brahms has always to encounter a certain amount of party opposition, and this by itself might be sufficient to explain the faint applause manifested on this occasion. Clique is not the least conspicuous element of musical society here; and it is likely that the judgment of London, when the work is performed by the Philharmonic Society next month, will reverse the first verdict given upon it. Far different was the éclat excited by Rubinstein's fourth Symphony, produced under his direction a short time after; nor can it be denied that his triumph was well-deserved. Both of these new works were brought out by the orchestra of the Gewandhaus. The third of the performances to which I have referred was held in the same hall, but the programme consisted solely of works by Beethoven, and the orchestra was Dr. von Bülow's already famous Meiningen Capelle. I have not a word to criticise in the admirable study of Von Bülow's concerts at Berlin which appeared in the current number of THE MUSICAL TIMES, and gladly seize the opportunity of adding another voice to your correspondent's well-considered praise. It is hardly worth while to mention the trifling defect from which the concert here suffered, namely, the smallness of the room, for which, perhaps, Dr. von Bülow did not make enough allowance; nor could the occasional inability of the orchestra to follow their conductor's swift transitions of tempo seriously mar the effect. The Concert included the first and third symphonies, the third "Leonora" overture, and that to "King Stephen." Dr. von Bülow returns in March to give three more performances, devoted respectively to Beethoven, Mendelssohn and Schumann, and Brahms.

For some time after these performances people were mostly occupied in preparing for the entire series of the "Nibelungen Ring," which was presented at the Town Theatre in the first week of this month, and in recovering from the unwonted fatigues and late hours which this entailed. Certainly the trilogy was heard to advantage, for the theatre band is the same as that of the Gewandhaus, and some of the principal singers have been chosen to appear in London in the spring, in the same parts—and Wagner, it is hardly necessary to say, makes exceptional demands upon the voice and the memory of the performer. I cannot, however, help doubting whether the operas will have the same success in England which they have realised among non-professional musicians here. The English public, it seems to me, expects to have all the charm and melody of "Lohengrin," only in a higher degree of perfection; and I suspect that it will be a little disappointed at four operas entirely composed of recitative—if we except a couple of tertzes, and (so far as I remember) one solitary chorus in unison—not to say dismayed at the four or five hours or more, if we reckon the long intervals admitted between some of the acts, which each division occupies.

In the recent Concerts in the Gewandhaus there is less than usual to comment upon. On the 9th inst. a young harpist, Fräulein Mannsfeldt, appeared, and gave evidence of uncommon dexterity upon an instrument happily not often heard as a solo. Some severe criticism indeed was directed against the managers of the Concerts for admitting what affords so small an opening for artistic treatment and lends itself so naturally to mere brilliant trifling; and no doubt the pièces de salon which Fräulein Mannsfeldt played, not to speak of the Concert Allegro in which the orchestra took part, could scarcely be dignified by the name of serious music. The Concert, however, was redeemed—the Gewandhaus is never without its redeeming feature—by a masterly performance of Beethoven's Seventh Symphony. In this Herr Reinecke, always an earnest and sympathetic Conductor, surpassed himself: specially noteworthy in these times of excessive rapidity was the moderate pace at which the whole was taken, so that one could feel the infinite tenderness and delicacy of light and shade in the Allegretto; and one's breath was not taken away even by the headlong verve of the last movement. The last Concert, on the 16th, had its drawback in the unfortunate choice of a pianist, Herr Riesenauer, who proved himself incapable of coping with the technical difficulties of Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto in E flat. The same week, however, introduced to the audience of the Euterpe Concerts (on the 14th) a pianist of a very different stamp, in Frau Erdmannsdorfer-Fichtner, who holds a professional position in the courts of Saxe-Weimar and Hesse. She is a distinct acquisition to the ranks of pianists, possessing remarkable power (exceptionally developed in her left hand), a highly trained command of the instrument, and a delicate and sensitive touch. She played Rubinstein's fourth Concerto in D minor, besides Raff's delicious Menuet in G major, and other solo pieces. The Concert opened and concluded with novelties, in each case worthy of record. The first was a MS. "Overture Pastorale" in G, by a young composer, Emil Hartmann, who conducted the work himself. It is conceived on the classical "pastoral" model, and its melody, which is bright and extremely pleasing, is well sustained throughout. The overture certainly deserves a more distinct recognition than it received last Tuesday. The Symphony in D, by Anton Dvorák, which concluded the Concert, is an important addition to the composer's published works. Even on a single hearing, the resource and imagination, if not exactly originality, displayed in the variation of melody and phrase, impress themselves upon one vividly. At the same time it has the common fault of diffuseness; and as a whole it wants relief. The first two movements are the best, though the Adagio, full as it is of charming passages, suggests too continually the sublime Adagio of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony to allow one to judge it as an independent creation.

One Concert of a peculiar interest merits a word of notice before I end. It was given at St. Thomas's Church on Sunday, the 5th, by the well-known musical society of Professor Riedel. It contained, besides some new pieces of subsidiary importance, a "Spiritual Concerto" by Heinrich Schütz. Its date is given as 1639, and its subject is the dialogue of the Annunciation, for soprano (the Virgin) and alto (the Angel), ending with a chorus. The accompaniment is that of a string quartet. Other peculiarities of the performance were certain old German songs by Heinrich von Laufenberg (about 1500) and Johannes Eccard (about 1600), attractive equally for the fresh quaintness of their melody and the native simplicity of their words. It is to be hoped that the success which attended this Concert will encourage other productions of similar characteristic interest.

WE have received from the historic firm of Messrs. Breitkopf and Härtel a catalogue which may well stand as a monument of great and successful enterprise—one in its way unequalled the world over. It contains a detailed list of the collected works of Bach, Mozart, Beethoven, Chopin, Mendelssohn, Schumann, and Palestrina, of all which a complete edition has been published, or is in course of publication, by the great Leipzig house. We need not point out the value of the catalogue to musical bibliophiles, since it presents a full and carefully arranged index to the works of the masters, with the price of each number. The real interest of the matter lies, however, in the idea it conveys of the firm's activity. Bach's interminable compositions are still, after many years, coming from the press. The yet more astonishing productions of Mozart occupy, in the mere enumeration, nearly eleven closely printed pages. Of Beethoven's works there are 263 numbers; Chopin is issued in fourteen books; Mendelssohn's compositions take up 157 numbers; Schumann's fill 155; and the issue of "Palestrina" has reached its twenty-fourth volume. These figures are simply astonishing; and when it is remembered that the Breitkopf and Härtel editions are as authoritative as care and skill can make them, and are turned out of hand as though the firm had devoted all its energies to each particular master, no one can refuse a hope that so much enterprise may meet with due reward.

THE annual Report of the Birmingham Musical Association affords convincing proofs, not only of the energy and perseverance of this excellent Society, but of the growing taste for good music in a city which has earned so high a name for the earnest cultivation of the art. It is stated that the attendance at the Saturday Evening Concerts in the Town Hall was 61,506, being an average of 2,278 at each performance. The programmes of these concerts included some of the best works of the great masters, rendered in as complete a manner as the means at the disposal of the committee would allow. During the season 2,800 choraleists and 180 instrumentalists assisted at the concerts—the majority twice, and several three times. In addition to the Town Hall Concerts, the committee tried the experiment of a Penny Promenade Concert in Bingley Hall, when 6,257 persons paid for admission. The performance was a great success; but financially the result was not such as to warrant a repetition. Amongst the resolutions carried out by the committee, the formation of a musical library has much benefited the institution; and the orchestral committee of the General Hospital having placed the association on the list of Societies to which music may be lent when applied for, the privilege has been largely used during the past season. In every respect the Report is highly satisfactory; and we heartily congratulate the Society on the result of its indefatigable efforts in the good cause.

THE first performance of a new Cantata with historical readings, entitled "The Victories of Judah after the Captivity," took place at Brixton Hall on Tuesday, the 14th ult. The Concert was well attended, and the performance gave great satisfaction. The solo parts were taken by Madame Jarratt, Miss Annie Williams, Mr. S. F. Rook, and Mr. Simons. Mr. W. H. Bamford accompanied on the pianoforte, and Messrs. E. F. Rook and W. T. Essex on two harmoniums. One of the most successful pieces of the evening was the "March of the Jewish Warriors," with Chorus, which was redemanded. Mr. George Shinn, Mus. Bac. (composer of the work), conducted the performance.

BACH'S "St. Matthew Passion" will be given at St. Peter's, Eaton Square, on Wednesdays, the 22nd and 29th inst. and April 5, at 8 p.m. The tenor and bass solos will be sung by Messrs. Dalzell and Egbert Roberts, the soprano and alto parts being taken by choristers of the church. There will be organ accompaniment only, as before, by Mr. W. de M. Sergison. No tickets will be required for admission.

THE fifth series of the Denmark Hill Concerts was successfully inaugurated at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell, on Friday evening, the 17th ult., under the able management of Mr. Arthur Chappell, the well-known director of the Monday Popular Concerts. The opening work was Mozart's Quartet in F major, No. 8, admirably executed by Madame Norman-Néruda, MM. Ries, Zerbini, and Piatti. Beethoven's Sonata in C sharp minor (the "Moonlight") was finely played by Mr. Charles Hallé, who elicited the warmest manifestations of approbation. Madame Norman-Néruda, who occupied the post of leading violinist, was very successfully associated with the artist previously mentioned in Handel's Sonata in D major, and Schubert's Fantasia in C major, each for violin and pianoforte. The vocal music was contributed by Madame Osborne Williams, who sang "Star vicino" (Salvator Rosa), and "Thou art weary" (Sullivan). Mr. Zerbini accompanied, as usual. Among the artists announced for the forthcoming Concerts are Mdle. Marie Krebs, Miss Agnes Zimmermann, and Professor Joachim.

THE second of Messrs. Laistner, Mahr, and Leu's Trio Concerts took place on the 16th ult., at the Marlborough Rooms. Kirchner's Novelletten for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello were performed on this occasion for the first time in England. These clever little sketches are highly interesting from their refined form and noble themes, and the characteristic of this composer to write music of the highest standard in the smallest possible form appears in these little chamber pieces to great advantage. Beethoven's Trio in E flat, Op. 70, forming the other pièce de résistance of the evening, was played, as well as Kirchner's pieces, in a very efficient way, and with great refinement of style. Solos by Brahms, Sgambati, Spohr, Corelli, &c., and songs by Mozart and Schumann, excellently rendered by Miss Siedle, formed the rest of the programme. Specially worthy of note was Spohr's celebrated Adagio, played by Mr. Mahr with great artistic finish and faultless execution.

AT the first examination for the degree of Bachelor in Music, at the University of Oxford, the following satisfied the examiners: Robert B. Bateman, New College, and Aylesbury; Frank O. Carr, New College, and the Leys, Cambridge; Henry H. Freeman, unattached; Thomas H. Harvey, Exeter College. The examiners were Sir F. A. Gore Ouseley, Bart., M.A., Mus. D., Christ Church, Professor; C. W. Corfe, Mus. D., Christ Church, Choragus; E. G. Monk, Mus. D., Exeter College. The examination for the degree of Doctor in Music and second examination for the degree of Bachelor in Music will be held in October next. In addition to the usual subjects there will be required a critical knowledge of the full scores of Mozart's Symphony in E flat and Handel's "Jephtha." All exercises are to be sent to the Professor of Music, St. Michael's, Tenbury, as early as possible. None can be received after the end of June.

A CORRESPONDENT writes: "It is with great pleasure I communicate to you the immense success achieved in Dresden by a young American singer, Miss Agnes Huntington, who made her first appearance at a concert given there. From a Dresden paper I quote the following: 'Miss Huntington unites to a phenomenal contralto voice an irreproachable execution of technical difficulties. The débutante joins to her musical capabilities a most prepossessing appearance and a graceful, ladylike demeanour. She sang an Italian, a German, and an English song, each of which elicited storms of applause and was rewarded by numerous bouquets.' All those present at Miss Agnes Huntington's début predict for her a brilliant future career. I understand that a sister of hers is studying as a pianist, and have every hope that she will make an equally encouraging entry into artistic life."

AT the competition for the Lady Jenkinson Prize, at the Guildhall School of Music, Miss Mary Ann Gretton was the successful candidate, and Mr. W. J. Barton was specially commended. The Misses Meadows and Hailstone were highly commended, and the Misses Nettlefield, Watson, and Frame respectively commended for the ability displayed by them in the execution of the test work, i.e., Mozart's Pianoforte Concerto in D minor.

ON Monday, January 30, Mr. Charles E. Tinney gave his annual Concert at the Rink Concert Hall, Blackheath. The artists were Madame Worrell, Miss Constance Herring, Madame Florence Winn, Mr. Albert James, Mr. Arthur Thompson, Mr. H. Lindsey, Mr. De Lacy, Mr. A. Hubbard, and Mr. Arthur Oswald, with a chorus of male voices numbering 100. The first part of the Concert was devoted to Mendelssohn's "Antigone," which was conducted by Mr. Tinney. Mr. H. R. A. Robinson presided at the pianoforte. Mr. Charles Fry was the reader, and delivered the characteristic speeches of the several persons represented in a manner that fully sustained his reputation as an elocutionist. The second part was miscellaneous, and included some compositions by Mr. Tinney, amongst which were a part-song, "The night chimes," and a new song, "Lost in the wood," charmingly sung by Madame Worrell, and encored.

WE understand that a series of meetings will take place at Trinity College, London, for the reading and discussion of papers on musical subjects. The arrangements are in the hands of a Committee of Licentiates, of which Mr. E. J. Hopkins is Chairman, and Mr. Charles W. Pearce Honorary Secretary. The first paper, "On Sir John Lubbock's Bill for the Registration of Teachers, and its Bearing upon the Musical Profession," was read on the 14th ult. by the Rev. H. G. Bonavia Hunt, Warden of the College. Papers have been promised by Messrs. W. F. Austin, J. Conway Brown, Humphrey J. Stark, James Turpin, and Herr Emil Behnke.

WE have received the thirty-second annual Report of the Choir Benevolent Fund, by which it appears that the Society is steadily increasing its influence. A very satisfactory balance-sheet is presented, and an addition to the annual income of the Fund has been made in the purchase of some further property in ground-rents. It is gratifying to note, too, that the name of Sir George Elvey again appears on the Committee, and that Dr. Stainer, Dr. Bridge, Mr. W. A. Barrett, and other gentlemen of influence, have been elected on the Committee. The trusteeship, vacant by the death of Dean Stanley, has been accepted by Dr. Bradley, the new Dean of Westminster.

THE third annual Dinner of the South London Musical Club was held at the Freemasons' Tavern on Saturday, the 4th ult., Dr. Stainer being in the chair. After the usual toasts a very admirable selection of part-music was sung by a select number of members of the Club, who particularly distinguished themselves in Sullivan's part-song, "The long day closes"; a "Vocal Polka," by Kremser, a very bright and tuneful composition; and a most effective humorous piece by Genée, in imitation of an Italian operatic finale, entitled "An Italian Salad" (Italienischer Salat), consisting of a tenor solo and chorus, the solo being admirably sung by the honorary secretary, Mr. Richardson.

MR. J. GREENHILL'S Choir gave a successful performance of Cowen's "Rose Maiden" and a miscellaneous selection on the 9th ult., at the Tolmer's Square Institute. The vocalists were Madame Florence Grant, Miss Alice Cranz, Madame Evans-Warwick, Miss Minna Alderley, Mr. George Cox, Signor Salviani, Mr. Edwyn Frith, Mr. Prestridge Tabb, and Mr. J. Greenhill. A feature in the second part was Edwin Bending's Patriotic March, conducted by the composer. Miss Catchpole, at the harmonium, and Messrs. Bernhardt and Fred. Hawkins, at the piano, were the accompanists, and Mr. J. Greenhill conducted.

AT the College of Organists, on Wednesday, the 7th ult., Mr. W. A. Barrett, Mus. Bac., Oxon., delivered his highly interesting lecture on "Old English Ballads." He was assisted in his illustrations by Miss Constance Herring and Mr. Albert James. The songs, "The farmer's boy" and "Remember, love, remember," sung by Miss Herring, were especially admired and applauded.

THE choir of the Kyrle Society, under the direction of Mr. Malcolm Lawson, gave a performance of "The Messiah" on Wednesday, the 1st ult. The soloists were Miss Agnes Allen, Miss Alice Smith, Mrs. Tuer, Mr. J. H. Carter, Mr. Albert Orme, and Mr. Harben. Mr. E. H. Turpin presided at the organ.

MR. J. CALLCOTT (father of Mr. J. G. Callcott) died at Richmond on the 16th ult., aged eighty-one. The deceased entered the band of the Coldstream Guards at a very early age, and was one of those who had beat to arms in Brussels on the eve of Waterloo. On the occasion of the visit of British Volunteers to the same city some years since, he received a gold medal for the performance of his band (1st Surrey V.R.C.). Besides his military duties Mr. Callcott filled, for many years, the post of third horn in the orchestra of the old Opera, under Spagnoletti, Costa, and others.

MR. JULIAN EDWARDS'S annual Concert took place at the Athenæum, Shepherd's Bush, on the 8th ult. The principal feature of the programme was a selection from Mr. Edwards's Opera "Victorian, the Spanish Student," which was well received. The remainder of the Concert consisted of songs and instrumental solos, rendered by Miss Agnes Larkcom, Miss Kinnaird, Miss Fanny Edwards, and Messrs. Redfern Hollins, Gabriel Thorp, and James Sauvage (vocalists), Mdlle. Adelina Dinelli (violin), Mr. Giuseppe Dinelli (violoncello), and Mr. Frederick Cliffe (pianoforte).

ON Thursday, the 16th ult., a Concert of more than usual interest took place at the Royal Victoria Coffee Hall. By permission of Professor Macfarren the ladies and gentlemen of the Royal Academy of Music gave an "Evening with Mozart." The first part of the programme consisted of vocal and instrumental music, and the second of the first act of Mozart's comic Opera "Cosi fan Tutte," which was sung in costume, to English words. The attempt to introduce classical music in the Concerts of the Victoria Hall is a step in the right direction, and an experiment that should be encouraged.

THE second Concert of the Crouch End Choral Society took place at Christ Church Schoolroom on the 21st ult. The programme consisted of Mendelssohn's unfinished Opera "Loreley," Gade's "Spring's Message," and a miscellaneous selection. The solos were sustained chiefly by the members of the Society, who acquitted themselves in a very satisfactory manner. The solo in "Loreley" was carefully rendered by Mrs. Alfred Dye. Mr. Charles W. Lovejoy presided at the piano, and also took part in two pieces for eight hands at two pianos with Messrs. Dye, and A. and W. Miller. Mr. Alfred J. Dye conducted.

A SUCCESSFUL Concert was given at the Raleigh Memorial School, Stoke Newington, on January 30, by Mr. W. H. Bonner. A choir of fifty performers gave a very good rendering of some part-songs, the most noteworthy being Smart's "Good night, thou glorious sun," Sullivan's "O, hush thee, my babe," and Hattton's "Ocean's lullaby." The soloists were Miss Annie Thompson and Miss Winch. Mr. Stretton Swann presided at the piano, and pianoforte and harmonium duets were given by Miss Williams and Mr. Fincham.

MR. T. G. BAINES, Organist of St. Margaret's, Westminster, was the performer at the last of the popular Organ Recitals held at Wycliffe Chapel, Philpot Street, Commercial Road, on Tuesday, the 7th ult. The programme was varied and well selected. Vocal selections were given by the chapel choir, under the direction of Mr. Geo. Merritt, the choirmaster, and included Mendelssohn's "Hear my prayer," Handel's "For unto us," and Hattton's "In the days of Herod, the king," and "The Lord waked as one out of sleep."

AT the Lecture Hall, Grafton Square, Clapham, on the 16th ult., a Lecture was given by Mr. Charles Dowdeswell on "Richard Wagner and his Art," with illustrations, which were exceedingly well rendered. The lecturer was much complimented on the success and interest of his Lecture, which forms No. 1 of a series. The second takes places this month, when selections from "Lohengrin," "Tristan und Isolde," "The Meistersinger," and—first time in England—a portion of "Parsifal" will be given.

AN Organ Recital was given at Highgate Congregational Church, by Mr. J. Herbert Olding, on January 26, which was highly successful. The programme was varied and well selected, and the organ pieces were agreeably relieved by the singing of Miss Marian Burton.

HERR RIECHELMANN gave a Concert at St. John's Hall, Forest Hill, on the 18th ult. The programme comprised two compositions by the concert-giver: a song "The Easter Robe," artistically sung by Madame Crewe-Riechelm, and a pianoforte solo, "The Volunteer's Farewell," played with much ability by the composer. The various ballads, part-songs, and instrumental pieces performed during the evening were much appreciated by a numerous audience.

THE new organ recently erected in Chatsworth Road Chapel, Lower Norwood, by Messrs. J. W. Walker and Sons, was opened on Tuesday, the 14th ult., by Mr. F. G. Edwards, Organist of the Presbyterian Church, St. John's Wood. Mr. Edwards's programme was selected from the works of Bach, Handel, Smart, Wély, and Sterndale Bennett, and included a Bridal March of his own composition. Several anthems and hymns were sung by the choir, under the direction of Mr. W. H. Mayers.

A SUCCESSFUL Concert was given at Angell Town Institution, Brixton, on the 16th ult., before a very crowded audience. The programme was vocally contributed to by Madame Worrell, Misses Annie Matthews, M. Hardy, M. Wood, Marian Burton, and Ada Knight; Messrs. Armandi, Reed, James Budd, and Horscroft. The instrumental artists were Mr. Viotti Collins (violin), Miss M. Collins (concertina), and Miss Homer (pianoforte). Mr. Turle Lee acted as accompanist.

THE Town Hall at Wandsworth was publicly opened on Tuesday, January 24, and in the evening a Concert was given in the Large Room, which was filled to overflowing. Before the performance commenced, Sir Henry Peek (one of the patrons) made some remarks appropriate to the occasion, and then read a letter from Mr. C. Few inclosing a cheque for fifty pounds as a present to Mr. Sidney Hill, Organist of All Saints', in recognition of his musical abilities.

ON Thursday the 16th ult. a Concert was given in Hawkstone Hall, Westminster Bridge Road, by the choir of St. Jude's, Southwark, in aid of the charities of that parish. The principal vocalists were Miss Smith, Mrs. Steele, Miss L. M. May, Messrs. Faulkner Leigh, Stokes, and Wharton; and Mr. Hunnex contributed some violin solos. The glees and part-songs by the choir, under the direction of Mr. Walter M. Pitchford, were highly successful.

THE 157th monthly Concert of the St. George's Glee Union was held at the Picnic Rooms, on the 3rd ult. The programme was miscellaneous, and included vocal solos by Miss Mear, Miss Bessie Diamond, Mr. Arthur Thomas, and Mr. R. E. Miles. The part-singing was exceedingly good. Pianoforte selections were contributed by Miss Kinkee and Mr. H. L. Balfour. The accompaniments were played by Mr. F. R. Kinkee, and Mr. Joseph Monday conducted.

THE Belle Sauvage Glee Union gave its third monthly Concert at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet Street, on the 7th ult. One of the principal items in the programme was a new part-song entitled "The Skipper's Song," by the Conductor, Mr. C. H. Hewitt, which was very favourably received. The soloists were Mr. F. Crowest, Mr. J. T. Taylor, Mr. Croager, Mr. H. E. Vickers, Mr. A. Furness, Mr. H. Brooks, Mr. H. Judd, and Mr. S. H. Beckley. Mr. G. F. Bruce was an efficient accompanist.

THE members of the Portland Choral Association held their first private annual Concert at the Cleveland Hall, Cleveland Street, on Tuesday evening, the 7th ult. The programme included part-songs, &c., and violin and cornet solos were contributed by Messrs. W. Allen and A. Harrison. The vocalists were Miss C. Hammond, Messrs. H. Knight, A. Totman, B. C. Kittmer, and E. Catesby. Miss M. E. Bolton accompanied, and Mr. G. E. Bishop conducted.

THE Windsor and Eton Choral Society gave a performance of Dr. Bridge's Cantata "Boadicea" at Windsor, on the 16th ult., the solos being taken by Miss Fenna, Mr. Harper Kearton, and Mr. Blower.

DR. JACOB BRADFORD has accepted the post of Honorary Secretary to the Musical Artists' Society, vacant by the resignation of Mr. E. H. Thorne.

AT the Brighton Aquarium, on Saturday afternoon, the 18th ult., a new Operetta by Mr. Frederick Corder, entitled "A Storm in a Teacup; or, the Art of Navigation," was produced for the first time. The music in the Operetta (the scene of which is laid on board a yacht) is bright and sparkling, and was most enthusiastically received, so much so that the directors repeated it in the evening, instead of the opera announced. The artists were Madame Alice Barth, Lady Sylvia; Miss Kate Leipold, Maggie; Mr. Faulkner Leigh, Ernest Gale (who was encored and had to repeat the barcarole in the second act); Mr. Eric Lewis, Steward; and Mr. Theodore Distin, Harry Fairweather (the owner of the "Sea-Gull.") The band was good, and the piece was well mounted. Mr. Corder conducted.

THE Organ at the Bow and Bromley Institute has recently undergone a thorough reconstruction at the hands of the builders, Messrs. Brindley and Foster, of Sheffield. The ventilis have been replaced by composition pedals, a third manual and choir organ added, together with many of the improvements sanctioned at the recent Organ Conference. Mr. E. H. Turpin reopens the organ on Saturday next, the 4th inst., and Miss Mary Davies has kindly given her services on the occasion.

A CHORAL Festival was held in Holy Trinity Church, Haverstock Hill, on Wednesday, the 15th ult., the choir being augmented by the members of Christ Church, Bloomsbury. The Magnificat and Nunc dimittis were by Stainer, in B flat, and the Anthem was a selection from Mendelssohn's "St. Paul," the solos being well sung by Messrs. Sinclair Dunn, Yorke, and Master Williams. The choruses were given with precision and effect. Mr. J. Freeman Dovaston presided at the organ, and Mr. W. G. Wood conducted.

SIGNOR RIA (whom we remember as an excellent tenor singer during Mr. Hayes's recent brief season of Italian Opera at the Lyceum) gave an evening Concert at the Marlborough Rooms, Regent Street, on the 11th ult. The chief feature in the programme was the singing of the bénéficiaire, who was assisted by several eminent artists, amongst whom we may mention Miss Adele Myers (a clever young vocalist), Madame Liebhart, Signor Zoboli, and Signor Li Calsi.

A VERY successful Concert and Dramatic Entertainment was given by Miss Rose Evans in the Schoolroom, Gloucester Street, on Tuesday, the 7th ult. Miss Evans was assisted by Miss Hargrave, Miss Clara Dowle, Miss Woods, Miss E. Evans, Miss Stead, Miss M. Evans, Miss Minnie Begbie, Miss Florence Mann, Miss Wetherill, and Mr. Sherrard; solo violin, Mr. F. Arnold; harp, Mr. W. T. Barker.

THE second annual Concert of Mr. Sinclair Dunn took place at the London Art Galleries, Baker Street, on Tuesday evening, the 14th ult. Mr. Dunn was assisted by Miss Effie Clements, Miss A. Arnold, and Mr. Albert M'Guckin, vocalists, and Mr. Frank Arnold, solo violinist. Mr. W. G. Wood presided at the pianoforte.

THE Walworth Choral Society, numbering upwards of 100 carefully selected voices, intends giving a series of Concerts during the season, at one of which Dr. Sloman's sacred Cantata "Supplication and Praise" will be performed.

ON the 21st ult. a students' Concert was given at Trinity College, London, when pupils of the following Professors were heard: Mr. Alberto Visetti, Mr. Bradbury Turner, Mr. J. C. Beuthin, Mr. Wallace Wells, Miss Alma Sanders, and Sir Julius Benedict.

REVIEWS.

The Genesis of Harmony: An Inquiry into the Laws which Govern Musical Composition. 'EK ΔΙΟΣ 'ΑΡΧΩΜΕΣΘΑ. By Hugh Carleton.

[Augener and Co., Newgate Street and Regent Street.]

THE new work by Mr. Hugh Carleton is not a technical treatise, nor can it be called a scientific treatise. It belongs to a type of musical literature rapidly becoming extinct in these days of dry specialism. It is addressed to a restricted class of readers, with whom music may be the ruling passion, but who enjoy, perhaps, more leisure than most other people, and who, possessed of ingenious and inquiring minds, collect a general assortment of literary, arithmetical, and scientific curiosities. The "Genesis of Harmony" appears as if it had been designed, if not for the most part written, many years ago, when the world still lived under an older dispensation. Newer revelations are scantily, and were perhaps tardily, recognised by Mr. Carleton. He treats us occasionally, and seemingly as interpolations, to such terms as "the clash of overtones" and "difference notes," as well as to the inevitable and generally half-explained reference to the "thirty-three beats in a second," with other marginal references to the Gospel of Helmholtz according to Tyndall. For all that, the new work is quite thirty years out of date, although it may be true that during the last ten or fifteen years, before later notions became popularised, the theory which Mr. Carleton adopts has, with more or less the same treatment, been reproduced by English writers. When we say that the basis of Mr. Carleton's theory is the much-thumbed series of harmonics, our readers will not require more in a review of the treatise than to be shown the points upon which the author thinks he has improved upon the teaching of the legion of writers who have handled the same subject, from D'Alembert and his contemporaries to Dr. Day and others, who wanted a "scientific basis" for *ninths, elevenths, and thirteenth*s. Mr. Carleton seems to us to have sunk in precisely the same treacherous spots as some of his predecessors, and to have reappeared in much the same sorry predicament through the friendly openings which in course of time have been effected by practical requirements. When Mr. Carleton gets out of the slough, he tells us it is "by postulate" or "by crisis"; but we do not see that the transparent covering supplied by these terms makes the slightest difference in his general appearance.

Mr. Carleton has a passion for verbal amendments and changes in terminology. He is happy in some of his proposed substitutes for old musical terms, and his definitions are always clear. One or two of the latter are important to the right understanding of his theory. He says that by "science," he means the analysis of results—the resolution of a mass of harmony into its component parts. He defines a chord as "three or more simultaneous notes having relation to each other." This definition, he says, "includes dissonances and excludes discords." A dissonance he defines as an interval of a certain ratio, of course "belonging to a chord." A discord he defines as an "intruder," and sometimes as a "distance," to be distinguished from an "interval" in its technical signification. "Superfluous intervals" he would call "distances"—that is, mere measurements without specific relationship between the sounds. By postulate he limits the harmonics in practical use to those his musical system requires. His great chord is from the prime or fundamental to the thirteenth inclusive. His subsidiary or "sectional" chords are the tetrads contained in that series. The fundamental tetrad 1, 3, 5, 7 $\frac{1}{2}$  owes its separate importance in Mr. Carleton's system to its "root," in the technical sense of the word "root" being a prime. In its present acception, the word "prime" means simply the first partial tone; whereas Mr. Carleton distinctly implies a "generator"; and hence, perhaps indirectly, the title of his book, "The Genesis of Harmony." The overtones can scarcely be generated by the prime when it is even a question whether they do not precede the prime. Moreover, whether they are simultaneous with the prime, or follow or precede it: the whole raison d'être of the overtones is evidently a question of their relative and comparatively weak intensities. In practical music, and irrespective of qualities of tone, the great specialty of the overtones cannot be imitated, for the sounds we employ are more or less of the same intensity; and in truth every note in our chords is practically and absolutely a prime, as every overtone is theoretically a prime. Mr. Carleton appears to acknowledge the possibility of all this being true, and still clings to the old fetish, the series of harmonics as a paradigm of harmony. The question of relative intensity is not dependent on the complete truth of particular scientific theories. Those theories have only more closely called attention to plain facts previously overlooked.

Mr. Carleton tells us that the seven sounds of his great chord have been erroneously called "notes of the scale." Well, if by one of Mr. Carleton's postulates we can take "a minor third on a prime," and by another "postulate of great exaction" we can assume that notes "differing only by a komma are equivalent," "all music, except that of the Æolian harp, being based on compromises with the ear"—we must say that the erroneous notion is not unnatural; and, besides, a question arises, although it is not often asked, Do we not generally refer to the scale of the pianoforte, or, at most, to the common diatonic scale, when we reproach our neighbours with attempting to identify an artificial contrivance like a scale with the handiwork of Nature? More than 2,000 years ago the ancients, in their melodic system, employed, not as a question of "genesis" but as an afterthought and as a refinement of the art, the bemol of Mr. Carleton, and used the bemol (f. 7-4) in the descending scale as he suggests, and as some of his predecessors, immediate as well as remote, have suggested, although he does not condescend to notice any of them. But in this last quarter of the nineteenth century it is very naturally asked, If the Greeks had known anything of harmony in the modern sense of the term, how would they have treated the different species of seconds? This question would present no difficulty to Mr. Carleton. He says the only tones used in harmonic combinations are those from the harmonic seventh to the octave of the tonic prime, and from the harmonic fourth of the dominant to the fifth of the dominant. The commoner tones, 9-8 and 10-9, we read of "in the books," are what he calls bichordal intervals, and are absolutely discordant; whilst the two monochordal tones are only dissonant. Certainly the minor tone "of the books" is bad enough, but if the tone 8-7 is any worse than a diminished third—and it probably is—it has not much right of preference to the ordinary major tone of the scale; and the major tone of equal temperament appears to be better than any, or better, supposing that the relative degree of consonance or smoothness in intervals musicians treat as dissonances be of much importance in practical harmony, apart from the fixation of key, which is a question of scale. We appreciate the reverent spirit of our author's Greek adornment to the title of his work; still, the great question, and above all in music, is not so much how we begin as where we shall go to. Theoretically, following even certain systems of temperament, easier to deal with than a procession of monochordal intervals, leads us out of the normal pitch of the tonic, which is the last thing a musician will tolerate, because it destroys the "form" of his composition.

To understand our author's meaning better, it will be necessary to follow the terms "monochordal" and "bichordal" into the question of Cadential Harmony, his treatment of which he seems to think constitutes the capital distinction between his own and former expositions of the "harmonic theory." A monochordal cadence is the resolution of any tetrad in the series 1 to 13 on the triad of the prime of that series. A bichordal cadence is the resolution of a tetrad of the dominant employed as a prime on the tonic triad, or of any of the sectional or overtone tetrads of the dominant series on the tonic. Again, a monochordal interval is the interval between an overtone and its prime, or between any two of the over-tones of the monochord. A bichordal interval is that which lies between two primes, or their respective overtones.

From these definitions we are inclined to think that, firstly, the harmonic system of Mr. Carleton is, after all, monochordal, because in the progression from the chords of one prime to another the resulting intervals are not harmony intervals, or perhaps, as Mr. Carleton would say more correctly, they are not "harmonial intervals" but melodic intervals. Secondly, in spite of the slender reason he advances, that in the monochord the easiest progression is from a prime to its fifth, his selection of the dominant as the first prime of the bichordal cadence is quite arbitrary and "by postulate." The reason for resorting to this, as well as to many other postulates he does or might employ, is because Mr. Carleton, like many of his predecessors, proceeds to the "Inquiry into the Laws which Govern Musical Composition" by harmonic analysis only, and, notwithstanding his cadential makeshift, by ignoring the scale, and therefore melody, in which is comprehended the system of scales, chord-progression, chord-notation, counterpoint, form, and at least nine-tenths of the whole subject of musical composition. Hence, when Mr. Carleton arrives at what he calls a pons asinorum in music—that is to say, the “chord of the augmented sixth” he will not acknowledge as formed on two roots—it is evident that he would like to make it 6♭, 1, 3♯, with an intrinsic 5♯, instead of an added 4♯, which on his own showing is according to ordinary methods bichordal, and therefore, as we should say, a melodic interval, or, as he says himself, “discordant,” when treated harmonially; and that, in fact, the chord, so called, is not a chord at all, but a “discord.” The chord nevertheless, as no doubt Mr. Carleton knows better than we, is by the simple test of experiment one of the smoothest and richest of dissonant combinations. Although Mr. Carleton speaks of tetrachords and of diazeutic tones, and of other items purely of scale construction, and speaks even of the extreme notes of the tritone—fa, si—as the “Gog and Magog of music,” a distinction they have earned all but exclusively by their position in the scale and independently of the interval harmonially considered, we cannot see why in his system of analysis he should trouble himself at all with vulgar symbols and signs such as F sharps and G flats, which are the traditional representatives of a transposed melodic system; and, let “the books” say what they please, theories of music end in nothing else. The broad result of Mr. Carleton’s “Cadential Harmony” is that all progressions in music are dominant to tonic—an old idea over and over again set forward, but never satisfactorily explained. Mr. Carleton’s “derivative” or “sectional” chords on two primes are in the right direction, but the solution of the question is not harmonical. When he names the two primes dominant and tonic, he has really only one series of sectional chords, and his harmonic system is renounced.

Any one not possessed, or who is able to free his mind from early associations even in musical theory, can with difficulty comprehend how it could have entered into the heart of man to conceive that the “contrapuntist” should, as Mr. Carleton asserts, be at variance with the “harmonicist” because the former chooses to treat the fifth, e—b in the scale of C, as a true fifth, when according to Mr. Carleton’s “genesis” it ought to be “a superfluous flat fifth,” for the reason that this interval whatever it may be, appears in a certain series of overtones, which are always of feeble intensity, sometimes limited in number and irregular in order; and their functions, which are destroyed by change of relative position, point clearly, not to harmony as the musician understands the term, but to harmony under special conditions, constituting the quality of a single sound. Rightly employed, we can use the overtones of two or more primes to prove and select separate and definable intervals such as the harmonic seventh; but the practical use, the particular place, we may say the geographical position, in a system of scales, of these otherwise abstract intervals, separately or in combination, are questions of tonality, essentially a melodic question, or at all events it is independent of pure harmony, and all efforts at proving the key harmonically have hitherto been signal failures.

Mr. Carleton in his preliminary chapter gives twenty-six reasons for the confusion which he says still besets the science of music; and in his preface he enumerates nine points of difference between his own and other systems. Making due allowance for a pardonable literary egoism, we cannot suppose that Mr. Carleton advances any of his twenty-six reasons as referring to subjects not hitherto discussed; and as for his nine points of difference, the “ninth” is the most novel—“the clearance of not a little rubbish out of the road.” We can say of his treatise that it is a thorough-going, and at the present day courageous, attempt to revive an expiring theory; and he will, perhaps, unconsciously verify his ninth point by having reproduced the theory in all its nakedness, thus challenging a criticism that may end in its final extinction.

His book begins with the information that the intended title was Ἑνκαίδης Κιθαρώδης, afterwards discarded as too pretentious; and towards the finish the imaginative element in the author’s mind crops up, in an utterly pretty example of a chord in minim heads with the inversion in crotchet heads, the latter representing the reflection of the chord, as of “riverside trees in the water below.” The work terminates with a quotation from “Richard III.,” to illustrate Shakespeare’s correct use of musical terms.

Mr. Carleton possesses humour as well as imagination, and writes not only thoughtfully and carefully, with a cultivated appreciation of the use of terms and of language, but with a clearness unusual in musical treatises. The book, however, is gratuitously disfigured by the affectation of a scholastic jargon altogether antiquated, and for which “pedantry” is too mild a description.

Novello, Ewer and Co.’s Pianoforte Albums. Edited by Berthold Tours.

Nos. 7, 8 and 9. Marches. By various Composers.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

MARCHES are so scattered about in the compositions of the great masters that a collection of the choicest specimens cannot fail to receive a cordial welcome from pianists. It is good also to see how varied are the styles of the best writers in this species of composition; and by critically examining the little caskets of gems before us, to estimate the many imitations of mere music-makers at their true value. The pathos of Gounod’s “Marche Solennelle,” Mendelssohn’s two Funeral Marches (one from his “Lieder ohne Worte,” which was scored and played at the composer’s funeral), and Handel’s Dead March, from “Saul”; the joyous brightness of the Bridal March from “Lohengrin”; Hofmann’s Festival March, from the opera “Aennchen von Tharau”; and Mendelssohn’s Wedding March, from the “Midsummer Night’s Dream”; and the military grandeur of the Marches from “Fidelio” and “Le Nozze di Figaro,” and even our familiar “March of the British Grenadiers” (all of which, with very many others, by the greatest masters, are included in these volumes)—will sufficiently prove how genius can preserve the character, as well as the form, of the works bequeathed to the world. The careful editing of Mr. Tours ensures the accuracy of the music; and where it is found necessary that “arrangements” should be made, when not by the editor, they are always confided to equally competent hands.

Mignon’s Requiem. (“Wilhelm Meister”). Composed by R. Schumann. The words translated from the German of Goethe by the Rev. J. Troutbeck.

[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

AT the end of the year 1849 Schumann wrote to Hiller, “As I told you before, I’ve been exceedingly busy all the year: we must work while the daylight lasts.” During this prolific period of the composer’s career he sketched the Requiem for “Mignon,” and a few days after the three songs of the “Harper,” all from Goethe’s “Wilhelm Meister.” The publication of this “Requiem” in the popular octavo edition will, we hope, make more extensively known a composition which so thoroughly realises the spirit of Goethe’s words. It was first performed at a Düsseldorf subscription concert, November 21, 1850, and, there can be little doubt, with that earnestness with which all German vocalists render the musical illustrations of their nation’s poets. The true pathos of the choral portions of the work is intensified by the short solos for various voices interspersed throughout; and we cannot too strongly recommend members of Choral Societies to make themselves acquainted as speedily as possible with a composition which, although brief, is amongst the best of the many musical settings of Goethe’s poetry which Schumann has left us.

Minster Bells. A Cantata for Female Voices. Words by Edward Oxenford. Music composed by Franz Abt.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE argument of this Cantata is thus described: “After the gathering-in of the harvest, the peasant maidens from the surrounding country proceed to the minster to offer up thanks. The journey to and from the sacred edifice is enlivened by songs and glees suitable to the occasion.” Upon this little incident Mr. Oxenford has engrafted some unpretentious verses, well adapted for musical setting; and it need scarcely be said that the composer has performed his share of the task with equal success—indeed, the delicacy and refinement uniformly shown in his treatment of works for female voices has made the name of Abt a guarantee for excellence in this species of drawing-room Cantata. The light and tuneful opening Chorus contains many points of interest; and soprano singers who seek not mere display will be delighted with the charming Air, "There is a mystic sweetness dwells." The Duet for mezzo-soprano and contralto, "Across the verdant meadows," is extremely effective; and we may also mention a good Song for contralto, "There is a land which lies afar," the stately 6-4 rhythm of which is in perfect sympathy with the words. One great merit in these Cantatas is that they are invariably free from any pedantic display of knowledge. The music flows naturally and gracefully; and, whilst sufficiently melodious to ensure a general appreciation, is always so artistically treated as to attract the more educated listener. "Minster Bells" will certainly occupy a worthy place in the group of similar works produced by this popular composer.

The History of Music. By Emil Naumann. Translated by F. Praeger. Edited by the Rev. Sir. F. A. Gore Ouseley, Bart., M.A., Mus. Doc. Part I.
[Cassell, Petter, Galpin and Co.]

It is said that the work before us is to be completed in "about" twenty-four monthly parts. As this word (added from the original prospectus) expresses some little doubt upon the time which its publication must occupy, we cease to wonder how the terms of the following paragraph can be fulfilled: "Commencing with the earliest civilised nations of Asia and the East, the work will trace the history of music in the times of the Greeks and Romans; thence the narrative will proceed to the period of the Christian nations of mediæval Europe, passing onward in due course to the early French and Flemish schools, to Protestant Church music, both English and Continental, to Italian classic music, to the Tuscan school and the musical drama, and finally to modern German, French, Italian, and English music." It would be impossible to express any definite opinion upon the merits of so important a book from a perusal of a single part, but we may say that it appears to be exceedingly well translated, and that illustrations are profusely scattered throughout. As in the first part we do not get beyond the music of the Chinese, Japanese, and Hindoos, it will be seen that either the following parts must contain more matter, or that many months will elapse before the work can be brought to a termination.

Reeves's Musical Directory for 1882. [William Reeves.]

We trust that the late appearance of this very useful Directory will not affect its sale. In every respect its contents are thoroughly satisfactory, the arrangement of the names of those in any way connected with the musical art being admirable for reference. In the Trade Directory, however, we were puzzled to understand why some names were printed in larger type than the rest, until the fact was revealed that these were persons who had given advertisements to the work. Surely this system is neither graceful nor politic.

The Wooer. Madrigal. Words by George Wither. Composed by George Benson, Mus. Bac., Cantab.
[Lamborn Cock.]

THE old English words of Wither have been set in old English style by Mr. Benson, with a success which we trust will ensure its acceptance by the many choral societies fast growing around us. It is written for alto, first and second tenor, and bass; and, apart from its attractive, melodious character, there are many effective points of imitation in the composition which will be welcomed by musical listeners.

The Night Chimes. A Four-part Song for mixed Voices. Written by Eden Hooper. Composed by Charles E. Tinney. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

SOME unpretending verses are here set with appropriate simplicity; but the harmonies throughout evidence the practised hand of an accomplished musician. We have just enough of the "Chimes" in the accompaniment to preserve the feeling of the subject; and a good effect is gained by the temporary change of key and time. The composition is dedicated to the Blackheath Glee and Madrigal Club.

Welcome, Spring. Duet for Soprano and Baritone. English version freely after the Dutch. Composed by A. Schliebner. [Stanley Lucas, Weber and Co.]

THE title-page of this composition informs us that it gained the first prize from the Society of Arts at the Hague, Netherlands; and in this case we can certainly indorse the justice of the award. The duet is composed with a definite purpose throughout; and although we have changes both of time and key, the feeling of the words is so faithfully preserved as to prevent any sensation of patchiness. The voice parts are simply, but most effectively, written; and some charming points in the pianoforte accompaniment give much interest to a piece which cannot fail to be cordially received even by a concert-room audience.

FOREIGN NOTES.

DR. HANS VON BÜLOW has recently given a concert devoted to pianoforte compositions by Brahms, at Vienna, Franz Liszt being present on the occasion. In the course of this month the pianist-conductor will start upon a prolonged concert tour with his Meiningen orchestra in various German towns, including Berlin, where Beethoven's Ninth Symphony will be performed under his direction. The projected tour will extend also to the principal Scandinavian towns.

We read in the Allgemeine Deutsche Musik-Zeitung, of Berlin: "The study of music-history (under Dr. W. Langhans) is made a distinct feature at the Conservatorium of Xaver Scharwenka, the zeal of the pupils being especially stimulated by the musical performances accompanying the instruction, and in which occasionally the director and the leading professors take part. Thus, one of the latter, Fräulein Marie Schmidlein, recently gave, in conjunction with one of her most promising pupils, an excellent selection from the songs of the troubadours, Thibaut de Champagne, Châtelain de Coucy, Adam de la Hale, and Guillaume de Machault, as well as specimens of the older German volkslied."

As an instance of the varied répertoire of German operatic establishments, we may cite the following operas performed during the month of January last at the Munich Hof-Theater, viz.: "Tannhäuser," "Der Rattenfänger von Hameln," "Faust," "Der Freischütz," "Le Nozze di Figaro," "Lohengrin," "Die Entführung aus dem Serail," "Raimondin" (by Perfall), "Der Fliegende Holländer," "Die Beiden Schützen," "Guillaume Tell," "Euryanthe."

At the Hof-Theater of Weimar, Æschylus' "Persians," with incidental music by the Hereditary Prince of Meiningen, will be produced during the present month. The music (soli and choruses) was recently performed by the academical Gesangverein at Berlin, under the direction of Dr. Bellermann, and created a highly favourable impression, the composer having, it is said, discharged his difficult task with conspicuous talent.

Richard Wagner is spending the winter months at Palermo, where, it is stated, he has just completed the instrumentation of the third (and last) act of his new music-drama "Parsifal."

At the Royal Opera of Berlin Wagner's "Meistersinger" and "Tristan und Isolde" were produced last month, Herr Niemann sustaining the parts of Walter and Tristan respectively. A season of Italian opera was opened on the 9th ult., at the Victoria-Theater, with Donizetti's "Favorita." Boito's "Mefistofele" is in course of preparation.

At the Hamburg Stadt-Theater Heinrich Hofmann's new opera, "Wilhelm von Oranien," was produced last month as the fourth novelty of the present season, without, however, achieving a very decided success. The opinions of the press are divided as to the merits of this new work of the talented composer.

Herr Angelo Neumann, the energetic impresario, proposes to commence in September next a six-months tour, in conjunction with a select company of German artists, for the purpose of giving performances of "Der Ring des Nibelungen" at twenty-two continental towns where the tetralogy has not yet been produced.

The entire "Nibelungen" tetralogy was again produced at the Leipzig Stadt-Theater last month before crowded audiences.

An opera, "Gudrun," by Herr Klughardt, was successfully performed for the first time at the theatre of Neustrelitz. A new operatic work by Mihalovicz, entitled "Hagbor and Sigur," is in course of being mounted at the Dresden Hof-Theater.

Gluck's "Orpheus," after being newly mounted and carefully rehearsed, has just been revived at the Imperial Opera of Vienna, producing a great impression. The two principal rôles were interpreted by Mesdames Papier and Kupfer, both pupils of Madame Marchesi.

Beethoven's Ninth Symphony was produced on January 19 at the Concerts Populaires of Paris, with a new French version of Schiller's ode, from the pen of M. Victor Wilder, in lieu of the ambiguous French verses hitherto used in the choral portion. In M. Wilder's rendering of the ode, it may be mentioned, the word liberté has been substituted for the freude (joy) of the German text, by which the original intention of both Schiller and Beethoven is said to have been carried out.

At the Paris Opéra-Comique Gounod's Opera, "Phlémon et Baucis," was revived, in a somewhat curtailed form, last month with great success, and is likely to remain on the répertoire of that institution for some time to come.

At the Grand-Opéra the projected first performance of M. Ambroise Thomas's new opera, "Françoise de Rimini," has been repeatedly postponed, and the work will probably not be produced until next month. A new ballet, with music by M. Lalo, was announced for performance last week; it is entitled "Namouna l'Esclave."

A correspondent from Lyons reports to us an excellent performance on the 5th ult. of Félicien David's ode-symphonique, "Christophe Colomb, ou la Découverte du Nouveau Monde," on the part of the new Sainte Cécile Society, under the direction of M. Léon Reuschel.

Anton Rubinstein has just given a series of concerts in Paris before most enthusiastic audiences. An essay from the pen of the pianist-composer, having for its subject the idea and the future of "sacred opera," will, it is stated, shortly be published at Berlin.

The Bruxelles Conservatoire celebrated on the 19th ult. the fiftieth anniversary of its foundation by a festive concert. M. Fétis, the celebrated musical savant, was the first director of the institution.

M. Massenet's opera "Hérodiade" still maintains its attractive powers at the Théâtre de la Monnaie, of Brussels, where over twelve performances of the work have already taken place, amidst unabated enthusiasm on the part of the audience.

Donizetti's recently discovered opera, "Il Duca d'Alba," will be produced during the present season at the Apollo Theatre of Rome. The French libretto by Scribe has been rendered into Italian by Signor Zanardini. The plot of the opera is laid in 1573, the principal dramatis personæ being: the Duke of Alba (baritone), Marcell of Bruges, a Flemish youth (tenor), Daniel, an innkeeper (bass), and Amalia of Egmont (prima donna). The piece opens with a market scene at Brussels and a Kermesse.

The first prize for an original composition, to be performed at the forthcoming Music Festival at Cincinnati, has been awarded to Mr. Thomas Gilchrist, an American, for a setting of the Forty-sixth Psalm for chorus and orchestra. There were nineteen applicants, the jury consisting of Herr Carl Reinecke, of Leipzig, M. Saint-Saëns, of Paris, and Mr. Theodore Thomas, of New York.

Our Turin correspondent writes: "The Stefano Tempia Choral Society gave its thirty-fifth concert (of which we give the programme in another column) on February 5, before a numerous audience. A Neapolitan maestro, who was present, expressed himself agreeably surprised at the character of the music performed, for which, he maintained, no one could hope to obtain an attentive hearing at Naples. The Quartet Society here has come to an untimely end. The concerts of the maestro, Marchisio, on the other hand, have recommenced, and are, as ever, crowded."

The recent first performance of "Lohengrin" at Venice was a most brilliant success, which subsequent productions of the work have more than confirmed.

We have received the first numbers of a new weekly journal, published at Paris, under the title of La Revue Critique, and devoted to the somewhat multifarious interests of "Theatres, Literature, Music, Fine Arts, Law, Science, and Finance." The young journal, which is supported by able writers, has our best wishes for its success.

At Darmstadt died, on the 11th ult., at the age of sixty-five, Gustave Schmidt, composer of the operas "Prinz Eugen," "La Créole," "Weibertreue," and "Alibi," and for many years orchestral conductor at the operas of Frankfurt, Leipzig, and Darmstadt.

We subjoin, as usual, the programmes of concerts* recently given at some of the leading institutions abroad:—

Paris.—Châtelet Concert (January 29) in honour of Auber: Air from "Concert à la Cour"; Fragments from "La Muette"; Air from "Philtres"; Finale from second act, "Serment"; Overture, "Cheval de Bronze"; Entr'acte, "Diamants de la Couronne"; Nocturne from "Premier Jour de Bonheur"; Concerto and Trio, instrumental (Auber); Oraison et Apothèse from Symphonie Funèbre (Berlioz). Concert Populaire (January 29): Overture, "Domino Noir"; "O salutaris"; Andante for hautboy; Air from "Concert à la Cour"; Chorus from "La Fiancée du Roi de Garbe"; Fragments from "La Muette"; Fragments from "L'Enfant Prodige" (Auber). Lamoureux Concert (February 5): Overture, "Fingal"; Choral Symphony (Beethoven); Chorus from "Flying Dutchman" (Wagner); March and Bridesmaids' Chorus, "Lohengrin" (Wagner). Châtelet Concert (February 5): Overture, "Phèdre" (Massenet); "Les Nubiennes," Orchestral Suite (Jocnières); Danse Macabre (Saint-Saëns); Fragments from "Rienzi" (Wagner). Concert Populaire (February 5): Symphony, C major (Mozart); Pianoforte Concerto, E minor (Beethoven); Symphonie-Ballet (Godard); Prelude and Scene from "Tristan and Isolde" (Wagner); Overture, "Leonore," No. 3 (Beethoven). Concert du Conservatoire (February 12): Symphony, "Eroica" (Beethoven); Fragments from "Oberon" (Weber); Symphony in C (Haydn); 98th Psalm (Mendelssohn). Châtelet Concert (February 12): Symphonie Fantastique (Berlioz); "La Folia" (Corelli); Ballet Air from "Demon" (Rubinstein); Fragments from "Rienzi," and March and Chorus from "Tannhäuser" (Wagner). Concert Populaire (February 12): Pastoral Symphony (Beethoven); Concertstück (Weber); Réverie (Schumann); Air from "Samson" (Handel); Fragment from "Götterdämmerung" (Wagner); Tarentelle (Liszt); Overture, "Carnaval Romain" (Berlioz).

Cologne.—Concert-Gesellschaft (February 14): Orchestral Suite, No. 7 (Franz Lachner); Air from "Odysseus" (Bruch); Largo and Allegro for violoncello (Boccherini); "Agrippina," Scene for contralto, chorus, and orchestra (F. Gernsheim); "Im Walde," violoncello solo (Popper); Symphony, No. 2 (Beethoven).

Wiesbaden.—Concert of the Cur-Orchester (January 27): Symphony, "Eroica" (Beethoven); Air from "Elijah" (Mendelssohn); Siegfried Idyl (Wagner); Songs (Graedener, A. Jensen, Fesca); Overture, "Demetrius" (F. Hiller). Cur-Orchester (January 29): Overture, "Leonore," No. 1 (Beethoven); Scherzo from Symphony, "Wallenstein" (Reinberger); Siegfried Idyl (Wagner); Symphony, No. 2 (Schumann).

Brussels.—Association des Artistes Musiciens (February 18): Overture, "Jubilée" (Hanssens); Air from "La Reine de Saba" (Gounod); Concerto (Spohr); "Le Brindisi d'Herculanum" (F. David); Pilgrims' Chorus (Wagner); Chorus, "Le Tournoi" (F. Rigà); "Le Bal" (Vogel); Concerto, F minor (Chopin); Air from "Nabuco" (Verdi); "Fileuse" (Hollander); Polonaise (Lamb); Rapsodie Hongroise (Liszt); Trio from "Jérusalem" (Verdi).

Turin.—Stefano Tempia Choral Society (February 5): Motett, "O bone Jesu" (Palestrina); "Inter vestibulum" (Perti); 20th Psalm (Marcello); "Gipsy Life" (Schumann); Villanella alla Napolitana (Donati); Chorus from "Edipo a Colone" (Sacchini); Chorus, "Hallelujah" (Handel).

Boston.—Symphony Orchestra (January 21): Toccata, in F (Esser-Bach); Concerto, Op. 56 (Beethoven); Symphony, "Reformation" (Mendelssohn); Andante for violin and violoncello (Henschel); Overture, "Le Part du Diable" (Auber). Symphony Orchestra (January 28): Masonic Dirge (Mozart); Pianoforte Concerto, E flat (Beethoven); Notturmo Serenade, in D (Mozart); Pianoforte solos (Mozart, Rheinberger, Liszt); Symphony, in D (Mozart). Symphony Orchestra (February 4): Symphony, No. 7 (Beethoven); Air from "Don Giovanni" (Mozart); Pianoforte Concerto, Op. 15 (Henselt); Songs (Rubinstein, Henschel); Overture, "In the Highlands" (Gade). Symphony Orchestra (February 11): Overture, "Coriolanus" (Beethoven); Rhapsody for contralto, male chorus and orchestra (Brahms); Symphony, B minor (Schubert); Ballet, "Sylvia" (Délibes); "La Captive" (Berlioz); Fragments from "Die Meistersinger" (Wagner). Harvard Musical Association (January 26): Symphony, in G. (Haydn); Air, "Magic Flute" (Mozart); Symphony, No. 4 (Gade); Air, "Paradise and the Peri" (Schumann); Overture, "Rosamunde" (Schubert).

Baltimore.—Peabody Institute, Students' Concert (January 14): String Quintet, G minor (Mozart); Song, "Dolorosa" (A. Jensen); Pianoforte Trio, No. 1 (W. Bargiel). Peabody Institute, Students' Concert (January 21): String Quartet, G minor (Grieg); "Lurline" (Liszt); Opera without Words, for pianoforte, Op. 30 (A. Hamerik). First Peabody Concert (January 28): Overture, "Weihe des Hauses" (Beethoven); Pianoforte Concerto, E flat (Beethoven); Songs (E. Grieg); Opera without Words (A. Hamerik).

* Contributions intended for this column should indicate clearly the place and date of performance, as otherwise they cannot be inserted.

CORRESPONDENCE.

LOCKE'S MUSIC TO MACBETH.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—In the review of the biography of Purcell by Mr. Cummings in the current number of THE MUSICAL TIMES, it is stated that "amongst the many errors corrected by Mr. Cummings is that which connects the name of Matthew Locke with the Music to 'Macbeth.'" It appears Mr. Cummings possesses a manuscript score of the music in Purcell's "youthful hand." Now the music was produced in 1674, when Purcell was but a boy in his sixteenth year; and surely the fact that a copy of the score exists in his handwriting cannot be viewed as an argument that he was the composer. The internal evidence is alluded to; but to myself that would render it still more improbable that Purcell could have written it. The melodies are throughout too smooth and polished, and the choruses too matured in style, to have been the work of the boy Purcell.

The Music to "Macbeth" was doubtless not printed till long after its first production; and when, later on, Purcell's genius shone forth in full splendour, nothing would be more natural than that any composition of great merit, whose authorship was not stated, should be attributed to him.

I have in my possession three different biographical notices of Matthew Lock (sic) written some forty or fifty years ago, each ascribing the music in question to Lock; one notices the fact that several attempts had been made to deprive him of the authorship, but "without the shadow of an argument" to support them.

It would appear that Lock's contemporaries generally attributed the music to him; and what to me is, beyond all, conclusive is that Downes, who was connected with the Duke's Theatre at the time the music was produced there, speaks of Lock as the composer.

Over two centuries have now elapsed since this noble music was first given to the world, and I submit it is too late in the day to prove that the composer of the Music to "Macbeth" was any other than Matthew Lock.

I am, sir, yours truly,

February 17, 1882.

JUSTITIA.

SCOTT AND PURCELL.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—The following quotation, from the "Life of Purcell," by Cummings, briefly but clearly summarises the truth respecting the dedication of the "Orpheus Britannicus" and the erection of Purcell's monument:—

This memorial was erected by the Lady Elizabeth Howard, whom Hawkins and others have supposed to be the wife of Dryden, and a pupil of Purcell. Hawkins also inferred that it was Dryden who wrote the inscription for the memorial, and further, that the dedication of the "Orpheus Britannicus" to Lady Elizabeth Howard was intended for Dryden's wife. All these surmises are wrong. Dryden married Lady Elizabeth Howard, the eldest daughter of the Earl of Berkshire, in 1665, when Purcell was seven years old. Of course, after the marriage the wife ceased to be Lady Elizabeth Howard; moreover, her husband's (Dryden) means would scarcely have permitted the serious cost of Purcell's memorial tablet. This was in reality erected by the wife of Sir Robert Howard, the dramatist, who had been associated with Purcell in theatrical composition; and the lady had been a pupil of Purcell; the probability is, therefore, that Sir Robert wrote the inscription.

Hawkins supposed that Dryden wrote "Alexander's Feast" for Purcell, and penned some curious observations concerning Purcell's inability or unwillingness to set the ode to music. This myth is also refuted by Mr. Cummings, who quotes proofs from Scott's "Life of Dryden."

Yours, &amp;c.,

HISTORIAN.

ILL-TIMED APPLAUSE.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—I am an amateur horn-player from the country, and on Wednesday last I went to the Albert Hall to hear the "Hymn of Praise" and "Stabat Mater."

It is not overstating my case when I say that my chief attraction was the small opening by the horns of the No. 3 in the "Stabat Mater," for, having played in it more than once in the country, I was most anxious to hear it; but a portion of the audience were so much pleased with the gentleman who took the voice part in No. 2 that they continued their applause well into No. 3. I was, as you may imagine, bitterly disappointed, for not a note of my beloved horns did I hear. I comforted myself, however, with the thought that these bars were repeated at the end of the number; and the ladies had not closed their mouths when the noise began again, and I was altogether sold.

Now, sir, cannot something be done to abate this nuisance? Surely the promoters of concerts have the matter in their own hands; and if on the programmes the public were requested not to cheer till the music ceased I believe they would abstain from doing so. If this failed it would be only a just retaliation for the lovers of instrumentation to applaud their favourite bits in the middle of the solos for voices.—I am, &c., February 11, 1882.

C. A. W. T.

MALE-VOICE CHOIRS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—I have read with very much interest the correspondence which has been going on in your columns with reference to the above, and have been not a little surprised to see that no one has thought it worth while to bring before the notice of your readers a Male-Voice Society so well known in the West of England as the Bristol Orpheus. Established, I believe, nearly forty years, this Society has gained the reputation of being one of the best known. It consists of about sixty members (with altos for the top line), and is fortunate in having for its conductor Mr. George Riseley, organist of Bristol Cathedral, whose ability has brought the Society no little fame. Their last "Ladies' Night" took place on February 16, and brought together one of the largest and most fashionable audiences ever seen in the Colston Hall. Gleees by Cooke, Wesley, Goss, and other eminent composers were rendered in a manner as near perfection as possible, and the local press characterised the performance as unique, and were loud in praise.

If the Bristol Orpheus were to give a concert in London, I feel certain that the performance would go far to prove that there is a Society capable of rendering some of the finest male-voice gleees in a most efficient manner.

Yours truly,

BRISTOLIAN.

RULE FOR FINDING WHAT AN INTERVAL WILL BECOME BY INVERSION.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—In THE MUSICAL TIMES for November, 1881, the appreciative reviewer of Dr. Bridge's "Double Counterpoint and Canon" commends the system of finding what an interval will become by inversion, as given by the learned Doctor, and says: "We do not remember to have seen such rule given in any work on Double Counterpoint up to the present time."

The rule referred to was first given, I believe, by Johann Albrecht Schulz, in the article "Versetzung" in Sulzer's "Theorie der schönen Künste," published at Berlin in 1774.

Yours very truly,

Albany, New York,

JOHN KANTZ.

January 18, 1882.

A MUSICAL CLUB.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—I often wonder if it would be possible to form a Musical Club in London: it would be a great boon to organists and musical men living in the country. To take my own experience (which possibly is the same as many other organists), I generally manage to get a fortnight in London in May, and many times have felt the want of a place to go to where I could meet other musical men and hear what is going on in the musical world generally. If some leading London organists, publishers, or institutions would take up this idea, I feel sure they would meet with the support of many of their country brethren.

Faithfully yours,

Llandaff, February 20.

C. L. WILLIAMS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

** Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

Correspondents are informed that their names and addresses must accompany all communications.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all Subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music is always kept in stock, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

A WORKING MAN.—With the exception of the Free Scholarships occasionally announced, we do not know how gratuitous musical instruction can be obtained at present. If, however, the proposed Royal College is successfully established, every opportunity of the kind desired will of course be given.

W. H. HANNAFORD.—The result was advertised in the daily papers; but no doubt the information could be obtained by application at the Royal Academy of Music.

ANOTHER ALTO.—The letter of our correspondent is too long for insertion.

HENRY THOMPSON.—We shall be glad to insert any notices of concerts at Newcastle-upon-Tyne which our correspondent may think worthy of a place in our "Brief Summary."

BASSO.—The members of the choir, at the ten o'clock and four o'clock services, are paid at the church you speak of; but on Sunday evenings (at seven o'clock) there is a voluntary choir, and if you are desirous of joining it you should apply by letter to the Secretary of the Sunday Evening Choir, adding the address of the church.

R. ROCHE.—C sharp.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

ALLOA.—On Tuesday, the 7th ult., the Musical Association performed Mendelssohn's St. Paul, the accompaniments being played by the Glasgow Resident Orchestra. The choir numbered nearly 100, and the work was most effectively performed. Mrs. Smith, of Glasgow, sang the soprano solos, the other parts being undertaken by members of the Association, and, on the whole, creditably sustained. Mr. W. H. Locker conducted, and is to be congratulated on a successful result.

BARNSELY.—On Thursday, January 26, The Messiah was successfully performed by the choir of St. George's, assisted by the choirs of St. Mary's and St. John's. The solos, given by the members of St. George's choir, were well rendered, especially "Why do the nations," by Mr. S. Bishop. The choir, numbering upwards of 150 voices, was most efficient. The Rev. J. Thurstfield conducted, and the Organist of the church, Mr. J. R. Brooke, presided at the organ.

BARROW.—A performance of Handel's Oratorio Israel in Egypt was given on Wednesday, January 25, in the Town Hall, by the Barrow and Ulverston Choral Societies. The principal vocalists were Mrs. C. M. Hutchinson, Miss Wakefield, and Mr. Welch. Mr. Packer led the band; and Mr. Brown, Organist and Choirmaster of St. James's Church, conducted. The Concert was in aid of the Barrow Sailors' Mission.

BELFAST.—The Choral Association gave a Popular and Military Concert in the Ulster Hall on Monday, January 30. The principal features of the programme were the unaccompanied part-songs, and the "Soldiers' Chorus" (Faust), with band accompaniment. The soloists, members of the Association, acquitted themselves admirably. The band of the second battalion 19th Regiment, under the direction of Herr Lorisch, performed some operatic selections in excellent style. Mr. Brown and Mr. Moss assisted Mr. W. J. Kempton as accompanists, the latter gentleman conducting.

BIRKENHEAD.—A Concert was given on Monday, the 20th ult., at the Ranelagh Assembly Rooms, under the direction of Mr. Billinie Porter, for the purpose of making a presentation to the Rev. J. F. Camm, on the occasion of his leaving the Parish Church. The artists were Mrs. Billinie Porter, Miss Frances Armstrong, Mr. J. L. Hughes, Mr. Walter Christian, Mr. Armstrong, Miss Storey, and Miss Beatrice Porter. The Mayor occupied the chair, and made the presentation on behalf of the subscribers, consisting of a purse containing about £165, and a sewing-machine for Mrs. Camm. The room was densely crowded, and the proceedings gave the utmost satisfaction.

BIRMINGHAM.—The fourth of Mr. Stratton's popular Chamber Concerts, of the present series, was given in the Masonic Hall on Monday evening, the 6th ult. The Concert commenced with a MS. Quintet by Dr. Heap, which was well rendered, and most enthusiastically received. The artists, besides Mr. Stratton and Dr. Heap, were Messrs. Abbott, Griffin, Owen, Heath, Pountney, Probin, and Edwin. —The Festival Choir of the Sunday School Union, under the auspices of the Musical Association, gave a performance of Mr. Alfred R. Gaul's new sacred Cantata, Ruth, in the Town Hall, on the 11th ult. The composer conducted. The principal vocalists were Madame Evans-Warwick, Mrs. Payton, Miss Agnes Larkcom, and Mr. T. Harrex. The choir also sang several part-songs. Mr. Stimpson presided at the organ, and Mr. Wale at the piano.

BRADFORD.—Mr. A. Moorhouse gave a musical and dramatic entertainment on Tuesday evening, January 31, in the Lecture Hall, Thornton. Several pupils of Mr. Moorhouse gave pianoforte solos in a creditable manner. The vocal part of the programme was ably sustained by Mr. H. F. Wilson, Mr. Tom Robinson, and the Bradford Vocal Quartet. Mr. Moorhouse accompanied. —On Tuesday evening, the 7th ult., a special Choral Service was held in St. Stephen's Church, the occasion being the opening of new Choir Stalls, which have been beautifully designed by Mr. M. Brayshaw, architect, and erected under his superintendence by Mr. B. Thornton, both of this town. The usual evening service was taken, with Proper Psalms, suitable chants having been carefully selected. Travers's anthem, "Ascribe unto the Lord," was sung after the third collect; the solos being given by Mr. W. Taylor, Mr. Knight, Mr. A. Sykes, and Mr. Thornton. Mendelssohn's Judge me, O God was the anthem after the offertory. Madame Armytage gave "He shall feed His flock" (Handel) with marked effect. The "Hallelujah" Chorus, which was rendered in a masterly style, ended the service. Mr. W. Knight, the Choirmaster, conducted, and Mr. J. H. Vendall officiated as organist. The Rev. A. J. Nash, Vicar of St. John's, Bradford, preached the sermon.

BRADING.—On the 9th ult. the Amateur Orchestral Society gave its first Concert, which was very successful. The principal vocalists were Miss E. Warder, Miss Wheeler, Mr. Wheeler, and Mr. Bully.

BRIDGWATER.—Miss Holmes gave an evening Concert at the Town Hall on Monday, the 20th ult., assisted by Miss Jessie Royd, Miss Jeanie Rosse, and Mr. Harper Kearton, vocalists; Herr Carl Schneider, violin; and Herr Schuberth, violoncello and Conductor. Miss Holmes presided at the pianoforte. Herr Schuberth's solos were enthusiastically received, and Herr Schneider's violin solo was loudly re-demanded. The vocalists were also very successful. —The members of St. Mary's Choir, and others, gave a vocal and instrumental Concert at the Assembly Rooms, Royal Clarence Hotel, on the 21st ult. There was a fair audience, and the proceeds were devoted to the provision of a chancel rail.

BRIGHTON.—Mr. Sims Reeves gave a Ballad Concert at the Dome on the 20th ult., when he was assisted by Madame Marie Rozet, Madame M. Klauwell, Miss Spenser Jones, and Messrs. Herbert Reeves, H. Pyatt, and Barrington Foote (vocalists); Mr. W. Coenen (pianoforte), M. Hollman (violoncello), and Mr. G. Watts's Philharmonic Choir. Mr. Reeves sang "Come unto Me" (Coenen), "My pretty Jane," &c.; and Mr. Herbert Reeves gave "Thinking and dreaming" (B. Tours) with much success. The programme generally was of a popular character.

BRISTOL.—On Saturday, the 11th ult., the Musical Association gave the third of a series of cheap Saturday Concerts for the People in the large Colston Hall, which was, as on previous occasions, literally crammed. The programme included Haydn's Spring and a miscellaneous selection of overtures, solos, choruses, fantasias, &c. The artists were Miss Kate Probert, Miss Kate Hayes, Mr. E. T. Morgan, and Mr. W. Thomas. The chorus and band were highly efficient, Mr. George Riseley giving valuable assistance at the organ. Mr. George Gordon conducted. —On Monday, the 13th ult., Miss Farler gave her annual Ballad and Miscellaneous Concert in the Colston Hall, when there was a large and appreciative audience. Miss Farler was assisted by Madame Trebelli, Miss Clara Samuelli, Signor Vizzani, Mr. Joseph Maas, and Signor Ghiberti as vocalists, M. Musin (violinist) and Miss Mary Farler (pianoforte) as instrumentalists. Signor Bisaccia acted as Conductor. —On Thursday, the 16th ult., the Bristol Orpheus Glee Society gave their annual Ladies' (open) Night at the Colston Hall. The programme was an excellent one, and, in addition to many standard compositions, there were no less than seven glees that had never before been given by the Society. Mr. George Riseley, the Conductor, may be congratulated on the success of the performance.

CAMBRIDGE.—The members of the Musical Society gave a successful Concert in the Guildhall on Tuesday evening, the 14th ult. The vocalists were Miss Anna Williams, Miss Marian McKenzie, Mr. Frank Boyle, and Mr. Bridson; solo clarinet, Mr. G. A. Clinton; pianoforte, Mr. F. Dewberry; Conductor, Mr. C. Dewberry. An efficient choir sang a number of glees, madrigals, and part-songs, which were much applauded. At the conclusion of the rehearsal on the previous evening the choir of the Musical Society presented their Conductor, Mr. Dewberry, with a handsome testimonial, consisting of an electro-plated assiette or dessert-stand for fruit and flowers, very handsomely wrought in vine pattern, the base being engraved with the following inscription: "Cambridge Musical Society.—Presented to Wm. C. Dewberry, Esq., A.R.A.M., by the members of the chorus. February 14, 1882."

CANTERBURY.—The production of Dr. Longhurst's new Cantata, The Village Fair, at the Music Hall on the 6th ult., excited much interest, and the reception of the work must have been highly gratifying to the composer. The Cantata is a highly meritorious composition; and on the whole the performance was worthy of warm commendation. The principal vocalists were Miss Jessie Royd, Miss Jessie Griffin, and Miss Van Sinden; and there was a well-balanced choir of about fifty ladies. At the conclusion of the work, Dr. Longhurst was called forward and loudly applauded. The second part of the programme was devoted to Sterndale Bennett's May Queen, the solo parts, in addition to the artists mentioned above, being sustained by Mr. H. Guy and Mr. R. Rhodes.

CAERLEON.—The Choral Society gave its first Concert in the Town Hall on Thursday, January 26, for the benefit of the Organ Fund. The performance consisted of the first and second parts of The Creation and a short miscellaneous selection. The principal vocalists in the Oratorio were Mrs. Alfred Morris, Miss S. Morgan, Mr. J. A. White, and Mr. E. G. R. Richards. Miss Williams presided at the piano, and Mr. Graham White at the organ. The solos and choruses were well rendered, and the Concert was highly successful. Mr. E. B. Newman conducted.

CHICHESTER.—On Monday, the 20th ult., at their practice, the members of the chorus and the committee of the Musical Society presented to their honorary Conductor, Mr. T. E. Aylward, a handsome pedaler, by Messrs. Pleyel, Wolff and Co., in testimony of their esteem and gratitude for his great services in the cause of music in Chichester. The instrument was presented on behalf of the choir by the Rev. Canon Awdry, one of the vice-presidents of the Society.

DOWNSHAM.—The Philharmonic Society gave the first Concert of the ninth season in the Public Hall on the 1st ult., when the second part of Mendelssohn's Elijah was well rendered. The principal vocalists were Mrs. J. J. Nunn, Miss Bertha Alden, Mr. D. Jones, and the Rev. F. C. Skeg. Mr. Bray was leader of the orchestra, and Mr. T. C. Carey conducted. The second part of the programme was miscellaneous.

DUMFRIES.—The first Philharmonic Concert of the season was given on Thursday, the 9th ult., in the Mechanics' Institute. The first part of the programme comprised Spohr's Last Judgment, and the second part was miscellaneous. Spohr's Oratorio was admirably rendered by the members of the Society, the chorus-singing being especially good. The accompaniments were effectively given by Messrs. Starkey and Clapperton on the pianoforte and harmonium, and Mr. Sheriff Hope conducted.

EDINBURGH.—On January 30 Mr. J. S. Curwen gave a lecture on "The Musical Condition of England," at the Philosophical Institution, before a large audience. Mr. Curwen considered that the progress of music in a country depended upon the opportunities it possessed for a culture of the art, and not upon what was vaguely termed national capacity. It was a question of evolution and of favourable circumstances. There was plenty of musical talent and enthusiasm in England, he said, which only needed direction. Sound elementary training must be the basis of culture.—At Sir Herbert Oakeley's Organ Recital, on the 9th ult., the programme was exclusively composed of pieces selected for the Reid Concert, this preliminary performance being indeed not inappropriately termed the "Reid Recital." Two of the songs were excellently sung by a student. The larger portion of the crowded audience consisted of students and their friends.

ENNISKILLEN, IRELAND.—Mr. Arnold's seventh Concert was given in the Town Hall on the 17th ult., when Handel's Judas Maccabæus and Macfarren's Cantata May Day were performed by the Church Choir, assisted by Miss Macdonald. Mr. Arnold conducted.

ERITH.—Mr. Richard Lemaire gave his tenth annual Benefit Concert at the Public Hall on the 6th ult. Mr. Charles Hallé was the pianist, Mr. Harper Kearton the vocalist, and Miss Lucy Riley solo violinist. Mr. Hallé played with his accustomed skill Beethoven's Sonata Appassionata and compositions by Chopin, Mendelssohn, Schumann, Schubert, and Brahms. Miss Riley contributed two pieces with much success. Mr. Kearton was also cordially received.

FAVERSHAM.—The members of Mr. Pearson's class gave a very good performance of Handel's Messiah on the 15th ult., in the Lecture Hall, it being the first time an entire Oratorio has been given in Faversham. The class numbers about 100. The whole of the solos were sung by the members of the class, the only professional aid being four additional instrumentalists.

FENNY STRATFORD.—A very successful Concert of sacred music was given in the National Schoolroom, in aid of the school funds, on Thursday evening, the 2nd ult. The solo vocalists were Mrs. W. Kirby, Misses Kimbell, Wodhams, Gates, Stone, Messrs. W. Kerby, and E. C. R. Langley. Mr. S. D. Bird presided at the harmonium, and Mr. Langley at the pianoforte.

GOLCAR.—On Saturday evening, the 4th ult., a very successful Musical Festival was held in the Baptist Chapel, when selections from Judas Maccabæus were given. The principal vocalists were Miss Norton, Mr. E. Anty, and Mr. H. Rickard. There was an excellent band, which, with the choir, numbered 140 performers. At intervals in the programme organ solos were given by Mr. J. H. Pearson and Master Pearson.

GREENOCK.—On Tuesday, the 14th ult., the Tonic Sol-fa Harmonic Society gave a Miscellaneous Concert, consisting of glees and part-songs, in the Temperance Institute. The soloists were Miss Effie Goodwin, Mr. Henry Leslie, and Mr. George Spraggan. The hall was crowded, and the pieces well received. Mr. J. M. Kay accompanied, and Mr. John McCallum conducted.

HADDINGTON, N.B.—Mr. R. E. Martin, Organist of Trinity Episcopal Church, gave an Organ Recital at the Church on the 21st ult. The programme was selected from the works of Bach, Batiste, Beethoven, Lemmens, Ouseley, &c. The Recital was attended by a very appreciative congregation.

HAREWOOD.—On Thursday evening, January 26, a Choral Service under the conductorship of Mr. Brooks, the Choirmaster, was held in the fine old Parish Church in the park of the Earl of Harewood. The service, intoned by the Rev. Mr. Best, of Peterborough, commenced with the Processional Hymn, "Forward be our watchword," to a tune by H. Smart. The special psalms were sung to Chants by Barnby, Woodward, and Russell. The Canticles (Ebdon's Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in C) were rendered very creditably by the choir, enlarged for the occasion. The anthem after the third collect, "Glorious is Thy Name," from Mozart's Twelfth Mass, and the second anthem before the sermon, "Lift up your heads," from Handel's Messiah, were rendered with much precision. The sermon, dwelling on the spiritual and devotional aspect of sacred music, was preached by the Hon. and Rev. J. W. Lascelles, Rector of Goldsborough. The lessons were read by the Revs. J. Palmer and J. Toogood. After the service an Organ Recital was given by Mr. Alfred Benton, of Leeds. The organ, built by Mr. Abbott, of Leeds, has two manuals and a full pedal and twenty stops, four of which formed part of the old organ.

HEYSE, ROYTON.—On Wednesday evening, the 8th ult., a Concert was given in St. Mark's Schoolroom, the vocalists being Miss Greaves, Miss S. Greaves, Messrs. Smith, Greaves, Howard, Peplow, and Brette. Accompanist, Mr. Joseph Greaves.

HUDDERSFIELD.—On Monday, the 6th ult., Haydn's Oratorio, The Creation was performed in Armitage Bridge National School, under the conductorship of Mr. W. Casson. The principal singers were Miss Smythe, Messrs. Beaumont and Bartin, all of whom were very efficient. The choruses were excellently rendered, and the accompaniments well played by the band, under the leadership of Mr. Jabez Gledhill.

HUNGERFORD.—The members of the Choral Society gave an excellent performance of Dr. Stainer's Cantata The Daughter of Jairus in the Corn Exchange, at their annual Concert, on Thursday, Jan. 26.

The solo vocalists were Mrs. Wilson-Osman, Mr. Arthur Hooper, and the Rev. J. Swire. Mr. G. H. Hidden conducted, and also contributed a pianoforte solo. The second part was miscellaneous, and included some part-songs, well rendered by the choir.

ILFRACOMBE.—The sixteenth Concert of the Choral Society was given at the Oxford Hall on Tuesday evening, January 31. Smart's Cantata The Bride of Dunkerron formed the principal feature of the programme. The solos were well rendered by Miss Julia Jones, Mr. John M. Hayden, and Signor Montecco. There was a band, led by Mr. M. G. Rice, and the choruses were sung by members of the Society. Mr. B. P. Willis conducted. The second part was miscellaneous, and included a violoncello solo, excellently played by Mr. J. Pomeroy.

LAMBOURN.—The Choral Society gave a successful Concert in the National Schoolroom, on the 20th ult. The programme included glees, part-songs, &c., by Callcott, Smart, Hatton, and others, all of which were well rendered. Mr. G. H. Swift presided at the piano, and the Rev. J. Edgell conducted.

LEDGER.—The annual Concert of the Choral Society was given on Thursday, January 26, when Handel's Oratorio Judas Maccabæus was performed. The solo vocalists were Miss Julia Jones, Miss Hampton, Mr. Fredericks, and the Rev. J. H. Lambert. Mr. W. E. Jones conducted, Mr. T. F. Davis presided at the pianoforte, and the band was under the leadership of Mr. J. Hooper.

LINCOLN.—Messrs. F. P. and A. Conlon gave an Evening Concert in the Masonic Hall on Monday, the 20th ult., when an excellent programme was well rendered by the following artists: Miss Lily Marshall Ward, Miss Jessie Marshall Ward, Mr. Edwin Longmore, Mr. Frederick Shaw; solo violin, Mr. F. Sydney Ward; Conductor and accompanist, Mr. F. Marshall Ward.

MALTON.—Miss Marshall gave a Concert in the Assembly Room on the 10th ult., assisted by Miss Hilda Wilson, Mr. C. R. Moxon, and Mr. Toogood, vocalists, and a small orchestra. Mr. J. W. Marshall accompanied at the pianoforte. The first part of the programme consisted of selections from The Messiah, all of which were well rendered. The second part was miscellaneous, and included a Trio of Reissiger's, excellently played by Mr. Smith (violin), Mr. Groves (violoncello), and Mr. Marshall (pianoforte).

MANCHESTER.—An Organ Recital was given on Friday, the 10th ult., at Messrs. Richardson and Son's Central Organ Works, by Mr. W. H. Jude, of Liverpool, on the grand organ for the Congregational Church, Heywood. Mr. Jude's performance was highly appreciated.

NEWBURY.—A number of local residents assembled at the Rectory on January 30 to witness a gratifying presentation to Mr. James H. Godding, who for half a century has held appointments as Organist of three churches successively in the town and neighbourhood. The Rector, after an appropriate speech, handed Mr. Godding a cheque for £85, which had been subscribed for by all without personal application, and which he said was a spontaneous tribute of admiration for the manner in which he had fulfilled the duties of his position for so many years.—The Amateur Orchestral Union gave two Concerts on the 21st ult., in the Town Hall, which were attended by large audiences. The concerts were under the patronage of the Earl of Carnarvon, and were in aid of the Newbury Literary and Scientific Institution. Mr. W. Dines Eatwell conducted. The vocalists were Miss Marianne Fenna, Miss Cravino, and Mr. C. H. Curtis. Miss Annie Ward's violin solos were highly appreciated.

NORWICH.—The second vocal and instrumental Concert for charitable purposes was given in the Schoolroom, Felthorpe (kindly lent for the occasion), on Wednesday, the 1st ult., by the Norwich Quartet Party, Messrs. Asker, Claburn, Cropley, and Mallett, on behalf of the Norfolk and Norwich Hospital. The various items were well received, the excellent solo-playing of the Misses McMichael being thoroughly appreciated.—At the Concert of the Norfolk and Norwich Musical Union at St. Andrew's Hall, on the 10th ult., an interesting programme was presented. Spohr's sacred Cantata The Christian's Prayer was well rendered, the solo parts being effectively given by Madame Jarratt, Miss Alden, Messrs. Meers and Kinnell. This was followed by an Andante religioso, composed by the Conductor, Dr. Bunnett, the violin solo being played by Mr. F. Noverre. There was also a short selection from Dr. Bexfield's Israel Restored, portions of Henry Smart's Jacob; and the Concert concluded with Mendelssohn's As the Hart pants, the solo in which was excellently sung by Madame Jarratt.

OLDHAM.—On Tuesday evening, the 7th ult., the Apollo Musical Society gave its monthly Concert in the Schoolroom, Waterloo Street. The programme was well rendered under the direction of Mr. J. Greaves.

OXFORD.—On Thursday evening, the 2nd ult., Mr. John F. Probert gave a successful Ballad Concert in the Town Hall, which was well attended. The artists were Miss Jessie Jones, Madame Evans-Warwick, Mr. John F. Probert, and Mr. Franklin Clive. Mr. J. G. Slapofski contributed two violin solos, and Mr. Franklin presided at the pianoforte.

PEEBLES, N.B.—On Friday, the 3rd ult., a very successful Concert was given by the Edinburgh Select Choir, in the great hall of the Chambers' Institution, under the auspices of the Peebles Young Men's Christian Association. The programme, which consisted of glees, madrigals, part-songs, and solos, was well rendered throughout. Mr. Henry Hartley conducted.

PLYMOUTH.—An excellent performance of Handel's Samson was given by the members of the Choral Association in the Guildhall, on Tuesday, the 7th ult., before a large audience. The solo singers were Miss Annie Marriott, Miss Marian McKenzie, Mr. Barton M'Guckin, Mr. Stanley Smith, and Signor Foli. The trumpet obbligato in "Let the bright seraphim" was well played by Mr. Fly. The orchestra was good, and the rendering of the choruses was highly satisfactory.

READING.—The second Concert of the Reading Glee and Madrigal Society was given in the Town Hall on Wednesday evening, the 15th ult., when an interesting programme was provided. Several old glees and madrigals, besides modern part-songs, were included, the excellence of the selections being denoted by the names of the following composers: Edwardes, Festa, Webbe, Gibbons, Morley, Mornington, Mendelssohn, Pinsuti, Gaul, Caldicott, and Stewart. The soloists were Mrs. J. P. Wilson, Miss M. A. Lyne, and Mr. A. Kanningham, and their contributions were most successful. Mr. F. J. Read, Mus. Bac., accompanied ably, as usual, and Mr. J. C. B. Tirburt conducted.

REDDITCH.—Mr. A. Wyatt Mortimer, Organist and Choirmaster of Feckenham Parish Church, gave a Chamber Concert on Tuesday evening, January 31, when the following artists assisted: vocalists, Miss Blanthorne and Mr. E. M. Mortimer; violin, Mr. Fred. Ward; violoncello, Mr. J. Owen; and pianoforte, Mr. Mortimer. The programme was varied and well selected, and the Concert most successful.—The Choral Society gave two Concerts in the Assembly Room on Monday and Tuesday, the 13th and 14th ult. The programme, which was the same at both Concerts, consisted, for the first part, of Mendelssohn's 42nd Psalm, in which the solos were taken by Mrs. Hiccox; and, for the second part, Birch's Pastoral Operetta, The Merry Men of Sherwood Forest, was given. The principals soloists were Mrs. A. Warner, Mr. F. Duggan, and Mr. Edward Hill. The band and chorus numbered upwards of 100. Mr. F. Laugher led, and Mr. A. Bell conducted.

REDRUTH.—On Monday, the 20th ult., a Concert was given at the Druids' Hall by Mr. B. W. Fisher, M.A., assisted by Miss Clara Dowle, Miss Lemin, Mr. Hollow, and Mr. Johns. Miss Dowle's singing was much admired, and both she and Miss Lemin were encored in several of their songs. The part-songs were well rendered. Mr. Fisher contributed some dramatic recitations.

RYDE.—On the 16th ult. an excellent performance of Mr. P. H. Diemer's Bethany was given by the Society formed by Mr. W. Woods. The band and chorus numbered eighty. The soloists were Madame K. Sutherland, Mrs. W. Woods, Mr. K. Roche, and Mr. O. B. Gabell. Conductor, Mr. W. Woods.

SALISBURY.—Mr. Augustus Aylward gave his second Popular Concert at the Assembly Rooms on Wednesday evening, January 30. The vocalists were Miss Coates, Miss Greenly, and the Rev. H. J. Morton. The orchestra, numbering thirty-two performers, played several pieces, including the Overture to Zauberflöte. Miss Harding contributed a pianoforte solo, which was encored. Mr. Augustus Aylward conducted.—Mr. John M. Hayden gave a Ballad Concert at popular prices in the Hamilton Hall on Monday evening, the 6th ult. Miss Powell, Master Naish, Mr. Wade, Mr. Hayden, and Mr. Crick were the soloists. Mr. J. G. Buttifant accompanied the songs, and the Salisbury Vocal Union gave an excellent selection of part-songs under the direction of Mr. Hayden. The Concert was a great success, the hall being crowded in every part.

SCARBOROUGH.—An excellent performance of Handel's Messiah was given in the Circus, St. Thomas Street, on Monday evening, January 30, by the members of the Choral and Orchestral Union, under the conductorship of Mr. Henry Hill, jun. The solos were well rendered by Miss A. Woods, Miss M. Rigg, Mr. McDonald, and Mr. Nutton. The band was led by Mr. Brooke, and Mr. Palin Saxby presided at the harmonium.

SPALDING.—A performance of Handel's Acis and Galatea was given in the Corn Exchange on the 9th ult. by Mr. Price's Choral Society. A band of amateurs rendered the accompaniments. Miss Fisher took the part of Galatea, Mr. Banks was Acis, Mr. Jones, Damon, and Mr. Smith, Polypheme. The rendering of the Serenata was highly creditable.

STANSTEAD.—On the 8th ult. a Concert was given in the Parochial Schoolroom by the Church Choir, assisted by several amateurs of the neighbourhood. The choir, ably conducted by Mr. Hodges, the Organist, rendered the choruses with much precision and effect, the accompaniments being well played on the pianoforte by Mr. T. Harrison, jun. The principal vocalists were the Misses Pulteney, Miss Gilbey, Messrs. Ferris and Whall, all of whom were highly successful.

STEVENAGE.—The members of the Cricket Club gave a Concert in the Town Hall on the 2nd ult., when an attractive programme of classical music was highly appreciated. The music on the whole was extremely well given, Miss Bowby and Miss M. Sheppard being especially successful in their songs. Mr. Kennedy's playing was also a feature of the Concert. Mr. Warr conducted.

STOCKPORT.—The third Concert of the season, given by the Musical Society, took place in the Armoury on Wednesday, the 8th ult. The artists were Mr. Charles Hallé, Madame Norman-Néruda, and Miss Catherine Pickering. The orchestra numbered forty-two professional players, and the programme included Beethoven's Pastoral Symphony, the Overtures to Ruy Blas, Oberon, Lohengrin, Zampa, the "Intermezzo, Valse lente, et pizzicati," from Délibes' Sylvia, Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto, and Wieniawski's Polonaise in A, the two last named being finely played by Madame Néruda, who, in response to an encore, played a Mazurka by Wieniawski. Miss Pickering's singing was highly appreciated. The concert was conducted by Mr. Jos. Bradley, Mus. Bac.

WALSALL.—A Concert was given in the Agricultural Hall on Thursday evening, the 9th ult., by the Parish Church Choir, the object being to reduce the debt on the organ. A miscellaneous programme was excellently rendered. The artists were Miss Johnson, Mr. Maas, and Mr. Evans, vocalists; Mr. Abbott, violin; M. Van Biene, violoncello; and Dr. Heap, pianoforte.

WHITBY.—On Monday evening, the 13th ult., Dr. Spark, Organist of the Leeds Town Hall, delivered his popular lecture on "English Glees and Part-songs" in St. Hilda's Hall. The illustrations were well rendered by the Yorkshire St. Cecilia Quartet. Dr. Spark presided at the pianoforte.

WHITEHAVEN.—On Tuesday evening, the 14th ult., John Farmer's Oratorio Christ and His Soldiers was performed in one of the public halls by the members of the Holy Trinity Church Choir and a few friends, under the conductorship of Mr. W. H. Bates, Organist to the church named. There was a small but efficient band, led by Mr. J. H. Brown, a talented local amateur. The soloists were obtained from Whitehaven and Workington.

WIMBLEDON.—On the 1st ult. an Orchestral Concert was given in the Drill Hall by members of the Wimbledon Musical Society, under the direction of Mr. Sumner. Haydn's Symphony in D minor was well rendered, as was also Entr'acte No. 2, from Schubert's Rosamunde. Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto No. 1, in C, was very ably performed; and Mendelssohn's "Cornelius" March, played in a brilliant manner, brought an excellent Concert to a close.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—The third Subscription Concert of the Festival Choral Society was given in the Agricultural Hall on the 8th ult. The solo vocalists were Miss Eva de Farbsstein, Mr. J. D'Arcy Ferris, and Mr. J. H. Blower. Mendelssohn's Judge me, O God, was well rendered by the choir, as were also several part-songs. A feature in the evening was the performance of Hummel's Septet, finely played by Dr. C. S. Heap, Messrs. Abbott, D'Anson, Nicholson, Probin, Van Biene and A. Dubrucq. Dr. Heap conducted.

YORK.—The Concert of the Musical Society on the 9th ult. terminated the present season most successfully. The artists were Miss Clara Samuell, Madame Trebelli, Signor Vizzani, and Signor Ghilberti, vocalists; M. Musin, violin; and Signor Bisaccia, solo pianist and accompanist. Mr. Burton conducted.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. James George White, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Swithin's, Cannon Street, E.C.—Mr. T. Troman, Mus. Bac., Oxon., Organist and Choirmaster to Handsworth Parish Church, Birmingham.—Mr. Henry Sawyer to St. John's Episcopal Church, Dumfries, N.B.—Mr. Algernon S. Wilde, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church, Wymondham.—Mr. W. M. Gaito to the Parish Church, Great Horton, Bradford.—Mr. George H. Hidden, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church, Rugby.—Mr. John Wardle, Organist and Choirmaster to St. James's Episcopal Church, Stonehaven, N.B.

DEATHS.

On January 21, at 11, Cavendish Place, Cavendish Square, Signor CESARE VASCHETTI, aged 55.

On January 27, WILLIAM BRUNT, of Bristol, aged 81.

On the 2nd ult., at 15, Westbourne Place, Eaton Square, Signor FABIO CAMPANA, aged 67.

On the 3rd ult., suddenly, JAMES MALTSTER, for many years a most faithful and valued assistant to Messrs. Robert Cocks and Co., New Burlington Street, aged 66.

On the 4th ult., at his residence, Elsham Road, Kensington, W., JOHN HILES.

On the 4th ult., G. A. CHALLENGER, pianoforte manufacturer, aged 53.

On the 9th ult., at 33, Oakley Square, N.W., JOHN, eldest son of the late RALPH ALLISON, of Wardour Street, Soho, aged 51.

On the 16th ult., at Richmond, J. CALLCOTT, aged 81.

On the 22nd ult., at her residence, Belgrave Square, the DOWAGER COUNTESS OF ESSEX (MISS STEPHENS), aged 88.

Now ready.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION, with various improvements and many additional Chants, of THE PSALTER, arranged for Chanting. With appropriate English Chants. Edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSLEY, Bart., M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon., Organist and Choirmaster of York Minster.

Edition I., in Post 8vo, with the chants in short score. Cloth, 2s.
Edition II., in Foolscap 4to, large type, with the chants in short score. Cloth, 4s.

Edition III., in Imperial 32mo. Words only. Cloth, 6d. With Proper Psalms, 1s. The Proper Psalms separately, 3d.

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION OF THE CANTICLES, &c. First Series.

I. Post 8vo, chants in short score. 6d.

II. Foolscap 4to, chants in short score. 1s.

III. In 32mo. Words only. 1d.

When this new Edition is required, instead of the original Work (which is on sale in all its original forms), orders should be specific for "REVISED EDITION."

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION OF THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. A Collection of Single Chants, Ancient and Modern, appropriated to the Daily Psalms, Canticles, and Hymns in the Book of Common Prayer. The Chants correspond with those of the "Psalter," and are similarly numbered. Edited by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon.

8vo, in paper cover, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d. Foolscap 4to, large type, paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MRS. FARRAR-HYDE (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Grafton Terrace, 53, Stamford Street, Ashton-under-Lyne.

MISS S. A. SABEL (Soprano).

For Concerts and Lessons, Warmley Lodge, Burnt Ash Lane, Lee.

MISS LEYLAND (Contralto).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 6, Wilton Street, Oxford Road, Manchester.

MR. T. W. HANSON (Tenor).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 19, Belvoir Road, Lordship Lane, S.E.

MR. HOWARD LEES (Bass).

For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, &c., Concert Parties arranged for, address, Delph, Manchester.

THE HARP.—Miss LOCKWOOD, Harpist to the Carl Rosa Company, will be happy to give LESSONS on the above Instrument. Address, Her Majesty's Theatre, and 6, Frederick Place, Gray's Inn Road, W.C.

ST. PETER'S, Bournemouth.—There will be three VACANCIES in the CHOIR HOME at Easter. Boys are given a comfortable home, board and education free. Good voice indispensable. Apply to the Organist, 5, Church Terrace, Bournemouth.

CARLISLE CATHEDRAL.—TENOR SINGER (to take the Solos) and LAY CLERK WANTED. Salary, £80 per annum. For particulars and terms of engagement apply to S. G. Saul, Esq., Chapter Clerk, Carlisle, to whom testimonials of character and musical efficiency must be sent not later than March 11 next.

CHURCH CHOIRS.—TENOR VOICES.—One or two Gentlemen, in exchange for their services in a Voluntary Choir in Holloway, can have an excellent education given to a son or daughter respectively in a well-known school. X. Z., Holloway Press, 45, Seven Sisters' Road, N.

THE ORGANIST of St. Andrew's, Westminster, would be glad to meet with a Gentleman who would give his services as DEPUTY, in return for Organ Lessons and Practice. Address, Mr. Hatch, 243, Vauxhall Bridge Road.

ORGANIST (a Communicant and Churchman) REQUIRED at Easter for St. Paul's, Vicarage Gardens, Kensington, W. Sunday services only, morning and evening. Weekly choir practice. Surpliced choir. Salary, £40. Apply to Rev. W. E. Haigh, 26, Campden Grove, Kensington, W.

VOLUNTARY ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED for a Congregational Church in the North of London. Two services on Sunday and weekly practice. The organ is a fine new instrument of two manuals, built by HÖLDRICH. Use of organ for lessons and practice. Address, Organist, care of Messrs. J. G. King and Son, 10, Bolt Court, Fleet Street, E.C.

TUNER and REPAIRER of PIANOS, HARMONIUMS, and AMERICAN ORGANS WANTED, for outdoor work at a seaside town. Salary, £2 per week and commission on all new work and sales brought to the shop. Apply personally to Messrs. J. and J. Hopkinson, Piano Manufacturers, 235, Regent Street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER.—A Young Man, having just finished his time at a large Provincial Establishment, seeks an ENGAGEMENT as TUNER. Unexceptional references. Address, W. P., 24, Lucius Street, Torquay.

THE Advertiser can recommend, as possessing exceptional experience and qualifications, a Lady to MANAGE the COUNTER TRADE of a MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Salary not so much an object as a comfortable situation, in or out of the house. Address, B. Z., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

LADY ASSISTANT in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE. One of thoroughly good experience required for the country. Address, with testimonials, carte, &c., to Mr. Stedman, 12, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, a LADY ASSISTANT in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE in the country. Must be a first-class Pianist and well acquainted with the Sheet Music Trade. Good salary to an experienced person; none other need apply. Address (stating terms, with testimonials and carte) to Mr. Stedman, Musical Agency, 12, Berners Street, W.

TUNER and REPAIRER.—One of good experience, for the country. Apply to Mr. Stedman, Musical Agency, 12, Berners Street, W.

FOR SALE or EXCHANGE.—A COUNTRY PRACTICE, established over fifteen years, the Advertiser, through long-continued ill-health, being obliged to leave the neighbourhood. To a Gentleman of experience as Organist, Pianist and Conductor, this offers a really good opening. Address, Conductor, care of Mr. Stedman, Musical Agency, 12, Berners Street, W.

FOR SALE, large AMERICAN ORGAN, by CLOUGH and WARREN. Specially constructed. 13 sets of reeds of 24 octaves each, and one of 1 octave; 19 stops. This instrument possesses a magnificent pipe-like tone and great power, together with great delicacy and unusual variety in the solo stops. Equally suitable for a small Church or for private use. In perfect order, manufactured in November, 1879. Cost 130 guineas. Price £80 cash. For further particulars, apply to J. B., care of Henry M. Evans, Jerusalem Chambers, Cowper's Court, Cornhill, E.C.

CHURCH ORGAN, 2 manuals, pedal bourdon, couplers, &c.; spotted metal; decorated front; a perfect instrument; to be SOLD. A reduced price taken, and credit given for half or more of money; room required for alterations to building. Particulars of W. Beales, Waterloo Place, Bromell's Road, Clapham.

THREE-MANUAL ORGAN, 25 stops, suitable for Church, &c., almost entirely new. W. E. Richardson, Builder to Her Majesty, Central Organ Works, Hulme, Manchester.

CC ORGAN: 2 manuals, 11 stops, 2 octaves of pedals, 4 ranks on swell, 3 on great. Suitable for Chamber or small Church. £45. Linden House, Harborne, Birmingham.

EASTER CAROL.
COME, SEE THE PLACE WHERE JESUS LAY.
Hymns Ancient and Modern (139). 3d. By the Rev. V. W. POPHAM, M.A. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

BENNETT, SIR W. STERNDALÉ.—"The May Queen." Full score. New edition. 42s.

NOVELLO, EWER and CO.'S PIANOFORTE ALBUMS. Edited by BERTHOLD TOURS. Vol. III., containing Books 7, 8, 9. Cloth gilt, 4s. For Contents see p. 150.

HOFMANN, H.—"Melusina." A Cantata. New edition. Paper cover, 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.; scarlet cloth, 4s.

GARRETT, DR.—"The Shunammite." A Sacred Cantata, for Soli, Chorus and Orchestra. 8vo, paper cover, 3s.

BERLIOZ, H.—"Treatise on Instrumentation and Orchestration." Translated by MARY COWDEN CLARKE. New edition, revised and edited by JOSEPH BENNETT. 12s.

GRAUN, C. H.—"The Passion of our Lord" ("Der Tod Jesu"). 1st Violin, 2s. 6d.; 2nd Violin, 2s. 6d.; Viola, 2s. 6d.; Violoncello and Bass, 3s. 6d.; Flutes, 1s.; Oboes, 6d.; Bassoons, 6d.

BELLERBY, E. J.—(in F). Communion Service. 8vo, 9d.

BROWN-BORTHWICK, R.—Two Kyries. 8vo, 3d.

JORDAN, C. W.—Magnificat and Nunc dimittis (Gregorian). Post 8vo, 3d.

PEARCE, C. W.—(in C). Communion Service. 8vo, 6d.

HELMORE, REV. T.—"Miserere mei, Deus" (Psalm 51). 8vo, 2d. For use during Lent.

SAUNDERS, J. GORDON.—Six Original Anglican Chants (Double and Single), for the Te Deum. 8vo, 2d.

BAUMER, H.—"O come, let us sing." Anthem. 8vo, 1s.

BUCKNALL, C.—"Darkness fell on the weary earth." Carol for Christmas or Epiphany. Post 8vo, 1d.

DAVIES, REV. S. RUSSELL.—Church Hymn Tunes. Second Series. 8vo, 1s. 6d.

HAYNE, REV. L. G., Mus. Doc.—"The Story of the Cross." Post 8vo, 4d.

SMITH, T.—"Christ our Passover," &c. The Easter Anthems. 8vo, 3d.

SYDENHAM, E. A.—"He is risen." Anthem for Easter. 8vo, 3d.

GASKELL, J.—"Daybreak." Four-Part Song. Poetry by LONGFELLOW. 8vo, 4d.

STEVENSON, FREDERICK.—"What then?" Part-Song. Words by H. J. TRUEMAN. 8vo, 1½d.

CROSS, ARTHUR H.—"The Wind on the Hill." Song. Words by ISABELLA F. MAYO. 2s.

DRIFFIELD, E. TOWNSHEND.—"Think on me." Serenade. Words by Rev. W. R. WORTHINGTON. 1s. 6d.

HANCOCK, CHARLES.—"Each flower that blooms." Song. English Words by Rev. J. TROUTBECK. 1s. 3d.

OLDHAM, S. EMILY.—"The Victoria Cross." Ballad. Words by KATE WILDING. 2s.

DAVIS, GABRIEL.—"Albany." Grande Marche Triomphale. Transcribed for the Organ by Dr. WESTBROOK. 2s.

MARRIOTT, ARTHUR.—"The Cape March." For Pianoforte. 1s. 6d.

NOTTINGHAM, CHARLES H.—"Titania." Morceau Scherzando. 1s. 6d. Tema con Variazioni. 1s. 6d.

SILAS, E.—Bourrée, No. 3. Op. 105. 1s. 6d.

VERRINDER, DR. C. G.—Original Compositions for the Organ. 2s. Contents:—

No. 1. Élegie, in C. No. 4. Introductory, Voluntary in C.
" 2. Pastorale, in F. " 5. Postlude, in B flat.

" 3. Melodia, in A. " 6. In Memoriam, in B flat.

STEPHENS, CHARLES E.—Concluding Voluntary for the Organ, for use in Lent. 1s. 6d.

REDUCED PRICES:—

ILIFFE, F.—"The Visions of St. John the Divine." 1s. 6d.

CARTER, G.—Communion Service. 2s.

HARMONY NOTES. Compiled by E. M. BOWLES. Price One Shilling. To be had of the Publisher, LAMBORN COCK, 23, Holles Street, W.; or of Mrs. BOWLES, at her residence, 38, Florence Road, Finsbury Park, N.

NEW COMPOSITIONS by ALFRED J. CALDICOTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (winner of Manchester and Huddersfield Glee Prizes):—

Part-Songs—	Out on the Waters ... ..	4d.
	The Haymakers ... ..	4d.
	Yule ... ..	4d.
	Jack and Jill ... ..	4d.
	Little Jack Horner ... ..	6d.
	Humpty Dumpty ... ..	6d.
	Winter Days ... ..	4d.

Songs—The New Curate and Two Spoons... .. each 2s.
Post-free of the Composer, Worcester. Special terms to Societies.

POPULAR PART-SONGS by W. W. PEARSON.

The Ironfounders (12th thousand) ... ..	3d.
The Stormy Petrel (soprano or tenor and bass solos) ... ..	3d.
The Coral Grove ... ..	3d.
Pibroch of Donuil Dhu (Sir Walter Scott) ... ..	3d.
Sweet Spring (madrigal) ... ..	3d.
The Ocean (Barry Cornwall) ... ..	3d.
Over the mountain-side (four-part serenade) ... ..	3d.
Soul of Living Music (soprano solo and chorus) ... ..	3d.
The Jäger Chorus (5th thousand) ... ..	3d.
The River ... ..	3d.
Departed Joys (Thomas Moore) ... ..	2d.
Summer and Winter ... ..	2d.
The Anglers (6th thousand) ... ..	2d.
Sweet to live amid the mountains (10th thousand) ... ..	2d.
The Dream of Home (Thomas Moore) ... ..	2d.
There's beauty in the deep (6th thousand) ... ..	13d.
Soldier, rest! (Sir Walter Scott) ... ..	1d.
Woods in Winter (Longfellow) ... ..	1d.
Autumn (Montgomery) ... ..	1d.
The sombre shadows of the night (trio for S.A.B.) ... ..	1d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

POPULAR COMPOSITIONS by GABRIEL DAVIS.

SONGS.

WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? (New Patriotic Song.) The	s. d.
Words written by F. E. Weatherly ... ..	4 0
(Sung by Mr. THURLEY BEALE.)
KING CARNIVAL. The Words written by F. E. Weatherly	4 0
BY THE RIVER. The Words written by Herbert Gardner ...	4 0
ELSIE (The Flower Girl's Song) ... ..	4 0
(Sung by Miss ADA TOLKIEN.)

THE ZINGARA ... ..	4 0
(Sung by Miss JOSÉ SHERRINGTON.)

THE COMING YEAR. The Words written by Dean Alford	4 0
THE OLD MEADOW GATE. The Words written by R. Richardson ... ..	4 0

PART-SONGS, S.A.T.B.

THE THREE STARS ... ..	0 2
THE KNIGHT'S RETURN. 5th Edition ... ..	0 2
GOD SAVE THE PRINCE. 18th Edition ... ..	0 2
THE DISTANT SEA. 5th Edition ... ..	0 2
TO THE WOODS. 5th Edition ... ..	0 2
HARK! 'TIS MUSIC. 6th Edition ... ..	0 2
THE HOUR OF REST. 4th Edition ... ..	0 2
DAME WIGGINS OF LEE. (Humorous.) 5th Edition ... ..	0 2
DAME TROT. (Humorous.) 3rd Edition ... ..	0 2
WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? (Patriotic Part-Song. For T.T.B.B.) 2nd Edition ... ..	0 3

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W., and 80 & 81, Queen Street, E.C.

WILLIAM J. YOUNG'S

Popular Part-Songs for S.A.T.B.

1. I love the merry spring-time ... ..	22nd thousand net	s. d.
2. Gaily through the greenwood ... ..	40th do.	0 2
3. O welcome, merry May ... ..	7th do.	0 2
4. The mountain maid ... ..	6th do.	0 2
5. Come o'er the mountain ... ..	8th do.	0 2
6. Hail, merry, merry Christmas ... ..	18th do.	0 2
7. Songs of praise the angels sang ... ..	6th do.	0 3
8. Blow, ye balmy breezes, blow ... ..	8th do.	0 3
9. Fairy revels ... ..	11th do.	0 3
10. Oh! peaceful vale of rest ... ..	6th do.	0 2
11. The merry bird ... ..	5th do.	0 3
12. Come, let us be merry and gay ... ..	5th do.	0 3
13. Forest echoes ... ..	9th do.	0 3
14. Haste, ye merry elves ... ..	5th do.	0 3
15. The streamlet (with soprano solo) ... ..	3rd do.	0 3
16. Sunshine and shadow ... ..	3rd do.	0 2
17. Sunny rays (with soprano solo) ... ..	3rd do.	0 3
18. A happy New Year ... ..	3rd do.	0 3
19. The coming of Spring ... ..	3rd do.	0 3
20. England's Glory ... ..	5th do.	0 3
21. A merry Christmas to you all ... ..	4th do.	0 3
22. The air resounds with music sweet ... ..	2nd do.	0 2
23. To a sleeping child ... ..	2nd do.	0 2
24. Our National Church ... ..	2nd do.	0 3
Ditto (Organ copy) ... ..	1st do.	1 6

May be sung without fee or licence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW SONG.—"I am a zephyr free." Written and Composed by ROBERT BRUCE. Price 1s. 6d. Copies may be obtained of Mr. S. J. FIELDER, 22, Southwater Road, St. Leonards.

THIRD EDITION.

Jack and the Beanstalk

COMIC CANTATA

FOR FOUR SOLO VOICES AND CHORUS

BY

EDMUND ROGERS.

Price 3s. net.

"The Grosvenor Choral Society gave its 119th Concert at the Grosvenor Hall on Friday, the 20th inst., when the principal work in the evening's programme was a comic cantata, entitled 'Jack and the Beanstalk,' by Edmund Rogers. The work performed on Friday is for four solo voices and a chorus, and is a musical setting of the well-known nursery legend. The music of the cantata is conceived in a vein in harmony with the spirit of the story, and consists of eight numbers, preceded by a characteristic overture. It is unnecessary to specify in detail the whole of the several numbers, but the soprano air, 'For when he set them in the earth,' is a very happy conception, well worked out, marked by much flowing and spontaneous grace, and is withal thoroughly original. The solo allotted to the alto is equally well conceived, and forms a fitting companion to it; the bass solo, 'Fee, fi, fee, fo, fum,' being very quaintly scored, and the most humorous number in the work. Many of the choruses are marked by much attractive writing. . . . The hall was crowded."—The Queen, January 28, 1882.

"The 119th monthly Concert of the Grosvenor Choral Society was given at the Grosvenor Hall on the 20th ult., under the direction of Mr. G. R. Egerton. The principal feature in the programme was the comic cantata 'Jack and the Beanstalk,' by Edmund Rogers."—The Musical Times, February 1, 1882.

"We can recommend 'Jack and the Beanstalk,' . . . it is tuneful, and not difficult, and would serve to pass away a winter's evening pleasantly."—The Graphic.

"Will doubtless prove very popular, and be heard in many drawing-rooms."—Society.

For special terms to Choral Societies apply to the Composer, 4, Melrose Gardens, West Kensington Park, W.

TWO-PART SONGS

WITH PIANOFORTE ACCOMPANIMENT

(For Schools and Classes).

MONARCH WINTER ... Poetry by W. S. PASSMORE	2d.
THE SKYLARK ... ..	R. Y. STURGES 2d.
A SCHOOLBOY'S SONG ... ..	EDWARD LAWRENCE 2d.
A SPRING WELCOME ... ..	" " 2d.

MUSIC BY

STEPHEN S. STRATTON.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

DICKORY, DICKORY, DOCK. Humorous Glee for S.A.T.B. By ALFRED ALLEN, Composer of the celebrated Humorous March, "A Race between Two Walking Dolls." Price 4d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW FOUR-PART SONGS by ALFRED J. SUTTON. O SPIRIT OF THE SUMMER-TIME. Poetry by W. ALLINGHAM. 2d. "This piece is beautiful. We confidently recommend this part-song to all who emulate part-singing, whether in the house or in the public concert-room."

THE SEA-KING. The poetry by BARRY CORNWALL. 4d. "The music, full throughout, is vigorous and spirited. It may be undertaken by young associations, and singers and learners alike will find its strains agreeable."

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WILFORD MORGAN'S GRAND MARCHES. "CHRISTIAN THE PILGRIM" for ORGAN, with PEDAL OBLIGATO. 24 stamps, post-free. As played at Crystal Palace, Kuhe's Festival, and Promenade Concerts. Also for Piano solo:—

MARCIA GIUBILANTI
MARCHE JOYEUSE
MARCHE MILITAIRE
MARCH IN C MINOR

Post-free, eighteen stamps each.

MORGAN and Co., 27, Charles Street, St. James's Square, London.

TO CONDUCTORS OF CHORAL SOCIETIES. Send thirty postage stamps, and receive by return a bound copy of WILFORD MORGAN'S semi-sacred cantata, "CHRISTIAN THE PILGRIM," a work admirably adapted for large or small Choral Societies; easy, but very effective. Chorus parts printed.

MORGAN and Co., 27, Charles Street, St. James's Square, London.

TO ORGANISTS.—WILFORD MORGAN'S popular semi-sacred March, "CHRISTIAN THE PILGRIM," for Organ, with pedal obligato. Post-free, 18 stamps. MORGAN and Co., 27, Charles Street, St. James's, S.W.

TO PIANISTS.—WILFORD MORGAN'S GAVOTTE in G, as played at the St. James's Theatre and Promenade Concerts with great success. Sent free for 18 stamps. MORGAN and Co., 27, Charles Street, S.W.

MUSIC TEACHER.—WANTED, an ENGAGEMENT in a School, by a Lady of experience. Good Pianist and sight reader. Would not object to assist with classes. Good references. Address, E.T., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED an ASSISTANT PIANOFORTE and MUSIC SALESMAN, who must also be a good Correspondent. Age not under 22. One who can try Pianos and American Organs neatly much preferred to an accomplished musician and composer. To a thoroughly energetic and pushing man this will be a first-class appointment. Apply, with references and carte, to J. B. Cramer and Co., 35, Church Street, Liverpool.

A YOUNG MAN, of good address, desires a RE-ENGAGEMENT in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Can Tune. A. B., 3, Grove Place, Southampton Street, Camberwell.

A CLERGYMAN wishes to place his Son, aged 16, in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE. City preferred. Address, Rev. S. S. Browne, St. James's Vicarage, Curtain Road, E.C.

WANTED, by a Young Lady, age 17, a SITUATION as IMPROVER in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Reads music at sight, and is a good Pianist. Address, A. M. H., 3, East Street, Taunton.

WANTED by a respectable Young Man, aged 25, an ENGAGEMENT in a MUSIC PUBLISHER'S and INSTRUMENT SELLER'S Town or Country, where an opportunity would occur for displaying Pianofortes, and assisting at the counter trade of Sheet Music. Five years' experience given. Replies, to state salary offered and hours of business, to S. H., Organist, care of Mr. Freeman, 20, Edward Street, Woolwich, S.E.

TUNING CONNECTION.—WANTED to PURCHASE in London or Suburbs. Particulars to E. K., 20, Windsor Road, Holloway, N.

FOR SALE, good TUNING CONNECTION in Country Town. Good returns, about £200 a year. Reason for giving up, ill-health. House and shop if required. Address, A. B., 8, North Street, Wisbeach.

MUSIC legibly COPIED, 4d. per page; transposed, 6d. per page. Guitar Lessons on moderate terms. A Young Lady of neglected education can be received as Resident Pupil. Address, prepaid, to Professional, care of Messrs. Cocks and Co., 6, New Burlington Street, London.

MUSIC carefully COPIED and TRANSPPOSED, 4d. per page. Address, D. C. T., care of Mr. Roberts, Bookseller, Ware.

ORGAN WANTED, second-hand, for large village Church, within next six months. Apply, Secretary of Organ Fund, Whissendine Brewery, near Oakham.

ORGAN WANTED.—A small second-hand Organ, in perfect order and well built, is wanted at once. It should have 8 or 10 stops, swell, and foot pedals. Price not to exceed £75. Send full description, with price, to J. M., General Apothecaries Company, Berners Street.

CC ORGAN. By London Builder, 1 manual, 6 stops, 1½ octaves of pedals; illuminated speaking pipes. £25. C. Lloyd & Co., Brighton Street, Nottingham.

CC ORGAN. By London Builder, 2 full manuals, 16 stops, oak case, illuminated speaking pipes; pedal organ, &c. Suitable for Church or Chapel. £125. C. Lloyd & Co., Organ Builders, Brighton Street, Nottingham.

PRICE £30.—FOR SALE, ORGAN, 4 stops, 2 octaves pedals, bourdons, general swell. 70, Malden Road, Haverstock Hill, N.W.

CHAMBER ORGAN for SALE.—Two manuals, 8 speaking stops, full compass of pedals. May be viewed by appointment. Apply, by letter, to J. W. Ellis, 42, Yerbury Road, Holloway.

CHURCH ORGAN for SALE, in good order. One manual; stops: 1, waldflute, 4 ft.; 2, principal, 4 ft.; 3, dulciana, 4 ft.; 4, stopped diapason and clarabella, 8 ft.; 5, open diapason; 6, coupler to pedal; 7, bourdon pedal; 2 composition and swell pedals. Price £50. Builder, SPEECHLY, London. Address, Hon. and Rev. R. Parsons, Sandhurst Rectory, Berks.

TO GENTLEMEN and CONNOISSEURS.—A new and unique drawing-room ORGAN, of most costly construction and finish, is for immediate SALE. The instrument can be played upon at the new factory of Mr. A. Hunter, 65, High Street, Clapham, S.W. This is an opportunity worthy the attention of gentlemen desiring a modern instrument for the drawing-room, it being built for this express purpose. It contains 17 stops, including vox humana and tremulant, with beautiful polished walnut case. Stops of solid ivory. The instrument cost £500. Offers are requested for the same.

WANTED, Good PEDAL BOURDON and SOUND-BOARD. Address, X. Y. Z., Novello, Ewer and Co.

ORGAN MUSIC for DISPOSAL (cheap). Bound Volumes of selected numbers, popular compositions and arrangements. List for stamp. T. Blackshaw, 16, Preston Road, Blackburn.

HARMONIUM (large), 2 rows manual, and 10 stops. A fine instrument. Also one smaller; rich Marqueterie Chiffonier, and Case of Birds, &c. Apply to T. Syer, 1, Finsbury Street, E.C.

GRAND PIANO for SALE, full compass, walnut case, in good condition, £25. Also an American ORGAN (Estey), 11 stops (sub-bass and coupler), unusually fine quality. Recently purchased for 50 guineas, and now offered for £30. Exceptional bargains. Organ suitable for drawing-room or small church. 57, Chaucer Road, Herne Hill, S.

BROADWOOD PIANOFORTE for SALE.—A 65-guinea instrument, but little used. £42 cash, or 4 guineas a quarter on the three-years system. To any railway station free. C. E. Godfrey, Music-seller, Southsea.

SOLO VIOLIN, by JOSEPH GUARNERIU. War-ranted genuine. Hill's certificate. In fine preservation, and grand tone. Price £75. Address, Violin, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

FINE old Italian VIOLIN for SALE, cheap. Grand tone and condition, from the Gillot collection, with mahogany case and Dodd Bow. Also a fine old VIOLIN, by GILKES. Address, B., Clairmont House, Anchor Head, Weston-super-Mare.

WANTED, a fine perfect VIOLIN, by STRADIVARIUS or JOSEPH GUARNERIU. Apply, M., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

VIOLINS, Tenors, Violoncellos, and Double-Basses, by CRASKE. These are the very best of all modern instruments, equal to Stradivarius and Guarnerius, at a tenth of the cost. Edward Crompton, 54, Barton Arcade, Manchester.

VIOLIN STRINGS.—The Trade and Shippers supplied with the best Italian Strings, finest in tone and unequalled in durability. Three sample Firsts sent post-free for thirteen stamps. London: Shepherd and Kilner, Music Publishers and Importers of Musical Instruments, Strings, &c., 7, Grocers' Hall Court, Poultry, E.C. Lists free.

TO VIOLINISTS.—THREE FIRST ITALIAN VIOLIN STRINGS (finest quality imported), sent post-free for thirteen stamps. Alphonse Cary, Manufacturer and Importer, Newbury, Berks. Professional violinists supplied at wholesale prices.

VIOLIN STRINGS to stand at Concert Pitch, five first (gut or silk) or two everlasting metallic strings sent free for thirteen stamps. Dean's Music Warehouse, 77, City Road, London, E.C. Established 1848. Price Lists sent free.

VIOLONCELLO, a very fine example, by W. FORSTER. A copy of Guarnerius. To be SOLD, by a Gentleman, for £50. The instrument is numbered, signed, and dated, and is still in a very fine condition. Apply, Mr. Keyworth, 20, Regent Street, Waterloo Place, London, W.

FINE Italian VIOLONCELLO for SALE. Grand tone, excellent condition. Must be sold, as former owner is deceased. K., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

FOR SALE.—A fine-toned VIOLONCELLO, by GASPAR DE SALA. Moderate price. Inquire of Mr. Withers, 24, Wardour Street.

57 MUSICAL HANDBELLS for SALE, with a 12-foot portable table, blanket, cover, &c. Offers wanted. Wm. Morrison, 197, Woodstock Road, Belfast.

OLD MUSIC BOUGHT and SOLD.—Church Music, Full Scores, Oratorios, Biographies, Histories, Treatises, Glee, Madrigals, Organ Music. Full value and cash payments. Reeves's Depot for Old Music, Fleet Street, London.

MARRIOTT and WILLIAMS, Music Publishers, Academy House, 313, Oxford Street, London. Universal Music Warehouse. Authors' Works Engraved, Printed, and Published in the best style at the most moderate charges. Estimates on application.

TO AMATEURS and PROFESSORS about to PUBLISH.—J. McDOWELL, 25, Warwick Street, Regent Street, London, undertakes Revising, Engraving, Printing, and Publishing all musical works, in the best manner, at lowest possible terms. Estimates given on receipt of MS.

IMPORTANT to MUSICSELLERS.—Having the largest varied stock of Music in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day, or if in stock posted immediately, if required. Terms upon application. London: B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster Row, E.C.

AUTHORS' WORKS CORRECTED, REVISED, and PRINTED with despatch on moderate terms. Quotations given on receipt of MSS. London: B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster Row, E.C.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 1s., post-free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing-Class Tutor, 12th edition, 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity Street, Huddersfield.

ORGAN METAL PIPE and BRASS REED MAKER. First-class workmanship. J. White, 9, Richmond Terrace, Bedminster, Bristol.

IMPROVED ORGAN PEDALS AND ACTION TO PIANOFORTES.

J. HAMILTON, Inventor and Manufacturer (established 1874) of the above, will give very liberal terms to those who will act as AGENTS for the SALE of this successful and useful INVENTION. From £3 to £5 per week is now made by Agents appointed last year. Send an addressed and stamped envelope, for the special terms to Agents, inclosed to J. Hamilton, 6, Chesterton Terrace, City Road, Bristol.

J. HAMILTON would draw the attention of those requiring PEDALS and ACTION to their Pianofortes to the correspondence on page 46 of the Musical Standard for January 21, which shows the success of Pedals made by him according to the resolution of the Organ Conference at the College of Organists. The action is easily attached to any kind of Pianoforte in a short time.

A Set of Straight Pedals and Action (30 notes), price £4 4s.
A Set of Radiating and Concave Pedals and Action (30 notes), price £5 5s.

A Set of Straight and Concave Pedals, as recommended at the Organ Conference, 1881, and Action, price £5 5s.

Full printed instructions, "How to Attach," are sent with each set. Liberal discount to the Profession and Trade. Send for testimonials and terms to J. Hamilton, 6, Chesterton Terrace, City Road, Bristol.

IMPROVED ORGAN PEDALS AND ACTION TO PIANOFORTES.

J. HAMILTON, Inventor and Manufacturer (established 1874) of the above, will give very liberal terms to those who will act as AGENTS for the SALE of this successful and useful INVENTION. From £3 to £5 per week is now made by Agents appointed last year. Send an addressed and stamped envelope, for the special terms to Agents, inclosed to J. Hamilton, 6, Chesterton Terrace, City Road, Bristol.

ORGAN PEDALS TO PIANOFORTES
TO ORGAN STUDENTS AND ORGANISTS
RUMMENS'S ATTACHMENT

(PATENTED)

Is quite free from the defects and disadvantages of other modes of attachment. Humphrey J. Stark, Esq., Mus. Bac., Oxon, says of it: "Mr. Rummens's invention is a valuable one, as it entirely obviates the objections usually raised against pedal attachments. There is not the slightest fear of injury to the Pianoforte, and the action is so contrived that rapid legato passages can be played with ease and certainty. I have much pleasure in cordially recommending the invention."

Prices and full particulars from the Inventor, Patentee, and Manufacturer, Henry J. Rummens, 102, Raitlon Road, Brixton, London.

MELBOURNE EXHIBITION, 1881.—FIRST PRIZE TO BORD'S PIANOS. On SALE, with 25 per cent. discount for cash, or on the three-years hire system, 15s. per month. Illustrated Lists free of CHAS. STILES and CO., 42, Southampton Row, Holborn, London, W.C. Second-hand Pianos on the three-years system, 10s. 6d. per month. Pianos exchanged.

CARPENTER'S IMPROVED AMERICAN ORGANS AND REED ACTIONS.
WORKS—WORCESTER, MASS., U.S.A.

Agents throughout the United Kingdom.

THE CONCERT SEASON.—The Grand Orchestral Action, 17 stops (11 sets of reeds), in new patent chapel case, is a splendid organ for concert or church use. It is the best and cheapest organ manufactured.

Pedal Organs, with one or two manuals and accessories.

The Professor's Organ, 15 stops, 7 sets of reeds, from 35 guineas.

The new COTTAGE ORGAN, 4 sets of reeds, 8 stops, including "Sub-Bass" and "Vox-Humana," 20 guineas. An effective organ.

School Organs, in elegant cases, from 12 guineas.

The PATENT "AERO-DYNAMIC EXPRESSION INDICATOR" and "VOX-HUMANA" may be had in any style of action. Organs for India and tropical countries.

N.B.—All organs warranted for six years. See that all actions have the "Carpenter" Trade Mark.

Catalogues post-free. Liberal discount for cash.

Address, John A. Matthews, Sole Wholesale Manager for Great Britain and Colonies, 9, North Place, Cheltenham.

CARPENTER'S ORGANS.—Sole Metropolitan Agents, ROBERT COCKS and Co., 6, New Burlington Street, London, W. Instruments on view. Price lists sent on application, post-free.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, supplied at wholesale prices, at J. MOORE'S, Buxton Road, Huddersfield. Prices, with drawings of every instrument, post-free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the Army, Navy, and Rifle Corps.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and T. Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c. 29, Minorities, London. List for stamp.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications made out for Organs. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing, and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. Willis, 29, Minorities, London. PRACTICE can be had on a complete Instrument.

WANTED, Second-hand FLUTE, Lot's cylinder preferred. Address, by letter, A. B., care of Messrs. Hemingham and Hollis, 5, Mount Street, W.

VIOLIN AND BOW

MAKERS AND REPAIRERS,

GEORGE WITHERS &amp; CO

(Late of Coventry Street),

WHOLESALE IMPORTERS OF

MUSICAL STRINGS

FROM ROME, PADUA, AND NAPLES.

A FINE COLLECTION OF ITALIAN INSTRUMENTS.

Bows, Cases, Music Stands, &amp;c. See Price Lists.

51, ST. MARTIN'S LANE, LONDON.

NO OTHER ADDRESS.

PARIS UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION, 1878.—
CLASS XIII.—GOLD and SILVER MEDALS, PARIS, 1878
GOLD MEDAL, PARIS, 1879; GOLD MEDAL, ROME, 1880
and TWO DIPLOMAS.

ARTISTIC HOUSE,

PARIS, 10, RUE DU FAUBOURG-POISSONNIÈRE, 10, PARIS

CH. J. B. COLLIN-MÉZIN,

STRINGED INSTRUMENT MAKER.

The celebrated Violins and Violoncellos for Soloists, which, since the adoption of the new system, are the only approved and played by the greatest masters; among others, Messrs. SIVORI, MARSIK, HOLLMANN, LEONARD, ARMIGAUD, Miss MARIE TAYAU &c., &c., Messrs. MASSART, SAUZAY, DANCLA, FRANC-HOMME, MAURIN, CHEVILLARD, JACQUARD, &c., Professors at the Conservatoire of Music, Paris.

PRICES.

VIOLIN ... £12 | TENOR ... £14 | VIOLONCELLO £20
BOW (in Pernambuco, silver-mounted, first-class), £1 4s.; Collin-Mézin, £1 12s.

Catalogues and testimonials post-free on application.

MALEY, YOUNG, & OLDFKNOW,
ORGAN BUILDERS,

Manufactory:

KING'S ROAD, ST. PANCRAS, LONDON, N.W.

ORGANS Rebuilt to suit any position, Repaired, Enlarged, Tuned, and Re-voiced (in any part of the kingdom), at very moderate charges.

Materials, workmanship, and tone guaranteed to be first-class. Specifications, estimates, and designs for chancel, bracket, chamber, and all descriptions of Organs.

N.B.—New and Second-hand Organs for Sale.

INSPECTION INVITED.

JAMES CONACHER AND SONS,
ORGAN BUILDERS,

BATH BUILDINGS, HUDDERSFIELD.

Specifications and Estimates free of charge.

A. MONK, ORGAN BUILDER.—Organs built to any specification or size, and to suit any position or limited space, in any part of the kingdom, or for foreign climates. All Organs guaranteed to be of best materials and workmanship, and constructed on the most improved principles, at moderate prices. Organs for sale or hire, or on easy terms. Price-list, specifications, estimates, and testimonials sent free. Old Organs taken in exchange or rebuilt. Additions, repairs, tunings, &c. Inspection of work solicited. 6, Sussex Terrace, top of Great College Street, Camden Town, London, N.W.

BUTLER'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

Violins, Guitars, and Banjos.

Flutes, Clarinets, and Flageolets.

Concertinas, Accordions, and Flutinas.

Harmoniums, Pianos, and Organs.

Cornets, Drums, and Band Instruments.

Musical Boxes and Musical Instruments of every description.

The largest and most varied assortment in the Kingdom.

G. BUTLER'S, 29, Haymarket, London.

Illustrated Catalogue, fifty pages, sent post-free.

EUSTACE INGRAM, Church Organ Builder, combines excellence of tone and workmanship with economy. Inspection invited. Organ Works, Burnard Place, Eden Grove, Holway Road, London, N

Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency(Established for the transaction of all Musical Business, Professional and General),12, BERNERS STREET, LONDON, W.

Office Hours, 10 to 5; Saturday, 10 to 1.

TO CONCERT-GIVERS AND ENTREPRENEURS GENERALLY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform Projectors of Concerts, Secretaries of Institutions, and Entrepreneurs generally that he is prepared to arrange for large or small parties of artists of all positions in the profession, and for Concert Tours. All details of management undertaken without the slightest trouble to those favouring Mr. Stedman with their wishes. Terms upon application.

TO THE CLERGY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform the Clergy that he has established a REGISTRY of ORGANISTS, CHOIRMEN, and CHORISTERS seeking APPOINTMENTS, which is open to their inspection, and they are invited either to call or to write stating their requirements. From his personal knowledge of the qualifications of Organists and Singers, Mr. Stedman is able to give the Clergy valuable information as a guide to selection.

CHURCH FESTIVALS arranged and carried out in all details.

CHOIR-BOYS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to supply good SOLO CHOIR-BOYS for Church Festivals, Choral Weddings, Concerts, &c.

MUSIC FOR BANQUETS, &c.

MR. STEDMAN undertakes the music (and all the necessary details) for Banquets of City Companies, Masonic Lodges, &c., at the shortest notice.

ORCHESTRAS AND CHOIRS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to provide CHOIRS and ORCHESTRAS for the performance of Oratorios and Cantatas.

MR. STEDMAN will be happy to advise his clients upon all professional matters, confidential or otherwise, either by letter or personally by previous appointment at his Offices, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

ARRANGEMENT OF SALES OF MUSICAL PROPERTY FOR 1882.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON beg to announce that they will hold their SPECIAL MONTHLY SALES OF MUSICAL PROPERTY of every description on the following dates:—

Tuesday, March 21.	Tuesday, July 25.	Tuesday, Oct. 17.
Friday, April 28.	" Aug. 15.	" Nov. 21.
Tuesday, May 23.	" Sept. —	" Dec. 19.
" June 20.

Property intended for insertion in any of the above Sales, or particulars of same sufficiently detailed for the Catalogue, should reach us ten days prior to the dates mentioned.

Auction Gallery, 47, Leicester Square, London, W.C.

[Established 1794.]

KELLY and CO., PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM MAKERS (to Her Majesty), 14 and 16, Mortimer Street, London, W.

Kelly's Organ Harmoniums are the "only instruments" of English manufacture that gained "any award" at the Dublin and Paris Exhibitions.

A liberal discount for Schools and Charitable Institutions.

Three hundred Second-hand Pianofortes by the leading makers, at all times very cheap. New Pianos (warranted), in elegant Walnut or Rosewood cases, from 19 guineas.

The Trade, Merchants, and Shippers supplied.

Monthly Sale of Musical Property.—16, Mortimer Street, London, W. About Fifty Pianofortes by Broadwood, Collard, Kirkman, Erard, Allison, Hopkinson, Brinsmead, &c. Harmoniums and Organs by Christophe, Alexandre, Trayer, Hermann, Mason and Hamlin, &c. Harps by Erard, &c. Violins, Pianoforte Small-Work, Music Stools, Sundries, &c.

MESSRS. KELLY & CO. beg to announce that they will sell by Auction, at their Mart, 16, Mortimer Street, London, W., on WEDNESDAY, March 8, 1882, the important and valuable property as stated above. The Sale will commence at 1 o'clock precisely. Catalogues may be had post-free, and goods viewed the day prior and morning of Sale.

THE

LIFE OF MOZART

INCLUDING HIS CORRESPONDENCE

BY

EDWARD HOLMES.

A New Edition, with Notes, by EBENEZER PROUT.

Cloth, Five Shillings.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FULL ORCHESTRAL SCORES

PUBLISHED BY

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

SPOHR

THE LAST JUDGMENT. English and German words ... £1 11 6
GOD, THOU ART GREAT. ditto ... 0 10 6

HANDEL

MESSIAH ... .. I 1 0

HANDEL AND MOZART

ACIS AND GALATEA. English and German words.
(Mozart's Accompaniments) ... .. I 11 6

HAYDN

CREATION ... .. I 1 0

MENDELSSOHN

ELIJAH. English and German words ... .. I 5 0

ST. PAUL. ditto ... .. I 5 0

HEAR MY PRAYER. ditto ... .. 0 6 0

SIR W. S. BENNETT

THE MAY QUEEN. New Edition ... .. 2 2 0

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published.

MINIATURES for the PIANOFORTE

COMPOSED BY

OLIVER KING.

BOOK I.—2s. net.	BOOK II.—2s. net.	BOOK III.—2s. net.
SEGUIDILLA.	RÉVERIE.	EDWARD GRIEG.
ROMANCE.	AUBADE.	ADOLPHE HENSELT.
CANON.	IDYLL.	STEPHEN HELLER.
MAZURKA.	MINUET.	FRANZ LISZT.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ARRANGEMENTS for the ORGAN

BY

J. MARTIN DUNSTAN.

	s.	d.
Allegretto (Symphony), "Hymn of Praise" ...	Mendelssohn	1 6
Adagio Cantabile (Third Symphony) ...	Haydn	1 0
Return, O God of hosts, "Samson" ...	Handel	0 6
Pious orgies, "Judas Maccabeus" ...	Handel	0 6
Lord, remember David ...	Handel	0 6
Quis est homo, "Stabat Mater" ...	Rossini	1 0
Heaven and the earth display, "Athalie" ...	Mendelssohn	1 6
To Thee cherubim, "Dettingen Te Deum" ...	Handel	1 0
And the glory of the Lord, "Messiah" ...	Handel	1 0
Andantino (from a Trio) ...	Himmel	1 0
Andante Cantabile (Sonata in C, No. 10) ...	Mozart	1 0
Largo (String Quartet. Op. 40) ...	Haydn	1 0
The people that walked in darkness, "Messiah" ...	Handel & Mozart	1 0
Angels ever bright and fair, "Theodora" ...	Handel	0 6

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW MUSIC-ENGRAVING

(STEAM PRINTING)

EXHIBITED IN

PARIS, VIENNA, and PHILADELPHIA.

Superior to Pewter Plates and Metal Types.

50 PER CENT. CHEAPER.

SPECIMENS and ESTIMATE

will be sent post-free on receipt of manuscript.

SONG, PIANO PIECE, &c. Engraving, Printing, and Paper:—

4 Pages, including Title, 100 Copies (Folio) ... .. £1 8 0

The following 100 Copies ... .. 0 4 0

ANTHEM, PART-SONG, KYRIE, HYMN, &c.:—

4 Pages, including Heading, 100 Copies (Octavo) ... .. 1 2 0

The following 100 Copies ... .. 0 2 0

OPERA, CHORUS, BAND-PART, &c.; Sacred Music of any kind; BOOK with ILLUSTRATIONS; TITLES with Views, in colours, highly ornamental; COPYING old Books, Manuscripts, Drawings, &c., by Photography and Patent Processes.

Reprint supplied.
The most perfect Machinery and a large well-trained Musical Staff enable us to supply even the largest orders within the shortest time.

PATENT PAPER TYPE COMPANY,

62, HATTON GARDEN, LONDON, E.C.

ASHDOWN & PARRY'S Catalogues of Music.

- PART 1. PIANO, ORGAN, HARMONIUM.
PART 2. VOCAL.
PART 3. HARP, CONCERTINA.
PART 4. VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, ORCHESTRA, &c.
PART 5. FLUTE, CORNET, CLARINET, &c.

Sent Gratis and Post-free to any part of the world.

1882.

Ashdown & Parry's Yellow Catalogue,
Compiled expressly for the use of the Trade, Profession, and Schools, comprises A SELECTION OF UPWARDS OF 5,000 STANDARD MUSICAL WORKS. SENT GRATIS and POST-FREE to ANY PART of the WORLD. All applications for trade terms must contain card, circular, or reference.

SYDNEY SMITH'S FOUR NEW PIECES.

SPERANZA.

ANDANTE ESPRESSIVO.

PRICE FOUR SHILLINGS.

NONCHALANCE.

CAPRICE DE CONCERT.

PRICE FOUR SHILLINGS.

I PIFFERARI.

MUSETTE MODERNE.

PRICE FOUR SHILLINGS.

NABUCO.

GRAND FANTASIA ON THE OPERA OF VERDI.

PRICE FOUR SHILLINGS.

SYDNEY SMITH'S NEW PIANO DUETS.

SEMIRAMIDE. Fantasia on Rossini's Opera	..	6	0
ROSE LEAVES. Morceau Élégant	..	5	0
BACCHANALE	..	5	0
LE RETOUR DE L'ARMÉE. Morceau Militaire	5	0

LONDON: ASHDOWN AND PARRY,
HANOVER SQUARE.

JUST PUBLISHED.

JOHANNES BRAHMS'S CONCERTO No. 2

IN B FLAT

FOR

PIANOFORTE & ORCHESTRA

ARRANGED FOR

TWO PIANOFORTES.

PRICE 40s.

SOLD AT HALF-PRICE.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published.

JOHANNES BRAHMS'S HUNGARIAN DANCES

NEW AND COMPLETE EDITION.

PIANOFORTE SOLO.

4 Books, in 1 Vol. ... s. d. net 7 6

PIANOFORTE DUET.

4 Books, in 1 Vol. ... „ 10 0

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

JOHANN SEBASTIAN BACH'S ORGAN COMPOSITIONS

EDITED BY

GRIEPENKERL AND ROITZSCH.

VOLUME IX.

Containing Concerto in G, Fugues, and other pieces never before published. Price, net, 3s.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

RITTER ALBUM

FOR THE ORGAN

A COLLECTION OF FIFTY-FOUR ORIGINAL PIECES
COMPOSED IN HONOUR OF

A. G. RITTER,

Fifty Years Organist at Magdeburg

BY THE

MOST EMINENT GERMAN COMPOSERS OF ORGAN MUSIC

EDITED BY

RUDOLPH PALME.

Price, net, 21s.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

W. A. MOZART'S PIANOFORTE CONCERTOS

For Pianoforte alone, or with Accompaniment of a second Pianoforte, String Quintet, or Full Orchestra.

REVISED AND EDITED FOR STUDY AND CONCERT-ROOM BY

DR. S. LEBERT.

Nos.	Key.	Piano Solo.		Second Piano.		Quintet
		net.	s. d.	net.	s. d.	net.	s. d.
5 (12).	F major	...	3 0	...	1 2	...	1 10
6 (10).	A major	...	3 0	...	1 2	...	1 10
7 (5).	C major	...	3 4	...	1 4	...	1 10
8 (14).	E flat major	...	3 0	...	1 4	...	1 10
12 (11).	B flat major	...	3 4	...	1 6	...	2 0
14 (8).	D minor	...	3 6	...	1 8	...	2 0
15 (1).	C major	...	3 4	...	1 6	...	2 0
16 (6).	E flat major	...	3 6	...	1 8	...	2 0
17 (2).	A major	...	3 0	...	1 4	...	1 10
18 (7).	C minor	...	3 4	...	1 6	...	2 0
19 (16).	C major	...	3 4	...	1 6	...	2 0
20 (20).	D major	...	3 6	...	1 8	...	2 0

In this edition the Concertos are numbered in chronological order, the numbers under which they are known in the old edition of Messrs.
Breitkopf and Härtel, of Leipzig, being added in brackets.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW FOREIGN PUBLICATIONS.

AGGHAZY, C.—Evening Impression, for Violin and Piano ...	s. d.	2 6
BACH, J. S.—Six Sonatas, for Piano and Violin, edited by F. Hermann ...	net	5 0
— Andante from the Italian Concerto, arranged for Violin and Piano, by Musin and D'Ernesti ...	3 6
BOHM, C.—Valse de Salon, for Piano. Op. 277 ...	4 0
BOOTH, O.—Serenade, for Voice, Violin, and Piano ...	3 6
CHOPIN.—Etude. Op. 25, No. 7, arranged for Violoncello and Piano, by J. de Swert ...	3 6
CLASSICAL and MODERN. COLLECTION of PIECES for Piano and Violin. Third Series:—
No. 1. Haydn.—“God preserve the Emperor” ...	3 0
“ 2. Bach.—Sarabande and Bourrée, from the Second English Suite ...	3 0
“ 3. — Sarabande and Gavotte, from the Third English Suite ...	2 0
“ 4. — Adagio, B minor, from the Easter Cantata ...	2 0
CORNELIS, A.—Romance, for Violin and Piano ...	4 6
CURTIS, S.—Canzonetta, Elegy, Tarantelle, for Violin and Piano ...	6 0
CZAPEK, J.—Sacred Prelude, for Orchestra. Op. 56 ...	10 0
DANCLA, CH.—The Weekdays of a Young Violin-Player. Studies for Violin. Op. 150. Book II. ...	8 0
— Ten Melodious Studies for Violin, with Accompaniment of a Second Violin. Op. 151 ...	7 0
— Violin School, with English Words ...	16 0
DÖRING, C. H.—In Summer-time. Instructive Sonata for Piano. Op. 51 ...	4 0
— Eight Characteristic Special Studies for Piano. Op. 53. Books I. and II. ...	each 4 0
DUPONT, A.—Concerto in F minor, for Piano. Op. 49 ...	19 0
FLÜGEL, E.—“Mahomets-Gesang,” for Chorus and Orchestra. German Words. Vocal Score. Op. 24 ...	8 0
FORBERG, F.—Violoncello Method. German and French Words ...	12 0
GORIA, A.—Marche Triomphale, for Piano Duet. Op. 91 ...	5 0
GOUVY, TH.—Fantasia, for Two Pianos. Op. 69 ...	9 0
JADASSOHN, S.—“Trostlied,” for Chorus and Orchestra. Score, with German and English Words. Op. 65 ...	24 0
Orchestral Parts ...	25 0
Vocal Parts ...	7 0
JOMELLI, N.—“Victimæ Paschali,” for Two Sopranos, Two Altos, Tenor and Bass, with Piano Accompaniment. Score and Parts ...	5 0
KRUG, D.—The Three Friends. Short Fantasias on favourite Operas, for Piano, six hands. Op. 349:—
No. 7. Donizetti.—“La Fille du Régiment” ...	4 0
“ 8. Nicolai.—“Merry Wives” ...	3 0
LAMPE, C.—Trio in E, for Piano, Violin, and Violoncello. Op. 1 ...	18 0
LEIDERITZ, F.—Sketches. Small Pieces for Piano. Op. 3 ...	4 0
MAILLY, A.—Andante, from the Sonata for the Organ. Op. 1 ...	2 6
MOZART.—Divertimentos, arranged for Piano Duet, by E. Naumann:—
No. 13. In F ...	3 0
“ 14. In B flat ...	4 0
“ 16. In E flat ...	5 0
RAFF, J.—“Welt-Ende—Gericht—Neue Welt.” Oratorio. Vocal Score, with German Words. Op. 212 ...	net 13 0
RIEDEL, H.—Songs from Schaffel’s “Trumpeter of Säckingen.” German and English Words, with Piano Accompaniment net ...	4 0
RÖNTGEN, J.—Concerto in D, for Piano and Orchestra. Op. 18. Parts ...	38 0
Piano Part, with Accompaniment of a second Piano ...	15 0
— Improvisata on a Norwegian Melody, for Piano ...	4 0
ROSSINI.—Overture “La Gazza Ladra,” arranged for Piano Duet, Violin (or Flute), and Violoncello ...	14 0
RÜBNER, C.—Trio for Piano, Violin, and Violoncello. Op. 9 ...	19 0
SWERT, J. DE.—Collection of Celebrated Pieces for Violoncello and Piano:—
Suite VI. Buononcini.—Sonata ...	4 6
“ VII. Pasqualini.—Sonata ...	4 6
“ VIII. Martini.—Sonata ...	4 6
Second Violoncello Part to the above ...	4 0
TARDIF, L.—Douze Prières for Organ or Harmonium ...	5 0
TERSCHAK, A.—Third Sonata for Flute and Piano. Op. 175 ...	10 6
VILBAC, R. DE.—Air de Danse, for Piano ...	3 0
— Caprice Menuet, for Piano ...	2 6
WAGNER, R.—“Götterdämmerung.” Vocal Score, with German Words. Octavo ...	net 15 0
— “Tristan and Isolde,” for Piano Solo ...	8 0
WOHLFAHRT, F.—Fifty Easy Melodic Studies for Violin. Op. 74. Book II. ...	6 0

Sold at half-price, if not marked net.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

ROSSINI'S
POSTHUMOUS SONGSIN MEMORIAM. The Words by the Rev. J. TROUTBECK ... 3s.
LA LONTANANZA. Romanza ... 4s.

Sold at half-price.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SUBSCRIPTION EDITION

OF

MOZART'S WORKS

PUBLISHED BY

BREITKOPF &amp; HÄRTEL, OF LEIPZIG.

Issued in February:

SÉRIE VI.—Vol. II.—Arias, Duos, Trios, and Quartets, with Accompaniment of Orchestra. Score ... net 18s.

SÉRIE XIV.—Quartets for two Violins, Viola, and Violoncello. Nos. 10—23. Score ... net 16s.

Subscriptions received, and single volumes sold by
NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SUBSCRIPTION EDITION

OF

PALESTRINA'S WORKS

PUBLISHED BY

BREITKOPF &amp; HÄRTEL, OF LEIPZIG.

VOL. XII.—Masses ... net 15s.

Subscriptions received, and single volumes sold by
NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

Daily Studies for the Pianoforte

BY

CARL TAUSIG.

Collected from the manuscripts, and, after the design of the composer, arranged in progressive order, furnished with instructions for their practice, and edited by

H. EHRLICH.

New edition, with English words.

Book I, 10s.; Book 2, 10s.; Book 3, 6s. Sold at half-price.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

A NEW BOOK FOR THE ORGAN

By ALEX. GUILMANT

Price 3s. net.

L'ORGANISTE PRATIQUE

BOOK 9.—CONTENTS.

Prelude, Adagio, and Fugue.

Prayer in G. | March in D.

Published by SCHOTT and Co., 159, Regent Street, London, W.

ORIGINAL

COMPOSITIONS FOR THE ORGAN

By EDWIN EVANS.

For list, see Musical Times for February.

London: EWALD and Co., 21, Upper Barnsbury Street, N.

Just published.

ALBANY

Grande Marche Triomphale, composed in honour of the Marriage of

H.R.H. PRINCE LEOPOLD,

By GABRIEL DAVIS.

TRANSCRIBED FOR THE ORGAN by W. J. WESTBROOK,

Mus. Doc., Cantab.

Price 2s. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

MIGNON'S REQUIEM

("WILHELM MEISTER")

The Words translated from the German of Goethe by the

Rev. J. TROUTBECK

THE MUSIC BY

R. SCHUMANN.

Octavo, price 1s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOW READY, NEW EDITIONS OF

Novello, Ewer &amp; Co.'s Catalogues

No. 1. ORGAN AND HARMONIUM MUSIC.

" 2. SACRED MUSIC WITH ENGLISH WORDS.

" 3. MUSIC WITH VOCAL AND ORCHESTRAL PARTS.

" 4. MUSIC FOR THE PIANOFORTE.

" 5. SECULAR VOCAL MUSIC.

" 6. SACRED MUSIC WITH LATIN WORDS.

Sent gratis and post-free.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEMS, &amp;c., FOR LENT.

All ye who weep ... ..	Ch. Gounod	3d.
Come and let us return ... ..	Sir John Goss	3d.
Come unto Him ... ..	Ch. Gounod	2d.
Come unto Me ... ..	J. Stafford Smith	1½d.
Comfort the soul of Thy servant ... ..	Dr. Crotch	1½d.
Day of anger ... ..	Mozart	6d.
Distraught with care... ..	Haydn	1½d.
Enter not into judgment ... ..	Attwood	4d.
For our offences ... ..	Mendelssohn	1½d.
Have mercy upon me ... ..	C. Steggall	6d.
He in tears that soweth ... ..	Dr. Hiller	1½d.
Incline Thine ear ... ..	Himmel	1½d.
In Thee, O Lord ... ..	B. Tours	3d.
In Thee, O Lord ... ..	Weldon	3d.
I will cry unto God ... ..	C. Steggall	3d.
Lord, for Thy tender mercies' sake ... ..	Farrant	1½d.
Lord, for Thy tender mercies' sake ... ..	G. Rayleigh Vicars	1½d.
Lord, on our offences... ..	Mendelssohn	1½d.
Make me a clean heart ... ..	J. Barnby	3d.
O come near to the Cross ... ..	Ch. Gounod	8d.
O day of penitence ... ..	"	6d.
O Lord my God ... ..	C. Malan	1½d.
O Lord, my God ... ..	S. S. Wesley	1½d.
O saving Victim ... ..	Ch. Gounod	4d.
O saving Victim ... ..	Berthold Tours	1½d.
O Saviour of the world ... ..	Sir John Goss	1½d.
Out of the deep ... ..	J. Naylor	4d.
Render your heart ... ..	J. Baptiste Calkin	1½d.
Seek ye the Lord ... ..	Dr. Roberts	3d.
Spare us, Lord most holy ... ..	E. A. Sydenham	1½d.
Think, good Jesu ... ..	Mozart	6d.
Thus saith the Lord ... ..	Dr. Garrett	6d.
Turn Thee again ... ..	Attwood	1½d.
Turn Thy face from my sins ... ..	"	1½d.
Turn Thy face from my sins ... ..	A. Sullivan	1½d.
Turn Thy face from my sins ... ..	C. Steggall	1/6
Unto Thee have I cried ... ..	Sir George Elvey	3d.
Word of God Incarnate ... ..	Ch. Gounod	3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR LENT.

THE PASSION OF CHRIST. Set to Music by G. F. HANDEL. Octavo, paper cover, 3s. Paper boards, 3s. 6d. Scarlet cloth, gilt, 5s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (According to St. Matthew.) Set to Music by JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH. Octavo, paper cover, 2s. Paper boards, 2s. 6d. Scarlet cloth, gilt, 4s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (According to St. John.) Set to Music by JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH. Octavo, paper cover, 2s. Paper boards, 2s. 6d. Scarlet cloth, gilt, 4s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (The Seven Words of Our Saviour on the Cross.) Set to Music by J. HAYDN. Octavo, paper cover, 2s. Paper boards, 2s. 6d. Scarlet cloth, gilt, 4s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (The Seven Words of Our Saviour on the Cross.) Set to Music by CH. GOUNOD. Octavo, paper cover, 1s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. ("Der Tod Jesu.") Set to Music by C. H. GRAUN. Octavo, paper cover, 2s. Paper boards, 2s. 6d. Scarlet cloth, gilt, 4s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR LENT.

THE BENEDICITE

SET TO MUSIC BY THE FOLLOWING
MODERN COMPOSERS

OCTAVO.

GEORGE C. MARTIN ... ..	4d.
W. T. BEST ... ..	3d.
J. BARNBY ... ..	"
JOHN FOSTER ... ..	"
MONTEM SMITH (two settings) ... ..	1½d.
J. TURLE (two settings) ... ..	"
REV. C. A. WICKES (two settings) ... ..	"
C. E. MILLER ... ..	2d.
H. B. CHURCH (Chants) ... ..	1½d.
HENRY GADSBY ... ..	2d.
DR. STAINER, R. DE LACEY, A. GIBBS, and F. CHAMPNEYS ... ..	1½d.
DR. STAINER, W. WINN, and F. WALKER ... ..	1½d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ANTHEMS FOR EASTER.

Why seek ye the living ... ..	A. Alexander	3d.
Now is Christ risen ... ..	G. B. Allen	1½d.
As we have borne the image of the earthy ... ..	J. Barnby	1½d.
Break forth into joy ... ..	J. Barnby	1½d.
This is the day ... ..	S. C. Cooke	3d.
Christ is risen from the dead ... ..	Sir George Elvey	1½d.
Christ being raised from the dead ... ..	Sir George Elvey	1½d.
He is risen ... ..	Henry Gadsby	1½d.
Christ our Passover ... ..	Sir John Goss	1½d.
If we believe that Jesus died ... ..	Sir John Goss	1½d.
O give thanks unto the Lord ... ..	Sir John Goss	3d.
Blessed is he who cometh in the Name of the Lord	Ch. Gounod	1½d.
Lift up your heads ... ..	J. L. Hopkins	1½d.
Why seek ye the living among the dead ... ..	E. J. Hopkins	1½d.
Now on the first day of the week ... ..	H. Lahee	1½d.
The Lord is my strength ... ..	Albert Lowe	3d.
The Lord is my strength ... ..	W. H. Monk	1½d.
If ye then be risen ... ..	J. Naylor	3d.
The Easter Hymn ... ..	V. Novello	1½d.
The Lord is my strength ... ..	V. Novello	1½d.
The Lord is King ... ..	Josiah Pittman	1½d.
Break forth into joy ... ..	Ridley Prentice	6d.
This is the day ... ..	J. Sewell	2d.
The Lord is my strength ... ..	Henry Smart	1½d.
They have taken away my Lord ... ..	Dr. Stainer	1½d.
Awake, thou that sleepest ... ..	Dr. Stainer	6d.
I will mention the loving-kindnesses ... ..	Arthur Sullivan	6d.
Christ is risen ... ..	E. A. Sydenham	3d.
Christ is risen ... ..	E. H. Thorne	1½d.
The Lord that brought us ... ..	E. H. Thorne	3d.
God hath appointed a day ... ..	Berthold Tours	1½d.
The Lord is King ... ..	Thomas Tallis Trimnell	4d.
This is the day ... ..	J. Turle	1½d.
O give thanks unto the Lord ... ..	Dr. S. S. Wesley	4d.
Blessed be the God and Father ... ..	Dr. S. S. Wesley	4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NINE HYMNS WITH TUNES FOR EASTER.

SELECTED FROM

THE HYMNARY.

PRICE ONE PENNY.

Christ the Lord is risen to-day ... ..	Sir George Elvey.
Far be sorrow, tears, and sighs ... ..	C. Steggall, Mus. D.
Welcome, happy morning ... ..	Arthur Sullivan.
Come, ye faithful, raise the strain ... ..	Arthur Sullivan.
At the Lamb's high feast we sing ... ..	German.
The day of Resurrection ... ..	Henry Smart.
Jesus Christ is risen to-day ... ..	Ch. Gounod.
Jesus Christ is risen to-day ... ..	Old Melody.
O Blessed Trinity ... ..	Old Melody.
Soon the fiery sun ascending ... ..	German.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR LENT.

THE MISERERE, &c., as used in St. Paul's Cathedral Lenten Services. Arranged by J. STAINER. 8vo. Price 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. The music composed by J. BARNBY. 8vo. Price 6d.

MISERERE MEI DEUS. Set to the well-known Ancient Chant, as arranged and harmonised by VINCENT NOVELLO; from the Appendix to the Accompanying Harmonies to the Brief Directory of Plain-Song, by the Rev. THOMAS HELMORE, M.A. Price 2d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

BENEDICITE, in Chant Form. By ALBERT E. BISHOP. 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

DR. VERRINDER'S BENEDICITE. Chant form. Price 3d.

DR. VERRINDER'S SIX KYRIES. Price 1s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now ready, price 3d.

CHRIST IS RISEN

NEW ANTHEM FOR EASTER

BY

E. A. SYDENHAM.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

In the Press.

NOW UPON THE FIRST DAY
IN THE WEEK

ANTHEM FOR EASTER

By FREDERICK G. COLE.

Price Fourpence.

By the same Composer:

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS, 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HE IS RISEN. New Anthem for Easter. Price 3d.
Short, easy, and effective. Composed by CALEB SIMPER, Organist and Choirmaster of St. Mary Magdalene's Church, Worcester.
London: WEEKES and Co.; or post-free of the Composer, White Ladies' Close, Worcester.

ALBERT LOWE'S EASTER ANTHEM.—THE LORD IS MY STRENGTH. Short, easy, full, and effective. Composed expressly for Parish Choirs. Octavo, 3d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

EASTER ANTHEM.—"He is risen." Duet and Chorus. 8vo, 3d. By W. H. HOLLOWAY.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FESTIVAL SETTINGS

OF THE

MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS,

WITH ACCOMPANIMENTS FOR ORGAN AND ORCHESTRA.

Calkin, J. Baptiste (in G).....	6d.	Martin, George C. (in A).....	6d.
Barnby, J. (in E flat).....	8d.	Stainer, Dr. (in A).....	4d.
Bridge, Dr. (in G).....	4d.	Stanford, C. Villiers (in A).....	6d.
Fanning, Eaton (in C).....	6d.	Tours, Berthold (in F).....	4d.
Gadsby, Henry (in C).....	6d.	Steggall, Dr. (in C).....	6d.
Martin, George C. (in C).....	6d.

The above may also be performed either with strings and organ accompaniment, or with organ only, when necessary.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FRANZ ABT'S*ELEVEN TWO-PART SONGS

FOR TREBLE VOICES

Words by E. OXENFORD.

With Pianoforte Accompaniment, price 1s. net; Sol-fa edition, 3d. net.

Dundee: METHVEN, SIMPSON and Co.

London: PATEY and WILLIS.

ECHOES FROM SCOTIA

A Collection of favourite Scottish Melodies, including "The Four Maries")

ARRANGED FOR HARMONIUM OR AMERICAN ORGAN

BY

CARL HELLER.

Price 2s. 6d. net.

Dundee: METHVEN, SIMPSON and Co.

London: PATEY and WILLIS.

To SIR R. P. STEWART, Mus. D.

Just published.

SONATA (in D minor) for the ORGAN. Composed by JAMES C. CULWICK. Price 3s. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

To M. QUARRY, Esq.

SUITE for the PIANOFORTE. Composed by JAMES C. CULWICK. Complete, 8s.

Prelude-Fuga .....	3s.	Allegretto Scherzando .....	2s.
Andante Affettuoso .....	2s.	Adagio-Finale .....	3s.
Presto Spiccato .....	3s.

Second revised Edition.

AUGENER and Co., 86, Newgate Street, E.C.

THE RUDIMENTS OF MUSIC. An introductory text-book with musical examples and numerous exercises. By JAMES C. CULWICK.

Dublin: E. PONSONBY, 116, Grafton Street.London: SIMPkin, MARSHALL and Co.*EDUCATIONAL WORKS.

THE MODULATOR, by JOHN CURWEN, for giving practice in the scale and modulation. Largely used by Old Notation teachers. For class use, mounted on calico with rollers, 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., according to size.

GERMAN TWO-PART SONGS, progressively arranged. The English words by A. J. FOXWELL. Staff Notation. The parts on two staves. Price 6d., postage 1d. Fifty-one Songs.

GRADED ROUNDS and CATCHES, forming an easy and pleasant introduction to sight-singing. The Rounds are arranged in progressive order; their compass is limited. Rounds on the tonic chord, 16; Rounds on the tonic and dominant chords, 15; Rounds on the major common scale only, without accidentals, 36; Rounds, including easy transition, 4; Rounds in the minor mode, or with chromatics, 17. Staff Notation edition, price 3d., postage 1d.

HOW TO READ MUSIC. By JOHN CURWEN. Teaches Sight-singing by the Tonic Sol-fa system; then applies the knowledge gained to the Staff Notation, and teaches that thoroughly. There are further chapters and exercises on Finding the Key in the Staff Notation, on Expression, Ornaments, the Outlines of Harmony, the Voice as an Instrument, Musical Acoustics, Common Musical Forms, and a Table of Musical Terms, with a List of Composers, is added. 24 chapters, 128 pp. Price 1s., postage 1d.

THE CHORAL SINGER, Staff Notation edition. By JOHN CURWEN. Second edition. A Graduated Course of Exercises, Rounds, and Part-Songs for beginners in Singing. This book is in the Staff Notation, but is compiled on the principle of "one thing at a time," which has made the Tonic Sol-fa method so successful. In short, it applies the Tonic Sol-fa system to the Staff Notation. Price 1s.; postage 1d.

CATALOGUE of MUSIC in the Staff Notation, including Anthems, Choruses, School Operettas, Male-Voice Part-Songs, Works on Art and Theory, Harmonium Music, Popular Sacred and Secular Cantatas, &c., sent gratis and post-free to any address.

London: J. CURWEN and SONS, 8, Warwick Lane, E.C.*MUSICAL EDUCATION.—STANDARD WORKS.

HOPKINS and RIMBAULT'S HISTORY and CONSTRUCTION of the ORGAN. Price 1s. 6s. 3d.

SPOHR'S GREAT VIOLIN SCHOOL. Price 15s. 9d.

CAMPAGNOLI'S METHOD on the VIOLIN. Price 15s.; in Four Parts, 3s. 6d. each.

W. T. BEST'S MODERN SCHOOL for the ORGAN. Price

1s. 3s. 8d.; and in Four Parts, 3s. 6d. to 6s. each.

CORELLI'S Celebrated FORTY-EIGHT TRIOS, for Two Violins and Bass. Price 18s.

RINCK'S FIRST THREE MONTHS at the ORGAN. Price 3s.

BISHOP'S HALF-HOURS at the ORGAN. In 2 vols., price 15s. 9d.

each; or in 24 Books, 1s. 6d. each.

W. T. BEST'S CHORUSES of HANDEL for the ORGAN. In 1

vol., price 1s. 19s. 6d.; or in 24 Books, 1s. 3d. to 4s. 9d. each.

G. DUBOURG'S The VIOLIN. 7s. 6d.

OTTO'S TREATISE on the VIOLIN. 4s.

ROCKSTRO'S HISTORY of MUSIC. 2s.

ROCKSTRO'S PRACTICAL HARMONY. 2s.

PINUTTI'S DAILY VOCAL EXERCISES. 1s. 6d.

SUTTON'S THEORY of MUSIC. 2s.

Payment received in stamps.

London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington Street.*THE SINGER'S GUIDEBy JOHN ADCOCK.

One Shilling.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS:—"An admirable Guide; we heartily commend it." "We can award nothing but praise. . . Its lucid exposition and valuable hints will prove most useful. . . It contains an astonishing amount of information." "Rules of the highest importance are to be found in every page. . . We recommend it to the attention both of solo and choral vocalists." "The work is distinguished by common sense, and is very plain and practical." "An admirable little book. . . Should be in the hands of every musical student."

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Crown Octavo, cloth, 2s. 6d.

THE

MUSIC OF THE BIBLE

WITH AN ACCOUNT OF THE

DEVELOPMENT OF MODERN MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FROM ANCIENT TYPES, BY

JOHN STAINER, M.A., Mus. Doc.

"The very excellent illustrations scattered throughout the book materially increase its value; and we sincerely hope that Dr. Stainer's labours may be rewarded as they deserve, for not only has he accumulated a large mass of reliable information upon a subject of the deepest interest, but he has thrown additional light upon much of this evidence by giving us the result of his own practical experience."—Musical Times.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE HYMNARY

A BOOK OF CHURCH SONG.

THE FOLLOWING EDITIONS ARE NOW READY:

No.				s.	d.
1.	Hymns only.	Royal 24mo.	Bourgeois Antique. Cloth, red edges	1	0
2.	Hymns only.	Royal 24mo.	Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Cloth, red edges	0	6
"	Hymns only.	Royal 24mo.	Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Limp cloth	0	4
"	Hymns only.	Royal 24mo.	Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Paper cover	0	3
3.	Hymns with Tunes.	Demy 8vo.	Cloth	4	0
4.	Hymns with Tunes.	Demy 8vo.	Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	5	0
5.	Tunes only.	Demy 8vo.	Cloth	3	0
6.	Tunes only.	Demy 8vo.	Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	4	0
7.	Hymns with Tunes.	Treble part only.	Royal 24mo	1	6
"	Hymns with Tunes.	Treble part only.	Royal 24mo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	2	0
8.	Hymns with Tunes.	Small post 8vo, to bind with the Pearl 8vo Prayer Book.	Cloth	2	6
9.	Hymns with Tunes.	Ditto.	Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	3	0
10.	Hymns with Tunes.	Large type.	Imperial 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	10	6

Selections of Hymns with Tunes for Advent, Christmas, Easter, and Harvest, price One Penny each.

A Discount of 20 per Cent. will be allowed to the Clergy, for Cash, when not less than six copies of one edition are taken.

Applications for permission to print the Hymns and Tunes for Choral Festivals should be addressed to the Publishers.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK

SUPPLEMENT 1881, CONTAINING 37 TUNES, 6d.
TO MATCH EITHER EDITION.

No.	The complete work, containing 751 Tunes and Chants.	s.	d.
9.	Limp cloth	4	0
10.	Cloth boards	5	0
11.	Small edition	3	0
12.	Tonic Sol-fa	3	0

First and Second Series can still be had separate.

THE BOOK OF PSALMS (BIBLE VERSION),
With Canticles and Anthems.

Pointed for Chanting for Congregational use ... 1 3
(Offered in quantity at reduced price per dozen.)

The Pointing is of the simplest plan, easily understood, and without multiplication of marks and accents, which tend to confuse rather than help.

Communications and inquiries as to copyrights, and also as to supplies of these works at reduced prices, may be addressed to the Compilers, at Clare Street, Bristol.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; Bristol: W. and F. MORGAN;
And all Booksellers and Musicsellers.

THE ANGLICAN HYMN-BOOK.

SECOND EDITION. REDUCED PRICES.

Words and Music, 4to, cloth, price 4s. 6d.; 18mo, 1s. 9d.; Treble, 16mo, 1s. Words only, 9d. and 6d.; paper, 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; and SIMPKIN and MARSHALL.

Second Thousand.

HOW AMIABLE ARE THY DWELLINGS, for Solo, Quartet, and Chorus. Anthem. Suitable for anniversary festival or ordinary services, by W. H. WILSON. "There is much we like in this anthem. It is vocal and melodious, and might with careful singing become very effective."—Musical Times. "It is within the powers of a fair choir, and worthy the attention of good ones."—Musical Standard. Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Third Edition.

THE WIDOW OF NAIN

SACRED CANTATA

FOR SOLI VOICES AND CHORUS

BY

ALFRED J. CALDICOTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab.

Performed with great success at the Worcester Musical Festival.

Band parts on application. Piano Score, paper, 3s.; boards, 4s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Post-free of the Composer, Worcester.

Easy and effective.

ANTHEM

GOD IS OUR HOPE AND STRENGTH

Written expressly for Parish Choirs by FRANK BATES, Mus. Bac.

This Anthem has been sung at several Choral Festivals.

"Just the thing for village choirs."—Church Times.
Price Threepence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS, set to music in the key of G, by ALFRED J. DYE. Price 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS. Set to music with special regard to the poetical structure of the hymn, by the Rev. V. W. POPHAM, M.A. Price 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

H. R. COULDREY'S TE DEUM, BENEDICTE, and KYRIES, published together, for Parish Choirs. Price 4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

W. M. WAIT.—MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in C. Price 6d. Messrs. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; or W. M. W., 37, Median Road, Lower Clapton, E.

Just published.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in F. Suitable for Parish Choirs. By W. G. WOOD. Price 3d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS, set to Music in Chant Form, by NATHANIEL W. B. COLLYER, Organist of Mercer's Chapel, London. Price 3d. Post-free of the Author, 5, Ironmonger Lane, London, E.C.

Books I. to VIII., New Series, 1s. each.

COLLECTION OF KYRIES, &c. Compiled, &c., by W. T. FREEMANTLE, Sheffield. Separate Numbers (Nos. 1 to 98), 1d. each.

SPOHR'S 24TH PSALM. Net, 9d. and 2s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Reduced Price, 3d.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and DEUS MISEREATUR. For Voices in Unison and Organ. 8vo. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

REDUCED TO THREEPENCE EACH.

G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEMS for small Choirs. First Series. Boys' and Female Voices. Second Series. Female and Male Voices. These Anthems are available as Duets for private use. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE-BOOK, with the additional Tunes as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HERRING'S METRICAL TUNES, &c. 8vo, 12 pp., 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

EASY ANTHEMS, by THOMAS SMITH. Price 3d. each.

THE EASTER ANTHEMS.—CHRIST OUR PASSOVER, &c. Just Published.

ANTHEMS FOR EASTER: "Christ is risen from the dead." Seventh Edition. "Sing we merrily." Third Edition. "Lift up your heads."

"O worship the Lord." Eighth Edition. "Hear my prayer." "I was glad." "My heart is fixed." "The Lord is my Shepherd." "O send out Thy light." "Like as the hart." "It is a good thing to give thanks." "O sing unto the Lord." Second Edition. Te Deum in F. Five Kyries. Second Edition.

THE RULES OF SIMPLE HARMONY.—Dedicated to Sir F. A. Gore Ouseley, Professor of Music at the University of Oxford. Third Edition, 1s.

SHORT METHOD FOR TEACHING SINGING. Second Edition, 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Post-free from the Composer, 25, Angel Hill, Bury St. Edmunds.

Third Edition. Price 1s.

HOW TO LEARN TO PLAY THE PIANO WELL. By ONE WHO HAS TAUGHT HIMSELF.

"Here, in the compass of fourteen pages, is matter calculated to produce better results than half-a-dozen years' teaching."

THE ART OF PLAYING AT SIGHT. By ONE WHO HAS TAUGHT HIMSELF. Price 1s.

"The author believes his system to be infallible; after a fair trial, we must say we believe so too."

HOW TO FORM AND TRAIN A VILLAGE CHOIR. By AN ORGANISING CHOIRMASTER. Price 1s.

THE HARMONIUM, AND HOW TO PLAY IT. Price 1s.

Bury St. Edmunds: THOS. SMITH, Music Warehouse, Angel Hill.

Fourth Edition, enlarged. Small 4to. Price 2s. paper cover, 3s. cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS, Single and Double, edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY, Bart., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This work contains nearly 400 Chants; which are appropriated to "Venite exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c.; those for each Service occupying a separate page, and affording several Series suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with especial reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK.

Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co. Oxford: PARKER.

Eighth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d. Large edition, cloth, 3s. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo, without Chants, 9d.; with Proper Psalms, 1s.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to, with Chants, 4s.; each voice part, separately, 1s. 6d. Canticles, score, small 4to, 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo, 14d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co., and PARKER and Co.

Sixteenth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57 RESPONSES, &c. Reduced price, 4s. 6d., paper cover; 6s., limp cloth; separate vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation, Score, 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES. Pointed for Chanting by B. ST. J. B. JOULE.

Large type, price 2s. 6d. This Psalter having been collated with the Sealed Books is free from the errors contained in all other pointed Psalters, through printing from the incorrect copies commonly sold by the Stationers. N.B.—A small edition is in preparation.

Eighth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. 18mo, price 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Fourth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLICANUM. Quarto, in cloth, elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Fifth Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION. Harmonised on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Large octavo, paper cover, 4s.; cloth, gilt edges, 6s.

ISRAEL RESTORED

AN ORATORIO

(As performed at the Norwich Festival, September 22, 1852, and the Royal Albert Hall, London, April 15, 1880)

COMPOSED BY

W. R. BEXFIELD, MUS. DOC., CANTAB.

The Chorus and Orchestral Parts can be had on application to the publishers.

"A work which is an honour to its author and his countrymen."—Orchestra.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Second Thousand.

RUTH

NEW SACRED CANTATA

By ALFRED R. GAUL

Words by EDWARD OXFENFORD.

Performed five consecutive nights in Birmingham Town Hall.

Price, paper cover, 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

NARCISSUS AND ECHO

Cantata for Mixed Voices. Price 3s.

Soli and Chorus. Price 1s.

COMPOSED BY

EDWIN C. SUCH, MUS. BAC., CANTAB.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

The Cathedral Psalter

POINTED FOR CHANTING.

	s.	d.
Imperial 32mo, cloth .. .. .	0	9
Ditto, with Proper Psalms, cloth .. .. .	1	0
Demy 8vo, large type, with Proper Psalms, cloth .. .. .	2	6
Proper Psalms, separately. Paper cover. 32mo .. .. .	0	3
Canticles, 32mo .. .. .	0	1
Ditto, 8vo .. .. .	0	3

The Psalter, with Chants, Post 4to, cloth .. .. .	5	0
Canticles, 4to, with Chants .. .. .	0	6

THE CATHEDRAL PSALTER CHANTS.

Post 4to, paper cover .. .. .	2	0
Ditto, cloth .. .. .	3	0
Foolscap 4to, paper cover .. .. .	1	0
Ditto, cloth .. .. .	1	6

The Clergy can be supplied with copies, in quantities of not less than 25, on special terms.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER and CO.

Reduced price, Five Shillings.

THE VILLAGE ORGANIST

New Edition, complete in One Volume. 142 pages.

CONTAINING

SEVENTY-EIGHT VOLUNTARIES

All of which, except four, were composed expressly for the work by eminent English musicians.

Cloth, Five Shillings.

Suitable for a Present or School Prize.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S COLLECTION OF

ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTY-FIVE

Responses to the Commandments

EDITED BY

GEORGE C. MARTIN

SUB-ORGANIST OF ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.

Bound in cloth, gilt edges, price Five Shillings; or Forty-seven Numbers, Twopence each.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SELECT COMPOSITIONS from the GREAT MASTERS, arranged for the Organ, with Pedal Obbligato, by ARTHUR HENRY BROWN.

- No. 40. Aria, by Gluck. 1767.
41. "Sanctus" and "Hosanna," from André's Mass. Op. 43.
42. Last Chorus, from Beethoven's "Mount of Olives."
43. "He shall feed His flock," from Handel's "Messiah."
44. "Quoniam Tu solus," by Vincenzo Righini. 1788.
45. "Hallelujah" Chorus, from Handel's "Messiah."
46. "Turn Thy face," "Then shall I teach," "I will magnify Thee," from Anthems by J. Weldon.
47. "The heavens are telling," from Haydn's "Creation."
48. Andante and Allegretto, from Handel's Violin Sonata in A major.
49. Slow Movement from Symphony 36, by Haydn.
50. Andante con Variazioni, from Spohr's Notturmo. Op. 34.
51. "Wie nahte mir der Schlummer," by C. M. von Weber. Aria by the Comte de St. Germain, 1760.
52. "Marche Solennelle," by Franz Schubert.
53. Adagio, from the Notturmo (Op. 34), by Louis Spohr.
54. "Ave Maria," from the "Evening Service," Book 7, by Cherubini.
55. Overture and Minuet to "Samson," Handel, 1742.
56. "The arm of the Lord," by Haydn.
57. "Deh lascia o Core," from "Astianatte," by G. Buononcini, 1727.
58. "Gloria in excelsis," from Schubert's Mass (No. 2), in C.
59. "Il pensier sta negli oggetti," Aria, by Haydn, 1792.
60. "Gloria in excelsis," from Mozart's 12th Mass.
61. "How lovely are the messengers," by Mendelssohn.
62. Notturmo, by Kalkbrenner.
63. "Che farò," by Chr. Gluck, 1769.
64. Aria in A flat, by Louis Spohr.
65. "Cujus animam," from Rossini's "Stabat Mater."
66. Air and Gavotte, from the Suite for Orchestra in D, by J. S. Bach.

[Continuing.]

Price Three Shillings each.

Volumes I., II., and III., bound in cloth, are now ready, each containing 20 numbers, price One Guinea each.

A list of the preceding numbers post-free on application.

London: B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster Row, E.C.

Now Ready. Small 4to, price 1s. Vocal Parts, 12mo, price 6d. each. 1st and 2nd Series, bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d. Vocal Parts, 1st and 2nd Series, bound together in limp cloth, 1s. 4d. each.

SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES AND HYMNS
OF THE CHURCH,
POINTED FOR CHANTING, AND SET TO APPROPRIATE ANGLICAN CHANTS, SINGLE AND DOUBLE TOGETHER WITH
RESPONSES TO THE COMMANDMENTS,

EDITED BY THE
REV. SIR F. A. GORE OUSELEY, BART., M.A.,
AND
EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This Work contains a Selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedicite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.

This pointing of the Canticles is authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.)

HARROW SCHOOL MUSIC

BY
JOHN FARMER
ORGANIST AND MUSIC-MASTER TO HARROW SCHOOL.

ORATORIO.—"CHRIST AND HIS SOLDIERS."

Cloth, 4s.; paper cover, 3s. Book of Words, 2d. Orchestral Parts, complete, 7s.

GLEE-BOOK.—Vols. I. and II. Cloth, 4s. each.

PART-SONGS for PUBLIC SCHOOLS, being Cheap Edition of above. Vols. I & 2, 1s. 6d. each, paper cover.

GLEES AND SONGS FOR HIGH SCHOOLS. Paper cover, 1s. 6d.

SONGS.—Vols. I. and II. Cloth, 4s. each.

SINGING QUADRILLES.

1st Set—"Jack and Jill," &c. ... .. 1s. | 3rd Set—Hunting Quadrilles: "John Peel," &c. 1s.
2nd Set—"Humpty Dumpty." Duet, 3s.; Solo 1s. | 4th Set—Singing Quadrilles: "Girls and Boys," &c. 1s.

HYMNS AND TUNES FOR HIGH SCHOOLS, 1s. 6d.

Lists and full particulars may be obtained on application.

Harrow: J. C. WILBEE, Bookseller to Harrow School. London: NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

THE HARMONIUM TREASURY
A SERIES OF SELECT PIECES ARRANGED BY
J. W. ELLIOTT.

In Two Volumes. Vol. I., SACRED; Vol. II., SECULAR. Handsomely bound in Cloth, 10s. 6d. each; or in 51 Numbers, 1s. each.

HARMONIUM VOLUNTARIES
ARRANGED BY
J. W. ELLIOTT.

In Six Sets, each containing Sixty Voluntaries, One Shilling each; or in Two Volumes, Cloth gilt, 4s. each.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

EIGHTY-FIRST EDITION.

PRICE ONE SHILLING, ENLARGED.

*A specimen copy post-free for twelve stamps.COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL
SIGHT-SINGING MANUAL.FOR CHOIRS.—The easiest system that can be obtained for training, improving, and learning to read music at sight.

FOR SCHOOLS.—Every requisite for learning music, and reading at sight in a few lessons.

FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.—The exercises will be found invaluable, tending to produce musical effects seldom heard.

COLLEGIATE ORGAN TUTOR

EDITED BY FREDERIC ARCHER.

3s. 6d. net.

"Well adapted for making an excellent player."

"For pedal-playing, any difficulties surmounted in a short time."

"Contains the most pleasing arrangements for the organ we have seen."

THIRTEENTH EDITION.

Paper cover, 1s.; bound in cloth, 1s. 6d.

CATHEDRAL CHANT-BOOK

Containing nearly 200 Single and Double Chants; Gregorian Tones.

Just published.

BOOKS 2, 3, &amp; 4,

COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL
SINGING MANUALS

Containing

ROUNDS, FOUR-PART SONGS, MADRIGALS, MOTETTS,
CHORUSES, GLEES, &c.

Price One Shilling.

A specimen copy post-free for twelve stamps.

London: WEEKES and CO., 16, Hanover Street, W.

Second Edition.

SUPPLEMENTAL
BOOK OF EXERCISES

FOR THE USE OF THOSE

LEARNING TO SING AT SIGHT

COMPILED AND ARRANGED BY

HENRY GADSBY.

ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

New and Revised Edition.

THE

SCHOOL ROUND BOOK

A COLLECTION OF ONE HUNDRED

ROUNDS, CATCHES, AND CANONS

The Words Edited by the

REV. J. POWELL METCALFE, M.A.

The Music Edited by

J. STAINER, M.A., Mus. Doc.

Price 8d.; cloth, 1s. 2d.

IN SOL-FA NOTATION, 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Dedicated, by permission, to the College of Organists.

ON TUNING THE ORGAN: Illustrated.
Faults with remedies. Post-free, 2s. 6d. P.O.O. to A. HEMSTOCK, Diss."Every page shows that Mr. Hemstock is master of his subject."—Musical Standard."Contains much useful information."—Musical Times."A practical and useful book."—Music Trade Review.

REDUCED PRICE, ONE SHILLING.

A MANUAL OF SINGING

FOR THE USE OF

CHOIRTRAINERS &amp; SCHOOLMASTERS

BY

RICHARD MANN.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION, WITH ADDITIONS, BY

DR. STAINER.

This work offers to the clergy and other amateur choir-trainers a systematic and simple course of instruction, by which they may teach their pupils to read music at sight in a comparatively short time.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

A COLLECTION

OF

TWO-PART SOLFEGGI

In the principal major keys, designed for the practice of Choristers and Vocal Classes generally,

SELECTED FROM

DURANTE, HANDEL, LEO, SCARLATTI, STEFFANI,
NARES, WEBBE, &c.

BY

JAMES HIGGS,

Mus. Bac., Oxon.

ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

32 pp., price 6d. Annual Subscription, 6s. 6d. post-free.

THE ORCHESTRA AND THE CHOIR.

(Edited by W. A. BARRETT, Mus. B., F.R.S.L., &amp;c.) A Monthly Review; Musical, Dramatic, and Literary.

Printers, SWIFT and Co.; sold by W. REEVES, Fleet Street, London.

Just ready.—Sixth Edition, price 6d.

GUIDE to the LOCAL EXAMINATIONS in ELEMENTARY MUSICAL KNOWLEDGE of TRINITY
COLLEGE, LONDON. By FREDERIC CLARK, Secretary to the College. Contains the set of four Examination Papers for December, 1881, with full Answers.

A. HAMMOND and Co., 5, Vigo Street, Regent Street, W.

Now ready, No. 54, 44 pp., 2d.; post-free, 3d.

MUSICAL OPINION AND MUSIC TRADE
REVIEW. PITMAN; and to order of all Book and Musicsellers.THE JOURNAL FOR THE MUSIC TRADE,Containing news of interest to Publishers, Piano and Harmonium Makers, Organ Builders, and Makers of and Dealers in Instruments, is MUSICAL OPINION AND MUSIC TRADE REVIEW. Forty-four pages. Price 2d. Of all Book and Musicsellers; by post (3d.) of

J. F. REID and NEPHEW, Advertising Agents, 1, Sherborne Lane, E.C.

THE PEERAGE, BARONETAGE, and
KNIGHTAGE of the BRITISH EMPIRE for 1882, by JOSEPH FOSTER.

In one or two volumes, royal 8vo, cloth gilt, price 42s. The Peerage or Baronetage separate, each, 21s.

The THIRD EDITION, for 1882, containing all new Creations, has been considerably enlarged and carefully corrected throughout. It is illustrated by upwards of 1,400 engravings of Arms, &amp;c., and contains fuller pedigrees than any other work.

Westminster: NICHOLS and SONS, 25, Parliament Street.

CHAPMAN and HALL, Limited, 11, Henrietta Street, W.C.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.Reduced to 2s. 6d. per Volume.THE MUSICAL TIMES

IN EIGHT VOLUMES

EACH CONTAINING FORTY-EIGHT CHORAL PIECES,
SACRED AND SECULAR.

The attention of Conductors and Secretaries of Choral Societies is specially called to these Volumes, which offer a large collection of useful pieces at an exceedingly low cost.

Lists of Contents of each Volume may be had on application.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER and CO.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S PIANOFORTE ALBUMS

EDITED BY BERTHOLD TOURS.

PRICE ONE SHILLING EACH.

Nos. 1, 2, and 3, bound in Cloth, 4s.; Nos. 4, 5, and 6, bound in Cloth, 4s.

No. 1.

COMPOSITIONS BY J. S. BACH.

1. Prelude in C minor, from the "Petits Préludes."
2. Prelude in F major, from the "Petits Préludes."
3. Prelude in E major, from the "Petits Préludes."
4. Invention in F major, from the "Inventions à 2 voix."
5. Allemande in B flat major, from "Partita I."
6. Menuet in B flat major, from "Partita I."
7. Gigue in B flat major, from "Partita I."
8. Rondeau in C minor, from "Partita II."
9. Courante in A minor, from "Partita III."
10. Burlesca in A minor, from "Partita III."
11. Scherzo in A minor, from "Partita III."
12. Prelude in A minor, from the "Suites Anglaises."
13. Bourrée in A minor, from the "Suites Anglaises."
14. Gigue in A minor, from the "Suites Anglaises."
15. Sarabande in A major, from the "Suites Anglaises."
16. Gavotte in G minor, from the "Suites Anglaises."
17. Echo in B minor, from the "Overture Française."
18. Bourrée in C major, from the "Third Sonata for Violoncello."
19. Gavotte in G major, from the "Sixth Sonata for Violoncello."
20. Bourrée in B minor, from the "Second Sonata for Violin."

No. 2.

COMPOSITIONS BY J. S. BACH.

21. Prelude in F major, from the "Suites Anglaises."
22. Menuet in F major, from the "Suites Anglaises."
23. Sarabande in E minor, from the "Suites Anglaises."
24. Passepied in E minor, from the "Suites Anglaises."
25. Gavotte in D minor, from the "Suites Anglaises."
26. Gigue in D major, from "Partita IV."
27. Prélude in G major, from "Partita V."
28. Courante in G major, from "Partita V."
29. Menuet in G major, from "Partita V."
30. Sarabande in D minor, from the "Suites Françaises."
31. Courante in C minor, from the "Suites Françaises."
32. Gigue in C minor, from the "Suites Françaises."
33. Gavotte in G major, from the "Suites Françaises."
34. Bourrée in G major, from the "Suites Françaises."
35. Allemande in E major, from the "Suites Françaises."
36. Courante in E major, from the "Suites Françaises."
37. Bourrée in E major, from the "Suites Françaises."
38. Gigue in E major, from the "Suites Françaises."
39. Fantasia in C minor.
40. Bourrée in E flat major, from the "Fourth Sonata for Violoncello."

No. 3.

COMPOSITIONS BY J. S. BACH.

41. Prelude in C minor, from the "Petits Préludes."
42. Prelude in E minor, from the "Petits Préludes."
43. Invention in D minor, from the "Inventions à 2 voix."
44. Invention in B minor, from the "Inventions à 2 voix."
45. Presto, from the "Concerto" in D minor.
46. Allegro, from the "Concerto" in B flat major.
47. Gigue, from the "Concerto" in G minor.
48. Gavotte in B minor, from the "Overture Française."
49. Bourrée in B minor, from the "Overture Française."
50. Gigue in G major, from the "Suites Françaises."
51. Bourrée in A major, from the "Suites Anglaises."
52. Gigue in G minor, from the "Suites Anglaises."
53. Gigue in E minor, from the "Suites Anglaises."
54. Courante in B flat, from "Partita I."
55. Fantasia in A minor, from "Partita III."
56. Gavotte in E minor, from "Partita VI."
57. Fugue in C major.
58. Presto in F major, from the "Italian Concerto."
59. Fantasia con Fughetta in D major.
60. Allegro from the "Concerto" in F major.

No. 4.

COMPOSITIONS BY G. F. HANDEL.

1. Fugue in C major, from the "Petites Fugues."
2. Fugue in C major, from the "Petites Fugues."
3. Chaconne in F major.
4. Sarabande in E minor, from "Sonata III., for 2 Violins and Violoncello."
5. Gavotte in E minor, from "Sonata III., for 2 Violins and Violoncello."
6. Bourrée in G minor, from "Sonata V., for 2 Violins and Violoncello."
7. Gigue in A major, from "Suite I."
8. Allegro in F major, from "Suite II."
9. Courante in D minor, from "Suite III."
10. Aria con Variazioni in D minor, from "Suite III."
11. Presto in D minor, from "Suite III."
12. Courante in E minor, from "Suite IV."
13. Sarabande in E minor, from "Suite IV."
14. Gigue in E minor, from "Suite IV."
15. Aria con Variazioni in E major (the Harmonious Blacksmith, from "Suite V.")
16. Courante in E major, from "Suite V."
17. Gigue in F minor, from "Suite VI."
18. Allegro in G minor, from "Suite VII."
19. Sarabande in G minor, from "Suite VII."
20. Passacaille in G minor, from "Suite VII."
21. Gigue in G minor, from "Suite VII."
22. Chaconne, from the opera "Almira."
23. Sarabande, from the opera "Almira."
24. Gavotte in A major, from the "Masque."

No. 5.

COMPOSITIONS BY G. F. HANDEL.

25. Menuetto in G major, from Sonata IV., for two Violins and Violoncello.
26. Bourrée in G major, from Sonata V., for Flute and Violoncello.
27. Gavotte in C major, from "Concertante for Stringed Instruments, with two Violins and Violoncello obbligato."
28. Capriccio in G major.
29. Fugue in F minor, from "Suite VIII."
30. Courante in F minor, from "Suite VIII."
31. Allemande in F minor, from "Suite VIII."
32. Gigue in F minor, from "Suite VIII."
33. Gigue in G minor, from "Suite IX."
34. Allegro in D minor, from "Suite X."
35. Air in D minor, from "Suite X."
36. Gigue in D minor, from "Suite X."
37. Menuetto con Variazioni in D minor, from "Suite X."
38. Allemande in D minor, from "Suite XI."
39. Courante in D minor, from "Suite XI."
40. Sarabande con Variazioni in D minor, from "Suite XI."
41. Gigue in D minor, from "Suite XI."
42. Sarabande in E minor, from "Suite XII."
43. Gigue in E minor, from "Suite XII."
44. Largo in G major, from the opera "Xerxes."
45. Capriccio in A minor.
46. Allegro in A minor.
47. Musette in G major, from the "Masque."
48. Gavotte in D major, from the opera "Alcides."

No. 6.

COMPOSITIONS BY G. F. HANDEL.

49. Prelude in G major.
50. Fugue in D major, from the "Petites Fugues."
51. Fugue in E minor.
52. Fantasia in C major.
53. Menuetto in F major.
54. Aria con Variazioni in B flat major.
55. Allemande in B flat major, from "Suite XIII."
56. Courante in B flat major, from "Suite XIII."
57. Gigue in B flat major, from "Suite XIII."
58. Air in G major, from "Suite XIV."
59. Allegro in G major, from "Suite XIV."
60. Courante in G major, from "Suite XIV."
61. Menuetto in G major, from "Suite XIV."
62. Gigue in G major, from "Suite XIV."
63. Gavotte con Variazioni in G major, from "Suite XIV."
64. Courante in D minor, from "Suite XV."
65. Allemande in G minor, from "Suite XVI."
66. Courante in G minor, from "Suite XVI."
67. Gigue in G minor, from "Suite XVI."
68. Arioso in C minor, from the opera "Alcina."
69. Bourrée in F major, from the opera "Pastor Fido."
70. Allegretto in F major, from the "Water Music."
71. Bourrée in F major, from the "Water Music."
72. Hornpipe in F major, from the "Water Music."

For continuation, see page 150.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S

EDITION OF

NEW AND POPULAR WORKS

CAREFULLY FINGERED AND REVISED, WITH METRONOME MARKS, &c.

N.B.—The Letters before the names denote the degree of difficulty, corresponding with the five Sections of the "Practical Pianoforte School," viz., a, Elementary; b, Easy; c, Moderately Difficult; d, Difficult; e, Very Difficult.

PIANOFORTE SOLOS.

		s.	d.			s.	d.
BERLIOZ, HECTOR.				HUNTEN, FRANÇOIS.
d	Marche Hongrois de "Faust" ...	4	0	Four Rondinos, Op. 21—
BERTINI, HENRI.				a	No. 1. In G	1	6
b	25 Easy and Progressive Studies, Op. 100. Complete	7	6	b	No. 2. In C	2	6
	Do. or in 2 Books ...	each	4	b	No. 3. In D	2	6
c	25 Studies, Op. 29. Complete	7	6	b	No. 4. In A	2	0
	Do. or in 2 Books ...	each	4	KALKBRENNER, F.
BLUMENTHAL, JACQUES.				c	La Femme du Marin. Pensée fugitive ...	2	6
d	La Source ...	4	0	c	Les Soupirs de la Harpe Eolienne, Romance ...	3	0
CHOPIN, FREDERIC.				b	Rondo in C major ...	3	6
d	Ballade in A flat ...	4	0	LISZT, FRANZ. d	Marche Funèbre ...	2	6	d	La Regatta Veneziana, Nocturne ...	4	0
d	Nocturne in G major, Op. 37, No. 2 ...	3	0	d	Romanza, "O du mein holder Abenstern," from Wagner's
c	Two Nocturnes, in B and A flat major, Op. 32. Complete	3	0		"Tannhäuser." Transcribed ...	3	0
	Do. do. separate ...	each	2	d	Spinning Song, from "Flying Dutchman" ...	4	0
d	Valse in E flat, Op. 18 ...	3	6	MAYER, CHARLES.
d	" A flat, Op. 34, No. 1 ...	4	0	c	Galop Militaire, in E flat ...	3	6 d	" A minor, Op. 34, No. 2 ...	3	0	d	La Fontaine, Etude de Concert, Op. 61, No. 3 ...	3	6
c	" A flat, Op. 42 ...	3	6	d	Le Trémolo, Etude de Concert, Op. 61, No. 2 ...	3	6
d	" D flat, Op. 64, No. 1 ...	2	6	c	Triolino, Etude, Op. 190 ...	4	0
d	" C sharp minor, Op. 64, No. 2 ...	3	0	MENDELSSOHN-BARTHOLDY, FELIX.
c	" A flat, Op. 64, No. 3 ...	2	6	c	Wedding March ...	2	6
CRAMER, J. B.				PURCELL, HENRY.
c	Celebrated Studies. 4 Books ...	each	6	b	Purcell's Ground, with variations ...	3	0
CZERNY, CHARLES.				RAFF, JOACHIM.
b	101 Preparatory Exercises, Op. 261. Complete	7	6	d	Abends (Eventide) ...	3	0
	Do. or in 2 Books ...	each	4	d	Minuet in E major ...	3	0
c	Etudes de la Velocité, Op. 299. Complete	10	6	c	Romanza in G, Op. 72 ...	3	0
	Do. or in 3 Books ...	each	4	REISSIGER, F. A.
DAVID, FELICIEN.				c	Fairies' Dance. Waltz ...	2	0
	Mélodie. Pensée Fugitive ...	2	6	c	Feenreigen, Walzer ...	2	0
DIABELLI, A.				RUBINSTEIN, ANTON.
b	Rondo in F ...	2	0	d	Barcarolle, in F minor ...	3	0
b	Sonatina in C ...	2	0	c	Impromptu, in G ...	3	0
b	Sonatina in F ...	2	0	c	Melody, in F ...	2	6
DREYSCHOCK, A.				c	Romanza, in E flat ...	2	0
c	Bluette. Nocturne, Op. 16 ...	2	6	c	Romanza, in F, Op. 26, No. 1 ...	2	6
DUSSEK, J. L.				d	Turkish March, from Beethoven's "Ruins of Athens" ...	2	6
b	Alla Tedesca. Rondo in B flat ...	2	6	SCHUBERT, F. c	Les Adieux. Rondo in B flat ...	3	6	c	Air de Ballet, in G, from "Rosamunde" ...	3	0
c	La Consolation, Op. 62 ...	4	0	SCHULHOFF, JULES. c	Russian Air. Rondo in C ...	3	0	d	Airs Bohémiens, Op. 10 ...	5	0
b	Rondo, "Mignon," in C ...	2	6	c	Berceuse, Impromptu, Op. 14 ...	2	0
b	Sonatina in E flat, Op. 20, No. 6 ...	3	0	c	Confidence, Impromptu ...	2	0
b	Sonatina in C, Op. 20 ...	3	0	c	Grand Valse Brillante, Op. 6 ...	4	0
c	Sonata in B flat, Op. 24 ...	5	0	c	Minuet and Trio, from Mozart's Symphony in E flat ...	3	0
HAYDN, JOSEPH.				c	Souvenir de Varsovie-Mazurka ...	3	0
b	Gipsy Rondo ...	4	0	d	Trois Mazurkas, Op. 5. Complete	6	0
b	Ox Minuet ...	1	6		No. 1. In F ...	2	6
c	Sonata in C major ...	4	0		No. 2. In E ...	2	6
HELLER, STEPHEN.					No. 3. In D flat ...	2	6
c	Feuille d'Album ...	1	6	SCHUMANN, ROBERT.
b	Rondoletto sur la Cracovienne du Ballet, "The Gipsy," Op. 12	3	6	c	Jagdlid (Hunting Song) ...	2	6
c	Rondo; in D major, on an Air from Donizetti's "La Favorite,"	3	0	d	Slumber Song ...	3	0
	Op. 22, No. 3 ...	3	0	d	Scherzino, Op. 26, No. 3 ...	3	0
HENSELT, A.				STEIBELT.
d	Repos d'Amour ...	1	6	b	Rondo Turc ...	3	0
c	Song of Love ...	2	0	THALBERG, SIGISMUND.
e	The Fountain ...	2	6	d	Home, Sweet Home ...	4	0
HILLER, FERDINAND.				d	Last Rose of Summer ...	4	0
c	Zur Guitarre, Impromptu, Op. 97 ...	3	0	VOLKMANN, R.
HUMMEL, J. N.				c	Wander Sketches. Book 1 ...	4	0
c	La Bella Capriccioso, Polonaise ...	5	0		Do. Book 2 ...	4	0
c	Rondo all' Ungarese ...	4	0	WAGNER, RICHARD.
c	Two Rondolettos in F, Op. 109 ...	3	6	d	March from "Tannhäuser" ...	3	0
WEBER, C. M. VON.				c	Six Valses ...	4	0

CATALOGUES AND ALL PARTICULARS POST-FREE.

FORSYTH BROTHERS,

272a, Regent Circus, Oxford Street, London; 122 & 124, Deansgate, Manchester.
AND ALL MUSICSELLERS IN THE UNITED KINGDOM AND THE COLONIES.

CHALLEN & SON'S IRON-FRAME PIANOS

Have received the following Awards at the International Exhibitions of
LONDON, 1862.—PRIZE MEDAL for “excellence of action and tone.”
SOUTH AFRICA, 1877:—GOLD MEDAL for the best Pianette (the highest Award ever given for this class of Piano).
PARIS, 1878.—The MEDAILLE D'HONNEUR for “good and cheap Pianos” (great excellence combined with moderate cost).
MELBOURNE, 1881.—GOLD MEDAL for excellence of quality combined with solidity of construction.

IRON-FRAME PIANOS.

A system of construction which, by a careful application of scientific principles, Messrs. CHALLEN & SON have brought to great perfection, is now generally acknowledged as the only one calculated to render the Piano almost impervious to the deleterious influences of damp and extremes of temperature, while it stands better in tune with one-fourth of the usual tuning—a most important consideration where tuners are not readily obtained. The inestimable advantages thus secured are augmented by an increased power and purity of tone hitherto unattainable in the Upright Piano.

A selection from numerous testimonials will be a sufficient guarantee of the excellence of the Pianos manufactured by this Firm:—

The Pianettes manufactured by Messrs. CHALLEN & SON are most satisfactory instruments.

ANTON RUBINSTEIN.

Hawthorn Lodge, January, 1882.

Having used one of your Pianos a great deal for studying music as well as singing, I can with pleasure testify to the fact that they possess a very fine tone and sustain the voice admirably. I have used Pianos by all the leading manufacturers, but I consider your instruments fully equal in every respect to any made, and I shall take every opportunity of recommending them.—Yours truly,

MARIE ROZE,

Prima Donna of Her Majesty's Opera.

I consider that Messrs. CHALLEN & SON have succeeded in providing, at a most moderate cost, Pianos of high-class workmanship and pure tone. Their Pianettes are specially deserving of notice in being remarkable both for their cheapness and general excellence. The instruments exhibited by Messrs. CHALLEN & SON in Paris were highly creditable, not only to them but to the English Section.

JOHN STAINER, M.A., Mus.-Doc., Hon. R.A.M., F.C.O.,

English Juror at the Paris Universal Exhibition, 1878.

The Pianos of Messrs. CHALLEN & SON possess every good quality. They are exceedingly moderate in price, and I can testify, from personal experience, to their great durability.

GEORGE GARRETT, M.A., Mus. Doc., Cantab.

Brackly Villa, Dulwich.

I have on several occasions selected Pianos from Messrs. CHALLEN & SON, and have great pleasure in stating they have invariably given complete satisfaction, some of them having had to bear the severe test of an Indian climate.

WILLIAM H. CUMMINGS, R.A.M.

CHALLEN & SON'S Pianos may be purchased on the Hire System, and obtained of all the principal Musicsellers throughout the World.

Illustrated Catalogues and Price List forwarded free.

CHALLEN & SON,

46, OXFORD STREET, LONDON.

ESTABLISHED 1804.

THE

No.
470

Price
3d.

MUSICAL TIMES

APRIL 1, 1882

95, NEW BOND STREET.

J. & J. HOPKINSON

Beg to notify that they are about to remove from their present Establishment,

235, REGENT STREET,

to more extensive premises,

95, NEW BOND STREET,

which they will open in May next with an entirely new stock of their celebrated

GRAND AND COTTAGE PIANOFORTES.

New Illustrated Price List, with original and artistic designs, post-free on application to 95, NEW BOND STREET, LONDON, W.

CHAPPELL AND CO.'S

IRON-FRAMED PIANOFORTES,

OBLIQUE, AND SINGLE AND DOUBLE OVERSTRUNG.

35 TO 150 GUINEAS.

CLOUGH & WARREN'S AMERICAN ORGANS,

A COMBINATION OF PIPES AND REEDS.

18 TO 225 GUINEAS.

ALEXANDRE ORGAN HARMONIUMS,

6 TO 150 GUINEAS.

Show Rooms—50, NEW BOND STREET, W.

City Branch—15, POULTRY, E.C.

Steam Pianoforte Works—CHALK FARM ROAD, N.W.

TO ORGANISTS, CHOIRMASTERS, AND THE CLERGY. PEDAL ORGANS. CHANCEL ORGANS. NEW AND SECOND-HAND.

PEDAL ORGAN, with 2 manuals, 23 stops, full pedal compass, 30 notes and accessories (style 800).

Price 160 Guineas.

Suitable for a congregation of 500 people.

PEDAL ORGAN, with 1 manual, 17 stops, and full pedal compass, 30 notes and accessories (style 432).

Price 80 Guineas.

Suitable for organ practice.

PEDAL ORGAN, with 1 manual, 9 stops, and pedal compass, 27 notes and accessories (style 410).

Price 60 Guineas.

Suitable for a congregation of 300 people.

LIBERAL DISCOUNT
FOR CASH.

New Illustrated Catalogue
Post-free.

CHANCEL ORGAN, with 1 manual, 15 stops, and ventrillo chest (style 501).

Price 110 Guineas.

The most powerful organ with 1 manual.

CHANCEL ORGAN, with 1 manual, 13 stops, and accessories (style 431).

Price 50 Guineas.

Suitable for a congregation of 300 people. Used by Moody and Sankey.

CHANCEL ORGAN, with 12 stops and Venetian organ swell (style 350).

Price 38 Guineas.

Suitable for a congregation of 200 people.

CHANCEL ORGAN, with 8 stops, including 2 couplers (style 108).

Price 23 Guineas.

Suitable for a congregation of 100 people.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN COMPANY, 37, Great Marlborough Street, London, W.

MUIR SMITH'S VERTICAL IRON GRAND PIANOFORTES

First London Manufacturer,

116 & 118, BAYHAM ST., CAMDEN TOWN, N.W.

The Trade are invited to inspect these Instruments, which for qualities of Tone, Touch, and excellence of Finish are unsurpassed by any other Maker.

Designs and Prices on application.

BORD'S PIANOS ON SALE

With 25 per Cent. Discount for Cash, or 15s. per Month on
Three Years' Hire System.

Second-hand on Three Years' Hire System, 10s. 6d. per Month.

ILLUSTRATED LIST FREE OF

CHARLES STILES & CO.,
42, SOUTHAMPTON ROW, HOLBORN, LONDON.
PIANOS EXCHANGED.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 470.—Vol. 23.
Registered for transmission abroad.

APRIL 1, 1882.

Price 3d.; Post-free, 4d.
Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 4s.

NATIONAL EISTEDDFOD OF WALES for 1882,
at DENBIGH, AUGUST 22, 23, 24, 25.

IV.—INSTRUMENTAL COMPETITION.

37. BRASS BAND, not less than fifteen in number.—"Tannhäuser March" (Wagner), restricted to amateurs, except the leader, open to the world. Prize, £20, and a Medal.

38. BRASS BAND, not less than twelve in number.—"War March" (Mendelssohn's "Athalia"). Prize, £10, and a Medal. Competitors in No. 37, or Bands which have previously gained a prize of 10 guineas, will not be allowed to compete for this prize.

39. PIANOFORTE COMPETITION.—"Waltz in D flat" (Chopin), published by Ashdown and Parry, restricted to amateurs under 25. Prize, 5 guineas. Given by the Rev. W. Morton, St. Asaph.

40. PIANOFORTE COMPETITION.—"Harmonious Blacksmith" (Handel), restricted to amateurs under 16. Prize, £3. Published by Howard and Co., London.

41. HARMONIUM COMPETITION.—"Elégie" (Lefebure-Wély), published by Chappell and Co. Prize, £3.

42. TRIPLE HARP COMPETITION.—"Dafydd y Gareg Wen." Prize, £3.

43. PEDAL HARP COMPETITION.—"The Greek Pirates' Chorus" (Alvares), published by Lamborn Cock, 23, Holles Street, London, W. Prize, £3.

44. QUARTET FOR STRINGED INSTRUMENTS.—"Emperor's Hymn" (Haydn), with variations, open to amateurs only. Prize, £6.

45. VIOLIN COMPETITION (Piano accompaniment).—"No. 1, Thème de Paccini, Op. 89, accomp. de Piano," arranged by Ch. Dancila, published by Schott and Co., 157 & 159, Regent Street, London, W. Prize, Violin, value 5 guineas, by Mr. W. Jarrett Roberts; and a Bow, by the Committee.

46. VIOLONCELLO COMPETITION (Piano accompaniment).—"Cavatine," by J. Raff, Op. 85, No. 3, transcribed for Violoncello by Leboucq, and published by Augener and Co., Music Publishers, Fouberts Place, Regent Street, London. Prize, £3.

E. MILLS, Secretary.

BRADFORD TECHNICAL SCHOOL.—A FINE
ART and INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION will be opened by their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales, in JUNE next, in connection with the above school, and will remain open not less than three months. Entertainments will be given daily in the large Lecture Hall, which will accommodate about 800 persons. The Executive Committee invites applications from parties desiring to give musical, mimetic, dramatic, or other entertainments. Address, stating terms and giving full particulars, Geo. Chas. Sim, Hon. Sec., Mechanics' Institute, Bradford.

UNION CHAPEL, Islington.—A performance of
"ELIJAH" will be given on TUESDAY Evening, April 25. Vocalists: Mrs. Atherton B. Furlong, Madame Florence Winn, Mr. Sydney Tower, and Mr. Bridson. The choruses will be rendered by members of the Psalmody Class. Organist, Mr. Fountain Meen; Conductor, Mr. Williamson. Admission only by tickets, One Shilling each, to be obtained of Messrs. Novello and Co., Queen Street; Messrs. Agate and Pritchard, Gracechurch Street; the various Music Warehouses in Islington; and of the Chapel-keeper, Compton Avenue (of whom only reserved seats, Half-a-crown each, can be had). The proceeds will be given to the Nichol Street Ragged School.

MUSICAL ASSOCIATION, 27, Harley Street, W.
On MONDAY, April 3, at 5 o'clock, a Paper will be read by ARTHUR O'LEARY, Esq.:—"Sir William Sterndale Bennett: a Brief Review of his Life and Works." JAMES HIGGS, Hon. Sec.
9, Torrington Square, W.C.

THE MUSIC PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION.—
TO THE MUSIC TRADE.—At a GENERAL MEETING of the Association held at Messrs. Metzler and Co.'s, Great Marlborough Street, on TUESDAY, the 7th inst., it was proposed by Mr. Boosey, seconded by Mr. Enoch, and duly carried: "That this Meeting is of opinion that the custom which prevails to some extent of Wholesale London Houses purchasing music through provincial dealers is prejudicial to the interests of the Trade, and that it is resolved by those present at this Meeting to close accounts with all provincial dealers having transactions of this kind with London Houses." By Order, B. LUCAS, Secretary.
84, New Bond Street, London, March 8, 1882.

MRS. W. H. MONK (wife of Musical Editor of "Hymns Ancient and Modern") earnestly APPEALS on behalf of a suffering WIDOW, destitute and quite helpless. Four times she has been admitted into Hospitals, and from each discharged incurable. Will some kind friend tell Mrs. Monk if there is a "Home for Incurables," where such a forlorn sufferer can be admitted without payment or delay of canvassing, and allowed to pass the remainder of her sorrowful life? For many years she has been known to some of the clergy in her district, and to Mrs. Monk, Glebe Field, Stoke Newington.

TRINITY COLLEGE, London.—On TUESDAY,
April 18, at 7.30, J. CONWAY BROWN, Esq., L. Mus. T.C.L., will read a Paper on "Parochial Choirs."
CHARLES W. PEARCE, Hon. Sec. Licentiate's Committee.

TO LOVERS of CLASSICAL MUSIC.—A few
Amateurs residing in the North of London are extremely desirous of meeting with some enthusiastic LOVERS of MUSIC (Instrumentalists and Vocalists) for the purpose of forming a Friendly Society for the study of classical music, exclusively. Any amateurs who may wish to make a study of the works of the great masters, and are desirous of furthering the cause of true art, are earnestly invited to write to the undermentioned address, when full particulars will be given. W. Mawby, 6, Lorne Road, Finsbury Park, N.

ST. GEORGE'S, Hanover Square.—Mr. PINNEY
thanks the Ladies and Gentlemen who lately applied for the SOPRANO and TENOR appointments, and begs to inform them that the vacancies have been filled up.
70, Elgin Crescent, W.

CHORISTERS' SCHOOL, Salisbury.—There will be Four Places in this School to be filled up at Easter. A limited number of boys is received. The boys form the Cathedral Choir, and must possess good voices. They live under the care of the Rev. G. Bennett, Vicar Choral of the Cathedral and Master of the School. The Dean and Chapter offer a free education and £20 per annum towards the cost of board. Applications should be made at once to the Head Master, The Close, Salisbury.

FREE VACANCIES in a resident Country Choir
for two LEADING TREBLES. Orphans (gentlemen's sons) preferred. Address, Precentor, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

SOLO BOY WANTED immediately, for a Church
at South Kensington. Duties: Sundays only, and practice Wednesday and Friday evenings. Salary, £25 per annum, and £30 after twelve months. Must read music well. Apply to J. Mallitt Jones, Esq., 154, Finborough Road, Earl's Court, S.W.

TWO BOYS WANTED, for St. Mildred's, Bread
Street. Mornings only; rehearsal before service; 7s. 6d. per quarter. Also volunteer ALTO and TENOR. Apply at the Church, after service.

LEADING BOY WANTED, for St. Edmund's,
Lombard Street, City. Good Reader. Commencing salary, £10. Address, Mr. C. E. Tutill, 32, Malvern Road, Dalston.

BOY TREBLE WANTED, for the Choir of St.
Paul's Church, Grove Park, Chiswick. Apply by letter, E. G. Robinson, Ciscerdown, Gunnersbury, Chiswick.

ST. ANNE'S, Soho.—ALTO Voices WANTED
in this Choir. Application should be made by letter to the Choir Secretary, J. Berwick Orgill, Esq., Members' Mansions, Victoria Street, S.W.

THERE is a VACANCY in the Choir of the Lock
Chapel, Harrow Road, for an ALTO (Male). Salary, £10 per annum. Applications to be sent in to Mr. Walter Wesche, 14, Tavistock Road, Westbourne Park, W.

MALE ALTO WANTED, for City church. Two services Sunday; Wednesday rehearsal. Salary, £20. Apply by letter, Organist, 129, Newington Butts, S.E.

TENOR WANTED, must be a Good Reader and used to Cathedral music. Duties light; salary, £20. Apply by letter to A. B., 1, St. Maur Road, Fulham, S.W.

TENOR WANTED for Christ Church, Lee Park,
S.E. Stipend, £20. J. T. Field, 8, Montpelier Row, Blackheath, S.E.

WANTED, for the Voluntary Surpliced Choir of St. Andrew's, Victoria Street, Westminster, TWO TENORS and TWO BASSES. For particulars apply to Mr. Hatch, 243, Vauxhall Bridge Road.

BASS WANTED for West-end Church. Two services Sunday. Friday practice. Stipend, £20. Good voice and thorough knowledge of choral services indispensable. Apply by letter only, Organist, 44, Baker Street, W.

TO CLERGYMEN and CHOIRMASTERS.—A
Gentleman, many years principal BASS in a Cathedral Choir, would be happy to join a London Choir. Address, Cantor, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MRS. BELLAMY (Soprano).

Oratorio and Ballad Concerts, 32, Hunter's Lane, Birmingham.

MISS E. A. BLACKBURN (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., 30, Woodview Terrace, Manningham, Yorks.

MISS LILY CALLAM (Soprano).

Pupil of Herr Schubert.

Open to engagements for Concerts, &amp;c., 35, Shrubland Road, Dalston.

MISS MARIE COPE (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Concerts, Lessons, 167, New Cross Road, London, S.E.

MISS EVA FARBSTEN (Soprano).

Pupil of Signor Ardit, Conductor of Her Majesty's Opera. For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, 20, Story Street, Hull; or, N. Vert, Esq., 50, New Bond Street, London, W.

MISS BESSIE HOLT (Soprano).(Of the London, Manchester, and Newcastle Concerts.)
Address, Rawtenstall, Manchester.MISS MINNIE JONES (Soprano)

Requests that all communications respecting Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., may be addressed, 39, Eastbourne Street, Everton, Liverpool.

MISS CLARA MARNI, R.A.M. (Soprano).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &amp;c., address, 32, Newington Green, N.

MISS EVA NEATE (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, care of Mr. J. A. Matthews, 9, North Place, Cheltenham.

MISS EMILY PAGET, R.A.M. (Soprano).

Medalist for Singing.

For Concerts, Oratorios, &amp;c., address, 19, Lloyd Square, W.C.

MRS. ALFRED J. SUTTON (Soprano)Is open to engagements for Concerts and Oratorios.
54, Duchess Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.MDLLE. ANTOINETTE VIOLET (Soprano).*WILLIAM PAYNE CLARKE (Tenor).
Address, care of Vernon I. Kitchen, Victoria Music Warehouse, 407, Oxford Street, Manchester. Concert parties provided.MISS EVELYN MORDAUNT (Contralto).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, Ripon, Yorks.

MISS JEANIE ROSSE (Contralto).

Fairmead Lodge, Upper Holloway, N.

MISS FLORENCE WYDFORD (Contralto).

For Oratorios, Miscellaneous Concerts, Dinners, Soirées, &amp;c., 95, St. Paul's Road, Lorrimer Square, S.E.

MR. PARKER ASHFORD (Tenor).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, 6, Arundel Place, Barnsbury, N.

MR. VERNEY BINNS (Tenor).

65, King Cross Street, Halifax.

MR. C. WIGG FREDERICKS (Tenor).

For Oratorios and Ballad Concerts, address, Hereford Cathedral, or 42, Shelgate Road, Clapham Junction, London.

MR. T. W. HANSON

(Principal Tenor of St. Paul's Cathedral). For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, 19, Belvoir Road, Lordship Lane, S.E.

MR. EDWIN LONGMORE (Solo Tenor).*MR. HENRY SUNMAN (Solo Bass).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, The Minster, Southwell.

The Era says: "Mr. Peach has a tenor voice of very pure quality."MR. FRANK PEACH (Tenor).

For Oratorios, Concerts, Church Solos, &amp;c., address, 58, Foulden Road, Stoke Newington, N.

MR. STEDMAN (Tenor).

12, Berners Street, W.

MR. DENBIGH COOPER (Primo Baritone).

Concert, Oratorio, Opera, Opéra Bouffe, &amp;c., all communications, Mr. Stedman, 12, Berners Street.

MR. JOHN WARWICK (Baritone).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., 116, Brockley Road, S.E.

MR. FERGUS ASQUITH (Bass).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, Cathedral, Wells.

MR. W. H. BRERETON (Bass).

8, Mecklenburgh Street, W.C.

MR. FRANK MAY (Bass).Medalist and Prize Winner of Royal Academy of Music.
(Pupil of Mr. W. H. Cummings.)

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, Messrs. Weekes and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

MR. J. BINGLEY SHAW (Bass).

For Oratorios, Concerts, Banquets, &amp;c., address, 12, Berners Street, London, W., or The Minster, Southwell.

MR. FREDERICK SHAW (Bass).

5, Adelaide Terrace, Lincoln.

MISS LAURA SMART (Soprano) will sing:
Stockport (Orchestral Concert), Matlock ("Judas"), Cleekeaton ("Creation"), Bootle (Miscellaneous), Edinburgh (Beethoven's Mass in C), Wirksworth, Derbyshire ("St. Cecilia's Day"), &c., &c. All communications, 28, Church Street, Liverpool.MISS ARTHUR, Soprano, Pupil of Madame Sainton-Dolby, begs to announce that her permanent address is 29, Langholm Crescent, Darlington.MRS. SAM'L. WORTON FIELDING (Contralto).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &amp;c. Would join quartet party. 96, The Grove, Hammersmith, London, W.

MR. E. DUNKERTON (Tenor, Lincoln Cathedral), will sing: Mansfield, April 11 ("Messiah"); Leeds, 13 ("Lauda Sion"); Wirksworth, 17 ("St. Cecilia's Day"); Heckington, 18 (Ballads); Ludlow, 25 ("May Queen"); Walsall, 26 ("Ancient Mariner"); Lincoln, May ("Messiah").

MR. FREDERICK BEVAN (Bass, H.M. Chapel

Royal, Whitehall) begs to announce that he is open to accept engagements for Oratorio, Classical, Operatic, or Ballad Concerts, &amp;c. (New address) 21, Bonham Road, Brixton Rise, S.W.

MR. ALFRED MOORE (Bass) will be happy to forward vacant dates for Oratorios and Concerts of all descriptions, in town or country, on application to his new address, Saint Winifred, Underhill Road, Lordship Lane, S.E.

MR. ARTHUR DOREY (Organist of the Alexandra Palace). For Pupils, Engagements for Concerts, &amp;c., 14, Huntley Street, Bedford Square, W.C.

THE HARP.—Miss F. LOCKWOOD, Harpist to the Carl Rosa Opera Company, and teacher of the above instrument. London address, 6, Frederick Place, Gray's Inn Road, W.C.

MR. CLEVELAND WIGAN, composer of "Sons of Vulcan," "Song for Mariners" (sung by Miss Mary Davies), &amp;c., &amp;c., undertakes the Revision of Amateur Compositions, Vocal and Instrumental. 69, Folkestone Road, Dover.

MR. ALFRED CALDICOTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab.,

Composer of the "Widow of Nain," Prize Glees, &amp;c., desires to announce his REMOVAL from Worcester to Torquay, Devon, where all communications should be addressed.

MR. CHARLES TREW begs to announce his REMOVAL at Easter to 75, Abingdon Road, Kensington, W.

DR. CORBETT gives LESSONS through Post in Harmony, Counterpoint, &amp;c., &amp;c. Upwards of sixty pupils have passed musical examinations. Address, Bridgenorth, Salop.

LESSONS by CORRESPONDENCE. E. W.

TAYLOR, Mus. Bac., F.C.O., L.Mus. T.C.L., Stafford.

LESSONS by Post, in HARMONY, COUNTER-

POINT, COMPOSITION, &amp;c., on a new and highly successful system. Terms very moderate. Address, A. B. C., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., LESSONS

by POST. Also Music Scored for Bands. Terms moderate. M., 73, Spenser Road, South Hornsey.

TUITION by CORRESPONDENCE for MUSI-

CAL EXAMINATIONS. Graduated instruction, suitable exercises, careful correction, ample solutions. No payment unless successful. Address, Mr. James Jennings, Deptford, London.

THE ORGANIST of RIPON CATHEDRAL

teaches HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT by Correspondence. For terms, address Edwin J. Crow, F.C.O., Mus. Bac., Cantab.

MR. C. FRANCIS LLOYD, Mus. Bac., Oxon.,

L.Mus., T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &amp;c., by post. Address, Alma Place, North Shields.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates whopassed RECENT UNIVERSITY EXAMINATIONS for the DEGREES of MUS. DOC. and MUS. BAC. (Oxford, Cambridge, and Dublin). Dr. Allison prepared Candidates who passed this year's (1882) Examination for Licentiate of the Royal Academy of Music, "Passed with Honours" Royal Academy of Music, Local Examinations F.C.O. (1882), and every other Musical Examination open to the public. Harmony, Acoustics, Form, Plan or Design, Counterpoint, Canon, Fugue, Analysis, Orchestration, and Revision of Compositions, by Post. Personal instruction in Singing, Organ and Pianoforte playing. CAMBRIDGE HOUSE, 68, NELSON STREET, MANCHESTER.MUSIC SCHOOL.—CHURCH OF ENGLAND

HIGH SCHOOL for GIRLS (Limited), 6, Upper Baker Street, Regent's Park.—Head Music-Mistress, Miss Macirone, late Professor of Royal Academy of Music. Fees, two or three guineas a term. Pupils not in the school pay an entrance fee of one guinea. Musical Scholarships will be awarded by Professor Macfarren in July next. Trinity term begins Monday, April 24.

F. J. HOLLAND, Chairman.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Three manuals, each of 56 notes, pedal organ, 30 notes, 18 effective stops, and blown by the Automatic Hydraulic Engine. Terms, strictly inclusive, ONE SHILLING PER HOUR, at Blennerhassett's Organ School and Studio, 1A, Vernon Street, Pentonville, W.C.
Sole Agent for THE HYDRAULIC ORGAN BLOWER. Cheapest, simplest, best, and most effective ever invented. Full particulars, and estimates as above, free. Inspection invited.

ORGAN PRACTICE (Private) on exceptionally moderate terms. Three manuals, 34 stops; separate pedal organ of 4 stops. Blown by engine-power. Five minutes' from the "Angel." Apply to Ewald and Co., 16, Argyll Street, Regent Circus, W.

ORGAN PRACTICE AND LESSONS (if required) may be had on the Four-manual Concert Organ in Lancaster Hall, 133, Lancaster Road, near Notting Hill (Ladbroke Grove) Station. Terms and description on application to the Proprietor, at above address. Omnibuses from Regent Circus pass the door.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Three manuals. The South London Organ Studio, 343, Cold Harbour Lane, Brixton.

ORGAN LESSONS, or PRACTICE, 36, STRAND (four doors from Charing Cross), and at St. Michael's, Lorn Road, Brixton Road, S.W., on fine two-manual C ORGANS (Hill and Son). PEDALLING specially taught. W. VENNING SOUTHGATE, "The Strand Organ Studio," 36, Strand, W.C. Established 1867.

ORGAN LESSONS (with Practice), St. Saviour's Church, or Mr. J. Faux Boardman's Organ Studio, 58, Herne Hill Road, near Loughborough Junction, S.E. Excellent opportunity for making rapid progress. Modern organs.

PRACTISING ROOMS.—AGATE and PRITCHARD, 68, Gracechurch Street, E.C. Professors attend to give Lessons on various instruments, also in Singing. An Elementary Class for the Violin.

SINGING LESSONS.—B.M., First-class Certificate Society of Arts, R.A.M. Will also give odd lessons. Address, A. A., Mr. W. Fairweather, 12, Moreton Street, Belgravia, S.W.

TESTIMONIAL TO DR. FOWLE.—As mentioned by the London Figaro, it is proposed to present a TESTIMONIAL to DR. FOWLE, who is well known in the musical world, and the grounds on which Subscriptions are being invited to the Fund are as follows: DR. FOWLE has worked single-handed for twenty-five years as Composer, Author, Editor, and Publisher. A twelve-page Catalogue will show that he has produced four books of Voluntaries, for country and other Organists; four volumes of Anthems, which are standard works for the Church; five Cantatas; twelve Marches for all the Festival Seasons in and out of the Church; two Services, suitable for village choirs (one in sixth edition); a Church Tune Book, containing new Tunes, Chants, Sanctus and Kyries, to suit any Hymnal; a Thanksgiving Te Deum for Festivals—indeed, every kind of Music required by country choirs, both sacred and secular. Of Literary Works: "Life of Handel for the Million"; "Memoir of Charles Dickens," to be followed by "Mozart," "Versification of the Collects," for the purpose of musical adaptation; "Gentle Edith," a Novel of high moral tone; a work on the Training of Choirs, and other minor works. These works have been most favourably reviewed, and are esteemed so useful that nearly 2,000 persons petitioned the ex-Premier for a Civil Service pension for DR. FOWLE, as a reward for the benefits that the public have reaped through his labours. He is now suffering severely from the great depression of the last eighteen months, and the loss occasioned by the bankruptcy of the publishers of his Novel. To this may be added weak health through the sedentary work of a quarter of a century, and the anxiety of a helpless wife for twenty years.

Subscribers' Names are received by the Dowager Lady Antrobus, 16, Grosvenor Crescent, London, W.; Lady Lewis, 5, Cadogan Square, S.W.; Mr. Pitman, Publisher, 20, Paternoster Row, E.C.; and at Messrs. Pinckney's Bank, Salisbury, the Diocese in which DR. FOWLE's father laboured as a hard-working and respected Clergyman for fifty-nine years.

The numerous Organists, Choirmasters, and others, who from time to time have so enthusiastically expressed the obligation they are under to DR. FOWLE, will now have the opportunity of evincing their real appreciation of his labours to the extent their means will permit of doing. When the Fund is closed, a list will be printed with the name of every Subscriber, and a copy forwarded to those who send either a stamped addressed envelope or a halfpenny addressed wrapper.

Any SMALL SUMS are received, the desire being to get the million, for whose benefit DR. FOWLE has laboured, to support this Testimonial.

NAMES OF SUBSCRIBERS TO THE FUND.

	£	s.	d.
The Dowager Lady Antrobus	10	0	0
Baroness Burdett-Coutts	5	0	0
Lady Lewis	5	0	0
The Lord Bishop of Manchester	5	5	0
H. Lindsay Antrobus, Esq. (Messrs. Coutts and Co.)	20	0	0
Sir Michael Costa	5	5	0
Sir George Elvey	1	1	0
The Hon. and Rev. Canon Courtenay	1	1	0
Duke of Westminster	1	0	0
Sir Smith Marriott	1	0	0
Charles E. Stephens, Esq.	1	1	0
F. Pitman, Esq.	1	1	0
Proprietors of the City Press	2	2	0

THE following Artists may be engaged for Oratorio, Ballad, and Miscellaneous Concerts, either as a quartet party, or separately, viz.:—

MISS ANNIE SINCLAIR (Soprano).
Of the Royal Albert Hall and Exeter Hall Concerts.

MISS EMILY DONES (Contralto).
Of the Royal Albert Hall Concerts.

MR. ALFRED KENNINGHAM (Tenor).
Principal Tenor of St. Paul's Cathedral.

MR. THOMAS KEMPTON (Bass).
Of the Bach Choir Concerts and St. Paul's Cathedral.

For terms, vacant dates, &c., &c., to Thomas Kempton, 6, Halliford Street, London, N., where all communications respecting Church Festivals, Masonic Banquets, &c., should be addressed.

FIRST PROVINCIAL CONCERT TOUR of Mr. JOSEPH MAAS, the Great English Tenor, who will be supported by the following Artists:—

MDLLE. GIULIA VELMI,
MISS DE FONBLANQUE,
MISS HELEN D'ALTON,
MR. H. T. BYWATER,
MR. THURLEY BEALE.

Solo Harp, MR. D. FFRENCH DAVIS.
Solo Piano, HERR VOLKMER.

The following towns will be visited: Sheffield, April 10; Derby, 11; Kidderminster, 12; Nottingham, 13; Coventry, 14; Bolton, 15; Leeds, 17; York, 18; Sunderland, 19; Doncaster, 20; Hanley, 21; Blackpool, 24; Huddersfield, 25; Southport, 26; Preston, 27; Blackburn, 28; Wolverhampton, 29; Oxford, May 1; Bristol, 2; Plymouth, 3; Torquay, 4; Bath, 5. MR. CHARLES SANTLEY will join the party at Bristol and Plymouth.

THE Artists undermentioned may be engaged either as a Quartet or singly for Oratorio, Ballad, or Miscellaneous Concerts, viz.:—

MISS ANNIE HAGUE (Soprano),
MISS EFFIE KENDALL (Contralto),
MR. HILTON JUST (Tenor),
MR. H. SUGDEN (Bass).

Summer Tour will commence early in May. For terms, vacant dates &c., Hilton Just, 9, Cartwright Street, Doncaster.

MR. JOSEF CANTOR'S CONCERT COMPANY may be engaged for Oratorio or Ballad Concert. Terms, press opinions, &c., on application, Church Street, Liverpool.

MR. and MADAME EDWYN FRITH'S (Bass and Contralto) ORATORIO, OPERATIC, and BALLAD CONCERT ARTISTS and PARTIES (under Royal Patronage, 1880) for London or Provinces, from very moderate terms. Prospectus and highest testimonials. Over 150 well-known artists. In speaking of Mr. Frith's Party at Town Hall, Birmingham Daily Gazette, March 20, 1882, says: "The items composing the programme were without exception excellently received, and in every instance earned the artists a recall." Engagements settled: Woolwich (Royal Arsenal Philharmonic Society), April 7; Shrewsbury, 12; Hexham, 13; Lancaster (Choral Society), 13; Kilmarnock (Philharmonic Society, "Samson"), 14; Bury, Lancashire (Philharmonic Society, with Signor Foli), 17; Havestock Hill, 24; Exeter (Musical Association), 29, &c. Now arranging Summer (seaside) Tour in North, and long Autumn Tour in North Ireland, Scotland, &c., including Inverness. Communications invited. All London artists. Business arranging with all the best Societies. London and provincial artists wishing their names in next prospectus should write. Vacancy for one Resident Pupil, to be trained for Autumn introductions, also few other vocal pupils. Address, Yealm House, Netherwood Road, Kensington, W.

LONDON CONSERVATOIRE of MUSIC.—Principal, Mr. LANSDOWNE COTTELL.

Results of the Continental system of training adopted are illustrated by the continued success of various former students, now appearing in the concert-room and on the lyric stage.

The class-rooms are spacious, lofty, and well ventilated, provided with grand pianos, musical library, &c. In addition to public concerts, the monthly recreations comprise drawing-room lecture entertainments by Dr. N. Heinemann, F.R.G.S., and W. Lascelles-Scott, Esq., F.R.M.S.

Examinations: Wednesdays, 43, Berners Street; and Myddelton Hall, Thursdays, at four, or by appointment. Fees from two guineas per term; residential, 14 guineas, inclusive of above. Terms commence from any day.

THE LONDON CONSERVATOIRE affords to Amateurs the widely appreciated resources of the Continent, to Professional Students direct facilities for introduction, and free tuition to talented young Artists unable to pay fees. Approval form by addressed envelope, Secretary, 6, Tavistock Square.

MUSIC TEACHER.—WANTED, an ENGAGEMENT in a School, by a Lady of experience. Good Pianist and Sight Reader. Would not object to assist with classes. Good references. Address, E.T., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON.

HIGHER EXAMINATIONS IN MUSIC.

The next Examinations for the positions of Licentiate, Associate, and Student in Music, for Matriculation, and for Special Certificates in Harmony, Counterpoint, and Practical Music, will commence on July 10, 1882. The last day for receiving candidates' names for any of the above Examinations is June 23, 1882.

[N.B.—The Examinations are held in London only, with the exception of the Matriculation Examination, which may, by special arrangement, be held also at certain of the more important local centres of the College.]

LOCAL EXAMINATIONS IN ELEMENTARY MUSICAL KNOWLEDGE.

The next Examination will take place on FRIDAY, June 16, 1882. The last day for receiving candidates' names is May 8, 1882.

LOCAL SECRETARISHIPS.

The Academical Board are prepared to receive Applications for vacant Local Secretaryships at the following places: Bath, Cambridge, Carlisle, Darlington, Deal, Doncaster, Gloucester, Grantham, Grimsby, Halifax, Hull, Lewes, Lichfield, Lynton, Macclesfield, Market Harborough, Merthyr Tydvil, Monmouth, Newark, Oswestry, Preston, Sheerness, Southampton, Southend, Taunton, Torquay, Trowcester, Trowbridge, Wakefield. Applicants must be prepared to qualify for appointment by being duly elected Honorary Members of the College.

CLASSES AND LECTURES.

The New Term commences MAY 1.

Harmony and Counterpoint.—Gordon Saunders, Mus. D.; F. E. Gladstone, Mus. D.; Baron Bódog Orczy, Humphrey J. Stark, Mus. B. Form and Orchestration.—E. H. Turpin, L.Mus.T.C.L. Musical Acoustics.—W. H. Stone, M.A., M.B., F.R.C.P. Pianoforte.—Sir Julius Benedict, W. G. Cusins, Bradbury Turner, Mus. B.; E. Silas, King Hall, Miss Alma Sanders, Mrs. Baskcomb, Fredk. G. Cole, L.Mus.T.C.L.; G. E. Bambridge, Ridley Prentice. Ensemble Pianoforte Class.—Sir Julius Benedict, Organ.—W. S. Hoyte, L.Mus.T.C.L.; W. Pinney, Mus. B. Harmonium.—King Hall. Solo Singing.—F. Schira, A. Visetti, J. C. Beuthin, J. H. Nappi, Wallace Wells, Miss Kate Steel. Violin.—J. T. Carrodus, L. Szczepanowski. Violoncello.—E. Woolhouse. Flute.—John Radcliff. Oboe.—A. J. B. Dubrucq, W. M. Malsch. Clarinet.—H. Lazarus. Harp.—John Cheshire. Orchestral Society.—George Mount. Musical History.—E. H. Turpin. Elements of Music and Sight Singing.—E. Burritt Lane, L.Mus.T.C.L. Choral Society.—George Mount. Vocal and Aural Physiology.—Llewelyn Thomas, M.D., and Lennox Browne, F.R.C.S. Choral Service Class (for Clergy).—Rev. the Warden, Mus. B. Art of Conducting.—Mr. George Mount.

Classes have also been established in General Subjects for the benefit of Students preparing for musical degrees.

TRINITY COLLEGE, MANDEVILLE PLACE, MANCHESTER SQUARE, W.
BY ORDER OF THE ACADEMICAL BOARD.

LATEST NOVELTY. GREAT SUCCESS.

NEUMEYER Quadruplex Pianos.

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

No. 4,219.

MOST PERFECT AND CHEAPEST
INSTRUMENTS.

WARRANTED TO STAND ALL CLIMATES.

For new Designs and Price-List apply to

NEUMEYER AND CO.,

NEUMEYER HALL, HART STREET, BLOOMSBURY,
LONDON, W.C.

BELL ORGANS

AHEAD OF ALL OTHERS

MANUFACTURED BY

BELL & CO., GUELPH, ONTARIO, CANADA.

Sole European Agents:

NEUMEYER AND CO.,

NEUMEYER HALL, HART STREET, BLOOMSBURY,
LONDON, W.C.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

(PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH)

Price Threepence.

Annual subscription, including postage, 4s.

Subscriptions will also be received by all Book and Musicsellers (not including postage), 3s.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£	s.	d.
Two Lines ... ..	0	3	0
Three Lines ... ..	0	3	4
For every additional Line ... ..	0	0	10
Half a Column ... ..	2	0	0
A Column ... ..	4	0	0
A Page ... ..	7	10	0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.

A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

To insure insertion in their proper places, Advertisements should reach the Office not later than the 24th of each month. It cannot be guaranteed that those received after this date will appear among the classified announcements; they will, however, be inserted in the space allotted to Advertisements arriving late.

German Opera at Drury Lane

NOVELLO'S

OCTAVO EDITIONS OF OPERAS

TO BE PERFORMED.

	s.	d.
WAGNER'S "LOHENGRIN" .. ..	3	6
„ "TANNHÄUSER" .. ..	3	6
„ "FLYING DUTCHMAN" .. ..	3	6
„ "TRISTAN UND ISOLDE" .. ..	10	0
BEETHOVEN'S "FIDELIO" .. ..	3	6

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MERCER'S CHURCH PSALTER

AND

HYMN-BOOK

IN ALL FORMS AND SIZES.

A COPY OF THE ABOVE POPULAR AND

WELL-KNOWN HYMNAL

WILL BE SENT GRATIS AND POST-FREE

TO ANY

CLERGYMAN OR ORGANIST

ON APPLICATION TO THE PUBLISHERS,

MESSRS. NISBET & CO.,

21, BERNERS STREET,

OXFORD STREET, W.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

APRIL 1, 1882.

HEINRICH HOFMANN

BY JOSEPH BENNETT.

AMONG contemporary composers who occupy an interesting because, as yet, indefinite position, is Heinrich Hofmann; and it may not be amiss to lay before English readers some particulars regarding the individuality and work of a man whose name is surely known to them, however vague his form and features.

Hofmann was born at Berlin in January, 1842, and is now, therefore, forty years of age. Musical sympathies early displayed themselves in him, and at the age of nine he entered the choir of the Chapel Royal, soon rising, by virtue of his charming voice and great talent, to the rank of soloist. At fifteen he entered the musical academy conducted by Herr Theodor Kullak, under whom he studied the pianoforte, his masters for harmony and composition being Dehn and the recently deceased Professor Wüerst. His first ambition was, it would seem, to rank as a pianoforte virtuoso, and for several years he appeared before the public in that capacity, not without a fair measure of success. This, however, could not last. A natural impulse towards composition became stronger and stronger, till at length Hofmann abandoned the concert platform, and devoted himself entirely to the creative branch of his art. We first hear of him as a composer in 1869, when he brought out a comic opera called "Cartouche"; which work made its way to more than one stage, but has since fallen into oblivion. This was followed, in 1873, by a Hungarian Suite for orchestra; after which came, amongst other and minor things, the "Song of the Norns," for female voices and orchestra; a sestet for strings, and the symphony "Frithjof," some time ago played at the Crystal Palace. The symphony determined at least his German fame. It was played nearly twenty times during the season 1874-5, and everywhere received with favour by those who were ready to welcome the advent of a new master. The cantata "Melusina" followed, in 1875; and then, soaring higher, Hofmann completed an heroic opera, in four acts, on the subject of Arminius, as well as a cantata, "Cinderella." These are the composer's principal works, but a complete catalogue would include beside them a crowd of smaller things produced with a quickness and ease suggestive of great, if not too great, facility. Some critics have thought fit to warn Hofmann against over-production, and have pointed out instances in which, eager to cover paper, he has simply repeated himself. There are no doubt some grounds for the caution thus administered, but the fault is, after all, natural to an ardent spirit rejoicing in its work and conscious of strength. Moreover it is an error that somewhat "leans to virtue's side"; giving reason for hope that, as years and wisdom increase, the composer will use his powers not less earnestly, but with greater judgment, and with higher regard for the fact that a man should only produce his best, taking whatever time may be needful for its perfecting.

Hofmann's first opera was produced at Dresden on October 14, 1877, and takes its name from the formidable Teutonic hero known to readers of the dolorous story of Varus and his legions as Arminius. A little while since the German people were celebrating the memory of Armin, and it may have been in view of such national homage that Hofmann resolved upon his theme. Anyhow, a better choice would have been hard to make, save, perhaps, in the matter of female interest. A great historic personage like Armin necessarily overshadows the women whom it may be requisite for dramatic purposes to invent and group around him. Otherwise the subject is a fine one. Written for Germans, it appeals to their sense of patriotism and hero-worship, just as would an English opera based on the story of our own noble Alfred. Moreover, it touches a responsive chord in the breast of every man, of any nation, who has in him a feeling for romance and an admiration of brave deeds. The author of the article "Hofmann" in M. Pougin's Supplement to Fétis's "Biographie Universelle" asserts that the book of "Armin" was written by Herr Felix Dahn, "under the obvious influence of Wagner's poetry." Whether the opinion be correct or not hardly concerns us here, and I only mention it to heighten by contrast the significance of the fact that Hofmann's music belongs in no appreciable measure to the school of Bayreuth. Generally speaking, it is not even characteristic of the composer himself, as we know him in the delicately elaborated pianoforte works now making their way on all sides. The freedom of harmonic treatment there displayed, the complication of structure, and the evident stress upon details, are here to a large extent wanting. It is another manner and, roundly speaking, another method that the composer adopts in this opera—a manner and a method better suited to the broad effects consistent with an heroic story and martial incidents. It will be seen later on whether Hofmann possesses in any special measure the faculty of musical characterisation, but it is unquestionable that the general tone of his opera accords with its theme. The correct keynote is struck in the first scene, which introduces us to the camp of the Roman forces, and makes us listen to their songs. Here all is simplicity, breadth of effect being studied rather than fineness of touch, while the composer gives no hint of a desire—so precious in German esteem—to convey any other than the direct significance of his subject. Genuine vigour, and a feeling of proud confidence, mark the strains of the terrible legionaries:—

There is, however, something of southern grace and lightness in the principal theme of the choral march:—

The foregoing brief extracts fairly illustrate the spirit in which the composer deals with this part of his work. No touch could be firmer or more unaffected. I will add that no result could be more obviously appropriate. Most of the principal characters, among them Varus, his daughter Fulvia, and Armin, appear in this scene, thus giving an early opportunity to judge Hofmann's power of characterisation. It seems to be, if not very subtle, sufficiently well marked. Fulvia's first utterance, with a graceful accompanying passage for flutes and clarinets, is to the ear what her presence amid the martial figures of the camp must be to the eye. In quite another style, Varus's music is not less happy. It bespeaks the master of legions in its broad and sonorous diatonic phrases emphasised by the blare and crash of brass. On the other hand, it may be argued that the choral strains of the Germans, in whom the spirit of revolt is fermenting, contrasts hardly enough with those of their Roman masters:—

Coming to the music of Armin, it strikes us as beautifully suggestive, in its prevailing sadness, of the man who not only laments an oppressed country, but measures the sacrifices through which alone freedom can be gained. Here is a representative passage full of pathos:—

The second act shows us Thusnelda, daughter of Segest, a German prince, as she dreamily looks from a window of her father's palace. Moonlight streams in, and the maiden is alone. Here, if anywhere, Hofmann might be expected to reflect Wagner, but the music more strongly recalls the composer's own and best-known individuality. We light, for example, upon the free harmonic and rhythmic treatment in which Hofmann as a rule indulges, and upon an expression which, if never profound, is always tender and engaging. The slow movement of the monologue is undeniably charming, and the Allegro distinguished for vigour; but surely something like this has been heard before:—

Armin and Thusnelda are lovers, and in the course of the second act they meet, the hero entreating the heroine to fly with him and be happy. This gives rise to a long and elaborate scene, in which Hofmann's dramatic facility is triumphantly asserted, but without a marked display of originality, either as to choice or use of means. The episode where Armin urges flight is particularly vigorous and exciting, working up its intense feeling to a height that makes all the more dramatic the chieftain's reproach, "Thou lovest me no more," and the maiden's exclamation, "Armin! beloved!" In my view, the whole scene determines, once for all, Hofmann's possession of the greatest requisite for dramatic composition. I am not reviewing the Munich opera, and have gone far enough for the purpose contemplated. Let it be said, however, with regard to the entire work, that managers searching for a novelty should not pass this by. The heroic, yet withal tender, story of "Armin," its animated flow of incident and thoroughly intelligible music, give it a fair claim upon consideration.

Turning from opera to cantata, it would be easy to enlarge upon Hofmann's setting of "The Legend of the Fair Melusina." The work, however, is one as to which amateurs generally have made up their minds. It has been public property for some time, and, more than anything else, perhaps, represents the composer to English music-lovers. Not so with the recent and sister composition, "Cinderella." Only the other day this journal noted the first performance of this cantata in England, at a concert given by the Tufnell Park Choral Society. Its time, therefore, has to come, and can hardly be far off, since Hofmann's growing repute more and more disposes to a favourable hearing. On the occasion of the performance just mentioned some of the conspicuous features of "Cinderella" were indicated, amongst other things, the way in which the librettist has dealt with the nursery tale in order to obtain a higher kind of incident fit for serious treatment. Into that matter it would be out of place to enter now, and I pass on to dwell upon the skilful way in which Hofmann has drawn a broad musical distinction between the natural and supernatural actors in his little drama. It may, indeed, be questioned whether fairies can legitimately be expected to take part in such a fugue as "Bend, O ye mountains, your tree-crowned summits"; but the prevailing characteristic of the little people's music is lightness and grace. Here are the opening bars:—

With this the first chorus of mortals, "Roses strew we," in common time, is a suggestive, without being a violent contrast. A little later the composer emphasises his purpose by giving the King a homely melody that reflects something more than the spirit of German folk-song:—

In perfect keeping is the chorus which follows, "On foot and on horse"; in fact, it would seem as though Hofmann went out of his way to court melodic, rhythmic and harmonic simplicity in this section of the work. But all is changed with the introduction of Cinderella. The homeliness vanishes. A higher note is struck, and a more elaborate expression introduced. Something of descriptiveness appears in the music, as when the orchestral introduction seems to suggest the play of the tongues of flame in the fire before which the heroine sits and prepares her lentils. At the same time the melody has a certain ruggedness and melancholy—which make way for grace and delight when the fairies reveal their purpose:—

Vivo.

Old days . . of love are with my mem'-ry on-ly; Once more . . I hear the cra-dle songs of child-hood.

The fairy wonder-working necessary to Cinderella's transformation gives occasion for considerable and happy play of fancy, and may be frankly accepted as successful. Particularly happy is the music to the fairies' warning that Cinderella must leave the ball before dawn of day. Mark the effect of the C natural, as the brass instruments give ponderous notes like the strokes of a bell:—

S. & A. in 8ves.

Fly with the strik-ing of the hour, For all the glamour departs with dawn of day, departs with dawn of day.

In the Ball scene Hofmann is again at his best. What can be brighter or more spontaneous than the opening chorus, "The halls now glitter in festive array," or more appropriate than the music which accompanies the entrance of Cinderella? Here, instead of putting into the mouths of the guests conventional exclamations of astonishment, the composer introduces a passage, "Who's this who comes through the hall?" which seems to convey a sense of the grace and dignity of the heroine's appearance and manner. The same thoughtfulness marks the dialogue of the King and Cinderella, continual change of key expressing the agitation of the interlocutors. Beginning in F, the music passes to A flat, then to A minor, E major, C major, and so on, all in the space of a few bars. Yet another point is made in this scene, when the King asks the name of his lovely guest, and is answered with charming simplicity and grace:—

Nev - er my name was told me; Nay, I know not; ev-en if I knew it, I dare not tell thee.

I might dwell also upon the well-written and passionate duet of the lovers, "O sweetest of moments!" but enough that in this scene we have abundant evidence of its composer's feeling for a dramatic situation and his aptness at lyrical expression. Some attractive choral music is found at the opening of the third part, "In the Forest," but interest gathers chiefly around the scene in which the fairies test the strength of the King's love by submitting him to powerful temptations. A spinning-chorus and chorus of wood-nymphs are full of character, each in its particular way, and so is that sung by the goblins of bog and moorland, who gather at the Fairy Queen's command to try the effect of terror, since cajolery has failed. Further reference to the details of "Cinderella" need not be made, and there only remains to indicate the work as well representing that stage of musical progress where modern freedom of treatment is still held in subordination to long-recognised structural law. The cantata emphatically belongs to the present, and therefore is bound by obvious ties to the past, from which the present has sprung. With the "future"—as defined in musical matters by inverted commas—"Cinderella" boasts no connection.

Hofmann's varied merits as a song-writer are sufficiently illustrated in his settings of Ostenwald's "Frauenbilder aus Shakespeares Dramen," a set of four, entitled "Miranda," "Ophelia," "Juliet," and "Desdemona" (Op. 33); and in a group of five (Op. 51). Of these the first are less characteristic than the second, because simpler, both as regards the vocal melody and the nature of the accompaniment. This, however, may have been the composer's purpose. He may have sought to distinguish his music by reflecting in it the unforced naturalness of Shakespeare's heroines. If so, here are Miranda's gentleness and purity:—

Moderato.

Let me draw in full - est measure
From those eyes deep draughts of pleasure, Such as were by me un-tasted In the life till now I've wast ed.

Even in this case, however, Hofmann indulges in a characteristic touch:—

For thee trem - ble, love thee fond - er, who has known to wake and win me,

pul - ses new to stir with - in . . me.

The mingled unexpectedness and boldness of this passage represent a feature in the composer's works that, while it offends some, charms many more.

"Ophelia," though marked by greater elaboration than "Miranda," opens with the same simple beauty and perfect propriety:—

Andante con moto.

A gar - land she gath - er'd out of the mead, Where

In "Juliet" we look for a rush of passion, and are not disappointed. Here, for example, is a passage of singular force and beauty:—

It is not the lark's song, Thus thy senses de -

cres.

- ceiv - ing, no, it flows from the

cres.

rit. poco più lento.

night - in - - gale's plain - tive throat, her rit. mf poco più lento.

plain - - tive throat.

"Desdemona," on the other hand, presents a continued stream of plaintive song; and its evidence, joined to that of the companion pieces, goes far to prove in Hofmann the existence of an acute poetic sensibility and a flexible power of musical expression that enable him to follow his subject through all changes.

The set of five songs shows the composer in a freer mood; and here, perhaps, we find him at his best. "Abendstille," after describing the beauties of the night, conveys the lover's invitation to the beloved one in a passage of which no song-composer past or present need be ashamed:—

O lov - ed, come, and bend - ing thy

Ped. * Ped. *

smile . . . so rare on me,

Gleam thro' the dark - ling bran - ches like

Ped. *

mf

moon - light on the lea. In &c.

mf

Ped. *

"Wirf in mein Herz den Anker" is equally charming in its easy flow of melody and varied harmony, while "Stelldichein" exemplifies the partiality of the composer for such a method of tonality as, in less skilful hands, might be dangerous. As to this, Hofmann takes full advantage of modern taste, but the instances are few in which he abuses it. The song begins in the simplest manner, and, passing through the key of A major, ends its first verse on the dominant. But in the second verse the key of F is exchanged for F minor, and that of A for A flat, from the dominant of which an easy and graceful transition is made to the dominant of the original key. The variety of effect thus secured, by the plainest of means, has its equal only in the skill with which the producing machinery is worked. Nothing but the tonality is changed in order to bring it about. "In der Fremde" presents little of note; but, on the other hand, "Liebesgruss" has all the broad characteristics of a national melody. Its beauty and freshness are irresistible.

Other songs that might be mentioned as exemplifying the same delicate and sensitive art are "The Hungarian Maiden" (probably an arrangement of a Magyar melody) and "Blumenorakel" ("The Flow'ret Love-test"). The examples given must, however, suffice to prove that Hofmann has the qualities necessary for a master of lyric expression. It is clear that he does vastly more than scan the lines of his poetry and note its general feeling. He enters into its spirit, and from that centre of vantage follows the current of its thought through all windings.

Hofmann has composed several works for concerted voices, with and without accompaniment, as, for example, the already mentioned "Melusina" and "Song of the Norns"; three quartets for S.A.T.B.; "Champagnerlied," for male chorus with orchestra; six quartets for male voices; and four two-part songs with pianoforte accompaniment. As a rule, the smaller of these pieces show little or none of the harmonic elaboration characteristic of the composer's music in general, but are simple in structure and unpretending in style. The two-part songs supply an illustration. Thus "Wake, 'tis morning," is nothing more than a plain melody harmonised in four parts, of which two are given to voices. There is no structural reason whatever why voices should not take the others. "The Little Sweetheart" has a more independent accompaniment; but even here the second voice-part is merely a portion of the "filling-in," and remains throughout destitute of thematic significance. Upon this "The Snowflakes" shows a decided advance. The second voice has a phrase to itself; there are interludes for the pianoforte, and the accompaniment aims at descriptiveness. The subjoined, indeed, might be a passage from one of Hofmann's pianoforte "pictures":—

"When o'er the sea" reverts to rigid simplicity, and is, for the voices, a sedate progression in thirds and sixths. From the evidence in these and other cases it would appear that the composer feels less at home in writing for concerted voices than for the solo; and it will be seen in due time that he excels most when working with instruments only. His songs, however, deserve attention for reasons that lie beyond dispute. I do not say that they are always original, or in every case striking; but, generally speaking, they exert the charm inseparable from the offspring of a poetic temperament, keen discernment, and flexible expression. In the next number of this journal I hope to prove, from even more conclusive data, that these qualities are eminently those upon which the claims of Hofmann rest.

(To be continued.)

"THE NIBELUNG'S RING"

AN ANALYSIS OF RICHARD WAGNER'S TRILOGY

By F. CORDER.*

THE unusual dimensions of this remarkable work form no small obstacle to anything like a complete musical analysis within reasonable limits: indeed, the only full description hitherto published, that by Hans von Wolzogen in the Musikalisches Wochenblatt, extended over six years of a weekly paper, and would occupy about 150 of such pages as the present. We must therefore confine ourselves to the main outlines and disregard the infinite exquisite details—after the fashion of the édition faciliée of the vocal scores.

* The writer feels it advisable to state that the quotations from the libretto in the course of this paper are, like those in previous articles, from his own translations, now publishing by Messrs. Schott, and not from Mr. Forman's version.

As regards the story, we may say that the title is rather misleading. The legend is drawn, not from the "Nibelungen Lied"—the national epic of Germany—but from the original progenitor of that poem, the "Völsunga Saga" of Scandinavian tradition. This exceedingly interesting work is attainable to English readers in the "Story of the Volsungs and Niblungs" of Mr. Morris, and a good synopsis is also to be found in the preface to Dr. Dasent's "Tales from the Norse" (first collection). Wagner has rather confused the story than otherwise by grafting on it portions of the aforesaid "Nibelungen Lied," by Germanising the Norse names, and also—with an excusable dramatic instinct—by bringing the gods and goddesses into more close connection with the human portion of the tale. The weak point of his libretto is the complication thus produced; and as he thinks it necessary in each successive portion of the drama to make some character or other—usually Wotan (Odin)—narrate all that has passed in the preceding, by the time we come to the fourth section the amount of explanation is really wearisome; it swamps the piece.

The music of this work is invested with a peculiar interest of its own. Not only is it the first work in which Wagner's own theory—the symphonic working of leading motives by the orchestra against a totally independent voice-part—was thoroughly carried out, but the time occupied in writing it extended over so long a series of years (from 1856—shortly after "Lohengrin"—to 1872) that the gradual alteration and development of the master's style is clearly to be traced. This change of style, too, is marvellously advantageous to the work, which needs to be broad, simple, and clear, almost to baldness in the earlier portions, that the all-important "motives" may be fixed in the mind with nothing to obscure them; while towards the end the mass of thematic material is so enormous—including indeed over a hundred short, pregnant, and constantly recurring distinct phrases—that none but a man in his "third period" could successfully grapple with the mere technical feats of counterpoint involved in their working. And these feats are, in point of fact, overwhelming in their greatness, the ease with which they are performed, and the strange, wild beauty of the resulting polyphony.

But we must desist from general remarks, tempting though their theme is, and turn to a consideration of

THE RHINE-GOLD.

THIS is somewhat clumsily called the "Prelude, or Prologue to the Trilogy"; but the whole work is really a Tetralogy, and this the first part. We deal here only with supernatural beings—gods, goddesses, nymphs, gnomes, and giants.

The orchestral prelude is a real marvel. By the way, we suppose most of our readers are aware that the gloriously perfect orchestra of this work has just double the ordinary number of wind-instruments—four flutes, oboes, &c., and eight horns. The Prelude is 136 bars long (moderato, 6-8), and lies simply on a chord of E flat major throughout. First, the key-note is sounded by basses specially tuned down, then bassoons add the fifth above; then the eight horns utter the following "motto" phrase—one after the other, in closer and closer canon, till they form a background of monotonous rising chords.

No. 1.

Now the cellos and bassoons, soon joined by the violins, give us a variation on it—the Rhine-motive—

No. 2.

and soon after the rest of the wood-wind enter on a slightly different version against a semiquaver accompaniment. The rest of the instruments creep gradually in (the basses never quitting their low E flat), till we actually feel ourselves floating away on the sparkling waves. Before the curtain rises no one can doubt for a moment what the scene will be. It is a deep green flood of water that seems to pour from the orchestra: we are beneath the Rhine. The curtain rises, and the harmony changes at last to a 6-4 (though the E flat bass still continues for another twenty bars), and we see the Rhine-nymphs swimming, diving, and floating about. Their motive is this graceful melody, which lies on the one chord—

No. 3.

one simple form of arpeggio runs through all this scene, and is characteristic of the Rhine. The gambols of the nymphs are interrupted by the appearance of Alberic, an earth-gnome, or Nibelung, who is led by curiosity to this foreign domain. He has, as yet, no distinguishing motive, but his music will always be found full of notes following each other at intervals of a minor second, thus:—

No. 4.

He vainly tries to woo the nymphs, but even nymphs draw the lines somewhere, and the "swarthy, stunted, and shrivelled-up dwarf" is too hideous for anything but to make game of. So the nixies torment him to their hearts' content, in a charming scene, singing No. 3 derisively, as he pursues them over rock and stone. Suddenly the frolic is stayed by a mysterious event. The mystic Rhine-gold, which it is these nymphs' duty to guard, glows, as if in sunlight, and lightens the waters. Its motive—a most important, and therefore simple, one—is:—

No. 5. Horn.

The girls hail the mystic illumination with a new motive, of which we can only quote the first few bars, there being twenty. This is the "Song of the Rhine-gold"—

No. 6.

and the running accompaniment figure continues for no less than fifty-eight bars, while the nymphs tell Alberic all about the gold, and suddenly ceases on the appearance of the most important theme in all the work—the Ring-motive, when one of the speakers says—

The world's kingdom that one could encompass,
who from the Rhine-gold shaped him a Ring,
which measureless might could secure.

This theme appears in its complete form a little later, thus:—

The dwarf is informed (to another striking theme, which space forbids our quoting) that only he who renounces love for ever may make use of the gold to the above ends. Goaded by the jibes and refusals of the nymphs, Alberic utters the vow aloud, and, seizing the gold, vanishes with it, pursued by the terrified guardians who have so imprudently opened the door to the thief. Darkness falls, and the scene changes in very elaborate fashion, while the Rhine-music fades away, and the Ring-motive melts into another of intentionally similar rhythm, being also a symbol of power—the Valhalla-motive, a march-like theme, always given out by solemn trombones, tubas, and horns:—

No. 8.

Wotan (Odin) and Fricka (Frigga) are asleep in a meadow on a mountain. In the distance is the heroes' heaven, Valhalla, the castle which the Frost-giants have just built, and for which Freia, the Scandinavian Venus, is to be given in payment. Wotan's gratification at seeing the building completed is rather dashed when Fricka reminds him of the impending penalty. Wotan's compact with the giants is "writ in runes" on the haft of his spear, and one very important motive, therefore, suffices to typify both spear and agreement:—

No. 9.

Freia now enters, imploring to be saved from the giants who are pursuing her. She has an insignificant motive, a phrase which, however, is afterwards turned to very good account:—

No. 10.

This appears for some time in a less developed form to the above, and combined with a phrase which is the germ of the "flight-motive" quoted later on.

Now the giants Fasolt and Fafnir appear, their music having a strong rhythmical figure:—

A long and rather tiresome parley ensues, the giants remaining firm in their demand, and Wotan waiting impatiently for Loki, the god of fire and cunning, who has promised to get him out of his scrape. Froh (Frey) and Donner (Thor) in vain attempt Freia's rescue; she is on the point of being carried off, when the shifty Loki appears on the scene, and is appealed to as arbitrator. Loki's music consists of rising and falling chromatic passages, which often reappear when any treachery or deceit is occurring. He has also the following fire-motive:—

No. 12.

After much mere dialogue he declares to them, in a most beautiful speech, which forms the one melodious oasis in this otherwise dull scene, that he has sought over the entire world to find a fit ransom for Freia, but in vain—

Success slipped me:
I see now full well
in the world around nought, howe'er rare,
can replace in mind of a man
a woman's wonderful worth.

All through this runs the Freia- or beauty-motive, as we have quoted it above, with the peculiar accompanying quaver figure. The last line of our quotation introduces another much-used motive, representing love in the abstract:—

Then Loki tells of the one being (Alberic) who has renounced love for the boon of the Rhine-gold, which alone can equal it in value. All the hearers become envious for this gold, and after Loki has given a full detailed account of its origin and powers, the giants offer Wotan an ultimatum. If he will get the golden treasure for them they will renounce their claim to Freia; till then, she is theirs. They carry her off, despite her struggles and the menaces of her brother-gods; whereupon a strange thing happens. Deprived of the goddess of love, with her youth-giving apples, the gods all at once turn pallid, wan, and aged. In this extremity Wotan summons his resolution, and decides to rob the Nibelung, with the assistance of Loki. Accordingly they descend into the bowels of the earth—a complicated and difficult scenic effect—while the orchestra works out the phrases associated with Loki, and No. 13 keeps reappearing at intervals. Another noteworthy motive—the flight-motive—already hinted at when Freia was flying from the giants, now appears—and leads to a figure which recurs far oftener than any, the Nibelung's hammer motive—against which No. 14 is sounded in augmentation. A ruddy glow, as of distant forges, is seen on all sides; from numerous anvils of different sizes the rhythm, or rather accent, of this phrase, is uttered with deafening clamour, as we seem to approach, and then pass, the gnomes' forges. When this has died away the scene discloses a branching cavern in Nibelheim, the domain of the earth-gnomes. With grotesque music, similar to our quotation No. 4, Alberic appears, dragging along and punishing his miserable brother Mimi, who has been striving to keep back a wondrous piece of metal-work which he has fashioned by Alberic's command. This is the Tarnhelm, or wishing-cap, which can make the wearer invisible, give him any form he likes, or transport him whither he will. Here is its striking motive, uttered by four horns con sordini. It bears a curious resemblance to the Swan-motive in "Lohengrin" (afterwards introduced in "Parsifal") :—

No. 15.

No. 16.

Bis.

By the help of this treasure and the magic ring Alberic now tyrannises over the whole Nibelung race, driving his subjects with a scourge to heap up gold for him, while he remains invisible. Wotan and Loki find Mimi howling on the ground, and gain all this information from him. Clearly the power of Alberic is dangerous, and must be crushed. Alberic returns and finds his visitors, but knows them not. He shows off his wondrous powers, driving the poor gold-seekers to work with the spell of his ring:—

No. 17.

Wind.

Gong trem.

This theme is obviously a distortion of the "Song of the Rhine-gold," No. 6.

After some conversation, in the course of which the motive of the Nibelung hoard—

No. 18.

appears for the first time, and Alberic angers Wotan exceedingly by his triumphant boasts of power, the wily Loki performs the feat of Puss-in-Boots with the Ogre. He persuades Alberic first to turn into a dragon—

No. 19. Lento.

and then into a toad, to prove the virtues of the Tarnhelm. On his assuming the latter form, his two visitors seize and carry him off a captive. After another orchestral symphony, we return to the mountain heights of Scene 2, having repassed the clanging smithy. The wretched dwarf is compelled to disgorge all his ill-gotten gains as a ransom. Not only this, but the Tarnhelm and Ring are counted as part of the plunder, and he is stripped of all power, save that of malignity. With a most evil-sounding phrase—

No. 20. 3 Clar.
Cello. Horn.

typical of his malice, Alberic lays this deadly curse on the ring—

As at first by my curse 'twas reached, henceforth curs'd be this Ring.
Gold which gave me measureless might,
now may its magic
deal each owner death.
All shall lust
after its delights,
but none shall employ them to profit him. . . .

and this unmistakable theme is the "Curse-motive":—

No. 21. As at first by my curse 'twas reached, henceforth curs'd be this Ring.

Wotan heeds little the spite of the released dwarf, being absorbed in the pleasure of owning the Ring. The other gods now return, and the giants bring back Freia to see if she is to be ransomed. They demand as much gold as will hide her from sight, so they set their staves in the ground as a measure, and the hoard is piled up. But when all the gold is expended there is not quite enough. They insist on the Tarnhelm, which, after some demur, Wotan resigns. Still unsatisfied, they demand the Ring, but here Wotan makes a stand. No entreaties can persuade him to yield it; in a fury the giants declare the bargain off, and seize Freia again; all are in despair, when there suddenly sounds forth No. 2 in a minor key (we are by no means clear as to this connection), and Erda (Hertha), the goddess of the earth, rises solemnly up and warns Wotan to shun the Nibelung's curse—

Hear me! hear me! hear me!
All that exists endeth.
A dismal day
dawns for the Æsir:
O render wisely the Ring!

Here a sort of inversion of the theme forms the "Dusk of the gods" motive:—

No. 22.
F $\sharp$  bass. Gong.

This warning converts Wotan, and he throws the Ring on the pile of treasure, which the giant Fasolt then proceeds to put into a sack and carry off. Fafnir demands his rightful share, a quarrel ensues, and Fasolt is laid dead by a blow of his brother's staff, while the menacing sound of No. 21 reminds us that the curse has begun to work. Now to compensate for the dullness of the foregoing scenes, a beautiful scenic and musical effect is introduced. Donner offers to clear away the mists which still obscure the stage, making the gods so haggard and grey. He mounts a rock and swings his hammer till the vapours obey his call and condense to a black thunder-cloud. A tremendous clap of thunder, with lightning, follows the stroke of his hammer on the rocks, the clouds disperse, and a glittering rainbow is seen to span the abyss which divides the gods from their future abode. The scoring of this, with six separate harp parts in impossible arpeggios, while the strings fizz away in divided tremolos, all on a long-continued chord of G flat, with a smooth melody in the bass, is beyond description. The pompous Valhalla march, No. 8, is glorified by the full orchestra while the gods prepare to cross the bridge. Wotan, bidding his friends follow him, is suddenly struck with an idea, which future events explain. He will contrive a sure defence against hostile menaces:—

No. 23. Trumpets.

Loki, lingering behind, expresses his contempt for these feeble gods—

To their end they even now haste, while esteeming their strength overwhelming.
Ashamed am I
to share in their acts;
a feverish fancy
doth woo me to wander forth as a flickering fire;
to burn and waste them
who bound me erewhile.
There seems sense in the scheme!
I'll study on it:
who asks what I do?

From the valley rises the lament of the Rhine-nymphs for their lost gold, a beautiful melody, altered from No. 6. Loki jeeringly bids the maidens to bask henceforth in the new-born splendour of the gods as a substitute for their treasure, but they mournfully sing—

Rhine-gold!
rarest gold!
O might but again
in the wave thy pure magic wake!
What is of worth
dwells but in the waters:
base and bad
those who are thronéd above!

The gods cross the bridge to Valhalla, the orchestra thunders out the Defence (No. 23) and Valhalla (No. 8) themes, followed by the rainbow-music, and the curtain falls.

It is obvious that with the exception of the first scene and Loki's speech in the second there is absolutely no opportunity for vocal melody in this section of the work. All is simple and almost bald recitative; the various motives are brought forward in the clearest and most striking manner in order that they may be impressed on the ear. Scenic display is cunningly utilised to relieve the tedium, and the conclusion is very imposing; but if it were played by itself "The Rhine-gold" could scarcely command success.

THE VALKYRIE.

WE now enter on far more interesting matter; in fact, this is the most popular portion of the work. The supernatural beings henceforth only take a very subordinate part in the dramatic interest: human beings, though of a wild and unfamiliar type, are now introduced to us.

With a pardonable condensation of the old legend, for dramatic purposes, Wagner represents that Wotan, during his roving on earth, has taken the form of a warrior, Wälse (Volsung), and begotten a twin son and daughter, Siegmond and Sieglinde, with the intent that his son, inured to hardship and distress from his birth, and with his hand against man and God, should somehow regain possession of the Ring, now held by Fafnir, the last of the giants. But this hope is not destined to be fulfilled. The daughter, Sieglinde, has been carried off and wedded against her will to one Hunding, and it is in Hunding's house that this wild and beautiful drama opens.

The house, like that of most Scandinavian warriors of the time, is a log-hut, built round a huge tree; a very picturesque scene. A storm raging without is depicted in the orchestral introduction in somewhat novel fashion. A phrase—repeated incessantly on different degrees of the scale against the tremolo D, which forms a pedal point no less than sixty-four bars long (the longest pedal extant) and culminating in wild, thunder-and-lightning passages, and finally dying away. Such is the bold form into which Wagner has thrown his Prelude.

At the rise of the curtain Siegmond enters the house, exhausted and in flight. His motive, apparently arising from No. 24, but really far more related to No. 9—he being the son of Wotan—is this:—

He stretches himself out on the hearth, careless whether it is a friend's or a foe's, and is thus found by Sieglinde, who is at first represented by this simple phrase—

but afterwards by another. She hospitably attends to his wants, but the eyes of the two are strangely attracted, and at each fresh glance these two lovely phrases—

(of which a—it will be seen—is the "flight"-motive, No. 14) are uttered with ever-increasing force and expressiveness. The melodious recitatives are interspersed with these, and other phrases arising from them, lending a great charm to the mere opening dialogue. Siegmond is about to depart, considering his fate to bring ill-luck wherever he goes, but Sieglinde says—

Nay, bide thee here!
Thou'lt bring no ill-hap, methinks, where ill-hap hath harboured long!

and here enters "Sieglinde's sorrow"-motive, turned afterwards to a lovely melody ("Siegfried," Act ii.):—

More fascinating glances pass between the unknown brother and sister, while the orchestra combines this motive with No. 26. Then Hunding comes home, and is heard outside stabling his horse. He is evidently a rough customer:—

He treats the guest with sullen suspicion, and is no better pleased on observing the eye-glances passing between his wife and the stranger who so singularly resembles her. Supper is spread, and Siegmond is induced to tell his name and history. The latter forms three long and rather uninteresting speeches, which we may pass over; the former he gives as Wehwallt (Woeful). Hunding discovers that the guest is one of his bitterest foes, and accordingly informs him that though the laws of hospitality protect him now, he must prepare to die the morrow. Sieglinde, packed off to bed by her husband, endeavours unsuccessfully to direct the guest's eyes to a certain spot in the tree-trunk which stands in the middle of the stage. The trumpet-call No. 23 tells us that it has something to do with his safety.

Siegmond, left alone, sits musing over the fire, while the drums and horns keep up an incessant muffled throb in the rhythm of No. 29, following his thoughts. He wildly appeals to his mysterious father for a sword once promised him. Lo! the violins enter, after a very long absence from the score, in a glittering tremolo chord of C, accompanying the fanfare No. 23, as the dying fire shoots up a last gleam and shows the handle of a sword sticking out of the tree. This is a most wonderfully brilliant yet simple effect. Siegmond sees not the treasure, and the theme, after curious and clever working, dies away, leaving him in gloom and sadness. But a white figure steals from the inner room. It is Sieglinde, who has drugged her husband to sleep, and now comes to tell this interesting stranger how to save himself. She narrates a long story, to the effect that on her miserable wedding-day a strange old man in a blue mantle and broad flapping hat drawn over one eye—and here the Valhalla theme, No. 8, tells us who it was—entered the room and struck a sword into the tree, destining it for him who could draw it forth. (A parallel incident occurs no less than three times in our "Morte d'Arthur.") Sieglinde then goes on to mourn her friendless state, and Siegmond consoles her with offers of friendship. The music grows most amorous and lovely here, when an interruption occurs. The house-door swings open and shows an exquisite moonlight spring night. The harps sweep wildly up and down the chord of 7th on G flat, and then, after a tender modulation into B flat, Siegmond bursts into the famous Spring song, with its delicate triplet accompaniment accented in twos and leading to the most ravishing love-scene ever penned, even by Wagner. The phrases in No. 27 form the principal material, but the whole scene is one flood of impassioned melody. For the first time in the work the alliterative verse, which has been all too prosaic, rises into real poetry. The two lovers now abandon all concealment of their love, and confide their dreams and longings to each other in true lover fashion. But soon the interest works up wildly. Siegmond reveals his true name and lineage. It is he, then, for whom the sword is reserved! He springs up and plucks it with one tug from its living sheath, offering it as a wedding gift to his bride. In a delirium of passionate excitement Sieglinde cries—standing beside me?

Art thou Siegmond

Sieglinde am I;
for thee I've sighed.

Thou'lt won't thy sister,
I'll tell thee, as well as the sword!

and Siegmond, equally madly—

Bride and sister

be to thy brother:—

so blest may the Volungs abound?

and as the lovers wildly embrace, the curtain judiciously falls.

Before leaving this incident, which has naturally provoked general censure and disapprobation, we cannot avoid mentioning two points where Wagner has been curiously blind. Why make (as he does afterwards) the gods and even the lovers themselves express such horror at this unnatural love, when in those days such unions were neither unnatural nor unlawful? Secondly, compare the above scene with the corresponding events in the "Völsunga Saga." Signy (Sieglinde) was wedded to King Siggeir, a ruffian who caused the death of her parents and ten brothers. Sigmund lived for years an outlaw in the woods. Revenge being a sacred duty, and her sons by her husband proving too weak for it, Signy slays them, and, changing shapes with a "witch-wife," seeks out her brother and has a child by him. When this son, Sinfjotli, comes to man's estate, he and his father come and burn the hall of King Siggeir and all within it; but when they would save Signy, she answers: . . . "For this and for naught else have I wrought that King Siggeir might get his bane at last, and that I too might not live long; and merrily now will I die with King Siggeir, though I was nought merry to wed him." Therewith she kissed Sigmund her brother and Sinfjotli, and went back again into the fire, and there she died with King Siggeir and all his good men."

Far from being repulsive, the incident is positively grand in this form. But let us now return to our subject and consider Act II. The prelude is an animated and energetic movement, working the flight (14) and sword (23) motives, the Hunding (29) theme occasionally growling in the bass. Thus it may be taken to represent the flight of the lovers.

In a wild mountainous region Wotan is found directing Brynhildr, one of his Valkyries (daughters of Wotan and Erda, who picked out conqueror and victim in battle, shielding the one and carrying the other's body to Valhalla), to protect Sigmund in his coming contest with the injured Hunding. Here a theme which demands quotation is the battle-call of the Valkyries:—

Brynhildr, as she goes, warns Wotan of the approach of his forsaken and angry spouse Fricka, a lady much given to "nagging." She comes on in her car drawn by rams, and proceeds to "give it to" her husband on the subject of Sigmund and Sieglinde—

This froward and sinful pair, thine unfaithfulness' sensual fruit.

A long and rather wearisome dialogue ensues, in which no new themes of any importance are introduced; and the upshot is that Wotan, out of respect to his wife's matrimonial laws (and her outrageous tongue), consents to recall the Valkyrie, to destroy the magic sword which was his great resource, and to cause Sigmund's death. The music of this scene is little but recitative, and cannot but drag. Brynhildr, returning from saddling her horse—the famous Grani—finds her father in a most dismal state, his grief having this doleful phrase—and begs to know what has happened. After some pressing, he confides in her to a dreadful extent, pouring out the whole story of the "Rhine-gold" drama, and winding up by cursing everybody and everything, and wishing he was dead—a wish possibly shared by the audience. Brynhildr makes some objections to her new orders to kill Sigmund, but the opposition drives Wotan to frenzy, and he threatens her with all sorts of terrors, finally flouncing off in a thunderstorm.

Now, with the flight-motive unceasingly reiterated, come on Sigmund and Sieglinde, she in a painful state of terror and excitement, he trying in vain to calm her. After much distressing raving over the horror of her crime, she sinks into a sudden lethargic slumber as Brynhildr solemnly reappears upon the scene to warn Sigmund of his approaching fate. The theme of the "Tidings of Fate," the first phrase of which is used throughout this opera as a Brynhildr-motive, is this:—

A noble scene follows, working out the second half of this motive as an eight-bar melody. Sigmund shocks Brynhildr by refusing to go even to Valhalla if he must leave his beloved Sieglinde behind. Rather would he fall a prey to Hella, the cold goddess. At last, won upon by his noble and manly bearing, the Valkyrie recklessly resolves to disobey her father's unwilling behest and to still protect Sigmund. She bids him be of good heart and trust in his sword, and flies away at the climax of a stirring duet—if it may be so called. A storm gathers over the mountain tops darkening the scene (nearly the whole of this drama is played in gloom and storm), and the roaring sounds of cattle-horns, blown by Hunding and his tribe, come nearer and nearer. Sigmund leaves his sister-bride safely asleep and goes forth to meet his foe. The storm soon wakes Sieglinde; she hears the voices of the combatants, and presently catches glimpses of them in the lightning flashes. They encounter on the mountain peak. Brynhildr soars over Sigmund, covering him with her shield, but to her dismay Wotan appears and holds out his spear before Hunding. The magic sword breaks against that awful spear; Sigmund is slaughtered by his ruthless foe. The Valkyrie flees in terror, but does not forget to take with her the hapless Sieglinde, half-dead with horror. Then Wotan does a very mean and spiteful thing. Before pursuing Brynhildr, to chastise her disobedience, he stops to kill the unoffending Hunding—

Get hence, knave!
kneel before Fricka:
tell her how Wotan's spear
avenged his spouse's slight.
Go!—go!

(Before the contemptuous wave of his hand Hunding sinks dead to the floor.)

As he turns, with wrathful menaces, in pursuit of Brynhildr the act-drop falls.

(To be continued.)

THE GREAT COMPOSERS.

BY JOSEPH BENNETT.

No. XI.—CHOPIN (continued from page 135).

HAVING definitely fixed upon Paris as his abode, Chopin soon became a figure in the society of that brilliant capital. This was not to be wondered at, if we may accept as truthful testimony the evidence of Liszt and Karasowski, who, of one mind on nothing else, are agreed as to the extraordinary personal charms of their common hero. Liszt says:—

"The ensemble of his person was harmonious, and called for no special commentary. His blue eye was more spiritual than dreamy; his bland smile never writhed into bitterness. The transparent delicacy of his complexion pleased the eye; his fair hair was soft and silky; his nose slightly aquiline; his bearing so distinguished, and his manners stamped with so much high breeding, that involuntarily he was always treated en prince. His gestures were many and graceful; the tone of his voice was veiled, often stifled; his stature was low, and his limbs slight. . . . His manners in society possessed that serenity of mood which distinguishes those whom no ennui annoys, because they expect no interest. He was generally gay; his caustic spirit caught the ridiculous rapidly and far below the surface at which it usually strikes the eye. He displayed a rich vein of drollery in pantomime. . . . His gaiety was so much the more piquant because he always restrained it within the limits of good taste, holding at a distance all that could wound the most fastidious delicacy."

Let us hear Karasowski on the same theme:—

"Like those rare and beautiful plants which can only flourish in a soft, genial climate, Frederic, with his exquisite culture and delicate sensibilities, could only play con amore when in the best society and among connoisseurs who knew how to appreciate all the niceties of his performance, which under such conditions had a truly magical charm. . . . But in the midst of a circle of beautiful women, surrounded by friendly and familiar faces, a new poetical life stirred within him; the look of melancholy, which so often overshadowed his face, yielded to an amiable and sympathetic smile; the earnest and beautiful expression of his features was wonderfully fascinating; his conversation sparkled with intelligence, and, unconsciously to himself, the influence of his fresh and harmless wit was indescribably felt by those around. When in a happy mood, his improvisation delighted and elevated the minds of his hearers, or, if he happened to be under the inspiration of Comus, awakened a sense of the purest and most innocent joy."

Such a man was exactly suited to such a society as that of Paris, and it is no wonder that a fellow-student was able to write of Chopin in 1833, and say: "He is now the mode, and the fashionable world will soon be wearing gloves à la Chopin." The Polish master's successes were, however, chiefly of a social character. Herz, Moscheles, Field, and the other favourite pianists of the day witnessed with mingled feelings, perhaps, the advent of the Sarmatian stranger, but there was really no danger to their supremacy. Chopin did not love the concert-room. He once said: "I am not fitted for concert-giving; the public intimidate me; their strange faces oppress me; their breath stifles me." This is a revelation of intense nervous susceptibility; but Liszt prefers to see in Chopin's abnegation of popular applause the veiling of an internal wound:—

"He was perfectly aware of his own superiority; perhaps it did not receive sufficient reverberation and echo from without to give him the tranquil assurance that he was perfectly appreciated. No doubt, in the absence of popular acclamation, he asked himself how far a chosen audience, through the enthusiasm of its applause, was able to replace the great public which he had relinquished. Few understood him—did those few understand him aright? A gnawing feeling of discontent, of which he himself scarcely comprehended the cause, secretly undermined him."

Turning from speculation to fact, it is recorded that Chopin gave a second concert in Paris, in 1834, and "failed to arouse the enthusiasm of the audience." His proud and sensitive nature took a long time to recover from the shock, and he gave himself more and more to teaching, and to performances in the refined society where alone the peculiar qualities of his genius could hope for appreciation.

In 1834 Chopin went with Ferdinand Hiller to Aix-la-Chapelle, for the purpose of attending the Musical Festival of the Lower Rhine, conducted by Mendelssohn. In his "Mendelssohn," Hiller tells how this expedition was conceived and carried out. Having been requested to translate the book and strengthen the score of Handel's "Deborah" for use on the occasion, and having duly acquitted himself of the task, Hiller was rewarded by an invitation to attend. Thereupon he says:—

"Chopin, with whom I was in daily and intimate intercourse, easily let himself be persuaded to go with me, and we were busy making our travelling plans when news arrived that the Festival was not to take place at Whitsuntide, though possibly later. We had hardly reconciled ourselves to postponing our journey, when we heard that after all permission had been granted for Whitsuntide. I hurried to Chopin with the news, but, with a melancholy smile, he answered that it was no longer in his power to go. The fact is that Chopin's purse was always open to assist his emigrant Polish countrymen; he had put aside the necessary means for the journey, but the journey having been postponed, forty-eight hours had proved quite sufficient to empty his cash-box. As I would not on any condition give up his company, he said, after much consideration, that he thought he could manage it, produced the MS. of his lovely E flat waltz, ran off to Pleyel's with it and came back with 500 francs. Who was happier than I?"

An incident of the Festival is worth reproducing. We find it in the book just quoted:—

"Schadow, always hospitable, asked us to come again in the evening, and we then found some of the most rising young painters there. The conversation soon became animated, and all would have been right if poor Chopin had not sat so silent and so little noticed. However, Mendelssohn and I knew that he would have his revenge, and were secretly rejoicing at the thought. At last the piano was opened; I began, Mendelssohn followed; then we asked Chopin to play, and rather doubtful looks were cast at him and us. But he had hardly played a few bars before everybody in the room, especially Schadow, was transfixed; nothing like it had ever been heard. They were all in the greatest delight and begged for more and more. Count Almaviva had dropped his disguise and everybody was dumb."

Mendelssohn's opinion of Chopin at this time is expressed in a letter to his mother, and well known, but may be given here for the sake of completeness:—

" . . . Chopin is now one of the first pianists; he * "Life of Chopin," p. 122. † Karasowski, vol. ii., p. 247.

‡ "Life of Chopin," p. 89.

* "Mendelssohn: Letters and Recollections," p. 37.
† Ibid., p. 40.

produces as many novelties on the piano as Paganini on the violin, and marvels that one would not have thought possible. Hiller, too, is an excellent player, with plenty of force and fancy. But both of them aim rather at Parisian sensationalism, and too often disregard time, repose, and true musical feeling. I, perhaps, incline to the opposite extreme, and so we supplied each other's deficiencies, and all three, I believe, learnt something from one another. About me there was a dash of the schoolmaster, about them the souffçon of a mirriflore or an incroyable."

In connection with the foregoing extract may appropriately be given one from a letter addressed, in 1835, by Mendelssohn to his sister Fanny, who had somewhat disparaged Chopin's ability as a virtuoso:—

"There is something so thoroughly original and masterly about his pianoforte-playing that he may be called a truly perfect virtuoso; and, as I love perfection in any form, I spent a most agreeable day, although a very different one from that with you at Henselt's. I was very glad to be once more with a thorough musician, not with those half-virtuosi and half-classicists who would like to unite in music 'les honneurs de la vertu et les plaisirs du vice,' but with one who has a clearly defined aim; and although this may be wide as the poles asunder from mine, I can get on with such a person capitably, but not with those half-and-half people."

In 1835 Chopin met his parents at Carlsbad, after a separation of five years, and did so for the last time. A presentiment of this seems to have affected father, mother, and son alike, their parting being of the most tender and painful description. The sadness of this episode in the master's life was, however, soon relieved by joy, in its way even more intense—joy which turned out a delusion and a mocking, but seemed very real and true at the time. His old love, Constantia Gladkowska, had asserted the fickleness with which, in love matters, her sex is credited. She married another man, and deeply wounded the sensitive heart of her worshipping Frederic. In time, however, Frederic got over it, and was free to look about for another idol. Such he found in Maria Wodzynski, to whom he became formally engaged at Marienbad in 1836. In the recently published work, "The Mendelssohn Family," we find a reference to Chopin during his stay at Marienbad, whither Fanny Hensel also had gone. Mendelssohn's sister tells how ardently she and her friends desired to hear Chopin play, and how annoying it was to find him so wrapped up in a Polish countess that his attention could be secured for no one else. One day, however, the Hensel party called, on the strength of their Mendelssohn connection, and found Chopin at home. But he was not to be "drawn." With many excuses, the virtuoso kept his pianoforte shut up, and the visitors retired discomfited. From Marienbad Chopin went to Dresden and Leipzig, all the time revolving in his mind projects for spending a blessed life with the beautiful and amiable woman he had chosen. His idea was to settle near Warsaw and establish schools for the people; which notion, by the way, shows how utterly impractical he had become under the influence of "love's young dream." But alas for the vanity of all human things! Not long after Chopin had returned to Paris, Maria Wodzynski followed the example of Constantia Gladkowska, and married another. Here was aggravation enough, one might suppose, to turn Chopin into a woman-hater. The sequel, however, tells a different story, since it is concerned with the connection between the Polish musician and Madame Dudevant (George Sand).

We read in Karasowski's biography* the circumstances under which Chopin and Madame Sand first met. On the evening of a wretched, rainy day, Chopin attended the salon of the Countess C—.

"As he walked up the carpeted steps, Chopin imagined himself followed by a shadow exhaling an odour of violets; he had a feeling that he was in the presence of something strange and wonderful, and felt almost inclined to turn back; then, laughing at his superstitiousness, he sprang lightly up the remaining steps and entered the room."

After a time, when only the Countess's intimate friends remained, Chopin went to the piano and improvised.

"When he had finished he looked up and saw a simply dressed lady leaning on the instrument and looking at him with passionate eyes as if she would read his soul. Chopin felt himself blushing under her fascinating gaze; she smiled slightly, and when he retired behind a group of camellias he heard the rustling of a silk dress and perceived the odour of violets. The lady who had looked at him so inquiringly was approaching with Liszt. In a deep, musical voice she said a few words about his playing, and then spoke about the subject of his improvisation. Frederic felt moved and flattered. . . . That night, when he returned home, the pleasing words were still ringing in his ears, the flashing glance was still dazzling his eyes."

In such manner began the intimacy between these two remarkable persons—an intimacy about which, as regards its effect upon Chopin, different views have been expressed. We do not propose to discuss the question, preferring rather to let Madame Sand speak as far as the story of their liaison belongs to Chopin's biography. In the fourth volume of her "Histoire de ma Vie," the famous authoress thus introduces the subject:—

"There is another being, not less beautiful and pure in its essence, not less sick and troubled in the world, which I recall with as much placidity in my communion with the dead, and as I wait for that better world where we ought to recognise all in a light more pure and divine than that of earth."

Madame Sand then goes on to tell how, in 1838, she resolved to visit Majorca, for the sake of her son Maurice, who was in weak health. On hearing this, Chopin desired to go also, hoping to be cured of a complaint which was believed to be consumption. Not he alone, but his doctor and his friends, urged Madame Sand to take him as a companion, and at last she consented.

"I was wrong, as the fact proved, to yield to their hope and my solicitude. It was surely enough for me to go abroad alone, with two children, one of them ill, the other in the exuberance of health and turbulence, without taking also trouble of heart and a physician's responsibility. . . . I begged Chopin seriously to estimate his moral forces, since for several years he had never faced without affright the idea of leaving Paris, his doctor, and his piano. He was a man whose habits were imperious, and any change, no matter how little, was a terrible event in his life."

In due time the party arrived at Majorca, and, after some trouble with the ignorant and inhospitable people, took up their abode in the still habitable rooms of a partly ruined and abandoned monastery. The place suited Madame Sand and her children:—

"I gave the children their lessons in the morning; they ran about all the rest of the day, while I worked; in the evening we played together in the cloisters by moonlight, or read together in the cells. Our life would have been very agreeable in that romantic * Karasowski, vol. ii., p. 258 et seq.

* "Histoire de ma Vie," vol. iv., p. 435 et seq.

solitude, despite the wildness of the country and the character of the people, if the sad spectacle of our companion's sufferings and certain periods of serious uneasiness about his life had not forcibly taken away the pleasure and advantage of the trip."

Poor Chopin was naturally out of his element in this wild solitude—he, the darling of Parisian salons, the atmosphere of which seemed to him the breath of life. He became morbid, and a prey to all sorts of excited fancies:—

"Bearing his pain with plenty of courage, he could not vanquish the restlessness of his imagination. The cloister, even when he was in health, was for him full of terrors and phantoms. . . . On returning from my nocturnal explorations amid the ruins, with my children, I found him sitting at the piano, pale, with haggard eyes, and with hair almost standing on end. It was some time before he could recognise us. Then he forced a smile and began to play some sublime things which he had just composed, or, rather, terrible and distracting ideas which had come to him, against his will, in that hour of solitude, sadness, and fright. It was there that he wrote the most beautiful of those short pages modestly called Preludes. They are masterpieces."

Chopin soon felt a horror of Majorca and its ruined monastery. He would have run away from it, but at one time was too feeble, and at another contrary winds kept the passage-vessels weather-bound. Meanwhile Madame Sand's life was not the happiest conceivable:—

"Our stay at the Chartreuse of Valdomosa was an agony for him and a torment for me. Sweet, playful, charming in society, Chopin sick among his intimates was distracting. No soul was more noble, more delicate, more disinterested, no connection more faithful and loyal, no spirit more radiant in its gaiety, no intelligence more serious or more complete in its domain; but, alas! on the other hand, no humour was more variable, no imagination more gloomy and delirious, no susceptibility more difficult to avoid irritating, no nature more impossible to satisfy. And to him this was in no sense his fault, but that of his malady. His spirit was flayed alive: the fold of a roseleaf, the shadow of a fly, made it bleed. Save myself and children, everything under the sky of Spain was to him revolting."

When at last able to leave the island, Chopin began to mend. His ailment was pronounced rather an affection of the larynx than of the lungs; and, after a short stay at Marseilles and Genoa with Madame Sand, he returned to his beloved Paris a different man. Soon after this, Chopin proposed taking up his residence altogether with the companion of his Majorca trip, and the lady's autobiography allows us to see how she debated the matter in her own mind:—

"I should not have hesitated to say 'No,' if I had then known for how short a time a retired life and the solemnity of the country suited his moral and physical health. I still attributed his horror of Majorca to feverish excitement and the particular character of that residence. Nohant offered better conditions—a retreat less austere, sympathetic surroundings, and resources in case of sickness."

Madame Sand appears to have had no difficulty in reasoning herself into a belief that Chopin might share her country house with advantage. Yet she declared herself free from the dominion of passion. Like Rousseau's Madame Warrens, she tried to take a maternal and sick-nurse view of the relations between herself and Chopin:—

"I was not deceived by passion. I had for the artist a kind of maternal adoration, very keen, very real, but which could not for an instant contend against inner love, the only chaste sentiment which can be passionate."

Then comes a remarkable proof of the subtlety with which the human mind can argue in the direction it really desires to go:—

"I was still young enough to have perhaps to struggle with love, with passion properly so called. That eventuality of my age, of my situation, and of the destiny of female artists, above all, when they have a horror of passing distractions, frightened me much, and, resolved never to submit to an influence which might draw me from my children, I saw a less danger, though still possible, in the tender friendship with which Chopin had inspired me. After reflection this danger disappeared from view, and took even an opposite character—that of a preservative against emotions which I was determined no more to know. Another duty added to my life, already so fatiguing, offered a greater chance for the austerity towards which I was attracted by a kind of religious enthusiasm."

Influenced by the considerations thus stated, Madame Sand permitted Chopin to reside under her roof even in Paris, where she occupied a kind of double garden-house, one part of which was used by herself and children, the other being given up to the musician for the reception of his pupils and friends. Thence they removed to the Square d'Orleans, going to Nohant every summer for three or four months, much to the disgust of Chopin, who could never be happy for more than a fortnight out of the gay city. Madame Sand says of him à propos:—

"He was the man of the world par excellence; not of the world official or comprehensive, but of the world intimate—of the salons of twenty persons, of the hour when the crowd has gone away, and when the select few gather round the artist to draw from him by amiable importunity his purest inspiration. It was then only that he showed all his genius and talents."

On another subject Madame Sand will certainly be accepted as a sufficient witness:—

"Chopin was not born exclusive in his affections. . . . His soul, impressionable to all beauty, to all grace, and to every smile, responded with marvellous facility and spontaneity. It is true that he recovered himself in the same way; an awkward word, an equivocal smile, disenchanted him at once. He would passionately love three women the same evening, and go away alone, thinking of none of them, but leaving each convinced that she had exclusively charmed him."

In illustration of the point here insisted upon, Madame Sand tells a story which she had from Chopin himself:—

"He was violently smitten with the granddaughter of a famous master, and thought of demanding her hand, at the same time that he cherished the idea of another love-match in Poland, his loyalty being engaged to neither, but his mobile soul floating from passion to passion. The young Parisian lady received him well, and all promised for the best, when one day he entered her house with another musician more celebrated than himself. She offered a chair to this gentleman before doing so to Chopin. He never saw her again, and forgot her out of hand. It was not that his soul was weak or cold. Far from that, he was ardent and devoted, but not exclusively or continually towards this or that person. He would yield himself to five or six affections, which struggled together in him, each in turn coming uppermost."

With what seems to be a personal reference, Madame Sand adds:—

"It was, therefore, at once sweet and cruel to be the object of his devotion, for he took account with usury of the least ray of light, and overwhelmed you with his disenchantment at the passage of the faintest shadow."

The accomplished writer hastens to say, however, that she herself never suffered from the butterfly nature of the master's affections:—

"Chopin accorded to me, and I can say honoured me with, a species of friendship which was exceptional in his life. He was always the same to me. He had, without doubt, few illusions concerning me, although he never made me descend in his esteem. Hence it was that our harmony endured so long. A stranger to my studies, to my researches, and consequently to my convictions, shut up as he was in the Catholic dogma, he said of me, like Mère Alicia in the last days of her life, 'Bah! bah! I am very sure she loves God.' We never, therefore, addressed to each other a mutual reproach except on one occasion, which was, alas! the first and last time. An affection so elevated ought to break, and not wear itself out in unworthy bickerings."

Break it did, but the story is too long for telling now.

(To be continued.)

A ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

THE importance of the meeting at St. James's Palace for the realisation of the National Conservatoire scheme, and in a wider sense for the development of English music, can scarcely be overrated. Its good results have already become apparent in the shape of a large subscription list; and it has been followed up by other meetings at the Mansion House and at Marlborough House, appealing to various sections of intended supporters. The assembly was in more than one sense of a truly representative character. Statesmen and dignitaries of the church, and literary men, and painters, and the élite of the musical profession were here gathered together to promote the interests of an art the humanising and refining influence of which even those were fain to acknowledge who, as the Archbishop of Canterbury humorously confessed of himself, have to accept the charms of music on the authority of others, or who, like Lord Rosebery, enjoy those charms without any pretence to technical knowledge. The addresses delivered before such an assembly cannot but find an echo in all circles of society throughout the country. The proposed National Conservatoire, which had hitherto been little more than an airy nothing, has now found a local habitation in all the towns and villages of Great Britain, from the City of London, whose generous support was promised by the Lord Mayor, to the smallest hamlet, where the practice of the local choir will be stimulated by the hope of sending a scholar to the great music-school in the metropolis. That the moral support thus generally secured will in many cases take the practical form of pecuniary contributions is not a matter of doubt, and there is every reason to hope that the sum already subscribed—small though it may appear in proportion to the large total required—will have the proverbial power of money to attract more. Neither should the significance of Mr. Gladstone and Sir Stafford Northcote appearing among the supporters of the Prince of Wales on the platform be underrated. The question of Government aid in connection with the new scheme is as yet a somewhat remote contingency. Beyond a passing reference in the address of the Prince of Wales it was not alluded to by the speakers, and the official duties of the two illustrious statesmen were limited to the agreeable and unpromising task of proposing and seconding a vote of thanks to the royal Chairman. At the same time, it is difficult to believe that the Prime Minister and the leader of the Opposition would have sacrificed their valuable time for the purpose merely of proving the ancient axiom that music hath charms to soothe the savage breasts even of rival politicians. The impression of the meeting was evidently a different one, as was sufficiently shown by the rapturous applause awarded without any difference of party feeling to both Mr. Gladstone and Sir Stafford Northcote. It seemed to imply the confidence that the Government—whether Liberal or Conservative—would not be disinclined eventually to give its active support to the National Conservatoire, provided always that the contributions obtained from the public show sufficient general interest to warrant such a course; and this impression, even should it be an impression only, will no doubt act as a powerful stimulant to individual liberality, each contribution thus serving in a twofold manner to secure the desired aim.

Supposing the financial prospects of the Royal College to be established on a satisfactory basis, its final and permanent success must still remain a matter of doubt and anxious care. The aims of the new institution will be so vast, its functions so manifold, that only from the most perfect system and from the most harmonious co-operation of the various members can satisfactory results be expected. In the first instance we are to have a model school in which the flower of English musical talent, represented by the 100 "foundation" scholars, is to be educated and partly maintained free from expense. The danger of adding to these, paying pupils, will be to some extent obviated by the method of submitting the latter to exactly the same rules of study and the same test of efficiency as the former. Their number, we think, should also be limited, and would be limited by making that test sufficiently difficult; and the professor should in no case derive any immediate pecuniary advantages from their fees, so that even the suspicion of the fostering of mediocrity for the sake of money could not be raised by the enemies of the College. The commercial spirit, so fatal to the artistic spirit of other institutions, should be kept at a distance alike from teachers and taught. The legitimate benefit which the College as a corporate body would derive from such payments, and which would enable it to augment the number of free scholars and to grant liberal salaries to the professors, is, of course, a different matter. But here also the advance of the art should always remain the supreme consideration. It would be more creditable to the National Conservatoire to turn out one perfect singer or great composer than to drill a number of more or less gifted pupils to a certain dead level of moderate artistic competence. A school cannot create genius, but it can discover genius, and foster it with the tender care it requires; it can also infuse serious love of art even into those to whom nature has denied the highest degree of creative power; it can, in fact, and should, to use a military term, prepare for the battle of art against vulgarity the great commander of men, and at the same time provide him with a staff of congenial and talented fellow-workers.

It is only by keeping this high mission in constant view that the new College will be able to accomplish a second task assigned to it—that of establishing a standard of taste and style by which the musical achievements of the country could be measured so as to make grave aberrations from the line of beauty apparent to every one. In no art is an academy of taste, in the highest sense of the word, more urgently required than in that of music, the nature of which is form without subject, and therefore requires a subtler and stricter canon of æsthetic laws than either poetry or painting to guard it from the inroads of license and pretentious ignorance. The value of the degrees and other musical honours which the new College very properly proposes to confer will in equal measure depend upon the confidence which musicians and the public will be able to place in its artistic tendencies and achievements. In its further task of developing the love of good music among the masses the way of the Royal College has been prepared by many individual efforts. Both in the churches of all denominations and in the family circle enormous steps in advance have been made in the last half-century. The great merits of Mr. John Hullah—whose method of class-teaching, commenced forty years ago, marked the initiative in this direction—were dwelt upon by Mr. Gladstone. The excellent results of the so-called "Tonic Sol-fa" system in teaching beginners to sing at sight should also be mentioned in this connection, whatever may be thought of the abstract merits and the convenience of a separate system of notation. Novello's cheap editions of the Oratorios, followed by numerous similar reissues of classical masterpieces, at the same time have tended to supply the growing popular taste with proper materials. It is owing chiefly to this circumstance that this country more than any other can boast of choral societies and similar musical associations in almost every village. But for the part-songs, glees, madrigals, and choruses from the works of the classical masters issued by the house of Novello for the last half-century these societies would have been what workmen are without their tools. It need not be added how much Mr. Chappell's Popular Concerts, and other musical and operatic performances at reasonable prices, have effected in spreading the love of high-class art among the masses of the English people. Much, however, remains to be done here also for a central organisation which should endeavour to guide, never to force or impede, the current of popular taste.

Another and a most important point, somewhat neglected in the Manchester speeches, was on this occasion duly emphasised by the Duke of Edinburgh. In no branch of music has a more rapid and more thorough-going development been observed of late years than in the dramatic one, which, in all probability, will for some time continue to engross the attention of amateurs and creative musicians; in no branch, also, have English composers and singers been more signally wanting. Apart from Mr. Sullivan's charming operettas, and Mr. Villiers Stanford's "Veiled Prophet," successfully produced at Hanover, it would be difficult to point to a single English work of recent growth which shows a sign of dramatic instinct; and the dearth of competent executants is equal to that of producers. "Only recently I have been informed," the Duke of Edinburgh remarked, "by those best versed in the subject, that the fault of our English dramatic singers is that the hard necessity of earning their bread compels them to appear on the stage with immature faculties and without adequate training"; and Mr. Carl Rosa, for a number of years past the sole supporter of English Opera, could no doubt supplement these remarks by many an instance of the difficulties he has met with in recruiting even his rank and file from national sources, to say nothing of "stars," or even moderately successful singers. The reason is as simple as the result is deplorable. English singers, like English conductors, are compelled to go through their training in public instead of at school; they have to take their audiences into their secrets, and nothing is more difficult to efface than the impression of inexperience and comparative incompetence thus created. Hence the enormous disadvantage in which English singers are placed in comparison with foreign artists, who come to us fortified by all the assurance and disinvoltura of manner which familiarity with the stage, combined with a thorough previous training, alone can give. If the Royal College were able to cure this defect by attracting—to use again the Duke of Edinburgh's words—"those whose ability deserves the advantages which it offers, and by retaining them there till they have completed their education," it would, by that fact alone, deserve the support of all lovers of serious art.

It remains to add a few words with regard to a point which, although not mentioned at the St. James's Palace meeting, has since gained some not altogether desirable prominence. It appears that the large provincial towns have shown some reluctance to support a scheme which would not immediately redound to their own advantage, or even, as some people put it, attract provincial talent from its home to the great metropolitan centre. The best answer to such narrow-minded local patriotism was given by the Duke of Connaught at an influential meeting convened by the Lord Mayor at the Mansion House on the 21st ult: "We desire," his Royal Highness remarked, "to create an institute in London which is to be a source or reservoir from which music may circulate throughout the whole body of the empire. We select London naturally as the only place in which the best tuition, the best concerts, the best opportunities for display can be found; but we desire and intend that the young musician who comes from Manchester or Birmingham, from Scotland or Wales, from Canada—nay, as we hope, even from Australia—to London to be freely educated, will return to his early home and take thither the fruits of his London training, with a power and an inclination to instruct and benefit those around him." In this, as in most other respects, the French system should serve as a model. There are in Marseilles, Lyons, Toulouse, and other great provincial towns, so-called Succursales of the Paris Conservatoire; and there is no reason why similar branch institutes should not be founded at Liverpool, Manchester, or Birmingham. To establish the central institution at any of these places would be simply absurd.

The task of the proposed College of Music, which we have endeavoured to sketch in accordance with the official programme, is, it will be seen, as comprehensive as it is difficult. At the same time, the desirability of the scheme is so obvious, and so much has already been achieved by the tact and the energy of its illustrious promoters, that final success need not be despaired of. Of the means by which it is proposed to secure that success it would be premature to speak; we shall, no doubt, have frequent occasion to return to the subject when the details have been published. All that is at present officially known of the administration of the proposed College is comprised in the one sentence of the Prince of Wales's speech: "The governing body consists of a Council, intrusted with the function of making by-laws for the regulation of the College, and of an Executive Committee charged with the details of the administration." This momentous sentence opens a vista of fair possibilities on the one hand, and on the other a chain of "rocks ahead" at which even the boldest pilot might stand aghast. All depends upon the discovery of such a pilot, willing and able to find a channel for the good ship through breakers and shoals. To speak without metaphor, what is most needed for the new College is a Principal endowed with the rare combination of gifts, both practical and artistic, which would give him sufficient authority to smooth down and, if necessary, to overrule such differences of opinion and disputes of privilege as are apt to spring up between and within governing bodies and executive committees. The success of the two most prominent music-schools on the Continent shows the enormous importance of individual initiative. The Conservatoire of Paris was virtually the creation of Cherubini; the Conservatorium of Leipzig literally that of Mendelssohn. We have not among us a Cherubini or a Mendelssohn. But a man combining business tact and social influence with a genuine love and a thorough knowledge of music would probably serve the purpose as well. It is pleasant to think that such a man has been found in the person of Mr. George Grove.

THE SCOTTISH MUSICAL SOCIETY.

IT is said that great inventions or new ideas are never due to a single mind. They float as it were in the air, and genius does little more than formulate and express boldly what has been, more or less unconsciously, in every one's mind. Judged by this principle, the idea of a National Conservatoire in England is most emphatically what the Germans call "Zeitgemäss." The bold initiative of the Prince of Wales has already found an echo in many places, and every one seems to feel that the illustrious speakers, at St. James's Palace and elsewhere, did but express what he or she had thought for a long time. Of this fact the meeting of the Scottish Musical Society, to which we refer in another column, is a curious illustration. Hitherto our countrymen over the border have been very well satisfied with such musical entertainments as were periodically offered to them by travelling artists and migratory orchestras hailing mostly from the south. That the sense of music exists in their composition, albeit in a dormant state, is sufficiently proved by the beautiful songs that have sprung from the people—the songs against which the fanatical section of the Kirk has vainly thundered, to which Burns has wedded his immortal words, and which to the present day have withstood the baneful influences of the music-hall and the street-organ, fatal to English folk-song. But this innate gift of the Scotch people has hitherto found little encouragement amongst the upper classes. It is simply disgraceful that such places as Edinburgh and Glasgow are without a permanent orchestra, to say nothing of a permanent opera of their own; and the desire of the meeting at Edinburgh that there should be such a permanent orchestra in Scotland, is rather below than above the mark of what is really required and will no doubt be accomplished in good time. Neither is it at all unreasonable for Scotchmen to wish for a Scottish Academy of Music just as there is a Scottish Academy of Painting. The spirit in which this question was treated by Lord Reay cannot be commended sufficiently. He fully acknowledged the paramount importance of the great National School in London, a scholarship in which he held out as the cynosure of their aspirations to his young countrymen. But the central institution, to be really fruitful, should, as we point out elsewhere, have its branches in the great provincial towns; and for such a purpose Edinburgh and Glasgow would, to say the least, be as well fitted as Manchester or Liverpool. Local patriotism of the narrow-minded type should of course be avoided in this as in all other artistic matters. Music is by its very nature an international concern; and it would, for example, be absurd to require that all the members of the proposed Scottish orchestra must have been born north of the Tweed, or that the student of the Edinburgh Academy should have to play on the bagpipes as a sine quâ non. On the other hand, the genuine songs of the north should most undoubtedly form a prominent subject of study; and many a rising composer might find in them a source of inspiration, as Mr. A. C. Mackenzie has proved in his "Burns" Symphony. Whether the promoters of the Scottish Musical Society look upon this task in a sufficiently large-minded spirit, whether they are likely to employ the right means for their purpose, whether, for instance, they have acted wisely in excluding professional musicians from their preliminary debates—all these are questions which we are not prepared to decide. They must be left to the discussion of the local press, the comments of which unfortunately tend to prove that in Scotland as elsewhere music and harmony are not always synonymous terms.

ALTHOUGH perfect freedom is one of the boasts of an Englishman, we cannot but think that society demands he should only exercise that right when it does not interfere with the convenience of the majority. Acting upon this principle, we have lately taken the liberty of slightly educating our audiences in this country; and, to their credit be it said, they have generally received these little reminders of their duty with the utmost good feeling. Concert-goers have been informed that the doors of the room will be closed when the music commences; and at the opera the recalls and bouquet-giving are now generally limited to the necessary interval between the acts. A letter from a correspondent in our last number, however, who complains that he could not hear a favourite passage in a work performed at the Albert Hall because it was completely drowned by the applause bestowed upon a vocal solo which preceded it, shows that our audiences have yet much to learn; and a recent occurrence at a concert emboldens us to say a few words on our own account. It appears that because some delay occurred before one of the vocalists appeared, the Conductor turned round and told the already impatient auditors that they "were again suffering because of an artist who would not attend rehearsal." He then asked for the "sympathy" of the audience; and when at length the singer came, hisses broke forth, he was refused even a hearing, and very properly left the platform, and, immediately afterwards, the building. Now we contend that those who expect to hear an artist have a right to express dissatisfaction when he does not appear and no explanation is offered for his absence; but in this case the vocalist was there and ready to sing what was set down for him. Why, then, should the Conductor take the audience into his confidence, and thus prevent him from defending himself, either by speaking or singing? If this custom is allowed to grow, we may some day have a lessee, when his prima donna keeps the stage waiting, telling us that she has "shown temper" in the green-room, and asking for the "sympathy" of the public.

THERE is a game often played at juvenile assemblies in which a short story is whispered to one individual, who in turn confides it to another; and the point of the joke is to listen to the version of the tale after it has travelled through the entire group of performers. We cannot but think that much of the news we read, especially in foreign journals, respecting the eminent artists either resident in the metropolis, or who are constantly our visitors, must pass through some such process as this before it is printed; for as we can scarcely imagine that the information is positively invented by those who write it, we can only conclude that, startling as a paragraph may appear to those acquainted with the facts, it is originally founded upon some very harmless little remark, the tenor of which bears but a faint resemblance to the important shape it eventually assumes. Although it is well known that we have constant misrepresentations of English life and manners in French literature, it appears to us that we read more unreliable news of our country in the American journals than in any others which come before us. We have on former occasions cited some specimens of this reckless paragraph-making on the other side of the Atlantic, and now beg to add two recently published: "Santley, the eminent basso, has retired and taken to the Church. He wears a broad-brimmed hat, a long coat, and a choker collar, and teaches in a London Sunday-school." The next is, if possible, still more absurd: "Sir Michael Costa, the English musician, is eighty-four, and talks of remarrying." We should be sorry to interfere with the reflections of our readers upon these items of news by any remarks of our own.

OUR readers know how earnestly we have always advocated the recognition of music amongst the fine arts, and that, as an admission of this truth from a high authority, we gave as much prominence as our limited space would permit to the excellent speeches of the President of the Royal Academy of Arts, when on some recent occasions he ranked music as equal—if not in some cases superior—to painting. Sir Frederick Leighton is indeed a man of such wide sympathies that, although devoting his life to one art, he cannot but feel its affinity with others; and musicians, whether creative or executive, owe him a deep sense of gratitude for championing the cause to which they have devoted their lives whenever and wherever the opportunity has offered. In England, indeed, such liberal views are well-timed; for it is impossible that musical artists can take the rank to which they are entitled until the art which they follow is elevated to a higher place than it has hitherto enjoyed. To prove that continental cities are setting us a lesson, let us cite an instance which has lately occurred. It appears that in English newspapers, under the heading "Berlin High School for Music," it has been asserted that Herr Taubert has been elected director of this Conservatoire; but the journal called Musical Education corrects this statement by informing us that "the post to which Herr Taubert has been appointed is President of the Royal Academy of Arts, of which the High School for Music forms one division." Although the paragraph also tells us "this is the first time that a musician has been elected to the presidency," we may be assured of the fact that Berlin accepts Herr Taubert as something more than a mere professor of his art, and feel justified in looking forward to the day when in England a High School for Music and a Royal Academy of Arts shall cease to be two distinct institutions.

ONE very decided proof of the advance of music is that the majority of cheap entertainments organised by the influential residents of country towns for the poorer classes, have gradually changed from Readings interspersed with Music, to Music interspersed with Readings. Every credit is due to those who promote these concerts; yet we cannot but think that little will be done to elevate the taste of the persons for whom they are designed whilst the pieces chosen are rather for the gratification of those who perform them than for those who listen. There can be little doubt that what we may call "local influence"—not to use a harsher term—so powerfully affects the character of the fare provided that, instead of being carefully selected, the programmes are usually thrown together merely to display the talent (or perhaps the want of it) of those who insist upon taking part in the proceedings. A singer who can "go very high," another who can "go very low"; a violin-player who fancies he can master a solo; a young gentleman who believes that he can sing a comic song, must all be heard, or they will withdraw their patronage from the concerts; and it is a serious matter to offend such persons. All this must be reformed before the music can exercise any beneficial effect upon the working-classes. It is said that as a rule the people do not care about hearing sterling works in these country parts, and that they are very fond of a "comic song"; but from recent experience we can affirm that nothing attracts so much as cultivated singing and good compositions. Is it not, then, somewhat underrating the intelligence of an audience to perform Bellini's duet "Deh con te" as an instrumental quartet, and to sing the comic effusion "You get more like your dad every day," both which items are in programmes now before us?

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

THE movement inaugurated by his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales to found a Royal College of Music is meeting with most satisfactory support. In addition to the subscriptions promised by the London Corporation and City Companies, over £50,000 has been given, so that the first £100,000 of the original sum of £300,000 required for the undertaking has been practically secured. In the course of the present and next month meetings are to be held in most of the large provincial towns in order to more specifically point out the character of the work the new institution will undertake. We subjoin a list of subscriptions already promised:—

Her Majesty the Queen, £500; H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G., £250; H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh, K.G., £250; H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, K.G., £100; H.R.H. the Duke of Albany, K.G., £100; H.R.H. the Duke of Cambridge, K.G., £100; H.R.H. the Princess Louise, £52 10s.; Her Majesty's Commissioners of 1851, £500 per annum, representing, at twenty-five years' purchase, £12,500; Mr. Freake's Building, presented to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, by Mr. Freake; Mercers' Company (in five years) £2,500; Sir Erasmus Wilson (the Wilson Scholarship) £2,500; the Goldsmiths' Company, £2,000; Sir Richard Wallace, Bart., M.P., Mr. S. Morley, M.P., Messrs. Robert Cocks & Co., Messrs. Collard & Collard, Messrs. S. & P. Erard, Messrs. David Sassoon & Co., the Clothworkers' Company (in five years), Sir Samuel Wilson (in two years), Sir Thomas Brassey, M.P. (in five years), Mr. W. Gilstrap, each £1,000; Sir Edward Scott, Bart., £600; the Gilchrist Trust (in two years), the Duke of Westminster, K.G., Mr. J. J. Colman, M.P. for Norwich, Mr. Jeremiah Colman, of Carshalton Park, Mr. Pfeiffer, Sir Donald Currie, M.P., Mr. Thomas Chappell, Mr. Howard Morley, Mr. Charles Morley, Messrs. Boosey & Co., Messrs. Novello, Ewer & Co., Sir Daniel Cooper, Bart., Lord Overstone, Lieut.-Col. Sir R. J. Loyd-Lindsay, M.P., the Duke of Bedford, K.G., Messrs. N. M. Rothschild & Sons, Earl of Dudley (in two years), Mr. Wm. Cunliffe Brooks, M.P., Messrs. Baring Bros. & Co., the Grocers' Company, each £500; the Earl Spencer, K.G. (in three years), Baron Ferdinand Rothschild, Baron de Stern, each £300; Mr. Warren De La Rue, Messrs. Marshall & Snelgrove, Mr. H. F. Tiarks, each £250; Mr. Mackenzie, of Kintail, Messrs. Elkington & Co., Anonymous, to H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh, each £210; the Earl of Derby (in two years), Mr. Edward L. Lawson, Mr. E. Homan, Messrs. C. de Murrietta and Co., Messrs. Anthony Gibbs and Sons, each £200; the Duke of Portland, £150; the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, Mr. William Tarn, Messrs. J. & J. Hopkinson, Mr. C. Lucas, Mr. T. Lucas, Messrs. Cassell, Petter, Galpin & Co., Mr. W. H. Crake, Sir George H. Chambers, Messrs. Seligman Bros., Mr. Alderman Cotton, M.P., Sir Henry James, Q.C., M.P.

Sir Farrer Herschell, Q.C., M.P., Lord Calthorpe, each £105; the Marquis of Hartington, Mr. Alfred de Rothschild, Mr. Leopold de Rothschild, Lord Penrhyn, Mr. C. Wilson, M.P., Rev. E. R. Jodrell, Sir Erasmus Wilson, Messrs. Schott & Co., Messrs. Forsyth Bros., Mr. F. G. Dalgety, Mr. John Pender, M.P., Sir Frederick Bramwell, Mr. and Madame Otto Goldschmidt, Right Hon. G. J. Goschen, M.P., Messrs. Holland and Sons, Messrs. H. Poole and Co., Earl Granville, K.G. (in two years), Mr. Edward Cazalet, the Marquis of Salisbury, K.G., Mr. Frederick Lehmann, the Duke of Sutherland, K.G., the Earl of Rosebery, the Earl of Fife, K.T., the Earl of Lathom, Mr. John Walter, M.P., Sir Frederick Leighton, P.R.A., Mr. J. E. Millais, R.A., Mr. John Fowler, Mr. Arthur Chappell, the Viscountess Ossington, Messrs. Ashdown and Parry, Messrs. Metzler and Co., Mr. Joseph Williams, Messrs. Steinway and Sons (London branch), Mr. Carl Rosa, Right Hon. W. H. Smith, M.P., Mr. George Godwin, Lord Alington, Mr. Octavius E. Coope, M.P., Mr. Edward C. Baring, Mr. Palgrave Simpson, Mr. A. L. Elder, Mr. Alderman W. McArthur, M.P., Messrs. Macmillan and Co., Mr. Henry Oppenheim, Mr. W. Cater Price, each £100; Messrs. Enoch and Sons (in three years), £63; Messrs. Mitchell, Mr. Henry Leslie (in five years), Messrs. Hunt and Roskell, Messrs. Wertheimer, Mr. Barclay Field, Louisa Lady Goldsmid, Mr. B. Williams, Mr. Alfred Hays, each £52 10s.; Sir John Kelk, Bart., Major James Ranken, M.P., Mr. Hugh Jamieson, the Earl of Selkirk, Dr. C. W. Siemens, Mr. J. Barnby, Mr. W. Debenham, Sir Thomas Gladstone, Bart., the Marquis of Londonderry, K.P., Mr. E. N. Buxton, Messrs. Stanley Lucas, Weber, and Co. (in five years), Mr. C. Jeffreys, Mr. S. G. Holland, Mr. C. Ferdinand Rodewald, Sir John Rose, Bart., Sir Thomas Bazley, Mr. W. Burdett-Coutts, Mr. Christopher Sykes, M.P., Mr. John Thompson, the Right Hon. the Speaker, G.C.B., Mr. James Abernethy, Mr. F. T. Sargood, Mr. Donald Larnach, Mr. Alma Tadema, R.A., the Archbishop of Canterbury, Lady Matheson, Mr. S. Joshua, Messrs. H. Doulton and Co., Messrs. R. and S. Garrard and Co., Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, M.P., Sir H. A. Hunt, C.B., Mr. Albert Visetti, Anonymous, sent to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Right Hon. A. J. Mundella, M.P., Sir Michael Costa, Mr. Robert Thornton, Mr. F. S. Ellis, Mr. James Spicer, Mr. John Kemp Welch, the Earl of Strathmore, Mr. James Sidebottom, Mr. Philipps, Mr. Henry Burnley Heath, Baron Heath, each £50.

Promises of support have also been received from the following: Messrs. Pleyel, Wolff and Co., Mr. F. Davies, Mr. Edward Conder, Messrs. M. Feetham and Co., Mr. Joseph, Mr. A. J. Balfour, M.P., Mr. Charles Cottman Rogers, Mr. Samuel Montagu, Mr. C. Coote, Mr. A. F. W. G. de G. Cusack, Mr. Charles Hall, Q.C., Mr. John Murray, Mr. Edgar Bruce, Mr. A. C. Campbell, Sir E. Colebrooke, Bart., M.P., the Earl of Cork, K.P., the Dean of St. David's, Mr. William Farrer, Mr. Charles Hallé, Mr. William Laird, the Bishop of London, Sir Theodore Martin, K.C.B., Mr. G. Graham Montgomery, Mr. W. Mort, Messrs. Phillips Bros. and Co., Mr. John Slagg, M.P., Sir Henry Thompson, Dr. Webb, Hon. H. Tyrwhitt Wilson, Sir Allen Young, C.B., the Dean of St. Paul's, Mr. Wilhelm Ganz, Mr. W. Spottiswoode, Hon. H. Cooper, M.P., Colonel Makins, M.P., Mr. Francis A. Lucas, Mr. W. T. Elliott, Mr. John Elin, Mr. Edward Masterman, Mr. Edmond K. Bayley, Mr. D. P. Cama, Mrs. Mahlon Sands, Mr. Frederick M. Young, Messrs. Thos. Peters and Sons, Messrs. Mortlock, Dr. Lennox Browne, F.R.C.S. (annually), Sir Julius Benedict, Right Hon. J. Chamberlain, M.P., Mr. Oscar Clayton, Mr. Henry Joachim, Messrs. Veitch, Mr. F. H. Janson, Mr. Arthur Hodgson, Mr. J. S. Gilliat, Mr. Maybrick, Mr. Joseph Oppenheimer, Sir Charles W. Dilke, Bart., M.P., Messrs. G. Jackson and Sons, Messrs. Kershaw, Sir John Lubbock, Bart., M.P., Right Hon. Dr. Lyon Playfair, M.P., Mr. Alberto Randegger, Mr. Henry Schlesinger, Sir Henry Thring, K.C.B., Mr. R. E. Webster, Q.C., Mr. Arthur Cohen, Q.C., M.P., Mr. W. Austen Leigh, Lord Greville, Mr. Joseph Sebag, Mr. Charles Parker, M.P., Sir John Coope, Prince Lobanow, Mr. Henry Ellis, per Rev. Edward Thring, Mr. C. d'Albert, the Dean of Llandaff, Sir George Elvey, Mr. M. Rohde

Hawkins, Herr Joseph Joachim, Master H. R. Lewis, Mr. J. G. Patey, Mr. Ernst Pauer, Dr. Stainer, Mr. James Edmeston, Lord William Godolphin Osborne Elphinstone, Lady William Osborne Elphinstone, Mr. R. Ollivier, Messrs. Lapworth Bros., Lord Alfred Churchill, the Bishop of Durham, Mr. John Farmer, Rev. C. O. Goodford, Rev. Sir F. A. Gore Ouseley, Bart., Mr. Ernest Hart, Mr. D. M. Home, Right Hon. A. J. B. Beresford Hope, M.P., Mr. W. King, Dr. F. J. Mouat, The Hon. Miss Murray, Musurus Pacha, Mr. E. H. Pember, Q.C., Mr. John R. Pickmere, Anonymous to Sir Henry Thring, K.C.B., Mr. E. C. Tufnell, Rev. Edward Thring, Mr. Brinley Richards, Rev. Canon Barry, D.D., Rev. G. C. Bell, Sir Charles E. T. Stirling, Bart., per Rev. Edward Thring (annually), Mr. Stephen Grant, Mr. Brigg, Mr. J. F. Barnett, the Dean of Lichfield, Mr. H. Durlacher, Mr. G. Osborne, Mr. Poole, Admiral Sir Alexander Milne, Bart., G.C.B., Mr. Edmund Savary (annually), Messrs. Ortnor and Houle, Professor W. Stanley Jevons, Mr. Henry Boyd, Sir Henry Cole, K.C.B., Mr. C. Davis, Mr. P. W. Doyle, Gen. Sir Hastings Doyle, Mr. L. T. Edminson, Mr. Albert Grey, M.P., Lord Howth, Count Karolyi, the Marlow Band, Rev. Edward Thring (annually), Rev. J. Troutbeck, Rev. E. C. Wickham, Canon R. Wynne Edwards, the Watford Public Library School of Music, the Dean of Wells, Mr. Arthur Mesham, Mr. Edward Legge, Rev. E. S. Talbot, Rev. H. R. Haweis, Mrs. Brancker, Mr. W. M. Crowfoot.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

MR. CARL ROSA'S appearance to conduct the performance of Wagner's "Flying Dutchman," at the termination of the season on the 11th ult., was the signal for a cordial mark of recognition of his services as spontaneous as it was well deserved. During the eight weeks he has occupied this establishment for the performance of Opera in English he has thoroughly maintained his reputation for presenting works in so satisfactory a manner as to ensure a large attendance of those music-lovers who are rather attracted by general excellence than by the vocal charms of a favourite prima donna. The Wagnerian Operas have been perhaps the most successful; but others have drawn good houses. It was a mistake to produce Balfe's "Moro," but this was the sole mistake of the season, and it is possible that in his provincial tour Mr. Rosa will find many who will disregard better works to come and hear the music of one who at least was once so popular a composer in this country. A farewell of the season cannot be taken without a word of high praise to Madame Valleria and Mr. Ludwig, who have made extraordinary advances both as singers and actors; and it must also be said that to the exertions of Signor Randegger (who has worked even beyond his strength) and Mr. Pew as Conductors much of the success of the Operas has been mainly due. Since the close of the season at this establishment some performances by the company have been given, before large audiences, at the National Standard Theatre.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY.

SINCE we last noticed the doings of this Society two Concerts have been given; one on February 24, when were performed Handel's Coronation Anthem, "Zadock the Priest," Gounod's "Messe Solennelle," and a new setting of the Te Deum by Mr. W. G. Cusins, who presided over its rendering. Of Handel's magnificent Anthem we need not speak, because if the Sacred Harmonic Society can do one thing better than another, that thing is interpretation of the great Saxon master. Gounod's Mass had not previously been performed by the Society, and we might look upon the fact as remarkable but for the indifference with which the Committee have always regarded an extension of their repertory. It is hard, nevertheless, to imagine a reason for keeping out the "Messe Solennelle" till now. The great name of its composer, its own solemn, if somewhat peculiar beauty, and its character as representative of a school of sacred composition, must have pleaded powerfully for recognition, if to little purpose. But "better late than never." The work has been heard by an audience whom it affected deeply, and were the Society to exist yet many years, Gounod's Mass would live in connection with it. We cannot unreservedly praise the performance. The vocal writing is not such as the chorus-singers have been accustomed to, and they were at times obviously on the footing of strangers in regard to it. Hence a few of the numbers suffered from uncertainty, the pitch dropped, and the effect was bad. There were successes, however, to put against these comparative failures: notably the Benedictus went well, as did the Agnus Dei and the more vigorous portions of the Credo. The orchestra, on its part, took kindly to Gounod's picturesque scoring, and left little, if anything, to be desired. This may be said, also, of the artists to whom the incidental solos were entrusted, while M. Sainton, who filled Sir M. Costa's place, conducted the work of his famous countryman with as much interest in its success as though he himself had written it. The novelty of the Concert—Mr. Cusins's "Te Deum"—turned out to be a composition of marked interest, because exemplifying a very different style from that usually adopted by English church musicians. Mr. Cusins, it is true, reaches out one hand to the contrapuntists and another to those of his contemporaries who prefer the more sensuous effects of harmonised melody; but the bulk of the Te Deum seems to have been inspired by the German school of which Brahms is a famous representative, and depends chiefly upon harmonic combinations and orchestral colour; hence the freedom and boldness with which much of it is written. Mr. Cusins does not shrink from acting fully up to the limits of his system, and there are passages in the work that ordinary ears have some difficulty in accepting either as beautiful or appropriate. On the other hand, the aim of the composer is so high, and his purpose so earnest, that critics must respect even where they find themselves unable to approve. Among the finest portions of the work we class the opening chorus, "We praise Thee, O God," the following soprano solo, "To Thee all angels," with its striking setting of the triple "Holy"; the baritone solo, "O Lord, save Thy people"—an admirable number—and the fugue "In Thee, O Lord, have I trusted," which shows that Mr. Cusins is quite at ease when handling the more ancient tools of his craft. The music is by no means simple, and the performance might have been better; moreover, the style of the work is so unfamiliar to ordinary concert-goers that any lack of enthusiasm among the audience can scarcely be wondered at. Unquestionably the Te Deum ought to be heard again, and not lightly dismissed, the more because better acquaintance would enable its critics to speak without the hesitation which, in presence of much that is new and strange, becomingly marks their utterance.

At the Concert given on the 10th ult. Haydn's "Creation" was performed. A propos to this the critical pen is laid aside, and that of bare record used for a brief moment. What can be said of such an event without waste of words and precious space?

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

WEDNESDAY, the 22nd ult., was a day to be marked with a red letter in the calendar of the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society, since it not only witnessed the production of a work new to its repertory, but of one which claims rank as a novelty of a pronounced type. We refer to the "Damnation de Faust" of Hector Berlioz. The public seem as much as ever disposed to favour this remarkable production. No matter where performed, in the metropolis or in the country, crowds flock to hear, and, having heard, are ready to hear again. It was a foregone conclusion that the vast area of the South Kensington Hall would show a compact mass of listeners, and the result justified it. The audience, if not literally compact, was mighty in numbers, and not sparing in tokens of enjoyment. Whence this enthusiasm for a work so peculiar? In answer, we must allow a good deal for the changeless interest of the story, and the fact that it is universally known. English people, above all others, like to renew an old acquaintance in literature and art. They are fond of reading favourite books more than once, and experience a curious gratification when a raconteur of any kind appeals to that with which they are already familiar. The Berlioz version of "Faust" comes therefore to an audience disposed to listen, because interested beforehand to the extent of their knowledge. But while taking note of this fact, we should not overlook one more important. The music is the thing after all. No doubt there are pages in the score about which our public do not care; and it is likely they would run away en masse from that of the "death-ride," were they not fascinated by the dramatic horror of the climax. On the other hand, they feel the Hungarian March, the Dance of Sylphs, and the solos of Marguerite, Faust, and Mephistopheles, with their powerful contrasts and picturesque effects, to be irresistible. In this none will gainsay them. The public instinct is right. It has fastened upon something not only new, but, of its kind, good; and we may rest assured that the day is far distant when the genius of Hector Berlioz will cease to be represented in this country by "La Damnation de Faust."

Mr. Barnby undertook a difficult task when he put "Faust" in rehearsal for performance by a very large body in so great a building. With works of complicated structure the obstacles to perfect rendering increase almost as the square of the means employed; and some men of little faith might have been disposed to question the wisdom of the venture in this particular case. Mr. Barnby, however, did not act like the parabolic king, who began to build without first determining whether his resources would enable him to finish. Nor did he risk failure through lack of energy. We hear of sectional and general rehearsals having been called again and again, heedless of cost and pains. In such a spirit are great things done, and we say unhesitatingly that the performance of "Faust" could have been made as excellent as it was in no other way. As Mr. Barnby sowed so he reaped—a full harvest with credit due more to the husbandman than to accident of weather. We must specially praise the singing of the choir. Only in the chorus of demons was it open to criticism, being elsewhere as refined, precise, and effective as the most fastidious could wish. This assertion refers above all to the rendering of the more delicate and sensuous numbers, and to those passages where, as in the response to the Serenade, everything depends upon absolute unity of utterance. In all such cases the fine training of the choir was conspicuous. Having regard to the disadvantages of the locale, which throws the vocal parts so wide asunder, nothing could have been better; nor need we shrink from declaring, generally, that the choral performance of "Faust" at the Albert Hall was the best that has yet been heard in London. The orchestra, largely augmented for the occasion, gained a series of successes, no fewer than three instrumental numbers having to be repeated. A few faults were noticeable, nevertheless. In the first place, the orchestra, when accompanying solo voices, was often too loud, especially in the music allotted to Faust; and, next, the harpist ruined the delicious close of the Dance of Sylphs by playing as though he wished to be heard in Hyde Park. Otherwise the voice of criticism may remain silent, and only that of praise be heard. Madame Marie Roze, as Marguerite, sang her one air with commendable simplicity of style and expression, while her dramatic instinct enabled the best effect to be given to the subsequent love music. Mr. Vernon Rigby appeared as Faust for the first time, and thus submitted himself to a severe ordeal. There were points doubtless in which he will do better when more familiar with the work, and it should not be forgotten that the music itself demands for proper hearing a smaller area. All the same, Mr. Rigby deserved high praise for the correctness with which he sang, the manner of his expression, and the charm of his phrasing. His delivery of the latter part of the soliloquy in Faust's cell may especially be commended. Mr. F. King's Mephistopheles was a marked success. It had spirit and humour, the words were clearly enunciated, and the music was sung in capital style. Mr. King has acquired the secret of the peculiar irony demanded by the tempter's rôle, and in not a few passages he produced a dramatic effect quite rare in concert-rooms. His very effective delivery of the Serenade, we should add, secured a hearty encore. Mr. Pyatt's services in the subordinate male part were acceptable, and thus the soloists may be regarded as generally efficient. Of Mr. Barnby's conducting we cannot speak too highly. It was firm and watchful, without waste of energy, and without lacking vigour when occasion demanded.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

THE third Concert, on the 9th ult., commenced with Mr. F. Corder's Overture "Ossian," conducted by the composer, and announced as performed for the "first time in public." It is but fair that this work should be judged, according to its original design, as a prelude to a grand opera on the subject of "Fingal"; for although not actually "programme music," the expressive first subject, the second theme (with harp accompaniment), and the brilliant Coda, seem decisively to illustrate the incidents set forth in the quotation from Macpherson's book on the title-page of the score. The melodious character of these motives, and the clear manner in which they are developed, prove to us that Mr. Corder, although a warm advocate of what is called the "music of the future," cannot himself walk forwards without taking a longing and lingering look at the past; and we sincerely hope that the cordial manner in which his composition was received will convince him of his recognition as one of the promising young composers of the day, and thus nerve him to renewed and earnest exertion. Brahms's Choral Ode "Nänie," by no means satisfied us as a successful setting of Schiller's beautiful lines, especially as we found it impossible to avoid recalling Hermann Goetz's sympathetic music to the same text. To express the varied feeling of the poetry in a mere succession of smooth choral passages is assuredly in itself a mistake; but we are bound to say that the passages are not particularly interesting, even the fugal opening scarcely having sufficient contrapuntal strength to engage the attention as an exercise, apart from the truthful colouring of the words. Mendelssohn's Scena "Che vuoi, mio cor?" (excellently sung by Madame Patey) scored for strings only, is obviously one of his boyish attempts at vocal writing, of which doubtless there are still many in existence. If so, let us hope that the rage for novelty will not embolden the authorities of the Philharmonic Society to present them to their audience. Undoubtedly this Scena is the crude effort of a genius, but it is a crude effort; and the fact of its having remained in manuscript up to the present time seems to prove that our opinion is pretty generally shared by competent judges. The Solo and Chorus (for female voices) "The Water Nymph" shows us Rubinstein in one of his happiest moods. Here, at least, there is no straining after effect, both the solo and choral parts being coloured with a delicacy and variety charmingly in keeping with the words. The orchestration, too, is extremely happy, and the singing of the choir showed that the music had been studied with all the attention it deserved. The solo was finely rendered by Madame Patey; and the applause at the conclusion of the composition was warm and unanimous. Herr Joachim's performance of Mendelssohn's Concerto was one of the principal attractions of the Concert; and the programme also included Beethoven's "Eroica" Symphony and Spohr's Overture to "Jessonda," both of which were excellently played.

The only novelty at the fourth Concert, on the 23rd ult., was the Overture to Mr. Villiers Stanford's Opera "The Veiled Prophet," an account of the production of which, at Hanover, was given in THE MUSICAL TIMES of March, 1881. Apart from the opera, the Overture of course can scarcely be criticised, for the leading incidents of the plot are attempted to be musically set forth; and, whilst endeavouring to follow the thread of the narrative, we are apt to lose sight of the construction of the composition as a work of art. We may say, however, that the subjects are melodious, and that the instrumentation is clear and never forced or exaggerated; the general effect of the Overture being sufficiently satisfactory to make us look forward with pleasure to the production of the opera, the merit of which appears to have been at once recognised in Germany. The work was conducted by the composer, who was most cordially received. Madame Schumann's performance of Mendelssohn's Concerto in G minor elicited such a genuine burst of enthusiastic applause as must have convinced her of the firm hold she has obtained of the London public; and certainly, both for executive facility and truthful expression, her playing was even more remarkable than usual. Besides Mr. Stanford's Overture, the orchestral pieces were Beethoven's Symphony in C minor and Weber's Overture to "Euryanthe." The vocalists were Mdlle. Kufferath, who created but little effect in Mozart's song from "Il Flauto Magico," "Ah! lo so," and Mr. Maas, who sang with much success the Centurion's Song from Dr. Bridge's Cantata "Boadicea," and an air from Weber's "Euryanthe." Mr. W. G. Cusins conducted with much care and judgment at both the Concerts under notice.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

THE Concert of February 27, the proceedings of which we have still to record, included the twelfth performance here of Mendelssohn's String Quartet in D major (Op. 44, No. 1) and the eighth performance of Schubert's Pianoforte Trio in E flat (Op. 100, No. 1), both standard productions of their kind, emanating from a mature period of their respective composers' artistic development. They were admirably rendered: the former by MM. Joachim, Ries, Holländer, and Piatti; the latter by the first and last named artists, Miss Agnes Zimmermann sustaining the pianoforte part. Miss Zimmermann also played with her well-known refinement of style and brilliancy of execution Schumann's "Nachtstück" (Op. 23, No. 4), and a series of characteristic Waltzes by Brahms (Op. 39), which were greeted with the applause always so legitimately earned by this lady. Dance movements of a still more characteristic and less conventional type were contributed by Herr Joachim, who gave, in conjunction with Miss Zimmermann, four of Brahms's Hungarian Dances, arranged by the great violinist for his instrument and the pianoforte. Mr. Abercrombie sang with good taste Handel's air from "Semele," "Where'er you walk," and Salaman's song "Celia." This vocalist possesses a good tenor voice, of agreeable timbre, which, however, would be greatly improved if divested of a certain throatiness, a defect which persistent study alone can eradicate.

The announcement of the first appearance this season of Madame Schumann attracted an unusually large audience to the Concert of the 6th ult., when St. James's Hall was indeed crowded almost to excess. The visits to this country of the greatest living lady interpreter of classical pianoforte music are necessarily to be counted upon with less certainty from year to year, and are for this reason probably all the more appreciated. Her appearance at these Concerts, brief as it now generally is, has indeed long since come to be looked upon as a special event appealing most powerfully to all who desire to profit by the teachings of a grand school of pianoforte-playing which is now fast becoming merely traditional. It is needless to add that Madame Schumann's reception on this occasion was again of the most enthusiastic kind. In the Fantasia in C major (Op. 17), by her late husband (her only performance on the evening in question), the lady displayed in a high degree that poetic faculty of entering into the minutest details of the composer's intentions which characterise all her interpretations, while the exacting demands upon the executive power and physical endurance of the performer made by the composition presented no apparent difficulty to her. Two recalls followed upon this fine effort. Herr Joachim played in his unapproachable style Bach's Chaconne in D minor, for violin solo. The Concert opened with Beethoven's string Quartet in E minor (Op. 59, No. 2), and concluded with the same composer's Trio in C minor (Op. 9, No. 3), the executants being MM. Joachim, Ries, Straus, and Piatti in the former, and the same artists (with the exception of Herr Ries) in the latter instance. Miss Spenser Jones contributed songs by Handel and Schubert.

Again, at the second Concert of last month, Madame Schumann was the pianist, having selected for her solo performance Beethoven's Sonata in E flat, quasi fantasia (Op. 27, No. 1), which she interpreted in a manner in every way worthy of her unique reputation. Madame Schumann was also associated with MM. Joachim and Piatti in the rendering of Schumann's "Fantasiestücke" (Op. 88) for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello, four movements, supercribed respectively "Romanze," "Humoreske," "Duet," and "Finale," which the composer originally intended to form a complete pianoforte trio, but subsequently altered his intention. The Fantasiestücke, which were produced on this occasion for the first time here, are eminently characteristic of Schumann's individuality, and will, we trust, soon be heard again. Two string Quartets, viz., Schubert's in D minor (Op. 161), and Haydn's in G major (Op. 64, No. 4), were played to perfection by MM. Joachim, Ries, Holländer, and Piatti. Miss Santley was the vocalist, and sang with much refinement Mendelssohn's song "Zuleika" and Handel's air "Oh, had I Jubal's lyre," from "Joshua."

The third Concert of the past month opened with Beethoven's string Quartet in C sharp minor (Op. 132), the fourth of the so-called "Posthumous" Quartets, and one of the grandest and most deeply suggestive of those which have emanated from the pen of the great composer. It was most worthily rendered by MM. Joachim, Ries, Straus, and Piatti. Mdle. Marie Krebs, who was the pianist of the evening, effectively played Chopin's Ballade in G minor and, later in the evening, in association with MM. Joachim and Piatti, Mozart's Pianoforte Trio in E major, the transparent design and symmetrical development of which formed a conspicuous contrast to the preponderating individualism and occasional tragic pathos displayed in the Quartet which preceded it. Herr Joachim delighted his audience with the masterly interpretation of Tartini's sonata known as "Il Trillo del Diavolo," in which he was, as usual, vociferously applauded. Mr. Abercrombie was again the vocalist, and successfully declaimed a recitative and air from Mr. Cowen's new cantata, "St. Ursula," and "The Herdsman's Song," by Mendelssohn.

Last Monday's Concert (the 27th ult.) was rendered specially attractive by the solo performances of both Madame Schumann and Herr Joachim, and by the production, for the first time here, of Schumann's "Spanisches Liederspiel" for four voices, with pianoforte accompaniment. The eminent lady pianist gave a most characteristic and highly finished reading of a Rapsodie in G minor (Op. 79) by Brahms—a comparatively recent composition, exhibiting, however, but little of the rhapsodical element, being regularly constructed and developed in the orthodox form—and of three of Robert Schumann's "Studies in Canon Form," originally written for the pedal pianoforte ("Pedal-Flügel") as an interesting practice for organ-playing. Herr Joachim contributed five movements from Bach's Violin Sonata in E, No. 6, which he has frequently played here before, although never more finely or with a more elaborate mastery over enormous technical difficulties than on this occasion. The "Spanisches Liederspiel"—a series of interconnected vocal pieces (solos, duets, and quartets), founded upon Spanish love poetry—is a charming "posthumous" work of the composer, who excelled in the interpretation of intensely lyrical subjects. It was extremely well rendered by Mdle. Friedländer, Madame Fasset, Herr von Zur Mühlen, and Mr. Pyatt; Miss Agnes Zimmermann ably sustaining the important pianoforte part. Mozart's masterly string Quintet in G minor, No. 6, played here for the twenty-sixth time, was the opening number, the executants being MM. Joachim, Ries, Holländer, Zerbini, and Piatti.

Next Monday, the 3rd inst., the final Concert of the present (twenty-fourth) season will take place, when, as usual, a programme of more than ordinary length and attractiveness will be presented.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

THE record of the Saturday Concerts during the past month need not occupy much of our space. The novelties were few and far between, and such as were vouchsafed are not likely to gain a permanent place in the repertoire. We do not say for that reason that the performances have been wanting in interest. Occasionally the old saying that that nation is happiest which has no history may be applied to concerts also; and it is certainly infinitely more enjoyable to listen to a work of classical standing than to a contemporary production of doubtful merit. At the same time it would be a waste of time and space to manufacture history where history there is not, and to dilate once again upon the beauties of the mighty Handel and the godlike Beethoven. To proceed in chronological order, we have to notice at the Concert of the 4th ult. the revival of the somewhat antiquated Pianoforte Concerto in C sharp minor by Ferdinand Ries, played in the neatest of styles by Mdle. Marie Krebs. The work is written in accordance with academic rule, opening with a long tutti, and introducing first and second subjects in due sequence and key. The slow movement, perhaps the most attractive of the three, is a Larghetto, and the finale takes the form of the accustomed Rondo. And that is about all that need or can be said of a work which has passed away from the living current of musical progress as irretrievably as "the snows of yesteryear" in Villon's famous ballad. Spontini's pompous Overture to "Olympia," Mendelssohn's "Reformation" Symphony, and Wagner's lovely "Siegfried" Idyl, were the orchestral items of the Concert.

A week afterwards the Crystal Palace audience were again introduced to a composition which, although it might have what lawyers call a "pretium affectionis" for the executant, was of very little general interest. Vieuxtemps shortly before his death wrote a Violin Concerto (in G, Op. 47), and dedicated it to Madame Norman-Néruda in a touching letter, dated Algiers, May 31, 1881—he died June 6 of the same year. In such circumstances it was for Madame Néruda almost a sacred duty to play the work at the earliest opportunity, and that duty she performed in such a manner as to elicit the enthusiastic applause of the audience. Of the Concerto it is sufficient to say that it is written in Vieuxtemps' well-known manner—the manner, that is, of an accomplished virtuoso intent upon showing the solo instrument in the most favourable light. There are four sections of the work, of which the two middle ones, Andante pastorale and an Intermezzo in Siciliana form, are the most pleasing, the latter especially being melodious, and piquant in rhythm.

The third Concert of the month was made memorable by Herr Joachim's masterly rendering of the Violin Concerto by Brahms, a work which does not gain, on better acquaintance, in sympathetic charm, although the workmanship displayed—barring the solo part, which is very awkwardly written—must command the respect of the student. There are said to be poets for poets, and so there are musicians for musicians, and of these is Brahms. His immortality, in the meantime, is secured as long as there are artists of the Joachim stamp, holding the creed that Beethoven is great, and Brahms his prophet. But whether his Violin Concerto will be attempted by many other virtuosos is a point on which we entertain some modest doubts. Herr Joachim's own "Elegiac" Overture, first performed at Cambridge in 1877, when the composer became a Doctor of Music, was another attractive feature of the same Concert, which was moreover enlivened by the charming singing of two ladies, Mrs. Hutchinson and Miss Hope Glenn.

Of the last Concert in March it will be sufficient to name the chief components, all well known to the musician: viz., Schumann's "Rhenish" Symphony, Mr. Cowen's suite de pièces, fancifully surnamed "The Language of Flowers," and Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in G (Mdle. Marie Krebs).

WALTER MACFARREN'S ORCHESTRAL CONCERTS.

THE first of this series of Concerts was given at St. James's Hall on February 25, before a crowded audience. With the exception of Mr. Macfarren's Concertstück for the pianoforte and his Overture to "King Henry V.," which were heard for the first time in London, the programme contained no novelty, but the selection was in the highest degree interesting. We have already noticed the concert-giver's new pianoforte piece in our reviewing columns, and have now only to add that, under the agile and well-trained fingers of Miss Margaret Gyde, its many beauties were fully revealed, and the applause with which she was greeted at the conclusion warrants us in pronouncing her one of the most promising of the many students from the Royal Academy of Music now seeking a position in public favour. M. Sainton's performance of Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto was a marvel of facile execution and deep expression, and we need scarcely say that his rendering of this difficult work was fully appreciated. The vocalists were Miss Mary Davies and Mr. Santley, the former giving the florid air, "I rejoice in my youth," from Professor Macfarren's "St. John the Baptist," with true artistic finish, and Mr. Santley creating his usual effect in Handel's "O ruddier than the cherry." The fine band engaged for these Concerts (under the leadership of M. Sainton) was heard to great advantage in Beethoven's Symphony in C minor, the above-mentioned Overture to "King Henry V." (produced at the last Norwich Festival), and the Overtures to "Oberon" and "Zauberflöte."

At the second Concert, on the 11th ult., the programme contained two of Mr. Macfarren's works, the Pastoral Overture, and Symphony in B flat, both of which have, however, been performed in public before, and commented upon at the time. The Symphony created a marked effect, especially the slow movement and Scherzo, the latter of which, although having no so-called "Trio," is coupled with a charmingly contrasted subject which amply compensates for the omission of this conventional movement. The Symphony was loudly and most deservedly applauded, the length of the programme only preventing the demand for a repetition of some of the shorter movements. A feature in the selection was Sterndale Bennett's Pianoforte Concerto in C minor, which was finely played by Mr. Charlton T. Speer; and a "Fantasia Romantica" for violoncello, performed by the composer, Signor Piatti, for the first time in London, was warmly welcomed, alike for the intrinsic beauty of the music and the perfection with which it was rendered. The quality of the band was most effectively displayed in the performance of Beethoven's Overture to "Leonora" (No. 3), and Mendelssohn's Overture, Scherzo, Notturmo, and Wedding March from the music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

The third and last Concert, on the 25th ult., commenced with Mendelssohn's Overture "Ruy Blas," which was so finely played as to receive an encore too decisive to be resisted. Although it was stated that Miss Cantello, who performed Schumann's exacting Concerto in A minor, made her first appearance on the occasion, any feeling of student rendering of the work was speedily dispelled, for, apart from her executive facility, she so thoroughly grasped the spirit of the composition as to assure her listeners of a ripened experience which seemed almost beyond her years. She was warmly applauded and recalled to the platform. Herr Joachim's performance of Beethoven's Concerto was perhaps even more masterly than ever, and elicited a spontaneous burst of enthusiasm which could scarcely be controlled. The vocalist was Miss Clara Samuelli, who sang with much effect Mozart's "Batti, batti," and Rossini's "Non più mesta." The exceptionally good performance of Spohr's Symphony "Die Weihe der Töne" (the "Power of Sound") and of the concert-giver's two overtures "Hero and Leander" and "King Henry V." (the latter announced to be "repeated by desire"), leads us to say a few concluding words upon the uniform excellence with which all the orchestral works have been rendered at these Concerts. It is true that the band contained most of the leading players in the metropolis; but not only the precision of attack and perfection of execution in the purely orchestral compositions, but the excessive delicacy and refinement with which the Concertos were accompanied, are mainly due to the exertions of the Conductor; and Mr. Walter Macfarren has, therefore, a right to feel proud of the result of his appeal to the lovers of pure and healthy art in the metropolis.

MR. BACHE'S CONCERT.

THE annual Concert of Mr. Walter Bache, given on the 2nd ult., was another instance of that artist's unselfish enthusiasm in a good cause. For eleven years Mr. Bache has endeavoured to introduce to the English public the works of Liszt, which, but for him, might have remained a sealed book in this country; and the fact that his example has of late years been followed by others tends to prove that his zeal and his money have not been wasted. That for a long time his Concerts were carried on at a loss is, we fear, not a matter of doubt; and that Mr. Bache's object in incurring that loss has not been the display of his skill as a pianist is sufficiently proved by the fact that his last programme was made up of orchestral works exclusively.

None of these was absolutely new. The "Fest Marsch," written for the celebration of Goethe's 100th birthday in 1849, had been previously heard at one of the Wagner Society's Concerts. It is brilliantly scored, but does not differ essentially from other marches of a festive kind. "The Dance at a Village Inn," the second of two episodes from Lenau's "Faust," which ensued, was heard for the first time at a Richter concert in May last. Lenau's "Faust" is not amongst the successes of that great lyrical poet, and the meeting of the philosopher with the simple village maiden gains little from its transference to an Austrian or Hungarian village inn, although the musician derives some realistic suggestions from the circumstance. Liszt's piece takes the form of a valse which, played by Mephisto, is supposed to lure the rustic beauty to her doom. The tune and its orchestral colouring are indeed sufficiently weird, not to say diabolic; but the great tragic idea which in Goethe's creation gives dignity to these scenes of real life is vainly looked for either in the poem or in the music inspired by it. It was, perhaps, in order to prove the reciprocity between poetry and music that Mr. Bache placed the Mephisto valse in close juxtaposition with the symphonic poem which Liszt has written to Goethe's "Faust," and which must impress every unprejudiced observer with its loftiness of purpose and mastery of execution. Liszt's music gains here a rare degree of expressiveness, and some of the motives of the tragedy are emphasised with a force unattainable by the poet. Nothing, for example, could be more indicative of Margaret's sweet simplicity than the adagio mainly devoted to her; while, on the other hand, the mocking fiend is admirably depicted in what may be called the Scherzo. The mystic chorus at the end is of great melodious beauty, the Margaret motive being again introduced as a symbol of that "eternal womanly" which, in Goethe's words, "draws us onwards." The structure of the work is sufficiently familiar to musicians; and we need only add that the performance under Mr. Bache's leadership was marked by a rare degree of accuracy and refinement.

SOME EDUCATIONAL CONCERTS.

THE Concert at the Mansion House on the 18th ult., one of the series given by the students of the Guildhall School of Music, was a choral Concert. The songs and choruses were accompanied by the pianoforte, with the occasional addition of the harmonium. The entertainment was well-judged in regard to length, lasting only from three p.m. to about a quarter to five. The Egyptian Hall, the gorgeousness of which, perhaps, adds its attractions to those of the music, was so crowded that there was no standing room within a few minutes after the Concert commenced. In the first part of the programme, as if reliance had been placed on no interruptions by late comers, were two new compositions by pupils of Mr. Gadsby. The public performance of such works, so long as the composers are still under the discipline of the school, is a wholesome and judicious stimulus to the pupils themselves, and always most interesting to the appreciative portion of the audience. The new compositions alluded to were a part-song, "It was a lover and his lass," by Mr. David Davies, and a song, "Stars of the Summer Night," written by Miss F. Allitsen. Mr. Davies, in his part-song, has naturally, from the character of the words he had to set, taken the old English madrigal, or rather its more modern imitations, as models in regard to style. His composition has the great merit of being clear in form and thought. Both the melody and the harmony are thoroughly national and unpretending, and a dash of native humour made it more hopeful as an essay than would any amount of technical devices. Miss Allitsen's song seemed to please the hearers greatly, for it was well interpreted by Mr. Henderson, and it had its own charm in the telling figure adhered to in the accompaniment; after the manner, it must be acknowledged, of legions of German songs, the pattern of which is now well nigh worked out. Indeed, in regard to the accompaniment and melody of Miss Allitsen's song, it might be said, as it could be of most other laudable reproductions of the same kind, that the hands are the hands of Schumann or some one, but the voice is the voice of nobody in particular.

The instrumental pieces in the programme were a violoncello solo by Mr. B. L. Johnson, a pupil of M. Gustave Libotton, and a caprice for the violin by Vieuxtemps, played by Master George Leipold, a pupil of Mr. J. T. Carrodus. Master Leipold bids fair to become a brilliant violinist. Miss Isabella Stone sang the solo part in Mendelssohn's "Hear my prayer" with a degree of expression that won her deserved applause. The same credit for expression, and in this case dramatic expression without effort or exaggeration, must be awarded to Mr. Dalgety Henderson in the trio from "William Tell," with Mr. Sackville Evans and Mr. Hugo Glunstein; Mr. Henderson is fortunate in the possession of a true tenor voice. An aria from "Faust," sung by Miss Hastings, was followed by Mr. Ganz's warbling song, "Sing, sweet bird," given with such aplomb by Miss Julie Albu that she decidedly received the largest share of the applause during the whole Concert. The programme ended with Pierson's "Ye Mariners of England," intended for a breezy piece of choral display, and containing vague reminiscences of "The Hardy Norseman." The choral numbers in the programme were in general creditably given.

During the month we have had to pursue the march of intellectual music further eastward, and even to Hoxton; and we may here notice the praiseworthy efforts of the Professor of Music of the Haberdashers' Schools to create higher artistic tastes amongst the lower middle-classes in that district. We attended one of the series of Evening Concerts which have been organised at those Schools by the music-master, Mr. J. W. S. Adams. We can vouch for the excellence of the programme and the creditable performance in general, and in some cases superior performance of the soloists, vocal and instrumental. The selections of music are preceded by an Introductory Paper, and at intervals during the evening by explanatory comments, written by Mr. Adams and read by the Head-Master of the Schools. Mr. Adams, in his essays, endeavours to impress on his hearers that music is a language which has to be learnt, if not grammatically, at least colloquially, before it can be understood; that is to say, that certain melodic passages and progressions in harmony have a more or less distinct character, conveying to the initiated or to the experienced hearer a certain meaning, however indefinite it may be, as compared with ordinary language. General characteristics, such as the tender, the majestic, or the sublime, are to be recognised in music; but without habituation to the better class of music those sentiments, as we understood Mr. Adams, are not so easily recognised as some of a lower order, represented in "Close the shutters" and other songs of the "Christy Minstrel" family. As specimens of a higher type of sentiment, the programme contained "When the heart is young," by Buck; "The Dream of the old Sacristan," by Barri; and other songs by Bishop, Mendelssohn, and Pinsuti, which were in some instances preceded by explanatory comments indicating to the audience the nature of the subject and sentiment of the words to be expressed in the music. Whether it was owing to the music being of too high a class, or to the explanatory comments, we were sorry to observe that it was only the front and reserved seats in the Haberdashers' Schoolroom that were filled. Mr. Adams has evidently much work before him in his missionary efforts amongst the "lower middle-class" in Hoxton. And if he came further west he would find the ground pretty well occupied by a class of songs with sentiments not much more advanced than that of "Close the shutters." Fortunately for the benefit of the rapidly widening area of musical cultivation amongst the upper middle-class, at all events, there is at this season an abundance of the best music to be had in all districts and nearly at all hours in the west. With the exception of really musical people who have the leisure to search, few know the number of "Matinées Musicales," such as those at Glendower Mansions, given by M. Zastrow, and not prominently advertised, that are to be found where high-class music to suit various tastes can be enjoyed. Beyond a select few, the busy public, absorbed in its avocations, has possibly known nothing even of the series of Morning Concerts given at the Albert Hall by the students of the "National Training School for Music." The inhabitants of Kensington know all about it, as is obvious from the large and attentive audiences at those concerts, so interesting in regard to the future of the art, and in themselves so excellent. There are two features in these concerts of pleasing augury. In the selection of the music, where everything is good of the kind, there is no pedagogical affectation of the ultra-classical. The best authors of all styles have a place in the programmes; and, moreover, we are not wearied with too much pianoforte music. The organ, the pianoforte, the flute, the clarinet, and bowed instruments, as well as vocal solos and vocal quartets—the latter of marked superiority—have all their fair share in a varied and, in many instances, rare selection of pieces. The demand at this season on the time and space of musical reporting prevents us from attempting any detailed notice of these Concerts; but many of those who have heard them will gladly testify to the additional promise they hold forth; a promise which, equally sustained at the Students' Concerts at the Royal Academy, and in the progress of other schools of music in London, is full of hope in regard to the recent awakening of the musical powers and sympathies of this country. As for the particular students of merit at the National Training School, which is so soon to be merged in the Royal College of Music, Mr. Herbert Sharpe for one has already made a name. To have the pleasure of hearing him as an accompanist is to admire his skill all the more as a solo pianist. Mr. Hollis as a flautist and Mr. Turrell as a player of the clarinet have the English orchestra of the future—no mean prospect—to look forward to. With visions before us of what may be in store for us in that respect, it was gratifying on two occasions, at these Concerts, to see in the programme Maurer's Quartet for violins only. One of the players was a young lady, a Miss A. Ward. We know nothing of her professional prospects or antecedents, but her violin-playing was in some respects out of the common. She possesses a quickness and firmness of what is technically called "shift," and a thickness and ripeness of tone not always to be acquired by any amount of study. It proceeds from a sensitiveness to touch of string and bow, and even to the violin quality of sound that amounts almost to a new sense. Miss Ward, if she is never a brilliant soloist, possesses qualities in violin-playing that will be highly appreciated in the quartet. The Training School seems to abound in organists of merit; and there are, of course, solo singers of merit. One of them, Mr. Tapley, at the last Concert, on the 15th ult., sang the tenor air from "Elijah," "If with all your hearts"; and we have seldom heard it given with more true and unaffected pathos. The timbre of Mr. Tapley's voice is singular, but agreeable. There were also young ladies, some very young, who shone in vocal solos. It must be confessed that generally, and allowing for brilliant exceptions, the style of female solo-singing is not a strong point in our schools. Probably insipidity, as an occasional characteristic in English solo-singing, will not be wholly got rid of until the Prince of Wales and Sir Edward Watkin succeed in their respective ambitions of forming a Conservatorium of Music and completing the Channel Tunnel.

BOROUGH OF HACKNEY CHORAL ASSOCIATION.

THE third Concert of the season was given at the Town Hall, Shoreditch, on the 6th ult. The first part of the programme was devoted to a performance of Schumann's "Scenes from Faust" (third part), the choral portion of which was sung throughout with a precision and effect reflecting the highest credit upon the members of the Association and the Conductor who had so ably prepared it. The work has already been presented to the subscribers of the Society (in November, 1878); and it speaks well for the taste of the audience that on its repetition it should be so warmly welcomed. The principal vocalists were Misses Farnol, Marianne Fenna, Thacker, Leighton, Gibson, Hudson, and Schäfer, Messrs. H. Piercy, Buels, and Blower. It need scarcely be said that many of the solos severely taxed the powers of singers who brought but limited experience to their task; but praise must be awarded especially to Miss Fenna, Miss Farnol, and Mr. Blower, who not only displayed good voices, but sang with much earnestness and intelligence. The second part contained selections from Mozart's "Idomeneo" and Beethoven's music to "The Ruins of Athens." In the first-named work Miss Fenna in the Aria "Zeffiretti lusinghieri," and Misses Leighton and Farnol in the Duet "S'io non moro," were highly successful; and the "Chorus of Dervishes," from "The Ruins of Athens," achieved a perfect triumph, although its repetition was forbidden by the law against encores printed at the head of the programme. Favourable mention must be made, too, of Mr. Blower's rendering of Handel's "O ruddier than the cherry," which would, however, have been better without the high note at the conclusion. Mr. Goring Thomas's fanciful Overture, "The Light of the Harem," and Berlioz' Hungarian March from "Faust," were also included in the second part, and exceedingly well played. Mr. Ebenezer Prout was, as usual, an efficient Conductor.

HIGHBURY PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

AT the Concert on the 20th ult. Weber's Opera "Euryanthe," translated into English by Mr. William Thornthwaite, was given in its entirety by this Association; and even if the ambition which prompted Dr. Bridge and the body of amateurs under his direction to present this work to their subscribers had not been justified by the result, the warmest praise would have been their due for the manner in which they have evidently thrown their heart into the task. Mr. Thornthwaite has done his utmost for the somewhat dreary libretto of the Opera, and made the story really attractive for the concert-room by the clearness of his language and the ease of his versification. Whatever may be said about the story, however, there cannot be two opinions upon the music, the melodiousness and dramatic power of which appealed with irresistible force to the vast audience assembled. The familiar strains of many of the pieces seemed to surprise some listeners who, scarcely knowing even the name of the Opera, yet recognised the subjects of their nursery pieces; the exquisite romance of Adolar, for instance, in the first act, and the "May Song," with chorus, sung by Bertha whilst decking her cottage with garlands of flowers, eliciting applause which might not have been so enthusiastic had the music been entirely strange to the audience. The whole of the choral portions of the Opera were delivered with a precision and unity of feeling quite surprising, considering the difficulty of many of the pieces, the "Hunting Chorus" in the third act especially being rendered with remarkable effect. Very much of the success of the performance was undoubtedly owing to the excellent singing of the solo vocalists. Miss Florence Norman created a marked effect in the trying music allotted to Euryanthe, displaying a pure soprano voice and good method of vocalisation throughout, and executing the florid passages in the finale to the second act with the ease of an experienced singer. Miss Catherine Penna in the part of Eglantine was also thoroughly efficient, her great duet with Euryanthe being given not only with the vocal power demanded by the piece, but with a dramatic feeling which excited warm and well-deserved applause. Whether the music especially suited the voice and style of Mr. Maas we cannot say; but certainly we scarcely ever heard him sing so well, or the part of Adolar more finely rendered. His Cavatina in the first act, already mentioned, was given with true artistic expression; and in all his solos he fairly won the sympathies of the audience. A good word must also be said for Miss Evelyn Gibson, who sang the melodious "May Song" with much purity of intonation and appropriate simplicity of style. An apology was made for the absence of Mr. Bridson (who was to have sung the part of Lysiart) on the score of indisposition, and his place was ably supplied by Mr. Forington, Mr. Thornthwaite taking the part of King Louis, assigned in the programme to Mr. Forington. On the whole the band was thoroughly satisfactory, Dr. Bridge's able conducting smoothing over many difficulties which might have been more prominent to the general audience with a less experienced chief. We understand that the Opera, as given on this occasion, will shortly be published by Messrs. Novello, and trust therefore that this charming music may now become more extensively known through the medium of the concert-room. It must be said also that the public will soon have an opportunity of hearing it with dramatic action and stage accessories, for it is to be included in the forthcoming series of German Opera performances at Drury Lane Theatre. Meanwhile let us heartily congratulate both the Conductor and choir of the Highbury Philharmonic Society upon the success of their courageous experiment in the cause of true German operatic art.

BOW AND BROMLEY INSTITUTE.

THE choir connected with this Institute continues, under the able direction of Mr. McNaught, to do good service for art in the far east of London. It is not a large body of voices, for the reason, perhaps, that the conditions of entrance are severe. Candidates who use the old notation must, for example, be able to read at sight; while Tonic Sol-faists find the doors shut against them unless they possess what is known as the "intermediate certificate." But while those regulations work in restraint of numbers, it is obvious that they ensure a good average of capacity—the better thing of the two. After one hearing, we are disposed to give Mr. McNaught's choir a high place among suburban bodies of the kind. Its members sing even such difficult music as that of Macfarren's "Lady of the Lake" with confidence and precision, while their attention not only to "marks of expression," but to the spirit of expression—which is a very different thing—shows that they know how to profit by training that aims at something beyond superficial excellence. At a Concert given on the 7th ult. the Cantata just named was performed with much success, and to the loudly expressed pleasure of a large audience. It had been given, we believe, on a prior occasion, and was repeated, by desire, under much the same conditions. For the singing of the choruses we have hardly anything but praise. The quality of the voices might be improved, but the crispness and neatness of the choir's style, the evident intelligence and earnestness of all concerned, and the dramatic expression thrown into the music were points demanding frank acknowledgment and approbation. It is a pity that with such singers Mr. McNaught cannot associate an orchestra, however small. We observe that he is endeavouring to form an amateur body of instrumentalists, and we wish him all success, the more heartily because the effect of an orchestral score is burlesqued rather than imitated by a great organ and a pianoforte, unless those instruments are handled with exceptional skill. Mr. Turpin and Mrs. McNaught did their best on the occasion under notice, but could scarcely overcome the incongruity of an organ accompaniment to the war music of a Highland clan! The solos in the Cantata were delivered by Miss Agnes Larkcom, Mrs. Mudie-Bolingbroke, Mr. Barton M'Guckin, Mr. Albert M'Guckin, and Mr. Hutchinson. Upon this part of the performance it is unnecessary to dwell, the artists being sufficiently well known to make easy a correct estimate of merit. Suffice it that the efforts of all, but particularly of Miss Larkcom and Mr. Barton M'Guckin, were very well received, applause and encores being the order of the evening. Mr. McNaught conducted with care and skill. In justice to him, we can only repeat the expression of our desire that he may soon have an orchestra under his bâton.

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY MUSICAL SOCIETY.

AT the Concert given by this energetic Society on Tuesday, the 7th ult., in honour of Herr Joachim's visit to the University, several orchestral works of great interest were performed. Beethoven's "Coriolanus" Overture was followed by Brahms's Concerto for violin and orchestra, Herr Joachim playing the solo part in a magnificent manner, and introducing in the first movement his own immensely difficult cadenza, which is conceived in a style so nearly akin to that of the whole composition that it will ultimately, no doubt, be accepted on all hands as an integral part of the Concerto, without which any performance of the work would be considered imperfect. The effect of the exquisitely beautiful slow movement was considerably marred at its outset by a grievous mistake on the part of the second bassoon, which instrument has to sustain the bass of the harmony, as the first delivery of the subject is

FOUR-PART SONG.

Words by F. W. BOURDILLON.

Composed by OLIVERIA PRESCOTT.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 &amp; 81, Queen Street (E.C.)

Allegro spiritoso.

SOPRANO.
It was o - ver the clo - ver, and o - ver the

ALTO.
It was o - ver the clo - ver, and o - ver the

TENOR.
It was o - ver the clo - ver, and o - ver the

BASS.
It was o - ver the clo - ver, and o - ver the

PIANO.
Allegro spiritoso.
f
♩ = 138.

corn, And o - ver the mea - dow that mer - ry May morn, That he bore me with corn, And o - ver the mea - dow that mer - ry May morn, That he bore me with corn, And o - ver the mea - dow that mer - ry May morn, That he bore me with corn, And o - ver the mea - dow that mer - ry May morn, That he bore me with him on the back of his bay, To the gay vil-lage green, to be Queen of the

him on the back of his bay, To the gay vil-lage green, to be Queen of the

him on the back of his bay, To the gay vil-lage green, to be Queen of the

him on the back of his bay, To the gay vil-lage green, to be Queen of the Legato.

May. It was o-ver the val-leys and hills far from sight, By glen and by

Legato.
May. It was o-ver the val-leys and hills far from sight, By glen and by

Legato.
May. It was o-ver the val-leys and hills far from sight, By glen and by

Legato.
May. It was o-ver the val-leys and hills far from sight, By glen and by p Legato.

cres.
tor-rent at deep dead of night, That his fierce . . ri-val car-ried me

cres.
tor-rent at deep dead of night, That his fierce ri-val car-ried me

cres.
tor-rent at deep dead of night, That his fierce ri-val car-ried me

cres.
tor-rent at deep dead of night, That his fierce . . ri-val car-ried me

cres.

help - less a-way, And swore he would wed me with break - ing of day.

help - less a-way, And swore he would wed me with break - ing of day.

help - less a-way, And swore he would wed me with break - ing of day.

help - less a-way, And swore he would wed me with break - ing of day.

It was o - ver the moun - tains my love fol - lowed me, From the rage of his

It was o - ver the moun - tains my love fol - lowed me, From the rage of his

It was o - ver the moun - tains my love fol - lowed me, From the rage of his

It was o - ver the moun - tains my love fol - lowed me, From the rage of his ri - val his true love to free; And there in the grey dawn his foe - man he ri - val his true love to free; And there in the grey dawn his foe - man he ri - val his true love to free; And there in the grey dawn his foe - man he ri - val his true love to free; And there in the grey dawn his foe - man he

cres. Legato. sotto voce.

found, And when the day broke there was blood on the ground. It is o - ver the

cres. Legato. sotto voce.

found, And when the day broke there was blood on the ground. It is o - ver the

cres. Legato. sotto voce.

found, And when the day broke there was blood on the ground. It is o - ver the

cres. Legato. sotto voce.

found, And when the day broke there was blood on the ground. It is o - ver the

p Legato. sotto voce.

moun-tains a-way to the sea, It is o - ver the o - cean my true love must moun-tains a-way to the sea, It is o - ver the o - cean my true love must moun-tains a-way to the sea, It is o - ver the o - cean my true love must moun-tains a-way to the sea, It is o - ver the o - cean my true love must

Cantabile. pp

flee; And he prays . . me to leave . . him, a fe - lon

Cantabile. pp

flee; And he prays me to leave him, a fe - lon

Cantabile. pp

flee; And he prays . . me to leave . . him, a fe - lon

Cantabile. pp

flee; And he prays me to leave . . him, a fe - lon

Cantabile. pp

out - cast; But if e'er... I for - sake . . .
 out - cast; But if e'er I for - sake . . .
 out - cast; But if e'er... I for - sake . . .
 out - cast; But if e'er I for - sake . . .
 him, if e'er I for - sake . . . him, if e'er . . . I for - . . . him, if e'er I for - sake . . . him, if e'er . . . I for - him, if e'er I for - sake . . . him, if e'er . . . I for - him, if e'er I for - sake . . . him, if e'er . . . I for - sake . . . him, for - sake . . . him, that day be my last.
 sake . . . him, for - sake . . . him, that day be my last.
 sake . . . him, for - sake . . . him, that day be my last.
 sake . . . him, for - sake . . . him, that day be my last.
 sake . . . him, for - sake . . . him, that day be my last.
 sake . . . him, for - sake . . . him, that day be my last.

f
marcato. rit.
marcato. rit.
marcato. rit.
marcato. rit.
marcato. rit.

NOVELLO'S COLLECTION OF TRIOS, QUARTETS, &c., FOR FEMALE VOICES.

VOLUMES I, II, III, IV., BOUND IN CLOTH, GILT EDGES, 5s. EACH.

134	A CHRISTMAS CAROL (2 voices)	CARL REINECKE	2d.	52	ON DEPARTURE	FRANZ ABT	2d.
89	A MAIDEN'S SONG	CARL REINECKE	3d.	57	O PRAISE THE LORD (Laudate)	MENDELSSOHN	4d.
76	A MORNING WALK	JOACHIM RAFF	6d.	19	O SING TO GOD (NOEL)	CH. GOUNOD	6d.
114	APRIL SHOWERS	J. L. HATTON	3d.	69	OUR HOME SHALL BE	HENRY SMART	4d.
152	AS IN THE FIELD GOODLY FRUIT WILL GROW	CARL REINECKE	2d.	94	OVER A GRAVE	CARL REINECKE	2d.
62	A SONG OF THE FOUR SEASONS	B. LUARD SELBY	3d.	105	O WHY, IF THOU ART MINE	M. HAUPTMANN	2d.
51	A SPRING MORNING	FRANZ ABT	3d.	99	PANGBOURNE	F. CORDER	3d.
113	AT MIDNIGHT	FRANZ LACHNER	3d.	141	PARTING BEAM OF DAYLIGHT	FRANZ ABT	2d.
23	AVE MARIA ("Loreley")	MENDELSSOHN	2d.	36	PEACE	DR. HILLER	3d.
30	AVE MARIA	MARCHETTI	3d.	64	PEACE	G. ROBERTI	3d.
138	AVE MARIA	FRANZ ABT	2d.	145	PRaise OF SPRING	CARL REINECKE	3d.
37	BELLS IN MAY	DR. HILLER	3d.	136	PRAYER ON THE WATERS (2v.)	CARL REINECKE	2d.
78	BE STRONG TO HOPE	EDWARD HECHT	3d.	43	RISE AGAIN, GLAD SUMMER SUN (3 voices, with A. solo)	HENRY LESLIE	3d.
49	BLANCHE OF PROVENCE	CHERUBINI	3d.	26	SAY, WHERE IS HE BORN	MENDELSSOHN	2d.
41	CALL TO THE MOUNTAINS	DR. HILLER	3d.	16	SERENADE (4 voices, with solo)	SCHUBERT	6d.
68	CHARMING LITTLE VALLEY	G. ROBERTI	3d.	95	SNOW IN SPRING	CARL REINECKE	2d.
119	CHRISTMAS EVE	H. MARSCHNER	4d.	92	SONG (from "Mirza Schaffy")	CARL REINECKE	3d.
100	CLIEVDEN WOODS	F. CORDER	3d.	91	SONG OF THE GRACES ("Faust")	CARL REINECKE	2d.
85	COME, SISTERS, COME	A. C. MACKENZIE	4d.	101	SONNING LOCK	F. CORDER	3d.
13	CORONACH	SCHUBERT	4d.	25	SPINNING CHORUS	WAGNER	3d.
71	DAY IS AT LAST DEPARTING	JOACHIM RAFF	3d.	73	SPRING IN THE LAND	JOACHIM RAFF	3d.
79	DEPARTURE	L. SAMSON	3d.	97	STARS BEYOND THE CLOUD	BERTHOLD TOURS	3d.
84	DISTANT BELLS	A. C. MACKENZIE	3d.	63	SUMMER DAYS	H. C. BANISTER	3d.
130	EAT THE FRUIT (2 voices)	CARL REINECKE	2d.	21	SUMMER EVE (4 voices)	J. L. HATTON	3d.
9	EVENING	HENRY SMART	2d.	147	SUNBEAMS IN WINTER	CARL REINECKE	2d.
124	EVENING REST	OSCAR WERMANN	4d.	50	SUNSET	FRANZ ABT	3d.
65	FANCY	A. H. BEHREND	3d.	103	SWEET LAND OF THE MOUN- TAIN (Cambria)	DR. WALMSLEY	3d.
106	FARE THEE WELL!	G. ROBERTI	3d.	82	TELL ME WHERE 'IS FANCY	J. G. CALLOTT	3d.
55	FLORA	M. HAUPTMANN	2d.	47	THE APPROACH OF MAY	DR. WALMSLEY	3d.
86	FLY FORTH, MY SONG	FRANZ ABT	3d.	148	THE AWAKING OF MORN	CARL REINECKE	2d.
122	FROM VENICE	CARL REINECKE	3d.	6	THE BIRD AT SEA	HENRY SMART	4d.
46	GIPSY LIFE	SCHUMANN	3d.	1	THE CORALL'D CAVES	HENRY SMART	4d.
17	GLORIOUS STAND THE MOUN- TAINS (3 voices, with soli S. and A.)	C. REINTHALER	2d.	144	THE DREAMING LAKE	CARL REINECKE	2d.
15	GLORY TO THE LORD	SCHUBERT	3d.	80	THE ELF	L. SAMSON	3d.
44	GOOD IN NATURE (4 voices)	SCHUBERT	4d.	153	THE ELVES	CARL REINECKE	3d.
129	GOOD NIGHT (3 v. with soli S. & A.)	HENRY LESLIE	3d.	112	THE EVENING STAR	FRANZ LACHNER	2d.
22	HAIL TO THEE	CARL REINECKE	2d.	151	THE EVENING WIND	CARL REINECKE	2d.
133	HAPPINESS EVER (2 voices)	HENRY SMART	2d.	53	THE FATHER'S WATCHFUL EYE	FRANZ ABT	3d.
98	HARK! THE VILLAGE BELLS	CARL REINECKE	2d.	8	THE FAY'S SONG	HENRY SMART	4d.
125	HAYMAKERS	JAMES SHAW	3d.	33	THE FISHER WIFE'S SONG	J. L. HATTON	3d.
56	HEAR, O HEAR MY PRAYER (Veni, Domine)	A. H. BEHREND	3d.	70	THE LAMENT	GABUSSI	3d.
27	HEARTS FEEL THAT LOVE	MENDELSSOHN	3d.	109	THE LONELINESS OF WOODS	RICHARD HOL	3d.
2	HEAVEN	SCHUBERT	2d.	14	THE LORD IS MY SHEPHERD	SCHUBERT	4d.
3	HOPE AND MEMORY	HENRY SMART	4d.	67	THE MERMAIDS	DR. WALMSLEY	4d.
30	HOURS OF REST	HENRY SMART	4d.	120	THE NIGHTS	G. ROBERTI	3d.
88	HOW QUICKLY SORROW	DR. F. HILLER	3d.	127	THE NYMPHS IN THE RHINE	H. MARSCHNER	4d.
102	HURLEY MILL	CARL REINECKE	2d.	127	THE ROSE IS QUEEN (2 voices)	CARL REINECKE	2d.
126	IN LIFE IF LOVE WE KNOW NOT (2 voices)	FRANZ LACHNER	2d.	111	THE SABBATH MORN	FRANZ LACHNER	2d.
108	IN SLEEP THE WORLD RE- POSES	DR. HILLER	3d.	40	THE SECRET	DR. HILLER	3d.
93	IN SUMMER GO THY LOVE TO SEEK	F. CORDER	3d.	31	THE SHADES OF NIGHT	SPOHR	4d.
35	IN THE WOOD	CARL REINECKE	2d.	81	THE SPRING	L. SAMSON	4d.
104	IN THY NAME SHALL THEY REJOICE	RICHARD HOL	2d.	117	THE STORK'S RETURN	H. MARSCHNER	4d.
137	INVITATION TO THE DANCE (2 voices)	DR. HILLER	3d.	45	THE SWALLOW	HENRY LESLIE	3d.
77	INVOCATION TO FAITH	G. HENSCHER	2d.	123	THE VOICE OF SPRING	A. H. BEHREND	3d.
29	I WAITED FOR THE LORD	CARL REINECKE	4d.	139	THE WANDERER'S GREETING	FRANZ ABT	2d.
115	JACK FROST	CARL REINECKE	4d.	10	THE WATER-NYMPHS	HENRY SMART	4d.
104	JESUS, HEAVENLY MASTER	A. G. GITS	3d.	149	THE WINTER HATH NOT A BLOSSOM	CARL REINECKE	3d.
27	LIVE WE SINGING	J. L. HATTON	3d.	7	THE WOOD-NYMPHS	HENRY SMART	3d.
132	LOOK UPWARD (2 voices)	SPOHR	2d.	143	THOU HEAVEN, BLUE AND BRIGHT	FRANZ ABT	2d.
20	LORD, HOW LONG	M. HAUPTMANN	2d.	150	THOU THAT THYSELF WITH DEATH HAS STRIVEN	CARL REINECKE	2d.
60	MAKE THE CAR OF A GOLDEN KING-CUP	CARL REINECKE	2d.	54	TWILIGHT	FRANZ ABT	3d.
121	MAY DANCE	BRAHMS	4d.	66	TWILIGHT	G. ROBERTI	3d.
110	MIGHT I THE BIRD BE	SIR M. COSTA	4d.	118	UPWARD	H. MARSCHNER	4d.
96	MORNING THOUGHTS	ASGER HAMERIK	6d.	75	VICISSITUDE	JOACHIM RAFF	4d.
4	NIGHT SINKS ON THE WAVE	RICHARD HOL	3d.	83	WAKEN, DAY IS DAWNING	A. C. MACKENZIE	4d.
61	NOW MAY AGAIN (4 voices)	HENRY SMART	3d.	128	WAKEN NOT THE SLEEPER (2 voices)	CARL REINECKE	2d.
135	O BEAUTIFUL VIOLET (2 voices)	HENRY SMART	4d.	42	WANDERER'S NIGHT-SONG	DR. HILLER	2d.
18	O CLAP THY HANDS	MENDELSSOHN	2d.	28	WELCOME TO THIS PLACE (4v.)	SIR H. R. BISHOP	2d.
146	OF OAK THY MOURNFUL BIER'S PREPARED	CARL REINECKE	2d.	72	WHAT CAN THE STARS BE	JOACHIM RAFF	3d.
90	O GRATEFUL EVENING	E. H. THORNE	6d.	38	WHEN DOES A MAIDEN	DR. HILLER	3d.
58	OH, SKYLARK, FOR THY WING OLORD, THOU HAST SEARCHED (Surrexit Pastor Bonus), 4 voices	CARL REINECKE	2d.	116	WHEN EVENING'S TWILIGHT	J. L. HATTON	2d.
142	ONCE AGAIN THE DAY	CARL REINECKE	2d.	74	WHEN GLOWS A HEART	JOACHIM RAFF	4d.
		HENRY SMART	4d.	87	WHEN TWO ARE LOVERS	CARL REINECKE	2d.
		MENDELSSOHN	6d.	11	WHERE ARE THE ANGELS	J. L. HATTON	3d.
		FRANZ ABT	2d.	140	WHERE DEEPEST SHADOWS	FRANZ ABT	2d.
				34	WITH A LAUGH ("May Queen")	W. S. BENNETT	4d.
				131	WOE TO HIM (2 voices)	CARL REINECKE	2d.
				32	YET ONCE AGAIN ("Magic Flute")	MOZART	2d.
				12	YOUTH, JOY, AND HOPE	J. L. HATTON	4d.

(To be continued.)

allotted to the wood-wind. The last movement was given with great spirit, and the whole was very well received. Wagner's "Siegfried Idyl" came next in order—a work which, since its introduction into this country by Herr Richter, has won its way into considerable favour by the charm of its naïve innocence and sunny happiness. The first part of the programme concluded with Herr Joachim's theme and variations for violin and orchestra, a serious and thoughtful piece full of care and ingenuity of workmanship, and of considerable beauty, calculated, too, to display the composer's characteristics of style to the greatest advantage.

The second part of the Concert consisted solely of a new work by Mr. C. Villiers Stanford. The title "Elegiac Symphony" is accounted for by the fact that the lines in Tennyson's "In Memoriam" which begin, "I cannot see the features right," are appended to the work by way of motto. Yet the new Symphony in no way deserves the now somewhat opprobrious name of programme-music, for realism of representation is neither intended nor attempted; merely the general feeling of the short poem being reflected in the musical composition. We may perhaps be permitted to see in the first three movements the variety of conflicting images that at first distract the poet's memory, and ultimately give place to the true presentment of the "fair face" of the departed friend, this last being figured forth in the final movement of the work, which is full of a serene calmness and solemnity. The first movement has for its first subject an impetuous theme in 6-8 time, given out by the strings, in marked contrast to which is a phrase that is heard on the brass instruments several times in the course of the movement, one of a number of phrases set in the same way, and of the same solemn kind, that appear at intervals throughout the whole Symphony, giving it a peculiarly grave character. The slow movement is well worked out on a suave and flowing theme of great beauty. The Scherzo is full of spirit and energy, and contains a noticeable rhythmic figure on the drums, which is persistently adhered to even through the trio. At the close of the movement the introduction of another of the phrases above referred to leads us to expect a second trio, but the Scherzo stops immediately after the phrase has been heard. The Allegro of the last movement is ushered in by a long and elaborate introduction, based for the most part upon reminiscences of the three earlier movements, and having a somewhat turbulent and unsatisfied character. A broad phrase for the trumpets immediately precedes the very unpretentious entry of the first subject proper, which is given out by the flute alone against sustained tremolo passages in the violins. By this method of treatment the most important subject of the movement is hardly given due prominence. This, however, is but a slight defect in an earnest and noble composition. Both the principal themes of the finale are calm and serene in character, but in other respects are in contrast to one another; the coda, presto, in 6-8 time, is very energetic and original, and the whole is brought to a solemn and most impressive conclusion by the last of the phrases we have mentioned before, a short choral-like strain of great beauty. The whole Symphony is by far the most important orchestral work by Mr. Stanford that has hitherto been heard. Comparison with his opera "The Veiled Prophet," a selection from which was lately given at the Crystal Palace, would be entirely out of place, for that work is of course written for the stage, not for the concert-room; but as compared with Mr. Stanford's first Symphony, performed at the Crystal Palace in 1879, the "Elegiac Symphony" shows an immense advance, both in power of conception and in mastery over the technicalities of orchestral treatment. The orchestra was ably conducted by Mr. Stanford, and led by Mr. Burnett and Herr Richard Gompertz, the latter being the regular leader of the Society's orchestra.

MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE Manchester musical season has drawn rapidly to a close during the past month, and, with the exception of a few of the Gentlemen's Concerts, is now practically over. Herr Joachim made his first appearance here this season at Mr. Hallé's Concert on February 23, and played Brahms's Concerto in D and his own Variations in E minor in his usual style of unsurpassable excellence. The chief orchestral works were Haydn's Symphony, No. 5, in D, and Mozart's very graceful ballet-music from "Idomeneo." Mrs. Hutchinson, the vocalist, displayed a good voice and cultivated style in Handel's "Lusinghe più care" and songs by Berlioz and Grieg. On the 2nd ult. Berlioz' "Romeo and Juliet" was repeated very successfully, with Miss Orridge, Mr. Shakespeare, and Mr. King as solo vocalists; and Mr. Hallé completed his twenty-fourth season here on the following Thursday, when Beethoven's "Eroica" Symphony, Dvorák's "Danse Slave," No. 2, in E, and the Overtures to "Les Deux Journées" and "Tannhäuser" were all exceedingly well rendered. Mr. Hallé played in his most finished style Beethoven's Concerto in G major, Chopin's Nocturne in E and Berceuse in D flat, and Thalberg's "Home, sweet home." Mr. Maas was the vocalist, and sang with excellent effect "Più bianca del velo" (Meyerbeer), "Celeste Aida" (Verdi), and "Sound an alarm."

At the Gentlemen's Concert on February 27 Raff's "Leonora" Symphony was the pièce de résistance. Mdlle. Marie Krebs gave a most admirable performance of Ries's very uninteresting Pianoforte Concerto in C minor, and also played with equal success Mr. Hallé's transcription of a Ballo and Bourrée by Gluck, and a study in octaves by Krebs. Miss Georgina Burns and Mr. Davies were the singers. On the 15th ult. a Chamber Concert was given, the artists being Herr Joachim, Signor Risegari, Herr Straus, Signor Piatti, and Mr. Charles Hallé. The programme, which was as excellent as the performance was fine, consisted of Beethoven's string Quartet in C, Op. 59, No. 3; Mozart's Sonata for pianoforte and violin, No. 28, in E minor; Mendelssohn's Trio in C minor; "Kol nedrei," a Hebrew melody transcribed for the violoncello by Max Bruch; and the Adagio from Spohr's Ninth Violin Concerto.

Dr. Bridge's Cantata "Boadicea" is announced for the 21st inst., at the Concert Hall, the composer having been invited to conduct.

MUSIC IN BIRMINGHAM.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

"COMING events cast their shadows before them" in local musical circles, and the quickening influence of the forthcoming Birmingham Festival has been manifest here for some time past in the exceptional interest and activity of the concert season which is now drawing to a close. It is not only in the number and character of the concerts, however, that this quickening influence is apparent. It extends to the doings of amateur circles and of the educational agencies of the town, including among the latter, the new violin class at the Midland Institute, where some 400 or 500 raw recruits may be seen fiddling like one, in more or less correct unison, every Saturday evening, at the modest cost of one penny per lesson! The ordeal must be a trying one to the musical sensibilities of the teacher, Mr. Rickard, but it is scarcely so hard as his experience on the opening night of the class, when some 200 embryo Paganinis presented themselves for instruction with only forty instruments among them. The establishment of this violin class has naturally given a great impetus to the demand for the choicest Cremonas which can be produced at a price not exceeding 5s. 6d. each, and the warehouses of most of the local instrument-dealers have been fairly cleared of resin. Few of these enthusiastic tyros, it is to be feared, will be qualified for places in the Festival band next August; but it is at all events satisfactory to know that there is so much orchestral raw material in a town which has not hitherto been conspicuous for its devotion to the instrumental branch of musical art.

Justice, however, has scarcely been done to the progress which Birmingham has made of late years in this department under the zealous and intelligent direction of Mr. W. C. Stockley, the conductor of our local Festival Choral and Amateur Harmonic Societies, and the trainer of the Birmingham Festival Choir. The orchestral concerts given here by Mr. Stockley during the past three or four seasons, since his band got fairly into working order, have been among the most interesting and enjoyable incidents of the musical year, and their educational value in unfolding to local amateurs the page of orchestral art, and introducing them to the strange delights of symphony and concerto, cannot easily be over-estimated. At the last of these concerts Mr. Stockley produced here, for the first time in Birmingham, the so-called dramatic legend of Hector Berlioz, "The Damnation of Faust"; and though the rendering of this very difficult and elaborate work may have lacked something of the smoothness and finish which distinguished its recent performances in London and Manchester by Mr. Charles Hallé's orchestra, it was under nearly every aspect very praiseworthy and effective, and evidently produced a deep impression upon the large audience present. Miss Mary Davies and Mr. Edward Lloyd sustained, with excellent effect, the parts of Margaret and Faust respectively, as they did at Manchester, Norwich, and London. Mr. F. King, though somewhat lacking in force and dramatic spirit, did full justice to the music of Mephistopheles, and Mr. Lander was fairly successful in Brander's drinking-song. Of the general performance, the parts which appeared to give most satisfaction were the famous Hungarian March, which was enthusiastically applauded, and the Ride to the Abyss, the cumulative power and weird effect of which were admirably realised by band and chorus.

Another example of Berlioz—his picturesque dramatic symphony, "Romeo and Juliet"—was the leading novelty of the third of the current series of Messrs. Harrison's Popular Concerts, which took place in the Town Hall on the 13th ult. On this occasion, the performers were the members of Mr. Charles Hallé's admirable band, who are of course thoroughly grounded in the work; and though, in the absence of a choir, several movements had to be omitted—a liberty for which the conductor might plead the composer's precedent—the performance was an exceedingly finished and impressive one, and calculated to inspire a very general wish to hear the work in its entirety. Of the six movements performed, those which appeared to please most were the broad, spirited, and richly scored Allegro descriptive, in the latter part, of the festivities at Capulet's house, the voluptuous and impassioned slow movement with oboe solo, suggestive of the love-passages between Romeo and his mistress, and the dainty and fantastic Scherzo prestissimo of "Queen Mab," in which muted strings, horns, and bells are employed in such ingenious and striking combinations. On the whole, the "Romeo and Juliet" Symphony was preferred here to the same composer's "Faust," in virtue chiefly of its greater reserve and melodic interest; but the extravagances of both works and their enormous executive difficulties will prevent their ever becoming stock features of our concert programmes. At the same Concert, Madame Norman-Néruda produced a deep impression by her masterly execution of the Mendelssohn violin Concerto in E minor, in the first Allegro of which she introduced a very tasteful and brilliant cadenza, and further charmed the audience by a remarkable display of virtuosity in the concluding Scherzo of the Suite in F by Franz Ries, which she introduced a few months ago at the London Monday Popular Concerts. Mr. Hallé, supported by the band, played with fine effect the Adagio and Finale from Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto. Miss Orridge gave a song by Berlioz, "The spectre of the rose"—the second of the "Summer Nights" set—which had not previously been heard in Birmingham, and at a later period sang Hullah's "Storm," on a redemand of which she gave Bishop's "By the simplicity of Venus' doves." Mr. Maas was scarcely so effective as usual in the Swan song from "Lohengrin," but provoked great enthusiasm and a redemand in Wallace's "Let me like a soldier fall."

At the fifth of Mr. Stratton's popular Chamber Concerts on the 7th ult., a new string Quartet in F minor, by Mr. F. Ward, a well-known local violinist, who led the performance, was produced for the first time and met with a very favourable reception from a critical audience. The quartet, which is the composer's tenth work for the same combination of instruments, is a thoughtful and well-written composition in the orthodox four movements, of which the last is a fugue of Handelian character and apparently suggested by one of Handel's themes in the same key (F minor). The opening Allegro is a solid, closely woven rhythmical movement in the style of Haydn; the Scherzo is strongly Mendelssohnian in character, and the Andante sostenuto, in which the melody is given principally to the violoncello, with staccato accompaniment in monotone phrases for the other instruments, exhibits a certain Mozartian grace and sweetness. It will be inferred that Mr. Ward's talent is of the eclectic order. At the same Concert, Molique's grand Trio concertante in B flat (Op. 27); a new Romance in the same key for violin and pianoforte—an expansion and adaptation of an earlier work for flute and pianoforte—by a local professor, Mr. C. J. Duchemin; Beethoven's Waldstein Sonata played from memory by the professor just named, and Haydn's E minor Trio for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello were the other items of interest.

The Saturday Popular Concerts, which have achieved such remarkable success since their reconstitution by the Birmingham Musical Association on a sound and really popular basis, continue to draw large audiences at nominal prices, and to furnish employment for a considerable amount of executive talent in all departments. At the sixty-ninth of the series, Signor Tito Mattei, the well-known pianist and composer, was the lion of the evening, and excited great enthusiasm by his performance of some of his own compositions. A lady violinist, Mdlle. Hélène de Lisle, on the same occasion experienced a very flattering reception; while the honours of the vocal department were carried off by Madame Edith Wynne. The series of instrumental Saturday afternoon Concerts given by the musical section of the Birmingham and Midland Institute, this winter, have not met with the success anticipated, though the admission charge has been fixed on a very low scale and the entertainments have been of a very meritorious order. At the last Concert of the winter series, on the 4th ult., the programme comprised the Overtures to "Die Zauberflöte" (Mozart) and "Les Naiades" (Bennett), the "Danse des Sylphes" from Berlioz' "Faust," Haydn's first Symphony, one of the same master's delightful string quartets, and a Spohr duet for violins.

The weekly rehearsals of the choir for the Festival of August next are proceeding vigorously and satisfactorily under Mr. Stockley's guidance. Cherubini's Mass in C is now out of hand, and the "Triumphlied" of Brahms and Beethoven's "Mount of Olives" have also been well rehearsed. The only other special musical event of the month is the appearance of Dr. Joachim at Messrs. Pyatt's Concert on the 30th ult., which must be reserved for future reference.

MUSIC IN YORKSHIRE.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

AT Bradford the last Subscription Concert of the present series was given on the 3rd ult., when Berlioz' "Faust" was performed for the third time in this district during the season, the work having been twice before heard at Huddersfield. Miss Mary Davies and Mr. Edward Lloyd were again intrusted with the parts of Marguerite and Faust respectively; the former was well received, and created an excellent impression, especially by her rendering of the "King of Thule" ballad. Mr. Lloyd's arduous task was most successfully performed, the rôle seeming to suit his voice and style to perfection. Mr. Frederick King was the Mephistopheles, and sang the curious music of the part in his usual finished manner. The minor character of Brander was taken by Mr. Pyatt, who acquitted himself very creditably. Mr. Charles Hallé's band, augmented on this occasion, occupied the orchestra as at Huddersfield, and carried off the honours of the evening; the Marche Hongroise and Ballet des Sylphes were redemanded and repeated. The chorus was supplied by the Bradford Festival Choral Society, and though not equal to the Huddersfield body of singers, nor quite perfect in attacking the detached passages, was on the whole satisfactory. The interest excited by this work was shown by the immense audience present, the tickets having been largely taken up at an early date. We understand that the same work is to be performed at the first Subscription Concert at Bradford next season; it is also to be produced at Leeds and York at no distant interval of time. Mr. Charles Hallé must be credited with much of the success which has attended the introduction of Berlioz' "Faust" to Yorkshire audiences. At the close of the Bradford performance he was recalled and enthusiastically applauded.

Mr. S. Midgley gave his second Classical Chamber Concert at the Bradford Church Institute on the 17th ult. The performers were Herr Straus (violin), M. Vieuxtemps (violinello), and Mr. Midgley (piano). The programme included three trios—Dvorák's in G minor (Op. 26), Agnes Zimmermann's Suite (Op. 19), and Schumann's Trio in D minor (Op. 63)—all of which were excellently rendered and favourably received, the last especially. Herr Straus played for his solo Tartini's Sonata in G minor ("Il Trillo del Diavolo"), the difficult passages in the Allegro being splendidly given, and causing a double recall. M. Vieuxtemps chose Beethoven's Variations in F on "Ein Mädchen oder Weibchen" for piano and violinello, and displayed all his usual skill. We should have preferred something more substantial from Mr. Midgley than "Six Characteristic Pieces" by E. Pessard (Op. 20), for though the selection was well played, it did not give the artist any opportunity for showing his undoubted ability as a pianist.

An excellent Concert of Chamber Music was given in the Leeds Philosophical Hall on the 1st ult. by the following performers—Herr Otto Peiniger (violin), Mr. Drake (viola), Mr. Charles Ould (violinello), Mr. Charles Wilkinson (piano), and Mrs. Cooper (vocalist). Beethoven's string Trio in D major and Mozart's Quartet in C minor received an intelligent interpretation; but a far greater treat, to our mind, was the rendering of the Serenade from Sterndale Bennett's Trio for violin, violinello and piano (Op. 26), a work which might, like other of Bennett's compositions, be more frequently heard. The solos were Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto (Op. 64), by Herr Peiniger, which called forth a storm of applause; three short pieces for violinello solo—Siciliana (Locatelli), Abendlied (Schumann), Moment Musicale (Schubert)—of which the last item was Mr. Ould's best effort; and Mozart's Variations on "Unser dummer Pöbel meint," for pianoforte, in which Mr. Wilkinson reached a higher standard as a pianist than he had previously attained, at least in Leeds. Mrs. Cooper's voice has lost much of its power, but her taste as a singer was well displayed in her rendering of two well-known songs: Salaman's "I arise from dreams of thee," and Cowen's "The children's home."

Attempts are being made in Leeds to revive the Subscription Concerts which were usually provided until a year or two ago by Mr. Archibald Ramsden, and there is every prospect that next season such a series will be given; the success of the Bradford Subscription Concerts should encourage the Leeds people to persevere.

For the present month several Concerts are announced: the Bradford Festival Choral Society intends to give "St. Paul" towards the end of the month, the principals being the Misses Robertson, Mr. Welsh, and Mr. Barrington Foote; Mr. Sims Reeves advertises a "Farewell Concert" for the 14th at the Leeds Town Hall; and at the same place, on the 17th, a Miscellaneous Concert will be given by Mr. Joseph Maas, assisted by Mdle. Giulia Velmi, Miss Helen D'Alton, Mr. H. T. Bywater, Mr. Thurley Beale, Mr. D. Ffrench Davis, and Herr Volkmer. Bach's "Passion Music" is to be performed at the Leeds Parish Church three times this Easter by the excellent choir of the church, under the direction of Dr. Creser, the organist.

MUSIC IN LEIPZIG.

Leipzig, March 23.

SYMPTOMS of the approaching end of the concert-season here have been multiplying themselves during the past month. It is impossible within the limits of a letter to recapitulate all the various works of interest which have been given, and I must content myself with mentioning only a few. First in order of time comes a concert given in the music-room of Herr Seitz, the pianoforte-maker, on the 20th ult., by Professor Rappoldi, the eminent violinist, whose performance of Schumann's D minor Sonata (Op. 121), of a Sarabande and Tambourin of Leclair, and the solo Prelude and Fugue in C by Bach, were in every sense memorable, equally for finish of execution, striking richness of tone, and the artistic feeling with which they were instinct. The pianist was his wife, better known in Germany as Fräulein Kahrer; and the concert was relieved by three songs, sung by Frau Müller-Swiatlowsky, formerly of Moscow, who also made her début at the Gewandhaus with marked applause last Thursday. She possesses a singularly powerful contralto and an energetic style, which, however, is sometimes a little too theatrical. On the 26th ult. followed the second concert of Herr von Herzogenberg's Bach-Verein, in St. Thomas' Church, which, so far as the choral parts are concerned, merits unqualified praise. The programme consisted of Handel's 42nd Psalm and Bach's Cantata "Halt im Gedächtniss Jesum Christ," and D minor Toccata for organ. Of the last-named performance perhaps the less said the better; but the fault partly lay with the organ itself, the deplorable condition of which is scarcely creditable to the town. As to the cantata it may be questioned whether the conductor was judicious in giving to the choir the marvellous aria "Friede sei mit euch" which was indisputably written for a bass solo, interrupted at intervals by a simple trio of the upper voices. But the concert as a whole appeared the more successful when it came to be viewed in comparison with two other sacred concerts given on the 4th and 10th inst., in St. Matthew's and St. Thomas's Churches respectively. In this regard the Bach-Verein is by far the most artistic and the best-trained which Leipzig possesses. The Concert of the 4th was given by a choir composed mainly of the students of the Conservatorium, assisted by some members of the Bach-Verein and others. Handel's "Jubilate," Mendelssohn's "Lobgesang," and Brahms's "Triumphlied" were the works chosen for the performance, which on the whole went off satisfactorily, although the extreme length of the programme, and especially the unrelieved succession of three immense double choruses, of which the last work consists—the pianoforte score fills seventy-five pages—made the concert less enjoyable than one would have anticipated: for the "Triumphlied" is a strongly impressive composition, and one which should certainly be more widely known; and the "Lobgesang" had some peculiar excellences in its performance, notably the refinement and faultless taste of the tenor, Herr Johannes Müller. I have heard nothing in Germany at all approaching the sensitive art with which the recitative, "Watchman, will the night soon pass?" was rendered on this occasion. The third sacred concert to which I have alluded was devoted to "Israel in Egypt," but neither the choir of the Riedel'sche Verein nor the solo singers appeared to such advantage as to make the concert worthy of comment.

The last two concerts of the Euterpe included little of interest. In the former, on the 28th ult., we were glad to hear Brahms's Serenade in D, an early work (Op. 11) which is too seldom performed, although it contains a great deal of masterly and highly original writing, and perhaps even greater promise of what the composer was subsequently to achieve. At the same concert appeared, for the second time this season, Herr E. Ysaye, of Liège, a violinist whose fine technique wins him continual applause here, in spite of an artificial style and grave faults of taste. The Euterpe season terminated on the 7th with a somewhat cold performance of Beethoven's C minor Symphony. Mr. Franz Rummel also played with much delicacy and precision Beethoven's Concerto in E flat. The C minor Symphony was also given at the Gewandhaus on the 16th ult., and never probably in recent years have Herr Reinecke and his band conspired to produce so remarkable an effect. The reason for this special energy on the part of the Gewandhaus orchestra was obviously the fact that the concert came in the middle of the week, three evenings of which were engrossed by the famous Meiningen Capelle of Dr. von Bülow. The Leipzig company was resolved not to be surpassed, and without doubt its performance, whether technically or artistically considered, was perfect. On the same occasion appeared the first-violoncellist, Herr Julius Klengel, in a solo capacity. I have already in a former letter adverted to his signal powers; he only needs a wider experience to take rank among the very greatest living performers. Time will teach him that such a position is to be won by restraining his enormous technique, and subordinating it to the higher control of a sense of the proper sphere and artistic limitations of his instrument.

Dr. von Bülow opened his campaign on the 13th with a Beethoven evening, like the one he gave here on January 20. This time the Symphonies were the Sixth (the Pastoral) and the Seventh; the Overtures were those to "Coriolanus" and "Egmont." I need not here repeat—what in England is now so fully recognised—the unique position which the Meiningen Intendant occupies among conductors; but it must be confessed that the performance of the Seventh Symphony was a little disappointing; Dr. von Bülow seemed inclined to exaggerate effects, and at times even was a little careless of their relevance. On the other hand, the Pastoral Symphony was brought out with consummate genius, and with the most delicate and thoughtful sympathy. The overture to "Egmont" was also in many respects striking. But the triumph of the series was won in the second Concert, on the 14th, devoted to Brahms, in which the First Symphony in C aroused a furor quite unexpected in Leipzig. It is true Dr. von Bülow took a rather unfair advantage of the applause which induced him to repeat the delicious Allegretto by making a little speech to the audience, in which he thanked them, "in his own name and in that of H.H. the Duke of Saxe-Meiningen, who had sent him thither to procure the master, Johannes Brahms, a satisfaction for the 1st of January," when, as is notorious, Brahms himself played his new Pianoforte Concerto with something less than appreciation. The public was certainly and excusably offended. They took it that Brahms needed satisfaction—the applause of an audience peculiarly vain of its musical insight; it was not to be supposed that they would see that their own musical credit needed mending, and so be grateful to the Meiningen Capelle for giving them an opportunity of regaining their position. As it was, a distinct hiss mingled in the applause at the end of the concert and greeted Dr. von Bülow's entry at the concluding concert; a treatment to which the conductor proudly replied by refusing to reappear at the end in answer to the repeated calls of the now pacifically disposed audience.

Before the Symphony, the Brahms evening had included the well-known Variations on a theme of Haydn (Op. 56), which excited rapturous applause, and the less popular Concerto in D minor, in which Dr. von Bülow took the pianoforte part. Difficult to understand the Concerto certainly is; but with an interpreter like Von Bülow it would be absurd to class it, as is so often done, among Brahms's "incomprehensible" works. The last Concert, on the 17th, was devoted to Schumann and Mendelssohn, and was in some ways the least felicitous. This was partly due to the choice of some of Schumann's lesser known—and therefore, in Leipzig, we may say, least worthy to be known—works, his Violoncello Concerto (Op. 129) and Fantasia for violin (Op. 131), and the members of the orchestra to whom they were intrusted were hardly remarkable solo-players. On the other hand, the Overtures—those to the "Bride of Messina" and "Hermann and Dorothea"—if not among Schumann's greatest, are works which one cannot be too glad to hear performed by an orchestra like Dr. von Bülow's. The Concert was completed by the Overture to "Melusina" and the Third (Scotch) Symphony of Mendelssohn, played in a manner which, anywhere but in Leipzig, where Mendelssohn is invariably depreciated, would have been responded to with enthusiasm. The Symphony especially was led in a highly characteristic and sympathetic manner, the four movements, according to the composer's express intention, following one another without a pause. Repeated hearing of Von Bülow's orchestra may perhaps qualify one's judgment of his uniform wisdom as a conductor; genius is always there, but it is not invariably restrained within the limits of discretion. But there cannot be two opinions of the enormous service he does to art and to the memory of the masters whose spirit he revives in so marvellous a manner.

THE SCOTTISH MUSICAL SOCIETY.

A MEETING in connection with this Society was held in the Royal Hotel, Edinburgh, on the 9th ult., to consider a scheme for procuring a permanent orchestra for Scotland, and for establishing an Academy of Music in Edinburgh. There was a large attendance of ladies and gentlemen, the musical profession and the musical societies of Edinburgh and other towns being well represented. In the unavoidable absence of Lord Lothian, through family bereavement, Lord Reay was, on the motion of Mr. A. W. Inglis, of Glencorse, called to the chair.

LORD REAY said: "No special pleading is necessary in Edinburgh for the cause of music. The two amateur orchestral societies, the number of vocal societies, the success of all musical performances, are facts known to all. We do not claim any superiority in this respect; and the object of this meeting is not to consider what can be done in the interest of Edinburgh, but what has to be done in the interest of Scotland. We do not claim the monopoly of guiding such a movement. We simply wish to co-operate with others, and to establish such co-operation on a practical basis. There is one undoubted advantage—there is no Scottish organisation for the promotion of music in existence. We do not meet with 'organised disorder,' the most difficult foe to combat. Whatever exists in the way of choral union concerts we respect. If we are not looked upon as friends by such associations, it is certainly not our fault. We simply ask our fellow-countrymen, Has the time come that we must concentrate our resources, and give them such an organisation that we may rely on our resources, and become independent of extraneous aid? Can Scotland be self-supporting in the matter of music? Are we in a position to accomplish what Saxony and Wurtemberg have done with signal success? This is the broad question which we feel ourselves justified in proposing to our countrymen, and which is to be solved by a united effort. That those who have up to the present day endeavoured to endow the country with good music should in the first instance be respectfully consulted is natural, and has certainly been my wish from the beginning." The speaker then referred to the rapid progress the art is making in this country, and especially to the theories recently propounded by Helmholtz. "Science," he said, "ought to be capable, Helmholtz thinks, of discovering the motive forces, whether psychological or technical, which have been at work in this artistic process, assigning to æsthetic principles general laws. I need not say that our Academy of Music will leave these purely academic problems untouched. We commend them to the solicitude and care of Sir Alexander Grant and Sir H. Oakeley. Our Academy of Music will, in fact, be a secondary institution of musical education. Our natural course will be to have a certain number of Scottish scholarships at the Royal College, for which our pupils will compete on such conditions as the authorities of the College will lay down. Whether part of the Government grant should not be applied to aid such institutions as the one we contemplate is a matter on which doubts may be felt; but, as a matter of fact, in the year ending in August, 1881, the Education Department had spent in England and Wales, £142,280; in Scotland, £19,746—the total for Great Britain exceeding £182,000. If such a large sum is to be spent with profit, I think something of it might accrue to such institutions as ours. It should not be forgotten that the Government are directly interested in securing good music to the army and to the navy. It is a noteworthy fact that the very best music is thoroughly appreciated at popular concerts; this has been the experience of the Glasgow Popular Concerts, and in London the People's Entertainment Society has met with similar results. One of the difficulties of the Society has been to keep their entertainments to the people for whom they were intended, because it was found that the demand in higher circles was such that they attempted to annex a supply not offered to them. I mention this to show what an opening there is for a greater number of musical entertainments. That such entertainments will interfere with the fulfilment of other duties is, I am convinced, an entirely mistaken notion. We are justly proud of our factory laws, of our early closing movement; but surely it is quite as important to fill up with healthy pursuits—and those not all of a muscular description—the hours intended for relaxation. Sins of commission are too often the results of sins of omission; and is it not a sin of omission to omit good music from the programme of our daily lives? I do not think lightly of reading original books; but listening to grand music is having access to original compositions. Walter Scott envied the first bard who compared his hero to a lion, and admits that every subsequent poet 'must either struggle hard to give his lion (as heralds say) with a difference, or lay under the imputation of being a servile imitator.' We do not wish at our Academy to reproduce 'the lion with a difference.' What we do wish is to bring such lions as Schubert, Chopin, Haydn, Weber, frequently before sympathetic audiences, without a difference, because the oftener they listen to such performances the more they will be appreciated. Victor Hugo may say, 'I do my duty like a torchlight'—the Scottish Academy of Music will not use such boastful language. All it aspires to do is to enlist the support of all Scotsmen in a good cause, so that Erasmus might again say of us, 'Brittani, præter alia, forum, musicam et lantans mensas proprie sibi undicent.'

Professor DONALDSON then proceeded to detail the objects which the Society had in view. He said that the societies at present in existence went on to a certain point of excellence, but there they stopped. There were in Scotland a great number of exquisite voices, a great number of people well qualified for a high musical education; but if they were poor they were stopped in their path; if they were rich they could not find the systematic education which they were anxious to pay for, and the consequence was that the country's musical efforts were, speaking generally, characterised by too much of mediocrity. There also prevailed in Edinburgh an idea regarding young singers that "nothing good could come out of Galilee." It had struck many that, as there was a total want of organisation among the musical societies of Scotland, the best plan would be to form a society directed by a council consisting of men interested in music in Edinburgh and Glasgow, Dundee, Aberdeen, and other places in Scotland. Having got this idea, they consulted their legal friends, and they said the right way to proceed was to form a limited liability company that could give them a permanent existence. They had now formed a body which could receive legacies and contributions to be applied for the advancement of music in this country. No member of this company could derive any profit from it; no dividend was allowable; all the money that was contributed must go for the purposes of the society: viz., to encourage public concerts, the systematic education of music, to try to organise the musical profession, to make it a steadfast and well-respected profession; to try, if they had the funds, to establish a widows' fund, and to have an academy which would represent the highest, and teach the highest, musical accomplishment of the company. At the outset of the society it was thought better to exclude professional musicians from the council, but that, of course, was not a final decision. It was thought that in the meantime the public would have more confidence that the men engaged in distributing the money should have no interest in the matter. They might buy or rent a building, and they had had an opportunity of seeing buildings that would suit them, and they found they could perfectly well carry on the academy at £3,000 a year. The academy, they believed, would very soon pay itself, and if more than £3,000 were given to them that would be thrown into scholarships, and thus they would have an opportunity of training poor students. Then the other idea was to have a permanent orchestra for Scotland. Dr. Potts had ascertained that in Edinburgh there were thirty-two parties who could take part in such an orchestra. To bring an orchestra from London for six months in a year would cost £6,000, but it was calculated that by having a native orchestra the cost would be very considerably less. Already the president, the Duke of Buccleuch, had promised £500, and the chairman, the Earl of Rosebery, had signified his intention of giving £500. They might depend upon it the money would be spent in the best possible way for the advancement of musical, choral, and orchestral societies, in union with all parties and in antagonism to none.

Professor DOUGLAS MACLAGAN then moved: "That this meeting approves of the objects of the Scottish Musical Society as now submitted, and in particular of the establishment of an Academy of Music in Edinburgh for Scotland."

The motion was seconded by Lord SHAND, who spoke eloquently of the love for, and appreciation of, music in Scotland; and the resolution having been put to the meeting, was unanimously approved.

Professor CALDERWOOD then moved: "That this meeting considers it desirable that there should be a permanent orchestra in Scotland, and recommends the council to co-operate with the various musical societies throughout Scotland to attain this object." In support of the motion, the Professor said it would have a great educational influence in the country if they secured a really efficient permanent orchestra. They wanted to notice not merely the need for education in music, but very specially education by music, for it was this education which he thought this country very largely needed, and the neglect of which was very much to be regretted by them all. On the other hand, it must be admitted that there was a very marked and obvious growth of musical feeling and interest in the community. It must be matter of the deepest conviction with them that if they could widely extend such influences they would be doing a very great deal indeed towards the education of the country.

Mr. R. VARY CAMPBELL, advocate, seconded the resolution, which, like the previous one, was adopted.

A large and influential meeting for the promotion of the above object has been also held at Glasgow, under the presidency of Lord Reay, when resolutions in favour of the project were unanimously carried.

WE are authorised to state that the arrangements for the Three Choirs Festival at Hereford, commencing on September 12, are in a very forward state, and we hope shortly to be enabled to publish a full detail of the programme. At a meeting of the Executive Committee held on Thursday, the 2nd ult., under the presidency of the Honourable and Very Rev. the Dean of Hereford, the following scheme was submitted and approved: On the Tuesday morning, in the Cathedral, "Elijah"; in the evening, in the Shire Hall, a setting of Collins's "Ode to the Passions," in the form of a Cantata, by Alice Mary Smith (Mrs. Meadows White), and a miscellaneous selection. On Wednesday morning, Handel's "Judas Maccabæus," Symphony in B flat (Beethoven), 137th Psalm (Goetz), and Magnificat (Bach); in the evening, in the Cathedral, "St. Paul." On Thursday morning a new Cantata by Dr. Garrett, entitled "The Shunammite," Mass in C (Beethoven), and "Abraham" (Molière); in the evening a second Miscellaneous Concert in the Shire Hall. On Friday morning Handel's "Messiah," and in the evening a Chamber Concert in the Shire Hall. As at the Festival in 1879, there will be a full cathedral service, with sermon, in aid of the charity, on Tuesday morning. Prayers will be offered before each Oratorio, and the Bishop will pronounce the Blessing after the conclusion of the Oratorio. Engagements have been made with the following artists: Madame Albani, Miss Anna Williams, Madame Patey, Miss Hilda Wilson, Mr. E. Lloyd, Mr. Santley, and Mr. F. King; Leader of the band, Mr. Carrodus, and Conductor, Mr. Langdon Colborne. On the Monday preceding the Festival there will be a rehearsal at the Cathedral in the morning, and at the Shire Hall in the evening.

CONCERTS of classical Chamber Music are becoming so numerous that it is growing more and more difficult to take record of all the work done in this direction. A new series of four concerts given by Herr Carl Weber (pianist), Herr Alexander Kummer (violinist), and M. B. Albert (violinist) was commenced on the 22nd ult. at the Royal Academy Concert Room. An interesting programme was presented, including a Trio in F by Gade (Op. 42); a Prelude and Fugue in E flat, for pianoforte, by Sgambati; Schumann's "Fantasiestücke" for piano and violin; and Beethoven's string Trio in D (Op. 9, No. 2). This selection gives evidence of a praiseworthy desire to travel somewhat out of the beaten track. All the above-mentioned works were excellently performed, the playing of the instrumentalists being characterised by much brilliancy and taste. Madame Isabel Fasset contributed songs by Beethoven and Brahms. The remaining Concerts will be given on Wednesday evenings, the 5th and 19th inst. and May 3, and among the works announced are Goetz's Trio in G minor (Op. 1), Schumann's in the same key (Op. 110), and Brahms's Sonata in E minor, for piano and violoncello.

THE fifteenth annual Concert of the Edinburgh University Musical Society was given on the 24th ult., on which occasion the orchestra was reinforced by oboe, bassoon and horn, from Mr. Hallé's band, whose principal double-bass, Herr Neuirth, was also engaged. The brass was unusually effective. As there were several amateurs among the strings, weakness or inaccuracy was there occasionally noticed. Two Overtures and Mendelssohn's March from "Athalie" were excellently given and much applauded. The chief interest, however, as a local paper says: "Attaches to the work of the students' chorus, partly because of the association of a too long-neglected art with the severer business of college life, and partly because of the features in the programme to be credited to the excellent judgment and taste of Sir Herbert Oakeley. A chorus of male voices is, moreover, a comparative novelty, admitting of vocal effects of peculiar charm. The choir-singing of last night was enjoyable in a high degree; and when it is remembered that the Professor has every year a body of raw material—musically ignorant and vocally unformed—to work with, the result was more than creditable. In accordance with 'use and wont,' the Concert opened with the 'Gaudemus igitur,' the stirring strains of which served to show the presence of a large and sonorous body of tone. The highest point of excellence was perhaps reached in the noble piece of choral writing, 'Freedom,' by Weber, which was transposed and most effectively scored by the Professor. The students in this piece declaimed with breadth and power. Hardly less successful were the renderings of 'The Red-Cross Knight' and a choral song, 'Omnia vincit Amor,' by the Professor. The latter is a tuneful and vigorous composition, in which the humour of the old song is happily caught up. His arrangements of Scotch melodies have for some years past formed not the least enjoyable numbers in the programmes, and the two given on the 24th ult. were 'Cam ye by Athole' and 'Auld Lang Syne.' Two sets of pianoforte solos were contributed by young students. The first gave a creditable account of Schumann's delightful 'Jagdlied,' and the playing of the second, in a Mazurka by the Polish composer Scharwenka, evinced both intelligent reading and considerable digital power. Another student, possessing a fine baritone voice, sang a Handelian air with an excellent command of its florid effects, and two songs, modestly entitled Bagatelles, by the Professor. The first of these, entitled 'Partings,' is set in a style of appropriate simplicity, with much melodic charm; the second, 'Contrasts,' seemed if anything treated with greater boldness and originality, and is an impressive song. Both were artistically given. Miss Wakefield's contributions, which elicited considerable enthusiasm, were from Gluck's 'Orfeo' and Mozart's 'L'Addio.'" Part of the great work effected by this Society of Sir Herbert Oakeley's is the following of its example at Aberdeen, St. Andrew's, and Glasgow Universities, which now have their musical associations.

THE following letter has been addressed to the Right Hon. A. J. Mundella, M.P., Vice-President of the Council, by Dr. G. A. Macfarren, Professor of Music in the University of Cambridge, and Principal of the Royal Academy of Music:—

(Copy.)—7, Hamilton Terrace, N.W. Sir,—I am told it is contemplated by the Council of Education to authorise the use of the so-called Tonic Sol-fa system of musical notation in elementary schools throughout the country, and, as I think strongly on this subject, I trust you will allow me to offer my carefully formed opinion for your consideration. I think the system to be bad, because it hinders the acquisition of a sense of pitch, which is a most valuable quality for musicians; because it confounds the characteristics of keys, which have distinctly different harmonic derivation; and because many of its signs are so vague that persons familiar with the system often mistake them. I think it to be inconvenient, because it can only apply to music up to a very definite limit; because persons who have learnt from this system have greater difficulty to acquire the ordinary technicalities of music than those who begin to study the art from the standard notation; and because persons who read only from this system are unable to participate in musical performances with those who read from the usual alphabet. I think the adoption of the system unjust, since imposing on the poor an expenditure of time and money which they can never turn to any practical account, and placing them at a disadvantage with the rich, who are able to read musical publications of all countries; whereas the use of this exceptional notation is confined to a sect in England and some of its Colonies alone.—I have the honour to be, sir, faithfully yours, G. A. MACFARREN.

WE are indebted to a correspondent at Preston for the following information respecting the progress of music in that town: "The Preston Choral Society, since its resuscitation in 1877, has been in a flourishing condition, though labouring under great disadvantages, the chief one being the want of a hall of sufficient capacity to ensure a financial success upon occasions when high-class and expensive concerts have been given. The Society is now able to look forward to a new and brighter era in its history. Not only is there a magnificent hall in course of erection, one that in capacity, arrangement, and beauty of architecture will be second to none in Lancashire, but through the gift of a townsman, Mr. John Dewhurst, a large and costly organ is being placed in the building. The approaching celebration of the Guild Merchant, which takes place in September—an occasion of great festivity, occurring once in twenty years—has brought the Society into considerable prominence; for the Corporation, which has the entire conduct of the festivities, has unreservedly placed in the hands of the Committee of the Choral Society the arrangements for the organisation of a choir to take part in the grand musical festival which it is intended shall be given. Mr. Charles Hallé has been engaged to conduct five concerts, and among the names of eminent artists who are to take part are the following: Madame Albani, Madame Trebelli, Mr. E. Lloyd, Mr. Maas, Mr. Santley, and Mr. Hilton. The works to be given are 'Elijah' (Mendelssohn), 'Faust' (Berlioz), 'Stabat Mater' (Rossini), and 'Hymn of Praise' (Mendelssohn). Two of the concerts will be of a miscellaneous character. The choir already exceeds 250 members, and, under the conductorship of Signor Riseigari, whose ability is so well-established and widely known, there is every promise that such a degree of excellence will be attained as to ensure a very great success. Under these encouraging circumstances—of necessity so briefly stated—it is felt that the Preston Choral Society, as a musical institution, may be the means of contributing an important share to the performances to be held during the year."

THE second of the present series of Denmark Hill Concerts was given at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell, on Friday evening, the 10th ult., the rentrée of Herr Joachim imparting especial interest to the occasion. The famous violinist—who, we need scarcely say, met with an enthusiastic reception—played Bach's Prelude and Fugue in G minor, and, responding to the prolonged applause elicited by a splendid performance, presented the same composer's Sarabande and Double. Beethoven's Quartet in E minor (Op. 59, No. 2), received a fine interpretation at the hands of MM. Joachim, Ries, Zerbini, and Piatti, of whom the first and last named were associated with Miss Agnes Zimmermann in Schumann's Trio in G minor. Miss Zimmermann also executed, as her solo, Chopin's Ballade in A flat. Miss Blandy was the vocalist. At the third Concert, on the 24th ult., Herr Joachim again occupied the post of leading violinist, and in that capacity was heard, in conjunction with his well-known confrères, MM. Ries, Zerbini, and Piatti, in Brahms's Quartet in A minor and Haydn's in G minor (Op. 76, No. 1). Chopin's Ballade in G minor found an able exponent in Mdle. Marie Krebs, who also sustained the pianoforte part in Schumann's Märchenbilder, the violoncello being played by Signor Piatti. Nos. 1, 3, 20, 21 of the popular Hungarian dances, and, as an encore, a Scherzo of Spohr, were contributed by Mdle. Krebs and Herr Joachim. Songs by Handel and Weber were sung with decided success by Miss Brooks. Mr. Zerbini accompanied at each Concert.

THE second and concluding portion of Mr. C. Dowdeswell's essay upon "Richard Wagner and his Art," was delivered at Clapham on Thursday, the 16th ult., before a large and appreciative audience. The essay comprised an admirable and exhaustive analysis of "Lohengrin" and "Tristan and Isolde," with characteristic illustrations, both vocal and instrumental. The fact that the lecturer succeeded in thoroughly engaging the attention and sympathies of his listeners, and in imparting to them some of the enthusiasm he himself felt, speaks volumes for the excellence of his essay. The illustrations were rendered by Miss E. Plummer, Miss J. Marshall, Mr. J. Tapley, and Mr. W. C. Ward in a manner deserving much praise.

A CONCERT was given at St. James's Hall, on Tuesday, the 7th ult., by Herr Bonawitz, in aid of the funds of Princess Frederica's Convalescent Home. The concert-giver did not rely entirely upon the goodness of the cause for support, but wisely provided an entertainment that, under any circumstances, would be attractive. In addition to a band and chorus, the well-known vocalists, Miss Annie Marriott, Miss Helen D'Alton, Mr. W. Shakespeare, and Signor Foli were engaged; and the instrumentalists were supplemented by members of the Brousil family. The first part of the programme was occupied by a Requiem composed by Herr Bonawitz, the performance of which formed the distinctive feature of the Concert. Apart from the fact that the theme has been set by the greatest musicians the world has ever seen, there is in the solemnity attaching to the subject a cause for distrusting powers otherwise successfully proved. The work was listened to with respectful appreciation, and the many parts deserving of special recognition were duly placed to the composer's credit. His talents were perhaps subsequently made more conspicuous in movements of his Quintet in G minor. The concert-giver appeared also as solo pianist, playing works by Schumann and Chopin.

A MUSICAL Festival will be held at Chester on June 7, 8, and 9, which promises to be of the highest degree of interest, although no positive novelty is in the scheme of the performances. The Oratorios in the Cathedral will be: on Wednesday morning (the opening day), Mendelssohn's "Elijah"; Thursday morning, Sullivan's "Prodigal Son" and a Symphony by Beethoven; Thursday afternoon, Spohr's "Last Judgment"; Friday morning, Haydn's "Creation"; and Friday afternoon, Sir W. S. Bennett's "Woman of Samaria." On Wednesday evening, in the Music Hall, Handel's "Acis and Galatea" and a miscellaneous selection will be given; on Thursday evening, Dr. Bridge's Cantata "Boadicea" will be performed; and there will be a Ballad Concert on Friday evening. The artists engaged are Madame Marie Roze, Miss Mary Davies, Miss Annie Marriott, Madame Patey, Madame Mudie-Bolingbroke, Mr. Maas, Mr. Henry Guy, Mr. F. King, and Mr. Robert Hilton; leader of the band, Herr Straus; Organist, Dr. Roland Rogers; Conductor, J. C. Bridge, Esq., M.A., B. Mus., Organist of Chester Cathedral. The Festival is in aid of the Cathedral Restoration Fund, under the authority of the Very Rev. the Dean.

A CONCERT, under the patronage of the Duchess of Leeds, was given by the South Kensington Ladies' Choir, in aid of the Lily Mission, Notting Hill, on the 21st ult., at the Vicarage Room, Kensington. Oberthür's Cantata "The Red-Cross Knight" was performed, the principal solos being taken by Madame Worrell and Miss Spenser Jones. The choir also sang H. Smart's part-song "The Honey-Bee" and Schumann's "Gipsy Life"—arranged for ladies' voices by Arthur O'Leary—with great precision and certainty, showing the excellent training they had received from Mrs. Arthur O'Leary, under whose direction the Concert took place. Lady Benedict, who was warmly received, kindly gave her assistance, and played Pappendiek's "Minuet" and Chopin's "Valse Posthume." Madame Worrell, Miss S. Jones, and Mr. W. Bolton contributed several songs with effect. The Concert concluded with Herr Oberthür's arrangement for harp and piano of airs from "Lucrezia Borgia," excellently played by the composer and Miss Frances Smith. Miss Foskett and Mr. E. Fowles assisted in accompanying.

On the 2nd ult. a successful Concert in aid of the Organ Restoration Fund was given in the schoolroom by the choir of St. Thomas's Square Chapel, Hackney, under the conductorship of Mr. A. A. Hillam, organist and choirmaster of the chapel. The programme included Schubert's "Song of Miriam," the soprano solo of which was well sung by Miss Lavinia Walker; the Allegretto, Minuetto, and Presto from Haydn's "Military Symphony," performed by a small band, under the leadership of Mr. J. F. Borschitzky; Bishop's glee, "Where art thou, beam of light?" a Trio by Franz Abt, for violin, violoncello, and piano; and Auber's Overture to "Le Cheval de Bronze." The pieces were much applauded, and their rendering reflected great credit on the executants.

THE Athenæum Amateur Musical Society held its sixth annual Concert on Wednesday, the 1st ult., at the Athenæum, Camden Road. The programme included Handel's March, "Scipio," Larghetto from Beethoven's Symphony No. 2, Mozart's Overture, "Die Zauberflöte," the unfinished Symphony in B minor (Schubert), the Adagio from Mendelssohn's Scotch Symphony, and the quaint "Danse de Czechs" (Kottaun). The Romanza and Rondo, from Mozart's Concerto in D minor, was well played by Mr. Frank Manly, who in the Rondo introduced the Cadenza by Reinecke, and was most deservedly applauded. Songs were contributed by Miss Damian and Mr. Lance Calkin; and a duet by Doppler, for flute and oboe, was excellently rendered by Messrs. Rooke and Varness. Mr. David Beardwell was the Conductor, and special praise is due to him for the energy he has shown in training this body of amateurs to undertake the performance of such a classical selection.

THE Members of the Grosvenor Choral Society gave their monthly Concert at the Grosvenor Hall on the 17th ult., when the "Stabat Mater" was very well performed. The soloists were Madame Worrell, Miss Emma Buer, Mr. Charles Chiley, and Mr. Henry Baker. The programme also included a Communion Service with orchestral accompaniment, entitled "Cantio Dominica," composed by the Rev. C. J. Ridsdale, B.A., and conducted by the composer, the solo part being rendered by Miss Buer. The work was much appreciated by the large audience. The other items were Handel's "Let the bright seraphim," sung by Madame Worrell, trumpet obbligato by Mr. F. McGrath, the "War March of the Priests" ("Athalie"), and the Larghetto movement of Beethoven's second Symphony by the band. Mr. G. R. Egerton conducted; the leader of the band being Mr. S. D. Grimson, and Mr. D. Woodhouse accompanying on the American organ.

THE first season of the Grand German Opera and Wagner Cylcus will commence at the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, on May 18, with "Lohengrin." There will be two series of performances, during which "Lohengrin" will be given four times, "Tannhäuser" three, "Fliegende Holländer" three, "Meistersinger" four, "Tristan und Isolde" three, "Fidelio" three, and "Cosi fan Tutte" and "Euryanthe" each twice. The artists engaged for these performances are chiefly from the Hamburg Opera House. The chorus has been selected from the best voices of the Royal Opera Houses in Hamburg, Hanover, Schwerin, &c. The mise-en-scène, costumes, &c., designed and executed in Germany, are said to be of the most complete description. The orchestra will be that of Herr Franke's "Richter Concerts," and Herr Hans Richter will conduct all the performances.

THE dates of the fifth season of the Richter Concerts are announced as follows: May 5, 8, 15, 22; June 2, 5, 12, 19, and 26. The programmes will include several interesting novelties. At the first Concert Brahms's new Concerto for piano and orchestra will be given, the solo part to be played by M. Eugene D'Albert; and at the third Liszt's "Graner Messe." At the fourth, we shall have Sucher's Cantata "Das Waldfräulein," for solo and chorus. We are also promised a new Symphony in D by Dvorák (dedicated to Herr Richter), and other important works, which will be duly announced. All the Beethoven Symphonies, with the exception of the first and second, will be given, and also the "Missa Solennis." Herr E. Schiever will be leader, Herr Frantzen chorus-director, and Herr Hans Richter Conductor.

A POPULAR Ballad Concert was given in the Foresters' Hall, Clerkenwell, on Monday, February 27, which was highly successful. The vocalists were Madame Liebhart, Miss Emily Paget, Miss Francis Hipwell, Mr. H. L. Fulkerson and Signor Villa; Mr. Radcliffe, solo flautist. Several part-songs were well rendered by the National Temperance Choir, under the conductorship of Mr. Birch.

THE third concert of the Tottenham Musical Society took place at the High Cross Congregational Schoolroom on Thursday, the 9th ult., before a large audience. The programme consisted of part-songs, duets, solos, and instrumental pieces by the orchestra, all of which were highly successful. Mr. Fred. S. Oram conducted.

A MISCELLANEOUS Concert, under the direction of Mr. J. R. Griffiths, was given on the 13th ult., in Hawkstone Hall, Westminster Road. The programme included a performance on the piano and harmonium by Mr. J. R. Griffiths and Mr. E. R. Terry of the following pieces: "Lieder ohne worte," Op. 38 (Mendelssohn); "Danse Pompeuse" (Cellier); "Nocturne," Op. 15, No. 3 (Chopin); and "Funeral March of a Marionette" (Gounod). The second part consisted of the Cantata "The Jackdaw of Rheims" (George Fox), the solo parts in which were well sustained by Miss Collins, Miss Hellis, and Messrs. W. Monk and George Whillier. Mr. Edwin Shute and Mr. E. R. Terry presided at the piano and harmonium respectively, and the choruses were ably rendered by the Christ Church Choir. Mr. J. R. Griffiths conducted.

DURING the period devoted to the Electric Exhibition at the Crystal Palace, three Concerts have been given by Mr. W. Lemare's Choir, in the Concert Room. Barnett's "Ancient Mariner," with Madame Worrell, Miss Marian Burton, Mr. Guy, and Mr. J. T. Hutchinson; Mendelssohn's "Loreley" and Clay's "Lalla Rookh," with Miss Hilda Coward, Miss Herring, Miss Atkins, Mr. Guy, and Mr. Bevan; and Cowen's "Rose Maiden," with Miss Catherine Penna, Miss Marian Burton, Mr. Guy, and Mr. H. Cross, were very satisfactorily performed; and Mr. Lemare conducted throughout with care and judgment. Mr. Cowen's Cantata "St. Ursula," composed for the last Norwich Festival, will be performed shortly at St. James's Hall, for the first time in London, by Mr. Lemare's Choir.

THE 158th monthly Concert of the St. George's Glee Union was held at the Pimlico Rooms on the 3rd ult. The first part of the programme consisted of a miscellaneous selection, and the second of Sir W. Sterndale Bennett's "Woman of Samaria." The soloists were Madame Osborne Williams, Miss Kate Hardy, Mr. Henry Parkin, and Mr. Thurely Beale, all of whom were much appreciated. The choruses were well sustained by a choir of about seventy performers. The accompaniments were efficiently played by Miss Edith Mahon and Mr. F. R. Kinkeel at the piano, and Mr. E. R. Terry at the harmonium. Mr. Joseph Monday conducted.

AT St. Margaret Pattens, Rood Lane, after Evensong on Passion Sunday, Rossini's "Stabat Mater" was sung to the original text in an excellent manner by the choir, under the direction of Mr. Stedman. The solos were taken by Masters Frank Tebbut and Probert, Mr. Chilley and Mr. Franklin Clive; Mr. Theodore Drew (the newly appointed Organist) presiding at the organ. On Good Friday Gounod's "Seven Last Words" will be sung, and on Easter Sunday Schubert's Mass in C. One of the special features of the Lenten Services has been the singing each Sunday of the Mass of Palestrina, "Æterna Christi munera."

THE Members of the Belle Sauvage Glee Union gave the last of their series of monthly Concerts for this season at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet Street, on the 7th ult., which was numerously attended and highly successful. The principal items in the programme were "Glory and Love," and Adolphe Adam's "Comrades in arms." Among the vocalists were Mr. F. Crowest, Mr. Barton, Mr. H. E. Vickers, and Mr. Syckelmoore. Mr. G. F. Bruce was the accompanist, and contributed two pianoforte solos; and Mr. Isom and Mr. Mackadam gave a duet for flute and pianoforte.

THE organ at the Bow and Bromley Institute, recently enlarged and improved by Messrs. Brindley and Foster, of Sheffield, was reopened on Saturday, the 4th ult., by Mr. E. H. Turpin, Hon. Sec. of the College of Organists, who expressed his great satisfaction with the instrument. The Recital was a decided success, the hall being crammed. Miss Mary Davies kindly gave her services, and sang several songs; and Mr. E. H. Turpin displayed the resources of the instrument by a well-chosen programme of varied styles, from Bach to Guilmant.

AT a special service to be held in Westminster Abbey on Wednesday in Passion Week (5th inst.), Dr. Bridge's Oratorio "Mount Moriah" is to be given, with full orchestra and an augmented choir.

REPORTS have reached us of the great success of the Cantata entitled "Magna Charta," the composition of Mr. Henry Coward, which was produced at the Albert Hall, Sheffield, on Shrove Tuesday. Mr. Coward is well known as the Conductor of several Choral Societies in Sheffield; and the cordial manner in which his work was received, and the eulogistic notices of the local press, lead us to hope that his Cantata may shortly have a hearing in the metropolis. The choruses are spoken of in the highest terms of praise, a Prayer, especially, having created a marked effect.

MR. G. E. HEDGES was the Organist at the popular Organ Recital held in Wycliffe Chapel, Philpot Street, on Monday, February 27. The programme included Mendelssohn's Organ Sonata, No. 1; Handel's Concerto, No. 4 (1st movement); Mozart's Overture, "Die Zauberflöte"; Chipp's variations on the "Harmonious Blacksmith"; and Dawre's "Offertoire" in F (encored). Mrs. James Hughes was the solo pianist; and the vocalists were Miss Sara Hughes and Miss Mary Beare. Mr. George Merritt was an efficient Conductor, and Mrs. James Hughes ably accompanied on the pianoforte.

MISS JOSEPHINE AGABEG gave a Concert on Tuesday evening, the 14th ult., at the Steinway Hall, when she selected Mendelssohn's Fantasia in F sharp minor, to substantiate merits formerly revealed. She also joined Messrs. Ondricek and Libotton in Beethoven's Trio in C minor, and in all distinguished herself. The violoncello-playing of M. Libotton was very much enjoyed by the audience, as was the violin solo by Mr. Ondricek. Mr. James Sauvage sang Gounod's "Valley" with considerable power of voice and emphatic elocution. Mr. Ganz conducted, in addition to joining Miss Agabeg in a duet for two pianos.

THE series of Popular Concerts held under the auspices of the East Finchley Choral Society was brought to a close on Friday, the 3rd ult., with a miscellaneous Concert at the Lecture Hall. During the season Mendelssohn's Cantata "Hear my Prayer," Locke's Music to "Macbeth," Eaton Fanning's "Song of the Vikings," &c., have been excellently rendered by the Society. A feature in the programme was the performance of several glees by Messrs. Jeayes, Jones, Salk, and Snell. Miss Jones is the able accompanist to the Society, and Mr. Herbert Jeayes, choir-master of Holy Trinity, the Conductor.

AN interesting lecture on "Surrey Chapel: Its Music and Musical Associations" was given on Tuesday evening, February 28, in the Surrey Chapel Lecture Hall, by Mr. J. R. Griffiths (Organist of Christ Church, Westminster Road). The lecturer traced the music in connection with the chapel from the opening in 1783 to the close (1876), and also gave a brief sketch of its early organist, Benjamin Jacob. Specimens of the old tunes (including "Denmark," "Cheshunt," &c.), from the collections edited by Jacob and Vincent Novello, were well rendered by the Christ Church choir.

A VERY successful series of Free Concerts on Thursday evenings is now being given at the City Temple, under the direction of Mr. E. Minshall, Organist and director of the music of the church. The audience usually numbers about 3000. Amongst the artists who have already taken part in these Concerts are Miss Annie Marriott, Madame Enriquez, Miss Beebe, Miss Marianne Fenna, Miss Jeanie Rosse, Miss Spenser Jones, Mr. Arthur Oswald, Mr. S. Webb, Mr. Egbert Roberts, Mr. Dudley Thomas, Mr. Piercy, Mr. Franklin Clive, and Mr. Lucas Williams.

THE choir of the Kyrle Society, under the direction of Mr. Malcolm Lawson, gave a performance of the Oratorio of "St. Paul," in St. James's Church, Ratcliff, on Wednesday, the 15th ult. The soloists were Miss Agnes Allen, Miss Felicia Howard, Mr. Reginald Groome, Mr. Albert Orme, and Mr. C. Harben. Mr. E. H. Turpin presided at the organ.

A GRAND Concert in aid of the Endowment Fund of the proposed Royal College of Music will be given on May 13, in the Floral Hall, Covent Garden, by the Royal Amateur Orchestral Society, of which the Queen and the Prince of Wales are patrons, and the Duke of Edinburgh is President.

THE second Concert this season of the Clapham Choral Society was given on Tuesday, February 28, at Belmont Hall. The programme, which was admirably carried out, consisted of Schubert's "Song of Miriam," Spohr's "God, Thou art great," and a selection of glees, part-songs, and vocal pieces. The soloists were Misses Alice Colman, M. Fenna, Josephine Cravino, Messrs. Tapley, S. Parker Smith, and Walter Dowdeswell. The progress of the Society (which is only in its second year) reflects great credit upon the Conductor, Mr. Clement Colman.

At an amateur performance of the "Merchant of Venice," to be given at St. George's Hall for a charitable purpose during the present month, Mr. Arthur Sullivan's Music to the Masque in the second act will be performed, for the first time in London in connection with the play, by a small professional orchestra. For the same performance Signor Pinsuti has written a setting, for male voices, of the song, "Tell me, where is fancy bred?" and Mr. Berthold Tours has also composed a part-song to be introduced into the fifth act.

MESSRS. SCHULZ-CURTIS announce the fourth season of Symphony Concerts at St. James's Hall on the following dates: May 1, 12, 18; June 8, 15, and 22. Mr. Charles Hallé will be Conductor, and Herr Ludwig Straus leader. Professor A. Wilhelmj has promised to make his rentrée in London at these Concerts after his long absence in America and Australia. The programmes will be composed of standard works. The proceeds of these six Symphony Concerts will be devoted to the funds of the Royal College of Music.

THE annual Concert by the choirboys of the church of St. Botolph, Aldersgate, was given on Tuesday evening, the 7th ult., at the South Place Institute, Finsbury, when Schubert's "Song of Miriam" was excellently rendered, the solos being ably sung by Master Akerman, Master Barnes, and Master Ludbrook. The second part was miscellaneous. Miss Phœbe Stamp was the pianoforte accompanist, and Mr. J. R. Murray presided at the harmonium, and also conducted.

MR. EDWARD HALL, assisted by several artists, gave a Concert at Holloway Hall on the 7th ult. The concert-giver's songs were much applauded, Parker's "Three Tokens" being encored. Several other pieces were redemanded; and the instrumental solos included some pianoforte pieces by Mr. Farquharson Walenn, Novello Scholar at the National Training School for Music. The conductors were Mr. Walenn and Mr. Foster.

MR. GANZ announces his usual series of five Orchestral Concerts, to commence on Saturday, the 22nd inst. We are promised as novelties Liszt's Symphony to Dante's "Divinia Commedia," for orchestra and female chorus, and a new Symphony in D by Sgambati, in five movements. Berlioz' "Symphonie Fantastique" will be repeated, and possibly a performance of Gluck's "Iphigenia in Tauris" will be given.

WE regret to announce the death of Madame Rudersdorff, which occurred at Boston, U.S., on February 26. Although long resident in America, the name of this vocalist is well known in London, where, indeed, as an essentially dramatic singer she mainly earned her fame. For many years Madame Rudersdorff has devoted herself to tuition.

THE Excelsior Choral Society gave a successful performance of Cowen's "Rose Maiden," and a miscellaneous selection, on the 15th ult., at the Lecture Hall, Aldersgate Street. The solos were excellently rendered by the Misses Philips, Miss Dawkes, and Messrs. J. Hilton Carter and F. Knight. Mr. Whiter was the accompanist, and Mr. Alfred Thompson conducted.

THE first of a series of Organ Recitals was given by Mr. Fountain Meen at Bethnal Green Road Chapel on February 25. The programme was highly interesting, and the performance thoroughly appreciated by a large audience. Madame Ada Patterson was the vocalist.

MR. W. A. MARSON has resigned his post of Honorary Organist of Christ Church, Stafford, after a period of twenty-one years' service.

THE Athenæum says: "The efforts to float the Royal Italian Opera Company (Limited), which had been suspended for a time, have lately been resumed, and the public may shortly anticipate an official announcement relative to the scheme, together with the prospectus of the forthcoming season, which will commence on Tuesday, April 18."

MR. RUSSELL LOCHNER gave his annual Concert on the 16th ult. at Lancaster Hall, Notting Hill. He was assisted by Miss de Fonblanque, Miss Damian, and Mr. Arthur Oswald (vocalists); Mr. Oberthur (harp), Mr. Otto Booth (violin), and Mr. Theodore Drew and Mr. E. H. Birch, Mus. B. (accompanists). The hall was crowded.

By desire of the Princess of Wales, a Concert in aid of the West End Hospital for Diseases of the Nervous System, Welbeck Street, will be given on May 20 in the Albert Hall, by the Royal Amateur Orchestral Society. Both the Princess of Wales and the Duchess of Edinburgh have expressed their intention of being present on the occasion.

In a Congregation, holden on the 2nd ult. at Oxford, Mr. A. H. Mann, B. Mus., New College, Oxford (Organist of King's College, Cambridge), whose exercise was performed in the Sheldonian Theatre on the previous day, was admitted to the degree of Doctor in Music.

MR. ALFRED A. PHYSICK gave an Organ Recital at St. Mark's Church, Camberwell, on Wednesday evening, the 22nd ult., which was followed by a special Evensong, the preacher being the Rev. Arthur Brinckman, of All Saints', Margaret Street.

WE are informed that the Committee of the South Shropshire Church Choir Association have requested Mr. C. L. Williams, Mus. Bac. (Organist of Llandaff Cathedral), to compose a Te Deum and Benedictus for their Festival, which will be held in the summer.

THE Lothbury Male Voice Choir (Conductor, Mr. T. B. Evison) announces a Concert in the Great Hall, Cannon Street Hotel, in aid of the funds of the British Home for Incurables, Clapham Road, on Thursday, the 20th inst.

REVIEWS.

Three Cavalier Songs. For Baritone Solo and Male Chorus. From the "Dramatic Lyrics," by Robert Browning. 1. Marching along. 2. King Charles. 3. Boot, Saddle, to Horse, and away. Set to Music by C. Villiers Stanford. [Boosey and Co.]

WE are getting so weary of vocal music written for no particular voice, and procurable in any key which may suit the compass of the purchaser, that it becomes quite refreshing to find an artist of Mr. Stanford's eminence composing three songs and boldly expressing upon the title-pages that they are "for baritone solo." No poetry could be better for his purpose than Browning's "Dramatic Lyrics"; and we congratulate him upon the happy manner in which he has "set to music" the stirring words of the author he has chosen. In the first song the defying spirit of the verses is most vividly reflected in the music; and the effect of the marked opening phrase constantly repeated in chorus is extremely good. No. 2, although scarcely so much to our mind, is a well-written song, with some excellent points in the choral portions. The phrase commencing "King Charles, and who'll do him right now?" is set to notes which add powerful force to the question, and the accompaniments throughout are thoroughly in keeping with the character of the song. No. 3, written in the bass clef for the solo voice, is perhaps the most effective of the set, the galloping of the horses and bustle of starting, in the pianoforte part, giving much life to the vocal portions. The three songs will be a real boon to baritone singers, to whose attention we cordially commend them.

Prelude in B flat major and Scherzino in G minor. Composed for the Pianoforte by Edward Hecht. [Forsyth Brothers.]

WE can scarcely imagine that so large a number of compositions in classical form as we now see daily issued from the music-publishers could possibly appear were there not a public ready and willing to accept them. That there are good, bad, and indifferent works of this class, we admit; but it is well that students should be accustomed to perform pieces the structure of which, as well as the passages they contain, should give material for reflection; and those who have the power, therefore, should also have the will to disseminate such music as widely as possible. Mr. Hecht's name is sufficiently well known to serve as a guarantee for the artistic worth of any production from his pen; and although the two pieces before us are comparative trifles, we can conscientiously recommend them to the notice of pianoforte students. The Prelude, based upon an extremely simple phrase, may be presumed, as its title implies, to create a desire for something of more importance; and, whether the composer intended it or not, will serve as a fitting preparation for the Scherzino. This movement, though somewhat restless in tonality, under the hands of one who can grasp the passages with sufficient firmness will assuredly prove attractive. That some of the extended arpeggios in the left hand will demand careful practice seems acknowledged by the fact of the author's fingering most of them. The change into the tonic major, in which key the composition ends, is an effective point.

The Singers from the Sea. Cantata. Poetry by Hugh Conway. Music by A. H. Behrend.
[Robert Cocks and Co.]

"THEN stood before the Queen a quire of Singers from the Sea—and if their rhymes were uncouth, certes, their voices were sweet, and the Queen gave unto them the Prize." This, extracted from the description of the Court Revels, 1472, is placed at the commencement of Mr. Behrend's Cantata, and determines the character of the work. Opening with a melodious and well-written chorus, in which the singers introduce themselves to the Queen, we have a number of solos, a trio, and choral recitatives, all of which are written with studied simplicity, and consequently well adapted for amateur performance. Amongst these we may cite for special commendation No. 4, "The Siren rocked," for contralto, the effect of which is heightened by an elegant arpeggio accompaniment; an unpretentious but tuneful ballad, No. 6, "Margery Rose," for soprano; and the trio, No. 8, "This is the song of the sea," in which the alternate syncopated and flowing accompaniment is happily sympathetic with the words. The poetry is refined and well adapted for musical setting. Whether the writing down to amateurs is beneficial to the spread of the art may be a matter seriously to be pondered; but the bright side of the question is that probably "drawing-room Cantatas," even of the simplest kind, may gradually lead our lady amateurs to the study of something better.

The Rudiments of Music: An Introductory Text-Book. By James C. Culwick. [Dublin: E. Ponsonby; London: Simpkin, Marshall and Co.]

ALTHOUGH books on the Rudiments of Music surround us on all sides, a good word must be said for this one, the plan of which has at least some novelty. The work is divided into two parts—the first, especially designed for pupils of tender years, merely stating facts in as simple language as possible; and the second containing an explanation of several points which, as the author tells us in his preface, would be hardly suitable for young children or for those who open the subject for the first time. We are bound to say that, on the whole, this method is exceedingly well carried out. The formation of the major and minor scales, the origin and place of the clefs, the reason for the use of accidentals, and other important elementary matters, are very clearly shown; but we cannot quite agree with the assertion that a certain number of measures of simple triple time make up compound time. The fact is that, having no single sign to represent a division of three, we dot a sign which represents two, and thus are enabled to write our bars in divisions of threes. Compound time, then, is nothing more than moving in dotted notes, the effect of the dot in this case not being to lengthen, but to divide the notes into three. The second part contains some well-considered observations upon the more elementary portion; and even the compass of instruments, and form in composition, are touched upon.

The Moorland Witch. A Dramatic Cantata. Poetry by David Herbert, M.A. Music by Robert M'Hardy.
[Edinburgh: Hamilton and Müller.]

IN the opening chorus of this work the wedding bells are requested by the assembled guests to "care unwrinkle," and "ring off sadness." The following lines describe the pastoral scene around:—

Carols loud the lark and fealty,
Busy birds are chirping sweetly,
Meadows wave their wealth benignly,
Tranquil cattle browse supinely.

The hero, in tenderly addressing the heroine, speaks of the "burden of a love lighted," and also reminds her of an "ungentle shove" which she may have occasionally had to bear. Should the singers in the Cantata, therefore, betray the fault, which is said to be so common with amateurs, of not letting the audience hear the words, we scarcely think in this case it will prove detrimental to the effect of the composition. Mr. M'Hardy's music is, however, a proof that a composer who does not feel inspired by his libretto can at least successfully battle with its defects, for, although his setting of the text is unpretentious, it is melodious, vocal, and musicianlike in its treatment throughout. We may especially commend the soprano solo, "Loyal love"; "The Appeal" (an expressive bassolo), and a simple Andante, "The Allegory," concluding with a brief chorus. It is announced that the orchestral parts are published; and, by the frequent indications of the instruments for which passages are written, we can imagine that the orchestration forms an important portion of the composition. The pianoforte arrangement, however, is good, and fairly under the hands of a moderately advanced performer.

Supplemental Tunes to Popular Hymns. Edited by Edward Husband. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

WHEN hymns have been well set, we are not much disposed to favour new settings. This, however, is merely a matter of opinion; and were this theory general we should doubtless lose many valuable compositions. In the above collection, for instance, there are excellent specimens of this kind of music, namely, No. 6—to the words, "Over the beautiful Bethlehem hills"—a kind of carol, and No. 17, "Sleep on, beloved one"—for the burial of the dead—both being sweet and expressive melodies. No. 10 also deserves notice, as being well adapted for processional purposes, and as the work has reached the third edition, no doubt this tune is already popular. There are many others we should like to name, but space will not permit. At the end of the book is added a short service for those at sea, intended for use in churches during a storm, the usefulness of which is very apparent.

The Curfew Bell. Song. Words by Longfellow. Composed by Allis Gower. [Metzler and Co.]

THERE is much character in this song, but the melody is scarcely attractive enough to compensate for the monotony of the accompaniment. The dominant usually represents the "bell," both in vocal and instrumental pieces; but here it is the key-note, so that we have the triad and 6-4 on the tonic somewhat too often. Amateurs, however, who happen to possess some dramatic feeling as well as voice may create an effect with this trifle, for Longfellow's words, even well spoken, become music; and the composer's task, therefore, is half-accomplished by the poet.

FOREIGN NOTES.

THE Wagner literature, voluminous as it already is, has of late been rapidly augmenting. In glancing over our weekly batches of foreign music journals we scarcely meet with a number which does not contain an article specially devoted to the reformer's career, or to one or the other of his music-dramas. Richard Pohl, in an able article headed "Das 'Parsifal'-Jahr" (Neue Zeitschrift für Musik, No. 13), points out the enormously increased interest manifested by the public generally in Wagner's music-dramas since the Bayreuth performances of the "Nibelungen" tetralogy, not omitting, of course, to quote the forthcoming dual performances of the master's operas in the English metropolis, and the successful propaganda made for his music by the leading concert institutions in the French capital. As regards the more advanced followers of a movement which thirty years ago claimed for itself a "future" that is so obviously nearing its consummation in the present, their interest is, of course, centered in the approaching first production of "Parsifal" at Bayreuth. Hence detailed analyses of the musical structure of the opera, with its tissue of all-important characteristic motivi, are being published in Berlin periodicals (notably the Berlin Musik-Welt and the Allgemeine Deutsche Musik Zeitung), while yet the only available representative of the work—the pianoforte score—is in the printers' hands! This fact, due allowance being made for the greatly increased facilities of modern journalism, is, we believe, entirely without parallel in musico-dramatic history.

Previous to his return to Bayreuth from his Italian sojourn Richard Wagner will, it is stated, pay a visit to Athens, in order to study the scenery for a new musico-drama dealing with a subject taken from Greek antiquity.

As a consequence of the recent catastrophe at the Vienna Ring Theatre, Commissions have been appointed in all parts of Germany to examine into the state of every theatre, with a view to averting a similar calamity. Among the buildings which have passed muster may be mentioned the National (Richard Wagner) Theatre of Bayreuth. Intending visitors to the famous Bavarian town to witness the performance of "Parsifal" during the present summer will be interested in hearing that the Commissioners have pronounced the Richard Wagner Theatre "to present, as regards the safety both of the executive artists and the spectators, the example of a model building; the exits being, moreover, so numerous and so practically distributed that the theatre may be emptied in less than a minute and a half."

Gluck's opera "Alceste" was performed at the Berlin Royal Opera on the 4th ult. The work has been newly mounted, and was greatly appreciated by a numerous and critical audience.

At the Court Theatre of Dresden a private performance of Heinrich Hofmann's opera "Aennchen von Tharau" took place recently in the presence of the King and other members of the Royal family of Saxony. The executive vocalists, including those of the chorus, consisted entirely of amateurs—members of the aristocracy—assisted by the orchestra of Herr Mannsfeldt, and the performance is said to have been a very satisfactory one.

Rubinstein's opera "The Demon" was recently performed for the first time at the Stadt-Theater of Cologne under the personal direction of the composer, and met with great success.

The following works will be included in the programme of the forthcoming Music Festival of the Lower Rhine (May 28-30) viz.: Mozart's Symphony in G minor, Handel's "Joshua," Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, Mendelssohn's "Walpurgis-Nacht," Sanctus and Hosanna from Bach's Mass in B minor, scenes from Gluck's "Armida," and a Psalm by Herr Wüllner, who will conduct the performances.

On the occasion of the 150th anniversary of the birth of Joseph Haydn (31st ult.) festive performances were announced to take place at various concert institutions of Germany.

"Hagbarth und Signe" is the title of a new operatic work recently produced at the Dresden Hoftheater with good success. The composer is Herr Mihalowich, a talented pupil of Franz Liszt and a disciple of Richard Wagner, upon whose "Tristan und Isolde" the new work is said to be partly modelled, without, however, being a mere imitation.

Herr Franz Kullak has undertaken the directorship of the Berlin "Neue Akademie der Tonkunst" vacated by the recent death of his father, the eminent founder of the institution.

Mr. A. C. Mackenzie's Quartet in E flat major, for pianoforte and strings, was recently produced at a Matinée of the Royal Musik-Schule at Munich.

We read the following in the Berlin Musik-Welt: "In the possession of Herr Nicolaus Dumba, of Vienna, there are still a great many manuscripts of unpublished compositions by Franz Schubert; only a small circle of intimate friends being acquainted with this treasure which Herr Dumba—himself an excellent Schubert singer—has collected with much good fortune and judgment. The Dumba collection comprises the following dramatic compositions by Schubert: 'Fierbras,' opera in three acts; 'Die Freunde von Salamanka,' vaudeville in two acts; 'Des Teufel's Lustschloss,' opera in three acts; 'Die Zaubersharfe,' vaudeville in three acts; 'Die Bürgschaft,' opera in three acts (the third act unfinished); 'Fernando,' vaudeville in one act; 'Sacuntala,' sketch of an opera (unfinished); 'Der Graf von Gleichen,' (text by Bauernfeld), a sketch, partly instrumented by Herbeck; 'Adrast' (text by Mayerhofer), fragment of an opera. There are, moreover, numerous fragments and sketches of other operas. Besides these dramatic compositions, all of which have never been published, Herr Dumba possesses Schubert manuscripts of five symphonies, three overtures, five chamber compositions, fifteen pianoforte works, three cantatas, twenty-nine choruses, seventy songs and airs, by far the greater part of which have likewise not yet been published."

Beethoven's ballet "Die Geschöpfe des Prometheus," which was first produced in 1801 at the Burgtheater of Vienna, has just been revived, with great success, on the stage of the Hoftheater of Hanover, some judicious alterations having been made in the original libretto of Salvatore Vignano.

At the Paris Opéra-Comique the first representation of a comic opera in three acts, by E. Guiraud, entitled "Une Aventure Galante," took place on the 24th ult., and was a great success musically. The libretto, which is said to be somewhat uninteresting, is by MM. L. Davil and Armand Silvestre.

M. Edouard Lalo's new ballet, entitled "Namouna," was performed on the 6th ult. for the first time, at the Paris Grand-Opéra, with very moderate success.

A new opera by Rimsky-Korsakoff, entitled "Snegurka," is in course of preparation at the Russian Theatre at St. Petersburg.

On the 12th inst. will be commemorated, at Rome, the hundredth anniversary of the death of Pietro Metastasio, the famous Italian poet and librettist.

A correspondent of the Times writes from Rome under date 23rd ult.: "Donizetti's posthumous opera, the 'Duca d'Alba,' discovered a year ago among his papers, was brought out at the Apollo last night. Expectation had been raised to the highest pitch, and the opera completely justified it. The Opinione says with truth: 'There can no longer be any doubt that the "Duca d'Alba" is an authentic work of Donizetti's which adds a new leaf to the great master's crown, and will certainly live in the Italian repertory.' The theatre was crammed in every part; not an inch of standing room remained unoccupied, even in the boxes. Not only was all the musical world of Rome present, but a number of art notabilities came from Milan, Naples, and other cities. Among them were the maestri Ponchielli, Bazzini, and Dominicetti, who formed the Commission appointed by the Academic Council of the Milan Conservatoire to pronounce on the authenticity of the manuscript, and the maestro Salvi, who undertook the task of completing the music for the stage. All the aristocracies—rank, wealth, talent, science, and art—were represented, with Her Majesty Queen Margherita, who is never absent whenever honour is to be rendered to the Italian name. The audience remained silent during the first half of the first act, but the applause burst forth at a splendid chorus, and then continued with increasing intensity to the end. At some parts the audience actually shouted their approval. The first and the last of the four acts are wonderfully fine."

Signor Florimo, the librarian of the Conservatorio of Naples, has just published an interesting volume containing memoirs and letters of Bellini.

M. Massenet's opera "Hérodiade," which has found so much favour with Brussels audiences, has just been produced at La Scala of Milan with similar favourable results. It is said that the composer had to appear on the stage no less than twenty-two times to bow his acknowledgments to the enthusiastic but somewhat merciless audience.

A new Conservatorio will shortly be opened at Pesaro, the native town of Rossini, the expenses of which will be defrayed out of the legacy bequeathed by the composer for that purpose, and which will yield an annual income of 100,000 francs. The primary object of the institution will be the training of vocalists, but it will also embrace classes for general musical and instrumental instruction.

Our Turin correspondent writes: "A young singer, Signora Bianca Bianchi, has appeared at the Theatre Regio, in 'Sonnambula' and 'Lucia,' for a few nights, but has not met with a decided success. The fact is the Turinese have been accustomed to hear the Donadio and the Varesi in these two operas, and it is a rare thing to find any one who unites, as they do, equal talent in acting as in singing. Gounod's 'Tribut de Zamora' has not met the taste of the public here, though it has been repeated several times."

Theodor Kullak, the founder of the Berlin Neue Akademie der Tonkunst, died on the 1st ult., at the age of sixty-three. Kullak was equally esteemed as a pianist and teacher of his instrument, and was also the author of numerous compositions for the piano and some excellent theoretical works.

At Paris died, at the age of fifty, Alfred Jaëll, the well-known pianoforte virtuoso.

We subjoin, as usual, the programmes of concerts* recently given at some of the leading institutions abroad:—

Paris.—Conservatoire Concert (February 26): Symphony, C minor (Beethoven); Air, "Euryanthe" (Weber); Rondo and Bourrées, from Suite in B minor (Bach); Chorus, "Idomeneo" (Mozart); Overture, "Iphigénie en Aulide" (Gluck); Finale, second act "La Vestale" (Spontini). Lamoureux Concert (February 26): "La Mer" (Joncières); "Les Éolides" (C. Franck); Fragments from "Lohengrin" (Wagner). Concert Populaire (February 26): "Les Argonautes," drama lyrique (A. Holmes). Lamoureux Concert (March 5): Overture, "Sakountala" (Goldmark); "La Mer" (Joncières); First act of "Lohengrin" (Wagner); Overture, "Leonore" (Beethoven). Châtelet Concert (March 5): "La Damnation de Faust" (Berlioz). Concert Populaire (March 5): Symphony, "La Reine" (Haydn); Fragments Symphoniques (Paladilhe); Violin Concerto (Mendelssohn); Overture and Prayer, "Rienzi" (Wagner); March and Finale, third act "Lohengrin"; Prelude, "Tristan and Isolde"; "Wotan's Farewell," from "Walküre" (Wagner). Lamoureux Concert (March 12): Overture, "Sakountala" (Goldmark); Pianoforte Concerto (Bach); Symphony, in D (Beethoven); Air, "Alexander's Feast" (Handel); Violoncello Concerto (Widor); Overture, "Euryanthe" (Weber). Concert Populaire (March 12): Symphony, "Leonore" (Raff); Hymn (Haydn); "Héro," scène dramatique (A. Coquard); Musette et Tambourin (Lulli); Violin Concerto (Beethoven); Fragments, "Roméo et Juliette" (Berlioz). Châtelet Concert (March 12): "La Damnation de Faust" (Berlioz). Conservatoire Concert (March 19): Symphony in A (Beethoven); Huntsmen's Chorus, "Euryanthe" (Weber); Fragment from "Prometheus" (Beethoven); "O Filii," double chorus (Leising, sixteenth century); Fragments, "Midsummer Night's Dream" (Mendelssohn). Lamoureux Concert (March 19): Symphony, D major (Beethoven); Fragments from third act "Lohengrin" (Wagner); Fantaisie Romantique, for violin and orchestra (G. Marie); Finale, second act "La Vestale" (Spontini); Overture, "Sigurd" (E. Reyer). Châtelet Concert (March 26): Symphony, C minor (Beethoven); Canzonetta (Mendelssohn); Scènes Alsaciennes (Massenet); Second Pianoforte Concerto (Liszt); Overture, "Benvenuto Cellini" (Berlioz). Concert Populaire (March 26): Symphony, "Leonore" (Raff); Entr'acte, "La Traviata" (Verdi); Concerto, D minor (Rubinstein); Septet (Beethoven); Air (Mozart); "Fête Bohème" (Massenet).

Liège.—Concert Populaire (March 4): Overture, "Tannhäuser" (Wagner); First Violin Concerto (Bruch); Entr'acte, "Manfred" (Reinecke); Valse Russe (E. Napravnik); Poème Symphonique, suite d'orchestre (F. le Borne); Légende, for violin (Wieniawski); Perpetuo Mobile, for violin (Paganini); Fragments, "La Damnation de Faust" (Berlioz). Violinist, M. Waldemar Meyer.

Leipzig.—St. Thomas Church, by the Riedelsche Verein (March 10): Oratorio, "Israel in Egypt" (Handel). Euterpe Concert (March 7): Overture, A major (Kietz); Air, "Jessonda" (Spohr); Concerto, E flat major (Beethoven); Songs (Schubert, Brahms); Symphony, C minor (Beethoven). Concerts of the Meininger Orchestra, under H. von Bülow: Beethoven Night (March 13); Brahms Night (March 14); Schumann-Mendelssohn Night (March 17).

Wiesbaden.—Cur-Orchestra (February 26): Overture, "Demetrius" (Hiller); "Siegfried-Idyl" (Wagner); Symphony, "Eroica" (Beethoven). Cur-Orchestra (March 5): Overture, "Fingal" (Mendelssohn); Symphony, G minor (Gernsheim); Larghetto from Symphony, No. 3 (Spohr); Overture, "Die Nebenbuhler" (Freudenberg). Cur-Orchestra (March 12): Symphony, E flat major, No. 3 (Mozart); Overture, "Anakreon" (Cherubini); Scènes Pittoresques (Massenet). Cur-Orchestra (March 19): Overture, "Leonore," No. 2 (Beethoven); Impromptu, arranged for orchestra (Schubert-Scholz); Symphony in G major, No. 13 (Haydn); Overture, "Der Freischütz" (Weber).

Baltimore.—Peabody Concert (February 25): Symphony, D major (Beethoven); Air, "Alexander's Feast" (Handel); Pianoforte Pieces (Moszkowsky); Fifth Norse Suite (Hamerik). Students' Concert, Peabody Institute (February 18): String Quartet, G minor (Volkmann); Impromptu, No. 3, for pianoforte (Schubert); Etude Caprice, for pianoforte, Op. 24 (S. B. Mills); Song-Poem (Hartmann); Pianoforte Trio (Matthiessen-Hansen).

Boston.—Symphony Orchestra (March 4): Overture, "Maid of Orleans" (Moscheles); Air, "Orpheus" (Gluck); Symphony, B flat (Schumann); Hungarian Fantasy (Liszt); Overture, "Leonore," No. 3 (Beethoven). Symphony Orchestra (March 11): Prelude to "Œdipus Tyrannus" (Paine); Trio from the 130th Psalm (Henschel); Scherzo and Wedding March from "Midsummer Night's Dream" (Mendelssohn); Ninth Symphony (Beethoven). Matinée of M. Ernst Perabo (March 6): String Quartet (B. Smetana); Andante Spianato et Polonaise, Op. 22 (Chopin); Chaconne for violin (Bach); Sonata for pianoforte and violin, Op. 47 (Beethoven). Matinée of M. Ernst Perabo (March 9): String Quartet, Op. 25 (E. F. Richter); Pianoforte Solos, Gavotte (Hans Huber); Rigaudon (Raff); Nocturne, Op. 69; Valse Caprice, E flat major (Rubinstein); Romanze for violin (Joachim); Pianoforte Quartet, Op. 3 (Mendelssohn).

Turin.—Stefano Tempia Choral Society (March 5): Motett for four voices (Nanini); Ave Maria (Arcadelt); 20th Psalm (Marcello); Fragments from Opera, "Demophoon" (Cherubini); Villanella (Donati); Duet, "Il Vagatore Notturno" (Rubinstein); March and Chorus, "Tannhäuser" (Wagner).

CORRESPONDENCE.

DR. MACFARREN AND THE TONIC SOL-FA SYSTEM.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—It would be affectation to deny that the wide publication of Dr. Macfarren's letter on the Tonic Sol-fa system, addressed to the Education Department and to leading newspapers throughout the kingdom, is an incident of importance in the history of the Tonic Sol-fa movement. Advocates of the system, who have been privileged to gain valued instruction from their eminent critic, were aware of his objections to certain details of their teaching, but they were scarcely prepared for an attack so unqualified. They would gladly have been spared the distasteful task of controversy with one for whom they have the sincerest respect; but to-day the patient labours of 5,000 teachers, toiling with innumerable pupils, stand discredited, and it becomes the most elementary duty of men convinced by reason and experience of the importance of their ends, and the efficacy of their means, to use every legitimate effort to confront Dr. Macfarren's serious charges with the logic of fact. It is impossible to condense into available space a tithe of the mass of evidence, and of musical, scientific, and educational opinion in favour of the Tonic Sol-fa system. A brief quotation from the most recent testimony may induce some doubters at least to suspend judgment. If the system is the unspeakable thing represented, how is it that Dr. Stainer can say (October, 1881): "I believe the Tonic Sol-fa system, as an exposition of the relation of scale sounds, to be the true notation for voices. . . . The Tonic Sol-fa system is therefore invaluable as a logical and philosophical method of teaching singing. . . . I do not for one moment think that Tonic Sol-fa is a bar to the appreciation of the staff; quite the contrary," and so on; and Mr. Sedley Taylor, a member of the Board of Musical Studies in the University of Cambridge (February, 1882), that "the established notation is encumbered by a mass of difficulties exclusively due to the misleading system of 'natural' and 'altered' scales on which it is built. On the principle of teaching no superfluities to beginners, it is therefore advisable to provide a subsidiary notation presenting no other difficulties than are inherent in music itself. When these have been mastered, and not till then, the learner will be in a position to understand what the additional difficulties of the staff notation arise from, and to grasp the meaning of that system with a thoroughness which, but for such preliminary training, he would only attain with far greater effort." The italics are mine. The statement is in accord with my daily experience. The report of Sir Robert Stewart (March 16, 1882) of a public trial of the system, arranged at the request of the Irish Commissioners of National Education, very strongly confirms the above views. I now glance at some of Dr. Macfarren's objections only partly met by the diametrically opposite evidence quoted. It is said that the system hinders the acquisition of pitch. It might be enough to reply that the vast majority of those who have been reached by the Tonic Sol-fa system would have had no instruction at all but for the now disowned efforts of its missionaries. But on the face of the matter the careful ear-training which is so distinctive a feature of Tonic Sol-fa teaching must and does sharpen the perception of absolute pitch when attention is particularly directed to it. The upper students of the system are made to memorise pitch-* Contributions intended for this column should indicate clearly the place and date of performance, as otherwise they cannot be inserted.

Another serious charge is that the system "confounds the characteristics of keys, which have distinctly different harmonic derivations." This refers to the treatment of the dual relation of a minor key to its "relative" and to its "tonic" major. Most readers will conclude that the Tonic Sol-fa system inculcates some new and false doctrine, although, of course, it is not the intention of the writer to convey this impression. Observing that composers modulate to the relative minor and major a hundred times more frequently than to the tonic minor or major, and that the common ear continues its obstinate refusal to be regarded as the keyboard of a pianoforte, the Tonic Sol-fa method, in common with most if not all movable doh methods, teaches the minor scale from its "relative" major, a proceeding sanctioned by the venerable authority of the ordinary notation and nomenclature, of which, be it observed, to save pharisaic rejoicing, Dr. Macfarren elsewhere remarks that "this term 'relative' has led to a most evil misapprehension, and is a stumbling-block in the way of learners"; that he writes of "the long-established inaccurate signature of the minor form of the key"; and again that "the conventional terms 'relative major' and 'relative minor' that are in common use to define the connection, are here denounced as misleading, and consequently dangerous to the composer." Sol-faists might reasonably ask—and with bitterness, if this were consistent with the meekness they cultivate with a view to the inheritance promised all such—why the Education Department is not besought to reject the use of a notation characterised by one of its most eminent advocates as "unlucky," "inaccurate," and a "stumbling-block in the way of learners"? Next, as to the vagueness of the Tonic Sol-fa notation. This is clearly a matter of evidence. It would be unfair to judge either notation by performance from strange, ill-written manuscript. Whether or not the Sol-fa notation is being condemned only on this ground I am unable to say, but I think it fair to quote Dr. Macfarren's opinion of a performance from well printed Tonic Sol-fa notation. In the Cornhill Magazine (1868), writing of a Tonic Sol-fa concert at which he was present, he says: "A piece of music which had been composed for the occasion, and had not until then been seen by human eyes, save those of the writer and the printers, was handed forth to the members of the chorus there present, and then, before an audience furnished at the same time with copies to test the accuracy of the performance, 4,500 singers sang it at first sight in a manner to fulfil the highest requirements of the severest judges." It is said that the rich can read musical publications of all countries, and that the poor will be unjustly treated if they are not blessed by the instruction and methods of those who enjoy the lucrative monopoly of teaching the rich. Can the rich read music? Can one out of ten of their daughters, over whose musical education so much time and money are expended, sing at sight, without the pianoforte, the simplest psalm-tune? Tens of thousands of Board School children can do this. I venture to ask musicians—even those to whom the strange appeal has been made to dragoon the Tonic Sol-fa system from even optional use in our State-aided schools—to fairly weigh what that system has hitherto done for the masses of this country, and not to allow themselves to be persuaded to hinder the work of those who are trying to do a national task.—I am, sir, yours faithfully,

March 25, 1882.

W. G. McNAUGHT, A.R.A.M.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S MUSICAL JOURNEYS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

DEAR SIR,—As a former member of Mr. Charles Hallé's Orchestra, and having several times made the Scotch journey with him, I have read the paragraph relating to that journey, in the March number of THE MUSICAL TIMES, with much interest. In one respect you are quite justified in regarding Mr. Hallé's achievements as being without a parallel—I refer to the fact that in addition to directing the orchestra at each concert, he generally plays a piano concerto and some minor pieces, which must add enormously to the labour; but as regards distance travelled and concerts given in a short space of time, the Scotch tournée can be easily matched on the other side of the Atlantic. In 1872 I joined the orchestra of Mr. Theodore Thomas, in New York. Mr. Thomas was for years in the habit of taking his orchestra, consisting of sixty members, on a tournée lasting from the beginning of October to the beginning of May. The first that I made with him covered over 13,000 miles. As the people were continually on the move, in addition to the instruments, he had to transport over sixty large trunks, and, as a rule, each night the concert was in a different town. The travelling was not nearly so harassing as in England, for Mr. Thomas provided hotel accommodation for his entire orchestra, and they had nothing to do on arrival but to proceed direct to the hotel, which was generally the principal one in the city. I append an example of the way we moved over the country, selecting for convenience the period between two public rehearsals of the Philharmonic Society in Brooklyn, which take place every two weeks. The distance from New York to Chicago is about 1,200 miles. You will observe we gave fifteen concerts (including the public rehearsals, which are in reality matinées under another name), had two ordinary rehearsals, played in eight different cities, and travelled about 2,400 miles, all in the space of fifteen days. And this was in the ordinary fulfilment of our duties, for we had been travelling for months previously, and continued travelling till the following May.

I am, dear sir, yours truly,

ADOLPHUS LOCKWOOD,

Königl. bayer Hofmusiker.

Akademie Strasse 7, München,

March 3, 1882.

Two weeks' travelling with the Theodore Thomas Orchestra.—1874, February 11, Brooklyn, N. Y., tenth public rehearsal of Philharmonic Society; 12, Philadelphia, Pa., concert; 13, Pittsburgh, Pa., concert; 14, Pittsburgh, Pa., matinée and concert; 15, Chicago, Ill., concert, with rehearsal; 17, Chicago, Ill., concert, with rehearsal; 18, Chicago, Ill., matinée and concert; 19, La Porte, Indiana, concert; 20, Cleveland, Ohio, concert; 21, Cleveland, Ohio, concert; 23, Syracuse, N. Y., concert; 24, Troy, N. Y., concert; 25, Brooklyn, N. Y., eleventh public rehearsal of Philharmonic Society.

THE NEW NATIONAL ACADEMY.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—If the new Music School which our Royal Family has so ably and eloquently inaugurated is to be considered a National Institution, worthy of national support, allow me to say there must be some alteration in its scheme. It was expressly stated at the meeting at St. James's that the hundred free scholarships, to which the generous British public are asked to contribute, were to be thrown open to all comers and to all nations. In that case, surely, the School would be International and Continental rather than National; and its advantages would appear to be intended chiefly for our poorer neighbours across the channel. Foreign musicians stand in no need of such assistance. They have their own State-supported Conservatoires all over the Continent. Moreover they have always received the most cordial support and patronage in this country, from the time of Handel downwards.

If the new School is to be considered National, its scholarships must be confined exclusively to the children of English parents, born on English soil, and its musical direction placed in the hands of English musicians.

Unless this condition be carried out, it is not difficult to foretell that the School will meet with but short-lived success, like the last National venture, and the British public will soon tire of contributing to its support.

Yours faithfully,

Chelsea, March 20, 1882.

A. S. C.

P.S.—Since writing the above, I hear that Professor Donaldson has pointed out the same defect, at a meeting which took place recently at Glasgow.

PALESTRINA'S "MISSA PAPÆ MARCELLI."

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—With reference to the rendering of this Mass by the Bach Society on the 16th of February last, THE MUSICAL TIMES for March states: "This is said to have been the first performance of this work in a London concert-room," and I observe that more than one of the daily papers made a similar remark.

Will you permit me to say that some twenty years ago the Motett Choir of the Ecclesiological Society, under the able and sympathetic bâton of the Rev. Thomas Helmore, sang this composition at more than one of their meetings, either at the then St. Martin's Hall, or in the rooms of the Architectural Union, in Conduit Street. There were other Masses of the Italian "Rex Musicæ" of the sixteenth century, which were also studied and produced: "Eterna Christi munera," "Sponsa Christi," "Assumpta est," &c., together with Latin hymns and motetts, all under the auspices of the same zealous leader; and though I am far from wishing to detract in any way from the credit and honour due to Mr. Otto Goldschmidt and his fine choir for their recent most successful reproduction of the above single example, at the same time I think it only fair that the facts I have mentioned should be made known.

Yours faithfully,

SPENSER NOTTINGHAM.

Hammersmith, March 25, 1882.

A MUSICAL CLUB.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—The attention of my Committee has been drawn to a letter in your impression of the 1st inst., signed C. L. Williams, and I am instructed to inform your correspondent and readers that this Club, established two years ago in Savile Row, and recently removed to the address given below, is distinctively (not exclusively) a Musical Club. Whilst anxious to avoid the semblance of advertisement, I trust you will permit me briefly to intimate that our President is Mr. Thomas P. Chappell; our Vice-Presidents Mr. Charles Santley and Mr. Henry Irving; our Chairman of Committee Mr. M. Maybrick. Amongst our active members are Messrs. Edward Lloyd, Frederick King, Arthur Chappell, Frank Chappell, John Boosey, W. D. Davison, Herr Rubinstein, M. Musin, W. Kuhe, Henry Parker, Wilfred Bendall, Corney Grain, N. Vert, G. Grossmith, F. Boyle, A. Oswald, &c.—in short, a very large proportion of the professional musical world. The fact of our having grown out of our birthplace and established ourselves in a far larger home is sufficient testimony of our success. Smoking Concerts are held at intervals, and prove a very attractive feature of the Club. I will only add that I shall be very happy to furnish Mr. Williams, or any gentlemen who, like him, seeks a Musical Club, with full particulars on application, either personally or per litera.—Yours faithfully,

CUNNINGHAM BRIDGMAN, Secretary.

Regency Club, 23, Albemarle Street, W.,
March 22, 1882.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

*.* Notices of concerts, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted. Our correspondents must specifically denote the date of each concert, for without such date no notice can be taken of the performance.

Our correspondents will oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

Correspondents are informed that their names and addresses must accompany all communications.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all Subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music is always kept in stock, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

L. E. O.—We cannot imagine what our correspondent can mean by asking for a "correct reading" of a passage which speaks clearly enough to all who understand the divisions of notes. As he tells us, however, that the quotation is from the Sonata in G, instead of C major, it is possible that L. E. O. may be too much in the rudiments of the art to attempt such a movement at present.

A. CARPENTER.—Every information on the subject will be furnished on application to the Royal Academy of Music, Tenterden Street, Hanover Square.

STUDENT.—We doubt whether you can satisfactorily study by yourself; but "Novello's Music Primers" will furnish you with works suitable for making the experiment.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this Summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

ALEXANDRIA.—Selections from Handel's Messiah and Mozart's Twelfth Mass were given by the members of the Musical Society on Friday, February 17, in the Salle Storari, with a band and chorus numbering about seventy performers. The solos were taken chiefly by amateurs. Signor Colomberti created a sensation by his fine rendering of "Why do the nations," and Miss Teoriani sang the soprano part in Mozart's Mass with artistic finish. The choruses were well sung, and in every respect the Concert was a great success. Mr. Arthur Sullivan conducted, at the invitation of the Society's local conductor.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—On Tuesday evening, the 14th ult., a Concert of sacred music was given in the New Connexion Church, Abbey Road. The Cantata The Entry into Jerusalem, by F. W. Humberstone, formed the first part, and the second part consisted of a selection of sacred music by various composers. Mrs. A. Dilks sang with much effect her one solo, "Come unto Him," and Miss Dilks was successful in the air "Jesus, the very thought is sweet." Mr. J. Thompson was Conductor.

BELFAST.—The Choral Association gave the third of a series of Popular Concerts in the Ulster Hall, on the 21st ult. Handel's Sixth Chandos Anthem was the principal feature of the programme. The solo vocalists were Madame Billinie Porter, Miss Frances Armstrong, Mr. Kenneth Stewart, and Mr. Wm. Curran. Mr. W. J. Kempton conducted, and the Organist was Mr. Wm. Hill. The second part of the programme was miscellaneous. The hall was well filled, and the Concert highly successful.

BRADFORD.—Mr. S. Midgley brought his seventh season of Classical Chamber Concerts to a most successful close on the 17th ult., when an interesting programme was presented. Mr. Midgley was assisted by Herr Ludwig Straus (violin) and M. Vieuxtemps (violinocello).

BRECHIN.—The first Concert of the Amateur Musical Society for the present season took place on the 13th ult. in the Mechanics' Hall. There was a large attendance. The first part of the programme consisted of Beethoven's Mass in C, sung to the Latin words, and accompanied by pianoforte and harmonium. The members of the Society rendered the music with a finish and intelligence which reflected great credit on their Conductor, Mr. J. C. Smith, of Perth. The second part of the Concert comprised two trios for violin, flute, and pianoforte, two violin solos, and two choruses from Dr. Macfarren's May Day.

BRIDGEWATER.—The first Concert under the heading "Music for the People" was given at the Town Hall on Monday, the 6th ult. Mr. C. Lavington conducted, and the amateurs were assisted by Messrs. Richardson and E. J. Tout (first violins), Windcatt (second violin), Moore (oboe), H. Glover (clarinet), and Bayman (bassoon). Mozart's G minor symphony, the Zampa, La Gazza Ladra, and Masaniello overtures, and Clark's "Marche aux Flambeaux" were well rendered. Dibdin's "Lass that loves a Sailor," rendered by Captain T. F. Barham, and Smart's "Sailor's Story," by Miss Rees, gained well-merited encores.

BRISTOL.—At the annual Wool Fair, on the 1st ult., the usual Musical Evening was given in the great hall of the Grand Hotel. The vocalists were Madame Nicholas, Miss Rosa Bailey, Mr. John F. Probert, and Mr. Stuart Higgs, all of whom were very successful. Several glees were included in the programme. Mr. Nicholas ably presided at the pianoforte. On Friday, the 3rd ult., a very successful performance of Haydn's Creation took place at the Cotham Wesleyan Schoolroom. The solos were well rendered by Miss Marie Gane, Mr. E. T. Morgan, and Mr. W. Thomas. There was an efficient chorus, and the accompaniments on piano and American organ were played by Dr. Colman and Mr. A. N. Price. Mr. C. H. Kerry conducted.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—On the 3rd ult. a Concert was given by the Philharmonic Society at the Masonic Room. The programme included Haydn's Symphony No. 9, which was well rendered. Mr. Pratt (Ipswich) led the band, and also joined his son in a duet (De Beriot) which was encored. The vocalists were Miss Borrow and Mr. Frederick Pattie. Mr. T. B. Richardson conducted.

CORK.—The second Concert of the Musical Society, for the present season, was given in the Assembly Rooms on the 15th ult. The work chosen for performance was Sullivan's Martyr of Antioch, which was excellently rendered. The solo vocalists were Mrs. T. Wood, Mrs. Murphy, Mr. J. H. Scott, Mr. J. Sullivan, and Mr. E. Herbert. Dr. Marks conducted. The second part of the programme was miscellaneous.

DUBLIN.—The first of three Harp Concerts, organised by Mr. Aptommas, was given in the Antient Concert Rooms, on the 16th ult. The concert-giver was assisted by Miss Bessie Holt (vocalist), Madame Priscilla Frost (pianoforte), and Madame Frost (harp). A well-varied programme was excellently rendered.

FLINTON.—A Concert was given in the Drill Hall on Friday, the 10th ult. The vocalists were Miss Stenden, Miss Dutton, Mr. Seymour Jackson, and Mr. J. D. Smith. Mr. William Cotte, who acted as Conductor, gave a pianoforte solo, and was joined in a duet by his pupil, Miss Littler. The Concert was a great success.

GEORGETOWN, DEMERARA.—A most successful Concert was given by Mr. Colbeck in the Philharmonic Hall, on Tuesday, February 21. The solo vocalists, all of whom were amateurs, specially distinguished themselves.

GOOLE.—The members of the Orchestral and Choral Union gave the second Concert of the season on the 14th ult. in the Market Hall. The principal work in the programme was Mendelssohn's Hear my Prayer, the solo being carefully sung by Miss Wadsworth. The rendering of the other items was highly creditable. Mr. J. Milnes conducted.

GREENOCK.—A very successful Concert of sacred music was given on Thursday, February 23, in the Mid-Parish Church, by the members of the choir, assisted by a few friends. Mr. Middleton presided at the organ and played some solos, which were highly appreciated.

HEATON MOOR.—An Entertainment was given in the Wesleyan Schools on Friday, the 17th ult., in aid of the library. Several songs and glees were well rendered by the choir. Mr. William Cole, the Organist, presided at the pianoforte and played Gottschalk's "Pasquinade." The Misses Littlell took part in several duets and trios, which were highly successful.

HUDDERSFIELD.—The fine organ in Brunswick Street Chapel, having undergone considerable alterations and improvements at the hands of Messrs. James Conacher and Sons, of Bath Buildings, was reopened on Sunday, the 5th ult., by Mr. A. Peace, Mus. Doc., of Glasgow. The instrument has not only been enlarged, but the tone of many of the solo stops greatly improved.

HULL.—A Concert, in connection with the Young People's Institute, was given in the Public Rooms on Thursday, the 6th ult. The vocalists were Miss Farbstein, Miss Moore, the Rev. J. H. Lewthwaite, and Mr. E. Dunkerton. Mr. Lax gave some effective solos on the flute, and Messrs. Hudson and Holder contributed some duets on the pianoforte and harmonium, which were well received. Mr. J. W. Hudson, Mus. Bac., conducted.

HULME.—The Messiah was performed in Trinity Chapel on Sunday afternoon, February 26, the principal vocalists being Miss Horner, Miss Parry, Mr. Seymour Jackson, and Mr. Hewson. The chapel was crowded, and the Oratorio well rendered. Mr. William Cole conducted, and Mr. Herbert Walker presided at the organ.

KING'S NORTON, NEAR BIRMINGHAM.—An excellent Concert was given in the Board School, on the 6th ult., before a large and appreciative audience. The programme contained several vocal solos, which were well rendered by Mrs. Ridgway, Mrs. Jones, Miss Sadler, and Mr. J. Holder. In the instrumental department, the playing of Mozart's Trio in E flat, for violin, viola, and pianoforte (Op. 14, No. 2), reflected great credit upon the executants, Messrs. White, Middleton, and Ridgway; and Mr. Ridgway was also highly successful as a pianist and accompanist.

LEEDS.—Dr. Spark's free Organ Recitals were resumed in the Victoria Hall on the 4th ult. The programme was excellently selected, and included a composition by Mr. Hepworth, a native of Yorkshire (who has been recently appointed Organist of the Parish Church, Mecklenburg), based upon Mendelssohn's popular Volkslied, which was well played, and excited much interest.

LEICESTER.—The Orpheus Choral Society, assisted by the members of the Amateur Harmonic Society, gave a performance of Fawcett's Oratorio Paradise, in the Temperance Hall, on Monday evening, the 6th ult. The solos were well rendered by Miss Birch, Miss M. Blackwell, Mr. W. Birch, and Mr. McRobie. The work was ably conducted by Mr. W. F. Quinn. The Concert was for the benefit of the Institution for the Blind.

LIVERPOOL.—Mr. S. Claude Ridley gave two Recitals on the grand organ at St. George's Hall on the 4th ult., to large audiences. Krebs's Fugue in G, and Mendelssohn's second Sonata, met with much favour. Lemmens's "Storm" Fantasia was finely played. Smart's Festive March and Gounod's "Marche Solennelle" effectively displayed the reed power for which the organ is remarkable. Several popular items were also introduced, and the Overture to Zampa brought the last Recital to a successful close.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—An excellent Concert, organised by Mr. George Adcock, was given in the Corn Exchange on Wednesday evening, the 8th ult. The vocalists were Miss Agnes Larkom, Miss Selina Hall, and Signor Foli; the instrumentalists, Mr. J. H. Twinn (violin), Mr. Twinn (viola), Mr. J. A. Adcock (violin), and Mr. F. M. Ward (pianist).

MORNINGSIDE, EDINBURGH.—Mr. William Blakeley, Organist of the United Presbyterian Church, gave his second Organ Recital on the 3rd ult. The programme was well selected, and the performance of the various pieces received with the greatest favour.

MUSSELBURGH.—The Members of the Choral Society in connection with Bridge Street United Presbyterian Church gave their first Recital, before a crowded audience, on the 2nd ult. The manner in which the programme was performed reflected the greatest credit on the Conductor, Mr. James Salmund. The choruses were given with a feeling and accuracy that left nothing to be desired. Mr. T. Richardson, Organist and Choirmaster of St. Peter's, Edinburgh, was an efficient accompanist.

NEWCASTLE.—One of the series of Popular Chamber Concerts instituted by Miss Hildegard Werner and Mr. J. H. Beers was given in the Northumberland Hall on Saturday afternoon, the 11th ult. The instrumentalists were Miss Werner (pianoforte), Messrs. J. H. Beers and J. Hill (violins), Messrs. A. A. Hunt and H. Beers (violas), and Mr. S. Beers (cello). The vocalist was Miss Isabella Wennberg. The programme was well selected and excellently rendered.

NORTHAMPTON.—A sacred Cantata entitled Christian the Pilgrim, composed by Mr. Wilford Morgan, was successfully produced at the Lecture Hall, Gold Street, on the 21st ult. The work was sung by the members of the Doddridge Chapel Choir, Mr. E. R. Carter, the Organist, conducting. Mrs. Blackwell presided at the pianoforte and Mr. E. Low at the harmonium. The local papers speak highly of the Cantata.

OLDHAM.—The ninth Popular Concert took place on Saturday evening, February 25, in the Coffee Tavern, Henshaw Street. Mr. J. Greaves accompanied. On Tuesday, the 7th ult., an evening Concert was given in the King Street Co-operative Hall, when the following artists assisted, viz., Miss Bessie Holt, Miss Louisa Bowmont, Mr. Henry Beaumont, Mr. Howard Lees, vocalists; Mr. De Jong, solo flute; and Mr. J. C. Whitehead, accompanist. The programme was well selected, and excellently rendered. On Monday evening, the 20th ult., the twelfth Popular Concert, which consisted of a Pianoforte Recital by Mr. J. Greaves, interspersed with songs by amateurs, was given in the Henshaw Street Coffee Tavern. On Tuesday evening, the 21st ult., a Concert took place in the Co-operative Store, Greenacres Hill, the vocalists being Mrs. Farrar-Hyde, R.A.M., Miss Dutton, Messrs. Allen and Gordon. Accompanist, Mr. Batchelder.

ORSETT.—The twelfth Entertainment in connection with the Institute was given on Thursday, the 2nd ult., when a Concert of sacred music was arranged by Mr. J. R. Murray, Organist of St. Botolph's, Aldersgate Street. The choruses were well sung by Mr. Murray's choir, and vocal solos were contributed by Masters Barnes and Mitchell, Mrs. Rowley, Messrs. Ridgwell, Painter, and Harris.

PAISLEY.—The third and last Concert of the season given by the Choro-Orchestral Society took place in the Good Templars' Hall, on Monday evening, the 13th ult. The programme included the Overture to Fra Diavolo and the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin. The solos and choruses were well rendered, and the concert highly successful. Mr. J. R. Fraser conducted. On Wednesday evening, the 22nd ult., Mr. J. Barrett, Mus. Bac., Oxon., with a choir of about fifty voices, gave selections of sacred music in the Abbey, before a large and appreciative audience. The programme, which was excellently rendered, included Macfarren's "O praise our God, ye people"; Sir M. Costa's "I dreamt I was in heaven" (Naaman), and organ solos by Mr. J. Barrett. Mr. Channon Cornwall, Glasgow, presided at the organ.

SOUTHAMPTON.—A very successful Concert, arranged by Mr. F. H. Sharpe, was given in the Watts Memorial Hall, on Thursday, the 2nd ult. The orchestral portion of the programme was mainly sustained by the Amateur Orchestral Society, conducted by Mr. E. Jones. The vocalists were Miss Linford and the Misses Sharpe. Miss De Garlich contributed a pianoforte solo; and a trio for pianoforte, violin, and organ was admirably rendered by Miss C. Sharpe, Mr. Jones, and Mr. Sharpe.

STAINES.—The programme of the Concert given by the Choral Society at the Town Hall on Tuesday, the 7th ult., under the conductorship of Mr. G. F. Huntley, included Schubert's Song of Miriam, Haydn's Symphony No. 1, in C, March and Chorus from Costa's Naaman, and Macfarren's May Day. The soprano solos in the Cantatas were sung by Miss Madeline Hardy, who also gave Gounod's song "The Worker," which was deservedly encored. Weber's "Softly sighs" was well rendered by Miss Todd, and greatly appreciated. The choir sang with clearness and precision, and the orchestra was particularly effective.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—On Monday, the 13th ult., the Philharmonic Society gave its second Concert of the season in the Athenæum. Cowen's Rose Maiden formed the principal item in the programme. The solos were well rendered by Miss Fannie Sellers, Miss Wilmot, Mr. Herbert Parrott, and Mr. J. Thompson. There was a full band and chorus. Mr. J. H. Lewis, Organist of the Parish Church, conducted.

WHITWORTH.—Mr. J. H. Greenwood gave the last of his Concerts for the season on Saturday evening, the 11th ult., in the Co-operative Hall. The members of the Orchestral Society and of the Bacup and Rochdale orchestras assisted. Miss Hardman was the vocalist, and solos were contributed by Mr. J. Howarth on the concertina, and Mr. Shackleton on the flute. Mr. J. T. Norris, Organist of the Parish Church, Haslington, was solo pianist and accompanist, and Mr. Howarth Conductor. The Concert was very successful.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. F. H. Baker, Organist and Choirmaster to Christ Church, North Kensington.—Mr. P. A. Strickland, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Peter's Church, Rawdon, Leeds.—Mr. J. H. Field, Organist and Choirmaster to St. John the Evangelist, Brownswood Park, South Hornsey, N.—Mr. William H. Stocks to Dulwich College Chapel of Ease.—Mr. John E. J. Holmes to Christ Church, Knottingley, Yorkshire.—Mr. W. Henry Young to the Congregational Church, Tynemouth.—Mr. John Cowell, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church, Fleetwood, Lancashire.—Mr. E. Gordon Cockrell, Organist and Choirmaster to St. John's, Balham.

CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. Charles Hunt (Alto) to St. Peter's, Great Windmill Street, W.—Mr. John Berry (Alto), Mr. Chas. Smith (Tenor), Mr. Horace H. Reynolds, and Mr. Arthur J. Kestin (Bass) to Holy Trinity Church, Brompton.

DEATHS.

On February 20, ALFRED GEORGE KINNS, for many years Organist of St. Monica's Priory, Hoxton, aged 27.

On February 25, at 34, Park Village East, the Rev. W. S. PRATTEN, late of Hale, Cumberland, aged 61.

On the 1st ult., at 8, Marlborough Place, St. John's Wood, ALICE, the dearly loved wife of JOHN FRANCIS BARNETT, aged 28.

On the 6th ult., at 23, Wells Street, W., JOHN KELLY, R.A.M., for forty years a member of the orchestras of Her Majesty's Theatre and Royal Italian Opera, aged 62.

On the 9th ult., at 43, Queen's Crescent, Haverstock Hill, HAYDN COLLARD, aged 75.

MR. JOHN F. PROBERT (Tenor).

For terms, address, 13, Sebbon Street, N.

A YOUNG LADY, Medalist for Singing, R.A.M., till recently a leading SOPRANO in a West-end Church, is now open to a RE-ENGAGEMENT. Address, A. B., 170, New Bond Street.

MISS EMILY DONES begs to announce her REMOVAL to 93, The Chase, Clapham, S.W.

WANTED, by an experienced Musician, an APPOINTMENT as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER in New Zealand. J. W. W., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

A TALENTED Young Lady seeks ENGAGEMENT as MUSIC TEACHER in a good School, Piano, Violin, or Junior Singing Class. References from principal of school and professor of music. Apply, Miss Gregson, South Street, St. Neots, Hunts.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO, EWER &amp; CO.

ADAMS, EDGAR.—(in E). Te Deum. 8vo, 3d.

ARMES, DR. P.—(in G). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 8vo, 6d.

CALKIN, J. BAPTISTE.—(in G). Morning and Evening Service, with the Office for the Holy Communion. Op. 98. 2s. Or, singly, No. 1, Te Deum, 6d.; No. 2, Benedictus, 4d.; No. 3, Jubilate, 3d.; No. 4, Introit, No. 5, Kyrie, 1 and 2; No. 6, Before Gospel, No. 7, After Gospel, No. 8, Nicene Creed, No. 9, Offertory, No. 10, Sursum corda, No. 11, Sanctus, No. 12, Gloria, No. 13, Benedictus qui venit, No. 14, Agnus Dei, 1s.; No. 15, Magnificat, No. 16, Nunc dimittis, 6d.

COLBORNE, LANGDON.—(in A). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 8vo, 4d.

LÖHR, HARVEY.—Kyrie and Nicene Creed in A minor. 8vo, 6d.; Kyrie only, 1d.

LONGHURST, W. H.—Three Triple Chants. 8vo, 1d.

MARTIN, G. C.—(in C). The Office of Holy Communion. 8vo, 1s.

POWELL, REV. J. B.—Twelve Settings of the Magnificat, and Six Settings of the Nunc dimittis to Ancient Tones, with Fauchbourdon and Plain Harmonies. 1s.

ROGERS, H.—Benedicite, in Chant Form. 8vo, 4d.

WILLIAMS, C. L.—(in B flat). Te Deum and Benedictus. 8vo, 6d.

NOVELLO, J. ALFRED.—“Cantica Vespera; the Psalms Chanted at Vespers and Complin, adapted to the Gregorian Tones.” Third Edition, 1s.

COCKLE, G.—“Yea, though I walk.” Anthem (Solo B. and Chorus). 8vo, 6d.

COLE, F. G.—“Now upon the first day of the week.” Easter. 8vo, 3d.

GAUL, ALFRED R.—Intermezzo, “Daybreak,” and Wedding Chorus, “Hark! hark! the cymbals clash,” from the Cantata “Ruth.” 8vo, 4d.

HUSBAND, EDWARD.—“The sons of strangers.” Anthem for Tenor Solo and Chorus. 8vo, 4d.

SHINN, G.—“Though the heathen rage.” Chorus from the “March of the Jewish Warriors.” 8vo, 1½d.

BULLOCK, H. A.—“Lest the lattice may be shaking.” Part-Song, A.T.T.B. 8vo, 2d.

GAUL, ALFRED R.—“The Children’s Hour.” Part-Song, S.A.T.B. 8vo, 3d.

KÜHNE, C. T.—“Peter Piper.” Humorous Glee, S.A.T.B. 8vo, 4d.

—Spring Waltzes (adapted from Strauss’s Valse “Wein, Weib, und Sang”) with words by the Rev. WALTER EARLE, for Chorus S.A.T.B. and Solo Voices. 8vo, 1s.

PEARSON, W. W.—“The Iron Horse.” Chorus, S.A.T.B. 8vo, 4d.

PRENDERGAST, A. H. D.—“A garden is my lady’s face.” Four-part Song for Men’s Voices. 8vo, 3d.

REINECKE, CARL.—Twelve Canons for Two-part Female Chorus, or Two Solo Voices. Op. 163. 8vo, 1s. 6d. (Nos. 126 to 137, Novello’s Octavo Edition of Trios, &amp;c.) For list, see next column.

WRIGLEY, W. A.—“The stars are with the voyager.” Part-Song, S.A.T.B. 8vo, 3d.

MOUNTAIN, T.—“My fairest child.” Song. Words by CHARLES KINGSLEY. 1s. 6d.

CAMERON, A. G.—Valse Improromptu. For the Pianoforte. 1s. 6d.

MERKEL, GUSTAV.—Original Compositions for the Organ. No. 2, Fantasia in E minor, 1s.; No. 4, Pastorale in G, and Adagio in F, 1s.

ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS for the ORGAN.—
No. 1. Two Introductory Voluntaries. G. J. BENNETT 1s. 6d.
2. Three Andantes ... HAMILTON CLARKE 2s.
3. Postlude (Christmas) ... Dr. GARRETT 1s.
4. Andante con moto ... Dr. GARRETT 1s.
12. Postlude in C minor ... Dr. STEGGALL 1s.

STOCKS, WILLIAM H.—Chopin’s Prelude (Op. 28, No. 20), arranged for the Organ. 6d.

SPARK, DR. W.—“The Organist’s Quarterly Journal.” Part LIV. 1, Andante (G major), Dr. J. C. Tiley (1872); 2, Passacaglia (C major), Dr. J. C. Tiley (1876); 3, Prelude for the Diapasons (C sharp minor), J. Katterfeldt; 4, Hommage à Smart, Variations on the Hymn-Tune “Lancashire,” J. Matthews; 5, Motive-Fantasy (D major), W. Conradi (Organist of St. Paul’s, Schwerin); 6, Andante cantabile (E flat), James L. Gregory.

Now ready.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION, with various improvements and many additional Chants, of THE PSALTER, arranged for Chanting. With appropriate English Chants. Edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. GORE OUSELEY, Bart., M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon., &amp;c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon., Organist and Choirmaster of York Minster.

Edition I., in Post 8vo, with the chants in short score. Cloth, 2s.
Edition II., in Foolscap 4to, large type, with the chants in short score. Cloth, 4s.

Edition III., in Imperial 32mo. Words only. Cloth, 9d. With Proper Psalms, 1s. The Proper Psalms separately, 3d.

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION of THE CANTICLES, &amp;c. First Series.

I. Post 8vo, chants in short score. 6d.

II. Foolscap 4to, chants in short score, 1s.

III. In 32mo. Words only. 1½d.

When this new Edition is required, instead of the original Work (which is on sale in all its original forms), orders should be specific for “REVISED EDITION.”

NEW, REVISED, AND ENLARGED EDITION of THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. A Collection of Single Chants, Ancient and Modern, appropriated to the Daily Psalms, Canticles, and Hymns in the Book of Common Prayer. The Chants correspond with those of the “Psalter,” and are similarly numbered. Edited by EDWIN GEORGE MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. 8vo, in paper cover, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d. Foolscap 4to, large type, paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FRANZ ABT’S
ELEVEN TWO-PART SONGS

FOR TREBLE VOICES

Words by E. OXFORD.

With Pianoforte Accompaniment, price 1s. net; Sol-fa edition, 3d. net.

Dundee: METHVEN, SIMPSON and Co.

London: PATEY and WILLIS.

ECHOES FROM SCOTIA

(A Collection of favourite Scottish Melodies, including “The Four Maries”)

ARRANGED FOR HARMONIUM OR AMERICAN ORGAN

BY

CARL HELLER.

Price 2s. 6d. net.

Dundee: METHVEN, SIMPSON and Co.

London: PATEY and WILLIS.

A GENTLEMAN, who is one of the best PIANOFORTE TUNERS and REGULATORS in England, requires an ENGAGEMENT in or near London, about 3 days each week. Either salary or commission. The very highest references and testimonials can be given. Address, R. F. A., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

JUNIOR ASSISTANT WANTED in a MUSIC and PIANOFORTE WAREHOUSE near London, must have a fair knowledge of Sheet Music, and able to play the Pianoforte. Apply, Minim, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGAN PEDALS for Pianoforte, with fittings and everything complete, to be SOLD at great sacrifice. 1, Grove Terrace, Wilford Grove, Nottingham.

1882 NOVELTY for ORGANISTS, MEMBERS of CHOIRS, and CHORAL CLASSES; also PIANISTS and VIOLINISTS.—An accurate METRONOME (noiseless) in handsome brass wind-up case, giving rates from 40 to 300. Post-free with full directions, 2s. 6d. John L. Elwell, Manufacturer, Dudley.

Just published.

TWELVE CANONS for TWO-PART FEMALE CHORUS (or two Solo Voices) with Accompaniment for the Pianoforte. Composed by Carl REINECKE. Op. 163. The English translation by Rev. J. Troutbeck:—

No. 126.	In life if love we know not	2d.
127.	The Rose is Queen	2d.
128.	Waken not the sleeper	2d.
129.	Good-night	2d.
130.	Eat the fruit, but give the seed	2d.
131.	Woe to him that, when life doth close	2d.
132.	Look upward	2d.
133.	Happiness ever is fugitive found	2d.
134.	A Christmas Carol	2d.
135.	A beautiful Violet	2d.
136.	Prayer on the Waters	2d.
137.	Invitation to the Dance	4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE REV. W. E. HAIGH begs to thank the many gentlemen who have offered their services as ORGANIST to St. Paul's, Vicarage Gardens, Kensington, and regrets that he is able to correspond with only a few of those most likely to suit.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—WANTED at Midsummer, for St. James's Church, Camberwell, an ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Choir surplined. Organ, three manuals. Salary not less than £50. Applications to be sent to the Rev. J. D. Dyke, M.A., 21, Holland Road, Brixton, S.W.

WANTED, ORGANIST, CHOIRMASTER and MUSIC TEACHER. Must be a good Pianist and Violin-player. Salary, £100, with board and lodging. Also an ASSISTANT to the above. Salary, £50, with board and lodging. Apply to Head-Master, Surrey County School, Cranleigh, Guildford.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER (volunteer or at a small salary) WANTED, for St. Mary's, Seymour Street, Euston Square. Sunday services, and one week-day evening service with choir practice following. Good organ. No notice taken of any reply which does not state qualifications, references, and salary, if any required. Address, Organist, St. Mary's Vicarage, 15, Harrington Square, N.W.

WANTED, an efficient ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER for the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, Taunton. Stipend, £60. Duties light. Must be willing to devote a large portion of his time to training the choir. Fine organ by Willis, lately erected. For further particulars apply to the Vicar.

ORGANIST AND CHOIRMASTER WANTED, directly after Easter, for the Church of the Ascension, Lavender Hill, S.W. Gregorian music. Apply, in first instance by letter, to Rev. G. H. Palmer, St. Barnabas, Pimlico, S.W.

WANTED, at Easter, an ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER for Penarth Parish Church. Duties: three services and two practices weekly. Application, stating qualifications and salary required, to be made to the Rector.

ORGANIST WANTED, for Caldmore Church, Walsall. Good organ and services. Salary, £30. Address, the Vicar.

THE ORGANIST of St. Barnabas Church, Holloway, is desirous of meeting with a Gentleman who would be willing to take the Sunday afternoon service, in exchange for practice on the organ on one evening a week. Address, Mr. C. J. Hassell, Hamilton House, Loraine Road, Holloway.

WANTED, an ORGANIST (Chamber Organ) for Kensington Presbyterian Church, who will also be required to train the choir. Address, inclosing testimonials or references, with salary required, &c., Mr. Somerville, 7, Alma Terrace, Kensington, W.

SCHOLASTIC MUSICMASTER and ORGANIST REQUIRED after Easter in an important school near London. Must also be able to take charge of a Violin Class. Salary, £100, with board and rooms. Apply to Askin, Gabbitts and Killick, 38, Sackville Street, London, W.

OXFORD (in or near).—AN ORGANIST, now resident in Oxford, seeks an APPOINTMENT as above. Six years' London experience. Previously a pupil under Mr. G. F. Geaussen. Address, Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge Depot, Queen Street. Would deputise in the interim.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER DIS-ENGAGED. Held last appointment over nine years. Thoroughly experienced as above, and holder of good testimonials. Surplined Choir preferred. T. P., 19, Victoria Grove, Folkestone, Kent.

ORGANIST and DIRECTOR of CHOIR.—A Gentleman resigning his present appointment desires RE-ENGAGEMENT. Thoroughly experienced in Choral Services and High Celebrations. Catholic and Communicant. He holds the highest testimonials from the clergy and profession and press criticisms, and is known as a public player and composer. Shortly taking his degree. Cantab., 56, Bryanston Street, W.

MR. ALFRED PHYSICK having resigned his appointment of ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER to St. Mark's, Camberwell, will shortly be open for RE-ENGAGEMENT. Accustomed to Choral Services and Celebrations. For testimonials, &c., address, 136, Marylebone Road, N.W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—WANTED, by a Professional Gentleman (late Chorister at St. Paul's), APPOINTMENT as above. Successful choirtrainer; long experience. Address, T. P. C., 14, Palace Road, Hornsey.

THE ASSISTANT-ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER at an important Parish Church (where the service is fully choral), desires an APPOINTMENT. Is disengaged immediately. Anglican or Gregorian. Excellent testimonials. A. Swift, Pinchbeck Street, Spalding.

PRESENT Choirmaster of a London Choir, experienced and accustomed to a large Organ, desires APPOINTMENT as ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. Excellent testimonials and references. Address, W. B., 14, Kingsdown Road, Upper Holloway, N.

ORGANIST desires APPOINTMENT. Moderate services. Good Organ. S.E. (preferred); immediate duty. Nominal salary. S., 5, Longley Street, S.E.

MR. F. PENNA (Professor of Singing), ten years SOLO BASS at the Brompton Oratory, previously at the Bavarian Chapel and St. Andrew's, Wells Street, can treat for a similar position and accept other engagements. Instruction in everything pertaining to the art: Singing, Intoning, Musical Oratory. 44, Westbourne Park Road, W.

SITUATION as ORGANIST WANTED, by a blind man. Salary about £25. Has held a post as Organist for some years, and had experience in teaching music. Apply, by letter, The Vicar, Hertford Heath, Hertford.

ORGANIST.—A Man of experience, a good player, and a Communicant, would be glad to undertake a weekly or occasional service. Organist, 146, St. Paul's Road, Canonbury.

ORGANIST seeks an APPOINTMENT in London, could take duties at once. Communicant. Excellent testimonials. G. L., 24, Wilton Square, New North Road, N.

ORGANIST open to permanent ENGAGEMENT or as DEPUTY. F. P., 203, Euston Road, N.W.

ORGANIST DISENGAGED, good musician, reliable and zealous. S.W. district preferred. Moderate salary. V. X., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

AN ORGANIST desires an APPOINTMENT. Held present post four years. Elvey's service preferred. Address, W. Wellstead, Organist, Duke's Street, Winterbourne-Kington, Blandford, Dorset.

MUS. BAC. (Cantab.), desires an ORGAN APPOINTMENT in London. Good references. Salary required, £100. Address, Mus. Bac., care of Julius Valery, 16 & 17, Barbican, E.C.

CHOIRMASTER, a Gentleman with much experience in training choirs, offers his SERVICES to Clergymen or others wishing choirs instructed. Address, J. L., 83, Seymour Street, Portman Square, W.

THE Organist of a large church desires to recommend to country clergymen a YOUNG LADY, aged 18 or 19 (who has been his assistant pupil for four years), as ORGANIST and NURSERY GOVERNESS in the family. Good pianist. Excellent references. S. W., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

A PROFESSOR of MUSIC, holding two Public Appointments in a fashionable town, requires an ASSISTANT (Mus. Bac. preferred) who can play well and teach Piano, Organ, and Violin; also assist in Choir-Training. Address, H. B. M., 170, New Bond Street, London.

MR. JAMES TURPIN, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.C.O., L. Mus. T.C.L., Music Master in the King Edward VI. Grammar School, &c., has a VACANCY for a RESIDENT PUPIL to prepare for the Musical Profession. Special educational advantages are available for University and other Examinations. Address, Manor House, Berkhamsted, Herts.

THE ORGANIST of St. Stephen's, Walbrook, E.C., has VACANCIES for two PUPILS. Fine organ. Address, H. J. White, 28, Sheen Park, Richmond, Surrey.

VIOLIN and PIANO for large PUBLIC SCHOOL. WANTED, a gentlemanly YOUNG MAN to Assist the Professor of Music. Must be a good Violinist. Salary not less than £70. Good opening for private pupils. New Organ and Orchestra. Address, A. H. Stevens, B.A., Beverley House, Barnes, S.W.

WANTED IMMEDIATELY.—An Associate of the Royal Academy requires an ASSISTANT able to give Elementary Instruction on the Piano, and who can take a service on the Organ or Harmonium; in exchange, advanced tuition upon Piano-forte, Organ, or Violin and Harmony, &c., with board and residence. Good references given and required. Apply to H., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MALE ATTENDANT.—WANTED, an intelligent MAN able to play the American Organ. Wages, £30 per annum, rising to £40, with board, lodging, washing, uniform, and £3 in lieu of beer. Applications, stating age, height, and experience, with copies of two recent testimonials, to be sent at once to the Superintendent, Rubery Hill Asylum, near Bromsgrove, Worcestershire.

GLOUCESTER COUNTY ASYLUM, near Gloucester.—MALE ATTENDANTS REQUIRED, not less than 25 years of age. Musicians preferred. Wages commence at £24 and rise to £35, with board, lodging, washing, and uniform. Previous asylum experience not necessary. Applications, stating capabilities, with certificate of character, to be sent to Mr. E. Toller, superintendent, at the Asylum. March 17, 1882. BENJN. SHADGETT, Clerk.

TO VIOLINISTS, &c.—A BAND is about to be formed for Practice and Performance of Symphonies, Overtures, &c.; N. district. Gentlemen wishing to join may write to F. J. M., 45, Thornhill Square, N.

TO ORGANISTS.—WANTED to ARTICLE an ASSISTANT PUPIL for four years. Good home indispensable, with small salary increasing yearly. No premium paid. Pupil holds good testimonials, is a brilliant Pianist, good Organist, &c., and excellent Teacher; has been trained from childhood. Address, Musica, care of Madame West, The Studio, Bexley Heath, Kent.

TO LADY PIANISTS.—An excellent PRACTICE to be DISPOSED OF. Apply, Musica, 10, The Crescent, Taunton.

MUSIC legibly COPIED, 4d. per page; transposed, 6d. per page. Guitar lessons on moderate terms. A Young Lady of neglected education can be received as RESIDENT PUPIL. Address, prepaid, to Professional, care of Messrs. Cocks and Co., 6, New Burlington Street, London.

WANTED, a thoroughly practical Pianoforte and American Organ TUNER and REPAIRER for a permanency. None but first-class steady men need apply. Liberal wages to a competent man. Bruton and Co., Stokescroft, Bristol.

WANTED, Good PIANOFORTE TUNER twelve miles from Manchester. Mostly outdoor. Must be able to do ordinary repairs and have a knowledge of American Organs: also play sufficiently to show instruments. A permanent situation to an experienced man. Apply by letter, stating age, salary, references, and inclose photo., to S., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE FINISHER.—WANTED, a thoroughly practical MAN, who can regulate, set up, and recover all kinds of pianoforte actions. Must be a smart man, and willing to restring, &c., occasionally. Tuning no object. Apply, stating qualifications, references, age, and lowest wages for regular work, to Locke and Son, 36, Great Ducie Street, Manchester.

PIANOFORTE TUNER WANTED, for a London house, and also one for a provincial firm in the Eastern Counties. Good experienced hands can apply personally to Challen and Son 46, Oxford Street, London.

TUNER WANTED, in Scotland. Must be thoroughly efficient and of good character and address. Apply by letter, naming references, to D. G., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

WANTED, a First-class TUNER immediately. Unexceptional references required. Good salary given. Apply, O. P. Q., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, in a country town, a first-class PIANOFORTE TUNER and REGULATOR. Apply, X. Y. Z., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER WANTED immediately. Good salary to a thoroughly good Tuner. Apply, stating full particulars, with photograph, to R. J. Heath and Sons, 12, Crockherbtown, Cardiff.

PIANOFORTE TUNER.—WANTED, as an IMPROVER, at fair salary, a Youth, about 18. One who has been in a Factory preferred. Address, stating salary, to Mr. J. Peake, Hanley, Staffordshire.

TUNING BUSINESS.—Mr. J. GEO. MORLEY (from Broadwood's and Erard's), ten years Tuner to Sir Julius Benedict, will have a VACANCY for an APPRENTICE in April. Premium. 2, Beaconsfield Terrace, Addison Road Station, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER.—Permanent SITUATION WANTED in a good house, by a experienced middle-aged man. Highest references and testimonials. H. M., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

REPAIRER and TUNER.—Young Man seeks ENGAGEMENT as above. First-class hammer coverer, tunes fairly, understands Harmoniums and American Organs. Five years in a large provincial house. Good references. Address, J. J., 22, Denman Street, Golden Square, London, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER (has had experience in American Organs and Harmoniums) is open to an ENGAGEMENT. Address, F., Tuner, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

WANTED, a SITUATION as PIANOFORTE TUNER and REPAIRER. Understands American Organs and small Instruments. Apply, T., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

WANTED by an experienced TUNER (with a knowledge of repairing) from one of the leading firms, an ENGAGEMENT in the country. X. Y. Z., care of R. R., 62, Queen's Road, Bayswater.

JUNIOR PIANOFORTE TUNER WANTED, for Liverpool. Apply, personally or by letter, to C. Jefferys, 67, Berners Street, W.

AS ROUGH TUNER.—WANTED, a situation by a Youth, age 18. E. S., 65, Florence Road, New Cross Road, S.E.

SITUATION WANTED by an experienced Man, as PIANOFORTE TUNER, REGULATOR and REPAIRER. Address, A. R., 24, H Street, Queen's Park Estate, Harrow Road, London.

GOOD TUNER, aged 24, wants SITUATION, either in town or country. Is energetic. Knows Piano and Organ. Well recommended by his last employer. Mr. Morley, 2, Beaconsfield Terrace, West Kensington Park, W.

MANAGER.—Advertiser desires an APPOINTMENT. Experienced Tuner, good Organist and Pianist. Sheet music. Aged 32. Sea-side or provinces not objected to. Address, Clockenspie, Messrs. Novello, Queen Street, Cheapside, E.C.

TO PIANOFORTE and MUSIC WAREHOUSES. A Young Man desires an ENGAGEMENT as ASSISTANT or TRAVELLER. Eight years' experience; can play and tune. F. P., 203, Euston Road, N.W.

WANTED, a SITUATION in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE, by a Young Gentleman, aged 21, who has had six years' business experience. He is a competent Salesman and a good Pianoforte and Harmonium player. Address, G. M., 7, Colville Houses, Bayswater, W.

WANTED, by a Young Lady, a SITUATION as ASSISTANT in a MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Good Pianist. Salary not so much an object as a comfortable home. Address, C., care of Mrs. Algar, 4, St. Peter Street, St. Albans.

WANTED, by a Young Man, an ENGAGEMENT as GENERAL ASSISTANT or MANAGER of MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Fair Pianist, Bookkeeper, &c. First-class reference given. Apply, H. C., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, by a Young Man, of good address and fair knowledge of music, a SITUATION as TRAVELLER and CANVASSER. Good salesman. Excellent references. J. J., 1, High Street, Rotherfield.

WANTED, a PARTNER in a MUSIC BUSINESS in the county of Kent (established upwards of 30 years). A person clever in the tuning department, with a small capital, would find this an eligible opportunity seldom met with. Apply, by letter, to H. W., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE and General MUSIC BUSINESS for SALE, in a main Road in Suburb of London. Established 18 years. Satisfactory reasons for leaving. From £500 to £700 required for lease, fixtures and stocks. Apply, first by letter, to A. B., 54, Paternoster Row, London.

PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS for SALE. Price £1,500. Established 40 years. Satisfactory reasons for retiring. Address, C. A. B., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PARTNERSHIP or BUSINESS for DISPOSAL.—A Gentleman with about £2,000 wanted to take the place of a Retiring Partner in a West-End Music Publishing and General Music Business, or arrangements could be made for the disposal of the business. Address, in first instance, to A. Z., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, London, W.

MUSIC BUSINESS for SALE, in the centre of South Yorkshire Coal Fields. The premises (furnished or otherwise), with early possession, goodwill, stock in trade, and good Tuning Connection. Another remunerative business carried on on the same premises. May be taken together or otherwise. A splendid opening for a Teacher of Music. Apply, C. A., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TEACHING, TUNING, and HIRING CONNECTION for SALE. Pianos, part furniture, and introduction, for £150 net cash. A good opportunity to an immediate purchaser. Apply to Bargain, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED to PURCHASE, a TUNING CONNECTION (Pianoforte) in town or country; or advertiser will tune on commission. Address, J. W., Sandall House, Sandall Road, N. W.

SHEET-MUSIC.—GREAT SALE previous to Removal.—20s. worth of best MUSIC, Songs, Dances, and Pieces, for 8d.; post-free, 1s. WILLIAM LEA, 57, Church Street, Liverpool.

OLD MUSIC BOUGHT and SOLD.—Church Music, Full Scores, Oratorios, Biographies, Histories, Treatises, Glees, Madrigals, Organ Music. Full value and cash payments. Reeves's Depot for Old Music, Fleet Street, London.

MARRIOTT and WILLIAMS, Music Publishers, Academy House, 313, Oxford Street, London. Universal Music Warehouse. Authors' Works Engraved, Printed, and Published in the best style at the most moderate charges. Estimates on application.

TO AMATEURS and PROFESSORS about to PUBLISH.—J. McDOWELL, 25, Warwick Street, Regent Street, London, undertakes Revising, Engraving, Printing, and Publishing all musical works, in the best manner, at lowest possible terms. Estimates given on receipt of MS.

IMPORTANT TO MUSICSELLERS.—Having the largest varied stock of Music in Europe, orders received in the morning are executed the same day, or if in stock posted immediately, if required. Terms upon application. London: B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster Row, E.C.

AUTHORS' WORKS CORRECTED, REVISED, and PRINTED with despatch on moderate terms. Quotations given on receipt of MSS. London: B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster Row, E.C.

ACCURATE METRONOMES, 1s., post-free. Rudiments of Singing, 1s. per dozen. Singing-Glass Tutor, 12th edition, 6d. each. D. Scholefield, Trinity Street, Huddersfield.

CC ORGAN. By London Builder, 1 manual, 6 stops,  $1\frac{1}{2}$  octaves of pedals; illuminated speaking pipes. £25. C. Lloyd and Co., Brighton Street, Nottingham.

CC ORGAN. By London Builder, 2 full manuals, 16 stops, oak case, illuminated speaking pipes; pedal organ, &c. Suitable for Church or Chapel. £125. C. Lloyd and Co., Organ Builders, Brighton Street, Nottingham.

CHURCH ORGAN, 2 manuals, pedal bourdon, couplers, &c.; spotted metal; decorated front; a perfect instrument; to be SOLD. A reduced price taken, and credit given for half or more of money; room required for alterations to building. Particulars of W. Beales, Waterloo Place, Bromell's Road, Clapham.

TO GENTLEMEN and CONNOISSEURS.—A new and unique drawing-room ORGAN, of most costly construction and finish, is for immediate SALE. The instrument can be played upon at the new factory of Mr. A. Hunter, 65, High Street, Clapham, S.W. This is an opportunity worthy the attention of gentlemen desiring a modern instrument for the drawing-room, it being built for this express purpose. It contains 17 stops, including vox humana and tremulant, with beautiful polished walnut case. Stops of solid ivory. The instrument cost £500. Offers are requested for the same.

ORGAN.—For SALE, three manuals and pedal ORGAN. For particulars apply to Mr. W. W. Woodward, Organist, Derby.

ORGAN for SALE, nearly new, 2 manuals, 14 stops, bourdon pedals, 30 notes. Lowest price, 100 guineas; cost £250. A. B., Chalcot House, High Street, Hampstead, London.

ORGAN for SALE.—Suit small Chapel; mahogany carved case. Good condition. Price £14. Address, J. Miller, Coggeshall, Essex.

CC CHAMBER ORGAN, swell, 5 stops, 5 octaves, fine tone, pedals 29 notes, full scale. Solid mahogany case. Hand and foot blowers. Cash, £40. A, 177, Albany Street, N.W.

CHAMBER ORGAN for SALE, compass CC to G, great organ 4 stops, swell organ 4 stops, separate pedal bourdons. To be seen at A. Hunter's New Organ Factory, 65A, High Street, Clapham, S.W.

ORGAN.—A small sweet-toned ORGAN, with two rows of keys and 16 stops, adapted for a small Church or Mission Room, for SALE. Apply to Rev. M. A. Oxon, 12, Fasset Square, Dalston.

TWO-MANUAL ORGAN, built two years ago, for SALE; 17 stops. W. E. Richardson, Central Organ Works, Hulme, Manchester.

HANDSOME CHAMBER ORGAN (2 manuals, 9 stops) in solid rosewood case. Built by GRAY and DAVISON. To be sold. No reasonable offer refused. Apply, Q. M., 34, Penn Road, N.

FOR SALE, a PIPE ORGAN, containing open and stopped diapasons and principal; plenty of power, and in perfect order. An octave of pedals. Suitable for Church or Schoolroom, or for practice. £12 10s. Apply to Thos. Smith, Music Warehouse, Bury St. Edmunds.

SMALL Chamber Pipe ORGAN, in perfect order, by FATHER SCHMIDT, in mahogany case, 6 stops,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  octaves pedals, and stool. £40, or will exchange for good piano. Morley, 2, Beaconsfield Terrace, Addison Road Station, W.

ORGAN, two CC manuals, independent pedal organ, 18 stops. Splendid instrument; equal to new. A bargain worth notice. Disposed of, larger being built. £150. Ingram, Burnard Place, Eden Grove, Holloway, N.

TWO-MANUAL HARMONIUM, with  $2\frac{1}{2}$  (C to E) octaves of movable pedals, in veneered walnut case, 11 stops, independent reeds to pedals, couplers, &c. Just put into perfect order by a London manufacturer. To be SOLD, price 38 guineas. Woolley and Co., 3 and 5, Park Row, Nottingham.

ALEXANDRE HARMONIUM.—Prize model, 15 stops and percussion action. Suitable for a School, Church, or large Hall. Price 18 guineas. Address, F., care of J. W. Hime, 2, Elm Park Terrace, Fulham Road.

AMERICAN PEDAL ORGAN (MASON and HAMLIN), foot and hand blowers, swell and bench complete, nearly new. Cost 80 guineas; take 45 guineas. A. Hind, North Parade, Halifax.

ORGAN HARMONIUM.—For SALE cheap, handsome fine-toned instrument. 2 manuals, full compass of pedals, Venetian swell, hand and foot blowers. Organ, 1, Cawley Road, Victoria Park, E.

FOR SALE.—A very fine-toned ORGAN HARMONIUM, in splendid polished mahogany case, specially made for organ practice. 2 manuals, separate bowler, full pedal board, 12 stops. Apply, H. Millington, Organist, Trowbridge.

A BARGAIN.—A Gentleman wishes to DISPOSE of an Iron Frame Cottage PIANO. Price 30 guineas; cost 50; nearly new. A. Silvey, 26, Eton Street, Gloucester Road, N.W.

PIANOS, half-price.—In consequence of a change of partnership, the whole of this splendid stock, perfected with all the modern improvements of the day by this long-standing firm of 100 years' reputation, and in order to effect a speedy sale, the easiest terms arranged, with seven years' warranty. Trichord cottages from hire or taken in exchange, £10 to £12; class 0, £14; class 1, £17; class 2, £20; class 3, £23; class 4, £26; class 5, £30; class 6, £35; class 7, £40. American Organs from £5—91, Finsbury Pavement, Moorgate Station, E.C.

SECOND-HAND PIANOFORTES.—One hundred capital INSTRUMENTS (new and second-hand), HARMONIUMS, HARPS, VIOLINS, &c., will be Sold by Auction, by Messrs. DEBENHAM, STORR and SONS, at their Great Mart, King Street, Covent Garden, London, on THURSDAY, April 6, 1882. Catalogues post-free.

TO ORGANISTS.—PEDAL PIANO for SALE. Price £22. Apply to W. Howden Ferme, Ladywell, Haddington, N.B.

FOR SALE, a very fine VIOLIN, by a well-known English maker. Price £15; worth double. Messrs. Taylor and Co., 44, Corporation Street, Manchester.

SOLO VIOLIN, by JOSEPH GUARNERIUS. Warranted genuine. Hill's certificate. In fine preservation, and grand tone. Price £75. Address, Violin, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

FINE old Italian VIOLIN for SALE, cheap. Grand tone and condition, from the Gillot collection, with mahogany case and Dodd Bow. Also a fine old VIOLIN, by GILKES. Address, B., Clairmont House, Anchor Head, Weston-super-Mare.

WANTED, a fine perfect VIOLIN, by STRADIVARIUS or JOSEPH GUARNERIUS. Apply, M., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

VIOLINS, Tenors, Violoncellos, and Double-Basses, by CRASKE. These are the very best of all modern instruments, equal to Stradivarius and Guarnerius, at a tenth of the cost. Edward Crompton, 54, Barton Arcade, Manchester.

VIOLIN STRINGS to stand at Concert Pitch, five first (gut or silk) or two everlasting metallic strings sent free for thirteen stamps. Dean's Music Warehouse, 77, City Road, London, E.C. Established 1848. Price Lists sent free.

VIOLIN STRINGS.—The Trade and Shippers supplied with the best Italian Strings, finest in tone and unequalled in durability. Three sample Firsts sent post-free for thirteen stamps. London: Shepherd and Kilner, Music Publishers and Importers of Musical Instruments, Strings, &c., 7, Grocers' Hall Court, Poultry, E.C. Lists free.

FINE Italian VIOLONCELLO for SALE. Grand tone, excellent condition. Must be sold, as former owner is deceased. K., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

FOR SALE.—A fine-toned VIOLONCELLO, by GASPAR DE SALA. Moderate price. Inquire of Mr. Withers, 24, Wardour Street.

A CELLO, repaired by W. FORSTER, 1736, and also by BETTS, 1834; declared by Betts an old Italian instrument. Good condition, fine tone. Crotchets, Scotsford House, Tunbridge Wells.

WANTED to PURCHASE, a B flat CORNET, by COURTOIS; concert model; must be nearly new. Also Ballad HORN, by COURTOIS or BESSON. Also a complete set of Brass Instruments for a small band, by first-class maker, and nearly new. Address, W., care of Housekeeper, 3, Copthall Chambers, Throgmorton Street, London, E.C.

OFFERS requested for a HANDSOME BRONZE MEDAL, in case, awarded to Sir W. S. Bennett at the Exhibition of 1862. E. S. Harding, Maidenhead.

Robert Stanton Gildersleeve & Co.,
EXCELSIOR ORGAN WORKS,
EGBERT HALL, EGBERT STREET,
REGENT'S PARK, N.W.

R. S. G. LEARN UNDER MESSRS. WILLIS & SONS, ROTUNDA ORGAN WORKS, CAMDEN ROAD. MANY YEARS' GREAT EXPERIENCE.

Organs built on an improved principle; all the latest additions in action, &c.

Specifications for Building Organs, and Estimates for Repairs, on application, at greatly reduced prices.

Pipes well made, and carefully voiced to produce a rich and mellow tone.

Organs kept in good order; Tuning, &c., by the year or by contract. Terms low.

Pipes made and voiced for the trade.

TESTIMONIALS FROM EMINENT MUSICIANS.

IMPROVED ORGAN PEDALS AND ACTION TO PIANOFORTES.

J. HAMILTON, Inventor and Manufacturer (established 1874) of the above, will give very liberal terms to those who will act as AGENTS for the SALE of this successful and useful INVENTION. From £3 to £5 per week is now made by Agents appointed last year. Send an addressed and stamped envelope, for the special terms to Agents, inclosed to J. Hamilton, 6, Chesterton Terrace, City Road, Bristol.

J. HAMILTON would draw the attention of those requiring PEDALS and ACTION to their Pianofortes to the correspondence on page 46 of the Musical Standard for January 21, which shows the success of Pedals made by him according to the resolution of the Organ Conference at the College of Organists. The action is easily attached to any kind of Pianoforte in a short time.

A Set of Straight Pedals and Action (30 notes), price £4 4s.
A Set of Radiating and Concave Pedals and Action (30 notes), price £5 5s.

A Set of Straight and Concave Pedals, as recommended at the Organ Conference, 1881, and Action, price £5 5s.

Full printed instructions, "How to Attach," are sent with each set. Liberal discount to the Profession and Trade. Send for testimonials and terms to J. Hamilton, 6, Chesterton Terrace, City Road, Bristol.

IMPROVED ORGAN PEDALS AND ACTION TO PIANOFORTES.

J. HAMILTON, Inventor and Manufacturer (established 1874) of the above, will give very liberal terms to those who will act as AGENTS for the SALE of this successful and useful INVENTION. From £3 to £5 per week is now made by Agents appointed last year. Send an addressed and stamped envelope, for the special terms to Agents, inclosed to J. Hamilton, 6, Chesterton Terrace, City Road, Bristol.

ORGAN PEDALS TO PIANOFORTES
TO ORGAN STUDENTS AND ORGANISTS
RUMMENS'S ATTACHMENT

Is quite free from the defects and disadvantages of other modes of attachment. Humphrey J. Stark, Esq., Mus. Bac., Oxon, says: "Mr. Rummens's invention is a valuable one, as it entirely obviates the objections usually raised against pedal attachments."

Prices and full particulars from the Inventor, Patentee, and Manufacturer, Henry J. Rummens, 102, Railton Road, Brixton, London.

BRASS, REED, STRING, and DRUM and FIFE BANDS, PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, supplied at wholesale prices, at J. MOORE'S, Buxton Road, Huddersfield. Prices, with drawings of every instrument, post-free. Music for any kind of band. Patronised by the Army, Navy, and Rifle Corps.

T. R. WILLIS (established 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Music Strings, Wire, &c., Violins, Concertinas, &c. 29, Minories, London. List for stamp.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications made out for Organs. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing, and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. Willis, 29, Minories, London. PRACTICE can be had on a complete Instrument.

ORGAN METAL PIPE and BRASS REED MAKER. First-class workmanship. J. White, 9, Richmond Terrace, Bedminster, Bristol.

THE "SNELL" HARMONIUM is the most perfect Reed Instrument ever made, combining all the characteristics of modern organ manufacture with a low price. Vide testimonials from Lord Bishop of Colombo, &c. Price Lists free, of E. and W. Snell, Manufacturers, King Street North, Camden Town, London, N.W. Trade and profession supplied. N.B.—New and artistic designs. Church Park, New Brompton, February 17, 1882.

Sirs,—I have received the Harmonium safe, and have much pleasure in informing you that it is everything that one would wish; and I am quite sure that as long as you supply such instruments in tone and finish, you will be sure to meet with success and fear no competition. The case I have returned by rail. Accept my thanks for carrying out the order to my satisfaction.—Yours, &c.,
A. GRAHAM,
E. and W. SNELL, London.

CARPENTER'S IMPROVED AMERICAN ORGANS and REED ACTIONS. WORKS—WORCESTER, MASS., U.S.A. Agents throughout the United Kingdom.

THE CONCERT SEASON.—The Grand Orchestral Action, 17 stops (11 sets of reeds), in new patent chancel case, is a splendid organ for concert or church use. It is the best and cheapest organ manufactured.

Pedal Organs, with one or two manuals and accessories.
The Professor's Organ, 15 stops, 7 sets of reeds, from 35 guineas.
The new COTTAGE ORGAN, 4 sets of reeds, 8 stops, including "Sub-Bass" and "Vox-Humana," 20 guineas. An effective organ.

School Organs, in elegant cases, from 12 guineas.

THE PATENT "AERO-DYNAMIC EXPRESSION INDICATOR" and "VOX-HUMANA" may be had in any style of action. Organs for India and tropical countries.

N.B.—All organs warranted for six years. See that all actions have the "Carpenter" Trade Mark.

Catalogues post-free. Liberal discount for cash.
Address, John A. Matthews, Sole Wholesale Manager for Great Britain and Colonies, 9, North Place, Cheltenham.

VIOLIN AND BOW

MAKERS AND REPAIRERS,

GEORGE WITHERS &amp; CO.

(Late of Coventry Street),

WHOLESALE IMPORTERS OF

MUSICAL STRINGS

FROM ROME, PADUA, AND NAPLES.

A FINE COLLECTION OF ITALIAN INSTRUMENTS.

Bows, Cases, Music Stands, &amp;c. See Price Lists.

51, ST. MARTIN'S LANE, LONDON.

NO OTHER ADDRESS.

PARIS UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION, 1878.—
CLASS XII.—GOLD and SILVER MEDALS, PARIS, 1878;
GOLD MEDAL, PARIS, 1879; GOLD MEDAL, ROME, 1880,
and TWO DIPLOMAS.

ARTISTIC HOUSE,

PARIS, 10, RUE DU FAUBOURG-POISSONNIÈRE, 10, PARIS.

CH. J. B. COLLIN-MÉZIN,

VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, AND BOW MAKER.

The celebrated Violins and Violoncellos for Soloists, which, since the adoption of the new system, are the only approved and played by the greatest masters; among others, Messrs. SIVORI, MARSIK, HOLLMANN, LEONARD, ARMIGAUD, Miss MARIE TAYAU, &c., &c., Messrs. MASSART, SAUZAY, DANCLA, FRANC-HOMME, MAURIN, CHEVILLARD, JACQUARD, &c., Professors at the Conservatoire of Music, Paris.

PRICES.

VIOLIN ... £12 | TENOR ... £14 | VIOLONCELLO £20
BOW (in Pernambuco, silver-mounted, first-class), £1 4s.; Collin-Mézin, £1 12s.

Catalogues and testimonials post-free on application.

MALEY, YOUNG, & OLDKNOW,
ORGAN BUILDERS,

Manufactory:

KING'S ROAD, ST. PANCRAS, LONDON, N.W.

ORGANS Rebuilt to suit any position, Repaired, Enlarged, Tuned, and Re-voiced (in any part of the kingdom), at very moderate charges. Materials, workmanship, and tone guaranteed to be first-class. Specifications, estimates, and designs for chancel, bracket, chamber, and all descriptions of Organs.

N.B.—New and Second-hand Organs for Sale.

INSPECTION INVITED.

JAMES CONACHER AND SONS,
ORGAN BUILDERS,

BATH BUILDINGS, HUDDERSFIELD.

Specifications and Estimates free of charge.

A. MONK, ORGAN BUILDER.—Organs built to any specification or size, and to suit any position or limited space, in any part of the kingdom, or for foreign climates. All Organs guaranteed to be of best materials and workmanship, and constructed on the most improved principles, at moderate prices. Organs for sale or hire, or on easy terms. Price-list, specifications, estimates, and testimonials sent free. Old Organs taken in exchange or rebuilt. Additions, repairs, tunings, &c. Inspection of work solicited. 6, Sussex Terrace, top of Great College Street, Camden Town, London, N.W.

BUTLER'S MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

Violins, Guitars, and Banjos.

Flutes, Clarinets, and Flageolets.

Concertinas, Accordions, and Flutinas.

Harmoniums, Pianos, and Organs.

Cornets, Drums, and Band Instruments.

Musical Boxes and Musical Instruments of every description.

The largest and most varied assortment in the Kingdom.

G. BUTLER'S, 29, Haymarket, London.

Illustrated Catalogue, fifty pages, sent post-free.

EUSTACE INGRAM, Church Organ Builder, combines excellence of tone and workmanship with economy. Inspection invited. Organ Works, Burnard Place, Eden Grove, Holway Road, London, N.

Mr. Stedman's Musical Agency

(Established for the transaction of all Musical Business, Professional and General),

12, BERNERS STREET, LONDON, W.

Office Hours, 10 to 5; Saturday, 10 to 1.

TO CONCERT-GIVERS AND ENTREPRENEURS GENERALLY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform Projectors of Concerts, Secretaries of Institutions, and Entrepreneurs generally that he is prepared to arrange for large or small parties of artists of all positions in the profession, and for Concert Tours. All details of management undertaken without the slightest trouble to those favouring Mr. Stedman with their wishes. Terms upon application.

TO THE CLERGY.

MR. STEDMAN begs to inform the Clergy that he has established a REGISTRY OF ORGANISTS, CHOIRMEN, and CHORISTERS seeking APPOINTMENTS, which is open to their inspection, and they are invited either to call or to write stating their requirements. From his personal knowledge of the qualifications of Organists and Singers, Mr. Stedman is able to give the Clergy valuable information as a guide to selection.

CHURCH FESTIVALS arranged and carried out in all details.

CHOIR-BOYS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to supply good SOLO CHOIR-BOYS for Church Festivals, Choral Weddings, Concerts, &c.

MUSIC FOR BANQUETS, &c.

MR. STEDMAN undertakes the music (and all the necessary details) for Banquets of City Companies, Masonic Lodges, &c., at the shortest notice.

ORCHESTRAS AND CHOIRS.

MR. STEDMAN is prepared to provide CHOIRS and ORCHESTRAS for the performance of Oratorios and Cantatas.

MR. STEDMAN will be happy to advise his clients upon all professional matters, confidential or otherwise, either by letter or personally by previous appointment at his Offices, 12, Berners Street, London, W.

NEW MUSIC-ENGRAVING (STEAM PRINTING)

EXHIBITED IN

PARIS, VIENNA, and PHILADELPHIA.

Superior to Pewter Plates and Metal Types.

50 PER CENT. CHEAPER.

SPECIMENS and ESTIMATE

will be sent post-free on receipt of manuscript.

SONG, PIANO PIECE, &c. Engraving, Printing, and Paper:—

4 Pages, including Title, 100 Copies (Folio) ... £1 8 0

The following 100 Copies ... 0 4 0

ANTHEM, PART-SONG, KYRIE, HYMN, &c.—

4 Pages, including Heading, 100 Copies (Octavo) ... 1 2 0

The following 100 Copies ... 0 2 0

OPERA, CHORUS, BAND-PART, &c.; Sacred Music of any kind; BOOK with ILLUSTRATIONS; TITLES with Views, in colours, highly ornamental; COPYING old Books, Manuscripts, Drawings, &c., by Photography and Patent Processes.

Reprint supplied.

The most perfect Machinery and a large well-trained Musical Staff enable us to supply even the largest orders within the shortest time.

PATENT PAPER TYPE COMPANY,

62, HATTON GARDEN, LONDON, E.C.

Technical Studies for the Pianoforte

BY

LOUIS PLAIDY.

Translated into English from the third German edition.

Price 6s. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

Daily Studies for the Pianoforte

BY

CARL TAUSIG.

Collected from the manuscripts, and, after the design of the composer, arranged in progressive order, furnished with instructions for their practice, and edited by

H. EHRLICH.

New edition, with English words.

Book 1, 10s.; Book 2, 8s.; Book 3, 5s. Sold at half-price.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ARRANGEMENT OF SALES OF MUSICAL PROPERTY FOR 1882.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON beg to announce that they will hold their SPECIAL MONTHLY SALES OF MUSICAL PROPERTY of every description on the following dates:—

Friday, April 28.	Tuesday, July 25.	Tuesday, Oct. 17.
Tuesday, May 23.	" Aug. 15.	" Nov. 21.
" June 20.	" Sept. —	" Dec. 19.

Property intended for insertion in any of the above Sales, or particulars of same sufficiently detailed for the Catalogue, should reach us ten days prior to the dates mentioned.

Auction Gallery, 47, Leicester Square, London, W.C.

[Established 1794.]

A Collection of Antiquarian and other Music. Part of the Library belonging to Mr. Henry Leslie's Choir, Autographs, and MSS., &c.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON will Sell by Auction, at their House, 47, Leicester Square, W.C., on MONDAY, April 3, at ten minutes past 1 o'clock precisely, a large COLLECTION OF ANTIQUARIAN and other MUSIC, scarce Treatises, Autograph Letters and MSS., early and standard editions of Operas, Oratorios, and Masses, and part of the valuable Library of Vocal and Instrumental Music of Mr. Henry Leslie's Choir, &c. Catalogues on receipt of two stamps.

A very rare and interesting Collection of Antiquarian Music, Missals, Breviaries, &c.

MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON will Sell by Auction, at their House, 47, Leicester Square, W.C., on FRIDAY, April 28, and following day, at ten minutes past 1 o'clock precisely, a very rare COLLECTION OF ANTIQUARIAN MUSICAL WORKS, comprising Ambrosian and Gregorian Antiphonals, MS. and printed Breviaries, Missals, Books of Hours, and other Books of Devotion from the Eleventh Century; also rare Musical Treatises of Aaron, Artusi, Butler, Elerus, Galiforius, Gardanus, Heyden, Holzer, Isaac, Lossius, Morley, Paduanus, Prætorius, Willert, and others. Catalogues on receipt of six stamps.

KELLY and CO., PIANOFORTE and HARMONIUM MAKERS (to Her Majesty), 14 and 16, Mortimer Street, London, W.

Kelly's Organ Harmoniums are the "only instruments" of English manufacture that gained "any award" at the Dublin and Paris Exhibitions.

A liberal discount for Schools and Charitable Institutions.

Three hundred Second-hand Pianofortes by the leading makers, at all times very cheap. New Pianos (warranted), in elegant Walnut or Rosewood cases, from 19 guineas.

The Trade, Merchants, and Shippers supplied.

Quarterly Sale of Musical Property.—14 and 16, Mortimer Street, London, W. Important to the Trade, Profession, and Public in general. About One Hundred Pianofortes, by Collard, Broadwood, Kirkman, Erard, Allison, Hopkinson, Brinsmead, &c. Harmoniums and Organs by Christophe, Alexandre, Trayser, Hermann, Mason and Hamlin, Clough and Warren, &c. Harps by Erard, Erat, &c. Violins, Pianoforte Small Work, Music Stools, Quantity of Sheet Music by eminent Composers, &c.

MESSRS. KELLY & CO. beg to announce that they will Sell by Auction, at their Mart, 14 and 16, Mortimer Street, London, W., on WEDNESDAY, April 5, 1882, the important and valuable property as stated above. The Sale will commence at 12 o'clock precisely. Catalogues may be had post-free, and goods viewed the day prior and morning of Sale.

NOW READY, NEW EDITIONS OF

Novello, Ewer & Co.'s Catalogues

- No. 1. ORGAN AND HARMONIUM MUSIC.
- " 2. SACRED MUSIC WITH ENGLISH WORDS.
- " 3. MUSIC WITH VOCAL AND ORCHESTRAL PARTS.
- " 4. MUSIC FOR THE PIANOFORTE.
- " 5. SECULAR VOCAL MUSIC.
- " 6. SACRED MUSIC WITH LATIN WORDS.

Sent gratis and post-free.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

Reduced to 2s. 6d. per Volume.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

IN EIGHT VOLUMES

EACH CONTAINING FORTY-EIGHT CHORAL PIECES, SACRED AND SECULAR.

The attention of Conductors and Secretaries of Choral Societies is specially called to these Volumes, which offer a large collection of useful pieces at an exceedingly low cost.

Lists of Contents of each Volume may be had on application.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NEW FOREIGN PUBLICATIONS.

	s.	d.
AGGHAZY, C.—Evening Impression, for Violin and Piano ...	2	6
BACH, J. S.—Six Sonatas, for Piano and Violin, edited by F. Hermann ...	5	0
— Andante from the Italian Concerto, arranged for Violin and Piano, by Musin and D'Ernesti ...	3	6
BOOTH, O.—Serenade, for Voice, Violin, and Piano ...	3	6
CHOPIN.—Etude. Op. 25, No. 7, arranged for Violoncello and Piano, by J. de Swert ...	3	6
CLASSICAL and MODERN. COLLECTION of PIECES for Piano and Violin. Third Series:—
No. 1. Haydn.—"God preserve the Emperor" ...	3	0
" 2. Bach.—Sarabande and Bourrée, from the Second English Suite ...	3	0
" 3. — Sarabande and Gavotte, from the Third English Suite ...	2	0
" 4. — Adagio, B minor, from the Easter Cantata ...	2	0
ESCHMANN, J. C.—Lyrisches-Blatt, for Piano ...	2	0
FLÜGEL, E.—"Mahomets-Gesang," for Chorus and Orchestra. German Words. Vocal Score. Op. 24 ...	8	0
FORBERG, F.—Violoncello Method. German and French Words ...	12	0
GADE, N. W.—"The Crusaders," Cantata, arranged for Piano Duet ...	19	0
GOETZE, H.—Two Evening Songs for String Orchestra. Score and parts ...	4	0
GORIA, A.—Marche Triomphale, for Piano Duet. Op. 91 ...	5	0
GOUVY, TH.—Fantasia, for Two Pianos. Op. 69 ...	9	0
JADASSOHN, S.—"Troisted," for Chorus and Orchestra. Score, with German and English Words. Op. 65 ...	24	0
Orchestral Parts ...	25	0
Vocal Parts ...	7	0
JEFFERY, J. A.—Hunting Song, for Piano. Op. 7 ...	3	0
— Barcarole, for Piano. Op. 6 ...	3	0
JOACHIM, J.—Variations for Violin, with Orchestral accompaniment:—
Full Score ...	16	0
Orchestral Parts ...	18	0
Violin and Piano ...	12	0
KAUFMANN, F.—Trio, C minor, for Piano, Violin, and Violoncello. Op. 9 ...	20	0
LAMPE, C.—Trio in E, for Piano, Violin, and Violoncello. Op. 1 ...	18	0
LEIDERITZ, F.—Sketches. Small Pieces for Piano. Op. 3 ...	4	0
MAILLY, A.—Andante, from the Sonata for the Organ. Op. 1 ...	2	6
MOZART.—Divertimentos, arranged for Piano Duet, by E. Naumann:—
No. 13. In F ...	3	0
" 14. In B flat ...	4	0
" 16. In E flat ...	5	0
REINECKE, C.—Jubilee Overture. Op. 166:—
Full Score ...	12	0
Orchestral Parts ...	19	0
Piano Duet ...	6	0
RIEDEL, H.—Songs from Schaffel's "Trumpeter of Säkkingen." German and English Words, with Piano Accompaniment net	4	0
RÖNTGEN, J.—Concerto in D, for Piano and Orchestra. Op. 18. Parts ...	38	0
Piano Part, with Accompaniment of a second Piano ...	15	0
— Improvisata on a Norwegian Melody, for Piano ...	4	0
ROSSINI.—Overture, "La Gazza Ladra," arranged for Piano Duet, Violin (or Flute), and Violoncello ...	14	0
RÜBNER, C.—Trio for Piano, Violin, and Violoncello. Op. 9 ...	19	0
SAURET, E.—Selection from Mendelssohn's "Lieder ohne Worte," arranged for Piano and Violin. Two books each	7	0
SCHUMANN.—Carneval, for Piano. Op. 9. In separate numbers:—
Nos. 1 and 21 ...	2	0
" 2 to 20 ...	1	0
STANFORD, C. V.—Quartet in F, for Piano, Violin, Viola, and Violoncello. Op. 15 ...	28	0
STANGE, M.—Andante for Violin and Piano. Op. 1 ...	4	0
— Polonaise in G, for Piano Duet. Op. 6 ...	4	0
SWERT, J. DE.—Collection of Celebrated Pieces for Violoncello and Piano:—
Suite VI. Buononcini.—Sonata ...	4	6
" VII. Pasqualini.—Sonata ...	4	6
" VIII. Martini.—Sonata ...	4	6
Second Violoncello Part to the above ...	4	0
TARDIF, L.—Douze Prières, for Organ or Harmonium ...	5	0
TERSCHAK, A.—Third Sonata for Flute and Piano. Op. 175 ...	10	6
WAGNER, R.—"Götterdämmerung." Vocal Score, with German Words. Octavo ...	15	0
— "Tristan and Isolde," for Piano Solo ...	8	0

Sold at half-price, if not marked net.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

SHORT PIECES for the ORGAN.

Edited and arranged by WILLIAM SPARK, Mus. Doc., Organist of the Town Hall, Leeds. Price of each Book, Four Shillings.

Book I.—Prayer ...	Arcadelt.
Andantino, D major ...	Batiste.
Larghetto ...	Spohr.
Alla Marcia, D major ...	Chopin.
Andantino, F major ...	W. Spark.
Andante, C major ...	W. H. Nichols.
Book II.—Voluntary ...	J. S. Bach.
Adagio ...	Louis Spohr.
Andantino ...	D. Hemingway.
March in "Scipio" ...	Handel.
Prelude ...	E. W. Prevost.
Book III.—Adagio Religioso, "Hymn of Praise" ...	Mendelssohn.
Adagio, F major ...	Pleyel.
Sarabande, D minor ...	J. S. Bach.
Gavotte, D major ...	J. S. Bach.
Prelude ...	E. W. Healey.
Book IV.—Andante, "Julius Caesar" ...	Handel.
Prayer, Larghetto Maestoso ...	Bellini.
Marcia Religiosa ...	Gluck.
Andante Cantabile, Trio, C minor ...	Beethoven.
Prelude ...	August Wilhelm Bach.
Book V.—Moderato and Allegro, from the seventh Concerto ...	Corelli.
Andante Grazioso ...	Dussek.
Andante, from the Concerto in G minor ...	Mendelssohn.
Andante, from Op. 83 ...	Stephen Heller.
" But Thou didst not leave" ...	Handel.
Book VI.—March, from the second Set of Sonatas ...	Handel.
Prelude ...	Gebhardt.
Andante molto Cantabile, from Sonata, Op. 109 ...	Beethoven.
Larghetto ...	W. Weber.
Andante Sostenuto ...	Mendelssohn.
Book VII.—Trumpet Voluntary ...	Purcell.
Duet, from the "Vater unser" ...	Spohr.
" Ich grolle nicht," Song ...	Schumann.
Andante, from the twelfth Symphony ...	Mozart.
Minuet and Trio, from the twelfth Symphony ...	Mozart.
Book VIII.—Ave Maria ...	Cherubini.
Adagio, from the Symphony in G major. No. 16 ...	Haydn.
Alla Marcia ...	Michael Haydn.
Andante quasi Larghetto ...	Dussek.
Intermezzo ...	W. Spark.
Book IX.—Voluntary, Andante, A major ...	Samuel Wesley.
Chorus "So shalt thou gain" ("Hercules") ...	Handel.
Andantino, F major ...	S. Neukomm.
Introduction to the third part of "The Creation" ...	Haydn.
Andante, Air for Soprano ...	Lindpaintner.
Book X.—March, D major ...	Hummel.
Pie Jesu, from the Requiem Mass ...	Cherubini.
Melody, F major ...	Adolphe Nordmann.
Air, "Ne men con l'ombri" ("Xerxes") ...	Handel.
Andante Moderato, C major ...	F. Lachner.
Book XI.—Romanza, from the second Concerto ...	Mozart.
Quintet, "Giuri ognuno" ...	Rossini.
Adagio Cantabile, Sonata Pathétique ...	Beethoven.
Bourrée, D major ...	Handel.
Book XII.—Chant de Berceau, from Op. 31 ...	Stephen Heller.
Andante, G minor, from a Sonata ...	Haydn.
Adagio, D major, from a Sonata ...	Pinto.
Träumerei, Lento, F major ...	R. Schumann.
Book XIII.—Lord, remember David ...	Handel.
L'Addio ...	Schubert.
Diapason Movement ...	J. P. Kirnberger.
"Caro mio ben" ...	Giordani.
O Salutaris Hostia ...	Auber.
Book XIV.—"Spirto gentil" ...	Donizetti.
Moderato, Alla Marcia ...	Donizetti.
Minuet, E major ...	Handel.
Larghetto, seventh Concerto ...	Mozart.
Book XV.—Ave Verum ...	Mozart.
March, C major ...	Purcell.
Andantino, G major ...	Dussek.
Andante Maestoso, Overture, "Tannhäuser" ...	Wagner.
Concluding Voluntary, C major ...	Hesse.
Book XVI.—Theme, C major, from Concerto, Op. 64 ...	Mendelssohn.
Chorus, "Les Huguenots" ...	Meyerbeer.
Recitative, "Armida dispietata" ...	Handel.
Aria, "Lascia ch'io pianga" ...	Haydn.
Minuet, D major ...	Old German.
Volkslied, G major ...	Beethoven.
Book XVII.—Adagio, B flat, "La Malinconia" ...	Handel.
Air, "Verdi prati" ...	Dussek.
Larghetto, Theme from Op. 9 ...	W. Kaus.
Larghetto, F major ...	F. Hiller.
Andante Sostenuto, C minor ...	Batiste.
Book XVIII.—Ave Maria, Soprano Air ...	J. S. Bach.
Adagio, E flat ...	Beethoven.
Andante Grazioso, D major ...	H. Jaeschke.
Fugue, C major ...	Gluck.
Book XIX.—Arietta con Coro, "Invano alcun desir" ...	Batiste.
O Salutaris ...	Beethoven.
Prelude, C major ...	Mozart.
Andante, F major ...	A. Hesse.
Book XX.—Organ Theme, A flat ...	F. Schubert.
Theme, A flat ...	Handel.
Chorus, "We therefore pray Thee" (Dettingen Te Deum) ...	Mendelssohn.
Volkslied, "Hope" ...	Gluck.
Andantino, F major ...

London: ASHDOWN &amp; PARRY, Hanover Sq.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S STANDARD MUSICAL WORKS:—

DR. MARX'S SCHOOL of MUSICAL COMPOSITION. 11s. 3d.

DR. MARX'S UNIVERSAL SCHOOL of MUSIC. 9s.

DR. MARX'S MUSIC of the NINETEENTH CENTURY. 9s.

DR. MARX'S SELECTION of PIANOFORTE WORKS from BACH. 6s.

RIMBAULT'S HISTORY and CONSTRUCTION of the ORGAN. 26s. 3d.

RIMBAULT'S HISTORY of the PIANOFORTE. 15s. 9d.

SPOHR'S GREAT VIOLIN SCHOOL. 15s. 9d.

ALBRECHTSBERGER'S THEORETICAL WORKS. 2 vols., 15s. 9d.

BEST'S (W. T.) ORGAN STUDENT. 2 vols., each 15s. 9d.

BEST'S (W. T.) COLLECTION of ORGAN COMPOSITIONS. 2 vols., each 15s. 9d.

BEST'S (W. T.) COLLECTION of the CHORUSES of HANDEL (130). Organ, price 39s. 6d., or in 24 books, 1s. 3d. to 4s. 9d. each.

BEST'S (W. T.) MODERN SCHOOL for the ORGAN. 23s. 8d.

CAMPAGNOLI'S METHOD on the VIOLIN. 15s.

CHERUBINI'S THEORETICAL WORKS. 2 vols., 12s. 6d.

Payment received in stamps or by Post-Office order.—MUSIC PUBLISHERS TO THE QUEEN and H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, 6, New Burlington Street, London.

B. WILLIAMS'S THEORETICAL WORKS.

HARMONY SIMPLIFIED.

A concise Treatise on Harmony, Thorough Bass, and Modulation, for the use of Students. By FARLEY NEWMAN. In paper cover, 1s. 6d. net; bound in cloth, 2s. 6d. net.

ALFRED MULLEN'S EASY and COMPLETE INSTRUCTIONS for the PIANOFORTE.

The most simple and progressive work yet compiled. A great favourite with Teachers and the profession generally. 2s. net.

THE ORGAN OLIO.

Edited by ARTHUR HENRY BROWN. A Collection of Short Pieces for the Organ or Harmonium by various Composers. 2s. net.

SELECT COMPOSITIONS FROM THE GREAT MASTERS.

Arranged for the Organ, with Pedal Obbligato, by ARTHUR HENRY BROWN. In numbers, 3s. each. Vols. 1, 2, and 3 now ready, each containing 20 numbers, bound in cloth, price One Guinea. Complete list on application.

A SERIES of CLASSICAL, SACRED, and POPULAR WORKS

For the Harmonium or American Organ. Each 1s. 6d. net. Complete list on application.

CATECHISM OF MUSIC.

By ALFRED MULLEN. 1s. net.

GRAMMAR OF MUSIC.

By CALLCOTT. 2s. 6d. net.

ORCHESTRATION:

A Complete Course of Instructions for arranging Music in Score for Voices, Orchestra, Military and Brass Bands, with the compass of all the Wind Instruments in general use. By M. CORRI. 8s.
London: B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster Row, E.C.

ROYAL COLLEGE of MUSIC.—Hints on Pronunciation; with Proposals for a self-supporting Academy. Letters from the Prime Minister, Gounod, Benedict, &c., by GEORGINA WELDON (3rd edition, revised, and enlarged). One Shilling.

THE TWO PATHS (an Essay on the Voice). By CHARLES LUNN. One Shilling.

GOUNOD in ENGLAND. English edition by GEORGINA WELDON. Complete in two vols., 10s. 6d. (French edition in the press.)

ALL the MUSIC SONG and composed by Mrs. WELDON: Music and Art Association, 23, Oxford Street.

ORATORIOS, &c., Voice and Band Parts (second-hand, cheap). List on application. 231, Mare Street, Hackney.

Just published, New Edition. Printed from Engraved Plates.
FULL ORCHESTRAL SCORE

OF

SIR W. STERNDALE BENNETT'S

CANTATA

THE MAY QUEEN

Price Two Guineas.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

DAILY STUDIES

AND

COMPLETE PEDAL SCALES

FOR THE ORGAN

BY

GEORGE ERNEST LAKE.

Price One Shilling.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

ALBANY

GRANDE MARCHE TRIOMPHALE

COMPOSED IN HONOUR OF THE MARRIAGE OF

HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS PRINCE LEOPOLD
FOR THE PIANOFORTE.

By GABRIEL DAVIS.

Price Two Shillings net.

Also transcribed for the Organ by Dr. W. J. WESTBROOK, price Two Shillings net.

New Edition.

MY LADY BARBARA'S GAVOTTE,

For Piano, price 2s. net.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just published.

TWO SONGS

COMPOSED BY

H.R.H. THE PRINCESS BEATRICE,

THE WORDS BY

B. DISRAELI.

THE BLUE-EYED MAIDEN'S SONG.

THE GREEN CAVALIER'S SONG.

Each post-free for 24 stamps.

LAMBORN COCK, 23, Holles Street, Oxford Street.

Just published.

THE MAJOR and MINOR SCALES, in various Forms and Rhythms (duple and triple time).

MAJOR SCALES,

In octaves, tenths, sixths, and contrary motion.

MINOR SCALES (in two forms).

In octaves, tenths, sixths, and contrary motion: No. I., with the augmented second between the minor sixth and major seventh, ascending and descending; No. II., with the sixth and seventh degrees accidentally raised in the ascending scale, the descending scale being like the relative major.

COMPILED FOR THE USE OF PIANOFORTE STUDENTS BY

W. HENRY THOMAS.

Price 5s. Sold at half-price, viz., Half-a-Crown.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PART-SONG for the SPRING of the YEAR.

SPRING GUSTS

BY

W. HENRY THOMAS.

Reduced price, 4d. net.

(The above part-song will be sung at Foresters' Hall, Clerkenwell, on April 3, and at Tufnell Park, on April 18.)

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

UNCHANGING LOVE

SOPRANO SONG (Compass C to G),

Sung by Madame EDITH WYNNE.

COMPOSED BY W. HENRY THOMAS.

Price 4s. Sold at half-price.

(The above song will be sung at Beckenham on April 19.)

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW COMPOSITIONS by ALFRED J. CALDICOTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (winner of Manchester and Huddersfield Glee Prizes):—

Part-Songs—Out on the Waters ... ..	4d.
The Haymakers ... ..	4d.
Yule ... ..	4d.
Jack and Jill ... ..	4d.
Little Jack Horner ... ..	6d.
Humpty Dumpty ... ..	6d.
Winter Days ... ..	4d.
Songs—The New Curate and Two Spoons... ..	each 2s.
Post-free of the Composer, Torquay. Special terms to Societies.

POPULAR PART-SONGS by W. W. PEARSON.

The Ironfounders (12th thousand) ... ..	3d.
The Stormy Petrel (soprano or tenor and bass solos) ... ..	3d.
The Coral Grove ... ..	3d.
Pibroch of Donuil Dhu (Sir Walter Scott) ... ..	3d.
Sweet Spring (madrigal) ... ..	3d.
The Ocean (Barry Cornwall) ... ..	3d.
Over the mountain-side (four-part serenade) ... ..	3d.
Soul of Living Music (soprano solo and chorus) ... ..	3d.
The Jäger Chorus (5th thousand) ... ..	3d.
The River ... ..	3d.
Departed Joys (Thomas Moore) ... ..	2d.
Summer and Winter ... ..	2d.
The Anglers (6th thousand) ... ..	2d.
Sweet to live amid the mountains (10th thousand) ... ..	2d.
The Dream of Home (Thomas Moore) ... ..	2d.
There's beauty in the deep (6th thousand) ... ..	1d.
Soldier, rest! (Sir Walter Scott) ... ..	1d.
Woods in Winter (Longfellow) ... ..	1d.
Autumn (Montgomery) ... ..	1d.
The sombre shadows of the night (trio for S.A.B.) ... ..	1d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

POPULAR COMPOSITIONS by GABRIEL DAVIS.

SONGS.

WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? (New Patriotic Song.) The Words written by F. E. Weatherly ... ..	s. d.
(Sung by Mr. THURLEY BEALE.)	4 0
KING CARNIVAL. The Words written by F. E. Weatherly	4 0
BY THE RIVER. The Words written by Herbert Gardner ... ..	4 0
ELSIE (The Flower Girl's Song) ... ..	4 0
(Sung by Miss ADA TOLKIEN.)
THE ZINGARA ... ..	4 0
(Sung by Miss JOSE SHERRINGTON.)
THE COMING YEAR. The Words written by Dean Alford	4 0
THE OLD MEADOW GATE. The Words written by R. Richardson ... ..	4 0

PART-SONGS, S.A.T.B.

THE THREE STARS ... ..	0 2
THE KNIGHT'S RETURN. 6th Edition ... ..	0 2
GOD SAVE THE PRINCE. 18th Edition ... ..	0 2
THE DISTANT SEA. 5th Edition ... ..	0 2
TO THE WOODS. 5th Edition ... ..	0 2
HARK! 'TIS MUSIC. 6th Edition ... ..	0 2
SWEET HOUR OF REST. 5th Edition ... ..	0 2
DAME WIGGINS OF LEE. (Humorous.) 5th Edition ... ..	0 2
DAME TROT. (Humorous.) 3rd Edition ... ..	0 2
WHO'S FOR THE QUEEN? (Patriotic Part-Song. For T.T.B.B.) 2nd Edition ... ..	0 3
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners Street, W., and 80 & 81, Queen Street, E.C.

WILLIAM J. YOUNG'S

Popular Part-Songs for S.A.T.B.

1. I love the merry spring-time ... ..	22nd thousand net	s. d.
2. Gaily through the greenwood ... ..	40th do.	0 2
3. O welcome, merry May ... ..	7th do.	0 2
4. The mountain maid ... ..	6th do.	0 2
5. Come o'er the mountain ... ..	8th do.	0 2
6. Hail, merry, merry Christmas ... ..	18th do.	0 2
7. Songs of praise the angels sang ... ..	6th do.	0 3
8. Blow, ye balmy breezes, blow ... ..	8th do.	0 3
9. Fairy revels ... ..	11th do.	0 3
10. Oh! peaceful vale of rest ... ..	6th do.	0 2
11. The merry bird ... ..	5th do.	0 3
12. Come, let us be merry and gay ... ..	5th do.	0 3
13. Forest echoes ... ..	9th do.	0 3
14. Haste, ye merry elves ... ..	5th do.	0 3
15. The streamlet (with soprano solo) ... ..	3rd do.	0 3
16. Sunshine and shadow ... ..	3rd do.	0 2
17. Sunny rays (with soprano solo) ... ..	3rd do.	0 3
18. A happy New Year ... ..	3rd do.	0 3
19. The coming of Spring ... ..	3rd do.	0 3
20. England's Glory ... ..	5th do.	0 3
21. A merry Christmas to you all ... ..	4th do.	0 3
22. The air resounds with music sweet ... ..	2nd do.	0 2
23. To a sleeping child ... ..	2nd do.	0 2
24. Our National Church ... ..	2nd do.	0 3
Ditto (Organ copy) ... ..	1st do.	1 6
May be sung without fee or licence.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW BARITONE SONG.—"The Life Boat." Music by H. T. BYWATER. Published by PATEY and WILLIS.

TWO-PART SONGS

WITH PIANOFORTE ACCOMPANIMENT

(For Schools and Classes).

MONARCH WINTER ... ..	Poetry by W. S. PASSMORE	2d.
THE SKYLARK ... ..	R. Y. STURGES	2d.
A SCHOOLBOY'S SONG ... ..	EDWARD LAWRENCE	2d.
A SPRING WELCOME ... ..	" "	2d.

MUSIC BY
STEPHEN S. STRATTON.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

DICKORY, DICKORY, DOCK. Humorous Glee for S.A.T.B. By ALFRED ALLEN, Composer of the celebrated Humorous March, "A Race between Two Walking Dolls." Price 4d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WILFORD MORGAN'S GRAND MARCHES. "CHRISTIAN THE PILGRIM" for ORGAN, with PEDAL OBLIGATO. 24 stamps, post-free. As played at Crystal Palace, Kuhe's Festival, and Promenade Concerts. Also for Piano solo:—
MARCIA GIUBILANTI
MARCHE JOYEUSE
MARCHE MILITAIRE
MARCH IN C MINOR
MORGAN and Co., 27, Charles Street, St. James's Square, London.

TO CONDUCTORS OF CHORAL SOCIETIES. Send thirty postage stamps, and receive by return a bound copy of WILFORD MORGAN'S semi-sacred cantata, "CHRISTIAN THE PILGRIM," a work admirably adapted for large or small Choral Societies; easy, but very effective. Chorus parts printed. MORGAN and Co., 27, Charles Street, St. James's Square, London.

TO ORGANISTS.—WILFORD MORGAN'S popular semi-sacred March, "CHRISTIAN THE PILGRIM," for Organ, with pedal obligato. Post-free, 18 stamps. MORGAN and Co., 27, Charles Street, St. James's, S.W.

TO PIANISTS.—WILFORD MORGAN'S GAVOTTE in G, as played at the St. James's Theatre and Promenade Concerts with great success. Sent free for 18 stamps. MORGAN and Co., 27, Charles Street, S.W.

MARCH OF THE JEWISH WARRIORS (with Chorus). Composed by GEO. SHINN, Mus. Bac., Cantab. Arranged for Organ, 1s. 6d. net; ditto for Pianoforte, 1s. 6d. net. Chorus of March (octavo), 1d. This march is most suitable for concerts, &c. "Sure to make a strong impression."—Tonic Sol-fa Reporter. "Will be sure to become popular."—South London Press. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SECOND THOUSAND.

Jack and the Beanstalk

COMIC CANTATA

FOR FOUR SOLO VOICES, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA.

BY

EDMUND ROGERS.

Price 3s. net.

"The Grosvenor Choral Society gave its 119th Concert at the Grosvenor Hall on Friday, the 20th inst., when the principal work in the evening's programme was a comic cantata, entitled 'Jack and the Beanstalk,' by Edmund Rogers. The work performed on Friday is for four solo voices and a chorus, and is a musical setting of the well-known nursery legend. The music of the cantata is conceived in a vein in harmony with the spirit of the story, and consists of eight numbers, preceded by a characteristic overture. It is unnecessary to specify in detail the whole of the several numbers, but the soprano air, 'For when he set them in the earth,' is a very happy conception, well worked out, marked by much flowing and spontaneous grace, and is withal thoroughly original. The solo allotted to the alto is equally well conceived, and forms a fitting companion to it; the bass solo, 'Fee, fi, fee, fo, fum,' being very quaintly scored, and the most humorous number in the work. Many of the choruses are marked by much attractive writing. . . . The hall was crowded."—The Queen, January 28, 1882.

"The 119th monthly Concert of the Grosvenor Choral Society was given at the Grosvenor Hall on the 20th ult., under the direction of Mr. G. R. Egerton. The principal feature in the programme was the comic cantata 'Jack and the Beanstalk,' by Edmund Rogers."—The Musical Times, February 1, 1882.

"We can recommend 'Jack and the Beanstalk,' . . . it is tuneful, and not difficult, and would serve to pass away a winter's evening pleasantly."—The Graphic.

"Will doubtless prove very popular, and be heard in many drawing-rooms."—Society.

For special terms to Choral Societies apply to the Composer
4, Melrose Gardens, West Kensington Park, W.

"Love labor; hate lordship"; and ~~and~~ make not yourself known to the <sup>great</sup> ~~government~~."

Maimonides supposes that this conceals an admonition to avoid heretical teachers.
It may also admonish against political entanglements.

34,5860

34

1 Some ~~say~~ translate; Love the work, but hate the rabbiship.

EIGHTY-FIRST EDITION.

PRICE ONE SHILLING, ENLARGED.

*A specimen copy post-free for twelve stamps.COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL SIGHT-SINGING MANUAL.

FOR CHOIRS.—The easiest system that can be obtained for training, improving, and learning to read music at sight.

FOR SCHOOLS.—Every requisite for learning music and reading at sight in a few lessons.

FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.—The exercises will be found invaluable, tending to produce musical effects seldom heard.

COLLEGIATE ORGAN TUTOR

EDITED BY FREDERIC ARCHER.

3s. 6d. net.

"Well adapted for making an excellent player."

"For pedal-playing, any difficulties surmounted in a short time."

"Contains the most pleasing arrangements for the organ we have seen."

THIRTEENTH EDITION.

Paper cover, 1s.; bound in cloth, 1s. 6d.

CATHEDRAL CHANT-BOOK

Containing nearly 200 Single and Double Chants; Gregorian Tones.

Just published.

BOOKS 2, 3, &amp; 4,

COLLEGIATE AND SCHOOL
SINGING MANUALS

Containing

ROUNDS, FOUR-PART SONGS, MADRIGALS, MOTETTS,
CHORUSES, GLEES, &c.

Price One Shilling.

A specimen copy post-free for twelve stamps.

London: WEEKES and CO., 16, Hanover Street, W.

Second Edition.

SUPPLEMENTAL

BOOK OF EXERCISES

FOR THE USE OF THOSE

LEARNING TO SING AT SIGHT

COMPILED AND ARRANGED BY

HENRY GADSBY.

ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

New and Revised Edition.

THE

SCHOOL ROUND BOOK

A COLLECTION OF ONE HUNDRED

ROUNDS, CATCHES, AND CANONS

The Words Edited by the

REV. J. POWELL METCALFE, M.A.

The Music Edited by

J. STAINER, M.A., Mus. Doc.

Price 8d.; cloth, 1s. 2d.

IN SOL-FA NOTATION, 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Dedicated, by permission, to the College of Organists.

ON TUNING THE ORGAN: Illustrated.
Faults with remedies. Post-free, 2s. 6d. P.O.O. to A. HEM-
STOCK, Diss."Every page shows that Mr. Hemstock is master of his subject."—
Musical Standard."Contains much useful information."—Musical Times."A practical and useful book."—Music Trade Review.

REDUCED PRICE, ONE SHILLING.

A MANUAL OF SINGING

FOR THE USE OF

CHOIRTRAINERS &amp; SCHOOLMASTERS

BY

RICHARD MANN.

NEW AND REVISED EDITION, WITH ADDITIONS, BY

DR. STAINER.

This work offers to the clergy and other amateur choir-trainers a systematic and simple course of instruction, by which they may teach their pupils to read music at sight
in a comparatively short time.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

A COLLECTION

OF

TWO-PART SOLFEGGIIn the principal major keys, designed for the practice of Choristers
and Vocal Classes generally,

SELECTED FROM

DURANTE, HANDEL, LEO, SCARLATTI, STEFFANI,
NARES, WEBBE, &c.

BY

JAMES HIGGS,

Mus. Bac., Oxon.

ONE SHILLING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

32 pp., price 6d. Annual Subscription, 6s. 6d. post-free.

THE ORCHESTRA AND THE CHOIR.(Edited by W. A. BARRETT, Mus. B., F.R.S.L., &c.) A Monthly Review; Musical, Dramatic, and Literary.

Printers, SWIFT and Co.; sold by W. REEVES, Fleet Street, London.

Just ready.—Sixth Edition, price 6d.

GUIDE to the LOCAL EXAMINATIONS in ELEMENTARY MUSICAL KNOWLEDGE OF TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON. By FREDERIC CLARK, late Secretary to the College. Contains the set of four Examination Papers for December, 1881, with full Answers.

A. HAMMOND and Co., 5, Vigo Street, Regent Street, W.

A HANDBOOK to the EPIKLEIS and its Use for Pianists explains this useful invention, with exercises and illustrations. Highest testimonials. By post, 1s. JOHN POOLEY, North Fields, Thorne, Doncaster.SONG, "Come, May, with all thy flowers," by JOHN POOLEY. Words by Thomas Moore. The Graphic says: "A very pretty song." 1s., of Composer, North Fields, Thorne, Doncaster.THE DIATONIC and CHROMATIC SCALESfor STUDENTS' USE, edited by ARTHUR O'LEARY, Examiner to the Royal Academy of Music. The minor form as used at Academy,
National Training and High Schools. Complete, 6s.; Diatonic only,
3s. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.HARMONY NOTES. Compiled by E. M.
BOWLES. Price One Shilling."The modest title of this little book will scarcely perhaps sufficiently indicate its value."—Musical Times."A great deal of information as to what is generally called 'Thorough Bass' is presented in a concise form, as well as the principles of Harmony."—Orchestra.

London: LAMBORN COCK, 23, Holles Street, Oxford Street, W.

Now ready, for April, 48 pp., 2d.; post-free, 3d.

MUSICAL OPINION AND MUSIC TRADE
REVIEW. PITMAN; and to order of all Book and Musicsellers.

Just published.

FALSE IMPROMPTU, for the Pianoforte. By

ALLEN GORDON CAMERON. Price 3s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE PEERAGE, BARONETAGE, and KNIGHTAGE of the BRITISH EMPIRE for 1882, by JOSEPH FOSTER.In one or two volumes, royal 8vo, cloth gilt, price 42s. The Peerage or Baronetage separate, each, 21s.The THIRD EDITION, for 1882, containing all new Creations, has been considerably enlarged and carefully corrected throughout.
It is illustrated by upwards of 1,400 engravings of Arms, &c., and contains fuller pedigrees than any other work.Westminster: NICHOLS and SONS, 25, Parliament Street.
CHAPMAN and HALL, Limited, 11, Henrietta Street, W.C.

THE HYMNARY

A BOOK OF CHURCH SONG.

THE FOLLOWING EDITIONS ARE NOW READY:

No.				s. d.
1.	Hymns only.	Royal 24mo.	Bourgeois Antique. Cloth, red edges	1 0
2.	Hymns only.	Royal 24mo.	Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Cloth, red edges	0 6
3.	Hymns only.	Royal 24mo.	Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Limp cloth	0 4
4.	Hymns only.	Royal 24mo.	Nonpareil Antique. Double Columns. Paper cover	0 3
5.	Hymns with Tunes.	Demy 8vo.	Cloth	4 0
6.	Hymns with Tunes.	Demy 8vo.	Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	5 0
7.	Hymns only.	Demy 8vo.	Cloth	3 0
8.	Hymns with Tunes.	Demy 8vo.	Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	4 0
9.	Hymns with Tunes.	Treble part only.	Royal 24mo	1 6
10.	Hymns with Tunes.	Treble part only.	Royal 24mo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	2 0
11.	Hymns with Tunes.	Small post 8vo.	to bind with the Pearl 8vo Prayer Book. Cloth	2 6
12.	Hymns with Tunes.	Ditto.	Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	3 0
13.	Hymns with Tunes.	Large type.	Imperial 8vo. Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt lettered, red edges	7 0
Selections of Hymns with Tunes for Advent, Christmas, Easter, and Harvest, price One Penny each.
A Discount of 20 per Cent. will be allowed to the Clergy, for Cash, when not less than six copies of one edition are taken.
Applications for permission to print the Hymns and Tunes for Choral Festivals should be addressed to the Publishers.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE BRISTOL TUNE-BOOK

SUPPLEMENT 1881, CONTAINING 37 TUNES, 6d.
TO MATCH EITHER EDITION.

No. 9.	The complete work, containing 751 Tunes and Chants.	s. d.
10.	Limp cloth	4 0
11.	Cloth boards	5 0
12.	Small edition	3 0
13.	Tonic Sol-fa	3 0

First and Second Series can still be had separate.

THE BOOK OF PSALMS (BIBLE VERSION),
With Canticles and Anthems.

Pointed for Chanting for Congregational use ... 1 3
(Offered in quantity at reduced price per dozen.)

The Pointing is of the simplest plan, easily understood, and without multiplication of marks and accents, which tend to confuse rather than help.

Communications and inquiries as to copyrights, and also as to supplies of these works: at reduced prices, may be addressed to the Compilers, at Clare Street, Bristol.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.; BRISTOL: W. AND F. MORGAN;
And all Booksellers and Musicsellers.

THE ANGLICAN HYMN-BOOK.

SECOND EDITION. REDUCED PRICES.

Words and Music, 4to, cloth, price 4s. 6d.; 18mo, 1s. 9d.; Treble, 16mo, 1s. Words only, 9d. and 6d.; paper, 4½d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.; and SIMPKIN AND MARSHALL.

Second Thousand.

HOW AMIABLE ARE THY DWELLINGS, for Solo, Quartet, and Chorus. Anthem. Suitable for anniversary festival or ordinary services, by W. H. WILSON. "There is much we like in this anthem. It is vocal and melodious, and might with careful singing become very effective."—Musical Times. "It is within the powers of a fair choir, and worthy the attention of good ones."—Musical Standard. Price 3d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Third Edition.

THE WIDOW OF NAIN

SACRED CANTATA

FOR SOLI VOICES AND CHORUS

BY

ALFRED J. CALDICOTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab.

Performed with great success at the Worcester Musical Festival.

Band parts on application. Piano Score, paper, 3s.; boards, 4s.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Post-free of the Composer, Worcester.

Easy and effective.
ANTHEM

GOD IS OUR HOPE AND STRENGTH

Written expressly for Parish Choirs by FRANK BATES, Mus. Bac.

This Anthem has been sung at several Choral Festivals.

"Just the thing for village choirs."—Church Times.

Price Threepence.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just published.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS, set to music in the key of G, by ALFRED J. DYE. Price 4d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS. Set to music with special regard to the poetical structure of the hymn, by the Rev. V. W. FOPHAM, M.A. Price 4d.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Books I. to VIII., New Series, 1s. each.

COLLECTION OF KYRIES, &c. Compiled, &c. by W. T. FREEMANTLE, Sheffield. Separate Numbers (Nos. 1 to 98), 1d. each.

SPOHR'S 24TH PSALM. Net, 9d. and 2s.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Reduced Price, 3d.

G. A. MACFARREN'S CANTATE DOMINO and DEUS MISERATUR. For Voices in Unison and Organ. 8vo. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

REDUCED TO THREEPENCE EACH.

G. A. MACFARREN'S TWO-PART ANTHEM for small Choirs. First Series. Boys' and Female Voices. Second Series. Female and Male Voices.

These Anthems are available as Duets for private use.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE-BOOK, with the additional Tunes as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN; containing nearly 200 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; a Litany Tunes, &c. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

HERRING'S METRICAL TUNES, &c. 8vo, 12 pp., 6d. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

SUPPLEMENTAL TUNES to POPULAR HYMNS. Edited by Rev. E. HUSBAND. This Collection contains many tunes suitable for Missions.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

LET NOT YOUR HEART BE TROUBLED

Anthem. 4d. 5th edition.
THE LORD IS MY SHEPHERD. 4d. 3rd edition.
BENEDICITE, OMNIA OPERA. 8vo. 2d.
NICENE CRED. 6d. 2nd edition.
TWELVE KYRIES. 3d. 2nd edition.
ELEVEN OFFERTORY SENTENCES. 4d. 2nd edition.
Composed by CHARLES SWAIN.
LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NOW READY, by G. H. SWIFT, Organist of the Parish Church, Lambourne, Berks, "O SING UNTO THE LORD." Full Anthem. Second edition. Reduced price, 3d. LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

EASY ANTHEMS, by THOMAS SMITH. Price 3d. each. THE EASTER ANTHEMS.—CHRIST OUR PASSOVER, &c. Second Edition. Just Published.

ANTHEMS FOR EASTER: "Christ is risen from the dead. Seventh Edition. "Sing we merrily." Third Edition. "Lift up your heads."

"O worship the Lord." Ninth Edition. "Hear my prayer. "I was glad." "My heart is fixed." "The Lord is my Shepherd. "O send out Thy light." "Like as the hart." "It is a good thing give thanks." "O sing unto the Lord." Second Edition. Te Deum in F. Five Kyries. Second Edition.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Post-free from the Composer, 25, Angel Hill, Bury St. Edmunds.

Third Edition. Price 1s.

HOW TO LEARN TO PLAY THE PIANOFORTE. By ONE WHO HAS TAUGHT HIMSELF. "Here, in the compass of fourteen pages, is matter calculated to produce better results than half-a-dozen years' teaching."

THE ART OF PLAYING AT SIGHT. By ONE WHO HAS TAUGHT HIMSELF. Price 1s. "The author believes his system to be infallible; after a fair trial we must say we believe so too."

HOW TO FORM AND TRAIN A VILLAGE CHOIR. By AN ORGANISING CHOIRMASTER. Price 1s.

THE HARMONIUM, AND HOW TO PLAY IT. Price 1s. Bury St. Edmunds: THOS. SMITH, Music Warehouse, Angel Hill.

Now ready. Small 4to. Price 1s. Vocal parts, 12mo, price 6d. each.
1st and 2nd Series bound together, cloth, 2s. 9d. Vocal parts, 1st and 2nd Series, bound together in limp cloth, 1s. 4d. each.

SECOND SERIES.

THE CANTICLES AND HYMNS of the CHURCH, pointed for Chanting, and set to appropriate Anglican Chants,
Single and Double; together with Responses to the Commandments.
Edited by the Rev. Sir F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bart., &c., and EDWIN GEORGE MONK. This work contains a selection of Double (besides additional Single) Chants; together with special settings of "Benedictite," and a collection of Kyrie Eleisons, old and new.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ANGLICAN CHORAL SERVICE BOOK.
Edited by E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper, 9d.; cloth, 1s. 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co. Oxford: PARKER.

Eighth Edition.

THE ANGLICAN CHANT-BOOK. Edited by
E. G. MONK, Mus. Doc., Oxon. In paper cover, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s. 6d.
Large edition, cloth, 3s. 6d. London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

OUSELEY AND MONK'S PSALTER AND CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting. Second Edition. Authorised by His Grace the Archbishop of York. 24mo, without Chants, 9d.; with Proper Psalms, 1s.; Proper Psalms, separately, 3d.; small 4to, with Chants, 4s.; each voice part, separately, 1s. 6d. Canticles, score, small 4to, 9d.; separate parts, 3d.; words only, 24mo, 14d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co., and PARKER and Co.

Sixteenth Edition.

JOULE'S COLLECTION OF 527 CHANTS, 57
RESPONSES, &c. Reduced price, 4s. 6d., paper cover; 6s., limp cloth; separate vocal parts, 2s. each.—Tonic Sol-fa Notation, score, 1s. 6d.

The Chants are selected with due reference to the position of the reciting-note.

THE PSALTER, PROPER PSALMS, HYMNS, and CANTICLES, pointed for Chanting by B. ST. J. B. JOULE.
Large type, price 2s. 6d. This Psalter having been collated with the ealed Books is free from the errors contained in all other pointed psalters, through printing from the incorrect copies commonly sold by the Stationers. N.B.—A small edition is in preparation.

Eighth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLI-
CANUM. 18mo, price 1s.; in cloth, 1s. 6d.

Fourth Edition.

JOULE'S DIRECTORIUM CHORI ANGLI-
CANUM. Quarto, in cloth, elegant, price 7s. 6d.

Fifth Edition.

THE ORDER FOR THE HOLY COMMUNION.
Harmonised on a Monotone in a very simple manner for Parochial use. By B. ST. J. B. JOULE. Price 3d. NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

This day. Cheaper Edition, price 6d.; post-free, 7d.

BEETE'S (T. E.) COLLECTION OF KYRIES
AND OFFERTORY SENTENCES, containing 12 of each.
"We gladly welcome this little volume. . . Useful for large or hall choirs."—Spalding Free Press. Also, THE APOSTLES' REED (2nd edition), and THE LORD'S PRAYER, For Organ.
Both in G. Each, post-free, 6d., net, separately. "Your organ companiments are very effective."—H. A. "Very pleased with the harmonies."—J. L. Choir Service Forms, per 100, 1s. 1d., post-free, Organist, Parish Church, Sutton Bridge, Lincolnshire.

CE DEUM LAUDAMUS, No. 1 in D, No. 2 in E flat, in simple Chant Form for Parish Choirs, by S. C. COOKE.
No. 1 in D was selected by the Lichfield Diocesan Choral Association, and sung at Stafford in 1881. Price 4d. each.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE LORD IS RISEN INDEED. HALLE-LUJAH! Anthem, by BENJAMIN CONGREVE. Price 2d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Second Thousand.

RUTH

NEW SACRED CANTATA

By ALFRED R. GAUL

Words by EDWARD OXFORD.

Performed five consecutive nights in Birmingham Town Hall.

Price, paper cover, 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

NARCISSUS AND ECHO

Cantata for Mixed Voices. Price 3s.

GOD IS OUR REFUGE (Ps. xlv.)

Soli and Chorus. Price 1s.

COMPOSED BY

EDWIN C. SUCH, MUS. BAC., CANTAB.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

The Cathedral Psalter

POINTED FOR CHANTING.

	s.	d.
Imperial 32mo, cloth .. .. .	0	9
Ditto, with Proper Psalms, cloth .. .. .	1	0
Demy 8vo, large type, with Proper Psalms, cloth .. .. .	2	6
Proper Psalms, separately. Paper cover. 32mo .. .. .	0	3
Canticles, 32mo .. .. .	0	1
Ditto, 8vo .. .. .	0	3

The Psalter, with Chants, Post 4to, cloth .. .. .	5	0
Canticles, 4to, with Chants .. .. .	0	6

THE

CATHEDRAL PSALTER
CHANTS.

Post 4to, paper cover .. .. .	2	0
Ditto, cloth .. .. .	3	0
Foolscap 4to, paper cover .. .. .	1	0
Ditto, cloth .. .. .	1	6

The Clergy can be supplied with copies, in quantities of not less than 25, on special terms.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Reduced price, Five Shillings.

THE VILLAGE ORGANIST

New Edition, complete in One Volume. 142 pages.

CONTAINING

SEVENTY-EIGHT VOLUNTARIES

All of which, except four, were composed expressly for the work by eminent English musicians.

Cloth, Five Shillings.

Suitable for a Present or School Prize.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S COLLECTION OF

ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTY-FIVE

Responses to the Commandments

EDITED BY

GEORGE C. MARTIN

SUB-ORGANIST OF ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.

Bound in cloth, gilt edges, price Five Shillings; or Forty-seven Numbers, Twopence each.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Large octavo, paper cover, 4s.; cloth, gilt edges, 6s.

ISRAEL RESTORED

AN ORATORIO

(As performed at the Norwich Festival, September 22, 1852, and the Royal Albert Hall, London, April 15, 1880),

COMPOSED BY

W. R. BEXFIELD, MUS. DOC., CANTAB.

The Chorus and Orchestral Parts can be had on application to the publishers.

"A work which is an honour to its author and his countrymen."—
Orchestra.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

DR. VERRINDER'S SIX ORGAN PIECES.

Price 4s.

DR. VERRINDER'S SIX KYRIES. Price 1s.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FESTIVAL SETTINGS

OF THE

MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS,

WITH ACCOMPANIMENTS FOR ORGAN AND ORCHESTRA.

Barnby, J. (in E flat).....	8d.	Martin, George C. (in A).....	6d.
Bridge, Dr. (in G).....	4d.	Stainer, Dr. (in A).....	4d.
Calkin, J. Baptiste (in G).....	6d.	Stanford, C. Villiers (in A).....	6d.
Fanning, Eaton (in C).....	6d.	Steggall, Dr. (in C).....	6d.
Gadsby, Henry (in C).....	6d.	Tours, Berthold (in F).....	4d.
Martin, George C. (in C).....	6d.

The above may also be performed either with strings and organ accompaniment, or with organ only, when necessary.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

REDUCED PRICE.

Third edition, enlarged. Small 4to. Price 2s. paper cover ; 3s. cloth lettered.

ANGLICAN PSALTER CHANTS

SINGLE AND DOUBLE

EDITED BY THE

REV. SIR F. A. GORE OUSELEY, BART., ETC.,

AND

EDWIN GEORGE MONK.

This Work contains nearly 400 Chants, which are appropriated to "Venite, exultemus Domino," the Daily and Proper Psalms, &c.; those for each Service occupying a separate page and affording several Series, suitable to each daily portion of the Psalter, from which choice may be made. The Chants have been selected with especial reference to the position of the Reciting-note.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER & CO., 1, BERNERS STREET, W., AND 80 & 81, QUEEN STREET, E.C.

HARROW SCHOOL MUSIC

BY

JOHN FARMER

ORGANIST AND MUSIC-MASTER TO HARROW SCHOOL.

ORATORIO.—"CHRIST AND HIS SOLDIERS."

Cloth, 4s.; paper cover, 3s. Book of Words, 2d. Orchestral Parts, complete, 7s.

GLEE-BOOK.—Vols. I. and II. Cloth, 4s. each.

PART-SONGS for PUBLIC SCHOOLS, being Cheap Edition of above. Vols. 1 & 2, 1s. 6d. each, paper cover

GLEES AND SONGS FOR HIGH SCHOOLS. Paper cover, 1s. 6d.

SONGS.—Vols. I. and II. Cloth, 4s. each.

SINGING QUADRILLES.

1st Set—"Jack and Jill," &c. ... .. 1s. 3rd Set—Hunting Quadrilles: "John Peel," &c. 1s.
2nd Set—"Humpty Dumpty." Duet, 3s.; Solo 1s. 4th Set—Singing Quadrilles: "Girls and Boys," &c. 1s.

HYMNS AND TUNES FOR HIGH SCHOOLS, 1s. 6d.

Lists and full particulars may be obtained on application.

Harrow: J. C. WILBEE, Bookseller to Harrow School. London: NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

THE

HARMONIUM TREASURY

A SERIES OF SELECT PIECES ARRANGED BY

J. W. ELLIOTT.

In Two Volumes. Vol. I., SACRED; Vol. II., SECULAR. Handsomely bound in Cloth 10s. 6d. each; or in 51 Numbers, 1s. each.

HARMONIUM VOLUNTARIES

ARRANGED BY

J. W. ELLIOTT.

In Six Sets, each containing Sixty Voluntaries, One Shilling each; or in Two Volumes, Cloth gilt, 4s. each.

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

JUST PUBLISHED.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S PIANOFORTE ALBUMS

EDITED BY BERTHOLD TOURS

PRICE ONE SHILLING EACH.

Nos. 7, 8 and 9, in ONE VOLUME, CLOTH, 4s.

No. 7.—MARCHES.

1. Hero's March (Op. 22) ... ..	Mendelssohn.
2. Marche Militaire (Op. 51) ... ..	Schubert.
3. Festival March, from the Opera "Aennchen von Tharau" ... ..	H. Hofmann.
4. Marche Solennelle ... ..	Ch. Gounod.
5. Bridal March, from "Lohengrin" ... ..	R. Wagner.
6. Gipsy March, from "Preciosa" ... ..	Weber.
7. March (Op. 13) ... ..	A. Zimmermann.
8. March, from "Le Nozze di Figaro" ... ..	Mozart.
9. March, from "Fidelio" ... ..	Beethoven.
10. Rakoczy March.
11. Funeral March ("Lied ohne Worte," No. 27) ... ..	Mendelssohn.
12. March, from "St. Polycarp" ... ..	Rev. Sir Fred. Ouseley.
13. Dead March, from "Saul" ... ..	Handel.
14. The Watch on the Rhine.
15. The British Grenadiers.

No. 8.—MARCHES.

16. Coronation March, from "Le Prophète" ... ..	Meyerbeer.
17. March, from "Idomeneo" ... ..	Mozart.
18. "Cornelius" March ... ..	Mendelssohn.
19. Turkish March ("Ruins of Athens") ... ..	Beethoven.
20. Processional March ("Onward, Christian soldiers") ... ..	A. Sullivan.
21. Marche Cosaque ... ..	H. Hofmann.
22. March (Posthumous Work) ... ..	Schubert.
23. March, from the "Occasional Oratorio" ... ..	Handel.
24. Marche Funèbre, from Sonata I., Op. 35 ... ..	Chopin.
25. Triumphal March, from "King Stephen" ... ..	Beethoven.
26. Pilgrims' March (Fourth Symphony) ... ..	Mendelssohn.
27. March of the Men of Harlech.
28. Festival March ... ..	J. B. Calkin.
29. Birthday March ... ..	R. Schumann.
30. La Marseillaise.

No. 9.—MARCHES.

1. Funeral March (Op. 103) ... ..	Mendelssohn.
2. March, from "Egmont" ... ..	Beethoven.
3. March, from "Iphigenia in Aulis" ... ..	Gluck.
4. March, from "Abraham" ... ..	B. Molique.
5. March, from "Tannhäuser" ... ..	R. Wagner.
6. March, from "Die Zauberflöte" ... ..	Mozart.
7. Bride's March, from "Rebekah" ... ..	J. Barnby.
8. March, from Op. 3 ... ..	H. Hofmann.
9. March, from "Scipio" ... ..	Handel.
10. Marcia Funèbre, from Sonata, Op. 26 ... ..	Beethoven.
11. Wedding March, from "Midsummer Night's Dream" ... ..	Mendelssohn.
12. March, from "Titus" ... ..	Mozart.
13. Alexander March ... ..	Beethoven.
14. Persian March ... ..	Strauss.
15. (a) Dessauer March (b) Hohenfriedberger March.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S ORIGINAL OCTAVO EDITION.

THE CHORUSES

OF THE

ORATORIOS, CANTATAS, &c.

IN VOCAL SCORE,
ESPECIALLY FOR THE USE OF
CHORAL SOCIETIES.

MOSES'S PASSION (ST. MATTHEW) ... ..	s. d.
BEETHOVEN'S MOUNT OF OLIVES ... ..	1 0
ENNETT'S MAY QUEEN ... ..	0 6
RAUN'S PASSION ... ..	1 0
ANDEL'S MESSIAH ... ..	1 0
" JUDAS MACCABÆUS ... ..	0 8
" SAMSON ... ..	0 8
" HERCULES ... ..	1 0
" SOLOMON ... ..	1 6
" L'ALLEGRO ... ..	1 0
AYDN'S CREATION ... ..	0 8
ACFARREN'S MAY DAY ... ..	0 8
ENDELSSOHN'S ELIJAH ... ..	1 6
" ST. PAUL ... ..	1 0
" HYMN OF PRAISE ... ..	0 6
BOSSINI'S STABAT MATER ... ..	0 6
BOHR'S LAST JUDGMENT ... ..	0 6

(To be continued.)

If the above works may be had in paper boards, price 6d. each extra.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES.

ORATORIOS, CANTATAS, &c.,

RECENTLY PUBLISHED BY

NOVELLO, EWER &amp; CO.

St. John the Evangelist ... ..	P. Armes	s. d.
Missa Brevis (in A) ... ..	J. S. Bach	2 6
Second Mass (D minor) ... ..	Cherubini	1 6
Fourth Mass (in C) ... ..	Cherubini	2 0
Seventh Mass ... ..	Mozart	1 0
Te Deum ... ..	W. G. Cusins	1 0
Salvator Mundi ... ..	A. E. Dyer	1 6
Christmas Eve ... ..	Niels W. Gade	2 6
The Shunammite ... ..	G. Garrett	1 0
By the Waters of Babylon ... ..	H. Goetz	3 0
Out of Darkness ... ..	G. Henschel	1 0
The First Christmas Morn ... ..	H. Leslie	2 6
Dixit Dominus ... ..	L. Leo	2 6
Missa Papæ Marcelli ... ..	Palestrina	1 6
Te Deum and Jubilate (in D) ... ..	H. Purcell	2 0
Mass (in C) ... ..	E. Silas	1 6
Boadicea ... ..	J. F. Bridge	1 0
The Lord of the Isles ... ..	H. Gadsby	2 6
Columbus (Male Voices) ... ..	H. Gadsby	4 0
Nænia ... ..	H. Goetz	2 6
Acis and Galatea. Edited by J. Barnby ... ..	Handel	1 0
Eric the Dane ... ..	E. Hecht	1 0
Melusina ... ..	H. Hofmann	3 0
Cinderella ... ..	H. Hofmann	2 0
The Bride ... ..	A. C. Mackenzie	4 0
The Year ... ..	W. Jackson	1 6
Prometheus Unbound ... ..	C. H. H. Parry	2 0
Hereward ... ..	E. Prout	3 0
The Transient and the Eternal ... ..	A. Romberg	4 0
Mignon's Requiem ... ..	Schumann	1 0
Ode to the North-East Wind ... ..	A. M. Smith	1 0
The Sun-Worshippers ... ..	A. Goring Thomas	1 0

Complete Lists of Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Original Octavo Edition of Masses, Oratorios, Cantatas, &amp;c., may be had on application.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOW READY.

SCHUBERT'S SONGS

VOLUME I.

TWENTY SONGS

FOR A

MEZZO-SOPRANO VOICE

SELECTED, EDITED AND TRANSLATED BY

NATALIA MACFARREN.

PRICE ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE.

CONTENTS.

Praise of Tears.	Huntsman, rest. (Ellen's second song in "The Lady of the Lake.")
Knowest thou the land? (Mignon's first song in "Wilhelm Meister.")	Thro' the pine-wood.
The Message of Flowers.	The summer waves.
Nought may'st thou ask me. (Mignon's second song in "Wilhelm Meister.")	Wanderer's Night-song.
Oh, let me dream till I awaken. (Mignon's third song in "Wilhelm Meister.")	Trust in Spring.
The greenwood calls. (Slumber Song.)	The Maiden's Lament.
The full-orbed moon. (Romance from "Rosamunde.")	To Mignon.
Hallow'd night, descend.	The Passing-Bell.
	Alinda.
	Ave Maria. (Ellen's third song in "The Lady of the Lake.")
	The Fisherman.
	On the water.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SIX FOUR-PART SONGS

FOR MEN'S VOICES

BY

HEINRICH HOFMANN.

(Novello's "Orpheus," No. 169 to 174.)

169. Roaming ... ..	2d.
170. Sir Cuckoo ... ..	4d.
171. Glorious May ... ..	3d.
172. In Spring-time ... ..	4d.
173. Our Maxim ... ..	3d.
174. In dulci júbilo ... ..	4d.

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

New Work for the Organ or Harmonium.

A SERIES OF

Progressive Studies for Organ or Harmonium

SELECTED FROM THE WORKS OF CELEBRATED COMPOSERS.

EDITED AND FINGERED BY

JOSIAH PITTMAN.

- |   |   |
|---|---|
| 1. Six Little Preludes ... .. J. S. Bach. | 4. Four Preludes and Fugues ... .. Dr. Boyce.   |
| 2. Six Suites de Pièces ... .. S. Wesley. | 5. Three Preludes and Fugues ... .. J. Stanley. |
| 3. Fifteen Inventions ... .. J. S. Bach.  | 6. Suites de Pièces ... .. Battishill.          |

Price One Shilling each, net (to be continued).New Work for Singing-Classes.

THE COLLEGE GLEE-BOOK

EDITED BY

JOHN H. GOWER, MUS. BAC., OXON.,

Professor of Music at Trent College, Notts.

No. I.—CONTENTS.

- |  |  |
|--|--|
| Now is the month of maying ... .. Thomas Morley. | Home, sweet home ... Harmonised and arranged by John H. Gower. |
| The Sailor's Grave ... .. John H. Gower.         | The Meeting of the Waters " " John H. Gower.                   |
| In the Meadows ... .. Mendelssohn.               | The Arrow and the Song " " John H. Gower.                      |

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

CHAPPELL'S VOCAL LIBRARY

OF

PART-SONGS, &amp;c.

- |  | Composed or arranged by | PRICE |  | Composed or arranged by | PRICE |
|--|-------------------------|-------|--|-------------------------|-------|
| 1. Dulce domum S.A.T.B. ... ..                                 | G. A. Macfarren         | 1d.   | 45. O Thou, whose power (Prayer from "Mosè in Egitto")           | Rossini                 | 2d.   |
| 2. Down among the dead men. S.A.T.B. ... ..                    | "                       | 1d.   | 46. The Guard on the Rhine. S.A.T.B. ... ..                      | G. A. Macfarren         | 1d.   |
| 3. The girl I've left behind me. S.A.T.B. ... ..               | "                       | 1d.   | 47. The German Fatherland. S.A.T.B. ... ..                       | "                       | 1d.   |
| 4. British Grenadiers. S.A.T.B. ... ..                         | "                       | 2d.   | 48. The Lord is my Shepherd (Quartet). S.A.T.B. G. A. Osborne    | "                       | 2d.   |
| 5. Long live England's future Queen. S.A.T.B. Dr. Rimbault     | "                       | 2d.   | 49. Te Deum in F ... ..  | Jackson                 | 2d.   |
| 6. My task is ended (Song and Chorus). A.T.B.B. ... ..         | Balfé                   | 4d.   | 50. Te Deum in F ... ..  | Nares                   | 2d.   |
| 7. Thus spake one summer's day. S.A.T.B. ... ..                | Abt                     | 2d.   | 51. Charity (La Carità). S.S.S. ... ..                           | Rossini                 | 4d.   |
| 8. Soldiers' Chorus. T.T.B.B. ... ..                           | Gounod                  | 4d.   | 52. Cordelia. A.T.T.B. ... ..                                    | G. A. Osborne           | 4d.   |
| 9. The Kermesse (Scene from "Faust") ... ..                    | "                       | 6d.   | 53. I know. S.A.T.B. ... ..                                      | Walter Hay              | 2d.   |
| 10. Up, quit thy bower. S.A.T.B. ... ..                        | Brinley Richards        | 4d.   | 54. Chorus of Handmaidens (from "Fridolin")                      | A. Randegger            | 4d.   |
| 11. Maidens, never go a-wooing. S.S.T.B. ... ..                | G. A. Macfarren         | 2d.   | 55. The Offertory Sentences ... ..                               | Edmund Rogers           | 4d.   |
| 12. Faggot-binders' Chorus ... ..                              | Gounod                  | 4d.   | 56. The Red Cross Knight ... ..                                  | Dr. Callcott            | 2d.   |
| 13. Sylvan Hours (for six female voices) ... ..                | Joseph Robinson         | 6d.   | 57. The Chough and Crow ... ..                                   | Sir H. R. Bishop        | 3d.   |
| 14. The Gipsy Chorus ... ..                                    | Balfé                   | 4d.   | 58. The "Carnovale" ... ..                                       | Rossini                 | 2d.   |
| 15. Ave Maria ... ..   | Arcadelt                | 1d.   | 59. Softly falls the moonlight ... ..                            | Edmund Rogers           | 4d.   |
| 16. Hark! the herald angels sing. S.A.T.B. ... ..              | Mendelssohn             | 1d.   | 60. Air by Himmel ... ..   | Henry Leslie            | 4d.   |
| 17. England yet (Solo and Chorus). S.A.T.B. ... ..             | Sir J. Benedict         | 2d.   | 61. Offertory Sentences ... ..                                   | E. Sauerbrey            | 4d.   |
| 18. The Shepherd's Sabbath day. S.A.T.B. ... ..                | J. L. Hatton            | 2d.   | 62. The Resurrection ... ..                                      | C. Villiers Stanford    | 6d.   |
| 19. Thoughts of childhood. S.A.T.B. ... ..                     | Henry Smart             | 2d.   | 63. Our Boys. New Patriotic Song H. J. Byron & W. M. Lutz        | "                       | 2d.   |
| 20. Spring's Return. S.A.T.B. ... ..                           | "                       | 2d.   | 64. The Men of Wales ... ..                                      | Brinley Richards        | 2d.   |
| 21. An old Church Song. S.A.T.B. ... ..                        | "                       | 2d.   | 65. Dame Durden ... ..   | "                       | 1d.   |
| 22. Sabbath Bells. S.A.T.B. ... ..                             | "                       | 2d.   | 66. A little farm well tilled ... ..                             | Hook                    | 1d.   |
| 23. Serenade. S.A.T.B. ... ..                                  | "                       | 2d.   | 67. There was a simple maiden ... ..                             | G. A. Macfarren         | 1d.   |
| 24. Cold Autumn wind. S.A.T.B. ... ..                          | "                       | 2d.   | 68. Fair Hebe ... ..   | "                       | 1d.   |
| 25. Orpheus with his lute. S.S.S. ... ..                       | Bennett Gilbert         | 2d.   | 69. Once I loved a maiden fair ... ..                            | "                       | 1d.   |
| 26. Lullaby. S.A.A. ... ..                                     | "                       | 1d.   | 70. The Jovial Man of Kent ... ..                                | "                       | 1d.   |
| 27. This is my own, my native land. S.A.T.B. ... ..            | G. A. Macfarren         | 1d.   | 71. The Oak and the Ash ... ..                                   | "                       | 1d.   |
| 28. March of the Men of Harlech. S.A.T.B. ... ..               | Dr. Rimbault            | 2d.   | 72. Heart of oak ... ..  | "                       | 1d.   |
| 29. God save the Queen. S.A.T.B. ... ..                        | "                       | 1d.   | 73. Come to the sunset tree ... ..                               | "                       | 1d.   |
| 30. Rule, Britannia. S.A.T.B. ... ..                           | "                       | 1d.   | 74. May. S.A.T.B. ... ..   | W. F. Banks             | 2d.   |
| 31. The Retreat. T.T.B.B. ... ..                               | L. de Rille             | 2d.   | 75. Pure, lovely innocence ("Il Re di Lahore") Chorus for female | "                       | 4d.   |
| 32. Lo! morn is breaking. S.S.S. ... ..                        | Cherubini               | 2d.   | voices ... ..  | J. Massenet             | 4d.   |
| 33. We are spirits. S.S.S. ... ..                              | G. A. Macfarren         | 4d.   | 76. A Love Idyl. S.A.T.B. ... ..                                 | E. R. Terry             | 2d.   |
| 34. Market Chorus ("Masaniello"). S.A.T.B. ... ..              | Auber                   | 4d.   | 77. Hail to the woods. A.T.T.B. ... ..                           | J. Yarwood              | 2d.   |
| 35. The Prayer ("Masaniello"). S.A.T.B. ... ..                 | "                       | 4d.   | 78. Near the town of Taunton ... ..                              | Dean Thomas J. Dudney   | 2d.   |
| 36. The Water Sprites. S.A.T.B. ... ..                         | Kücken                  | 1d.   | 79. Merry boys are we at sea. A.T.T.B. ... ..                    | J. Yarwood              | 2d.   |
| 37. Eve's glittering star. S.A.T.B. ... ..                     | "                       | 2d.   | 80. The Shepherd's Farewell. S.A.T.B. ... ..                     | Berlioz                 | 3d.   |
| 38. When first the primrose. S.A.T.B. ... ..                   | "                       | 2d.   | 81. When the sun sets o'er the mountains ("Il Demonio")          | A. Rubinstein           | 3d.   |
| 39. O dewdrop bright. S.A.T.B. ... ..                          | "                       | 1d.   | 82. Hymn of Nature ... ..  | Beethoven               | 3d.   |
| 40. Sanctus, from the "Messe Solennelle." S.A.T.B. ... ..      | Rossini                 | 2d.   | 83. Michaelmas Day (Humorous Part-Songs, No. 1) W. Maynard       | "                       | 4d.   |
| 41. Nine Kyries, Ancient and Modern ... ..                     | J. Gill                 | 2d.   | 84. Spicing Notes (Humorous Part-Songs, No. 2) W. Maynard        | "                       | 4d.   |
| 42. Sun of my soul. S.A.T.B. ... ..                            | Brinley Richards        | 2d.   | 85. Austrian National Hymn ... ..                                | Haydn                   | 4d.   |
| 43. 'Twas fancy, and the ocean's spray. S.A.T.B. G. A. Osborne | "                       | 2d.   |  |                         |       |
| 44. A Prayer for those at Sea. S.A.T.B. ... ..                 | "                       | 2d.   |  |                         |       |

LONDON:

CHAPPELL &amp; CO., 50, NEW BOND STREET, W.

CITY BRANCH—14 AND 15, POULTRY, E.C.

MESSRS. LUCAS, SON & CO., CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS, AUDITORS, & ARBITRATORS, 20, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.

To those engaged in the Pianoforte and Music Trades special advantages are offered in all matters connected with their Business and Trading.

The long and varied experience of Messrs. LUCAS and Co. in the Pianoforte and Music Trades, in connection with the Auditing of Accounts, the Arranging of Partnerships, the Arbitrating and Settling of Accounts on behalf of Executors, the Sale or Transfer of Professional Connections or Music Businesses, or any other circumstances connected with Trading, whether in prosperity or the reverse, would undoubtedly prove beneficial to all those requiring such special assistance.

Messrs. LUCAS and Co. have given their attention to this particular branch of Accounts for nearly twenty years, and can refer to several of the principal Firms in the Trade, both in Town and Country, who have availed themselves of their Services and Experience.

Parties desirous of consulting the Firm can do so, either by correspondence or by a personal interview, at a moderate expense, as Members of the Firm are constantly visiting the principal Towns in the Kingdom on business connected with this particular branch of their Profession.

BUSINESSES WANTED and for SALE.—Messrs. LUCAS, SON and CO. have received instructions to negotiate the Sale of the following PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESSES:—

AN extensive and old-established PIANOFORTE and MUSICSELLER'S BUSINESS, in one of the principal towns in the north-west of England. £4,000.

A GOOD PIANOFORTE BUSINESS, with small stock of Instruments, suitable for a person with a knowledge of music and moderate capital. £800.

A GOOD TUNING CONNECTION, with small stock of Pianos, in Lancashire. £300.

A FIRST-CLASS PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS, with good Hiring Connection, standing in a Midland town. £1,600.

A FIRST-CLASS PIANOFORTE, HIRING, and TUNING BUSINESS, in a fashionable watering-place on the North-west coast, with good Concert Agency.

THEY also have inquiries for a good TUNING CONNECTION, if possible within a short distance of London. Purchase money not to exceed £100.

AN old-established and good PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS, in one of the principal towns in the West of England.

A SMALL but good PIANOFORTE BUSINESS and TUNING CONNECTION, in the county of Kent. £800.

THEY are also instructed to arrange a PARTNERSHIP or purchase of a PIANOFORTE BUSINESS, for a gentleman with knowledge of Pianoforte, Organ, &c. Outlay not to exceed £500.

ALSO required, a good TUNING CONNECTION in Country, together with small stock of Pianos and Sheet-music. Capital to invest, about £500.

ALSO a PARTNER required, with moderate amount of Capital, in one of the principal local FIRMS in the PIANOFORTE TRADE.

THEY have also APPLICATIONS from several other PARTIES desirous of PURCHASING small but GOOD BUSINESSES, in certain localities. £300 to £600.

For further particulars apply to Messrs. LUCAS, SON and Co., 20, Great Marlborough Street, London, W.

N.B.—The Old-established Business in a Cathedral Town in the West of England has been DISPOSED OF by Messrs. Lucas.

NOVELLO, EWER & CO.'S MUSIC PRIMERS

EDITED BY

DR. STAINER.

- |  |   |
|--|---|
| 1. THE PIANOFORTE (2s.) - E. PAUER.  | 13. CHURCH CHOIR TRAINING (1s.) - REV. J. TROUTBECK.          |
| 2. RUDIMENTS OF MUSIC (1s.) W. H. CUMMINGS.  | 14. PLAIN-SONG (2s.) - REV. T. HELMORE.                       |
| 3. THE ORGAN (2s.) - DR. STAINER.  | 15. INSTRUMENTATION (2s.) - E. PROUT.                         |
| 4. THE HARMONIUM (2s.) - KING HALL.  | 16. ELEMENTS OF THE BEAUTIFUL IN MUSIC (1s.) - E. PAUER.      |
| 5. SINGING (4s.; Paper boards, 5s.) A. RANDEGGER.                                    | 17. THE VIOLIN (2s.) - BERTHOLD TOURS.                        |
| 6. SPEECH IN SONG ( Singer's Pronouncing Primer ) (2s.) - A. J. ELLIS, F.R.S. | 18. TONIC SOL-FA (1s.) - JOHN CURWEN.                         |
| 7. MUSICAL FORMS (2s.) - E. PAUER.   | 19. LANCASHIRE SOL-FA (1s.) JAMES GREENWOOD.                  |
| 8. HARMONY (2s.) - DR. STAINER.  | 20. COMPOSITION (2s.) - DR. STAINER.                          |
| 9. COUNTERPOINT (2s.) - DR. BRIDGE.  | 21. MUSICAL TERMS (1s.) STAINER & BARRETT.                    |
| 10. FUGUE (2s.) - JAMES HIGGS.   | 22. THE VIOLONCELLO ( In the Press ) - JULES DE SWERT. |
| 11. SCIENTIFIC BASIS OF MUSIC (1s.) - DR. STONE.                                     |   |
| 12. DOUBLE COUNTERPOINT (2s.) DR. BRIDGE.  |   |

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

CHALLEN & SON'S IRON-FRAME PIANOS

Have received the following Awards at the International Exhibitions of
LONDON, 1862.—PRIZE MEDAL for “excellence of action and tone.”
SOUTH AFRICA, 1877.—GOLD MEDAL for the best Pianette (the highest Award ever given for this class of Piano).
PARIS, 1878.—The MEDAILLE D'HONNEUR for “good and cheap Pianos” (great excellence combined with moderate cost).
MELBOURNE, 1881.—GOLD MEDAL for excellence of quality combined with solidity of construction.

IRON-FRAME PIANOS.

A system of construction which, by a careful application of scientific principles, Messrs. CHALLEN & SON have brought to great perfection, is now generally acknowledged as the only one calculated to render the Piano almost impervious to the deleterious influences of damp and extremes of temperature, while it stands better in tune with one-fourth of the usual tuning—a most important consideration where tuners are not readily obtained. The inestimable advantages thus secured are augmented by an increased power and purity of tone hitherto unattainable in the Upright Piano.

A selection from numerous testimonials will be a sufficient guarantee of the excellence of the Pianos manufactured by this Firm:—

The Pianettes manufactured by Messrs. CHALLEN & SON are most satisfactory instruments.

ANTON RUBINSTEIN.

Hawthorn Lodge, January, 1882.

Having used one of your Pianos a great deal for studying music as well as singing, I can with pleasure testify to the fact that they possess a very fine tone and sustain the voice admirably. I have used Pianos by all the leading manufacturers, but I consider your instruments fully equal in every respect to any made, and I shall take every opportunity of recommending them.—Yours truly,

MARIE ROZE,

Prima Donna of Her Majesty's Opera.

I consider that Messrs. CHALLEN & SON have succeeded in providing, at a most moderate cost, Pianos of high-class workmanship and pure tone. Their Pianettes are specially deserving of notice in being remarkable both for their cheapness and general excellence. The instruments exhibited by Messrs. CHALLEN & SON in Paris were highly creditable, not only to them but to the English Section.

JOHN STAINER, M.A., Mus. Doc., Hon. R.A.M., F.C.O.,

English Juror at the Paris Universal Exhibition, 1878.

The Pianos of Messrs. CHALLEN & SON possess every good quality. They are exceedingly moderate in price, and I can testify, from personal experience, to their great durability.

GEORGE GARRETT, M.A., Mus. Doc., Cantab.

Brackly Villa, Dulwich.

I have on several occasions selected Pianos from Messrs. CHALLEN & SON, and have great pleasure in stating they have invariably given complete satisfaction, some of them having had to bear the severe test of an Indian climate.

WILLIAM H. CUMMINGS, R.A.M.

CHALLEN & SON'S Pianos may be purchased on the Hire System, and obtained of all the principal Musicsellers throughout the World.

Illustrated Catalogues and Price List forwarded free.

CHALLEN & SON,

46, OXFORD STREET, LONDON.

ESTABLISHED 1804.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

J. & J. HOPKINSON

Beg to announce that they are about to remove from their present Establishment, 235, REGENT STREET,
to more extensive premises,

95, NEW BOND STREET,

which they will open on May 1 with an entirely new stock of their celebrated
GRAND AND COTTAGE PIANOFORTES.

New Illustrated Price List, with original and artistic designs, post-free on application to 95, NEW BOND STREET, LONDON, W.

CHAPPELL AND CO.'S
IRON-FRAMED PIANOFORTES,
OBLIQUE, AND SINGLE AND DOUBLE OVERSTRUNG.
35 TO 150 GUINEAS.

CLOUGH & WARREN'S AMERICAN ORGANS,
A COMBINATION OF PIPES AND REEDS.
18 TO 225 GUINEAS.

ALEXANDRE ORGAN HARMONIUMS,
6 TO 150 GUINEAS.

Show Rooms—50, NEW BOND STREET, W.
City Branch—15, POULTRY, E.C.
Steam Pianoforte Works—CHALK FARM ROAD, N.W.

THE AMERICAN PORTABLE Music Stands.

J. F. WALTERS' PATENT.

		s.	d.
Iron Single Desks	... from	10	6
„ Double „	... „	25	0
Brass Single „	... „	30	0
„ Double „	... „	45	0
Desks for Table, in Iron	... „	3	6
„ „ Brass	... „	10	0

A large variety of designs in Brass
Stands kept in Stock.

THESE Stands are unsurpassed in simplicity, strength, portability, cheapness, and elegance of finish.

They are suitable for Military Bands, Orchestras, Reading and News Rooms, Libraries, Studies, and Drawing Rooms. When opened to their full capacity they stand 5 feet high, and can be folded and inclosed in a case 21 inches long by 2 inches diameter. The weight is about 3 lbs. 12 oz., and they will support a weight of 50 lbs.

To be obtained of all Music Dealers, and of the Manufacturers and Proprietors of the Patent,

HARROW & CO., Music Smiths, Brass Workers, &c., 13 & 14, Portland Street, Soho, London, W.

DESCRIPTIVE CIRCULARS FREE.

STEINWAY & SONS' NEW UPRIGHT GRAND PIANOFORTE

(HEIGHT, 4 FEET 6 INCHES),

With the STEINWAY PATENT CUPOLA and PIER FRAME, constructed of SOLID STEEL finished in BRONZE (as in the STEINWAY HORIZONTAL GRAND PIANOFORTES), and cast in the STEINWAY FOUNDRIES, also the NEW PATENT CAPO D'ASTRO BAR; the STEINWAY PATENT OVERSTRUNG SCALING, and NEW PATENT EXTRA HARMONIC DUPLEX SCALE; PATENT SOUND-BOARD RESONATOR; PATENT RING BRIDGE; PATENT INDESTRUCTIBLE HAMMERS; GRADUATING SOFT PEDAL CASED in METAL; PATENT METALLIC ACTION STANDARDS; THREE STRINGS TO EACH NOTE; SEVEN OCTAVES, &c., &c.

PRICE 105 GUINEAS.

.* Attention is directed to this magnificent STEINWAY UPRIGHT GRAND PIANOFORTE, which is a NEW MODEL specially designed to meet the requirements of those English households who have wished for a "STEINWAY" at a somewhat lower price than had previously existed. It possesses all the well-known STEINWAY characteristics in respect to TONE, displaying a volume, fulness, depth, and richness, with a purity, refinement, and exquisite sympathetic quality utterly unknown in any English Pianofortes, whilst in regard to STRUCTURAL SOLIDITY it obviously compares with them (as has been happily said) "as a MODERN IRONCLAD to a CANOE."

STEINWAY HALL,
LOWER SEYMOUR ST., PORTMAN SQUARE, LONDON, W.

(AND AT STEINWAY HALL, NEW YORK.)

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 471.—Vol. 23.
Registered for transmission abroad.

MAY 1, 1882.

Price 3d.; Post-free, 4d.
Annual Subscription, Postage-free, 4s.

CHESTER MUSICAL FESTIVAL.—In aid of the Cathedral Restoration Fund. Under the Authority of the Very Rev. the Dean. June 7, 8, and 9, 1882.

PATRONS: His Royal Highness the PRINCE OF WALES, K.G., Earl of Chester; Her Royal Highness the PRINCESS OF WALES, Countess of Chester; His Royal Highness the DUKE OF EDINBURGH, K.G.; Her Imperial and Royal Highness the DUCHESS OF EDINBURGH.

List of Oratorios to be given in the Cathedral, together with the Works to be sung at the Concerts:—

IN THE CATHEDRAL.

WEDNESDAY, June 7, at 11.30 a.m., Mendelssohn's "ELIJAH."
THURSDAY, June 8, at 11.30 a.m., Sullivan's "PRODIGAL SON," and a Beethoven SYMPHONY.
THURSDAY, at 2.45 p.m., Spohr's "LAST JUDGMENT."
FRIDAY, June 9, 11.45 a.m., Haydn's "CREATION."
FRIDAY, at 2.45 p.m., Sir W. S. Bennett's "WOMAN OF SAMARIA."

IN THE MUSIC HALL.

WEDNESDAY, at 8 p.m., Handel's "ACIS AND GALATEA," &c.
THURSDAY, at 8 p.m., Dr. J. F. Bridge's "BOADICEA," &c.
FRIDAY EVENING, a GRAND BALLAD CONCERT.

PRINCIPAL ARTISTS:—

MADAME MARIE ROZE,

MISS MARY DAVIES, MISS ANNIE MARRIOTT,
MADAME PATEY, MADAME MUDIE-BOLINGBROKE,
MR. MAAS, MR. HENRY GUY,
MR. FREDERIC KING, and MR. ROBERT HILTON.

BAND AND CHORUS OF 250 PERFORMERS.

LEADER OF THE BAND: HERR STRAUS.

ORGANIST: DR. ROGERS, Organist of Bangor Cathedral.

CONDUCTOR: J. C. BRIDGE, ESQ., M.A., Mus. B., Organist of Chester Cathedral.

PRICES OF ADMISSION.—FOR THE SERVICES IN THE CATHEDRAL:

The Centre of the Nave (three days inclusive) ... £1 17 6
The Aisles of the Nave (three days inclusive) ... 0 17 6
Single Ticket to the Centre of the Nave (each day) ... 0 15 0
Ditto to the Aisles of the Nave (each day) ... 0 7 6

All the Seats will be Numbered and Reserved.

Applications for Tickets (which in all cases must be accompanied with a remittance) should be made to the Honorary Secretary without delay, as Seats will be allotted by the Committee according to priority of application.

CONCERT ARRANGEMENTS.—PRICES OF ADMISSION:

Reserved Seats, 5s.; Second do., 4s.; Unreserved do., 2s. 6d.

Cheques and P.O. Orders must be made payable to the Hon. Secretary (the Rev. C. H. Hylton Stewart, Precentor, The Precinctory, Chester), and crossed Parr's Banking Company.

Information respecting Furnished Lodgings can be obtained from Messrs. Phillipson and Golder, Chester.

MISS FRANCES POWELL will give a GRAND EVENING CONCERT at Steinway Hall on May 11. Tickets can now be obtained at Steinway Hall, Lower Seymour Street; Stanley Lucas and Co., 84, New Bond Street; and 5, Gledhow Terrace, South Kensington.

MUSICAL ASSOCIATION, 27, Harley Street, W.
ON MONDAY, May 1, at 5 o'clock, a Paper will be read by H. F. FROST, ESQ., "Some Remarks on Richard Wagner's Music-Drama, 'Tristan and Isolde.'" JAMES HIGGS, Hon. Sec.
9, Torrington Square, W.C.

GREAT CHOIR COMPETITION, Free Trade Hall, Manchester, BANK HOLIDAY, August 7, 1882. First prize, £30 and gold medal; second prize, £15 and silver medal. Apply for particulars, G. W. Lane, 2, Radnor Street, Manchester.

KING'S COLLEGE (Cambridge) CHOIR SCHOOL.—There will be an EXAMINATION on WEDNESDAY, June 21, for at least THREE CHORISTERSHIPS. The Choristers receive a classical education, and are lodged and boarded by the College. Candidates between nine and eleven years of age preferred. Applications to be addressed to The Dean, King's College, Cambridge, before June 7.

SOPRANO WANTED, for St. Stephen's, Walbrook, E.C. Must be a good reader and have a powerful voice. Stipend, £10. Duties light. Address, stating experience, H. J. White, 28, Sheen Park, Richmond, Surrey.

MRS. W. H. MONK (wife of Musical Editor of "Hymns Ancient and Modern") earnestly APPEALS on behalf of a patient sufferer, a poor WIDOW, who after years of industrious toil has, for a long period, been destitute and hopelessly ill and helpless from Rheumatism and Heart-disease. Within four years she has been admitted into four Hospitals, receiving a few months of kind care then discharged from each "Incurable." She became on the point of perishing for want of nursing and care.

The Homes named in the "Guides to Charities" where "Incurables" are received gratuitously have "no vacancy." Can any friend of Professor W. H. Monk tell Mrs. Monk of a private Home where the pitiable case may be admitted without a weekly payment or the delay of canvassing, and permitted to stay the remainder of her sorrowful life?

Mrs. Monk will be very thankful for any trifling help towards enabling her to continue to provide the absolutely needful attention and nursing until a Home can be found. For many years the sufferer has been known to some of the clergy in her district, and to Mrs. Monk, Glebe Field, Stoke Newington, N.

TESTIMONIAL TO DR. FOWLE.—Many persons desiring to subscribe to the fund who can give only a trifle, a SHILLING SUBSCRIPTION (13 stamps) is hereby announced; but should be sent direct to Dr. Fowle, Hillingdon, Uxbridge, who will return thanks by posting a special work endorsed "Testimonial Acknowledgment." Larger amounts received by the Dowager Lady Antrobus, 16, Grosvenor Crescent, S.W., or Lady Lewis, 5, Cadogan Square, London, S.W. (See Advertisement in last Musical Times, page 179).

SOLO BOY (TREBLE) WANTED, for St. Matthew's Church, Upper Clapton. Services, Sunday and Friday. Salary, £20. Apply to A. Thomson, 226, Evering Road, Upper Clapton, by letter only.

FREE VACANCIES in a resident Country Choir for two LEADING TREBLES. Orphans (gentlemen's sons) preferred. Address, Precentor, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WELLS CATHEDRAL.—WANTED, for the Choir, as Probationers for the College of Vicars Choral, two good Voices, BASS and ALTO; between 21 and 30 years of age. Experienced in Cathedral music, and of good moral and religious character; communicants, or at least confirmed. Each candidate engaged will be required to take his proper part in all the services of the Cathedral, unless special leave of absence be given by the Dean and Chapter, and in such meetings for practice as they may require, and will be remunerated during his probation at the rate of £80 per annum. If elected a Member Perpetuate of the College of Vicars at the end of his year's probation, he will have to attend and take his proper part in the services and meetings for practice as above stated, and will participate in the divisible revenues of the College, with the prospect of having a Vicar's house assigned to him when a vacancy occurs. The Dean and Chapter will make up the income of a Vicar, who fulfils his duties according to their regulations, to £80 per annum by payments from the Chapter Fund, if his share of the annual divisible revenues of the College shall not amount to that sum. Applications, with testimonials as to voice, knowledge of music, and character, which last will be an essential condition of election, to be addressed, on or before May 15, to Mr. Lavington, Cathedral Organist. A preference will be given, ceteris paribus, to candidates giving evidence of good general education.

Wells, April 17, 1882.

ALTO LADY REQUIRED for a Church near Belgravia. Two services, Sunday, and occasional practice. Good reader and strong voice. Address, stating terms, to Alto, 34, Moore Street, Cadogan Square, S.W.

ALTO WANTED, City Church. Full Choral service. Salary, £10. Address, A. Pickering, Esq., 1, High Street, Aldgate.

THERE is a VACANCY in the Choir of the Lock Chapel, Harrow Road, for an ALTO (Male). Salary, £12 per annum. Applications to be sent in to Mr. Walter Wesché, 14, Tavistock Road, Westbourne Park, W.

ALTO WANTED for Southwell Collegiate Church, Notts. Full Cathedral service twice daily; three on Sunday. Salary, £60. Must be a communicant. None need apply who have not a knowledge of the alto clef. Applications, with testimonials, to be sent to Arthur Marriott, Organist, by May 21.

ST. SEPULCHRE, Holborn Viaduct, E.C.—ALTO WANTED, a good reader and used to Cathedral music. Apply at the Church, Friday evening, at 9 o'clock. There are Vacancies for several volunteers, Alto, Tenor, and Bass.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MRS. BELLAMY (Soprano).

Oratorio and Ballad Concerts, 32, Hunter's Lane, Birmingham.

MISS E. A. BLACKBURN (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., 30, Woodview Terrace, Manningham, Yorks.

MISS FANNY BRISTOW (Soprano).

For terms, address, 246, Brunswick Street, Manchester.

MISS MARIE COPE (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Concerts, Lessons, 167, New Cross Road, London, S.E.

MISS BESSIE HOLT (Soprano).(Of the London, Manchester, and Newcastle Concerts.)
Address, Rawtenstall, Manchester.MISS MINNIE JONES (Soprano).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, 39, Eastbourne Street, Everton, Liverpool.

MISS CLARA MARNI, R.A.M. (Soprano).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &amp;c., address, 32, Newington Green, N.

MISS S. A. SABEL (Soprano).

For Concerts, Lessons, &amp;c., Warmley Lodge, Burnt Ash Lane, Lee.

MRS. ALFRED J. SUTTON (Soprano)Is open to engagements for Concerts and Oratorios, 54, Duchess Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham.MDLLE. ANTOINETTE VIOLET (Soprano).*WILLIAM PAYNE CLARKE (Tenor).

Address (care of Vernon I. Kitchen), Victoria Music Warehouse, 407, Oxford Street, Manchester. Concert parties provided.

MRS. SAML. WORTON-FIELDING (Contralto).For Concerts, Oratorios, &c., 96, The Grove, Hammersmith, W.
The Birmingham Gazette says: "Mrs. Fielding possesses an excellent contralto voice."MISS LEYLAND (Contralto)Requests that all communications be sent to her new address, 51, Plymouth Grove, Manchester.MISS JEANIE ROSSE (Contralto).

Fairmead Lodge, Upper Holloway, N.

MISS FLORENCE WYDFORD (Contralto).For Oratorios, Miscellaneous Concerts, Dinners, Soirées, &c., 95, St. Paul's Road, Lorrimer Square, S.E.MR. PARKER ASHFORD (Tenor).

For Oratorios, Concerts, &amp;c., address, 6, Arundel Place, Barnsbury, N.

MR. VERNEY BINNS (Tenor).

65, King Cross Street, Halifax.

The Era says: "Mr. Peach has a tenor voice of very pure quality."MR. FRANK PEACH (Tenor).For Oratorios, Concerts, Church Songs, &c., address, 58, Foulden Road, Stoke Newington, N.MR. STEDMAN (Tenor).

12, Berners Street, W.

MR. J. CAMPBELL (Baritone).For Oratorios, Concerts, Opera Recitals, &c., address, 13, Chichester Terrace, Bassein Park, W.MR. R. MAPLESON (the New Baritone).Pupil of Mr. Stanley Mayo, R.A.M.
114, Asylum Road, Peckham, S.E.MR. FRANK MAY (Bass).Medalist and Prize Winner of Royal Academy of Music
(Pupil of Mr. W. H. Cummings).For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, Messrs. Weekes and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.MR. ADOLPHUS PHILLIPS (Basso).

Address, Magdalen College Choir, Oxford.

MR. J. BINGLEY SHAW (Bass).For Oratorios, Concerts, Banquets, &c., address, 12, Berners Street, London, W., or The Minster, Southwell.MISS LAURA GROVE (Solo Pianiste).

For Concerts and Lessons, 24, Springdale Road, N.

MISS LAURA SMART (Soprano) requests that all communications respecting engagements may be addressed, 28, Church Street, Liverpool.MISS FANNIE SELLERS (Soprano) will sing at Masham, April 28; Ripon, May 1; Northampton, 4; Whittlesey, 16. Address, York Place, Knaresboro'.MISS CLARA MYERS (Contralto) begs to inform her friends and patrons that she has REMOVED to 51, Upper Bedford Place, Russell Square, W.C. For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address as above.MR. T. W. HANSON (Principal Tenor of St. Paul's Cathedral). For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 19, Belvoir Road, Lordship Lane, S.E.MR. BINGLEY SHAW (Bass) will sing at Low-ham, April 27; Southwell, May 4 and 5; Wednesbury, 8;
Wellington (Salop), 9; Southport, 10 and 11; Blackpool, 12.MR. CHARLES E. TINNEY (Bass, of St. Paul's Cathedral, and of Mr. Henry Leslie's, Covent Garden, and Alexandra Palace Concerts) can accept ENGAGEMENTS for CON-CERTS, &c.

Opinions of the Press:

Possessor of a fine bass voice.—Morning Post.Excellent bass voice and style.—Globe.Mr. Tinney sang with impressive emphasis, and well-sustained power.—Standard.Good voice and excellent method.—Sunday Times.Endowed with a good bass voice.—News of the World.

Address, Park Villa, Bennett Park, Blackheath, S.E.

MR. FREDERICK BEVAN (Bass, H.M. Chapel Royal, Whitehall) begs to announce that he is open to accept engagements for Oratorio, Classical, Operatic, or Ballad Concerts, &c. (New address) 21, Bonham Road, Brixton Rise, S.W.MR. ALFRED MOORE (Bass) will be happy to forward vacant dates for Oratorios and Concerts of all descriptions, in town or country, on application to his new address, Saint Winifred, Underhill Road, Lordship Lane, S.E.MR. ARTHUR DOREY (Organist of the Alexandra Palace). For Pupils, Engagements for Concerts, &c., 14, Huntley Street, Bedford Square, W.C.THE HARP.—Miss F. LOCKWOOD, Harpist to the Carl Rosa Opera Company, and teacher of the above instrument. London address, 6, Frederick Place, Gray's Inn Road, W.C.MR. CLEVELAND WIGAN, composer of "Sons of Vulcan," "Song for Mariners" (sung by Miss Mary Davies), &c., &c., undertakes the Revision of Amateur Compositions, Vocal and Instrumental. 69, Folkestone Road, Dover.DR. CORBETT gives LESSONS through Post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., &c. Upwards of sixty pupils have passed musical examinations. Address, Bridgenorth, Salop.LESSONS by CORRESPONDENCE. E. W.
TAYLOR, Mus. Bac., F.C.O., L. Mus. T.C.L., Stafford.TUITION by CORRESPONDENCE for MUSI-CAL EXAMINATIONS. Graded instruction, suitable exercises, careful correction, ample solutions. No payment unless successful. Address, Mr. James Jennings, Deptford, London.LESSONS by Post, in HARMONY, COUNTER-POINT, COMPOSITION, &c., on a new and highly successful system. Terms very moderate. Address, A. B. C., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.THE ORGANIST of RIPON CATHEDRAL teaches HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT by Correspondence.
For terms, address Edwin J. Crow, F.C.O., Mus. Bac., Cantab.MR. C. FRANCIS LLOYD, Mus. Bac., Oxon.,
L. Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUN-TERPOINT, &c., by post. Address, Alma Place, North Shields.DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who passed RECENT UNIVERSITY EXAMINATIONS for the DEGREES of MUS. DOC. and MUS. BAC. (Oxford, Cambridge, and Dublin). Dr. Allison prepared Candidates who passed this year's (1882) Examination for Licentiate of the Royal Academy of Music,
"Passed with Honours" Royal Academy of Music, Local Examinations
F.C.O. (1882), and every other Musical Examination open to the public.
Harmony, Acoustics, Form, Plan or Design, Counterpoint, Canon, Fugue, Analysis, Orchestration, and Revision of Compositions, by Post. Personal instruction in Singing, Organ and Pianoforte playing, CAMBRIDGE HOUSE, 68, NELSON STREET, MANCHESTER.MR. MARK J. MONK, Mus. Bac., Oxon., gives LESSONS by Post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares Candidates for the University Examinations in Music.
Address, Ashby-de-la-Zouch, Leicestershire.SINGING.—Mr. WM. PARKINSON, Author of the "Universal Singing Lessons," Principal Tenor of Her Majesty's and Drury Lane Theatres, Pupil of Signor San Giovanni, of the Conservatoire, Milan, &c., begs to announce that he is prepared to give LESSONS in the art of SINGING and the best method of Producing the Voice. Address, 203, Euston Road, N.W.MUSIC SCHOOL.—CHURCH OF ENGLAND
HIGH SCHOOL for GIRLS (Limited), 6, Upper Baker Street, Regent's Park.—Head Music-Mistress, Miss MacIrene, late Professor of Royal Academy of Music. Fees, two or three guineas a term. Pupils not in the school pay an entrance fee of one guinea.
Musical Scholarships will be awarded by Professor Macfarren in July next. Trinity term began Monday, April 24.

F. J. HOLLAND, Chairman.

ORGAN PRACTICE (Private) on exceptionally moderate terms. Three manuals, 34 stops; separate pedal organ of 4 stops. Blown by engine-power. Five minutes' from the "Angel."
Apply to Ewald and Co., 16, Argyle Street, Regent Circus, W.

ORGAN LESSONS or PRACTICE, 36, STRAND (four doors from Charing Cross), and at St. Michael's, Lorn Road, Brixton Road, S.W., on fine two-manual C ORGANS (Hill and Son). PEDALLING specially taught. W. VENNING SOUTHGATE, "The Strand Organ Studio," 36, Strand, W.C. Established 1867.

PRACTISING ROOMS.—AGATE and PRITCHARD, 68, Gracechurch Street. Professors attend to give lessons on various instruments; also in singing.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Three manuals, each of 56 notes, pedal organ, 30 notes, 18 effective stops, and blown by the Automatic Hydraulic Engine. Terms, strictly inclusive, ONE SHILLING PER HOUR, at Blennerhasset's Organ School and Studio, 1A, Vernon Street, Pentonville, W.C.

Sole Agent for THE HYDRAULIC ORGAN BLOWER. Cheapest, simplest, best, and most effective ever invented. Full particulars, and estimates as above, free. Inspection invited.

MR. JOSEF CANTOR'S CONCERT COMPANY. Artists of undoubted repute may enrol their names on prospectus for forthcoming season. No fees. All particulars respecting engagements, &c., Church Street, Liverpool.

WANTED, some Good VOICES for the Church of St. John, Horselydown. TREBLES from £5 to £10 per annum. TENOR and BASS from £10 to £15 per annum. Address, E. E. V., 5, Church Row, Horselydown.

ST. BOTOLPH, Bishopsgate.—WANTED VOLUNTEERS (A., T. and B.) to supplement the Choir of this Church. Must be regular communicants. Services fully choral; choir surplined. Apply to the Rev. F. Bishop, at the Church, between 11 and 12, or by letter.

MR. LOARING, Organist of St. Sepulchre, would be glad to receive the names and addresses of SOPRANOS (Ladies), ALTOS, TENORS, and BASSES willing to assist at a Festival Service on Ascension Day. Members of Choral Societies are invited. Address, 153, Wilberforce Road, Finsbury Park, N.

ST. PAUL'S, Covent Garden.—A few more MEN'S VOICES WANTED. Two services only on Sundays, and weekly practice on Friday evenings. A small stipend to regular attendants. Apply to Organist on Sunday or Friday evenings, at 8.

TENOR WANTED, in the Choir of All Saints' Church, Blackheath. Salary, £20 per annum. Good voice and good reader. Apply to Mr. C. E. Tinney, Park Villa, Bennett Park, Blackheath, S.E.

A TENOR and BASS REQUIRED for a Church in S.W. District. Two Sunday services. Rehearsals on Fridays. Salary, £25. Send in the first instance copies of testimonials, which cannot be returned, to Rev. R. E., 29, Wellington Buildings, Chelsea Bridge, S.W. Only likely applications can be replied to.

A FIRST-CLASS BARITONE (pupil of one of the leading professors) desires SUNDAY ENGAGEMENT. "Excellent" obtained for "voice," "style," and "ear," from John Hullah, Esq., LL.D., and W. A. Barrett, Esq., Mus. Bac. E., care of Mr. Wilson, 23, Beckenham Road, Penge, S.E.

ORGANIST WANTED, for St. Augustine's Church, Londonderry, capable of Training and Directing a Choir. Salary, £30 per annum. There is at present a very good opening in the city for a competent professor of music. Apply, with references, to Rev. J. P. Tegart, A.B., St. Augustine's, Londonderry.

PARISH of ST. MARGARET'S, Ipswich.—An ORGANIST is WANTED for this Church immediately. The regular services are three on Sunday, and Wednesday evening. Appointment in the Vicar and Churchwardens. Applications to be made by letter, inclosing testimonials and references, and salary required, addressed to Rev. Canon Garratt, Ipswich.

ORGANIST.—WANTED, for Victoria Road Church, a Gentleman to discharge the duties of ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER. The instrument has three manuals. Applications, together with references and salary required, to be made to Mr. Robert Pochin, West Walk, Leicester.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER required for the Parish Church of St. John, Horselydown. Stipend, £70 per annum. Address, the Rector. Testimonials not returned.

DEPUTY ORGANIST WANTED.—The Organist of a Church near King's Cross would be glad to meet with a Gentleman who would be willing to take Occasional Services (plain), in return for practice on a three-manual organ. Address, Organist, 2, Winder's Road, Battersea, S.W.

WANTED, ASSISTANT ORGANIST (Voluntary) for St. Agatha, Finsbury. First-class opening for a young man needing experience. Anglican services and choral celebrations. Surplined choir. Apply to the Musical Director, Mr. Alfred Sugden, 8, Union Road, Carlton Road, Tufnell Park, N.

ORGANIST (and CHOIRMASTER) DISENGAGED. Experienced, good musician, and zealous. Communicant. F. Z., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

BASSO PROFONDO and CHOIRMASTER. Many years' experience. High-class Ritual or Cathedral services. Address, Musicus, 4, South Lambeth Road.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER DISENGAGED. Held last appointment over nine years. Thoroughly experienced as above, and holder of good testimonials. Surplined Choir preferred. T. P., 19, Victoria Grove, Folkestone, Kent.

AN Oxford Undergraduate desires an ENGAGEMENT as ORGANIST or TEACHER during the Long Vacation. He would also be willing to read with any one for the University. Address, J. C., 25, Broad Street, Oxford.

ORGANIST (First-class) DISENGAGED. Latin or English Church services. Missa, 84, Upper Kennington Lane, S.W.

AN ORGANIST and DIRECTOR of CHOIRS, a great experience, will be open at the end of July for ENGAGEMENT, present appointment seven years. Organ, three manuals. Anglican service preferred. Address, H., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANIST open to permanent ENGAGEMENT or as DEPUTY. F. P., 203, Euston Road, N.W.

ORGANIST desires ENGAGEMENT in a Dis-senting Chapel. Good musician and used to training Choir; also free to give a few private lessons. 1 X, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, post as ORGANIST; can also Train Choir. N. or N.W. preferred. Address, W. B. P., 77, Offord Road, Barnsbury, N.

AN ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER is now open for an ENGAGEMENT in or near London. Substantial references; time entirely own. Address, H. J. Roberts, Library, Brompton Road, S.W.

OXFORD (in or near).—An ORGANIST, now resident in Oxford, seeks an APPOINTMENT as above. Six years' London experience. Previously a pupil under Mr. G. F. Geaussen. Address, Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge Depot, Queen Street. Would deputise in the interim.

DEPUTY.—An ORGANIST is desirous of ENGAGEMENTS for August and September. Good organ indispensable. First-class references. Address, C. W. P., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

DEPUTY.—A Young ORGANIST would be glad to DEPUTISE in return for further instruction. X., 67, Springfield Road, N.W.

A COMPETENT London ORGANIST is open to DEPUTISE for about seven weeks from July 28 in a pleasant part (West of England or Midland Counties preferred) in return for house accommodation. Mrs. G. Baker, 61, Hill Street, Peckham, S.E.

TEMPORARY ORGANIST.—The Organist of St. Paul's Cathedral Church, Valletta, would be glad of TEMPORARY DUTY in England during August and September, as Cathedral, Church, or Public Organist. About eight Sundays disengaged. Organist, 136, Strada Forni, Valletta, Malta.

MUSIC carefully COPIED or TRANSPOSED, 4d. per page. Address, D. C. T., care of Mr. Roberts, Bookseller, Ware.

MUSIC neatly and accurately COPIED or TRANSPOSED at from 4d. per page. Address, Breve, 10, St. Mary-at-Hill, London, E.C.

MUSIC legibly COPIED, 4d. per page; transposed, 6d. per page. Guitar Lessons on moderate terms. A Young Lady of neglected education can be received as RESIDENT PUPIL. Address, prepaid, to Professional, care of Messrs. Cocks and Co., 6, New Burlington Street, London.

WANTED, for a North Midland District, a thoroughly efficient PIANOFORTE and AMERICAN ORGAN TUNER and REPAIRER. Apply, stating age, salary, and qualifications, to K. H., B. Williams, 60, Paternoster Row, E.C.

WANTED for West of England Firm, a TUNER as Improver. Large country practice. One who understands Harmoniums and can play preferred. Apply, stating salary, to Manager, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ENGAGEMENT WANTED by an experienced TUNER. Knowledge of Harmoniums, &c. Well recommended by last employer. Tuner, 14, Smollett Street, Liverpool.

A GOOD TUNER and TONER seeks EMPLOYMENT. Is a good salesman, and can repair. A. P., 25, Corbyn Street, Hornsey Road, N.

THOROUGHLY experienced PIANOFORTE TUNER requires RE-ENGAGEMENT. Understands American Organs, Harmoniums, &c. For particulars address, Tuner, 4, Royal Fort Road, Bristol.

WANTED, by a Young Man, a SITUATION as IMPROVER in a large PIANOFORTE and MUSIC WAREHOUSE in town or country. Can tune fairly well. Six months' factory experience. Excellent references as to character, &c. C. S., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TRINITY COLLEGE, LONDON.

HIGHER EXAMINATIONS IN MUSIC. The usual HALF-YEARLY EXAMINATIONS for the positions of LICENTIATE, ASSOCIATE, and STUDENT IN MUSIC of this College, and for SPECIAL CERTIFICATES of proficiency in Harmony, Counterpoint, General Musical Knowledge, Organ and Pianoforte Playing, and Solo Singing will be held in London during the week ending July 15, 1882. The last day for receiving entries for the above Examinations is June 23, 1882.

LOCAL EXAMINATIONS IN ELEMENTARY MUSICAL KNOWLEDGE. The next Examination will take place on FRIDAY, June 16, 1882. The last day for receiving candidates' names is May 8, 1882.

LOCAL EXAMINATIONS IN INSTRUMENTAL AND VOCAL MUSIC will be held in the various London centres during the week ending SATURDAY, June 3, 1882; and at the following centres during the month of May: Stockport (15th), Manchester (16th and 17th), Burnley (18th), Huddersfield (19th), Newcastle (23rd), Stockton-on-Tees and West Hartlepool (24th), and Sunderland (25th). Candidates should forward their names, fees, and particulars of Examination to the Local Secretaries at least fourteen days before the advertised date of the Examination.

Information regarding any of the above Examinations may be obtained on application to the Secretary, Trinity College, London, W.

CLASSES AND LECTURES.

The New Term commences MAY 1.

Harmony and Counterpoint.—J. Gordon Saunders, Mus.D.; F. E. Gladstone, Mus.D.; Baron Bödög Orczy, Humphrey J. Stark, Mus.B. Form and Orchestration.—E. H. Turpin, L.Mus.T.C.L. Musical Acoustics.—W. H. Stone, M.A., M.B., F.R.C.P. Pianoforte.—Sir Julius Benedict, W. G. Cusins, Bradbury Turner, Mus.B.; E. Silas, King Hall, Miss Alma Sanders, Mrs. Baskcomb, Fredk. G. Cole, L.Mus.T.C.L.; G. E. Bambridge, Ridley Prentice. Ensemble Pianoforte Class.—Sir Julius Benedict. Organ.—W. S. Hoyte, L.Mus.T.C.L.; W. Pinney, Mus.B. Harmonium.—King Hall. Solo Singing.—F. Schira, A. Visetti, J. C. Beuthin, J. H. Nappi, Wallace Wells, Miss Kate Steel. Violin.—J. T. Carrodus, L. Szczepanowski. Violoncello.—E. Woolhouse. Flute.—John Radcliff. Oboe.—A. J. B. Dubrucq, W. M. Malsch. Clarinet.—H. Lazarus. Harp.—John Cheshire. Orchestral Society.—George Mount. Musical History.—E. H. Turpin. Elements of Music and Sight Singing.—E. Burritt Lane, L.Mus.T.C.L. Choral Society.—George Mount. Vocal and Aural Physiology.—Llewelyn Thomas, M.D., and Lennox Browne, F.R.C.S. Choral Service Class (for Clergy).—Rev. the Warden, Mus.B. Art of Conducting.—Mr. George Mount.

Classes have also been established in General Subjects for the benefit of Students preparing for musical degrees.

TRINITY COLLEGE, MANDEVILLE PLACE, MANCHESTER SQUARE, W.
By Order of the Academical Board.

LATEST NOVELTY. GREAT SUCCESS.

NEUMEYER Quadruplex Pianos.

BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

No. 4,219.

MOST PERFECT AND CHEAPEST
INSTRUMENTS.

WARRANTED TO STAND ALL CLIMATES.

For new Designs and Price-List apply to

NEUMEYER AND CO.,

NEUMEYER HALL, HART STREET, BLOOMSBURY,
LONDON, W.C.

BELL ORGANS

AHEAD OF ALL OTHERS

MANUFACTURED BY

BELL & CO., GUELPH, ONTARIO, CANADA.

Sole European Agents:

NEUMEYER AND CO.,

NEUMEYER HALL, HART STREET, BLOOMSBURY,
LONDON, W.C.

W. MORLEY & CO. MUSIC PUBLISHERS,

OF

70, UPPER STREET, N.,

BEG TO ANNOUNCE THAT TO MEET THE REQUIREMENTS OF THEIR INCREASING WHOLESALE TRADE THEY HAVE OPENED EXTENSIVE PREMISES,

269, REGENT STREET, W.,

WHERE IN FUTURE ALL WHOLESALE AND SHIPPING ORDERS AND COMMUNICATIONS SHOULD BE SENT.

W. MORLEY & CO.,

LONDON: { 269, REGENT STREET, W.
70, UPPER STREET, N.

May 1, 1882.

German Opera at Drury Lane

NOVELLO'S

OCTAVO EDITIONS OF OPERAS

TO BE PERFORMED.

	s.	d.
WAGNER'S "LOHENGGRIN" .. .. .	3	6
" " "TANNHAUSER" .. .. .	3	6
" " "FLYING DUTCHMAN" .. .. .	3	6
" " "TRISTAN UND ISOLDE" .. .. .	10	0
BEETHOVEN'S "FIDELIO" .. .. .	3	6

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

JUST PUBLISHED.

WEDDING MARCH

COMPOSED FOR THE MARRIAGE OF

H.R.H. THE DUKE OF ALBANY, K.G.

WITH

H.R.H. THE PRINCESS HELEN OF WALDECK

BY

CHARLES GOUNOD.

	s.	d.
ORGAN AND THREE TROMBONES (Original Edition) ... ..	4	0
PIANOFORTE SOLO ... ..	4	0
PIANOFORTE DUET ... ..	4	0
ORGAN SOLO ... ..	4	0
FULL ORCHESTRAL SCORE ... ..
ORCHESTRAL PARTS ... ..	5	0

LONDON: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

MAY 1, 1882.

ENGLISH OPERA.

THERE are few things more striking in the history of our music than the vicissitudes through which English Opera has passed during the present century, or more singular than its position to-day. Since the time when we had an English Opera-house in London, in which was gradually witnessed the substitution of vaudeville and extravaganza for the native opera, it has led a vagrant existence, often of extreme languor and debility. Even when English Opera was, during the first quarter of the century, a recognised institution in the capital, and the works of Arnold, Shield, Arne, and others were successfully given, the success they gained was owing in a great measure to the ability of one or two prominent singers who were rather what we should now consider concert-singers than dramatic artists. Works of such popularity as "The Castle of Andalusia," "The Farmer," and "Love in a Village" are essentially undramatic in their musical treatment, and were written more with the idea of the plausible introduction of pleasing and plaintive solo or sentimental duet than the illustration of the conduct of the libretto by means of dramatic music. The leading vocalists throughout every scene sang on every possible occasion, exhibiting their rather superficial and genteel emotion upon the thinnest pretext, accompanied by an orchestra never clamorously assertive of its rights to share in those emotions; and the whole performance would strike modern ears as slightly puerile and jejune. Yet, owing to the talents of certain singers and the undeniable melodic grace of certain airs, these compositions attained a high degree of popularity among all classes, even at a time when the opera at the King's Theatre could boast of such artists as Catalani, and Rossini's works were but newly introduced; the King himself, George III., with the sturdy patriotism that distinguished him, was a great admirer of such works as Shield's "Hartford Bridge," and "The Farmer." The music critics, among whom must be reckoned Leigh Hunt, never attempted any criticism from a dramatic standpoint, which lofty view they retained entirely for their dissertations on the Italian Opera, and then only when discussing the histrionic powers of a favourite singer. The vocalists were favourably regarded as birds, and spoken of, when extreme laudation was intended, as "warblers"; and this word in all its possible variations, admirably true and descriptive in itself, constituted the fundamental stock-in-trade of the English Opera critic in those days. This felicitous phrase was conveyed—as the wise call it—into the domain of poetry; and the more ingenious of the followers of the so-called Cockney school of poetry delighted in discovering, during their suburban excursions, the vocalisation of Miss Stephens and other popular favourites in the warbling of the thrush or the mellow notes of the blackbird. The nightingale was reserved by the poetaster for the deft introduction into his verse of the names and attributes of the Italian singers. This attitude of the critic, though engaging enough to the vocalists, was not likely to assist the public to a higher consideration of the subject, and English Opera became little more than a series of melodious airs with dialogue. Of chorus there existed but the germ, and the orchestra was scarcely above the requirements of the ball-room. It is difficult now to understand how such a work as "Blue Beard" could have become so immensely popular, excepting through the excellence of the singers who interpreted it. Equally with Shield, its author, Michael Kelly, was endowed with a gift for melody, but was quite destitute of dramatic genius, though a fair actor and singer. He was one of the few Englishmen who have appeared in continental opera, having been one of the performers in the first representation of Mozart's "Nozze di Figaro" at Vienna. Owing to his combination of the trade of wine-merchant and the writing of music, Sheridan, with more wit than truth, said of him that "he was a composer of wine and an importer of music." At this period English Opera was indeed national, without being, it must be confessed, very exalted in aim or accomplishment. There was nothing like it in Europe, and it is this that makes its history at this time so very interesting a phase of its existence. The impetus given to the representation of Italian Opera by the introduction of Rossini's works in 1818, and the subsequent success of the writings of Bellini and Donizetti, for some time had the effect of paralysing native production, but eventually, by a natural reaction, it stimulated and actually inspired it. The operas of Balfe, which possessed at first not a little native savour and national tone, became more and more modelled on the Italian school, until at length they appeared as if directly produced under the inspiration of Bellini, and afterwards of Verdi. Some of Balfe's late works are far more like travesties of Verdi than serious and original compositions, and his facility of writing, of which he most unbecomingly boasted, proved fatal in the end. As it is, his works are far more justly and critically considered as Italian Opera than English. In our own time, when music is cosmopolitan, it is not to be expected, nor indeed to be desired, that we should possess an opera as national as the English Opera of the early part of the century. That opera was national in the sense of being insular; it was the product of a country isolated, by frequent wars and a fervent but narrow patriotism, from the artistic life of the Continent, and thus it is unique in our music annals. It is no matter for regret that we can never again possess such an opera: but it is one thing for composers to "convey" from the Italian masters and crudely recast their spoil in their own work, as Balfe did, and another to be temporarily under the potent sway of a great revolutionary force, and yet preserve the pure sincerity of an artistic conscience.

It is a far cry from the early and genuine phase of English Opera to the era of Balfe and Vincent Wallace; but the lapse of time, though chronologically less, appears even greater and more fruitful in result between the operatic ventures of Mr. Harrison and Miss Louisa Pyne and the organisation of Mr. Carl Rosa's company. The idea of combining English Opera with the presentation of opera in English was the result, in this instance, of the prompt recognition of a requirement of the time. The chief merit, however, of the scheme consisted in the early perception of the rapidly increasing influence of Wagner's theories of the drama as illustrated by music, one remarkable result of which is seen in the admirable ensemble characteristic of most of the Carl Rosa representations. It is not merely in the Wagnerian operas that this is to be observed, but in French and English operas the same felicitous end has been gained, to the great advantage of the music, in all imaginative and artistic minds. There is no more remarkable proof of the opportuneness and wisdom of Mr. Carl Rosa's scheme than the great success attained by the four Wagnerian operas of his répertoire, which have proved more attractive perhaps than any others, not, certainly, because of their novelty—for that is past—but in no small degree because the burden of effect has not been suffered to fall entirely on the chief performers, due attention having been bestowed upon the mise-en-scène and the singing and grouping of the chorus. During the recent season "The Flying Dutchman" has been given by this company with a propriety and completeness of ensemble that could leave little for the composer himself to desire; and among other works which have been rendered with remarkable efficiency should be mentioned "Tannhäuser," "Rienzi," "Mignon," Balfe's "Moro" and "The Bohemian Girl," and Sir J. Benedict's "Lily of Killarney." The performances of "Lohengrin" were not equal to those of the season before last; but in other respects the members of the company have exhibited a great advance. Mr. Ludwig, in particular, has developed into a dramatic singer of the highest order. His Vanderdecken is one of the most impressive and poetical of operatic impersonations, while his rendering of the declamatory music of Telramund in "Lohengrin" abounds in fine qualities, among which is conspicuous the rare discrimination of his dramatic action. Excepting the especially noteworthy production of "The Flying Dutchman," it is in their performance of "Mignon" that the strength of Mr. Carl Rosa's troupe is most fully displayed. The libretto of M. Thomas's opera is very little superior to that of M. Gounod's "Faust," for MM. Carré and Barbier never took greater liberties nor played merrier pranks than they have done in these instances with Goethe's works. "Faust" has, of course, suffered more severely and lost immeasurably more than "Wilhelm Meister's Apprenticeship"; but the libretto of "Mignon" is scarcely of a nature to inspire enthusiasm, and its English translation, with the reprehensible fustian of its spoken dialogue, is even more depressing. In spite however of these drawbacks, this charming episode of Goethe's romance is given with so admirable an esprit de corps by the Carl Rosa company, that much of the spirit of the original work is retained, rendering the illusion far more complete and the whole performance of far higher dramatic excellence than the interpretations of this work on the Italian stage. Miss Gaylord's impersonation of Mignon is neither that of the Opéra-Comique nor that of the Italian Opera, both of which have their traditions which are usually carefully and conventionally followed; it is, on the other hand, one of such originality in conception as to amount almost to a creation. An operatic representation like this is necessarily of a very different degree of excellence from those of the old days of English Opera; but even when a modern English opera, like Sir J. Benedict's "Lily of Killarney," is considered, there is no need to fear for the future of English Opera. This work, which preserves so much of the simple melodic charm of the works of Shield and the old ballad-writers, attracted good houses last season, and, indeed, there is no reason outside the narrow limits of bigotry why this should not be so. If English Opera has never known a very robust and lengthy term of existence, it is because we were, as a nation, cut off from the large and vivifying influence of continental art, and it is only through the intimate and extended artistic intercourse of the present day that the vitalising force of more liberal views of the music-drama is now asserting itself here. It is to be hoped that Mr. Carl Rosa will be able next season to give us "The Veiled Prophet" of Mr. Villiers Stanford—that this work will prove the herald of a new order of things, and that native dramatic music will be studied and encouraged here as much as it is in France and Italy. This is the only country in Europe where opera is still regarded as something exotic, and ours is the only literature in which it is almost universally treated in a spirit of mingled flippancy and unbelief. Much of this spirit of irreverence is due to the old and favourite assumption that anything in the shape of a libretto was good enough for musical treatment. Hence the degradation of the once honoured name of opera. With the complaint that opera had become degraded arises the question, when and by whom was the downward movement towards complete degeneracy detected? Gluck, Beethoven, and Weber—all three—made successful efforts towards its elevation and regeneration. The former, particularly, not only in his remarkably dramatic compositions, but in his writings and letters, shows a clear sense of the vastness of the unexplored future for the music-drama. There need be no fear that the coming composers of dramatic music in England will necessarily be dependent upon the form and structure of the Wagnerian operas, although they will be exponents of the so-called Wagnerian theories. For the chief of these theories—those essential to the highest development of the drama in music—were articles of faith with Gluck and Beethoven, and were with them the recognition of certain great fundamental truths, the unnecessarily clamorous annunciation of which by the followers of Wagner alone has prevented their universal acceptance as truisms. The pamphleteering army, in the guise of pioneers, have scaled certain well-marked heights and taken possession of them in the name of Wagner, making them the headquarters of a vigorous propaganda and the base of operations in the future, apparently oblivious of the fact that these heights had been previously occupied by Gluck and others, and that Mozart was not unacquainted with them. But whatever the degree of influence to be exercised on English Opera in the future by the teaching and example of the great master of modern music-drama, there can be little doubt that through it a great stimulus is given to composers, and that a revival of English Opera is no longer to be regarded as visionary.

"THE NIBELUNG'S RING"

AN ANALYSIS OF RICHARD WAGNER'S TRILOGY

By F. CORDER.

THE VALKYRIE (continued from page 190).

THE third act is more stormy and terrible than ever. Here we have the famous Valkyries' Ride, a portion of which forms the Prelude. In this original and strange piece of descriptive music the wood instruments continually execute shakes, the violins descending arpeggios of great difficulty, while the brass has the exultant bounding melody, the bass instruments accompanying in an important motive always connected with riding:—

On a wild mountain-top eight Valkyries assemble, to ride together with their chosen heroes to Valhalla. They wait for the ninth, Wotan's favourite, Brynhildr.

Presently she is seen swiftly riding towards them with only a woman on her saddle. In terror and haste she comes to seek for refuge among her sisters. On hearing her unnecessarily full explanations the Valkyries are horrified at her disobedience and refuse to help. On her inquiring for a place of safety, one of the sisters mentions a dismal forest, shunned by Wotan, and haunted by Fafnir, who has changed himself into a dragon, in which form he lies over his treasure—an odd way of enjoying it. Then Brynhildr is seized with a noble resolution. She will heroically surrender herself to Wotan's wrath that Sieglinde may have time to escape. She says:

Fly then swiftly and speed to the east!
Bravely determine
all trials to bear—
hunger and thirst,
thorns and hard ways
smile through all pain
while suffering pangs,
This only heed
and hold it ever:
the highest hero of worlds
hidest thou, oh wife,
in sheltering shrine.

then, handing her the broken sword which she picked up—

anon renewed
this sword shall he swing, and now his name I declare—
"Siegfried"—victory's son!

To this important announcement, received with rapture by the poor fugitive, we have the first appearance of the "Hero Siegfried" motive—uttered very distinctly by the horns, with a simple accompaniment of quaver chords above.

On examination this melody will be found to bear a decided and intentional resemblance to the "Curse"-motive, No. 21, for it is Siegfried who should release both gods and men from the fatal ban.

As a pendant to this, Sieglinde utters her gratitude in a phrase of ecstasy, which never reappears till Brynhildr's death, at the end of the whole work:—

Uttering blessings, the hapless woman hurries away, just as the voice of Wotan is heard through the tempest, calling on Brynhildr to stay. The Valkyries—who always sing in eight distinct parts—stand round Brynhildr in terror and pity to screen her, but Wotan marches on in a towering passion and summons the culprit to stand forth. Tremblingly she advances, and her stern father loads her with violent reproaches, finally casting her off with his curse:—

Wish-maid, art thou no more;
One time a Valkyrie, wert thou—Remain henceforth
but merely thyself.

From heavenly clans
art thou excluded,
bann'd, degraded
from thy blessed degree.

And here, where we stand,
strikes thee my curse.
In powerless sleep
shalt thou be cast—
that man shall seize on the maid, in whose way she is seen and awaked.

On the others shrieking with horror at such a frightful sentence, the furious god drives them away and bids them shun this mountain for evermore, under pain of a like doom. With wild cries the troop hurtles away on the wings of the storm, which then subsides, and the Valkyries' ride music gradually dies away into silence.

Now a pleading phrase—appears, in combination with Wotan's grief-motive, No. 31, and soon fades away as Brynhildr, prostrate before her father, raises her head and—quite unaccompanied—ventures to plead humbly for forgiveness:—

Was it so shameful,
what I have done,
that for my deed I so shamefully am scourged?
Was't such dishonour,
what I have wrought,
that it should rob me of honour for aye?

A long scene ensues, in which all the previous events are recapitulated, and lengthy arguments entered into by both. In vain Brynhildr hints at the service she has done: that she has preserved the hero of the world, Siegfried, who shall make anew the sword. Wotan still holds to his decree.

At least, Brynhildr pleads, let a guarding fire be placed round her, that none but a brave man may ride through it to gain her. After some demur this is conceded, and then the god's repressed emotion breaks forth. Those who have heard this admirable scene in the concert-room will remember the outburst of passion with which it commences:—

Farewell my brave and beautiful child!
Thou, once the life
and light of my heart!
farewell! farewell! farewell!

At the end of this speech, No. 36, comes in a full burst of the orchestra. The boon is granted, and the god's anger has passed away. The figure of the magic-sleep—is then thundered out, and quickly sinks into a tranquil accompaniment to the lovely Farewell song of Wotan:—

which, after another sleep-motive, consisting of a series of chromatic chords, is tenderly repeated by the orchestra as Wotan imprints the kiss of sleep upon Brynhildr's brow and lays her under a spreading tree, shrined in her armour and shield. Then he advances to the centre of the stage and with his spear (No. 9) invokes the Fire-god Loki (No. 12) by striking on a stone. A stream of fire pours out and encircles the stage, swelling to a sea of flame. Here all the bright treble instruments execute No. 12, the piccolo doing a variation above and the divided violins filling in with seething, hissing, tremolando passages, while bells and triangle seem like shooting sparks. Then the restful figure No. 37 returns, and Wotan speaks the charm—

He who my spear in spirit feareth
ne'er springs through this fiery bar!

while the hero-motive (34) uttered by all the brass, tells us that none but Siegfried is destined to accomplish this feat. The slumber phrase continues then monotonously to the end; Wotan turns sorrowfully away, often looking back, while his tender farewell strain emerges once more from the orchestral flood. As he disappears through the flames the curtain falls on this most impressive and poetical scene, ending the second part and rousing eager anticipations of the next day's drama.

SIEGFRIED.

THIS third section of the work is certainly unique from a dramatic point of view. There are only six characters in it, of which never more than two are on the stage at the same time. Yet few people will be disposed to call it tedious, though it lasts nearly six hours.

The Prelude to "Siegfried" begins with a pedal-point of forty-six bars on the drums. The hoard (18) and smiths' (15) motives form the subject-matter, together with an odd phrase which will be found already in "Rhine-gold" (Scene 3) representing Mimi's cogitation:—

We are introduced to a cave in a forest, where Mimi sits hammering in great discouragement at a sword for the wild boy whom he has brought up. He knows that Siegfried is destined to slay the dragon Fafnir, and would fain make him a weapon, but the most cunning of smiths cannot satisfy the youth's requirements. Presently Siegfried dashes in, driving a bear which he has caught and bridled with a rope, to the great terror of Mimi. The following is a new motive typifying his exuberant wildness—a melody which he is accustomed to blow on his horn:—

He tries the new sword by hacking it on the anvil, and is furious at finding it fly to pieces. Here is the phrase of his anger, which pervades this scene:—

Mimi vainly tries to soothe his ill-temper—various forms of the smiths' figure always occur in Mimi's music—but Siegfried sulkily strikes from his hand the food he proffers, and will not believe in the genuineness of his protestations of love and coaxings. The youth demands to know who are his parents, for even his savage ignorance will not allow him to be longer imposed upon in this matter. His song, telling how he saw all birds and beasts enjoy love in some form, has a fine rugged poetry in it. It has a very sweet theme:—

By dint of threats and shakings Mimi is forced into telling how he found the hapless Sieglinde in the wood and gave her shelter; how she bore a son and died, and how all the pay her protector got was a broken sword, which he produces in corroboration of his tale. Siegfried, overjoyed at finding himself not bound to the hateful dwarf, commands him at once to forge this sword anew, that he may go forth to the world himself. He rushes off to the woods, away from his perplexed guardian, singing as he goes:—

As the fish fin
through the flood shoots,
as the finch flies
to a free shore,
far hence I'll flee,
flow like a stream:
with the wind o'er the woods
wafting away,

then, Mimi, ne'er will I return!

One phrase in this Song of Freedom (a) recurs in the "Götterdämmerung," when he leaves his love to wander in quest of fresh adventures:—

Now to the disconsolate dwarf, who knows himself unequal to his task, there comes a strange visitor. Wotan has taken to roam the world in the form of a Wanderer, looking out for help from his menacing doom. To a solemn theme for tubas, trombones, and horns—he enters and greets Mimi. A rather long but undeniably interesting scene follows, simply to explain the events of the two previous dramas and refresh our memories with their thematic contents. Wotan stakes his head against Mimi's, each having to answer three questions propounded by the other. Wotan's last question is, "Who shall forge the sword with which Siegfried is to slay Fafnir?" and on the dwarf failing to guess, he supplies the answer himself as he departs:—

Hear, Fafnir's would-be undoer!
heed, thou fated dwarf:
none but who fear
hath never felt maketh "Needful" new.
Thy head so wise
henceforth guard well!
I leave it forfeit to him
who has learnt not yet to fear.

Mimi sinks back behind his anvil in an ecstasy of terror, nervously dreading in the rustling of the trees and flitting of their shadows the approach of some ghostly enemy. The orchestra here seems to be trying its best to frighten him, rather causing than illustrating his terrors, combining various phrases of mischievous "Loki" music, while the dragon-motive booms out in the bass. The returning Siegfried breaks from the thicket, causing Mimi almost to faint with fright. Unable at first to give an account of himself, Mimi at last collects his wits and explains that he is anxious to teach Siegfried what fearing is. Siegfried cannot even be brought to understand the word, so Mimi promises that Fafnir shall teach him. This brings back the question of the sword, and the smith declaring himself unable to do anything with it, Siegfried determines to tackle the job himself. The figure of the first triplet in No. 40 is his "work"-motive, as he takes the broken sword-blade and, setting it in the vice, files it to powder. He sings wild songs over his work, always with this refrain—and having melted the steel-dust to an ingot, proceeds to forge a new blade, to the astonishment and awe of Mimi, who is racking his brain how to escape from this dilemma: if Siegfried is made to fear by Fafnir the dragon will not be killed nor the hoard and Ring gained; whereas, if he quails not Mimi himself will fall by his hand, according to the Wanderer's fiat. Suddenly a happy thought strikes him: he will make a poison-draught and give it to Siegfried under pretence of refreshing him directly after he has slain the dragon. His delight at this scheme finds vent in the following phrases—which are ingeniously interwoven with the songs Siegfried continues to sing with increasing exuberance as his work approaches completion, until a most exciting climax is reached. Siegfried waves the completed sword in the air, and crying—

See, Mimi, thou smith!
So serveth Siegfried's sword!

dashes it upon the anvil, which it slices clean in half. As Mimi falls to the ground in terror, Siegfried brandishes his sword with shouts of joy, and the curtain falls.

The music of this and the following act, though very fine, and more flowing than that of the "Rhine-gold" and "Valkyrie," is still not the perfectly homogeneous musical stream that we get in the later works of the master. He is contented as yet with bringing in his motives unadorned and unaltered wherever they are wanted, and does not work them symphonically to any extent. We may make an exception in the case of the Nibelung smith-motive, which occurs in various combinations no less than 240 times during the course of this one act.

The second act shows us another and more gloomy part of the forest. A weird prelude, founded on various Nibelung-motives with tremolo accompaniments, prepares us for the presence of the evil genius Alberic. A very wicked theme, too, here plays an important part—the Fafnir-motive—which will be seen to be founded on the giant's theme (No. 11). Alberic, waiting for him who shall slay Fafnir, is visited by the Wanderer, and a long colloquy ensues, without any other apparent object than to remind us of past events. The Wanderer, half in jest, rouses up Fafnir and warns him of a coming foe, but he only yawns and says:—

I lie in possession—
let me slumber!

The Wanderer wanders away, whither, a reminiscence of his farewell to Brynhildr tells us. Alberic resumes his secret watch, the day dawns and Siegfried enters, guided by Mimi, who leaves him in this place to learn the art of fearing.

Now ensues a most enchanting scene. Tired with his long night-march, Siegfried reclines under a linden-tree in the bright morning light, turning his thoughts on his unknown mother, while the orchestra, imitating the rustling of the woods, gives us a tender, melodious form of the Sieglinde's sorrow-motive (28). Presently the voices of the birds attract the boy—pretty, warbling phrases for flute and clarinet. He cuts a reed pipe and vainly endeavours to imitate the notes, with the hope of learning the language. Failing in this, he blows a merry tune on his horn, comprising not only his own motive (No. 40), but—what would be impossible on a natural horn—the hero-motive (No. 34) as well. This wakens the dragon Fafnir, who crawls out to find who is the disturber of his peace. Siegfried, like the audience, is more inclined to laugh than be frightened at this object, and after some parley a rather comic combat ensues, ending, of course, in the death of Fafnir. The dragon's blood has spurted on Siegfried's hand; it burns like fire. He carries his hand unconsciously to his mouth, when, at the first taste of the blood, he finds himself able to understand the songs of the birds above him. One sings:—

Hey! Siegfried doth hold
now the Nibelung's hoard!
O! he'll find the hoard
in the hole anon!

Were he the Tarnhelm to win
it would tide him through wonderful tasks;
but were he the Ring too to ravish
'twould give him the ward of the world!

The phrase to which this is sung is in 4-4 time, while the accompaniment is in 3-4. Siegfried obeys the voice of the bird, and investigates the dragon's lair. Meanwhile Mimi timidly returns, and is pounced upon by the still watching Alberic, the two quarrelling fiercely over the ownership of the treasure which Siegfried now holds. The return of that unconscious youth with the two coveted articles stops their wrangle, and Mimi pursues his intended plot. But again the friendly bird sings—

Hey! Siegfried doth hold
now the Helm and the Ring!
O trust not in Mimi,
the treacherous elf!

Heareth Siegfried but sharply
the shifty hypocrite's words:
what at heart he means shall by Mimi be shown;
so booteth the taste of the blood—and so all falls out. Mimi tries to wheedle Siegfried, but instead of the soft flatteries he thinks he is speaking, he informs him of all his villainous intentions. He offers the poisoned cup, and Siegfried lays him dead with one blow of his sword, whereupon a grim "Ha, ha, ha!" to the Nibelung phrase (No. 15) issues from the rocks where Alberic is hiding. Now Siegfried, after disposing of his two corpses, feels more keenly than ever his lonely condition. He appeals again to the friendly bird for a companion, and is answered:—

Hey! Siegfried has slain
now the sinister dwarf!
I wot for him now
a glorious wife,

In guarded fastness she sleeps,
fire doth emborder the spot:
o'erstepped he the blaze,
waked he the bride,
Brynhildr then would be his!

Whereupon fervid emotion seizes the youth:—

He is further told that none may waken the bride save he who knows not fear. Overjoyed, he follows the bird, which then flies before him to guide him on his way. This is the rather tame end of the second act.

In the music of the third act, written several years later on, a great change in style is perceptible. A general air of savage wildness pervades the music, sometimes, but not always, in admirable keeping with the subject. A strange scene opens this act, preceded by a prelude, in which all the themes connected with Wotan are employed, accompanied by the "riding" figure (the bass of No. 33). In a wild, mountainous region the Wanderer comes to conjure up, by his spells, the form of the mysterious Erda. He seeks for advice in his sore perplexity, but she can give him none. But one new phrase, that of the "world's heirdom"— occurs in this scene, and the orchestra almost seems to go mad over its complex web of old themes in new forms. On Siegfried appearing in the distance, the Wanderer dismisses Erda, and goes to meet him. Siegfried is, as usual, fearless and impudent, and when, after a long parley, the Wanderer attempts to bar his way (why, is hardly clear), Siegfried strikes the spear from his grasp and hews it in pieces. Then Wotan knows that his power has indeed departed, and, quietly picking up his broken sceptre, he vanishes away to Valhalla, there to wait the Dusk of the Gods, when Loki, the treacherous, shall fling fire into the hall and consume all the Æsir.

No. 50.

Meanwhile Siegfried is opposed by Loki's barrier of flame, and boldly dashes into it, winding his horn. The melody is ingeniously worked up with the fire (12) and hero (34) motives into a glowing fire-symphony, while the scene is being changed behind the smoke and flame which fill the stage. Gradually all subsides, with delicate sweeps of the harp and faint allusions to the motives connected with Brynhildr. A remarkable wandering passage of twenty-four bars for first violins alone here attracts notice as the smoke clears, and we see the same scene as at the end of "The Valkyrie"—a rocky mountain, with Brynhildr lying asleep in her armour. Sweet and alluring strains accompany Siegfried's exploration of this place—Wotan's farewell (38) and a seductive melody belonging to Fricka in the "Rhinegold" appearing, amongst others. Siegfried's astonishment and emotion at beholding a woman for the first time are very finely portrayed: he releases the sleeper from her encumbering armour, and finally, after a lengthy hesitation, presses a kiss on her lips.

Now comes the opportunity for Wagner to write a love-scene surpassing all his previous attempts. The only question is whether he has not rather overdone the thing—if one may dare to criticise this overwhelming scene. Brynhildr wakes and sits erect, greeting the sun and world in almost the words of the Edda:—

Hail, ye gods all!
Hail, thou world!
Hail ye glories of nature!
Unknit is now my sleep;
I stand awake:
Siegfried 'tis
who unwinds the spell!

Then the two burst into a rapturous duet on this phrase—

No. 51.

followed by this, which has for a bass the first bar of the Siegfried-motive (34)—

No. 52.

and these themes are worked out at great length, combined with many old ones. Siegfried, ardent and impetuous, seeks to embrace Brynhildr, but the Valkyrie, as strange to love as he, is terrified to death at his approach. She tenderly pleads—to those two lovely phrases on which the "Siegfried Idyll" is founded—to be left an immortal, unsullied being:—

O Siegfried! Siegfried! light of my soul!
Love—thyself
and leave me in peace:
destroy not thy faithful slave.

No. 53.

No. 54.

But Siegfried gradually coaxes away her fears until, in a wild, hysterical rapture, she gives herself to him. (A very different scene, this, to the dignified chapter in the Saga which corresponds to it!) One last theme then enters on a long dominant pedal:—

No. 55.

The voices join again in a duet as the climax approaches. We then find that No. 55 is merely a new double counterpoint to No. 51. No. 50 and 52 also combine, and with a piling-up of the excitement which no words can describe, all these themes unite in one grand climax, and the drama is ended.

THE DUSK OF THE GODS.

It is needless to say that in this final portion of the work both music and drama soar higher than ever towards the sublime. As regards the drama, Wagner has here, at any rate, grasped the utmost dramatic possibilities of the old legend and given us a really noble tragedy.

The Prologue to "The Dusk of the Gods" opens, after a very few bars, with the same scene as that we have just left, the Valkyrie's rock. It is night, all is shrouded in gloom, and the three Nornir (Fates) sit weaving a golden rope and telling of the previously shown events. The motive (No. 2 in the minor) of their mother Erda is of course prominent, and also a slightly different form of the same theme, representing the "world's ash-tree" (Yggdrasil) from which, as they tell, Wotan's spear was cut. Weird, wandering arpeggio passages on the muted strings also typify the three Nornir themselves. At the end of the scene their rope breaks, the curse (21) sounds menacingly out, and they sink into the earth, their duties for ever over.

Now the day dawns, and as the sun rises Brynhildr and Siegfried emerge from a rocky cave, which is her chamber. Some time has passed, for he is in full armour, and on the point of leaving her to seek fresh exploits. Each has a fresh motive, hers tender and womanly—

No. 56.

and his a dignified and heroic version of his former theme (No. 40):—

No. 57.

There is also a love-phrase of great and melancholy beauty:—

No. 58.

The parting scene of the lovers is, in our opinion, finer than the love-scene at the end of "Siegfried," being less wild and tempestuous. Towards the end the phrase 43a appears, typifying Siegfried's love of wandering. The hero leaves his noble mistress, having given her his famous Ring as a love-gift and received in return her horse Grani. As he becomes lost to sight in the distance, the orchestra takes up the melody of his horn and works it up into a most vigorous movement, with a mischievous phrase of Lohi's, showing us that evil is at hand. The Rhine-music and complaint of the Rhine-nymphs follow, and the movement fades away at its conclusion with menacing Nibelung-motives. By this time the scene has been changed, and we are introduced to the Hall of the Gibichungs on the Rhine, where a great chieftain, Gunther, lives with Hagen, his half-brother, and Gudrun, his sister. The following rhythmical accent will be found everywhere in the music of these Gibichungs:—

No. 59.

From the dialogue of this scene it appears that Gunther is desirous of augmenting his fame by illustrious marriages for himself and sister. Hagen (who, it should here be explained, is the son of Alberic, his mother having been won by gold, not love) gives cunning advice on this point. He tells of Brynhildr, the fairest woman on earth, waiting in her fire-girt home for a wooer brave enough to ride the flame; and then he tells Gudrun of Siegfried, the dragon-killer, the mightiest of heroes. It is decided that should Siegfried ever wander this way, Gudrun shall give him a magic draught of forgetfulness to drown all other interests from his mind and chain him to her side. Scarcely has this resolution been made when Siegfried's horn is heard in the distance, and he comes down the Rhine in a boat, horse and all. He lands, makes friends with the Gibichungs, is given a cup of wine, which he drains to the memory of Brynhildr, and straightway forgets her very existence.

He hears of Gunther's ambition with scarce a momentary recollection of her to whom it refers, and, finally, even offers to win the bride in place of Gunther, who, in spite of his courage, feels doubtful about the fire. The two heroes go through the ceremony of taking the oath of blood-brotherhood, enunciating their vow in the form of a duet. Dropping blood from their arms into a cup of wine, they sing:—

Breaks a brother the bond, . . .

No. 60.

fails in faith to his friend, . . .
What in drops we here
haste to drink of,
in streams be strained from his heart,
forfeit stern to his friend.

After this, Siegfried, taking affectionate leave of Gudrun, whose hand is to be the reward of his success, sails back to the Valkyrie's rock with Gunther. Hagen, left alone to guard the hall, has a gloomy soliloquy. He is plotting to gain the fatal Ring. His music merges into a long and sinister interlude, while the scene changes once more back to the Valkyrie's rock. Here we find Brynhildr sitting, contemplating and kissing her Ring, while echoes of former love-themes (54) follow the current of her thoughts. A sudden gust of thunderstorm arises and brings her an unexpected visitor, Valtrauta, one of her sister Valkyries. Brynhildr's delighted greetings and caresses are scarcely returned, for the visitor is in sore trouble. She tells a long story of the sad state of things in Valhalla. Wotan came home recently with his broken spear, silently directed his heroes to cut down the world's ash-tree and stack it in faggots round Valhalla:—

No. 61.

Then, assembling all the gods and heroes in the great hall, he has sat ever since, patiently awaiting his doom. Valtrauta continues:—

Unto his breast
weeping I press'd me;
his brooding then broke—
and his thoughts turned, Brynhildr, to thee!

Here we have a touching reminiscence of the Farewell song (38).

Deep sighs he uttered,
closed his eyelids,
as were he dreaming,
reled these words:
"The day the Rhine's three daughters gain by surrender the Ring, from the curse's load released are gods and men."
I thought upon 't,
and then I threaded,
'mid throngs dumb-stricken,
thence from his side;
in haste on my horse
I threw me astride,
and straightway thrust towards thee.
Then, my sister,
I supplicate—
do what thou may'st,
if but thou hast mind—
ward off the woe of the gods!

Now observe the dramatic retribution! Brynhildr, having been cast off by Wotan and degraded to a mere mortal, is unmoved by this tale of woe, and would sooner die a thousand deaths than part with her Ring. After vain entreaties Valtrauta is obliged to fly home unsuccessful and distressed. Brynhildr, again alone, is surprised to find her protecting fire rising from its normal distant glow to an approaching wall of flame. Some one is trying to cross it! She hears Siegfried's horn, and rapturously starts up to greet her hero. Horror! It is a stranger who confronts her! Siegfried, wearing the Tarnhelm, which gives him Gunther's form, advances and claims her for his bride. Filled with horror, she resists, the Ring giving her supernatural strength; a terrific struggle takes place, but on Brynhildr imprudently revealing in her triumph the secret of her strength, Siegfried contrives to tear the Ring from her finger. Her power gone, she helplessly yields, and goes to her rocky chamber as he bids her. Then, drawing his sword, Siegfried says:—

Now, Needful, witness thou that chaste my wooing is,
To seal my oath to my brother, separate me from his bride.

and as he follows Brynhildr the curtain falls.

The second act brings us to exciting events, and the music is wild and strange beyond all description. It opens with a demoniac prelude on Nibelung-motives, with a characteristic accompaniment of syncopated chords. We are then shown the exterior of the Gibichungs' hall, with Hagen sitting asleep, and Alberic visiting him in a dream, to stir up his hatred against all who stand between him and the Ring. Hagen assures his elfin parent of his faithfulness, and as Alberic's figure melts away the day dawns over the Rhine—a beautiful scenic effect. Siegfried, transported hither by the Tarnhelm, appears before Hagen, wakes him, and tells him of his success. The bridal pair are now descending the river in the boat, and he has heralded them to see that all is prepared for the double wedding. He goes into the hall with Gudrun, leaving Hagen to summon all the vassals and people of the tribe from the country round. This gathering of the clans is very weird. Hagen blows a huge cow-horn (in C), and is answered by others in the distance (in D and D flat), making together a very nice cacophony. Against a perpetual tremolo C of the violas and cellos the following call of the Gibichungs is heard:—

It incessantly pervades the remainder of this act, the F sharp bass against the chord of C being a characteristic, but we dare not say a pleasing, feature. The men rush wildly on by twos and threes, thinking it an alarm, but as Hagen gradually explains his summons, their wild cries change to mirth, and they sing a sort of joyous chorus, but it is a very savage kind of merriment. Hagen is still giving directions when the expected couple arrive, and they land amid the wild acclamations of the people. Now comes the situation in the drama. The two bridal pairs meet, and Brynhildr comes face to face with Siegfried, with Gudrun on his arm. A crash from the orchestra and a long-sustained chord is followed here by a sinister motive, which now clings to the wronged and tortured Brynhildr:—

No. 63.

A violent and terribly dramatic scene ensues; Brynhildr is bewildered by seeing on Siegfried's finger the Ring which Gunther, as she thinks, took from her. Hagen, for his own reasons, throws the attempted explanations into hopeless confusion, and it only appears to the people that Brynhildr is accusing Siegfried of having abused his situation of proxy-bridgroom. Siegfried, on being urged, takes an oath on Hagen's spear that he has been true to his brother. The maddened Brynhildr pushes him aside, and swears on the same spear that he has broken his oath, but no one believes her save Gunther.

The marriage revellers retire to feast within the hall, leaving three gloomy figures brooding apart: Brynhildr, anguished and longing for vengeance; Gunther, overcome by shame and sorrow; and the evil Hagen, who now stirs up these two to wipe out their injuries by Siegfried's death. Brynhildr, ere she became his, gave all her spells and runes to the work of making him invulnerable, but she now remembers that she set no spell on his back, knowing that he would never turn it to a foe. The hint is not lost on Hagen, and he proposes that Siegfried shall go a-hunting to-morrow, and be brought home struck by a boar. A form of No. 63, with the menacing Nibelung-motive above, is never absent throughout this scene, ending the act, after a strange trio of the three conspirators, as the wedding revellers again come out and force Gunther and Brynhildr to join their procession.

The third act affords a charming relief from these sounds of woe and bitterness. A short prelude tells us that Siegfried (34) and the Gibichungs (62) are hunting by the Rhine (2). We are then shown a lovely river valley. The Rhine-nymphs are swimming about on the stream and singing a most exquisite trio, in somewhat the same character as their former music. A portion of the melody runs thus:—

No. 64.

Siegfried, who has strayed from his party in pursuit of a bear, accosts these nymphs in search of information. A lively, if rather coarse, scene ensues. The nymphs try to coax the Ring from him, but failing, they warn him that it will prove his death. Still less does this move him, and they leave him at last with jeers and laughter. The hunting party now appear, blowing their discordant horn-call (62). They greet the truant, and then make a mid-day bivouac. To cheer up his brother Gunther, who is sad and downcast (remorseful for the evil deed he is countenancing), Siegfried offers to tell the story of his youthful days. Hagen maliciously squeezes the juice of an herb into a horn of wine and offers it to Siegfried to clear his memory. Then the hero sits down and gives us a delightful resumé of the preceding drama, telling all about Mimi, the bird and the dragon. But now for the first time Gunther hears how Brynhildr was really Siegfried's bride, and he discovers Hagen's deceit. As he starts up in surprise, Hagen quickly cries to Siegfried—

Canst read the speech of those ravens aright?—

as Wotan's two messengers rise croaking from a bush to fly to their master and warn him that all is over. Siegfried turns to look at the birds, and Hagen stabs him in the back. Terrible and sublime is the death of the hero. Exquisite reminiscences of Brynhildr's awaking fill his dying thoughts—he is once more himself and her true love. The awed ejaculations of the men, "Hagen, what hast thou done?" and a solemn phrase which forms the characteristic of the succeeding dirge—

No. 65.
Lento.

combine to make up an unsurpassable picture of solemn dread. Hagen has gloomily stalked away over the hills, and the men now follow him with the dead hero's body; the moon shines down upon the retreating funeral procession as the orchestra breaks into the sublime Funeral March, as it is called. This is merely a string of phrases connected with Siegfried, welded into one whole by the aid of our last quotation (65) in Wagner's own inimitable manner. During this piece the scene changes to the Hall of the Gibichungs, as in Act 1. Guðrun is waiting by night for the return of the hunting party. Presently Hagen comes in, rousing up all the house with wild hysterical glee to welcome home the hunters. The people come in with torches and lanterns, to meet only the funeral procession of Siegfried. Woe and terror prevail. Hagen boldly defends his deed, and asserts his "booty-right" on the dead man by endeavouring to seize the fatal ring. Gunther struggles with him for it and is killed. The confusion is only quelled by the solemn entry of Brynhildr, who has been down to the river and taken counsel of the Rhine-nymphs. She says:—

Children I heard crying to their mother to say that milk has been spilled;
but nought I marked a fitting lament
for the highest hero's fate.

She bids the men to build a funeral pyre by the river's brink (No. 61), and meanwhile sings a noble funeral song, in the course of which all the principal motives of the four dramas appear, No. 35 forming the exalted climax. It may here be noticed that some thirty lines of the libretto have been judiciously cut out by the composer in setting to the music, on account of too great length. Yet these are some of the best lines in the whole poem. Brynhildr mounts her horse Grani, and leaps him (at least the stage direction says so) into the fire, where she is consumed with her lover. The Rhine swells up, and washes over the fire embers; the nymphs, floating on it, regain their Ring at last; and Hagen, wildly attempting its rescue, is pulled down into the flood and drowned. During this the brass instruments intone the Valhalla theme (8) against the undulating Rhine arpeggios of the strings, while the Rhine-nymphs' motive (3) and Brynhildr's blessing (35) soar above. Louder swells the Valhalla march as a red glow appears on the distant horizon, and in the sky is seen a vision of the gods sitting round their hall, and being burnt up by Loki's fire. The connection between the destruction of Siegfried and Brynhildr and that of Valhalla is by no means clear, but it rounds off the tragedy by leaving no one of the characters alive, except perhaps Guðrun.

The exigencies of space have prevented us from doing more than give an account of the incidents, and a list of the principal motives of this remarkable work. We can only advise those interested in it to read through the vocal scores, and disentangle for themselves, by the light of our remarks, the mazes of the music, of which no verbal description, however full, can give much idea. The "Nibelung's Ring" differs from "Tristan" and the "Mastersingers" in the fact that while nearly all the motives or component musical phrases are diatonic, their treatment is chromatic. On the first production of the work many critics, both German and English, while admitting its great beauties, found so much to reprobate in both music and libretto, that their summing-up was: "This work is a magnificent mistake." But what avails the voice of the critic when it contradicts the public judgment? The "Nibelung's Ring" is now being played at every German opera-house which can afford to mount it, and the success is invariable and overwhelming. In the face of this the critic has only to hold his peace.

HEINRICH HOFMANN

By JOSEPH BENNETT.

(Concluded from page 185.)

As a composer of instrumental music Hofmann is most widely known through his works for the pianoforte, which have attained great popularity on account of reasons not less legitimate than obvious. Hofmann is no pretender to a position in advance of his time, nor does he aim to satisfy his ambition by figuring as the god of a small sect. He writes for the masses, without descending to the level of common taste. The character of his pieces, their scope and form of expression, even the very designations they bear, bespeak a desire for "the greatest happiness of the greatest number." Yet there is no attempt to win the suffrages of the "many-headed" by appeals to vulgar fancies. However broadly laid out to catch votes, Hofmann's pianoforte pieces are invariably those of a refined as well as an accomplished musician. The composer is, therefore, doing a specially good work in art. It is all very well for gifted men to labour in the upper spheres. There can be no higher aim than the creation of music which exemplifies the sublimest powers of the human mind, and no higher reward than its acceptance by those who comprehend all the greatness of such an achievement. But if nothing more were done than this what would become of the art? We need men that, like Hofmann and others, are willing to take upon themselves a less lofty though not less useful mission, and, by appealing to the people in language understood of them, to cultivate their tastes to a perception of higher and higher good.

From the first, Hofmann has shown himself awake to the favour enjoyed by national and characteristic music, with which the catalogue of his pieces for the pianoforte abounds. It is interesting to observe how almost exclusively he has confined himself, in the gratification of this taste, to nationalities—as Russia and Hungary—the music of which is chiefly remarkable for strangeness of rhythm, or—as Scandinavia—for strongly marked and erratic forms of melody. This preference may be either the result of inclination or policy, but in any case it illustrates one of the tendencies of the present musical age, which, in its restless search after novelty, leaves no hole unexplored, no corner unswept. The great masters of eighty years ago were satisfied to introduce a national melody once or twice in a lifetime, by way of compliment—as Beethoven—or for the indulgence of a whim—as Haydn. But now we have symphonies and concertos named after a half-dozen countries, while in the lower walks of Art classic themes and rhythms are being elbowed out by strong and uncouth barbarians. There is nothing in all this to excite alarm, but rather hope. The ancient hero who, struck to the earth, sprang up with renewed strength gained from the Great Mother, is a type of many things, and every form of Art would become effete were it not invigorated at intervals by inoculation with the sap of nature in its untutored naturalness. Thus it is emphatically with music, and when, in course of time, culture has taken off the roughness of the crude forms now so plentifully used, our art will find itself in possession of fresh, vigorous and healthy means. Hofmann has turned national music to very good account, showing, indeed, a special aptitude for its treatment from a classic point of view. In proof, we need only cite his Hungarian Dances, originally written for orchestra, but best known, in this country at least, by the composer's own arrangement for four hands. In these compositions—so they may be called, noting what is made out of the primitive material—Hofmann has secured the most picturesque effects, into the exact truth of which we do not care to inquire, seeing how enjoyable they are. At the same time he has preserved the spirit of the original. Too often the manipulators of national melodies rob them of their wild fragrance, and give them over to us as undistinguishable as the odour of a wood violet in a drawing-room crowded with exotics. Hofmann shows his good sense by avoiding this, even when he has an orchestra at command, and is naturally tempted to use it with more regard for the effect of his score than the claims of his theme. In the "Steppenbilder" ("Prairie Pictures") we have another exemplification of the composer's aptitude. These pieces are avowedly based upon Russian melodies, and it is interesting to observe the clever way in which, without sacrificing characteristics, the themes are handled. Here is the motive of No. 2—a Lento in A major—

—nothing more, yet out of this Hofmann makes two pages of refined and charming music, noteworthy for the richness of its harmonic treatment. A set of "Norwegian Songs and Dances," in three books, for pianoforte (solo or duet), also deserves attention on the same grounds. The wild and plaintive melodies of the far north have a fitting exponent in Hofmann, who deals with them as though he loved them. Who would not love them? Take these two, which the German composer has used in association for a "Spring Dance":—

No. 1. Allegro.

No. 2.

Subjects so naïve and virginal might well tempt any man to expend upon them his best art, and Hofmann has done so, investing them with a harmonic dress that does not conceal, but rather sets off their beauty. In another example we have a "Tanzlied," founded upon a two-bar rhythm—

Moderato.

and expanded into a charming pianoforte study. With reference to Hofmann's treatment of national or people's music, mention is certainly deserved here by his "Ländler" pieces, and his transcription of eight popular British airs, which transcription he has dedicated to Sir Julius Benedict. These trifles are interesting, not because the themes are handled in an elaborate manner, but for the reason that the composer dealt with them in the absence of any knowledge of the family to which they belong. The result of having our wild flowers of melody removed to a German soil, and cultivated by a German gardener, is curious, but withal attractive as showing in what measure such things are affected by transplantation, and how oddly they present themselves.

Leaving the field of national music, which no one "exploits" more industriously than Hofmann, our composer is found engaged with equal eagerness and industry in that which yields "characteristic" music. For the art which is perfectly "pure," using the word in its mathematical sense as the opposite of "applied," he seems to cherish no great affection. Hence, in going through a catalogue of Hofmann's instrumental works, we meet with twenty pieces bearing some fanciful or suggestive title for one which is simply described by the musical term most applicable. This may be the result of policy, and if so, who will sternly blame a composer for meeting a public want which, after all, is harmless? We may rail at the desire of the public to have their pianoforte pieces associated with some incident, scene, or feeling, as the offspring of artistic weakness, but the thing is too universal and too powerful to be set aside with lofty disdain. Nor is it altogether a weakness. Granted that the man who prefers his music without a label, and derives from it greater enjoyment when free to make his own interpretation—granted that he is musically more robust than another who cannot thus stand on his own legs, yet the craving for a poetic designation or application has its roots somewhere in poetic instinct. At any rate, composers and publishers must reckon with it, and, within due bounds, may not only gratify it, but use it as a means for popularising art. Beethoven's Sonata in C sharp minor, had it never found another name, would have ranked among the choicest gems of music, but when Cranz of Hamburg called it the "Moonlight" he gave an impetus to the work which, even now, carries it easily where access would otherwise have been difficult. The title—we will not stop to discuss its propriety—invests the music with a poetic significance, and arrests the attention in thousands of cases where, without it, neither the one result nor the other would have been possible. At the same time this characterisation of music may be carried too far, and easily becomes exaggerated and contemptible. The noblest and purest music is always that which appeals directly and unaided to fancy and feeling, moving both without stimulus from, or guidance by exterior things. Among the writers of characteristic music, Hofmann, as we have said, is a very industrious and comprehensive labourer, dividing his attention, like Schumann, almost equally between objective and subjective themes. Schumann, we cannot but fancy, has had considerable influence over him in this respect—not, perhaps, as materially affecting his method, but as determining the nature of his work. Some recognition of the fact may have been made by Hofmann himself, when he dedicated the twelve pieces entitled "From my Diary" to the widow of the illustrious man. The very names of these pieces suggest Schumann: "Discourse," "Hunting Scene," "The Nightingale sings," "The last Farewell," "Snowflakes"—these all come to us like Schumann echoes. Let us add that they are not unworthy of the connection. Schumann could never have written them, it is true, any more than Hofmann could write the dead master's "Carnival" scenes; but, in their way, the twelve pages from the "Diary" are as charming in fancy and as graceful in style as heart can wish. We take these as fairly representative of the composer's highest gifts, and invite our readers to obtain them in order to base thereupon a correct estimate of the author. At the very outset a favourable impression is made by the charming Allegretto called "Over the Waters," with its graceful undulations and its expansive open-air effect. The subject has employed many pens, but rarely received greater justice than in Hofmann's case. A sadder and deeper note is struck in "The last Farewell," but its solemn vibrations merge into the simple, unaffected gaiety of the Allegro non troppo, "By the Brook," which runs a brief yet sparkling course, and carries with it all who listen. "Under the village Linden-tree" is an allegro non troppo of more elaborate structure, and more truly characteristic of the composer by reason of its freer harmonic treatment. Hofmann is an ardent lover, we will not say of modulation—because, as a matter of fact, modulation secundum artem is fading out of practice—but of transitions. He often springs them upon us in a manner as startling as unexpected, and under circumstances which half persuade us to believe that he is perpetrating a joke. No example of this occurs in the piece under notice, which only shows the composer's disdain for such commonplaces as dominant and sub-dominant, and his preference for excursion farther afield. Hofmann is at his best in an Andante, "The Nightingale sings," a perfect little idyl of the moonlit woods, with their mysterious harmonies; and, yet again, in the Allegro, "Snowflakes," which might just as well have been called a "Fairy Dance," so lightly and jocosely do the tinkling notes crowd upon each other. A Moderato, "Roving Bird," is another gem, as illustrative as the others we have named of the peculiar refinement and delicacy which characterise Hofmann's more poetical effusions: The composer, no doubt, lays himself open, at times, to the charge of over-elaboration. Occasionally he tends to obscure his outline by a crowd of details, but it cannot be denied that all his touches are those of a pencil guided by an innate perception of the beautiful and artistic. In these pieces, for example, we seldom or never catch him tripping. The pages are free from vulgarity, even when they are most conventional, and at no time is it possible for a cultured taste to turn away in just disdain.

Hofmann is further represented to the same effect in a set of "Reminiscences," which for the most part are harder in character than the "Diary" music, and take a bolder flight. These works form a musical commentary upon certain quotations from the poets, with which they are prefaced, after a mode now common. The selections have evidently been made with a keen eye for musical fitness. Here is one, for example:—

Am schimmernden See im Mondenschein,
Ein Elfenkind sass trauernd allein.

And here another:—

Hat eine Zither gegangen
An der Thür unbeacht,
Der Wind ist gegangen
Durch die Saiten bei Nacht.

Upon the foundation of suggestive thoughts like these Hofmann has built some of his best musical structures, lifting them up above mere prettiness into the higher region of that beauty which is animated by the power of true art. Take for instance, the Allegro agitato in B minor, entitled "Verloren." In its restlessness, and what we may describe as hardness of structure, the very spirit of Heine's lines seems reflected, while the more tender character of the episode in G major appears to suggest that no fate lies beyond the influence of hope. A delightful Andante, "Zur Laute"—delicate as fairy gossamer —may be found in the second book of these "Reminiscences," but amateurs will have some trouble in deciding whether this or its successor, "Am Giessbach," bears the palm for picturesque qualities. The second is certainly "a gem of purest ray serene," with which may be associated the Vivace that illustrates Puck's complacent description of himself and his deeds. For contrast, we have in "Vineta" an Andante throughout which Hofmann gives the rein to his passion for elaborate design and tonal surprises. In two pages he shakes hands with as many distantly related members of the "tone family" as can well be crowded into the space. "Five Characteristic Pieces" may here be mentioned for the sake of a slow movement called "Twilight"—another exemplification of the composer's delicate touch—and also for the opportunity afforded by a "Humoreske" in F major of questioning whether he possesses to any marked extent the gift of humour. We certainly discover no evidence of it in the piece just named, which might with more propriety be termed a caprice. Turning to No. 5 ("Carnaval") of a set of six, entitled "Italian Love Tale," we are struck by gaiety and fun rather than humour. In this respect nothing can be better: the music rushes on with many a quip and crank to keep the fancy alive and the spirit buoyant, but the subtler quality in which Beethoven, Mozart, and especially Haydn, were so rich, seems to us wanting. It must be said for Hofmann that he rarely places himself in a position to make his deficiency of humour conspicuous. His natural habitat is among the gravities and gentler graces of nature and humanity, of which he may rightly claim to rank as at once expositor and poet.

Referring again to the "Italian Love Tale," evidence that Hofmann knows how to utter the musical language of the divine passion is found in an Andante sostenuto which seeks to represent a dialogue, after the fashion of Mendelssohn's well-known "Song without Words." In essential respects this effort is a complete success. The joy and fear of love mingle in true proportion. Peace and agitation succeed each other as they should, while the music is not without the climax which seems eager, in the abundance of its feeling, to transcend the power of art. We look for this in No. 3 of six pieces designated "The Trumpeter of Säckingen," an Andante sostenuto founded upon the lines:—

Dreamily young Werner lifted Unto her his raptured gaze:
"Am I dying, or is doubly
My young life to me now given?"
In each other's arms they flew then,
Sought each other's lips with ardour,
And, transported, pressed upon them
Love's first kiss, so sweet and blissful.

What Wagner or Gounod would make of a text like this we can readily conceive, nor has Hofmann failed in rising to the height of the argument. The moment of doubt and indecision is happily expressed by a short Andante, throughout which a two-bar phrase rises higher and higher till its anxiety merges into the joyous passion of an Allegro vivo. The abandon of the music in this, the principal movement, is admirable, while its melodic and harmonic character helps to place it in the front rank of that which is consecrated to love. That Hofmann has the gift of intensity we need take no further trouble to prove, but if it were needful so to do we should point to the fifth movement of the "Liebesfrühling," an Allegro agitato in E major:—

Er ist gekommen in Sturm und Regen,
Er hat genommen mein Herz verwegen,
Nahm er das meine? Nahm ich das seine?
Die beiden kamen sich entgegen.

Impetuosity and overwhelming power of feeling are here remarkably exemplified. It is the kind of music that, to use a popular locution, carries one away, yet the means employed are perfectly legitimate, no sensational effect being gained, as is so often the case nowadays, by doing violence to true art. Beyond this movement we do not go in our investigation of Hofmann's claim. Let it stand as an answer to those who ask: "What can this man say?"

We have not included Hofmann's larger instrumental works in the scope of inquiry, for the reason that his popularity must be determined at present by compositions which are available for general use. Acquaintance with these will stimulate rather than repress a desire to know the composer's more ambitious effusions, because they cannot fail to create a conviction that in Hofmann we have, if not a mighty genius, a composer of great ability and graceful endowments—one whose sympathy with and appreciation of all that is beautiful and poetic in nature and human life have already given birth to that which is beautiful and poetic in art, and will continue to do so in increasing proportion as experience grows and years pass on.

THE GREAT COMPOSERS

By JOSEPH BENNETT.

No. XI.—CHOPIN (continued from page 194).

THE story of the circumstances which led to Chopin's separation from Madame Sand is so well told by the lady in her "Histoire de ma Vie" that we shall neither waste the reader's time nor our own space by transcribing from it somewhat freely. Their attachment had lasted seven years, but under conditions of increasing difficulty, owing to the influence of ill-health upon the musician's nervous temperament. On this point Madame Sand observes:—

"My affection would not have been able to perform the miracle of making him even a little calm and happy, but for the help of God, Who preserved to him a measure of health. However, he declined visibly, and I knew not how to combat by remedies the growing irritation of his nerves. The death of his friend Dr. Matuszinski, followed by that of his father, gave him a terrible blow. The Catholic dogma invests death with frightful terrors, and Chopin, instead of dreaming for those pure souls a better world, had only distressing visions. I was obliged to pass many nights in a chamber adjacent to his, and be ready to get up from my work a hundred times in order to chase away the spectres of his sleep and of his sleeplessness. The idea of his own death came to him attended by all the superstitious imaginings of Slavic poetry. A Pole, he lived in a nightmare of legends. Phantoms called him, clasped him; and, instead of seeing his father and his friend smile upon him in the light of faith, he repelled their fleshless faces from his, and struggled under the embrace of their cold hands."

Upon the practice of his art this condition of mind and body had strange and startling effects:—

"His creativeness was spontaneous, miraculous. He found it without seeking, without prevision. It descended upon his piano suddenly, completely, sublimely, or it sang to itself in his head during a walk, and he made haste to hear it by rushing to the instrument. But then began the most heart-rending labour at which I have ever assisted. It was a succession of efforts, irresolutions and impatience to repossess himself of certain details of the theme he had imagined. That which had come to him entire he analysed too much in trying to write it down, and his regret at not finding it complete according to his idea threw him into a kind of despair. He shut himself up in his room for entire days, weeping, walking about, breaking his pens, repeating and changing a bar a hundred times, and beginning again next day with minute and desperate perseverance. He spent six weeks over a single page, only to go back and write that which he had traced at the first essay. For long I had influence enough to make him adopt the spontaneous suggestions of his inspiration. But when he was no further disposed to put faith in me, he softly reproached me for having spoiled him and with not being sufficiently severe. I tried to distract him, to make him move about. Sometimes, putting all my family into a char-à-bancs I forced him, despite himself, to that agony, took him to the banks of the Creuse, and in two or three days, given up to sun and rain on frightful roads, we arrived, laughing and hungry, at some magnificent site where he seemed to become reanimated. Such fatigues broke him down the first day, but—he slept! The last day he was another man in returning to Nohant, and solved the difficulties of his work without too much effort; but it was not always possible to make him leave the piano, which was more often his torment than his joy; and little by little he manifested temper when I put him out. I dared not insist. Chopin in anger was alarming, and as with me he always restrained himself, he seemed near upon suffocation and death."

Madame Sand then speaks of herself, and shows that there was no real communion of her mind and soul with the mind and soul of Chopin:—

"My life, always active and lively on the surface, was become in reality more sad than ever. I despaired of being able to give to others the happiness I had renounced for myself, for I had more than one subject of profound chagrin against which I forced myself to react. The friendship of Chopin had never been a refuge for me in sorrow. He had too many ills of his own to support."

At length came the end:—

"Following the last attacks of his malady his spirit was extremely oppressed, and Maurice, who had tenderly loved him till then, was suddenly wounded by him in a manner unexpected and for a futile purpose. They embraced a moment after, but the grain of sand had fallen into the tranquil lake, and, one by one, the pebbles followed. Chopin was often irritated without reason, and sometimes unjustly angry against good intentions. I saw the evil grow and extend to my other children; rarely to Solange, whom Chopin preferred because she alone had never spoiled him, but to Augustine with frightful bitterness, and to Lambert even, who was never able to understand why. Augustine, assuredly the sweetest and most inoffensive of us all, was in a state of alarm at his behaviour, he having been so good to her. All this, however, was endured till one day Maurice, tired of petty attacks, spoke of going away. That could not be, and ought not. Chopin did not support my legitimate and necessary intervention. He bowed his head and declared that I loved him no longer. What blasphemy, after eight years of maternal devotion. But the poor bruised heart had no consciousness of its delirium. I thought that some months passed at a distance and in solitude would cure this wound and make the friendship calm, the memory equitable. But the Revolution of February arrived, and Paris become momentarily odious to that spirit, incapable of accommodating itself to any disturbance in social forms. . . . I saw him again for an instant in March, 1848. I shook his cold and trembling hand. I wished to speak to him, but he escaped. It was my turn to say that he loved me no longer. I spared him that pain, and placed all in the hands of Providence and of the future. . . . I have been told that he invoked me, regretted me, filially loved me to the end. It was thought a duty to hide this from me throughout, and to conceal from him that I was ready to run to his side. They did well if the desire to see me tended to shorten his life by a day or even by an hour. I am not one of those who believe that the solution of things takes place in this world. Perhaps they but begin here; certainly they do not finish. Our life is a veil which suffering and sickness make more thick to some souls, which only raises itself at moments for the firmest organisations, and which death tears asunder for all."

We shall make it no part of our business to moralise upon the connection between Chopin and Madame Sand. Indeed, looking at the connection only, we might have dismissed it in a couple of lines, but having regard to the light thrown therefrom upon Chopin's temperament and character, its importance cannot be overrated. We see the man himself in the woman's eloquent utterances, and it is for this sole, but amply sufficient reason, that a large amount of space has been given to them. In justice to Chopin, who might be accused of having not only separated from, but forgotten the friend who had given up so much of her life to him, let us close this episode with a quotation from Liszt* :—

"Chopin spoke frequently, and almost by preference, of Madame Sand, without bitterness or recrimination. Tears always filled his eyes when he named her, but with a kind of bitter sweetness he gave himself up to the memory of past days, alas, now stripped of their manifold significance! In spite of the many subterfuges employed by his friends to entice him from dwelling upon remembrances which always brought dangerous excitement with them, he loved to return to them, as if, through the same feelings which once reanimated his life, he now wished to destroy it, sedulously stifling its powers through the vapour of this subtle poison. His last pleasure seemed to be the memory of the blasting of his last hope; he treasured the bitter knowledge that under this fatal spell his life was fast ebbing away. All attempts to fix his attention upon other objects were made in vain; he refused to be comforted, and would constantly speak of the one engrossing subject. Even if he had ceased to speak of it, would he not always have thought of it? He seemed to inhale the poison rapidly and eagerly, that he might thus shorten the time in which he would be forced to breathe it."

We now return to the records of Chopin's more public life.

In 1839, Moscheles, then filling a very large space in the world of "pianism," met his Polish rival for the first time, at the house of a M. Leo—the same to whom is dedicated "The Polonaise" (Op. 53). The two virtuosi were not attracted to each other, nor could the springing-up of a mutual sympathy between characters so diverse have been expected. Moscheles knew how to be "all things to all men" in the pursuit of his profession; while Chopin, who can hardly be said to have had a profession in the same sense, was capable of high and obvious disdain. Nevertheless, Moscheles has left on record a very candid and appreciative opinion of the Polish pianist, some portion of which is worth quoting :—

"He played to me, at my request, and then, for the first time, I really understood his music, and saw an explanation of the ladies' enthusiasm. The ad libitum, which with his interpreters degenerates into bad time, is, when he himself performs, the most charming originality of execution; the harsh and dilettante-like modulations, which I could never get over when playing his compositions, ceased to offend when his delicate, fairy-like fingers glided over them; his piano is so delicate that no very strong forte is required to give the desired contrast. Thus, we do not miss the orchestral effects which the German school demands from a pianist, but feel ourselves carried away as by a singer who, paying little heed to the accompaniment, abandons himself to his feelings. He is quite unique in the pianistic world."

Moscheles also refers to Chopin's remarkable gift of mimicry, observing: "He was lively, merry, and extremely comic in his mimicry of Pixis, Liszt, and a hunchbacked pianoforte amateur." A propos to this dangerous talent, Karasowski* quotes some interesting details furnished by the Polish master's fellow-student, Nowakowski. One evening, Chopin and Nowakowski went to the theatre together :—

"He (Chopin) left his box for a short time, and turning round I saw Pixis beside me. I thought it was Chopin, and I laughingly clapped him on the shoulder, exclaiming, 'Leave off your mimicry!' My neighbour was quite flabbergasted by such familiarity on the part of a total stranger, but fortunately at that moment Chopin returned to the box, and we had a hearty laugh over the comical mistake. Then with his own peculiar grace of manner, he apologised both for himself and me to the real Pixis."

Chopin's mimicry of Liszt was not at all resented by the great pianist. "He looked quietly on," says Nowakowski, "and, far from being offended, laughed and seemed really amused by it." A certain rivalry, however, set itself up between the two virtuosi, and the witness just quoted enables us to see it in operation. On a certain evening Liszt played a nocturne by Chopin to the company assembled, and after the manner of modern times added some embellishments. The act was, to say the least, impertinent in presence of the composer, and Chopin naturally resented it. Nowakowski says :—

"Chopin's delicate, intellectual face, which still bore the traces of recent illness, looked disturbed. At last he could not control himself any longer, and in that tone of sang froid which he sometimes assumed, he said, 'I beg you, my dear friend, when you do me the honour of playing my compositions, to play them as they are written, or else not at all.' 'Play it yourself, then,' said Liszt, rising from the piano rather piqued. 'With pleasure,' answered Chopin. At that moment a moth fell into the lamp, and extinguished it. They were going to light it again, when Chopin cried, 'No, put out all the lamps, the moonlight is quite enough.' Then he began to improvise, and played for nearly an hour. And what an improvisation it was! Description would be impossible, for the feelings awakened by Chopin's magic fingers are not transferable into words. When he left the piano his audience were in tears. Liszt was deeply affected, and said to Chopin, as he embraced him, 'Yes, my friend, you were right; works like yours ought not to be meddled with; other people's alterations only spoil them.'"

It is said that for this Liszt had his revenge soon after. Chopin was again about to improvise with the lights out when his friend placed himself at the pianoforte unknown to the company, and so successfully imitated Chopin that the deception was complete. "Is it you?" exclaimed the audience as lights were brought in, and "in this ingenious way Liszt revenged himself on his rival."

At this time Chopin had abandoned public performance entirely and given himself up to teaching, which occupation, strange to say, he liked. Liszt says :†—

* "Life of Chopin" p. 191.

* Karasowski, vol. ii., p. 266 et seq.

† "Life of Chopin," p. 193.

"In the later period of his life he thought of writing a Method for the Piano, in which he intended to give his ideas upon the theory and technicalities of his art, the results of his long and patient studies, his happy innovations, and his intelligent experience. The task was a difficult one, demanding redoubled application, even from one who laboured as assiduously as Chopin. Perhaps he wished to avoid the emotions of art (affecting those who reproduce them in serenity of soul so differently from those who repeat in them their own desolation of heart) by taking refuge in a region so barren. He sought in this employment only an absorbing and uniform occupation; he only asked from it what Manfred demanded in vain from the powers of magic, 'Forgetfulness.'"

The reason here assigned may be right or wrong, but Chopin was a zealous teacher, loving the work and taking infinite pains to improve his pupils. His nervous temperament, no doubt, made him somewhat difficult to "sit under." At first he bore patiently with faults, but "later on," says Karasowski, "when increasing illness had made his nerves extremely irritable, he would fling the music from the desk and make use of very severe expressions. Not pencils merely, but even chairs were broken by Chopin's apparently weak hand. However, these outbursts of temper never lasted long; a tear in the eye of the culprit at once appeased the master's wrath, and his kind heart was anxious to make amends." As a teacher Chopin paid great attention to the cultivation of touch. As to this we read:—

"He would not take a pupil who had not some amount of technical skill, yet he made them all alike begin with Clementi's 'Gradus ad Parnassum.' We see from this that his chief object was the cultivation of the touch. The pre-eminence attached to technical superiority by pianists of the present day obliges them to devote their whole time to acquiring mechanical dexterity and enormous force. Thus they frequently lose their softness and lightness of touch, and neglect the finer nuances and the artistic finish of the phrasing."

Besides a nice touch, Chopin insisted upon the perfect independence of the fingers, and a yielding on the player's part to the feeling of the moment. His motto was "Play as you feel, and you will play well." In certain cases this may be true, but it is far from being capable of universal application. A pianist may play as he feels and yet play very badly, because incapable of entering into the spirit of the composition. As a matter of fact Chopin's cardinal instruction is only safe after the music to be performed has had careful and intelligent examination with a view to a perception of the composer's mind and meaning. The pity is, nowadays, that so many pianists of mark and renown omit this preliminary operation, and impose their own mind and meaning where that of another should alone have place.

It is worthy of note in this connection that Chopin recommended his pupils to form their cantabile style upon the singing of Italian vocalists. He would have them sing upon the pianoforte in the same easy, graceful way, while as music for serious study at the instrument he preferred before all other that of Sebastian Bach. He once said that, in view of a concert, he shut himself up for a fortnight and played Bach. "That is my preparation; I do not practise my own compositions." But Chopin's great distinction as a pianist lay in the admirable use he made of the tempo rubato—the device now so much abused by people who have not troubled themselves to find out of what it is really and legitimately capable.

We have already seen that Chopin's health had much declined before his separation from Madame Sand. That which was only an affection of the larynx at the time of his visit to Majorca became an affection of the lungs two years later, and in 1840 his physicians realised the fact that consumption threatened their distinguished patient. Chopin, moreover, fell into a morbid state of mind, with consequences such as those so graphically described by Madame Sand, this state being intensified to an alarming degree by the death of his father. So weak had the master become when the fatal news arrived that he was unable to write a line of consolation to his widowed mother—mayhap his sensitive nature shrank from the pain—and that sad duty was discharged by Madame Sand in a manner beyond reproach. Referring to Chopin, the illustrious writer said:—

"He thinks only of you, of his sisters, and all that are his, whom he cherishes so ardently, and whose affliction and distress weigh upon him as much as his own. . . . I cannot say that your sorrow oppresses me as if I had known the excellent man whom you weep. My sympathy, sincere though it be, cannot soften the terrible stroke; but in telling you that I will consecrate my days to your son, and that I regard him as my own, I know that I give you, so far, some tranquillity of soul. For this I have taken the liberty to write and say that I am always profoundly devoted to you as the adored mother of my dearest friend."

As we have seen, the death of Chopin's father occurred almost simultaneously with that of his friend Dr. Matuszynski, the double stroke crushing him to the earth. His disease made further inroads; his temper, always irritable in sickness or trouble, became more trying than ever, and this led in some degree up to the crowning catastrophe of separation from Madame Sand. The immediate result seriously alarmed his friends. Karasowski says:—

"Agitation and grief again laid him on a sick bed, and his friends were long and seriously afraid that he would only exchange it for his coffin. Gutmann, his favourite pupil, and one of his best friends, nursed him with the most devoted care; and the deep gratitude of the sufferer was shown by the questions he continually asked of the friends and acquaintances who came to see him: 'How is Gutmann? Is he not very tired? Will it not be too much for him if he sits up with me any longer? I am sorry to give him so much trouble, but there is no one else I like so well to have about me as he.' These were almost the only words he spoke, for his visitors would not let him talk, and did all they could to amuse him and divert his mind."

After a time partial recovery set in, and during the winter 1847-8 Chopin accepted an invitation to visit England. On February 16, 1848, he gave a farewell concert in Paris—the first since 1842, and the last at which he was destined to appear in the city of his choice. "Chopin," says Karasowski, "could not have desired a more select and distinguished audience or a more enthusiastic reception. Many of the most exalted personages and the first artists in Paris were present, and throughout the performance all were anxious to testify their respect and admiration for the talented composer, the rare virtuoso, and the lovable man. Frederic was deeply affected; this, the last of his Parisian triumphs, was a balsam for many of the wounds of fate which, although gradually healing, were sometimes very painful."

* Karasowski, vol. ii., p. 285.

* Karasowski, vol. ii., p. 307.

A few days after this success occurred the revolution which upset Louis-Philippe's throne and established, for a time, the Second Republic. The event was another blow to Chopin, who had received much kindness from the Orleans family, and who, moreover, had a horror of democracy, as to which Liszt says:—

"Democracy presented to his view an agglomeration of elements too heterogeneous, too restless, wielding too much savage power to win his sympathies. The entrance of social and political questions into the arena of popular discussion was compared, more than twenty years ago, to a new and bold incursion of barbarians. Chopin was peculiarly and painfully struck by the terror which this comparison awakened. He despaired of obtaining the safety of Rome from these modern Attilas; he feared the destruction of Art—its monuments, its refinements, its civilisation. In a word, he dreaded the loss of the elegant and cultivated, if somewhat indolent, ease described by Horace. Would the graceful elegancies of life, the high culture of the Arts, indeed be safe in the rude and devastating hands of the new barbarians?"

Influenced by these feelings, Chopin experienced no regret in quitting republican Paris, which he did towards the end of April, 1848. His reception in London was all that he could have desired. Such, at any rate, is the statement of Karasowski; but we are bound to add the index of the most prominent musical journal of the time has been searched in vain for evidence of the fact that Chopin's presence received any public attention whatever. On one page we read a curt paragraph to the effect that "Chopin, the pianist" had been invited to play at a Philharmonic concert, and had declined. That is all. It is the more satisfactory on this account to be assured in another quarter, that "the hospitality and kindness of his old friends, and the courtesy of his new acquaintances, were very grateful to Frederic's sensitive and affectionate nature. He again appeared in society, and hoped that, while pursuing his beloved art amid fresh surroundings, he might forget the woman for whom, notwithstanding all the wrong she had done him, he sometimes ardently longed. He could not, despite all his efforts, erase from his memory the period of almost supernal happiness once created for him by her dazzling intellect, exhaustless fancy, and ardent love, although his reason constantly told him that she was not worthy of a sigh." We must not be understood to accept the justice of this reference to Madame Sand, but it serves to accentuate the position in which we leave Chopin for the present. The composer among his English friends, old and new, may well furnish a theme for separate treatment.

(To be continued.)

PURCELL'S MUSIC TO "MACBETH."

By WILLIAM H. CUMMINGS.

My book of "Purcell" biography was limited to a certain number of pages, consequently I was unable to give a detailed statement of facts connected with the composition of the "Macbeth-music." I regretted this extremely, as I felt that the subject was one which needed thorough sifting. Readers who refer for information respecting composers to commonly received biographical works should remember that too frequently the articles contained in those books are a product of paste and scissors, each succeeding author copying from his predecessor, thus assisting in the promulgation of mingled truth and error.

The question first to be considered is, "Did Matthew Locke* compose music for 'Macbeth'?" I answer, Yes! certainly he did. "The Pleasant Companion; or, New Lessons and Instructions for the Flagelet, by Thomas Greeting," 1680, contains the following "Macbeth" tune, composed by Locke, with his initials attached:—

This tune is also printed in the key of C in Playford's "Musick's Recreation on the Viol, Lyra-way. 1682," with the title "Macbeth."

In "Apollo's Banquet for the Treble Violin," 1669, we find the same tune with the title "The Dance in the Play of Macbeth"; and it is also included in the rare little volume called "Musick's Delight on the Cithren," 1666.

The following "Witches' Dance" is printed in "Apollo's Banquet," previously mentioned—

The title to the above is simply "The Witches' Dance"; but I possess a MS., written about 1698, which gives the tune in the following form, with the full title, "Dance of Witches in Macbeth."

This may have been a part of Locke's music, but it will at once be seen that the foregoing tunes are not included in the "Macbeth" music, now popularly known. Downes, whose many errors have been exposed and refuted at various times, was undoubtedly correct in saying Locke composed music for "Macbeth"; but that was all he did say—he did not specify of what kind or how much music; and it does not follow that because Downes mentions no other composer's name in connection with the play of "Macbeth" that other writers did not exercise their skill in connection therewith. Probably Locke only composed instrumental music for "Macbeth." It was a common custom of the day for two or more musicians to be associated in producing music for a particular play. For instance, music for the "Tempest" was composed by Locke, Pelham

* He spelt his name Lock in his boyhood, and Locke in his manhood. Specimens of both periods are now lying before me.

* "Life of Chopin," p. 126 et seq.

Humphreys, Banister and Draghi, conjointly for the same performance of the play; and it should not be forgotten that, notwithstanding the fact that these four distinguished musicians had exercised their skill in providing music for the "Tempest," Purcell afterwards applied his genius to the same play, producing amongst other things "Come unto these yellow sands" and "Full fathom five." I have said that this Locke "Macbeth"-music forms no part of the popular music to that play, and I can go further and say that, having examined a large amount of Locke's theatre music, I find it quite unlike the well-known "Macbeth" music.

Locke's name was first attached to the popular music of "Macbeth" in 1750 by Johnston, who published it in that year with a dedication to Garrick. Johnston probably referred to Downes to see who had composed "Macbeth" music, and finding only the name of Locke, naturally supposed that he was the composer. Downes frequently mentions Purcell's name as the composer of music for various plays, but he erroneously says that the music for "Theodosius" was the first composed by Purcell for the stage; a curious blunder, seeing that Downes records the performances of earlier plays for which it is well known Purcell composed the music. Downes fails to credit Purcell with the composition of the music to "Timon of Athens," the "Libertine," the "Spanish Friar," "Œdipus," and other plays, some of which appear to have been particularly fortunate in obtaining public favour in consequence of the beautiful music which was associated with them.

The music to "Macbeth" in the youthful autograph of Purcell is in my own library. On the title-page Dr. Hayes has written, "Purcell's score of ye music in Macbeth, also the score from whence it was printed under Mat. Locke's name." We thus see what Dr. Hayes's opinion was as to the authorship; his judgment is worth much, for he was not only an admirable musician, but also an indefatigable musical antiquarian, and the possessor of a magnificent library of manuscript music by English composers. Dr. Hayes's opinion was endorsed by Dr. Arnold, who has written on the same title-page, "I always agreed in opinion with Dr. P. Hayes respecting the music in 'Macbeth.'"—S. Arnold." Dr. Arnold, a thorough musician and the editor of Handel, was also entitled to speak with some authority. Dr. William Hayes, the father of Dr. P. Hayes, was of opinion that the music was Purcell's.

I have also in my library a MS. volume lettered "Purcell's Theatre Music"; it contains (1) "Macbeth," (2) "The Indian Queen," (3) "Œdipus," (4) "Bonduca," (5) "Timon of Athens," (6) "The Libertine." This manuscript is in the hand of Saville, of Lichfield Cathedral, and at one time formed part of Bartleman's library.

I have another manuscript volume which formerly belonged to the Musical Society of Oxford: it contains the following music: "The Tempest" (Purcell), "King Arthur" (Purcell), "Macbeth" (Purcell). I have also a word-book of the Academy of Music, published in 1768, in which I find "The Masque in 'Macbeth'" (Purcell). Linley in his preface to "Shakespeare's Dramatic Songs," says: "In regard to the charming music (in 'Macbeth') a great doubt must always remain on the minds of musical researchers whether Matthew Locke was or was not the composer; the late Dr. Hayes, of Oxford, was of opinion that the music was not Locke's, and many have been inclined to ascribe it to Purcell."

The late Joseph Warren, an admirable musician and antiquarian, wrote "An Account of the Music in 'Macbeth,'" in which he weighed the various evidences in the case, and, although he had never seen Purcell's autograph of the music to which I have referred as now in my possession, he stated that he "really believes the music to be Purcell's."

Dr. Rimbault, the late well-known antiquarian, never hesitated to express his opinion that the music was not Locke's. I shall, however, have to speak of Dr. Rimbault's researches in connection with the subject hereafter. The "Macbeth" music is not only altogether unlike all the known compositions by Locke, but it contains some passages very like music by Henry Purcell. This internal evidence it is, however, hardly fair to look for, if we are right in surmising that Purcell composed the "Macbeth" music when he was fourteen or sixteen years of age. Examine the works of any of our great composers' boyhood, and you will find but little of the striking individuality exhibited by their authors in riper years.

In making additions to Shakespeare's play "Macbeth," Davenant incorporated with his own work certain lines from Middleton's tragi-comedy "The Witch"—a play which had been produced about 1603, and for which Robert Johnson, a well-known musician, had composed the music. It seems likely that Davenant desired to preserve something of the music to which his borrowed lines had originally been sung. It would be difficult otherwise to account for the similarity of certain musical phrases in Johnson's, Purcell's, and another setting of the words by Eccles, to be spoken of presently.

The manuscript of the music composed by Johnson was in the possession of Stafford Smith, and he printed it in the "Musica Antiqua" in its integrity, without addition or accompaniment, and to that work the curious should refer. Smith's own remark respecting the witch-music, by Johnson, runs thus: "Matthew Lock, or whoever was the author of the music to 'Macbeth,' had evidently seen this composition." There are in existence several MSS. copies of the music for "Macbeth," by Eccles; this music was evidently wrought out and elaborated from the meagre sketch composed by Johnson; the music by Eccles is much more pretentious and scholastic than the music now called Locke's. Dr. Rimbault, many years since, in "An Historical Account of the Music in 'Macbeth,'" wrote: "A circumstance which weighs against the supposition of Purcell being the composer of the present music (if, as we conjecture, it was produced in 1672) is that he was only fourteen years of age in that year; and, although we are told that he composed anthems when a singing-boy, we cannot conceive the 'Macbeth' music to be the production of a boy of that age—not even of the great Henry Purcell. . . . Now, as Purcell and Eccles were intimate friends, and jointly composed the music for two or three plays, it seems highly probable that Purcell was the reviser and improver of Eccles's music to 'Macbeth.'" Some years later Dr. Rimbault changed his opinion, and asserted that the "Macbeth" music was composed by Richard Leveridge, the theatre bass-singer of Purcell's time. Dr. Rimbault came to this conclusion in consequence of certain advertisements which appeared in the journals of the day, in which "Macbeth" was announced for performance with the music composed by Mr. Leveridge, and also in consequence of a misstatement of Hawkins in his history, in which he speaks of Rowe as an authority for naming Leveridge as the composer of "Macbeth" music. The assertion of Dr. Rimbault, that Leveridge composed the "Macbeth" music, has been adopted by Dr. Hullah in "The Song Book" (Macmillan and Co.).

When I became possessed of Purcell's manuscript of "Macbeth" music I took the volume to Dr. Rimbault, who had not previously seen it, and pointed out to him internal evidence, including an autograph letter of Leveridge's, which proved beyond all doubt that the latter was merely the singer, and not the composer of the music. Dr. Rimbault wrote me a letter shortly before his death in which he not only gave up the Leveridge theory, but approved of my argument in favour of Purcell.

The MS. score of "Macbeth" music is in Purcell's boyish hand; and certain passages are grammatically so erroneous that they could not have been the work of an experienced master of harmony like Locke, nor would they have been tolerated by Purcell when he came to years of discretion.

My notes on this subject have extended to a greater length than I had intended, but I hope to have convinced my readers that the assignment of the composition of the "Macbeth" music to Purcell is no new speculation of my own, but one which has been supported by many eminent musicians and antiquarians.

A CORRESPONDENT, in a letter headed "Aggressive Advertisements," calls attention to a grievance which seems rapidly increasing in the present day. We have already spoken of the manner in which the wares of certain enterprising firms are catalogued and lauded in a printed book of the opera for the evening, sold for perusal during the performance of a work; and have also mentioned the circumstance of programmes of concerts being occasionally so filled up with advertisements, that it is almost impossible to separate the titles of the pieces we may expect to hear from those of the goods we are expected to purchase. But the communication now before us relates the particulars of a method of advertising with which we confess to have been previously unacquainted. After telling us that he objects not to the name and address of a music publisher, with a list of the compositions he publishes, being printed at the back of a work, the writer says that what he especially alludes to is "the sticking of labels, or impressing name-stamps broadcast wherever there is an available inch of space." We presume he speaks from experience when he asserts that at one establishment, "if you leave a violin-case in the shop and turn your back for five minutes, you will find when you get home an address-card nailed into the lid, and a paper label gummed under the flap of the string compartment." He afterwards speaks of purchasing a copy of Fétis's "Notice of Paganini," which had not only been stamped with advertisements, in indelible violet, on the outside cover, but on the back of the portrait, and showing well through to the front, appeared some remarks upon instruments and strings; on the title-page another stamp—which, not having been allowed to dry, had come off on the front of the portrait—and on the last page one more "big square stamp" completed the list. We record not these facts from our own knowledge; but as our informant seems afraid that eventually musical advertisements may be coupled with those of "Eno's Fruit Salt" and "Pears' Soap," we willingly accord him the publicity he desires.

In our last number appeared an advertisement intimating that a few amateurs were desirous of meeting with some enthusiastic lovers of music (instrumentalists and vocalists) for the purpose of forming a friendly Society for the study of classical music exclusively; and in a letter addressed to us from the promoters of this enterprise we are told that the "advance of the cause of true art is the sole aim and object of the Society." Now, with every sympathy for those who meet periodically for the practice of music, and especially of classical music, we, as real friends to the cause, cannot but add a word of warning to those whose zeal may induce them to band themselves into a "Society" without foreseeing and providing for the numerous difficulties which too often afterwards arise. We all know the many amateur Dramatic Associations which have collapsed in consequence of every member of the company insisting upon playing a principal part; and in our own experience we could cite a Musical Society which shared the same fate because two or three of the lady vocalists, with low voices, refused to "sing second to anybody." These, indeed, are the rocks ahead which it is necessary to steer clear of, not by waiting until they appear, but, like the good captain of a ship, by thoroughly understanding where they are, and preparing to avoid them before starting on the voyage. As rigid discipline, therefore, is necessary in the management of such an Association, it would be well if a rigid disciplinarian were at once appointed at its head. The advertisement states that it is to be a "friendly Society"; but this can never be if all are to have a voice in its direction. Let an efficient chief be elected, and if every person then implicitly obey his directions, the members will be not only "friendly" to each other, but to the art which they wish to serve.

OUR remarks upon the nature of the compositions performed at country concerts organised for the poorer classes, in the last number of THE MUSICAL TIMES, have elicited a letter from the Secretary of the "Popular Ballad Concert Committee," Mrs. Ernest Hart, calling attention to the character of the programmes provided at the performances given by the Association in various parts of the metropolis. Our readers know that we have always advocated the establishment of cheap musical entertainments, but we have done so on the ground of the impossibility of good works being heard by any but those who can afford to pay a high price for tickets; and it is absurd, therefore, to imagine that concerts with inferior programmes will supply this want. The performances given by the Society referred to take place every Monday evening; and in glancing at the selection of music for the concert of the 3rd ult. we see that a portion of Haydn's "Creation" was to be sung by the members of the Tufnell Park Choral Society, under the conductorship of Mr. W. Henry Thomas; and amongst the vocalists we find the well-known name of Mr. Lewis Thomas, Lady Benedict being also announced to play a pianoforte solo. This programme may be taken as a fair average of those provided by the Society for all its concerts, and we commend it to the notice of those who take a real interest in the diffusion of healthy music amongst the people. It will at once be seen that the self-assertion upon which we commented in our observations last month can have no opportunity for display in these entertainments, for the executants are chosen not because they will, but because they can sing or play. Popular Concerts formed upon this plan in country towns would do as much good as those formed upon the other plan will assuredly do harm, to the art.

THE rivalry so long existing between our two Italian Opera Houses may have been bad for the interests of art; but it is a question whether by transferring the pecuniary risk of their management from individuals to a Company the lyrical drama is likely to be permanently benefited. The heading, "Royal Italian Opera (Limited)," to the prospectus of Mr. Ernest Gye's establishment for the present season means a great deal more than is expressed by the words, for in the memorandum of association it is expressly said that the Company will have "the virtual control of Italian operatic performances in London, in all the principal towns in Great Britain and the United States, for which latter branch of the Company's business most important and advantageous arrangements are almost complete (thereby providing engagements for the artists nearly all the year round)." Now it is very true that, by securing Mr. Mapleson's services on behalf of the Company in the United States, any rivalry from Her Majesty's Theatre (the lease of which becomes the property of the Association) is practically abolished; but artists will remember that some of the best works have recently been brought out at the Haymarket Opera—a fact of which Mr. Gye seems perfectly aware, since he makes a feature of the production of some of them at the Royal Italian Opera during the present season. As we are willing, however, to look on the bright side of the enterprise, now that it is an accomplished fact, let us at once say that there is one ray of sunshine which we think we can discern. Lessees, although speculators, are open to personal influences, which may sometimes rule their actions even against their own interests; but cold and calculating shareholders will scarcely allow either vocalists or composers to fill the stage at the expense of emptying the auditorium.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

CONSIDERING the powerful opposition which the Manager of this establishment will encounter during the present season, we had every reason to believe that he would, on the opening night, show to the subscribers how energetically he had worked to secure as perfect an ensemble as we are led to expect from the German companies now in our midst, and even as we have recently witnessed at Her Majesty's Theatre, under the management of Mr. Carl Rosa. The policy of inaugurating the season (on the 18th ult.) with Meyerbeer's well-worn Opera "The Huguenots" is one which we will not pause to discuss; but as neither the work nor the artists claim any critical notice on the score of novelty, it would assuredly have been wise to bestow such pains upon the general rendering of the music and upon all the stage arrangements as to secure at once the good opinion of the public. Unfortunately Madame Fursch-Madi (previously known as Madame Fursch-Madier) was hoarse, and the powers of Madame Valleria and Signor Mierzwinsky were somewhat impaired from the same cause, so that the important characters of Valentina, Marguerita de Valois, and Raoul had scarcely adequate representatives. Apart from these shortcomings, however, which of course are beyond human control, the Opera betrayed unmistakable signs of having been hastily and insufficiently rehearsed: the choruses were hurried through as if Signor Bevignani, the Conductor, were anxious to get them over, and there was an obvious want of interest in the work upon the stage, which was reflected throughout the evening amongst the audience. It may be said however that, despite her cold, Madame Madi sang many portions of her arduous music with much dramatic effect; that Madame Trebelli was as charming as ever in Urbano; and that Signor Gresse (Marcel), Signor de Reszké (St. Bris), and Signor Cotogni (Nevers) were thoroughly satisfactory; Signor Gresse, if occasionally somewhat overacting, displaying to much advantage his fine bass voice and good stage-bearing. The performance of "Lucia di Lammermoor" on the second night of the season, with the attraction of Madame Sembrich in the character of the heroine, drew a good audience, the reception of this excellent singer being as enthusiastic as it was well deserved. The Edgar was Signor Frapelli, who, in consequence of the indisposition of Signor Mierzwinsky, took his place at a short notice, and both by his singing and acting elicited the warmest applause. Gounod's "Faust" was to have introduced Mdle. Olga Berghi as Margherita, but the lady was too ill to appear, and she was replaced by Madame Valleria, who proved herself fully equal to the occasion, and was most cordially received. M. Bouhy, who made his first appearance as Mefistofele, was thoroughly successful. He has a baritone voice of excellent quality, and his acting was marked throughout by much intelligence and dramatic feeling. In every respect he will undoubtedly prove a real acquisition to the company. Up to the time of our going to press no novelty is announced.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY.

THE performance of "Eli" by this Society, on March 31, was shorn of much interest by the absence of the composer, Sir M. Costa, who, but for continued illness, would have presided with the success that has always attended his direction of the work. Sir Michael does not conceal the fondness he entertains for his artistic offspring, nor, since "Eli" was first produced, have the members of the Society's band and chorus shown other than the deepest sympathy with their chief. Naturally, therefore, the performance was anticipated with particular concern, and the disappointment resulting from Sir Michael's inability to attend was severely felt. The composer, however, had a good substitute in M. Santon, who, familiar with "Eli" since the day of its production at Birmingham, knew exactly what to do, while his practised skill enabled him to do it well. On the whole a better rendering of the work could hardly have been desired, even by the man most concerned about its success. A detailed notice of the performance is no more necessary than a criticism of the music, and both would be so superfluous that we decline them impartially. Enough, as regards the concerted pieces, that all went well from beginning to end, calling forth repeated and deserved applause. The solo parts were sustained by Miss Mary Davies, Madame Patey, Mr. Vernon Rigby, Mr. Santley and Mr. Lewis Thomas—these artists, with the exception of Miss Davies, being those who for years past have worked in "Eli" under the eye and with the express sanction of the composer. The exception we are bound to add, was not the least meritorious. Miss Davies sang like the excellent artist she is, and in the scene where Hannah expresses her gratitude for the mercies of Heaven made a lively impression. Her rendering of the well-known bravura air in B flat was no less a success than her delivery, some time before, of "I rejoice in my youth" from "St. John the Baptist." Madame Patey had things all her own way in the two Prayers of Samuel, which she gave with chaste expression and perfect finish; while Mr. Rigby, in the war song of the Philistine champion, showed declamatory power of a very high order. Avoiding comparisons, we will not say that he gave "Philistines, hark!" better than any other tenor now before the public; we will only assert that we neither expect nor wish to hear a finer rendering. Mr. Santley was admirable, as usual, in the part of Eli, and Mr. Lewis Thomas gave emphasis and dignity to the music of the Man of God. The melodious duet shared by these experienced artists formed by no means the least attractive feature of the evening.

At the closing Concert of the Society, on Friday last, Handel's "Solomon" was given. Of this, and concerning all the circumstances attendant thereupon, we must speak in our next.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

THE twenty-fourth season of these Concerts came to a close on the 3rd ult., when, in accordance with the now time-honoured custom, an unusual number of artists who had appeared during the season took their farewell of the audience, in a programme of exceptional length and variety. Brahms's Sextet in B flat—one of the most congenial works of the leading representative of the "classical" school of modern Germany—was the opening number, MM. Joachim, Ries, Straus, Zerbini, Pezze, and Piatti being the able interpreters. Madame Schumann was almost overwhelmed with applause after an admirable rendering of the popular Novelette in F major (Op. 21, No. 1) by her late husband, and the equally well-known Nocturne in D flat (Op. 27) and Waltz in A flat major (Op. 34) by Chopin, declining the repeated calls for an encore with a firmness which might be imitated with advantage by other artists during the earlier part of the season, when the length of the programme does not, as on the final occasion, necessitate the admonition on the part of the directors, "not to insist upon encores." MM. Joachim and Straus were associated, upon terms of artistic equality, in playing Bach's Concerto in D minor for two violins, assisted by the able accompaniment of Miss Agnes Zimmermann on the piano-forte. In Mendelssohn's Tema con variazioni in D major, for piano-forte and violoncello, Mdle. Marie Krebs and Signor Piatti shared the freely and deservedly bestowed applause of the evening, which reached its climax when, at the conclusion of the Concert, Herr Joachim delighted the audience with some of the favourite Hungarian Dances by Brahms, arranged by the eminent violinist for his instrument and the piano-forte, the part of the latter being admirably sustained by Miss Agnes Zimmermann. Mr. Santley, who was the vocalist on this occasion, contributed, in his best manner, songs by Gounod, Scarlatti, and Piatti, the latter rendered specially effective by the violoncello obbligato, played by the composer. Mr. Zerbini was, as usual, an efficient accompanist.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

Two new works of some importance were introduced at the Saturday Concerts during April. Of these the first place in order of merit, although not in chronological sequence, is occupied by Dvorák's Symphony in D, Op. 60, played for the first time in England on the 22nd ult. Dvorák belongs to a group of younger composers lately sprung into fame, who well illustrate the general diffusion of musical taste and talent. In former days the musical requirements of the world were generally supplied from one or two sources; Italy, Germany, and France holding at different times the position of principal caterer for international enjoyment. Of recent years their monopoly has been abolished. Chopin was the first to break the ice, and since his time many countries—Russia, Hungary, Belgium, the Scandinavian kingdoms, Holland, and even England—have sent out champions who have in more than one instance come back crowned with European laurels; and the memories and tongues of musical students have been taxed by all manner of outlandish names more or less phonetically transcribed. It will be sufficient to name in this connection such composers as Tchaikowski, Svendsen, Grieg, and our own A. C. Mackenzie. These composers, variously gifted and inclined as they are, have one feature in common. They are nothing if not national. They are, one and all, thoroughly imbued with the folk-songs and popular dances of their countries, and the reminiscences of their youth have found an echo in their artistic work. That this influence of popular feeling may lead to very charming results is self-evident, and confirmed by experience; but it does not in itself create a great composer. Music always remains the language of the heart, pure and simple, and peculiarities of the kind referred to can do little more than supply the charm of local colour, even as the Lincolnshire dialect gives its character to Tennyson's "Northern Farmer." The merits of the composers we are speaking of are put to a severe test when the form they have chosen precludes the prominent introduction of the national element, and when they are therefore thrown back on their unaided resources. Such a test is furnished by Dvorák's new work, and upon the whole he issues from it with flying colours. The Symphony in D is not a work of original genius, but it shows the experienced and gifted musician in every bar. The composer has essentially adhered to classical models, and the first two movements, Allegro in D and Adagio in B flat, are as lucid in development and melodic invention as the most conservative musician could desire. The instrumentation at the same time is effective, and the general impression received, if not very powerful, is agreeable. In the Scherzo Herr Dvorák returns once more à ses premiers amours, its place being supplied by a "Furiant" or Bohemian dance, interrupted in due course by a Trio of gentler motion. The final Allegro brings the Symphony to a brilliant close. The reception of the work was very favourable, the applause being due in equal measure to the composer's merits and to the admirable performance, which reflects high credit on Mr. Manns and his orchestra. At the same Concert Weber's Concertstück was played in admirable style by Mr. Franz Rummel, who added with equal success solo pieces by Bach and Chopin, thus showing his versatility of talent. Of the second novelty above referred to we can speak more briefly. It is a Piano-forte Concerto in G minor (Op. 7) by Herr E. Schütt, a young Russian composer, previously unknown to English fame, who is a pupil of M. Leschetitzky, the excellent pianist. The work is without striking individuality, the composer having evidently not yet emerged from the stage of imitation. The analysis of a work which has little chance of being heard a second time would be unnecessary. Suffice it to say that Madame Frickenhaus performed the difficult solo part in a creditable manner, and that the work gained moderate approval. Mr. Henry Blower, a young English baritone, appeared at the same Concert (the 15th ult.), and showed himself possessed of a sonorous voice which requires some more training for its perfect production.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

THE Guildhall School of Music has conferred a favour on its patrons in selecting "Esther" for performance at its last Concert on the afternoon of the 22nd ult. It is not often that we are given the opportunity of hearing what is perhaps the earliest of Handel's English oratorios. "Esther" is supposed to have been composed at least twenty years before his great Oratorio "The Messiah," and nearly thirty years before "Jephtha." It may have been one of the earliest fruits of the honourable leisure he enjoyed at the house of his patron the Duke of Chandos. It was written when the composer was comparatively young, and when his mind was mostly devoted to the style and requirements of the Italian Opera. "Esther" is more or less of the period of "Radamisto" and "Muzio Scaevola." The performance of this oratorio at Guildhall took only a few minutes over two hours; and at least an eighth part of the time was occupied with the final chorus. For the nonce at these Concerts we noticed that before the conclusion the audience was visibly thinned. Is it that the good citizens went to hear Handel, and found that there must have been some mistake—that the music was unfamiliar? Evidently that was the case to some extent. The overture was indeed sufficiently Handelian; or what we are pleased to call Handelian, as some of us have not much knowledge of the overtures written before his day. The same general characteristics must be ascribed to the choruses, airs, and recitatives at the commencement of the Oratorio; although there was as yet nothing to recall the particular strains which in England have become identified with the name of Handel. We can imagine that on arriving at the tenth number in the programme, the chorus, "Ye sons of Israel, mourn," with the accompanying aria, "O Jordan, sacred tide," well declaimed by Miss Marchant, the congregation—can we say Protestant congregation at Guildhall?—was completely out of its element. All that is dear to us in our general notions of Handel's music, its English and even Anglican spirit, seemed to be less apparent in this chorus. In another of Handel's oratorios, "Israel in Egypt," there is a certain foreign element mingled with the Biblical sublimity of the choruses; but that element is distinctly German, and it sounds familiar. In "Ye sons of Israel, mourn," in "Esther," the colouring is of the Roman liturgy; and the whole chorus would pass unnoticed, except for its supreme grandeur, in any Credo from the Masses of later composers. Making every allowance for the modernising effect of the additional orchestral accompaniments by the late Mr. Joseph Halberstadt, which were employed on this occasion, we have no hesitation in saying that had any one entered the hall during the performance of this chorus by Handel, and without knowing who the author might be, he could easily have imagined he was listening to the newest product of the most advanced school. Titian-like in warmth of colour and feeling, picturesque and profoundly dramatic, it possesses all the attributes affected by that school, but with the sublimity natural to Handel alone. Without the mastery, and without the intensity of pathos or the melodic continuity and completeness of his later works, but with more of the operatic element, the whole of the Oratorio "Esther" seems nevertheless worthy of more frequent repetition. It may not be reverent to speak of "cuts" in allusion to Handel's works, still we venture to suggest that it would be politic to omit the short solos interspersed in the final chorus, and also to curtail the chorus itself. We quite understand that its elaborate trumpet accompaniment, the see-saw of the violin bows, those conventional sequences of harmonies, and that pendular swing of the rhythm—which on people not bred in our own Handelian superstitions has something of the effect of a sea voyage—recall many choruses written on the same model by the great master, and would by most of the audience have been thought—and indeed in our hearing was said to be by some—the "only thing in the work worth listening to." We are not of the opinion of those critics; nor can we sympathise with the many who, not finding in "Esther" a "Ruddier than the cherry," a "Comfort ye," or a "Horse and his rider," refused to sit it out. There is little that is grander in music, or finer in the whole range of Handel's works, than the chorus "Ye sons of Israel, mourn." The Oratorio was well given, and its performance reflects the highest credit on the instructors and students of the Guildhall School. Orchestra and chorus were evenly balanced, and the latter showed decided evidence of drill and improvement. As for the soloists, the list of young artists is almost too long for individual notice; but it included the names of Mr. Henderson, Mr. Bantock Pierpoint, Miss Ellen Marchant, and Miss Albu, besides others less familiar to us, and the names of some whose promising talents we have referred to on other occasions. One and all had to contend with a difficulty imposed by Handel himself in this Oratorio. The solos are, many of them, ungrateful to the singer. This was particularly obvious in one song, which of all others contains the elements of popularity, "Flattering tongue, no more I hear thee." The singer, Miss Maude Revell, has a penetrating voice within a certain compass, and possesses a capital style, though more suited perhaps to the stage than to oratorio. The opening phrase she rendered to perfection. But in this song, as in many parts of the work, Handel suggests a strain, ripe and alluring as that of any modern opera, and suddenly recoils as if conscious of a future and higher mission. The melody becomes jagged and disconnected, and, to young and inexperienced singers, is exceedingly difficult, in regard both to effective phrasing and right intonation. On the whole, we left the hall with the favourable opinions which must have been shared by many present in respect to this early work by Handel and the manner of its production under the guidance of Mr. Weist Hill, who, with equal success, conducted a performance of the same Oratorio at the Alexandra Palace in November, 1875.

MR. GANZ'S CONCERTS.

A NEW season of these Concerts began in St. James's Hall on Saturday, the 22nd ult., under encouraging circumstances, the attendance being large and the work done interesting. As usual, the manager and conductor sought to please varied tastes in the selection of his pieces, and did so, we are glad to admit, with entire success. Admirers of the classical school, for example, had a rich as well as abundant feast in Beethoven's "Egmont" Overture, and B flat Symphony, to say nothing of Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto, which was made specially attractive by the appearance of a new soloist, Herr Ondricek. This gentleman, who is, we believe, of the same nationality as Herr Joachim, cannot boast many years' experience in art, but he may flatter himself upon the possession of very considerable ability. His tone lacks the roundness and fulness which may come with time and a better instrument; it is, however, pure in quality, and "carries" well to all parts of a large hall. As an executant Herr Ondricek shines most in cantabile passages, which, we need scarcely add, show the strength or weakness of a violinist more decisively than any other. The young Hungarian can make his instrument sing charmingly. Indeed, nothing could have been better than his rendering of the theme of Mendelssohn's slow movement. It was brought out with intense yet not exaggerated expression, and with a finish that bespoke an accomplished artist. In bravura passages Herr Ondricek is not quite so satisfactory, owing to occasional lack of clearness and ease. Nevertheless, his success with Mr. Ganz's audience was complete, and we are certainly not disposed to complain of the fact. The novelty in composition produced at this Concert bore the name of Liszt, and belongs to the roll of the great virtuoso's so-called symphonic poems, having as its themes the "Hell," "Purgatory," and "Paradise" of Dante's "Divina Commedia." A work of this kind, treated in Liszt's peculiar fashion, necessarily excites controversy, into which, however, we shall here refrain from entering. Not that discussion can well arise respecting the character of the first movement, which, save for one passage of real beauty, is a hurly-burly of sound—a "demoniacal tumult," as the programme book called it: "The air is laden with the sounds of grief and woe, complaints, threatenings, and blasphemy. . . . Precipice after precipice seems to open before the eyes. Unfathomable depths in terrible perspective show downwards, from hell to hell, with their many stages of anguish and suffering. Cries awakened by the most excruciating torment, and the agony of rage of mute despair." Of course, all this must be painful—intensely painful—or it would not be true, and the only question is whether such subjects are proper for musical treatment. Upon that question different ideas prevail, but as far as we could gather the "Noes" had it among the audience at St. James's Hall. The second movement, "Purgatory," with its plaintive utterances, and expression of weary waiting for the Redemption, does not shock like its predecessor, but serves as an excellent intermediary between the agony of the lost and the supreme happiness of the blest, which finds utterance, in the third movement, through a Gregorian Magnificat for female voices. There is much in the finale that compels admiration, and we trust an opportunity will be afforded of hearing the work again. For the sake of "Purgatory" and "Paradise," all of us, we fancy, would be content to endure the "Inferno." The performance, though far from perfect, was creditable under the circumstances, and earned the approval even of those who believed that time and skill had been wasted upon such a work.

MADAME MENTER'S RECITAL.

MADAME SOPHIE MENTER gave the first of two Piano-forte Recitals in St. James's Hall on the 24th ult., and attracted a goodly number of amateurs, whose verdict upon what was set before them it is scarcely necessary to particularise. This artist belongs to the phenomenal order, but combines with the great executive power so much sought and admired in these days, no less important qualities of a higher and, we regret to say, less appreciated kind. Madame Menter appeals impartially to the lovers of both executive power and artistic faculties; not always doing so at one and the same time. She is often tempted to show what she can do on the keyboard less as a means to an end than as the end itself; which was the case, we fancy, when she played Schumann's "Carnaval" at the Recital under notice. Her rendering of this work made the audience marvel assuredly, but we have heard a better that was far less astonishing. Mere mechanical dexterity and muscular strength may take one's breath away, but cannot command that homage of mind and emotion which is a musical artist's best reward. Madame Menter subsequently played two selections from Scarlatti; as many studies by Henselt; the "Spinnlied," from Mendelssohn's "Lieder ohne Worte"; Liszt's arrangements of Schubert's "Hark, the lark," and "Wohin"; a Romance of Rubinstein; and six of Chopin's pieces—taking all these without rising from the instrument. Her success with them was not uniform. She simply maltreated Mendelssohn's delicate effusion by a performance which was destitute of refinement; on the other hand, the works of Henselt, Liszt, and Chopin were given in a style almost beyond reproach. Madame Menter can play like a great artist when she will, but she does not always will. The Recital closed with Liszt's extraordinary transcription of the Overture to "Tannhäuser." Madame Menter's second Recital takes place on the 5th inst.

LONDON MUSICAL SOCIETY.

THE first Concert of the season was given at St. James's Hall on March 30, under the conductorship of Mr. Joseph Barnby, the influence of whose excellent training was evidenced throughout the evening by the precision and effect with which the whole of the choral music was rendered. The programme commenced with a selection from Handel's "Theodora," with the additional accompaniments of Dr. Ferdinand Hiller. Lovers of art owe a deep debt of gratitude to members of societies of this kind, who, by being able to place aside pecuniary considerations, can devote themselves to the welcome task of keeping alive such music as we find scattered throughout this Oratorio; for, although all is not of equal worth, a work containing the choruses "Venus, laughing from the skies," and "He saw the lovely youth," with the beautiful solo "Angels, ever bright and fair," is scarcely one which we can afford to treat with neglect. All the solo-singers were most satisfactory; but special mention must be made of Miss Clements, who received a warm tribute of applause for her refined rendering of the soprano music, a reward thoroughly deserved not only for her singing, but because she replaced the Viscountess Folkestone at so short a notice as to materially increase the difficulties attendant upon her début. A word of praise must also be given to Miss Wakefield, particularly for her delivery of the air "As with rosy steps the dawn." An interesting feature in the programme was the performance of the setting of Schiller's "Nänie" by Brahms, and also that by the late Hermann Goetz, an experiment which fully confirmed our opinion upon the two works when heard on separate occasions. The choral treatment of the text by Brahms reveals the composer as a perfect master of the resources of his art; but Goetz's exquisitely tender expression of the words so deepens their poetical beauty as to make us doubly feel their influence, the varied character of Schiller's verses being throughout most delicately and sympathetically coloured by the music. Gounod's "De Profundis" formed a fitting finale to this excellent Concert. The band and choir were thoroughly under the control of Mr. Barnby, who conducted with his usual care and judgment; and although amateur solo-singers scarcely seek or expect criticism, we cannot conclude our notice without recording the successful exertions of Mr. C. Wade and the Hon. Spencer G. Lyttelton in the trying music of "Theodora." At the second Concert, on June 29, Heinrich Hofmann's "Cinderella" and Schumann's music to "Manfred" will be performed.

MUSIC IN BIRMINGHAM.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE Easter celebration in Birmingham has rarely, if ever, been so barren of musical interest, sacred and secular, as it was on this occasion, when neither concert nor opera, song nor symphony, marked the recurrence of this most joyous festival of the Christian year. The performance of "The Messiah" at Aston, in Passion Week, which attracted an audience of some four thousand holiday folk, was more commendable for the excellence of the solo singing by Madame Emma Beasley, Miss Clara Myers, Mr. Vernon Rigby, and Mr. Lander, than for the manner in which the choral and orchestral parts were rendered; and the extensive excisions made in the latter part of the work, including "The trumpet shall sound," and the quartets "Since by man" and "For as in Adam" were certainly open to criticism. The audience, however, was in a true holiday mood, and applauded lustily nearly every number.

Amateur talent, both in the vocal and instrumental departments, has been more than usually active and conspicuous during the month, but it has wisely confined itself to eleemosynary work and semi-private concerts, and has not challenged awkward comparisons or provoked ill-feeling, as it is so prone to do, by entering into wanton competition with professional musicians. At the Concert of the Edgbaston Amateur Musical Union, an orchestral fraternity numbering some forty instrumentalists, the chief features of the programme were Mozart's "Jupiter" Symphony, Schubert's "Rosamunde" ballet music, Nos. 1 and 2, the overture to "Mirella" (Gounod) and "Il Turco in Italia" (Rossini), the "Turkish Patrol March" of Michaelis, and Gounod's "Funeral March of a Marionette," in all of which, the amateurs, under the honorary conductorship of Mr. C. J. Duchemin, exhibited a very creditable degree of executive proficiency. By way of prelude, the band played with impressive effect an orchestral version of one of Mendelssohn's "Lieder ohne Worte"—the one in E minor from Book V.—which had been specially arranged for the occasion by the Conductor, in memory of their late treasurer and leader, Mr. Charles Marchwitz, who had been a prominent member of the Society since its formation some twenty years ago. On the 19th and 20th ult. the members of the musical section of the Birmingham Kyrle Society gave two very successful amateur Concerts in the new Lecture Theatre of the Midland Institute, on the first night to a fashionable audience of friends and subscribers, and on the second to an assemblage of poor people admitted gratuitously. The occasion was signalised by the production of two new choral works: a chorus for female voices in F major, "Orpheus with his lute," by Mr. R. Payne, the honorary Conductor of the choir, and a part-song, "The children's hour," in G major, with a section in the tonic minor, by Mr. A. R. Gaul. The former is simple and pretty; the latter, in the themes of which the half-playful, half-tender sentiment of the text is happily reflected, is somewhat richer and more varied in harmonic treatment. The only other novelty was a very graceful and tuneful "Morceau Chantant" for violin, charmingly played by the composer, Mr. Cortes Perera. Of the remaining items, it will suffice to mention the Rossini trio, "Gratias agimus," a selection from Weber's "Euryanthe," arranged as a quartet for two pianofortes, a similar arrangement of the "William Tell" overture, and a trio for violoncello and piano by the late F. Edward Bache, the most refined and original of Birmingham composers. The chapter of amateur doings this month should not be closed without a passing tribute to the interest and excellence of the occasional chamber-music Soirées of the newly established local Clef Club, an amateur institution devoted to the culture of high-class music.

Of Concerts of the conventional kind, classical and popular, the month's record is not very extensive. First in musical interest, as in time, came that of Messrs. Pyatt, at which the performers were Dr. Joachim, Herr Louis Ries, Mr. Zerbini, Signor Piatti, Miss Agnes Zimmermann, and Mr. Vernon Rigby. In the Mendelssohn string Quartet in E flat (Op. 12), composed in 1828, one of the most charming of the composer's early works, Herr Joachim delighted every hearer by his masterly leading and refined phrasing, to the effect of which the sympathetic skill of his associates largely contributed. In the Schumann Quintet in E flat (Op. 44) for piano and strings, a rhythm not indicated by the composer was introduced with piquant effect, and the performance of the last movement in particular was simply magnificent. The popular success of the Concert however, as indicated by a triple recall, was the performance by Herr Joachim and Miss Zimmermann of the lovely Andante and Variations from the Kreutzer Sonata, which was a model of refined excellence. Signor Piatti was no less successful in his playing of a Largo and Allegro by the younger Veracini, in response to an encore of which he gave a transcription of Schubert's "Ave Maria." The perfect technique, delicate touch, and clear articulate phrasing of Miss Zimmermann were exhibited to great advantage in three short pieces by Jadassohn, Rubinstein, and Heller, the latter based on the Fairy March from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream."

At the concluding Concert of Mr. Stratton's popular Chamber series, on the 4th ult., the attractions were Dr. G. A. Macfarren's early Quintet in G minor, first performed in 1847, the Kreutzer Sonata, Gade's string Quartet in F major, and a couple of pianoforte pieces by a Scandinavian composer, Halvdan Kjerulf, admirably played by Mr. Stratton himself.

On the 24th ult., at Messrs. Harrison's Popular Concert, Madame Christine Nilsson, Madame Patey, Mr. Vernon Rigby, Signor Foli, Mr. Richard Rickard (piano), M. Lasserre (violoncello), and Mr. Stimpson (organ), were the principal performers.

MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE only musical event of moment which occurred last month was the Concert given on the 21st ult. in aid of the funds of the Manchester Infirmary. The instrumental and choral elements were provided respectively by the band of the Manchester Amateur Dramatic Society, under the direction of Mr. C. J. Hall, with a little professional assistance, and the Choral Societies of Higher Broughton and Knutsford, under the conductorship of Mr. R. H. Wilson. The first part of the programme consisted of Dr. J. F. Bridge's Cantata "Boadicea," a work replete with melodic beauty, and evincing much technical ability. The solo parts were rendered with considerable effect by Miss Marianne Fenna, Miss Taylor, Mr. T. H. Jones, and Mr. T. B. Tomlinson; and the band and chorus were fairly effective in their respective parts. The second part consisted of Handel's Concerto in F, No. 5 of the first series of six Concertos for the organ, transcribed for flute with pianoforte accompaniment, and admirably played by Mr. De Jong. Mr. Wilson played the solo part in the Gavotte from Raff's Suite in E flat for pianoforte and orchestra, and Spohr's "Notturmo" for wind instruments was given by members of the orchestra. Miss Fenna and Mr. Merriman each contributed a song; Mr. Jones and Mr. Tomlinson sang a duet; and the choir gave several part-songs, &c.

MUSIC IN YORKSHIRE.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THOUGH the season is now rapidly drawing to a close, so far as this district is concerned, there has been an unusually large number of concerts during the past month. This is partly due to the fact that Mr. Sims Reeves has been giving a series of "farewell concerts" in Yorkshire, and that Mr. Maas and his party have been making their "first provincial concert tour," in which they have visited several of our towns.

At Bradford, on the 15th ult., a very interesting morning Concert was given in the Church Institute by Mr. George Haddock and a number of his pupils, of whom the orchestra of about sixty performers was, with a few exceptions, composed. The principal items in the programme were Haydn's Grand Symphony in D and Spohr's string Quartet in G minor, both of which were rendered with a steadiness and taste that reflected great credit on Mr. Haddock's training. Miss Pauline Haddock contributed some songs, and Miss Isabella Donkersley showed much promising talent as a solo violinist.

The Bradford Festival Choral Society afforded their subscribers an opportunity of hearing a first-rate performance of Mendelssohn's "St. Paul" in St. George's Hall on the 21st ult. The principals were the Misses Robertson, who are comparative strangers in Yorkshire, Mr. Welch, of Durham Cathedral, and Mr. Barrington Foote. Miss Robertson was not as successful as might have been expected in the recitatives, but in the two airs, "Jerusalem, Jerusalem," and "I will sing," the latter especially, she showed a perfect command of voice, and displayed considerable musical feeling. Her sister sang "But the Lord is mindful" in such a way as to elicit a well-merited encore. Mr. Welch was rather overweighted in the tenor music, but won the favour of the audience in the beautiful air "Be thou faithful unto death." Mr. Barrington Foote was most at home with "O God, have mercy," but sang the whole of the bass recitatives and airs with spirit and taste. The chorus-singers deserve the highest praise for their interpretation of the powerful numbers which make "St. Paul" a favourite oratorio. "Rise up, arise," and "The nations," may be mentioned as their best efforts; the more delicate choruses, such as "Happy and blest" and "See what love," were deficient in expression. Mr. R. S. Burton was the Conductor, and Mr. Clough the Organist; a band of local musicians occupied the orchestra, and acquitted itself creditably.

Haydn's "Creation" was performed on March 30 by the Paddock Amateur Vocal Society, one of the numerous musical bodies in the Huddersfield district; the principals were Miss Holroyd, Mr. Henry Beaumont and Mr. Martin. The most conspicuous feature of the Concert was the singing of the chorus, as is so often the case in Yorkshire.

Herr Otto Bernhardt appeared on March 25 at a Concert given by the Meltham (Huddersfield) Choral Society, and played two solos on the violin; the other performers were Miss Norton, vocalist, and the Meltham Euphonium Quartet.

Bach's "Passion Music according to St. John" was sung at St. Thomas's Church, Huddersfield, on the 5th ult. The choir had been specially augmented for the occasion, and was extremely successful under the direction of Mr. Garner, the Organist and Choirmaster of the church, the choruses being the feature of the performance. Miss Dransfield gave a satisfactory interpretation of the soprano solos, and Mr. Herbert Haigh, who has a good local reputation, was able to sustain the part of Narrator with no little credit to himself. Mr. J. E. Sykes presided at the organ.

On the 13th ult. the choir of All Souls' (Hook Memorial) Church, Leeds, assisted by members of the Leeds Philharmonic Society, gave a Concert in the Albert Hall in aid of the Organ Fund of the church. In the first portion of the programme, which was devoted to sacred music, Mendelssohn's Cantata "Lauda Sion" was the pièce de résistance, the treble solo, "Lord, at all times," being exceedingly well rendered by Miss Annie Woods. In the second and secular part of the programme, Mr. Dunkerton, of Lincoln Cathedral, was the most successful artist, and sang Molloy's "The Kerry Dance" with great spirit. Mr. J. P. Bowling, who is the Organist of All Souls', and conducted the performance on this occasion, played Chopin's "Rondo Elegante" in a pleasing manner.

A most impressive rendering of Bach's "The Passion of our Lord, according to St. Matthew," was heard at the Leeds Parish Church on March 24 and 31, and also on the 4th ult. The choir, which is always a really excellent one, was strengthened by the addition of female voices, and acquitted itself admirably, especially in the choruses "Have lightnings and thunders" and "In tears of grief"; the quieter numbers, however, were not entirely successful as a whole. An immense congregation was present on each occasion, and joined in the chorals with a true appreciation of the spirit of the music. Dr. Creser's accompaniments were irreproachable throughout; he also deserves the highest praise for his successful training of the chorus.

Mr. Sims Reeves has, after an interval of some four years, made his appearance again in Yorkshire: during the past month he has been making his farewell tour through the county, having sung on the 11th ult. at Huddersfield, on the 14th at Leeds, on the 17th at Dewsbury, and on the 21st at Halifax. His selection of songs was "Deeper and deeper still" and "Waft her, angels," from Handel's "Jephtha," and the ballads "My pretty Jane," "Good-bye, sweetheart," and "The Bay of Biscay": the last, which was his concluding effort at each Concert, was a wonderful performance for a veteran such as he is. The rest of his party was composed of his son, Mr. Herbert Reeves (who made his first appearance in this neighbourhood), Miss Clements, Miss Spencer Jones, Mr. Barrington Foote (who did not, however, appear at Huddersfield or Halifax), and Mr. Henry Pyatt; with Mr. Nicholson as solo flautist and Mr. Sidney Naylor as pianist. All these artists performed their parts with uniform success.

Mr. Joseph Maas, during his tour, paid a visit to Leeds on the 17th ult. He was also announced to appear at York on the 18th, Doncaster on the 20th, and Huddersfield on the 25th. At Leeds he was accompanied by Miss De Fonblanque, Miss Helen D'Alton, Mr. H. T. Bywater, Mr. Thurlay Beale, Herr Volkmer, and Mr. D. Ffrench Davis. Several encores were demanded and granted. The Concert was unfortunately fixed for a date which by many would be regarded as too close to that of Mr. Sims Reeves' Concert, so that the audience was disappointingly small. From a musical point of view the performance was a great success.

OBITUARY.

LAST month we briefly recorded the death, on March 11, of Theodore Kullak, one of the "minor gods" of music, but one, nevertheless, whose departure from the scene should not be allowed to take place without more than simple mention. The early career of Kullak resembled that of many other devotees of his art. Born at Krotoczin, in the Grand Duchy of Posen, September 12, 1818, he was destined by his father, a secretary of the Land Court, to follow the law. But nature, as in the parallel case of Schumann, had other designs. The boy loved music, and at an early age showed such aptitude that his parents wisely abandoned their own scheme in favour of the one indicated by destiny. To this circumstances were altogether favourable. Young Kullak attracted the attention of Prince Antoine Radziwill—he who befriended Chopin—and was by him enabled to begin his studies, at Posen, under a professor named Agthe. At Berlin he placed himself under Taubert and Dehn, and at Vienna under Czerny and Sechter. The pupil of so many accomplished masters could do no other than well, provided his artistic discernment enabled him to perceive and appropriate that which was best in each. This faculty seems to have been possessed by Kullak. At any rate, he made rapid progress. We read of his appearance at a court concert at Posen, in company with Madame Sontag, when only eleven years old, and it is known that during the five years of his residence in Berlin as a university student he followed music with much more zeal than he applied himself to the "humanities." It was not, however, till he had attained the age of twenty-four that Kullak began to acquire a European reputation as a pianist. In the course of a tour through Austria he did this so effectually that thenceforth honours fell upon him thick and fast. In 1843 he became a professor to the royal family of Prussia, and four years later was named court pianist to Frederick William. From this time he devoted himself to teaching and the composition of pieces for his favourite instrument. In the first capacity, Kullak made a mark upon the record of music in Berlin. Together with Stern and Marx, he founded (1850-1) a "Conservatorium"—the same that now bears the name of Stern—and for five years took an active part in its direction. Then, disagreeing with his co-managers, he seceded and set up a "Neue Akademie der Tonkunst" of his own. As a teacher Kullak was both popular and successful; while his compositions for the pianoforte, many of which soon became known in England, were esteemed for the manner in which they secured effect with a comparatively small expenditure of means. Kullak occasionally ventured into the higher walks of creative art. He wrote a pianoforte concerto in C minor, a pianoforte trio, and some duos for pianoforte and violin. But these were excursive efforts. His legitimate field of labour was that wherein "drawing-room music" is manufactured, and there he worked with skill and industry. Among books of instruction for the piano, Kullak's "Octave School" will always hold a high place, and keep his name from falling into oblivion.

THE distinguished pianist Alfred Jaell, whose death, at the age of fifty, was mentioned in our last number, first saw the light at Trieste, March 5, 1832. Fétis is responsible for the statement that, at a very early age, his father put him to study the violin. If so, the bow was soon laid aside for the keyboard, and when only eleven Jaell began to travel as the "Wunderknaben," which Moscheles called him. His début took place at the San Benedetto Theatre, Venice, between two acts of an opera, and was so successful that the lad subsequently went to Milan, then to Vienna, the South of France, and, lastly, Brussels, where he remained two years, making occasional excursions into Holland and the Rhine provinces. In 1847 Jaell ventured to brave the criticism of Paris, and was succeeding fairly well when the Revolution of February upset his plans as well as Louis-Philippe's throne. The monarch came to England, but the pianist went to America, and there remained till 1854, when he returned and devoted himself to artistic tours over the length and breadth of Europe. In 1862 he appeared in London, at the concerts of the Musical Union, and from that time till within the last six years or so was an occasional visitor to our shores.

M. Jaell married, in 1866, Mdle. Marie Trautmann, a pianist no less distinguished than himself. This lady survives him. As a performer, M. Jaell was remarkable for neatness and elegance rather than for force. His playing had the best characteristics of the old classical school, and nothing in common with sturm und drang. It was never startling, therefore, but it gratified connoisseurs by its unflinching clearness and by the charm inseparable from complete finish. M. Jaell was the author of numerous pièces de salon, some of which still enjoy a considerable degree of favour.

THE death of the well-known composer Friedrich Wilhelm Kücken has recently been reported. Kücken was born at Bleckede, in the kingdom of Hanover, November 16, 1810, and received early instruction in music and pianoforte-playing from his brother-in-law, Lürss, who was a professor at Schwerin. Here the lad played, sometimes the flute, sometimes the viola, sometimes the violin, in the Grand Duke's orchestra, and at last was received into the palace as teacher, owing to the admiration felt for some of his early efforts at composition. From Schwerin, he being desirous of larger opportunities, Kücken went to Berlin, placing himself under Birnback for counterpoint, and there writing, in rapid succession, songs which leaped into favour at a bound. Aiming higher, he produced an opera, "Die Flucht nach den Schweiz," at Berlin in 1839, and had the satisfaction of seeing it well received both in the Prussian capital and in various other parts of Germany. According to Fétis, a love affair compelled him to leave Berlin soon after. He conceived a passion, we are told, for a lady of high degree, who, in return, favoured his suit. Her family, however, so fiercely resented the musician's presumption that he deemed it expedient to get out of their way, and forthwith went to Vienna, where he studied under Sechter. In 1843, he conducted a great popular festival in Switzerland, going thence to Paris, and becoming a pupil of Halévy for orchestration and of Bordogni for vocal writing. From Paris, after nearly four years, Kücken removed to Stuttgart, brought out a second opera, "Der Präbendent" (1847) and, in 1851, became joint chapel-master there with Lindpaintner, whom he succeeded at his death, in 1856. This post he resigned in 1861, thenceforward devoting himself to composition or resting quietly upon a plentiful crop of laurels brought to him by the songs, &c., which once made his name so familiar. Kücken has left no permanent mark on the page of musical history; but during his life he had enough of fame to content an ordinary ambition. Some men sow for the future and die before the harvest is ripe; this composer, on the other hand, wrought for the present, and in his lifetime enjoyed the good things resulting. He is perhaps to be envied, but, be that as it may, the composer of "Das Sternelein," "Trab, Trab" and "The Swallows," was a fortunate man.

A MUSICAL Service of a novel and interesting kind was held on Good Friday, at the church of St. John, in Bedwardine, Worcester. The musical portion consisted of Haydn's "Seven Words from the Cross," but instead of the numbers following each other directly in oratorio form, they were given separately, with an address between each, so as to form a solemn and impressive service, eminently suited to the day. The procession entered the church at half-past two o'clock, and after the collects for the day, read by one of the officiating clergy, the Vicar detailed in a few words the order of the service, after which the congregation rose, and stood during the playing of the introduction. This was followed by an address from the Vicar on the first word: "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do," after which was read, all kneeling, a collect from the "Devotions on the Seven Words from the Cross," in the "Treasury of Devotion," edited by the Rev. T. T. Carter, and the words of the number about to be sung. The verse "Father, forgive them," and chorus "O Lamb of God," were then sung. This order was preserved throughout, so that in each case the music came after the preparation of exposition in the address, and meditation in the prayer, and reading of the words while kneeling. The addresses were short, from five to six minutes each, and studiously quiet in tone. The music was on the whole well performed, perhaps wonderfully so considering its difficulty and the means at disposal—the church choir of twelve men (volunteers) and twelve boys, strengthened by two or three of the cathedral lay vicars and five or six women. The numbers which went best were No. 3, “Daughters of Jerusalem, weep not for me,” No. 6, “It is finished,” and the difficult “earthquake” chorus at the end. Unfortunately the solo soprano parts proved too high for the best boy’s voice, and at the last moment a lady had to be substituted, whose voice, very sweet and touching in itself, did not harmonise so well with the male voices of the quartet as did that of the boy who sang the treble in the verses allotted to the “Words” themselves. Perhaps for this reason the most perfect number was “It is finished,” where the solos are for soprano alone. Undoubtedly, though, the most effective portions of the music were the purely instrumental, a striking fact when we remember that the work was originally composed for instruments only. Indeed it occurred to the writer that a revival of the original form, with the words read beforehand as a meditation, might after all be more impressive than the entire work in its present condition, though perhaps this would be the case only with a congregation of trained musicians. The organ was not supplemented by any other instruments, but most skillfully used by the organist of the church, Mr. Box, both in the overture and intermezzo and in the accompaniments. In the former the orchestral colouring was preserved with wonderful fidelity, and occasionally—as for instance in the little solo-passages in No. 4, “O my God”—the violins were irresistibly suggested. The voice-parts would undoubtedly have gone better with a separate conductor, but they were on the whole well kept in hand by Mr. Box, and the “stick,” if prominently placed for the sake of the choir, might have distracted the attention of the congregation. A word must now be said on that head. No bills or advertisements of any kind had been issued, the only notice given being the announcement in church on the previous Sunday with the other services of the week. This was done to ensure, if possible, the attendance of the parishioners only, or at any rate to avoid attracting strangers merely for the sake of the music. The result was a full though not overcrowded church, with a very large proportion of poor, and a reverence and devoutness of demeanour throughout most striking to see. All was solemn and very quiet. A musician, well accustomed to musical services at cathedrals and elsewhere, remarked that he had often been pained on such occasions by levity of conduct in the congregation, but “this time it was true worship.” And so far as can be ascertained he spoke the feelings of all present, even of some who had dreaded beforehand the effect of a service of so unusual a nature. Neither did attention flag, in spite of the length of the service—over two hours and a half. When the benediction had been given, and the congregation quietly dispersed, the feeling seemed general that they had been joining in an act of very real worship, which helped to bring home the events commemorated by the day, and left behind some useful reflections on those events. Musically speaking, this service shows what can be done with resources at the command of most preceptors of town churches, and we hope that this and other examples of the kind may be largely followed. Picked choirs can of course perform music of a higher standard of difficulty, such as the different “Passions” by Bach, but such a work as Haydn’s “Seven Words” is probably quite difficult enough for a church choir to render efficiently. It is, moreover, sufficiently tuneful to be intelligible to so mixed a body of hearers as ought to find place in a parish church, and at the same time totally unhackneyed. There are beautiful passages in each number, and, as a general rule, one may say the music rises to the highest level when the words most require it. Composed all but a hundred years ago, it sounds as fresh as if written yesterday, and, one feels, may well have been the last work publicly conducted by the “truly pious” Haydn.

We are informed that arrangements are in active progress for holding a Grand Musical Festival and Competition, between the French Orphéons, in the Royal Albert Hall, on June 20 and 21, similar to the one held so successfully at Brighton last year, when two thousand representatives of French, Belgian, and Swiss Societies were present. Several of the leading French Choirs and Fanfares have already intimated their intention to take part in the gathering, including L’Harmonie de Batignolles; La Fanfare des Amis Réunis, Albert, Somme; La Société Musicale de Vichy; La Fanfare Musicale de Montereau, Seine et Marne; L’Union Chorale de Ville-neuve la Guyard, Yonne; La Fanfare de Valdampierre, Seine et Oise; La Fanfare Bellemanière, Versailles; La Musique Municipale de Cambrai, Nord; La Société Chorale de St. Dié, Vosges; Grand Fanfare de Roubaix, Nord; Société Philharmonique de Braux, Ardennes; Chorale Catésienne du Cateau, Nord, &c. The following well-known musical professors have so far consented to act as jurors, together with musical notabilities of Paris: Sir Julius Benedict, Sir George Elvey, Sir Herbert Oakeley, Signor Randegger, Mr. H. Leslie, Mr. Brinley Richards, Mr. Albert Visetti, Mr. F. H. Cowen, Signor Tito Mattei, Mr. T. Wyld, Mr. E. H. Thorne, and the members of the last year’s Musical Festival Committee. In addition to the competitions, for which prizes consisting of medals, wreaths, works of art, &c., will be offered, two grand Concerts will be given, supported by the principal societies and distinguished soloists and instrumentalists from the Grand-Opéra and Conservatoire de Musique of Paris. M. Chérifel de la Grave, of 15, King’s Road, Brighton; Mons. H. A. Simon, proprietor of L’Orphéon, Paris; and Mr. Herbert Bamford, of Wareham, Dorset, are the promoters of the scheme, which will be under the highest patronage. M. C. de la Grave is again acting as honorary secretary.

THE prospectus of the Royal Italian Opera—the heading of which has this season the addition of the word “Limited”—is certainly not very exciting; but it may be that Mr. Gye is reserving his powers until, by the experience of one session, he can get a little accustomed to his new position. Lenepven’s “Velleda” is the only novelty absolutely promised; and as we never before heard of this work, we can of course make no comments upon the prospect of its production. A more welcome announcement is the presentation of Boito’s “Mefistofele,” Bizet’s “Carmen,” and an entirely new Italian version of “Il Flauto Magico,” the somewhat mysterious wording of the last-named item, however, leading us to express a hope that, in these days of “improving” upon the great masters, no vandal hands have been laid upon the score of Mozart. Massenet’s Opera “Hérodiade” will be given, it is said, “if time should permit,” which, we know tolerably well by experience, means that it will not be given at all; and then we have the usual list of works from which a selection will be made. One new soprano, Mlle. Olga Berghi, and one new contralto, Mlle. Amelie Stahl, are promised; but we have two strange tenors, MM. Lestellier and Massart, and three new comers amongst the baritones, M. Bouhy, M. Dufliche, and Signor Devries. We miss Signor Gayarré from the list of tenors, and M. Lassalle from that of the basses; but most of our old favourites will appear during the season, Madame Pauline Lucca being announced as the heroine in “Carmen,” and Madame Albani as Marguerite in “Mefistofele.” Signor Beviniani and M. Dupont are to be the Conductors; but we regret to find that Signor Tagliafico retires, M. Lapissida, from Brussels, succeeding him as stage-manager.

ON March 27 a performance of Mr. William Carter’s sacred Cantata “Placida” and a miscellaneous selection of sacred music was given in Brixton Hall by the Choir of St. Paul’s Church, West Brixton, in aid of the Permanent Church Building Fund. Miss Mary Beare (a promising young pupil of the R.A.M., with an excellent voice) sang the part of Placida, and Miss Hilda Wilson (Westmorland scholar), R.A.M., was highly effective in the contralto music. Mr. Hirwen Jones, R.A.M., and Mr. R. E. Miles, R.A.M., were thoroughly satisfactory in the parts of Metellus and Fabian. Special praise must be accorded for the rendering of the choral “From highest heaven He came.” In the second part of the Concert Miss Susie Fenn, R.A.M., sang “The Better Land,” and was recalled, as were Miss Hilda Wilson for her impressive rendering of “There is a green hill,” Miss Beare for her singing of “With verdure clad,” and Master Murby for “The Chorister.” Mr. Seymour Foster and Mr. E. Branscombe

FESTAL SETTING.

Composed by J. BARNEY.

Moderato.
mf cres.
 SOPRANO. Let . . your light, your light so shine . . . be - fore . .
 ALTO. Let . . your light, your light . . . so shine be - fore . .
 TENOR. Let . . your light so shine, . . . so shine be - fore . .
 BASS. Let . . your light . . so shine, . . . so shine be - fore . .

Moderato.
Gt. mf cres.
 ORGAN.  $\text{♩} = 96$ .
Ped.

cres. f
 men, let . . your light, . . your light so shine, . . shine be - men, . . let . . your light, . . your light so shine, . .
 men, . . let . . your light, . . your light so shine, . .
 men, . . let . . your light, . . your light so shine, . .

cres. f
 fore men, so shine . . be - fore . . men, let . . your light, your light . . so shine be - fore . . men, let . . your light.
 so shine . . be - fore . . men, let . . your light
 so shine . . be - fore . . men, let . . your light

dim. p cres.
dim. p cres.
dim. p cres.
dim. p cres.
dim. p cres.
dim. p cres.

your light so shine . . . be - fore . . . men, let . . . your light, . .

your light . . . so shine be - fore . . . men, . . . let . .

so shine, . . . so shine be - fore . . . men, . . . let . .

. . . so shine, . . . so shine be - fore . . . men, . . . let . .

cres. mf dim.

your light so shine, . . shine be - fore men, so your light, . . your light so shine, . . your light . . so your light, . . your light so shine, . . so shine . .

your light, . . your light so shine, . . so your light, . . your light so shine, . . so

mf dim.

shine . . . be - fore . . . men, . . be - fore . . . men,

shine be - fore . . . men, so shine be - fore . . . men,

. . . be - fore . . . men, so shine . . be - fore . . men,

shine . . be - fore . . . men, be - fore . . . men,

mf cres.

that they may see your good works, that they may see your good

mf cres.

that they may see your good works, that they may see your good . .

mf cres.

that they may see your good works, that they may see your good . .

mf cres.

that they may see your good works, that they may see your good

Gt. mf cres.

f p

works, and glo - ri - fy . . your Fa - ther which is in Heaven, your

ff p

works, and glo - ri - fy your Fa - ther which is in Heaven, your

ff p

works, and glo - ri - fy your Fa - ther which is in Heaven, your

ff p

works, and glo - ri - fy . . your Fa - ther which is in Heaven, your ff Sv. p

pp

Fa - ther which . . is in . . Heaven, which is . . in Heaven.

pp

Fa - ther which is . . in Heaven, which is in Heaven.

pp

Fa - - ther which is . . in Heaven, which is in Heaven.

pp

Fa - - ther which . . is in Heaven, which is in Heaven.

pp

TENORS AND BASSES IN UNISON.

Slow. ff

Who - so hath this world's good, and se-eth his bro-ther have need, and shutteth up..

Slow. ♩ = 58.

Full Sw.

Ped.

... his com - pas - sion from him, how, how dwell-eth.. the love of God.. in him?

cres. sf p

FULL.
Allegro moderato.

Bless-ed, bless-ed, bless-ed is the man that pro-vid-eth for the sick, the sick and

Bless-ed, bless-ed, bless-ed is the man that pro-vid-eth for the sick, the sick and

Bless-ed, bless-ed, bless-ed is the man that pro-vid-eth for the sick, the sick and

Bless-ed, bless-ed, bless-ed is the man that pro-vid-eth for the sick, the sick and

Allegro moderato. ♩ = 96.

Gt. f

need-y; the Lord shall de-liv-er him in the time.. of trou-ble, the Lord shall de-need-y; the Lord shall de-liv-er him in the time of trou-ble, the Lord shall de-need-y; the Lord shall de-liv-er him in the time of trou-ble, the Lord shall de-need-y; the Lord shall de-liv-er him in time of trou-ble, de-

- liv - er him in time of trou-ble, the Lord shall de - liv - er him in time of trou-ble,
 - liv - er him in time of trou-ble, the Lord shall de - liv - er him in time of trou-ble,
 - liv - er him in time of trou-ble, the Lord shall de - liv - er him in time of trou-ble,
 - liv - er him in time of trou-ble, the Lord shall de - liv - er him in time of trou-ble, the (Voices alone.)

the Lord shall de - liv - er him in time of trou - ble, the Lord shall de - liv - er him in the

the Lord shall de - liv - er him in time of trou - ble, the Lord shall de - liv - er him in the

the Lord shall de - liv - er him in time of trou - ble, the Lord shall de - liv - er him in the Lord shall de - liv - er him in time of trou - ble, the Lord shall de - liv - er him in the

[illegible]

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S PIANOFORTE ALBUMS

EDITED BY BERTHOLD TOURS.

PRICE ONE SHILLING EACH.

Nos. 1, 2, and 3, bound in Cloth, 4s.; Nos. 4, 5, and 6, bound in Cloth, 4s.

No. 1.

COMPOSITIONS BY J. S. BACH.

1. Prelude in C minor, from the "Petits Préludes."
2. Prelude in F major, from the "Petits Préludes."
3. Prelude in E major, from the "Petits Préludes."
4. Invention in F major, from the "Inventions à 2 voix."
5. Allemande in B flat major, from "Partita I."
6. Menuet in B flat major, from "Partita I."
7. Gigue in B flat major, from "Partita I."
8. Rondeau in C minor, from "Partita II."
9. Courante in A minor, from "Partita III."
10. Burlesca in A minor, from "Partita III."
11. Scherzo in A minor, from "Partita III."
12. Prelude in A minor, from the "Suites Anglaises."
13. Bourrée in A minor, from the "Suites Anglaises."
14. Gigue in A minor, from the "Suites Anglaises."
15. Sarabande in A major, from the "Suites Anglaises."
16. Gavotte in G minor, from the "Suites Anglaises."
17. Echo in B minor, from the "Overture Française."
18. Bourrée in C major, from the "Third Sonata for Violoncello."
19. Gavotte in G major, from the "Sixth Sonata for Violoncello."
20. Bourrée in B minor, from the "Second Sonata for Violin."

No. 2.

COMPOSITIONS BY J. S. BACH.

21. Prelude in F major, from the "Suites Anglaises."
22. Menuet in F major, from the "Suites Anglaises."
23. Sarabande in E minor, from the "Suites Anglaises."
24. Passepied in E minor, from the "Suites Anglaises."
25. Gavotte in D minor, from the "Suites Anglaises."
26. Gigue in D major, from "Partita IV."
27. Prélambule in G major, from "Partita V."
28. Courante in G major, from "Partita V."
29. Menuet in G major, from "Partita V."
30. Sarabande in D minor, from the "Suites Françaises."
31. Courante in C minor, from the "Suites Françaises."
32. Gigue in C minor, from the "Suites Françaises."
33. Gavotte in G major, from the "Suites Françaises."
34. Bourrée in G major, from the "Suites Françaises."
35. Allemande in E major, from the "Suites Françaises."
36. Courante in E major, from the "Suites Françaises."
37. Bourrée in E major, from the "Suites Françaises."
38. Gigue in E major, from the "Suites Françaises."
39. Fantasia in C minor.
40. Bourrée in E flat major, from the "Fourth Sonata for Violoncello."

No. 3.

COMPOSITIONS BY J. S. BACH.

41. Prelude in C minor, from the "Petits Préludes."
42. Prelude in E minor, from the "Petits Préludes."
43. Invention in D minor, from the "Inventions à 2 voix."
44. Invention in B minor, from the "Inventions à 2 voix."
45. Presto, from the "Concerto" in D minor.
46. Allegro, from the "Concerto" in B flat major.
47. Gigue, from the "Concerto" in G minor.
48. Gavotte in B minor, from the "Overture Française."
49. Bourrée in B minor, from the "Overture Française."
50. Gigue in G major, from the "Suites Françaises."
51. Bourrée in A major, from the "Suites Anglaises."
52. Gigue in G minor, from the "Suites Anglaises."
53. Gigue in E minor, from the "Suites Anglaises."
54. Courante in B flat, from "Partita I."
55. Fantasia in A minor, from "Partita III."
56. Gavotte in E minor, from "Partita VI."
57. Fugue in C major.
58. Presto in F major, from the "Italian Concerto."
59. Fantasia con Fughetta in D major.
60. Allegro from the "Concerto" in F major.

No. 4.

COMPOSITIONS BY G. F. HANDEL.

1. Fugue in C major, from the "Petites Fugues."
2. Fugue in C major, from the "Petites Fugues."
3. Chaconne in F major.
4. Sarabande in E minor, from "Sonata III., for 2 Violins and Violoncello."
5. Gavotte in E minor, from "Sonata III., for 2 Violins and Violoncello."
6. Bourrée in G minor, from "Sonata V., for 2 Violins and Violoncello."
7. Gigue in A major, from "Suite I."
8. Allegro in F major, from "Suite II."
9. Courante in D minor, from "Suite III."
10. Aria con Variazioni in D minor, from "Suite III."
11. Presto in D minor, from "Suite III."
12. Courante in E minor, from "Suite IV."
13. Sarabande in E minor, from "Suite IV."
14. Gigue in E minor, from "Suite IV."
15. Aria con Variazioni in E major (the Harmonious Blacksmith), from "Suite V."
16. Courante in E major, from "Suite V."
17. Gigue in F minor, from "Suite VI."
18. Allegro in G minor, from "Suite VII."
19. Sarabande in G minor, from "Suite VII."
20. Passacaille in G minor, from "Suite VII."
21. Gigue in G minor, from "Suite VII."
22. Chaconne, from the opera "Almira."
23. Sarabande, from the opera "Almira."
24. Gavotte in A major, from the "Masque."

No. 5.

COMPOSITIONS BY G. F. HANDEL.

25. Menuetto in G major, from Sonata IV., for two Violins and Violoncello.
26. Bourrée in G major, from Sonata V., for Flute and Violoncello.
27. Gavotte in C major, from "Concertante for Stringed Instruments, with two Violins and Violoncello obbligato."
28. Capriccio in G major.
29. Fugue in F minor, from "Suite VIII."
30. Courante in F minor, from "Suite VIII."
31. Allemande in F minor, from "Suite VIII."
32. Gigue in F minor, from "Suite VIII."
33. Gigue in G minor, from "Suite IX."
34. Allegro in D minor, from "Suite X."
35. Air in D minor, from "Suite X."
36. Gigue in D minor, from "Suite X."
37. Menuetto con Variazioni in D minor, from "Suite X."
38. Allemande in D minor, from "Suite XI."
39. Courante in D minor, from "Suite XI."
40. Sarabande con Variazioni in D minor, from "Suite XI."
41. Gigue in D minor, from "Suite XI."
42. Sarabande in E minor, from "Suite XII."
43. Gigue in E minor, from "Suite XII."
44. Largo in G major, from the opera "Xerxes."
45. Capriccio in G minor.
46. Allegro in A minor.
47. Musette in G major, from the "Masque."
48. Gavotte in D major, from the opera "Alcides."

No. 6.

COMPOSITIONS BY G. F. HANDEL.

49. Prelude in G major.
50. Fugue in D major, from the "Petites Fugues."
51. Fugue in E minor.
52. Fantasia in C major.
53. Menuetto in F major.
54. Aria con Variazioni in B flat major.
55. Allemande in B flat major, from "Suite XIII."
56. Courante in B flat major, from "Suite XIII."
57. Gigue in B flat major, from "Suite XIII."
58. Air in G major, from "Suite XIV."
59. Allegro in G major, from "Suite XIV."
60. Courante in G major, from "Suite XIV."
61. Menuetto in G major, from "Suite XIV."
62. Gigue in G major, from "Suite XIV."
63. Gavotte con Variazioni in G major, from "Suite XIV."
64. Courante in D minor, from "Suite XV."
65. Allemande in G minor, from "Suite XVI."
66. Courante in G minor, from "Suite XVI."
67. Gigue in G minor, from "Suite XVI."
68. Arioso in C minor, from the opera "Alcina."
69. Bourrée in F major, from the opera "Pastor Fido."
70. Allegretto in F major, from the "Water Music."
71. Bourrée in F major, from the "Water Music."
72. Hornpipe in F major, from the "Water Music."

For continuation, see page 297.

also contributed songs. Miss Ellen Bliss presided at the pianoforte, and Mr. Sidney Hill at one of Debain and Co.'s effective organophones. The Concert reflected great credit upon Mr. W. T. Beare, the honorary Choirmaster of St. Paul's, who conducted throughout with judgment; and the Choir deserves its meed of praise for the spirit thrown into the choruses of the Cantata and the anthems included in the second part of the programme. The Building Fund of St. Paul's, of which the Rev. Dr. Concannon is vicar, ought to benefit to a handsome extent by this Concert.

At the recent competition for the Lady Goldsmid Scholarship at the Royal Academy of Music the following works were performed by the competitors. The students were permitted to play, without curtailment, the compositions they had chosen; and it will be seen that Chopin's Ballade in A flat was the only piece heard twice during the morning: Study in C minor (Chopin), Sonata in E, Op. 109 (Beethoven), Chromatic Fantasia (J. S. Bach), Sonata in D minor, Op. 31, No. 2 (Beethoven), Troisième Ballade in A flat (Chopin), Il moto continuo (arranged by Brahms), Sonata, E flat, Op. 27, last movement (Beethoven), Troisième Ballade in A flat (Chopin), Sonata in C minor, Op. 111, first movement (Beethoven), Fugue in E minor (Handel), "Masaniello" (Thalberg), Nocturne in C minor, No. 12 (Chopin), Toccata (Schumann), Prelude and Fugue in E minor (J. S. Bach), Barcarole (Chopin), Fugue in A flat (J. S. Bach), Ballade in G minor (Chopin), Sonata in C, first movement (Paradies), Aufschwung (Schumann), Italian Concerto, last two movements (J. S. Bach), Study in F minor, No. 4 (W. Sterndale Bennett), Sonata in F minor, Op. 5, last two movements (Beethoven), Selection from Etudes Symphoniques (Schumann), Organ Fugue in G minor (J. S. Bach, arranged by Liszt), Fugue in F (J. S. Bach), Allegro Grazioso (W. Sterndale Bennett), Capriccio in B flat minor, Op. 33 (Mendelssohn), Fugue in D minor (J. S. Bach), Tema con Variazioni (W. Sterndale Bennett), Prelude and Fugue in B flat (J. S. Bach), Kreisleriana, Nos. 1 and 2 (Schumann).

On the 3rd ult., at the Royal Albert Hall, Mr. John Hedley, General Superintendent of the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society, received a presentation in the shape of a purse, containing £150, and an illuminated address on vellum. This sum had been collected amongst the members and their friends, for the purpose of expressing to Mr. Hedley their great appreciation of the manner in which he has acted as General Superintendent to their Society during the last ten years. The ceremony of handing the testimonial to Mr. Hedley took place after a brief rehearsal of portions of "The Messiah" by the Society. The secretary having read the address, which was of a highly complimentary nature, announced that H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh had consented to sign it on behalf of the donors. The address was then presented to Mr. Hedley, who heartily thanked the members of the Society for the handsome manner in which they had recognised his endeavours to do his duty towards them. After congratulating the Society upon the distinguished work it had done since its institution, he said he felt sure it had a great and useful future before it, as it was the largest and best organised body of vocalists in the world. The purse was then given to Mr. Hedley, who had been enthusiastically applauded throughout, and the proceedings terminated.

The second Concert this season of the St. Stephen's Musical Society was given on Tuesday evening, the 18th ult., at the Athenæum, Shepherd's Bush, when a large audience assembled to hear Hofmann's Cantata "Melusina." Considering the result, Signor Dinelli has reason to feel proud of his choir and band. The soloists, too, were fairly good; for, although Miss Rose Trevor was scarcely equal to the important part of Melusina, Mr. James Sauvage was all that could be desired as the impetuous Raymond, the music suiting him admirably; and the minor parts were exceedingly well given by Miss Kate Baxter, Mr. Lindeman, and Mr. Stewart Beekley. Seeing that "Melusina" has proved so successful, it might certainly be advisable for the Society to select the same composer's "Cinderella" for one of their concerts. The second part was miscellaneous. Signor Dinelli conducted with skill and judgment.

On the Wednesday in Holy Week (7th ult.) a special Evening Service was held in Westminster Abbey. The choir was largely augmented for the occasion by the addition of boys from the Temple and Lincoln's Inn choirs, together with a considerable number of amateurs. The service commenced with prayers said by the Precentor, the Rev. S. Flood Jones; after which Psalm 51 was chanted by the choir, all kneeling, accompanied only by Mr. Baillie Hamilton's new instrument, the "Vocalion." This was followed by Dr. Bridge's Oratorio "Mount Moriah" with full orchestral accompaniment. "Mount Moriah; or, the Trial of Abraham's Faith," was composed by Dr. Bridge at Manchester several years ago, and is well known to our readers; but we have little hesitation in saying that no more favourable opportunity for judging of its undoubted merits could have been afforded. The subject of the well-chosen words and the character of the music were alike suitable to the solemn season, and the performance of the whole was effective and impressive. The solos were well sung by members of the Abbey choir, and the choruses were excellently given, especially the canon, "He is brought as a lamb," and the finale, "Thy righteousness standeth." The orchestra was numerous and efficient, and included many well-known performers, both professional and amateur. Dr. Bridge conducted, Dr. Stainer played the voluntaries on the great organ, and Mr. Winter presided at the vocalion.

THE sixth monthly Meeting of the Musical Association took place on the 3rd ult., when a paper on "Sir William Sterndale Bennett: a Brief Review of his Life and Works," was read by Mr. Arthur O'Leary. The paper touched upon the salient points in our English composer's active life, and included an interesting letter received by the lecturer from a connection of the Mendelssohn family, giving some characteristic details relative to Bennett's Leipzig visits, and to his relations with Mendelssohn. At the conclusion of the reading, Mr. Kellow Pye, responding to the invitation of the Chairman, Mr. G. A. Osborne, made some remarks relative to the amiable traits of his former fellow-student; and Mr. Coleridge's account of the origin of the "Ajax" music was followed by the audience with much interest. Mr. Otto Goldschmidt dwelt upon the composer's services to English art, and expressed his astonishment that any one could dare to dispute his claims to a high place amongst musicians either at home or abroad. Mr. Goldschmidt also advocated the publication of a complete and uniform edition of his works, as a fitting tribute to his memory; and, with some complimentary remarks to the lecturer, the meeting separated.

THE following are some of the German artists who will appear at the forthcoming series of German Opera at Drury Lane Theatre: Frau Rosa Sucher, Hamburg; Fräulein Therese Malten, Dresden; Frau Peschka-Leutner, Hamburg; Fräulein Marianne Brandt, Berlin; Fräulein Josephine Schefsky, Munich; Herr Hermann Winkelmann, Hamburg; Herr Franz Nachbaur, Munich; Herr Engen Gura, Herr Dr. Emil Kraus, and Herr Josef Koegel, Hamburg. The orchestra will consist of 100 eminent London artists, and the chorus will be that of the Hamburg Opera, increased by voices selected with the utmost care from opera-houses in Germany. Isolated performances of Richard Wagner's operas have already been given in London, but they will now be performed as a cycle, the scheme comprising "The Flying Dutchman," "Tannhäuser," "Lohengrin," "Meistersinger," and "Tristan." The staff engaged for this important undertaking, including principals and assistants, will exceed 600 persons. The general public have supported the scheme very enthusiastically, the greater number of seats having already been sold.

AFTER Evensong on Easter Day the Choir of Christ Church, Bermondsey, gave a Service of Praise, consisting of portions of "The Messiah." Mr. Ball, Choirmaster, conducted, and Mr. Stretton Swann, the Organist, accompanied. The air "I know that my Redeemer liveth" was beautifully rendered by Master Stuart Hoare, and the bass recitative "Behold I tell you a mystery" and the air "The trumpet shall sound" were well sung by Mr. Pridmore. The Rev. W. Lees Bell, M.A., Vicar, preached an appropriate sermon.

THE first season of the Civil Service Vocal Union was brought to a successful termination on Wednesday evening, the 19th ult., when a Concert of an eminently satisfactory character was given at the Marlborough Rooms, Regent Street. The choir, exclusive of honorary members, now numbers some forty voices, the majority having formed a portion of the late Civil Service Musical Society, the breaking-up of which led to the formation of the body under notice. Under the careful conductorship of Mr. J. H. Maunder, the choral part of the programme, though not perfect, merited decided praise, and could not but reflect credit upon the exponents. Mdlle. Henriette Vielleville was worthy of especial praise for her execution of Liszt's "Fantaisie sur Rigoletto." The remaining principals were Messrs. Tietkens, Chilley, Walter Bolton, A. E. Twiss, Nettleship, Baker, and Innell (violin); Messrs. I. J. Sealy and E. West acted as accompanists. At the conclusion of the Concert Mr. Maunder was presented with a silver-mounted bâton in recognition of his services as honorary Conductor during the season.

THE series of Concerts of the Gewandhaus, Leipzig, ended with the performance of two works which for many years have been chosen as a representative finale to the season. The Ninth Symphony of Beethoven, on March 30, concluded the Concerts in the Gewandhaus, and Bach's "St. Matthew" Passion was given, for the benefit of the band, at the Thomaskirche on Good Friday. This year the former Concert had some features of special interest, since the Choral Symphony was preceded by the Choral Fantasia, the prelude (in thought) to Beethoven's masterpiece. In the Fantasia the piano was taken by Herr Reinecke with sensitive appreciation. The performance of the Symphony, throughout excellent, was signalled by a remarkably pure and exact rendering of the scherzo, so hard to produce without confusion. At the beginning of the Concert a Kyrie, Sanctus, and Agnus Dei of Max Bruch was produced for the first time. It is written for eight voices and soli.

HERR ANGELO NEUMANN has arrived in London, with his technical staff, in order to take the stage arrangements for the approaching "Nibelungen" performances at Her Majesty's Theatre. The whole of the scenery from Bayreuth is now being put up in the theatre, and Herr Anton Seidl is busy in Germany rehearsing the orchestra of the "Richard Wagner Theatre," which has been established at Berlin by Herr Neumann for the rendering of all Wagner's works, present and future. This orchestra, as well as the chorus, will be brought over from Germany. By special arrangement with Herr Neumann, the artists who have been engaged for the "Nibelungen" will also appear at the Symphony Concerts; and it has been arranged that a grand Wagner Concert shall be given at St. James's Hall on Thursday afternoon, the 25th inst., when excerpts from the "Nibelung's Ring" will be performed, under the conductorship of Herr Seidl.

THE Lenten performances of Bach's "Passion according to St. John," at St. Anne's Church, Soho, have been repeated on the first five Friday evenings of the past Lent, and on Good Friday afternoon, under the direction of Mr. Barnby. On each occasion the shortened form of Evenson was employed, and the Magnificat and Nunc dimittis were this year sung to Mr. Barnby's setting in E flat composed for the last Festival of the Sons of the Clergy. The Organist of the church, Mr. W. Hodge, presided most efficiently at the organ at each service, and the orchestra numbered some twenty performers.

THE second Concert of the St. Andrew's Choral Society was given at the Athenæum, Goldhawk Road, on March 29. The principal vocalists were Miss Mary Doig, Miss Frances Hipwell, Mr. Greenwood and Mr. R. H. Cummings. Macfarren's Cantata "May-Day" formed the first part of the programme, and the second part was miscellaneous, concluding with Mr. George Fox's humorous Cantata, "Winifred Pryce." Mr. Brinley Richards contributed a pianoforte solo, which was received with the warmest applause; and Mr. James Partridge (who conducted the Concert) played with much success Hofmann's Serenade Duo, No. 2, for the pianoforte, in which he was assisted by one of his pupils.

THE competition for the Sterndale Bennett scholarship, at the Royal Academy of Music, took place on Monday, the 3rd ult. The examiners were Messrs. Cox, Garcia, Walter Macfarren, Dr. Steggall, and the Principal (chairman). There were seven candidates, and the scholarship was awarded to George William F. Crowther. In the competition for the Parepa-Rosa scholarship the examiners were Messrs. Cox, Garcia, and the Principal (chairman). There were forty-one candidates, and the scholarship was awarded to Kate Winifred Payne. The competition for the Lady Goldsmid Scholarship was held on the 17th ult. There were eighteen candidates, and the scholarship was awarded to Annie Cantelo. The examiners were Sir Julius Benedict, Messrs. Eyers, Jewson, Lunn, Walter Macfarren, Brinley Richards, Harold Thomas, Westlake, and the Principal (chairman).

THE first Biennial Festival of the Chicago Musical Festival Association is announced to be given on four consecutive days, commencing the 23rd inst. The works to be performed are Handel's "Messiah" and Utrecht Te Deum and Jubilate; Beethoven's Symphony in C minor and Choral Symphony; one of Bach's Cantatas; selections from Wagner's "Lohengrin"; Berlioz' "Fall of Troy"; and a Mass by Schumann. The musical Director of the festival is Mr. Theodore Thomas; and the vocalists engaged include the names of Madame Amalia Materna, Mrs. Osgood, Miss Annie Cary, Miss Emily Winant, Signor Campanini, Mr. Theodore J. Toedt, Mr. Whitney, and Herr Henschel. Mr. H. Clarence Eddy is the organist; and the choir, consisting of one thousand voices, has been under the active training of Mr. W. L. Tomlins for the past six months.

A VERY successful Concert was given on the 18th ult. at the St. Pancras Vestry Hall, in aid of the St. Pancras Almshouses. The vocalists were Miss Agnes Larkcom, Miss Florence Cater, Miss Jessie Griffin, Miss Mary Horton; Mr. Stedman, Mr. Frank Ward, Mr. H. W. Hill, and Mr. Lewis Thomas, all of whom were well received. Herr Carl Weber performed "La Truite" (Schubert-Hiller) and a Mazurka of his own composition, on the piano, very effectively; and M. Christian Ersfeld, on the violin, played with faultless execution a Fantasia on a Theme by Mozart (F. David) and an Impromptu composed by himself. The accompanists were Mr. Theodore Drew and Mr. C. H. Challen. The attendance was large, and we hope that this deserving charity received an important addition to its funds.

THE fourth and last Denmark Hill Concert of the season took place at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell, on Tuesday evening, the 4th ult. The programme included Schumann's Quartet in A major, Op. 41, No. 3 (MM. Joachim, L. Ries, Zerbini, and Piatti); Chopin's Nocturne in F minor, and Polonaise in A flat, for pianoforte alone (Herr Bonawitz); Spohr's Scena Cantante, for violin with pianoforte accompaniment (Herr Joachim); and Beethoven's Sonata in C minor (MM. Bonawitz and Joachim). Each item was excellently performed, and elicited much applause. Mademoiselle Kufferath sang lieder by Schumann, Rubinstein, and Brahms with success. It is to be regretted that the failure of these excellent Concerts, from a financial point of view, renders another series uncertain.

IN consequence of a severe domestic bereavement sustained by Herr Alfred Grünfeld, Herr Franke has cancelled his contract for six Pianoforte Recitals which were to be given by him in the Marlborough Rooms during the present month, and has arranged to give a series of six Chamber Concerts on the same dates and in the same locality himself. The programme of the first Concert, on the 2nd inst., will consist exclusively of the works of English composers.

ON Wednesday, the 19th ult., a Concert took place at New Southgate. The principal vocalists were Miss Clara Dowle (a student at the Guildhall School of Music), Miss Annie Boulton, and Mr. W. G. Fotherington. Mr. Walter Homewood's Musical Sketches were well received, and Mrs. W. O. Waud, the Misses C. Willows and Gardiner, Messrs. J. Bannister Brown and Waud also took part in the Concert.

THE eighth annual Concert of the Violin Class, under the direction of Mr. Fitzhenry, took place at the Birkbeck Institution on the 1st ult. The Class gained much applause for the rendering of "Moderato" (Dancila), "Cornelius" March (Mendelssohn), and a selection from "Lucrezia Borgia," all of which were played with much precision and steadiness. The vocalists, Miss Jessie Griffin, Miss Marian McKenzie, Mr. E. Bryant and Mr. Thurlay Beale, greatly pleased the audience in their several selections. Mr. T. E. Gatehouse was enthusiastically applauded and encored in his two violin solos, and Miss Gatehouse was very successful in a pianoforte solo, "Titania" (Sydney Smith). Efficient assistance was rendered by Mr. R. Kendall (violoncello) and Mr. C. Davison (accompanist).

At the twenty-first Anniversary of Trinity Presbyterian Church, Clapham Road, on the 18th ult., an Organ Recital was given by Mr. C. J. Frost, Mus. Bac., Cantab. The programme included Festal March in D (Smart), "Hommage à Mozart," (J. Baptiste Calkin), Grand March in B flat (Hamilton Clarke), Fantasia on Choral, "St. James" (C. E. Stephens), and Double Fugue in C minor (Albrechtsberger). The choir of the church, under the able direction of Mr. Blower, gave an effective rendering of Sullivan's "I will sing of Thy praise," Stainer's "Ye shall dwell in the land," and Barnby's "I will give thanks." Mr. Blower also sang with much effect "For this my son was dead and is alive again," from Sullivan's "Prodigal Son."

At the Parish Church of St. George's-in-the-East, on Wednesday before Passion Week, the Choir of the Kyrle Society gave the greater portion of Mendelssohn's "St. Paul," under the direction of Mr. Malcolm Lawson; Mr. E. H. Turpin presiding at the fine organ recently added to the church, and in liquidation of the remaining cost of which the offertory was made. On Tuesday in Passion Week the choir of the church gave a selection from Handel's "Messiah" for the same object, the Organist, Mr. Hedley Carus, performing the accompaniments. On each occasion the choirs acquitted themselves with the utmost credit.

THE London Church Choir Association offers a prize of ten guineas, open to all composers, for a setting of the Te Deum, the MSS. to be sent in not later than the 10th of June next. Unlike the Meadowcroft Memorial Prize Anthem (the entries for which close this day), competitors are left absolutely unfettered as to the length, style, and compass of their work, provided it be of a Festival character. Some details may be obtained on application to Messrs. Goodinge, 18, Aldersgate Street. The successful setting will be performed at the next Festival of the Association, but the result of the competition is to be announced in the July number of this journal.

MR. J. S. CURWEN, President of the Tonic Sol-fa College, has just spent a fortnight in Paris, studying the organisation of popular musical teaching there. He visited several of the Communal Schools, in company with M. Danhauser, chief musical inspector, and some of the free evening music-classes for adults organised by the Government. In addition to attending the practices of several of the Orphéoniste societies, he conferred with the leaders of the movement, visiting also a number of the classes taught on the Chevê system, which closely corresponds with the Tonic Sol-fa.

THE Annual Festival of the Sons of the Clergy will be held in St. Paul's Cathedral on Wednesday afternoon, the 10th inst. No musical novelty will this year, so far as we are aware, be introduced; but the Anthem selected is Mendelssohn's 114th Psalm, "When Israel out of Egypt came" and the Service, Eaton Faning's in C (composed for the Festival of 1878). The Overture to Mendelssohn's "Athalia" will precede the Service.

At the final Examination for the degree of Mus. Doc., at Cambridge University, Lent Term, 1882, the following were examined and approved: E. J. Crow (John's), C. J. Frost (Sidney), G. Marsden (John's), and W. Stokes (John's). Examiners: G. A. Macfarren, Ebenezer Prout, Charles Steggall.

THE St. George's Glee Union held its usual monthly Concert at the Pimlico Rooms on the 14th ult., the programme consisting of an attractive miscellaneous selection. Vocal solos were contributed by Miss Woodhatch, Miss Louise Augarde, Mr. C. W. Small, Mr. H. Schartau, and Mr. R. F. Roberts; and pianoforte selections by Miss Luenda Smeaton, R.A.M., and Miss Edith Mahon. The part-singing included "April is in my mistress' face" and "My bonny lass she smileth" (Morley), "The Nightingale" (Mendelssohn), &c. The Concert concluded with a song and chorus "Good night, farewell" (G. Garrett), the solos being sung by Miss Watts and Mr. H. Hannant. The accompaniments were played by Mr. F. R. Kinkee, and Mr. J. Monday conducted.

MISS ADA TOLKIEN gave her annual Concert on Tuesday evening, the 18th ult., at Brixton Hall. The beneficiaire met with a warm reception, and sang with artistic ability Bishop's "Lo! here the gentle lark," and Millard's "Waiting," each with flute obbligato by Mr. S. West. Miss Tolkien was assisted by Mesdames Frances Brooke, Osborne Williams, Lansdell-Sims, Misses Kingsbury, Featherby, Isabel Macgregor; Messrs. Coventry, James Budd, and Chaplin Henry. The pianists were the Misses Kingsbury (who played Moscheles' duet for two pianofortes, "Hommage à Handel") Miss Marian Weaver, Messrs. Fred Kingsbury and Alfred Tolkien.

A SPECIAL Musical Service was held in the Church of St. Edmund the King and Martyr, Lombard Street, at the mid-day service on Wednesday, the 12th ult., when there was a large congregation. The vocal portion consisted of Hopkins's Te Deum, and Anthems, "The Lord is my strength" (Smart), "I know that my Redeemer liveth" and the "Hallelujah" chorus (Handel), which were most efficiently rendered by the choir under the direction of Mr. C. E. Tutill. After the Service an Organ Recital was given by the Organist of the church, Miss Kate Westrop, consisting of selections from the works of the great masters, which were rendered with great taste and ability.

THE Belle Sauvage Glee Union gave their First Annual (or Ladies') Concert on March 28 at the Memorial Hall, Farringdon Street, under the direction of Mr. C. H. Hewitt. The part music was well rendered. The soloists were Miss Vivienne Hamilton, Miss E. Bampton, Miss Elena Vere, Miss Ada Bugler, Mr. Frederick Crowest, Mr. Frederick Bevan, Mr. T. P. Frame, Mr. H. E. Vickers, and Mr. Sydney H. Beckley. Mlle. Hélène de Lisle contributed two violin solos, and Mr. J. Hill a clarinet solo. Mr. Sydney Cozens and Miss M. Hoblyn were efficient accompanists. The Concert was most successful.

A PERFORMANCE of "The Victories of Judah after the Captivity," a new Cantata, with historical readings, was given in the large schoolroom at the Finsbury Park Chapel on Easter Tuesday. The choir numbered about fifty voices. Mr. J. C. Dale conducted; Mr. Geo. Shinn, Mus. Bac. (composer of the work), accompanied on the piano, and Mr. J. P. Harding on the harmonium. There was a large and appreciative audience. The proceeds of the Concert were given to the New Organ Fund.

THE Myddelton Choral Society gave a very successful Ballad and Miscellaneous Concert at the Memorial Hall, Islington, on the 18th ult., under the direction of Mr. Frank Austin, L.Mus., T.C.L. The Misses Mayr (pupils of the Conductor) performed with good effect Pauer's pianoforte transcription for four hands of Schubert's Octet. Miss Alice White was very successful in her songs, and Madame Wynspear Foli won an encore for a pianoforte fantasia on "Fra Diavolo." There was a good attendance.

FOR the Annual Festival of the Gregorian Association in St. Paul's Cathedral active preparations have been going on during the past month. The last two rehearsals, attendance at which is compulsory on all the singers who wish to take part in the Festival, are held under the dome, where also the Festival will take place on Thursday, the 11th inst., commencing at seven o'clock punctually.

IN order that the important works to be performed at the Richter Concerts during this season may be given with the utmost effect, a choir of 300 members has been rehearsing since last October, under the conductorship of Herr Th. Frantzen, and already engagements have been made with several of the most celebrated vocalists and instrumentalists of the day.

A LARGE organ, designed for the Church of St. Saviour, Eastbourne, and built by Messrs. J. W. Walker & Sons, has just been opened at their factory with a series of Recitals given by several of the leading organists of the day, commencing with one by Dr. W. H. Sangster, the Organist of St. Saviour's, on Thursday, the 20th ult. The instrument has four manuals, forty-three stops, and ten couplers.

THE special Service held annually at St. Paul's Cathedral on Tuesday before Easter, this year attracted a greater crowd, if possible, than any of its predecessors. The selections from Bach's, "St. Matthew Passion," which constitutes almost the whole of the Service, were the same as in past years. Mr. George C. Martin presided at the organ, Mr. Frederick Walker at the piano, and Dr. Stainer conducted.

IN accordance with the commands of His Majesty the King of Portugal, Messrs. John Brinsmead & Sons have specially manufactured a magnificent grand oblique pianoforte for the Royal Palace. The case is ebonised and decorated in the Adam style, with Cupids and wreaths of flowers. It contains all the latest improvements patented by Messrs. Brinsmead.

THE Leisure Hour for this month contains the Autobiography (hitherto unpublished) of William Jackson, of Exeter, the popular composer of his day, and the friend of Gainsborough, Goldsmith, and Sir Joshua Reynolds. Jackson is well known by his canzonets, "Love in thine eyes for ever strays" and "Time hath not thinned my flowing hair," and also by his favourite Te Deum in F.

A COMPLIMENTARY Concert to Mr. T. Scott was given, under the direction of Mr. T. Baxter, at St. Barnabas' Schools, South Lambeth, on March 31. The artists were Mdlle. Vagnolini, Miss Kate Baxter; Messrs. W. Sexton, G. T. Carter, E. Dalzell, R. W. Heney, E. J. Bell, Robert Hilton, Lawler, and the Victoria Glee Club. Miss Clara Baxter and Mr. Michael Watson accompanied.

M. LASSERRE announces that, "in consequence of circumstances beyond control," he will be unable to give any subscription Concerts of the Musical Union this season. One Matinée, however, will take place, for which the services of eminent artists have been secured. The date and details of this performance will be duly advertised in the daily papers.

THE orchestral parts of Brahms's Pianoforte Concerto not having arrived in time for the first Richter Concert on the 5th inst., it is announced that Mr. Eugène D'Albret will play Rubinstein's Concerto in D minor instead; and that later in the season he will produce Brahms's Concerto, which he has been studying with the composer in Vienna.

THE next number of Mr. Walford's new Antiquarian Magazine and Bibliographer will contain, inter alia, an interesting article by the Rev. F. Harford, Minor Canon of Westminster, on the real authorship of the National Anthem.

WE have much pleasure in announcing that H.R.H. the Princess of Wales has been graciously pleased to accept the dedication of Herr Gade's Cantata "Psyche," which has been composed expressly for the forthcoming Birmingham Festival.

H.R.H. THE DUKE OF ALBANY has graciously accepted the dedication of a March ("The Claremont") composed by Mr. J. M. Falshaw, Organist and Choirmaster of Esher Parish Church, in honour of H.R.H.'s marriage with the Princess of Waldeck.

DR. SLOMAN has completed a new work for double choir and full orchestra. The Ascension of our Lord, which is dramatically treated, forms the chief subject.

REVIEWS.

Wedding March. By Charles Gounod. Pianoforte arrangement by Berthold Tours. Organ arrangement by George C. Martin. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THIS work is one of national interest. Composed by M. Gounod at the express desire of Her Majesty the Queen, for the wedding of Prince Leopold (Duke of Albany), it appears before the public in the popular forms indicated above, with special claims upon attention—claims sure to be readily conceded quite apart from considerations of merit or fitness. M. Gounod's opportunity was a distinguished one, such as comes very seldom in a composer's lifetime. We do not insist so much upon the distinction of contributing in an artistic way to the splendour and effect of a courtly ceremonial of which, so to speak, a mighty nation is the sympathetic witness. That, truly, is great and satisfactory to a just ambition. But of more value still is the fact of having the ear of the nation open in a sense almost, if not quite, unique. M. Gounod must have felt, when composing his March, that he was writing, not for a small company, however illustrious, but for an empire. If this did not stimulate him to peculiar effort we know not what might be expected to do so, but it is certain that either the consideration just mentioned or some other led him to adopt an uncommon vehicle for the communication of his ideas. A march for an organ and three trombones is certainly a rare thing under the sun. We have heard of a concerto for organ and trombone, while it is not uncommon for the "shawm" and the organ to find themselves associated in continental churches. But the whole trombone family joining the sacred instrument in a Wedding March presents a phenomenon worth observing. Doubtless the effect justifies the means employed, and vindicates the judgment of a composer who is second to none in the power with which he uses instrumental resources. Those, however, who may object to the March in its original shape will be glad to know that M. Gounod has arranged it for full orchestra. The adaptations for pianoforte, by Mr. Tours, and for organ, by Mr. Martin, are destined, no doubt, to immediate popularity. In each case the task has been well done, and as the subject presents no difficulty even to players of moderate skill, there is every reason why both forms of the March should come into general use both in public and in private.

The work opens with five bars of introduction, Maestoso molto moderato, upon the dominant of C; the melody ascending steadily from G, second line, to the leading note a tenth above, where a pause occurs. Following this comes a Moderato in C major, given exclusively to the organ. Its brief course is divided into two well-defined parts. First occurs the subjoined melody (where no bass is indicated a tonic pedal must be understood):—

This having been repeated with a full close, the second part begins with canonic treatment of the subjoined—passing on to a resumption of the first theme, and so ending the movement. All this, it must be understood, is by way of prelude to the principal feature of the work, which takes the form of a movement, also Moderato, wherein the theme of "God save the Queen" appears as a Canto fermo, sustained by the trombones, with an independent organ accompaniment and interludes. The first phrase will serve to show M. Gounod's method of treatment:—

The theme having been completed thus, a modulation into G major is followed by one into the original key, and a recurrence to the first subject. This, however, is not persisted in. Once more the melody of the National Anthem is heard from the trombones, now in C major, and by way of Coda, since at the first full close M. Gounod hurries to an end.

The French master has, we believe, composed a second March, which will be played at Windsor Castle on the evening preceding the marriage, but will not be publicly performed until the Birmingham Festival, and consequently will not be published till that time.

The Violin: How to master it. By a Professional Player. [Simpkin, Marshall and Co.]

THE popular style in which this little treatise is written should strongly recommend it to those amateurs who wish to take part in concerted music rather than to stand forth as interpreters of the many high-class solos which only the gifted few should attempt. The earnestness of the author's style will no doubt induce the reader to pass lightly over the several grammatical errors to be met with—as, for instance, when, in speaking of an incompetent teacher, the author says that he “thinks nothing of expending an hour of the pupil's time in learning him to rosin his bow”—yet we cannot but think that it would have been better to submit the manuscript of the work to one who would correct such inaccuracies before intrusting it to the printer. The matter contained in the book is, however, of much value to inquiring students; for the very questions they constantly desire to ask are perhaps here more plainly answered than in works of the greatest authorities upon the instrument. It may be said—in case it should be imagined that self-tuition is even advocated—that the standard Tutors for the violin are strongly recommended, and that the most enthusiastic and diligent pupils are emphatically told that although the author places “all that is technical” before them, nothing can compensate for the example and precept of a master. There are some good observations upon the choice of an instrument, and salutary cautions against the tricks of unscrupulous manufacturers. One of these, a Scotch maker, it is said, “has acquired a certain facility in rattling up instruments out of poor wood, and with hardly any tools. The violins he turns out are nice-looking instruments of a pale yellow character, and generally built on the model of a heavy, deep Stradivarius. His mode of selling them is to pawn the instrument, and then get his wife, who goes about selling tins, to dispose of the ticket for a good sum to some unwary player. The violins thus forced into the market are horribly rasping in tone, generally false on some of the strings, and utterly beyond improving.” It is truly remarked that although a reliable violin is an expensive luxury, those who wish their sons or daughters to possess one rarely display much liberality in the purchase. “No good cottage pianoforte can be got for less than thirty pounds,” the author says; “parents know this, and give that sum, or more, freely. But when it comes to paying for a violin, which, if properly made, improves and increases in value, instead of deteriorating steadily, like the pianoforte, they hesitate and look grave over five or ten pounds.” Apart from the many practical hints given respecting holding, stringing, and tuning the violin, bowing, &c., there are some very useful directions as to the course of study to be pursued, the several standard books upon the instrument being recommended in systematic order; “Spohr's Violin School” of course being held up as “the one calculated to foster a pure and classical style,” but others being mentioned as more suitable for a beginner, especially if he should commence without the aid of a master. The author says that when he was a boy he could not afford to pay for lessons, and that there were not then cheap works upon the subject which would direct him at once into the right path. In the hope of guiding similarly enthusiastic young students, he publishes this book, and we have every right to believe that there are many who will thank him for his labours on their behalf.

Elementary History of Music. By N. D'Anvers. New Edition. Edited by Owen J. Dullea. [Sampson Low, Marston, Searle and Rivington.]

THE likenesses of the composers in this volume appear to have been taken from a series of Photographic Portraits by Professor Carl Jäger, with Biographical and Critical Notices by E. Rimbault, a notice of which appeared in this journal some time since. The matter contained in the book is tolerably well put together; but the account of the various schools of music is somewhat fragmentary, and we can scarcely agree with the author's estimate of the genius of some of the modern composers; as, for example, where, in speaking of Auber, he tells us that “the works of the latter portion of his career, when he had become enamoured of the style of Rossini, though they contain many sweet and original melodies, betray an attempt to imitate the great Italian composer.” But of all things in a History of Music it is essential that the information should be reliable. What, then, shall be said of the author of this work when he tells us that Mendelssohn's Oratorio “St. Paul” was brought out under the composer's own direction at the Birmingham Festival, in 1837? It is true that it may not mean the work was originally brought out at Birmingham, but what student, gathering his facts from Mr. D'Anvers, could possibly know that it was produced for the first time in England, under the direction of Sir George Smart, at Liverpool? Then, in the chapter on “Music in England,” Sir William Sterndale Bennett (whose name, by-the-by, is printed in the Index “Sir John Sterndale Bennett”) is said to have written for the pianoforte “many delightful works, such as the ‘Rondo Piacevole,’ ‘Maid of Orleans’ Sonata, &c.” It is true that his Opus 1, the Concerto in D minor, is casually named; but no mention is made of his three more celebrated Concertos, with the many beauties of which we should have thought every musician would be acquainted. We are also informed that Loder composed the Opera of “The Mountain Sylph.” Such an error is bad enough in itself; but the true composer of this work, Mr. John Barnett, is not thought worthy of a place in the book, and the Operas really composed by Mr. Loder appear unknown to the writer. As the editor tells us in his preface that the portion of the work devoted to English music has been rewritten because it was felt to require “amplifier consideration,” we are much surprised that such sins of commission and omission should appear; and considering that Mr. Frederic Clark, in his “Guide to the Local Examinations in Elementary Musical Knowledge of Trinity College, London,” recommends this “History of Music” as a textbook for students, there is every reason why attention should be called to the subject.

Unchanged. Song. Words by Miriam. Music by Alicia Florence Scott. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

LITTLE is attempted in this song, but both melody and accompaniment evidence the faculty of giving an appropriate colouring to some simple and unaffected poetry. The triplets at the commencement of the second verse somewhat disturb the placidity of the voice part; but this is a mere opinion, and we question whether the composer will agree with us.

Albany. Grande Marche Triomphale, for the Piano-forte. Composed in honour of the marriage of H.R.H. Prince Leopold, by Gabriel Davis.

[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

OCCASIONAL pieces must not be kept waiting for a notice; and although we cannot but think that Mrs. Davis is happier in vocal than in instrumental music, we at once apprise our readers that here is a March with a bold subject, and sufficient variety in its subordinate themes to please a mixed audience. We find that it is also published as a duet, but there is no intimation that it has been scored for an orchestra.

Deep and True. Song. Words by Dr. John Francis Waller.

Echoes. Song. Words by Wilhelmina Baines.

Composed by Berthold Tours. [Chappell and Co.]

WE must preface our remarks upon the composer's share in the first of these songs by unreservedly praising the words, which are not only good for musical setting, but excellent in themselves, and, although earnest and eloquent, free from that maudlin sentiment which is too often accepted as passionate poetry in the vocal music of the day. The author, too, has found a worthy ally in Mr. Tours, who has thoroughly caught the feeling of the verses and, on the model of the German lieder, produced a piece for voice and pianoforte which we unreservedly commend to those vocalists who care not to employ their talents upon the conventional songs of the period. Amongst the many beautiful points in this composition we may mention the holding of the keynote in the voice part (with the varying bass), and afterwards the ninth on the dominant, in the final bars, the effect of which, especially in the last verse, gives appropriate intensity to the words. The second song, "Echoes," although the work of a trained musician, is based upon a mournful subject, which we, however, freely admit appeals most forcibly to a very large portion of drawing-room singers. To all such the melodious character of the composition, and the tenderness with which the melancholy side of the little tale is treated, cannot but speak with irresistible power, and we confidently predict for the song a ready and extensive sale.

Two Sketches for the Piano. 1. Moderato con espressione; 2. Allegretto grazioso. By E. A. Sydenham.

[Ewald & Co.]

THERE is nothing particularly striking in Mr. Sydenham's two Sketches; but they are carefully written for the instrument, and free from that undue straining after effect to be found in the pianoforte music of so many of our young composers. No. 1 has a graceful subject, with a well-contrasted theme in the subdominant. The passages lie so agreeably under the hand as a rule that we cannot but think the one instance of the stretch of a tenth had better have been avoided. No. 2 derives much of its attraction from the division of the leading subject between the two hands. The modulations are good throughout; but the melody at the change of key looks more difficult to play than it really is, because there is no direction as to which hand is to take many of the notes. Amateurs, to whom such pieces as these are especially addressed, will, we are certain, thank the composer for supplying this deficiency in another edition.

Nocturne for the Pianoforte. By Kate Ockleston.

A Shadow. Song for Contralto. Words by Adelaide A. Procter. Music by Kate Ockleston.

[Forsyth Brothers.]

BOTH these compositions evidence musical feeling so far above the average as to encourage the hope that the writer may receive sufficient recognition to stimulate her to further and more important efforts. The Nocturne is based upon a highly attractive subject, the figure in the left hand (with which it is inseparably united) materially aiding its effect. The passages throughout are refined, graceful, and melodious; and the piece will quite repay the careful practice it demands. The Song, "A Shadow," is well written for a contralto voice, and most sympathetically expresses the words. We particularly admire the change of key on the phrase "What lacks my heart," and the conclusion is extremely effective. The title-page informs us that it has already been sung by Miss Hope Glenn.

Scarlet and Gold. Song. Words by Oscar Henry Schou. Music by Childs Avison. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE quaint verses chosen by the composer of this song have a feeling of the old chivalric poetry about them, which has been fairly reflected in both the voice part and accompaniment. Considering the length of the composition, we should have preferred a shorter opening symphony; but there is character in this, as well as in all the instrumental portion of the composition; and special praise must be given for the manner in which the oft-recurring burden of the song is treated. The resolution of the dominant ninth gives the effect of fifths at bar 9, page 3, although taken in its second inversion and followed by the sixth on F; but this could be easily remedied by doubling the bass note on the tonic harmony.

Melusina. A Legend for Solo Voices, Chorus, and Orchestra. Composed by H. Hofmann. Translated from the German of Osterwald by Professor George Boyle and Lewis Novra. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

ALTHOUGH Hofmann's name is rapidly becoming familiar in this country, many of his compositions are not yet so well known as they deserve to be. "Melusina," however, has already taken its true place in public estimation, the dramatic power, as well as the delicacy and refinement of the music, ensuring it a cordial welcome wherever it is heard. A new stimulus will now be given to its career by the publication of the work for the first time in Novello's Octavo Edition, a form which has already done so much to popularise those creations of our great composers which, with all their merits, might, without such aid, have been sealed to the multitude for years. As in all these editions, the music is beautifully printed, and the letterpress remarkably clear throughout.

Bourrée (No. 3). By E. Silas. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

IN addition to the many works of importance composed by Mr. Silas, he is well known as a writer of compositions adapted for drawing-room performance but moulded upon classical forms; and amongst his lighter pieces may be mentioned several highly successful specimens of those old dance-tunes upon which so many of the great writers of a past age employed their talents. The Bourrée now before us has a quaint principal theme in C major, with an effectively contrasted subject in the tonic minor, both hands being employed for some time closely together and at the top of the instrument. There is much originality in this piece, and we are glad to call attention to its merits.

My heart only knows. Song. Words and Music by Eleanor Louisa Hervey. [Hutchings and Romer.]

As a poet the authoress of this song needs no laudatory remarks from us, for she has made her name in that capacity well known in the world of literature; but as a composer she has yet to earn her fame, and if we may judge from the unpretentious ballad before us, she has every right to expect a fair position amongst the song-writers of the day. The melody, which has an undoubtedly Scottish character, is not only extremely attractive, but charmingly expressive of the words, and the harmonies and accompaniments are unexceptionable throughout. Drawing-room vocalists will, we are certain, thank us for calling their attention to this effective little composition.

Ten Minutes in the Country. Two Pieces for piano, violin, violoncello, and toys. By Carr Moseley.

[Reid Brothers.]

HERE is another and a welcome contribution to the fast-increasing store of pieces accompanied by toy instruments. The first number, "In the Woods," contains some excellent writing in all the parts, the principal subject having an appropriately pastoral character. The second piece, "Gipsy's Life," has a pleasing, light theme, in A minor, with which the other subjects are well contrasted. The changes of key are carefully considered; and both pieces will be found highly effective for drawing-room performance.

FOREIGN NOTES.

ACCORDING to an announcement made in the Bayreuther Blätter, the performances of Richard Wagner's "Parsifal" will be inaugurated on July 26, on which and the following day members of the Patronat-Verein only will be admitted. Besides these, fourteen public representations of the work, commencing on July 30, will be given on the Sunday, Tuesday, and Friday of each respective week.

The performances of Wagner's "Nibelungen" tetralogy at the Cologne Stadt-Theater were completed on the 14th ult., amidst the enthusiastic demonstrations of the audience. Fräulein Wildl, of the Leipzig Opera, impersonated the part of Brünnhild, and Herr Unger that of Siegfried. At Frankfurt, "Rheingold" and "Walküre" were produced for the first time on the 15th and 16th ult. with enormous success. The same composer's "Die Meistersinger" has been newly mounted at the Leipzig Theatre under the direction of Capellemeister Seidl.

The Berlin Opera has just been deprived of three of its most valued primé donne, viz. Mesdames Mallinger, Tagliani, and Brandt. The latter, after fulfilling a few short operatic engagements at Vienna and elsewhere, will proceed to Bayreuth, where she is to interpret the part of Kundry in the forthcoming "Parsifal" performances.

Herr Franz Rummel, the well-known pianist virtuoso, gave a most successful concert on March 25 at the Berlin Singakademie, with the co-operation of the Sinfonie-capelle. The Berlin Tribüne and other local journals notice the event in terms highly flattering to the pianist, whose "brilliant technique, grand tone, and general artistic interpretation" are pointed out as special characteristics of his performances.

The period of the legal privilege accorded to the family of Lortzing, under which the latter derived a pecuniary benefit from every performance of his operas in Germany, having expired (thirty years after the composer's death) a petition has been submitted by Dr. Förster, the Director of the Leipzig Stadt-Theater, to the prominent operatic establishments of the country, urging the continuation of the payment of this tantième to the family, which, it appears, is in poor circumstances. The Directors of the Berlin Opera have already assented to this proposal, which will doubtless be generally responded to.

Carl Rheinthalers new opera, entitled "Käthchen von Heilbronn," was recently produced for the first time at the Dresden Hoftheater with good success.

The Berlin Musik-Welt, a journal occasionally quoted in our columns, has suspended its issue on account of the ill-health of its editor, Herr Max Goldstein.

The course of scientific and æsthetic lectures held during the winter months at the Leipzig Conservatorium was concluded this year with a highly interesting discourse on "Shakespeare und die Musik," given by the University professor, Dr. Gustav Baur.

The 150th anniversary of the birth of Joseph Haydn was commemorated by the Berlin Singakademie, on March 31, by a performance of "The Creation."

The Allgemeine Deutsche Musik Zeitung of the 7th ult. contains, under the heading of "Audiatur et Altera Pars," a long letter from the pen of Dr. Hans von Bülow, wherein the eminent pianist-conductor defends, in eulogistic terms, his French colleague, M. Camille Saint-Saëns, against the adverse criticism respecting his opera "Samson and Delila" (recently produced at Hamburg), expressed by a critic of that town. Dr. von Bülow's standpoint in this controversy may be summed up in the following paragraph, which occurs in his letter: "The opera 'Samson' of the Frenchman Saint-Saëns is, in my opinion—and I have held that opinion unaltered for five years—the best German opera produced during the last quarter of a century, and is altogether the most important post-Wagnerian music-drama. Saint-Saëns is the only contemporary upon whom the study of Wagner has not had a confusing but an enlightening influence." We doubt whether M. Camille Saint-Saëns will be altogether pleased with this dictum of his enthusiastic defender.

The opera-house at Schwerin was completely destroyed by a fire which broke out during a performance on the 16th ult. The Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, who was present on the occasion, addressed the panic-stricken audience, whom he implored to disperse quietly, a wire curtain having been lowered, in front of which the actors and singers appeared, while the orchestra recommenced playing. Thus reassured, the audience left the house in complete order, without any serious accident being reported. The Schwerin Hof-Theater has done some good service to the cause of Art. The present building was erected in 1835.

Dr. Hans von Bülow is engaged to be married to Fräulein Marie Schanzer, an actress at the Meiningen Hof-Theater.

Johannes Brahms's "Deutsches Requiem" was performed on Good Friday last by the Hamburg Bach-Verein, under the direction of the composer.

The long looked-for first performance of M. Ambroise Thomas's new opera, "Françoise de Rimini," took place on the 14th ult. at the Grand-Opéra of Paris. The libretto of the new work, which is founded upon the well-known episode in Dante's "Divina Commedia," is from the experienced pen of MM. Jules Barbier and Michel Carré, and the opera is divided into four acts, with a prologue and an epilogue. Mdle. Salla and MM. Lasalle, Sellier, and Gailhard interpreted the principal rôles. As usual on the occasion of a first production of a work of such pretensions, public opinion is divided as to the merits and general success of this latest dramatic effort of the Director of the Conservatoire, although it is admitted on all sides that it contains some of his most charming music. Many important curtailments have, however, been found necessary in subsequent performances of "Françoise de Rimini," which has been the only novelty produced by the Grand-Opéra during the present season. The house was crowded in every part with a brilliant and critical audience.

M. Gounod's "Tribut de Zamora," received with the greatest indifference at the Regio Theatre of Turin some time ago, has met with a fiasco on the occasion of its recent production at Lyons.

M. Alexandre Guilmant's grand organ recitals in combination with an orchestra will take place this year on the 9th, 11th and 25th inst., and June 1, at the Trocadéro in Paris. We have repeatedly alluded to these interesting performances in these columns.

Subscriptions have been set on foot for the erection of a monument over the grave of Hector Berlioz at Paris. Franz Liszt has already contributed the sum of 300 francs to the fund.

More than ordinary activity is being displayed on the part of the Directors of the Imperial Opera of Vienna, where preparations have already commenced for the production, during the season commencing in October next, of the following new works, viz., "Die Erste Falte" by Leschetizki, "Der Bauer als Schelm," comic opera by Dvorák, "Simone Boccanegra" by Verdi, "Il Duca D'Alba" by Donizetti, Rheinthalers "Käthchen von Heilbronn," a Ballet by Mr. Cowen, and, it is hoped, also M. Thomas's "Françoise de Rimini."

The recent revival at the Imperial Opera at Vienna of Schubert's opera "Alfonso und Estrella," under the direction of Capellemeister Fuchs, has not been a success. The work, although full of melodious charms, is said to be sadly deficient in essential dramatic qualities.

At a Concert recently given at Bruges on behalf of the Artists' Pension Fund, under the direction of Count Lebaillly de Serret, a promising young singer (mezzo-soprano), Mdle. Carlotta Peretti, made a most successful début in public, and is spoken of in the local press as a highly talented artist. Mdle. Peretti is a pupil of Signor Chiaromonte, of the Brussels Conservatoire.

The new "Stabat Mater" by Anton Dvorák was performed for the first time on Good Friday last at Pesh.

At Milan a new musical institute is to be opened during the coming autumn, which will devote itself to the artistic training of organists and conductors of church music.

Donizetti's posthumous opera, "Il Duca d'Alba," has been most enthusiastically received on its recent first performance at the Apollo Theatre of Rome, and the work is pronounced equal to the best which have proceeded from the pen of the deceased maestro.

Madame Pauline Lucca has been obliged to cancel her engagement for a series of representations at the Berlin Opera in consequence of a persistent indisposition which will necessitate her paying a visit to Italy.

The Regio Theatre of Turin closed its performances this season with Ponchielli's opera "La Gioconda" and the ballet "Excelsior," by Manzotti. Most flattering ovations were offered on the occasion to the principal singers, viz., the sisters Mariani, the tenor Ortisi, and the baritone Wilmant. The Stefano Tempia Choral Society gave its thirty-seventh Concert on the 6th ult., the interesting programme of which will be found in the usual column.

The death is announced of Gardoni, the famous tenor and rival of Mario, at the age of sixty-two.

Friedrich Wilhelm Kücken, the well-known composer of songs, died at Schwerin, on the 3rd ult., at the age of seventy-one.

We subjoin, as usual, the programmes of concerts* recently given at some of the leading institutions abroad:—

Paris.—Gounod Festival at the Cirque d'Hiver (April 2): Symphony D major, Chanson et Stances from "Sapho," Divertissement from "Cinq Mars," "Ode to St. Cecilia," for violin, Chanson from "Le Médecin malgré lui," "Dodelinette," Chanson du Grandpère (new), Airs from "La Reine de Saba," "Funeral March of a Marionette," Meditation on a Prelude by Bach, with violin solo (Gounod). Concert Spirituel of the Conservatoire (Good Friday): Pastoral Symphony (Beethoven); Chorus from "St. Paul" (Mendelssohn); Andante from Septet (Beethoven); Vocal duet (Gounod); Andante religioso et Allegretto (Mendelssohn); Chorus (Palestrina); Overture, "Oberon" (Weber). Lamoureux Concert (Good Friday): "La Vallée de Josaphat," Symphonie biblique (G. Salvayre, first time); Requiem (Th. Gouvy, first time); Symphonie espagnole (Lalo); Third Act "Lohengrin," and March from "Tannhäuser" (Wagner). Concert Spirituel of M. Padeloup (Good Friday): Marche Funèbre, first time (Bizet); Requiem (Mozart); Benedictus (Beethoven); "Islande" (Holmes); Piano-forte Concerto (Bach); "Le Chant des Apôtres," first time (Wagner). Conservatoire (April 16): Choral Symphony (Beethoven); Fragment from "Orpheus" (Gluck); Air from "Le Nozze di Figaro" (Mozart); Theme with variations, Scherzo, and Finale from Septet (Beethoven). Last Concert Populaire (April 16): Symphony, C minor (Beethoven); Air from "Siège de Corinthe" (Rossini); Violoncello Concerto (Saint-Saëns); Air from "Les Saisons" (Massé); Danse Tartare (Joncières); Polonaise, E flat (Chopin); Arioso from "Hérodiade" (Massenet); Allegretto agitato (Mendelssohn); Duet from "Mireille" (Gounod); Overture, "Merry Wives of Windsor" (Nicolai).

Lyons.—Concert of the Sainte-Cécile Society (March 26): "La Fille de Jaire" (Madame de Grandval); Air from "Iphigénie en Tauride" (Gluck); Stanzas, "La Vierge" (Massenet); Duet from "Marie Madeleine" (Massenet); 137th Psalm (Gounod).

Leipzig.—At St. Thomas's Church (Good Friday): Passion Music, St. Matthew (J. S. Bach).

Cologne.—Concert-Gesellschaft (April 2): "Missa Solemnis," D major (Beethoven); Sinfonia Eroica (Beethoven).

Wiesbaden.—Cur-Orchester (March 31): Overture, "Medea" (Bargiel); Symphony, C major (Schubert); "Les Préludes," symphonic poem (Liszt). Cur-Orchester (April 2): Symphony, "Lenore" (Raff); Andante cantabile, from Op. 97 (Beethoven-Liszt); "Les Préludes," symphonic poem (Liszt). Cäcilien-Verein (April 4): Passion Music, St. Matthew (J. S. Bach).

Turin.—Stefano Tempia Choral Society (April 6): "Christus factus est" (F. Anerio); "O vos omnes" (Vittoria); "Tenebræ factæ sunt" (Palestrina); "Inter vestibulum" (Perti); "Stabat Mater" (Palestrina, D'Astorga, Pergolesi, Boccherini, Rossini).

Baltimore.—Peabody Concert (March 11): Symphony, C major (Schubert); Songs (R. Schumann); Piano-forte solos (Liszt); "Faust" overture (R. Wagner). Peabody Concert (March 25): Symphony, E flat major (R. Schumann); Songs (R. Schumann); Piano-forte solos (Liszt); "Siegfried" Idyl and Kaiser-Marsch (R. Wagner). Students' Concert of the Peabody Institute (March 4): String Quartet, Op. 74, No. 3 (Haydn); Air from "Magic Flute" (Mozart); Serenade, C major; Symphony, B flat major (Haydn). Students' Concert (March 18): String Quartet, A major, Op. 41 (R. Schumann); Songs (Brahms); Piano-forte Trio, E flat major, Op. 100 (Schubert).

New York.—Philharmonic Club (March 7): Concerto, F major (Bach); Variations on "God save the Emperor" (Haydn); Ballade, G minor (Chopin); Septet, Serenade in F major (F. L. Ritter).

Wellesley (U.S.).—Pupils' Concert of the Wellesley College (March 20): Piano-forte Pieces (Schumann, Roeder); "Sonata Pathétique" (Beethoven); Rondo Capriccioso (Mendelssohn); Piano-forte Pieces (Schumann, Rheinberger); Fantaisie, C minor (Mozart); Etude in F (Chopin); Vocal soli (Mendelssohn, Schumann, Mozart, Sainton-Dolby, Kücken, Rossini).

Syracuse (N. Y.).—Organ Concert of Professor Flagler (March 15): Overture, "Stradella" (Flotow); Air from "Alexander's Feast" (Handel); Sonata, No. 3 (Haydn); Fantaisie on "Il Trovatore" (Alard); Offertoire (Batiste); Air from "Samson" (Handel); "Torchlight" March (Meyerbeer); Romance, in F, for violin (Beethoven); Concert Fugue in E minor (Flagler).

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE TONIC SOL-FA AND STAFF NOTATION SYSTEMS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—Now that Royalty has taken up the question of a musical Conservatoire, the subject of musical education in elementary schools is of greater importance than ever. If it may be taken for granted that the intention of those who are establishing the Conservatoire is not to provide musical education for the higher and middle classes only; but to promote emulation over as wide an area as possible; it behoves all who are interested in rate-aided schools to promote such a system of musical instruction in them as will enable the children of poor parents to compete for scholarships in the Conservatoire with children whose parents can afford to pay for tuition. This idea has been carried into effect with regard to the three R's; the State giving to all children up to a certain age equal opportunities of acquiring knowledge, and insisting on their being examined up to specified standards. Now, if this principle be right with regard to general education—and as the public purse pays for musical instruction—it would surely not be wrong to insist on its application to the subject of Music. But now arises the question: "On what principle are we to determine the standard?" In answering this question we must be guided by the opinion of eminent composers. But, it may be said, as most of them have made themselves partisans of this or that system of teaching, how can it be safe to be guided by their opinion? Well, now, it happens that there is one principle on which all eminent composers are agreed, viz., that the ultimate result of all teaching ought to be facility in reading the notation or language in which they write their musical thoughts, i.e., the staff notation. Let us then take this one point as our guiding principle; and insist upon the children in elementary schools being examined in accordance with it. I offer this suggestion because I think that musical education in elementary schools has long been retarded by difference of opinion between only two sections of the musical public as to the best means of attaining the desired end, and also because I believe neither of the systems which have been so prominently before the public to be capable of producing the best possible results. The Fixed Doh system, which was introduced into our schools forty years since, with the prestige implied in the fact of being "Under the sanction of the Committee of Council on Education," stands condemned in the eyes of musical men by Dr. Hullah's own reports of the examinations in our training colleges. As to the letter notation, if its advocates believe it to be the best means of leading children to a knowledge of the staff, they will be willing to place it in competition with other systems, on equal conditions. I have made some inquiries, however, and have not heard of an elementary school in which, after the letter notation has been introduced, any attempt has been made to teach the staff. A forcible comment on this fact is to be found in the following words of Dr. Stainer: "Should any prejudice against the staff rise up, a serious responsibility will rest on the head of Tonic Sol-fa teachers." I will now ask you to print an account of the doings of twenty-eight schoolboys at a meeting in Bristol, December 20, 1879. The results here vouched for were produced by the system which rendered the Elizabethan era, so far as this country is concerned, a musical landmark—I mean the old English, commonly called the "Lancashire" System of Sol-fa. I hope its perusal will convince your readers that the question of musical education in elementary schools has not only two, but at least three, sides.—Yours faithfully,

JAS. GREENWOOD,

Author of No. 19, Novello, Ewer and Co.'s "Music Primers," Trafalgar Villa, Cotham New Road,

Bristol, April 8, 1882.

NARRATIVE OF FACTS.—One of the boys wrote on the blackboard the changes of key from C to C flat major, and another wrote the changes back to the original key. The twenty-eight boys then sang the exercise, and when the keynote was sounded at the finish it was found that they were just a trifle sharp. I then asked another boy to write the changes of key from C to C sharp major, and one of his schoolmates wrote the changes of key back to C major. The twenty-eight boys, after being cautioned to be less excited, sang through the different keys to and from C sharp major; and when I sounded C on the pianoforte it was a perfect unison with the note on which they ended. I wrote exercises in three-four and common time, and in different major and minor keys, introducing the intervals of major sevenths, diminished sevenths, minor sevenths, augmented fourths, augmented seconds, &c., all of which were sung at first sight correctly, both as to time and tune. I wrote the chromatic scale with C as the tonic (ascending and descending), giving the note C to start from; and, after singing the scale (ascending and descending), the boys ended in perfect tune. This was done three times with the same result. I then wrote the chromatic scale (ascending and descending), commencing on E, which the boys sang with the same result of ending in perfect tune with the instrument from which the pitch was taken.

I invited any gentleman in the room to write on the blackboard a figured bass. Mr. Cayzer (head-master of Queen Elizabeth's Hospital) wrote a figured bass in G major. A boy, who was fifteen years old in October last, harmonised it in four parts, and the boys sang the four parts (bass, tenor, alto, and treble) in correct time and tune at first sight. (I may here mention that three of the youths had only recently lost their boys' voices, but so good was their knowledge of the relationship of the different clefs, that both tenor and bass parts were sung firmly in tune in this exercise and in the choruses named below. This exercise was unaccompanied. I accompanied the choruses on a pianoforte. Of alto and treble of course we had abundance.) My youthful choir then sang with precision of attack, and in good tune * Contributions intended for this column should indicate clearly the place and date of performance, as otherwise they cannot be inserted.

"We never will bow down," "We worship God," and "O Father, whose almighty power" ("Judas"), "They loathed to drink of the river" ("Israel in Egypt"), and "Hallelujah" ("Messiah").

It is certified that the above is an unexaggerated narrative of facts by
C. E. HEY (Precentor of Bristol),
GEO. RISELEY (Organist, Bristol Cathedral),
J. BARRETT, (Organist, Christ Church, Clifton, and Instructor of Class-singing at High School for Girls),
D. W. ROTHAM (Conductor, Bristol Madrigal Society, and Chorusmaster, Festival Choir),
HY. FRANCE (Lay Clerk, Bristol Cathedral).

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—Among the advantages by which the Tonic Sol-fa system is enabled to compete with the staff notation may be mentioned the following: their system has not yet attained sufficient dimensions to be damaged by different methods of teaching and by the cramming to which singers taught under the staff notation are often subjected; their primer is a very much more complete and a better book than any elementary music-book possessed by staff notationists; the teaching of the Tonic Sol-fa is confined mainly to elementary schools, and is a systematic exposition of the rudiments of music, whilst many of the "rich" mentioned in Mr. McNaught's letter learn comparatively late in life, and pick up their ideas of the relative value and position of notes from lessons in singing or on the piano, given by a teacher whose duty it is to cultivate a developing voice rather than to teach the rudiments of musical knowledge.

If our primers combined the rudest elements of notation with the same admirable directions for the use of the voice and the cultivation of expression which may be found in the "Standard Course" of the Tonic Sol-fa, staff notationists would have much less difficulty in teaching and in learning singing. If we are not to follow the example of those who advocate phonetic spelling in schools, and cut off nearly all connection with the past of music, educated musicians, be its demerits what it may, must be taught from the staff notation. A great end is gained when young children, whether rich or poor, can be taught upon a system which leaves them nothing or little to unlearn when they grow older and more experienced.

Now pitch is one great point at issue between the two systems, and in cultivating this the teachers of the staff notation labour under this very great disadvantage, that their scale is broken in the most material point by leger lines, and that "middle C," which is the note from which a teacher would naturally work, can only be represented upon the staff for elementary purposes by the use of two different leger lines, in clefs the signs of which, as they at present stand, express nothing to a student. By the use of one of the much-abused old clefs, and by the alteration of the signs only of the G and F clefs, a complete scale could be formed for elementary purposes which would not only give an unbroken scale, but would avoid the difficulty and confusion arising from passages written in leger lines, and would leave all notes "on the staff" as they are now, so as to enable advanced students to read the present clefs. Instead of the present scale of teaching, by which middle C and the notes above and below it may be written either—or else—

I would substitute a scale having the sign of middle C for all clefs, viz.:—

By this means all reference in notation would be made to "middle C" alone from every note; and when once a student had learnt the position of that most important note (which is at present described in Stainer and Barrett's "Musical Terms" "as the note standing on the first leger line above the bass and below the treble staves") he would find little difficulty in learning to read music, would be able to fix an absolute pitch, and would very easily read from the present notation with leger lines; in short, he would be more in the position of those who learnt singing before the introduction of keyed instruments led to the non-usage of the clefs. I am aware that this alteration would not do away with the difficulties of "key," which must always exist whatever system of notation is adopted, but it would materially lessen those difficulties by avoiding leger lines and by giving one central note on the staff from which the relations of keys could be taught; and it would enable many who now learn at school, and no longer from the Tonic Sol-fa, to continue their studies later in life; and to carry them into other and higher branches of musical literature.—I am, sir, yours faithfully,

J. W. JEUDWINE.

Shrewsbury, April 22, 1882.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—Kindly allow me, in the interests of a national musical education, to make a few remarks in reply to Mr. McNaught's communication in your April number. The Tonic Sol-fa notation has been put forward as an introduction to that of the staff; and as such only Dr. Stainer and Messrs. Sedley Taylor and E. Prout recognise it. Dr. Stainer says: "Should any prejudice against the staff rise up, a serious responsibility will rest on the head of Tonic Sol-fa teachers." Mr. Taylor says: "I think, however, that those who control the music-teaching in our elementary schools should organise a course of instruction including both the Tonic and the established notations." Mr. E. Prout says: "If we considered it designed to supersede the ordinary method of writing music, we should unhesitatingly condemn it." The leaders of the Sol-fa movement deprecate the introduction of the staff to children during the school age. Messrs. McNaught and Thompson, teaching students in training colleges between the ages of eighteen and twenty-one years, are unable to get beyond their easy introductory notation in two years. Mr. S. Curwen can teach Sol-fa-ing school-children to sing from the staff, perfectly new to them, in one lesson of ten minutes. Mr. Evans can perform the same feat in five minutes. Mr. Hullah does not ask for the rejection of the Sol-fa method, but would enforce the principle laid down by Messrs. Stainer, Taylor, and Prout, which is practically rejected by Messrs. McNaught and Thompson in the training colleges. As a teacher I welcome the effort Professor Macfarren has made to preserve universality in musical notation, and embrace the opportunity of directing attention to the inconsistency of Sol-faists.

I am, sir, faithfully yours,

FRED. W. WAREHAM.

MALE-VOICE CHOIRS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

